WNYC, N. Y., is bringing some literary masterpieces of yesterday and today to the ether in this new recorded series. Selections played, judged by the opening program (1), are a little highbrow and rather too specialized in material, but they will undoubtedly please a certain segment of literati. Selections themselves seem to be collector's items, and all in all made up an interesting, unusual airer.

Preem program, ably collected and prepared by George Wallach, had material from Elizabeth Browning, Gertrude Stein, James Joyce and Edgar Allan Poe. Without much preliminary, it went right to the subject-matter, with Basil Rathbone's affecting reading of Mrs. Browning's sonnet, "How Do I Love Thee?" Then came the late Miss Stein's voice, reading her "Valentine to Sherwood Anderson" somewhat quickly and indistinctly, to make the sequence rather confusing.

Joyce followed, in a reading from his "Finnegan's Wake" (the Anna Livia Plurabelle passages). Joyce's musical voice and attractive reading helped make up for material which sounded incomprehensible over the air. Closing selection, the longest, was a dramatic reading of Poe's "The Raven" by Benjamin de Loache, with its effect heightened by musical accompaniment played by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Peter Gravina did a good job of introducing the various segments. Program, in addition to content, has added appeal by use of famous names on their air like Miss Stein and Joyce. Perhaps Miss Stein and Joyce are too much to take on one airer with Miss Browning and Poe, but that's a matter of taste. This series, anyway, is a little unusual and provocative, and off the beaten literary path. Bron.

Radio Followup

With its star returning to his chores with the N. Y. Yankees, CBS' transcribed Joe DiMaggio show faded off the air Saturday (11) until late this summer. Farewell shot was highlighted by the appearance of ex-President Herbert Hoover who spoke in behalf of National Boys Club Week (March 20-26).

Former chief executive's stint was preceded by a brief dramatization of the peaks of his career. Sketch of his sports background and Horatio Alger-like rise in the business world fitted in admirably with the general youth-building tone of this Jack Barry-Dan Enright package for juvenile dialers.

Rather incongruous, however, was a maudlin singing commercial for M. & M. candy which came only a few seconds after Hoover's dignified encomia for the Boys Clubs. Balance of the show comprised the usual boys vs. girls sports quiz, the Joe DiMaggio "Award of the Week" and a short sequence where the Yank player answered audience queries.

John B. Gambling celebrated his 25th anni in radio with a marathon stint on WOR and WOR-TV, N. Y., last Wednesday (8). His "Musical Clock" stanza (7:15-8 a.m.), which has been aired continuously on the Bamberger station for the quarter century, originated from the Longacre theatre which was packed with loyal listeners. Program was an informal gabfest, a family affair that included his 81-year-old father who came over from England for the event, his son John A. Gambling, who has his own series on the Dartmouth College station, and his wife. Among the guests were Gov. Alfred Driscoll of New Jersey and Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner, Jr., Bernarr Macfadden, who sponsored Gambling when the "Musical Clock" featured setting up exercises in the early days, told how the old N. Y. Graphic used to run pictures of girls doing their calisthenics in the WOR studios.

Other WOR personalities—Martha Deane, Barbara Welles, Dorothy and Dick Kollmar, Joe Bier, Arthur Van Horn, Bruce Eliot, Dan McCullough and engineering veepee Jack Poppele (who originally hired Gambling when engineers doubled as announcers) took part in the ceremonies. It was all Gambling's party, but also a tribute to the hold that veteran radio performers have on their audiences.

DOCTOR GINO'S MUSICALE

With Henry Levine orch; Gene Hamilton, announcer; guests
Writer: Bill Rafael
Producer: Hamilton
30 Mins.; Mon., 10:30 p.m.
Sustaining
ABC, from N.Y.

Dixieland is surging back and this show is climbing on the bandwagon. It's a direct throwback to the "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street," which held forth on the airlanes almost a decade ago. This show has virtually the same format, the same beat and the same musical director in the person of Henry "Hot Lips" Levine. For those who like hot jazz, this session is whipping it up according to taste.

By the iron law of all Dixie layouts, this airer teed off with the classic "Muskrat Ramble" with plenty of zest. Martha Lou Harp delivered a neat vocal of "Embraceable You" the band worked over assorted numbers like the "Original Dixieland One-Step" and "After You've Gone." Departing radically from the usual type of jazz instrumentation, Tony Di Girolamo fiddled through "I Surrender, Dear." Musically, the show was solid.

On the preem, guests Paul Whiteman and Walter Kiernan chatted pleasantly about musicians, their habitat and their jargon. Gene Hamilton also did a neat job of handling the introes with an unstrained line of gab and sense of humor. Herm.

ST. JOHN PASSION

With Robert Shaw Chorale; Ed Michael, announcer
Director: Walter Scanlon
Producer: Albert Crews
30 Mins.; Sun.; 7 p.m.
Sustaining
ABC, from N.Y.

For the longhair segment of the radio audience, this rendition of Bach's "St. John Passion" will be a welcome addition to the flock of pre-Easter programs. Aired under the auspices of the Protestant Radio Commission, this massive choral work is being presented in four weekly sections with the finale slated to fall on Easter Sunday. The work was specially recorded in complete form and is being aired via transcriptions.

Robert Shaw's choral group, which has waxed several large Bach compositions for RCA Victor, gave a superbly dramatic rendition of the opening section. At its best in serious music, this group infused feeling and color into this number for an overall impressive achievement. It's unfortunate that the work had to be cut up in this form. Shaw made a brief intro to explain the nature of the composition. Herm.

KITCHEN KAPERS

With Doc Wheeler
Producer-director: Wheeler
30 Mins.; Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.
Participating
WWRL, N. Y.

Another in the WWRL lineup of shows slanted towards the Negro market, this half-hour cross-the-board disk jock session is an entertaining airer with general appeal. Program follows the routine pattern of most disk shows, but concentrates more on recordings by Negro artists. Airer's jockey, Doc Wheeler, frequently heard as emcee of WMCA's "Harlem Amateur Hour," creates a friendly atmosphere, throwing in some light chatter when the turn-tables aren't in use.

Slotted in the 10-10:30 slot, broadcast should find favor with WWRL's morning listeners, principally the housewife contingent. Commercials are given satisfactory handling by Wheeler.

TODAY IN ISRAEL

With Isaiah L. Kenen
Producer: Sam Elfert
10 Mins., Mon.-Fri.; 6:15 p.m.
Sustaining
WLIB, from N. Y.

WLIB should have little trouble drawing its Jewish - American listening audience to this 10-minute cross-the-board airer. Program, a daily news report on happenings in Israel, gives listeners a brief, but practically up-to-the-minute picture of the newly-formed state's problems and progress.

Newscasting on the show, broadcast from the Israel Consulate building in New York, is capably handled by Isaiah L. Kenen, director of information for the Consulate. Initial show, which bowed on March 6, was ushered in by Israel Consul - General Arthur Lourie. A portion of the show is also devoted to answering questions on Israel sent in by the dialers.

Tele Follow-Up Comment

NBC television did it again with its "Saturday Night Revue" last week (11), staging a two-and-a-half hour show that was tops to date. Program, including both the Chicago and N. Y. originations, was standout in talent, originality and production. So far, the web has given proof that its cast, producers and directors have the stuff to repeat week after week.

Judging from the trio aired so far, it appears that the program will fall into a definite pattern. Jack Carter's hour from Chi will follow a vaudeo format, with Max Liebman's N. Y. production sticking closely to the revue policy. Thus, Carter pulled a near Milton Berle on last week's session, taking part in practically every act and climaxing it via a sock turn with Cab Calloway and the Step Bros. in a "Minnie the Moocher" bop routine. Film actress Marie McDonald thrushed one tune neatly and then paired with Carter for a funny marital agency skit. Baritone Don Richards and comic Benny Baker repeated their good work and, of equal importance, the entire show's timing was on the button.

N. Y. "Show of Shows" was marked by several factors, including the fine emcee work and surprising comedic talents of Rex Harrison; the terrif comedy of Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca; the "Tramp Ballet" finale, reprised from last year's "Admiral Revue," and the originality of the songs, dances and sketches. Caesar's impersonation of a baby lying in his crib was as good as anything he's done and his teaming with Harrison to depict the difference in merchandise methods between England and America was bright hilarity. That "Radio City" skit sung by Miss Coca and the chorus should be restaged on the Music Hall stage, it was that good. Operatic work of Robert Merrill and Marguerite Piazza, plus the latter's "Still of the Night," was equally fine.

Against stiff competition from the "NBC Saturday Revue," CBS-TV's "54th Street Revue" last week (11) hit its stride with a highly entertaining airer. Joey Faye, supported by some diverting original sketches by Mel Diamond, clicked in a satire on Gallic films, in which the characters' French was translated by the comic through poster sub-titles. This was a fairly long scene, but it moved quickly and there were several amusing variations on the theme, with Mandy Kaye, Mort Marshall and Joe Silver aiding the burlesque. A good deal of originality went into the production. One skit, which took place in a subway rush hour, concluded with a disembodied arm hanging from one of the straps and one standee walking out with six arms, like an oriental diety. Staging of a "Candy and Cake" vocal also had a fresh touch, with chirper Virginia Gorski being crowded on a bench by the quartet. Ballet routine by John Butler, a gay dream-like sequence in the lost and found department of Grand Central Station, was neatly done.

The stanza's regulars—songwriters Dick Lewine and Ted Fetter, vocalists Marilyn Day and Jordan Bentley, terper - singers Tommy Wonder and Miss Gorski—did a good ensemble job, with Fosse and Niles adding a slick dance routine. Finale was a fair blackout sketch with Faye playing a would-be pic actor.

Cartoonist Al Capp and comedian Abe Burrows kicked around the subject of whether American humor is funny on CBS-TV's "People's Platform "Friday night (10). Two didn't reach any overall conclusions but each brought forth some highly salient points in a discussion that had in its plenty of serious thought. Capp reiterated his definition of humor as being based on "man's inhumanity to man," pointing to the public's feeling of superiority to the bum portrayed by Charles Chaplin as the basis of Chaplin's humor. Burrows disagreed, claiming humor is based on the sharp, incisive manner in which it cuts away sham.

Probably most important was the point on which the two agreed—that the many restrictions and censorships now hobbling American humor has stripped it of all its one-time virility. Capp noted he was forced to eliminate his "Senator Phoggbound" from his "Li'l Abner" strip because the character portrayed a crooked politico, and that he had to invent a country, "Lower Slobbovia," to make use of his penchant for dialects. Burrows picked up the idea to point out that all mass media are now faced with the same constricting forces.

Duo got in their share of witticisms but impressed, in the main, with the fact that they're both plenty erudite and deep-thinking. Charles Collingwood did his usual capable job of moderating the session.

Jack E. Leonard, on a repeat engagement on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," Sunday (12), again romped off with the show. He has a collection of hep humor and a superior delivery. Leonard utilizes his king-sized features to good effect, even doing a fairly graceful bit of terping. Leonard is a unique comic who now seems to be on the verge of the bigtime, and a few more video sessions of equal impact is likely to put him there.

Leonard walked away with top honors despite the presence of the Ink Spots and Don Cornell, latter a singer who's been making a splash of late. The Ink Spots covered themselves well with two tunes and a bit of clowning with Sullivan during the rendition of "If I Didn't Care." Cornell, with a full-bodied voice did two tunes including "There's No Tomorrow," both of which came off nicely.

Sharkey the Seal provided a good warmup and Renald and Rudy with graceful hand-to-handing shared a healthy mitting. As an afterpiece of latter stint, Sullivan became an understander for a quick handstand.

Because of time limitations, dance team of Virginia Gorski and Don Liberto took a bow in lieu of their turn.

CBS-TV's "Ford Theatre" put on its old hat Friday night (10) to present "Room Service," aged farce penned by John Murray and Allan Boretz. With Jack Carson bringing his warm personality to the role of the fly-by-night legit producer, the hour-long show rambled amiably along but it never overcame its senility. What with its original Broadway production, the Marx Bros. film and its more recent presentation on NBC-TV's "Kraft Theatre," the play probably was familiar to the majority of viewers. For those who had never seen it, it was probably good entertainment.

Producer Winston O'Keefe and director Marc Daniels could not have their usual rehearsal time on this one, since Carson was called home to the Coast by his father's death earlier in the week and Hume Cronyn, who played the director, was tied up with the Broadway preem of "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," which he is directing. That factor was apparent in several fluffed lines, camera miscues, etc. Also, the necessity for cleaning up the language of the original didn't help matters. But the two stars, aided by a generally good supporting cast, wrapped up the show okay. Chester Stratton was good as the naive playwright and Philip Coolidge and William Layton did neat jobs as the harassed hotel execs. Alexander Astro socked across his screwball waiter role and Morris Shrog scored as Carson's flunkey. Daniels achieved the necessary pace, both with the action and camera cuts, to sustain interest.

NBC-TV's "Philco Playhouse" turned to an older novel for last Sunday night's (12) stanza, via a good adaptation of Booth Tarkington's "Uncertain Molly Collicut." With Lilli Palmer starring, the show overcame a slightly pedestrian pace in the first act with a heart - warming denouement to emerge as one of the better in the series. Story was intelligent, adult fare, dealing with the growing up overnight of a young wife with a desire to be a perennial 18. (Why Tarkington didn't call it "Eighteen" is one of those literati Ripleys.)

Under the supervision of producer Fred Coe and director Gordon Duff, the cast was standout. Miss Palmer showed signs of what might have been "ike" fright by fluffing several times but more than recompensed with an appealing portrayal in the title role. Philip Bourneuf, an old hand at TV, was fine as her husband and Ben Lackland turned in a neat characterization as his wealthy client. Others showing well were Valerie Cossart, Jane Hoffman, George Reeves and Richard Sanders. William Kendall Clarke's adaptation maintained the mood of the Tarkington story and the [illegible] and other production accoutrements were up to par.

REQUEST PERFORMANCES

With Irv Kupcinet, emcee; Richard Hayes, Menasha Skulnik, Marie McDonald, and Jayne & Adam Di Gatano
Producer-director: Donald Cook
Announcer: Myron Wallace
30 Mins.; Sundays 6 p. m. (CST)
WILLIAM A. LEWIS CLOTHING
WGN-TV, Chicago

(W. B. Doner)

With the top name talent in town plus an excellent time slot, this show should have no trouble drawing a top Neilsen rating, once the bugs are ironed out—and there are plenty. Working on the early principles of Ed Sullivan, New York columnist, Irv Kupcinet, Sun-Times chatter writer, has garnered himself, and his advertiser, a $2,000 to $3,000 package at minimum talent rates.

However, lack of proper technical skill and also overlong commercial, mitigates much of the offerings. Middle ad was way overlong and with the models used to display clothing, plugs could have been inserted throughout the program rather than a solid, weary slug. Camera man is obviously enchanted with facial movements, with very few shots moving from above the neckline. Lack of sets, all performers working before a curtain, seems shoddy with surely, some old flats around, that can be used to relieve monotony.

Irv Kupcinet (Kup) is a scale above his local newspaper cohorts, but still is ill at ease before the lights. However, his personality makes him warmly acceptable and with some coaching he'll know what to do with his hands. He knows his acts and perhaps a little inside material on each one before he brings them on might give his status as a columnist a boost.

Richard Hayes, personable young singer, was one of those hampered by static camera, but got across, in fine fashion, fastie, "Old Master Painter." Menasha Skulnik, Yiddish stage comic, had several bits, which would have registered better with the aid of some stooges and background, especially a court bit. Marie McDonald, of the screen, didn't have the proper lighting or scenery to show off lush blonde's warbling of "Maybe You'll Be There." Adam and Jayne Di Gatano, top ballroom team, register with waltz to "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair."

Emcee uses the spot to point out prominent entertainers seated in the audience and brings on sepia juve, Sugar Chile Robinson, for some quips, which child gets the better of him. Ending of the show was overlong and bring back of guests reminds of amateur shows, rather than program of this calibre. Also, undefined horseplay with Victor Borge was mystifying to viewers as no attempt was made to explain what was going on.

Zabe.

BEULAH KARNEY-KAY MORROW SHOW

Producer-Director: Dick Locke
Writer: Dan Schuffman
60 Mins.; Thurs., 3:30 p.m.
Participating
WENR-TV, Chicago

This afternoon show with its kitchen patter, fashion notes and household hints has the ingredients to appeal to the housewives. Its major handicap is its length. On the show viewed (9), the material was spread a bit thin over the hour-long stint. The first half-hour with Beulah Karney preparing, describing and spreading a Mexican dinner held sturdy video interest for audience aimed at. But second segment with Kay Morrow, devoted to interior decorating and fashion notes, lost the pace and some of the interest of preceding portion.

Miss Karney, plainly at home in the attractive kitchen set and aided by good camera action, moved easily through her demonstration of preparing Mexican dishes, from market to table. The live commercials, plugging food products, were smoothly integrated but film commercial used suffered by loss of intimacy.

Unfortunately for overall quality of combined segments, direction and camera work appeared weary during second half. Most of Miss Morrow's stint was a demonstration of slip covering a chair by a local interior decorator. Talking as he worked, his back was to the camera during practically the entire time he was on the set. The remainder of this portion dealt with fashion notes with Miss Morrow, using two housewive guests as examples, described proper clothes for certain figure types. A good idea dulled by weak presentation.

With stronger material, more effectively offered, during last half of session, the program should make a definite bid for afternoon audience.

Dave.

COURTESY HOUR

With Jim Moran, Danny O'Neill, Wilfred DuBois, Christine & Mol, Eddie Bartell, Noble Trio, Bob Nelson and Dorothy Dorben Line (7); Al Marney, conductor
Directors-producers: Greg Garrison, Al Sweetow
60 Mins., Fri., 10 p.m.
COURTESY MOTORS
WENR-TV, Chicago

(Malcolm-Howard)

Here's a show that's a dead cinch to please its sponsor. In fact, this sponsor is an important part of the show. Besides picking up what must be a heavy tab for this hour-long showcase of professional vaudeo talent, sponsor Jim Moran, as emcee, gets right into the stint. And on preem (3), he carried off top honors in a good field. Even more impressive than the acts he introduced and paid for, was the guy's obvious fondness for show biz and its people.

The segment built up steadily from a rather slow opener featuring the Dorothy Dorben dancers with Bob Nelson singing offstage to a strong closer which had Danny O'Neill leading the studio audience in "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Wilfred DuBois' juggling routines in the second slot set the pace. Camera brought the reactions of the audience into the act for a good touch of video showmanship.

Christine and Mol, tapping duo, came off nicely in next spot. Miming and toe work of pair were made even more effective videowise by facile camera action.

Following act, a series of standard impersonations done by Eddie Bartell, lacked sparkle and slowed the tempo. The acrobatics of the Noble Trio on their 20-foot parallel bars also was weak video fare as long-range camera used failed to capture full effect of their work.

Show was wound up pleasantly by O'Neill's closer. With sponsor Moran obviously having a good time leading the "Irish Band" in accompaniment, O'Neill scored warmly with "The Old Shillelagh."

Surprisingly enough, the commercials fell far below the quality of the program itself. Aside from the generally high-flight talent used, much of the success of the stint can be credited to the direction and good overall camera work. Al Marney and studio orch supported ably.

Dave.

INVITATION TO FAITH

With Rev. J. Edward Carothers, Rabbo Gerald Klein, Rev. Walter Whitney, Northern Echoes Singers
Director: Bob Stone
30 Mins.; Sat., 5:30 p.m.
New York State Council of Churches
WRGB-TV, Schenectady

New series represents a forward step in the allocation of a block to State Council of Churches for a weekly program. More television time, local and network, for all the major faiths would be in keeping with the public service opportunities and responsibilities of this medium.

Program seems shaped in accordance with the ideas of the group who hold that religious videocasting should not be a pick-up or a reproduction of church services. Aside from a figured window against which the vocal group sings, there are no symbols and no vestments. Rev. J. Edward Carothers, Rabbi Gerald Klein and Rev. Walter Whitney are dressed in street clothes; they are seated in a room with no recognizable background.

Dr. Carothers, active in the tri-city Religious Radio Council and a broadcaster over WGY and WTRY, coordinates the half-hour, as well as reads religious news. Rev. Whitney, who conducted a rural program via WRGB for some time, tells a children's story with a moral. Rabbi Klein, of Temple Gates Synagogue in Schenectady, speaks on the devotional period. The Echoes, an Albany Negro quintet (with a sixth man accompanying on the quitar), offer spirituals and hymns, their contribution being the largest on the basis of time. The music ties the block together and also lends an entertainment value.

Feature is viewable for the devout and the mildly religious. The Singers, nicely dressed, display the vocal talent and the deep fervor characteristic of their race.

Dr. Carothers, who photographs well, is fairly poised. He reads the news a trifle too fast for easy comprehension. Voice is clear, although a shade twangy. Rabbi Klein is direct and persuasive; Rev. Whitney is folksy. All three speak to viewers in their "homes."

Jaco.

FUNNY FACES

With Jackie Gleason, Ken Niles, Harry Stewart, Jack Pierce, Lou Kosloff's Orch (15)
Producer-director: Frank Ferrin
Writers: Dick Conway, Dick Miller, Harry Stewart
30 Mins.; Sat. 8 p.m.
Sustaining
KNBH-NBC, Hollywood

Frank Ferrin, long-time radio packager ("Lassie," Smilin' Ed McConnell), is shooting the works on his entry into television. After all the bills are in, he'll write off close to $10,000 for two shots of "Funny Faces"—one for a kine and the other a live 'cast. He has invested the half-hour show with "the best money can buy" for this type of program and for the two showings rented the El Capitan theatre at $250 a night.

For a local venture it must be rated with the top 10 highest budgeted shows and its sales tag of $8,500 gives it a further distinction. Ferrin has a fresh idea and new approach to the audience participation format and though the pilot show came off not too well, the ingredients are there. After an hilarious first half, the pace slackened and the show sheared off from its game-of-faces pattern. Yogi Yorgenson, an alumnus of the old Al Pearce radio troupe, was brought on for two songs in svensk dialect, with Yogi (Harry Stewart) decking out in femme garb. In an earlier spot he revived his crystal ball bit with Jackie Gleason straighting.

Dominating the piece are Gleason, a forthright emcee and currently TV's "Riley," and Ken Niles, who photos as well as he sounds. Together they keep the laughs rolling, aided and abetted by four audience stooges and a makeup expert, Jack Pierce. It's when the main idea is skirted that the show loses its comedic values and needs bolstering.

"Funny Faces" tries to be just that. Participants are made up by Pierce or by each other to resemble some well-known character, such as on the opener, Groucho Marx, John L. Lewis and George Washington. Each contestant is given $25 for submitting to the makeup, another $25 if they do a turn suggestive of their portrayal, and a $200 jackpot payoff for identifying the historical figure who "wears a gray wig, has a Roman nose and store teeth." Everyone gets a guess and for a finale Gleason was made up as G. Washington to cue the winner. This bit tended to drag for the show's only serious note.

Ferrin unquestionably has a saleable idea with a high quotient of belly laughs but straying from the format isn't to its advantage. It should evoke some sponsor interest if the price is shaded. Show of this type doesn't need an orchestra of 15 men. "Funny Faces" has enough potential of its own without extraneous padding but Ferrin admits he's "feeling his way" and will make changes dictated by the general reaction.

Felm.

Color TV Follow Up

Washington, March 14.

Color Television, Inc., smallest of the current contenders battling for FCC approval, demonstrated Monday (13) morning that, despite its disastrous experience at last month's comparative tests, it is still in there punching.

Demonstration for the press showed great strides since company's "Rainbow Revue" of Feb. 20 (reviewed in VARIETY Feb. 22). Improvement, according to company's reps, is due, not to added experimentation or improvements in the system, but rather to successful ironing out of mechanical wrinkles encountered as the result of the cross-country transportation of equipment and the 11th hour setting up of shop.

Accent on latest CTI tests, which are to be repeated for various industry and government groups throughout this week, is on color rather than production. No effort has been made, as in previous tests, to line up an array of top-notch talent. Format is informal, rather a merchandising of color possibilities than a production unit. Lack of definite form in production, however, shapes to advantage for system, since there's no resultant confusion. It's strictly a color show, and stands or falls on basis of its tint merit. Effects of the press show on the assembled newsmen was all on the credit side of the ledger.

Show seen on receivers at the Statler Hotel had a sample of everything—fashions, color-laden costumes, familiar commercial packages, fruit, flowers, etc. If nothing else, CTI seems completely honest in its efforts to show

(Continued on page 42)

OPERA TELEVISION THEATRE ("La Traviata")

With Lawrence Tibbett, Elaine Malbin, Brooks McCormack, Janet Southwick, Nancy Trickey, Luigi Vellucci, Valfrido Patacchi, Manfred Hecht, Ben de Loache; Fausto Cleva, conductor
Producers: Henry Souvaine, Tibbett
Directors: Herbert Graf, Byron Paul
Scenic designer: Richard Rychtarik
90 Mins., Sun. (12), 5 p.m.
Sustaining
CBS-TV, from N. Y.

CBS continues to make opera an exciting entertainment. It followed its imposing "Carmen" of some weeks back with an equally effective "La Traviata" Sunday (12), to confirm past impressions of the appeal of this longhair art as a video medium—when properly presented. The 90 minutes of song-story were absorbing, dramatically as well as musically.

Of course, CBS had the help of the most tuneful of all of Verdi's operas. The opera had an appealing tale, the tragic love-story of the castoff lady of the camellias. But this could have been botched up, or presented literally and flatly. Instead, a group of sensitive, imaginative men transformed Verdi's opera for the new TV medium, and did a sterling job of it. The opera was done in English, in an excellent translation by George Meade. The dialog was colloquial, real and readily grasped. The necessary music cuts were made with good judgment. The third-act gypsy party music, for instance, was eliminated, to keep the dramatic story in focus. Pictorial bits were added that heightened the story, to make it more convincing as romantic drama than it is on stage.

The presentation had much more movement than in the operahouse, despite the limited focus of the TV camera. The camera moved along naturally from room to room, and from singer to singer. Richard Rychtarik worked wonders with limited scenic effects, and Herbert Graf did the rest with some fine staging. The exquisite first-act and fourth-act preludes had an added surprise, the first one being played against a pictorial prolog that showed Violetta buying camellias at a florist's shop and Alfredo first seeing her there, and the other being performed against a montage of the dying Violetta's romantic fancies.

Fausto Cleva conducted an excellent orchestra superbly. The singers, on the whole, were good. Elaine Malbin and Brooks McCormack made a good-looking romantic pair, and Miss Malbin did a virtuoso job histrionically as well as vocally. "Traviata" calls for some varied, challenging singing—a lyric soprano (with coloratura stretches) for the first act, a dramatic soprano for the other three—and she handled the music beautifully. She's a charming, sensitive actress, besides. McCormack sang with a somewhat metallic, nasal tenor, but was otherwise quite satisfactory.

Lawrence Tibbett, as the elder Germont, made up in impressive bearing and dramatic conviction for some vocal imperfections. He's still a distinctive performer, and got in some robust singing in the middle and lower registers despite a worn voice. All the singers were at the added disadvantage of singing familiar music in English, after years of training on it in the native Italian, which made their work that much more remarkable. Music lovers and lay viewers shared in a treat.

Bron.

GAIL & BILL

With Gail Meredith, Bill Harrington
Director: Edward Stasheff
15 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 7:15 p.m.
Participating
WPIX, N. Y.

Gail Meredith and Bill Harrington form a pleasant singing team. Their voices register nicely and they have an ingratiating manner. They also complete the cycle by making a nice appearance.

So far, this duo appears to be working hard to build up an audience. They take time off to announce birthdays, anniversaries and do a driving commercial on a nylon special which appears to be a pretty good buy. They're also running a contest to get a theme song. The charm invested in this particular program should result in a good mail payoff.

The sets and camera work are okay, a degree of imagination being used in an attempt to provide some good shots. Most of the pictures are nicely framed and further add to the pleasant mood of the show.

Jose.

BERWYN PLAYHOUSE ("The Imaginary Invalid")

Starring Harry K. Smith; with Penelope Gray, Bradford Hunt, Will Sandy, Brad McCall, Bill Tregoe, Basil Macknik, Frances Greet and Fran Hallis. Play by Moliere, adapted by Denis Brown
Stage Director: Sherwood Keith
Producer: Harvey Marlowe
Television Director: Dwight Hemion
Settings: Brad McCall
60 Mins., 8-9 p.m. Mondays
Sustaining
WFIL-TV

The Berwyn Playhouse, in Main Line suburban community, is putting on the first hour-length dramatic series ever attempted locally. Opening production given Monday night, March 6, was an adaptation of Moliere's classic comedy, "The Imaginary Invalid."

Under the terms of a unique arrangement with V. Nelson Barrington, owner of the Berwyn theatre, the production was given twice nightly (March 2-3-4) with a Saturday matinee at the suburban playhouse, before it was considered ready for the TV cameras.

The onstage advance workouts were evident in the smooth-running tele-show. The Denis Brown adaptation cut the original French play down to slightly more than 50 minutes which left plenty time for production credits and commercials, of which there were none. Play ran straight through and cuts in no way seemed to impede story line, nor mar characterizations.

"The Imaginary Invalid" is set in Paris in the late 17th Century. Central figure is the hypochondriac Argan, who insists that his daughter Angeline marry a doctor, in spite of the fact that she loves another young man. Through the efforts of her maid, who seems to have an unusual run of the house, and Argan's healthier brother, the "invalid" is cured, his shrewish wife is trapped by her avarice, and true love trumphs for the daughter.

Barrington's choice of the stylized classical comedy is commendable from the artistic and scholarly standards, but its mass appeal is limited. Moliere's noted phobia for the medical profession, however, still comes through pertinently. Settings were Grade A for video and the properties looked as if stage crew had gone to great trouble to simulate furnishings of the Louis Quatorze period.

Acting of mixed professional and amateur cast came through acceptably, although the laughs weren't as many as there might be. But players romped through costume piece, and previews at the Berwyn Playhouse removed all signs of "jitters," which was the primary purpose of run-throughs. Cameras played it straight, covered action fully and without tricks. Large stage gave plenty of opportunity for movement as well as group scenes. Director Sherwood Keith relied on the most elementary and traditional bits of foolery for the comedy business.

Barrington has veered his play series heavily on the classical side, with succeeding Monday evenings to bring dramatic fare from Ibsen, Shakespeare, Goldsmith, Oscar Wilde, etc.

Gagh.

HOLLAND'S HAPPINESS HOUSE

With Jimmy Nelson, Annette Olsen, guests; Sid Breese, announcer
Director: Bob Cook
Producer: Hal Polaire
30 Mins.; Wed., 9 p.m.
HOLLAND'S JEWELRY STORES
WGN-TV, Chicago

(Malcolm-Howard)

Brightest switch on this mildly successful variety half-hour debuting Wednesday (8) was the emceeing of Jimmy Nelson, ventriloquist, using his wooden friend, Danny O'Day, as mouthpiece. Quick patter of not-so-dumb and smooth, non-visible work of his master lifted show a notch above mine-run quality. Pair would have scored stronger had they left the vocal chores to Annette Olsen, as their duets with her came off to no one's advantage. O'Day's gagging of "Best Things in Life are Free" with Nelson puffing cigaret while dummy sang was good video and all the falsetto singing the show needed.

Paul Regan fitted nicely into the stint with a fast-moving impersonation routine covering a round dozen of Hollywood celebs. Benham Bros., tap duo, bogged the pace slightly with a too-lengthy skit. Miss Olsen ably sold "Summertime" as feature solo. Sid Breese spieled the commercials with a shade too much gusto. Camera work was generally smooth and Bob Trendler's band backed firmly. Show was tied neatly with firm direction.

Dave.

From the Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

ABC program veepee Bud Barry to Florida on month's vacation . . . CBS' Robert Q. Lewis due back tomorrow (Thur.) after week in Bermuda . . . Jack Manning started a new role in "Helen Trent" this week . . . John Gibbs has postponed his Coast trip to March 29 . . . ABC script editor Pete Martin left Friday (10) for week at Vero Beach, Fla. . . . Edward DeGray, of CBS station administration, taking part in Eastern Indoor Tennis Championships starting Friday (17) . . . Nancy Douglass and Lauren Gilbert into cast of "Young Widder Brown" . . . CBS' Larry Lowman to Europe for four weeks . . . Norman Corwin to Coast for several weeks . . . WJZ and "Miss Liberty" baritone Johnny Thompson triples into Raleigh Room beginning tomorrow (Thur.) . . . Hank Sylvern named music consultant for Radio Registry Damon Runyon Fund costume ball in Waldorf March 31 . . . National Assn. of Radio Station Representatives topper Tom Flanagan left Friday (10) for three-week vacation in Arizona . . . Bob Dailey, McCann-Erickson Cleveland AM-TV director, and copywriter Jean Kane in Gotham as part of the branch office's video indoctrination, looking toward increased TV activity in Cleveland . . . Dick Pack, of WNEW, to become a country squire in Great Neck . . . MBS prez Frank White on a 10-day tour of southern affiliates.

ABC engineering veep Frank Marx became the father of twin boys Saturday (11) . . . WMGM airing 14 pre-season games of the Brooklyn Dodgers on the "Grapefruit Circuit" with Schaefer and General Foods sponsoring . . . WFDR's Lou Frankel out with the flu . . . Radiodiffusion Francaise beaming a program with pianist Sondra Bianca to France . . . Mel Goodman, Compton's assistant casting director, in Toronto for week handling recording of Procter & Gamble commercials . . . Nancy Craig to open the International Flower Show when she does her ABC program from Grand Central Palace on Monday (20) . . . ABC's Harold Day elected prexy of Colgate U's N. Y. alumni assn . . . Peggy Bruder, 13-year-old "Juvenile Juror," understudying Iris Mann in "The Innocents" on Broadway and stepped into the role last week on her first day on the job . . . Art Ford, of WNEW, WPIX and ABC-TV, and Buddy Basch, of Gibraltar agency, fly Sunday (19) for two weeks in France and England. Ford will gather disks for his broadcasts and Basch is seeking American video rights to British and French films . . . Morris Novik, American Federation of Labor radio consultant, in Hollywood confabbing with labor leaders and AFL commentator Frank Edwards on labor's help in film industry campaign to lift the 20% ticket tax.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

J. Donald Wilson, erstwhile ABC program head in N. Y., has formed a partnership with Don Sharpe, agent, for the packaging of shows . . . CBS continues to sustain "Escape" on the Coast while Richfield Oil sponsors the Bill Robson chiller on 50 stations in the east. Richfield out here (no business kin) doles out its billing to ABC . . . Ben Alexander, who does 11 shows a week on radio and TV, took time out last week to marry Lesley Spurgeon of "Queen For a Day" staff . . . Ayer's Glenhall Taylor became a papa last week . . . Harry Ackerman, Cy Howard and J. Carroll Naish flew to Catalina last week to chat with P. K. Wrigley, but never did get on the ground. Fog drove their ship back to the mainland . . . CBS took an option on "I Dive For Treasure," based on the tome by Lt. Harry Reseberg and will air the audition script on "Escape" . . . Arch Oboler must qualify as a prophet of sorts. In September of 1945 Mutual broadcast his "Rocket to Manhattan," which had to do with the hydrogen bomb (by that name) . . . Phil Harris must go where Jack Benny goes so they'll both do their shows from Palm Springs March 26 and April 2 . . . Rexall will give up its Sunday NBC time and move Dick Powell into a Wednesday night niche come summer . . . Groucho Marx's summer sub may be "It Pays To Be Ignorant" . . . In his audition of "A Slice of Life" for NBC, Tony Leader wrote, directed, narrated and acted . . . John Guedel, who is Uncle Sam's best penny postcard customer, is buying up all in sight because of their imminent discontinuance. On most of the cards he just writes the word "thanks" . . . Sam Cherr, Young & Rubicam's merchandising veepee, around for a week. Another Y & R arrival from New York is Bob Hussey, returning to handle talent on Silver Theatre's tele series . . . Nick Keesley, radio-TV topper for Lennon & Mitchell, due out to set up two radio originations for Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour. Mack will fly back for the TV'er.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Bud Campbell will do play-by-play of eight-game Chi Cubs exhibition stint aired on WIND, sponsored by Peter Fox Brewing . . . Irving Showerman, NBC v.p. and general manager of WMAQ, received annual award from National Conference of Christians and Jews presented to WMAQ for best local program last year dealing with human relations. Show was written by Richard Durham . . . Ade Hult, MBS v.p. in charge of sales, and Paul Jonas, MBS sports director, visited Mutual Central division officers here last week . . . Harold Safford, WLS program director and president of Illinois Broadcasters Assn., on speakers' panel at public relations conference at Illinois State Normal University March 11 . . . Gene Wilkey, newly-appointed general manager of WCCO, Minneapolis, here last week visiting Chi CBS toppers at WBBM . . . Mary Afflick, producer of Mutual's "Tom Mix and His Straight Shooters" smitten by flu bug last week . . . George Halleman, NBC national spot salesman, on business trip to St. Louis and Kansas City . . . Don Kelley, former WBBM publicity director, joins WLS promotion staff this week . . . New NBC continuity staffer is Robert Pierron . . . "Be the Good Lord Willing," song written by Jack Fulton, WBBM musician, and based on the Arthur Godfrey signoff line was introduced on Gene Autry show March 11 . . . Ted Bates & Co. has inked two-year pact for National Nielsen Radio Index service . . . Carroll Marts, MBS central division manager, back in town after N. Y. business trip . . . Tom Moore will air "Ladies Fair" from Atlanta, Ga., April 5-6 . . . Bob Brethauer, ABC account exec, in Minneapolis this week . . . Marc Platt of "Kiss Me Kate" cast guested on NBC's "Quiz Kids" last week. Keith Andes and Anne Jeffreys of same show will visit "Kids" March 24.

Henderson, Mayfair To Give Europe 9-Week O.O.

Charles Henderson and Mitzi Mayfair, co-producers of ABC-TV's "Stop the Music" for the Louis G. Cowan office, are slated to take a nine-week leave starting early in May for a onceover of television in Europe. Duo will divide their time among England, France, Denmark and Italy, hoping to discover some new techniques which they can incorporate into "Music" on their return. Show, incidentally, stays on throughout the summer, with Old Golds and Admiral continuing as sponsors.

Henderson, meanwhile, is now working on a new video package titled "Meet Your Mate," which is to be an authentic TV version of the lonely hearts clubs. He plans to bring members of the organizations before the cameras to introduce them face to face. Casting has not been completed yet.

Detroit — WXYZ-TV show "Detroit Tigers in Training," has been purchased by Hygrade Food Products Corp. Program will be telecast five nights a week beginning March 27.

WPTZ's 6-for-1 Sales Technique

Philadelphia, March 14.

WPTZ is launching a commercial coverage technique in which each participating sponsor gets hour-long coverage for the cost of a single participation.

Known as "six-for-one" coverage, the WPTZ plan provides audio and video coverage and sponsor identification for all four sponsors at each commercial period on daily full-length feature film, "Hollywood Playhouse."

Besides getting a full participation commercial, each sponsor gets a product identification slide and audio mention at the time each of the other sponsors gets his minute-long participation spot. Additionally, each participating sponsor is given an opening and closing slide and audio credits.

Only four sponsors are accepted to a program and commercials are rotated day by day. The five "pluses," however, guarantee each sponsor program-long recognition.

Alexander W. Dannenbaum, Jr., WPTZ commercial manager, said the station had been looking for a method of assuring complete coverage for low-budgeted advertisers ever since WPTZ had brought its daytime schedule out of the blueprint stage. The six-for-one plan is geared for local advertisers, particularly those at the retail level.

Dallas' TV Upsurge

Dallas, March 14.

Television biz in the Dallas area due to improvement in programs and the debut of two local TV outlets, reached the boom stage during the last quarter of 1949.

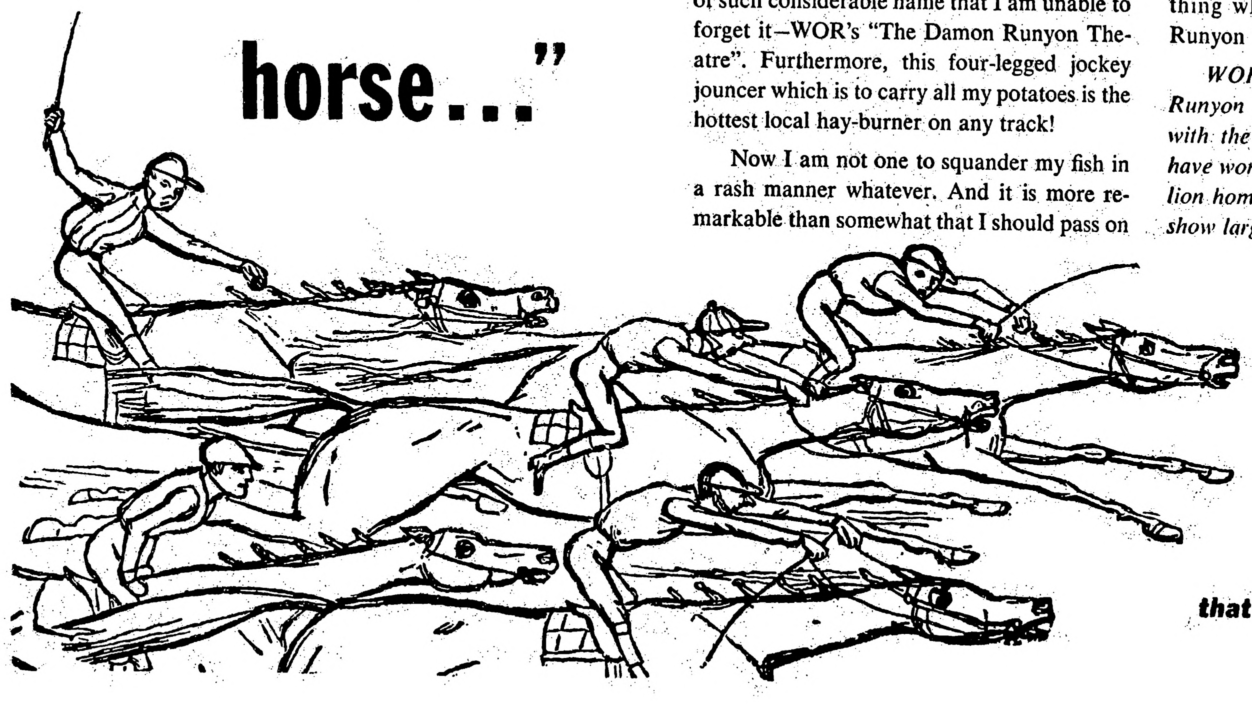
Radio Manufacturers Assn. reported delivery of 9,045 sets in the Dallas area during the final quarter of '49. This number was 63.7% of the 14,802 sets shipped to Dallas during 1949.

"this story, I inform him, is about a remarkable horse..."

WELL, THE EAR steps up beside me and tells me in no queasy terms that he has for me a very special Sunday horse. He recommends a horse of such considerable name that I am unable to forget it—WOR's "The Damon Runyon Theatre". Furthermore, this four-legged jockey jouncer which is to carry all my potatoes is the hottest local hay-burner on any track!

Now I am not one to squander my fish in a rash manner whatever. And it is more remarkable than somewhat that I should pass on one of the Ear's honorable hints. But I am thinking that in these times nobody—especially an advertiser—can afford to pass up a sure thing which is what this certain "Damon Runyon Theatre" is.

WOR's "Damon Runyon Theatre" is real Runyon A crack Sunday night show, peopled with the beloved Broadway characters who have won the hearts of approximately ¼ million homes in Metropolitan New York. It's a show large in heart—small in price.



WOR

that power-full station at 1440 Broadway, in New York

TWO OUT OF THREE

The 1949 Alfred I. duPont Radio Awards

ONE—to Morgan Beatty, NBC's ace newsman, heard daily at 7:15 p. m. (EST) on News of the World, sponsored by Miles Laboratories, Inc. the 1949 Alfred I. duPont Radio Commentator Award for:

Accurate coverage of the day's biggest news stories.

Expert analysis of world and national affairs.

Reliable interpretation of significant events.

Aggressive reporting of the news as it happens.

Consistently excellent gathering and reporting of news by radio.

Just as Morgan Beatty has distinguished himself in 1949...So NBC newsmen and correspondents have always been the recognized leaders in gathering and reporting the news with traditional accuracy and timeliness.

TWO—to our longtime affiliate, WWJ, Detroit, one of the two 1949 Alfred I. duPont Radio Station Awards for:

"Outstanding and meritorious service in encouraging, fostering, promoting and developing American ideas of freedom Loyal and devoted service to the nation and to the community served."

This honor is particularly timely in 1950 as pioneer station WWJ rounds out a quarter century of operation. From its first broadcast, WWJ has been a notable example of American radio at its best.

NBC...America's No. 1 Network

The National Broadcasting Company

A service of Radio Corporation of America

Chi TV Conference

Continued from page 31

live shows in the next five years. Films can apply mass-production methods to programming, he pointed out, with resultant savings and improvement in quality. Touching upon what he called the "grave problems" of kinescope, he said one of the reasons Hollywood names are avoiding kine is its inferior quality.

Divergent approaches to programming highlighted the Tuesday panel, moderated by John Mitchell, general manager of WBKB, Chi, dealing with station sales and management. Francis Van Konynenberg, general manager of WTCN, Minneapolis, stressing the need for business-like operations, defended the double-shooting technique. He pointed out the arrival of the cable will eliminate part of this revenue because of the shorter station break period. Exception to double-spotting was taken by Hoyt Andres, of WKY, Oklahoma City. Because of the need to increase set circulation in this new market, the station is stressing program quality, Andres said, and is avoiding double-spotting and limiting commercial time on shows.

Sports Angle

A likely decline in sports remotes was indicated by statements made on this and subsequent panels. At Tuesday session, Van Konynenberg and E. Y. Flanigan, general manager of WSPD, Toledo, warned against too much emphasis on sports telecasting. This view was reflected by Arthur Fielden, radio and TV director of Campbell-Ewald agency, Detroit, who pointed out that sport remotes have more than their share of technical difficulties which works against video in the eyes of sponsors. He also mentioned the difficulty of getting a firm price on remotes from stations and networks.

Question of TV paying off or not was threshed out on Tuesday afternoon panel made up of agency and sponsor reps and moderated by Holman Faust, Schwimmer & Scott, Chicago. Expression of panel was best summed up by Hal Rorke, J. Walter Thompson radio director, who said the answers vary with the products. He said he would like to see more TV success stories on mass-produced staples with small profit margins. This view was also expressed by Lester Waddington, radio director of Miles Laboratories.

Panel devoted to research heard Hugh M. Belville, NBC research director, ask survey agencies for better and more frequent ratings, improved set figures by markets and better measurement of non-set owning audience.

Carl Haverlin, BMI prez, on panel discussing program problems, said his organization had been preparing for television since its formation in 1940. In the face of any possible withdrawal of ASCAP music from video, Haverlin quietly inferred BMI services will remain available.

At the first day's session, Charles R. Denny, NBC executive veepee, and John McLaughlin, ad manager of Kraft Foods, warned TV officials against too reckless an advance. McLaughlin also protested strongly against coat-tail riding of spots on expensive shows.

The Conference-sponsored Chi Television Council is slated here again next year.

Lansing, Mich.—Roger S. Underhill has been appointed director of sales for WJIM-AM and TV. For the past year, Underhill was general manager and sales manager of WCIU-TV, Erie, Pa.

WJBK-TV to Preem 'Matinee With Murphy'

Detroit, March 14.

Because of "the increased demand for daytime television entertainment," Richard E. Jones, general manager of WJBK-TV, announced the addition of "Matinee With Murphy" from 3 to 4 p. m. across-the-board, featuring disk jockey Bob Murphy.

Jones said the show is planned as an educational and instructional program. Included in the regular format will be instructions to Boy and Girl Scouts on earning merit badges, tips to homemakers on child care, interior decorating and tailoring, etc.

KBTV 575G Sale Gets FCC's Okay

Dallas, March 14.

The Dallas Morning News has received the FCC approval for the purchase of KBTV for $575,000 from the Potter Television Co., headed by Tom Potter, Texas oilman. The News took an option on the outlet in December and exercised it in late January.

Martin Campbell, general manager of WFAA, stated that the TV outlet would retain its old call letters for the time being but later it would be changed to WFAA-TV.

Bert Mitchell, formerly production manager of WFAA, will supervise the integrating proceedings between the two operations, radio and TV.

According to Campbell, one of the first moves will be to put KBTV on the air seven days a week. It is now silent on Wednesdays.

This gives the newspaper an AM outlet, FM and TV. Potter is expected to stay in an advisory capacity.

Inside Stuff—Radio

The Seattle local of the American Federation of Radio Artists has signed a new contract with three network stations in Seattle. New contract calls for a raise of $1.90 per week for announcers, newscasters and writers, retroactive to Feb. 15, and also includes a definition of a newscaster for the first time. Newscaster definition says that "any announcer whose regular duties include the rewriting of wire reports and gathering of original news shall be classified as a newscaster for the time so employed." Newscasters receive approximately 7% more pay than straight announcers' wage of $85.90 per week.

Negotiations are continuing on fees for freelancers and for specified announcers, etc.

New contract to be negotiated with independent stations is not expected to present any difficulties. In the past the indies have always followed the lead of the network stations in signing with AFRA.

WMGM's "Books on Trial," which has just won a Newspaper Guild "Page One" award, will be rebroadcast overseas by the State Department. Sterling North, syndicated book critic who conducts the program, was signed this week to a five-year pact. Tome up for discussion on next Tuesday's (20) broadcast is "My Son, the Lawyer," by Henry Denker. Latter is a radio scripter, who has written and directed "Greatest Story Ever Told."

Raymond Katz produces and Milton B. Kaye directs "Books."

In a move designed to solve the problem of how to cope with the many requests from charitable organizations for free air time, WNBC, N. Y., has decided to slot them in unsold participating time. They'll thus be treated the same as one-minute commercials but will, of course, continue to get a free ride.

Most of the public service pitches now flooding the station, it's pointed out, are on disks which run a full minute. In that form, they're too long to be used at station breaks, so WNBC decided on the new slotting procedure. Station usually has five or six open participating spots each week and will make these available to the charitable groups.

Under the new system, all requests for time go first to program manager Harvey Gannon for screening, who then turns them over to pub relations chief Schuyler Chapin. System will work the same way for WNBT, the station's television sister.

Radio Registry is staging a Damon Runyon Costume Ball in the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y., on March 31, with proceeds going to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. Prizes will be awarded for the most original costumes representing radio, television and Broadway stars. Alfred de-Liagre, Jr., Moss Hart and Russell Markert will be among the judges. Doris Sharpe is chairman of the ball, with James Sauter heading the executive committee. Al Rylander is heading the publicity committee and Herb Sanford is arrangements chairman. Ed Cashman will produce the show, with Henry Sylvern acting as musical director.

WOR, N.Y., Pacts 2 Shows On Dodger Ballcasts

WOR-TV, N. Y., has built and sold two shows to be aired around its Brooklyn Dodger ballcasts. Curtis Candy, via C. L. Miller agency, has bought "Knot-hole Gang," a 25-minute stanza to be broadcast before the Dodgers' 50 daytime and 21 night home games. Ehler's Coffee, via Weiss & Geller, is picking up the tab for a 15-minute series, "Clubhouse Quiz," to be carried following the play-by-plays. Airers will also go on before Dodger exhibition matches.

"Knot-hole" will feature Happy Felton as emcee, with youngsters from sandlot teams, clubs, Police Athletic League and school organizations interviewing athletic stars and pitching or batting on the Ebbets Field diamond. Moppets who win contests staged on the show will get autographed equipment and at the season's end an exhibition game with the youngsters will be telecast.

"Clubhouse" will star Bob Edge in a telephone quiz with three viewers called on each broadcast to identify a "mystery Dodger," past or present, from clues that will include photos, film clips and recordings. Prizes totalling $50,000 will be awarded during the season. Ernie Byfield, Jr., TV director of W&G, will produce.

Philly Orch

Continued from page 26

phia Orchestra officials, who had made a previous announcement of the concerts and indicated that James C. Petrillo had given his blessings to the project.

The series, which was to run sustaining Sunday afternoons between 3 and 4:30 p.m., was expected to continue until the Philharmonic resumed in the fall. Action of the National board of the AFM will cost the 105 musicians of the Philly Orch something between $50,000 and $60,000 in wages, it was said here. The musicians were to be paid for their services, and in addition some extra revenue would have gone to the Orchestra

---

Cleveland—WEWS has sold to Leisy Brewing the Harry Wismer film "1950 Baseball Preview." Station also gets the General Mills Golden Gloves Finals. Third announced sale is local-package Hi-Time, with Coca-Cola buying the Barbara Page Monday through Friday half-hour 4.30 chatter about the younger set.

Freddy Martin In KTTV Program Tieup From L.A. Palladium

Hollywood, March 14.

Freddy Martin and his orchestra have been set to helm a once weekly television layout over KTTV. Program titled "Band of Tomorrow," will bow April 11 when Martin's crews opens at the Palladium.

KTTV will give $1,500 per week to Martin until station can corner a sponsor. Outlet also will kinescope program for distribution through its Television Recording Corp. Martin would get extra coin for such commercial sales; ditto his sidemen.

Martin will do show from the Palladium during his four-week stay there at 50% of the gate admissions plus a guarantee. He then will do a studio show for nine weeks, simultaneously playing one-niters hereabouts, thus giving himself and crew a partial vacation. Bandsmen will be kept on full salary throughout.

Buell Making Chase Oaters for Dempsey

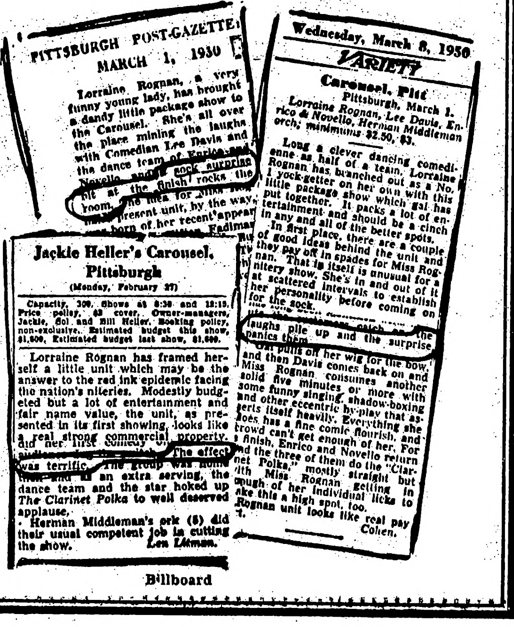
Hollywood, March 14.

American Releasing Corp., headed by Jack Dempsey, will roll a series of westerns for television starring the heavies of motion picture oaters. Jed Buell will produce the pix.

Dick Wiley agency has set Charles King in lead role throughout the series. King will participate in the net profits from the sale of the films to television.

"TERRIFIC" Sez Billboard
"SOCK SURPRISE" Sez Pittsburgh Post Gazette
"PANICS THEM" Sez VARIETY

See
LORRAINE ROGNAN
On the
Cavalcade of Stars
Sat., 9 P.M. (Mar. 18)
DUMONT TV
Management:
MATTY ROSEN



PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE
MARCH 1, 1930

Lorraine Rognan, a very funny young lady, has brought a dandy little package show to the Carousel. She's all over the place mining the laughs with Comedian Lee Davis and the dance team of Enrico and Novello, and a sock surprise bit at the finish rocks the room. The idea for present unit, by the way, born of her recent appear

Wednesday, March 8, 1950
VARIETY

Carousel, Pitt
Pittsburgh, March 1.
Lorraine Rognan, Lee Davis, Enrico & Novello, Herman Middleman orch; minimums $2.50, $3.

Long a clever dancing comedienne as half of a team, Lorraine Rognan has branched out as a No. 1 yock-getter on her own with this little package show which gal has put together. It packs a lot of entertainment and should be a cinch in any and all of the better spots.

In first place, there are a couple of good ideas behind the unit and they pay off in spades for Miss Rognan. That is itself is unusual for a nitery show. She's in and out of it at scattered intervals to establish her personality before coming on for the sock.

laughs pile up and the surprise panics them.

and then Davis comes back on and Miss Rognan consumes another solid five minutes or more with some funny singing, shadow-boxing and other eccentric by-play that asserts itself heavily. Everything she does has a fine comic flourish, and crowd can't get enough of her. For finish, Enrico and Novello return and the three of them do the "Clarinet Polka," mostly straight but with Miss Rognan getting in enough of her individual licks to make this a high spot, too.

Rognan unit looks like real pay

Cohen.

Jackie Heller's Carousel, Pittsburgh
(Monday, February 27)

Capacity, 300. Shows at 8:30 and 12:15. Price policy, $3 cover. Owner-managers, Jackie, Sol and Bill Heller. Booking policy, non-exclusive. Estimated budget this show, $1,800. Estimated budget last show, $1,800.

Lorraine Rognan has framed herself a little unit which may be the answer to the red ink epidemic facing the nation's niteries. Modestly budgeted but a lot of entertainment and fair name value, the unit, as presented in its first showing, looks like a real strong commercial property.

The effect was terrific.

an extra serving, the dance team and the star hoked up The Clarinet Polka to well deserved applause.

Herman Middleman's ork (8) did their usual competent job in cutting the show. Lee Zhito.

Billboard

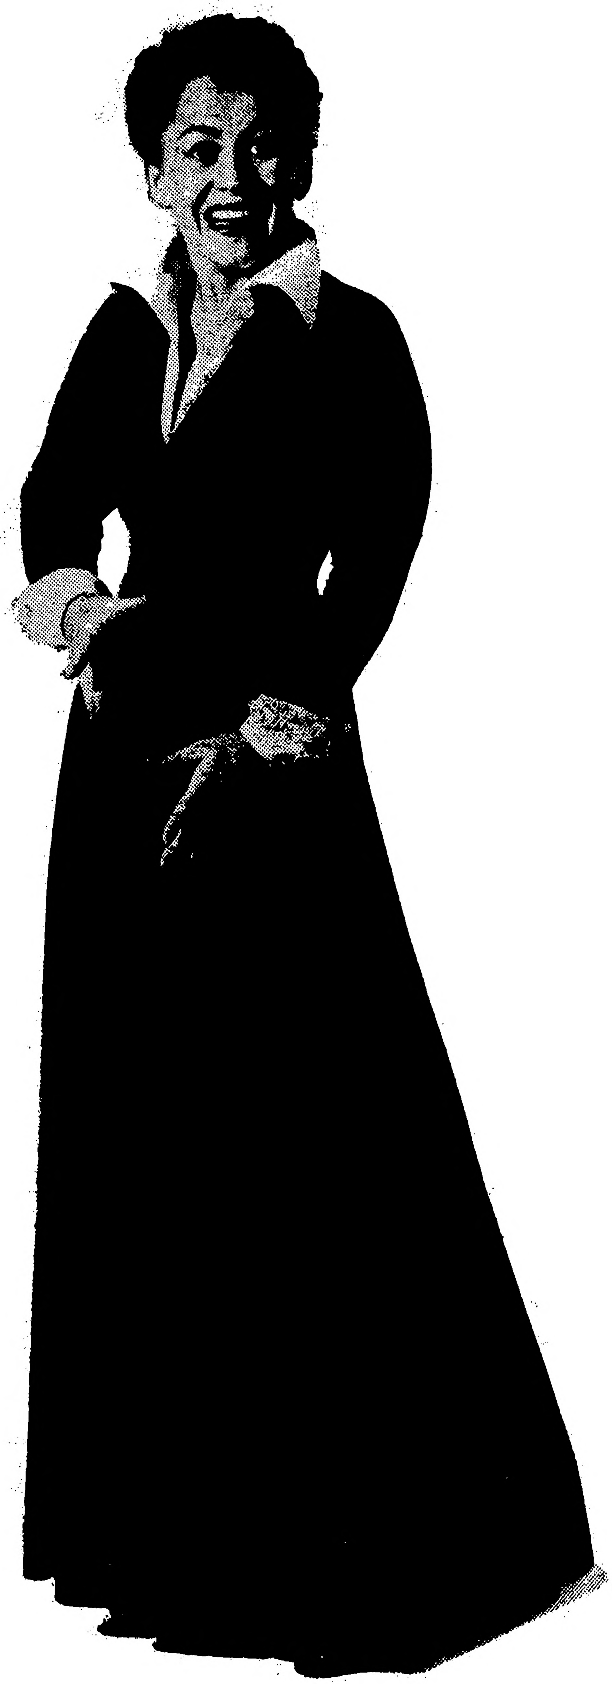
Courtesy of M-G-M
'THE GREAT RUPERT'
For George Pal Prods.
THE CAMEL SHOW
Every Friday Nite, 9:30 E.S.T., NBC
Mgt.: LOU CLAYTON

Board Room Available
Telephone service, desk, chairs; $60 a month.
Radio Writers' Guild
6 E. 39th Street, New York City

"Her Nibs"

Miss Georgia Gibbs

★ in Her Cafe Debut



WEDGWOOD ROOM

Waldorf-Astoria, New York

"She proves herself a smash right from opening for any style patron.

"Miss Gibbs, more polished and pleasantly-stylized than in the past, is on first and gives Caesar a hard act to follow. She looks good and sells so well she puts one in mind of the Sophie Tuckers and Jolsons of previous generations rather than the immobile and unshowmanly crop of latter-day warblers.

"Rhythm is Miss Gibbs' strength, and she wisely sticks pretty much to it . . . she stuck to such tunes as 'Taking a Chance on Love,' 'Funny That Way,' 'Manhattan Towers' and 'Somebody Loves Me,' which she could bend to her style. She did a total of seven numbers and had a hard time begging off."

Variety Issue Feb. 15th Herb.

"Georgia Gibbs is doing the best girl-singing to be heard anywhere in town."

Doug Watt—Daily News.

"For a pleasant change, our town is loaded with good singers at the moment and one of the best is a girl named Georgia Gibbs, at the Waldorf-Astoria's Wedgwood Room. For some reason Georgia has been allowed to languish away from New York but at the Wedgwood Room, she proves that she's an original stylist with complete control of everything she tries, and she can try any kind of song in any range and make it sound good. Perhaps the nicest thing about her is that she isn't, like most microphone singers, brash. There's music and melody and imagination in everything she does and it looks as though nobody can stop her from here on in."

Robert Sylvester—Daily News.

★ in Television

"Georgia Gibbs a bundle of musical nerves. A smash on the Berle stanza."

Sid Shalit—Daily News.

★ in Recordings

LATEST CORAL RELEASE

(If I Knew You Were Comin')

I'D'VE BAKED A CAKE

Backed by

STAY WITH THE HAPPY PEOPLE

Direction—WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Cleveland AM vs. TV

Continued from page 29

little harder with the sales tools of promotion, publicity and merchandising....

"The results have been highly encouraging. WGAR has maintained an upward trend in sales for the past 19 months. 1949 was the greatest year in our history. In January and February of this year, our figures are larger than those of 1949. The list of WGAR advertisers is now the greatest in our history and we have good reason to believe that 1950 will be greater than 1949." WGAR is a CBS outlet.

Over at WJW, similar opinions are expressed. Larry Webb declared that figures from November through the past month, were as good as if not better than during Nov., 1948, through Feb., '49. Although the station lost the Cleveland Indians, it won't be down on the financial side since ABC network commitments and new biz through new programs will see billings moving ahead of a year ago.

Hal Gallagher, sales manager of WTAM (also WNBK-NBC's TV outlet) compared television to a "rapidly growing infant . . requires a great deal of rest. There are three TV stations in Cleveland; they are on the air of 172 hours per week . there are seven AM radio stations . . on the air a total of 924 hours per week . . broadcasting is still the main course, with TV the dessert. Of course, everybody loves dessert and to fully enjoy it we are willing to forego some of the main course. But in 1950 there isn't enough dessert to go around."

The extent of AM's drawing power is further evident by two mail counts made at WTAM. Sportscaster Tom Manning in brief announcements offering free baseball schedules on his two daily sponsored programs for a period of less than two weeks realized more than 12,000 pieces of mail. Each letter also contained a 3-cent stamped return envelop. WTAM's Farm Editor, Jim Chapman, has just started a juvenile safety club, and through his 6:15 a. m. announcement has already received 1,500 requests for membership.

David M. Baylor, vice-president and general manager of indie WJMO, maintains that the novelty of TV is wearing off and that there is a "swing back to the favorite radio programs. Thus it can be assumed that television will not replace AM radio as an entertainment medium; more likely the two will be supplementary."

K. K. Hackathorn, WHK (Mutual) points to the opening, within another 60 days, of WDOK, the eighth AM station as evidence that radio isn't moving out of the picture. "Cleveland," he adds, "is going through a competitive situation not heretofor experienced in this market, but the end result may well be an increase in radio advertising for all of us as the good word of the real worth of radio advertising is spread through our competitive efforts."

There are three TV stations in Greater Cleveland. Besides WNBK, there are WEWS, the Scripps-Howard unit, and WXEL, indie.

NAB Hotfoot

Continued from page 27

no definite idea as to just what his qualifications should be; the bid to bring out the broadcasters for the convention by putting the accent on top-ranking speakers rather than a promise to tackle vital industry problems—these are interpreted as part of the uncertainty and bewilderment besetting the organization.

It's the consensus that the fur will be flying when the broadcasters get together for their annual assemblage.

Romulo Heads Up Speakers

Washington, March 14.

The NAB will have Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, president of the UN General Assembly, as a principal speaker at its 28th annual convention April 12-19 in Chicago. Romulo will open the agenda of the April 17 sessions with an address on "The Broadcaster's Responsibilities in World Affairs."

Romulo is a Pulitzer prize-winning editor and author who served as aide to Gen. Douglas McArthur in major battles in the recapture of the Philippines. He was elected president of the fourth regular session of the UN at its opening last September in New York.

First four days of the NAB convention will be devoted to engineering matters and the last three days, beginning Monday, April 17, to the Management Conference. Theme will be "The American Broadcaster's Responsibility in the World Today." Association will soon announce names of other prominent speakers who will address the convention on responsibility in industry, advertising, government, agriculture, and coming generations.

Savannah

Continued from page 29

grams were sponsored, that 88.6% of the time was commercial, that no time was devoted to educational programs, and that only two news broadcasts were made.

Council said the operation of WEAS is a "complete reversal" of the policies proposed by Rivers when he applied for the station in 1946 and when he filed for license renewal in 1948. Present schedules it added, show "marked discrepancies" from previous representations.

In view of Rivers' record at WEAS, Council asked that the Commission set aside its grant for a daytime station to Rivers or hold up the permit pending a hearing on the case. Council said that FCC would not have granted the Savannah permit without a hearing if it had been aware of Rivers' policies in Decatur.

The Council was formed in November, 1948 "to provide for uniform action by the radio stations of Savannah in matters where uniformity promotes such public interest, as well as to maintain and protect proper ethical standards, including the maintenance of non-discriminatory practices . . ."

Members of the Council are WCCP, WDAR, WFRP, WSAV, and WTOC.

Corwin

Continued from page 29

would not carry the Corwin program) was made without my knowledge. Neither myself nor program director George Roeder (brother of the newscaster) was told that any statement would be given out, and we knew nothing of what had transpired until we received a telephone call from Abe Schechter of Mutual. When the situation was explained to us, we assured Mr. Schechter and Mutual that we had no objections to the documentary. We told them also that no letter of protest would be sent, and we added that we would take the broadcast. That's how the situation stands."

Amarillo, Tex.—Mark Roberts, formerly chief announcer for KAMQ here, has been appointed program director for another local outlet, KFDA.

"LEAVE IT TO THE GIRLS"

Thanks VARIETY

... The gals now have Regent as a sponsor and it's the dream commercial the way Maggi McNellis puts it on, plus that finale quiz show routine with all the other gals for the afterpiece. None the less it's an obvious reason why Jack Benny's AM audience around 7 p.m. in N. Y. has been curtailed in TV homes.

Miss McNellis is a beauteous and literate regisseur, and whether she has Eloise McElhone, Robin Chandler, Lois Andrews and Dorothy Kilgallen on her panel, or any of the other regulars—Betty Furness or Faye Emerson (that gal must have a real big bicycle the way she gets around)—it's invariably a crack show.

VARIETY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1950

THE MODERATOR
MAGGI McNELLIS
Thanks you!

THE SPONSOR
REGENT Cigarettes
Thanks you!

THE AGENCY
BSF&D
Thanks you!

THE PRODUCER
MARTHA ROUNTREE
Thanks you!

Speaking of variety
have you tried Regents?

Radio Writers

Continued from page 29

writing. When the medium is prepared to spend a much larger share for programming, he said, it will need trained writers and will turn to radio and the film industry for them.

"Very little in the way of a true documentary has been done in television," he said, "but I believe we will do tremendous things in the future."

Hazam said he's been told the radio writer is about to be as extinct as the passenger pigeon or "the fellow who makes holes in the rolls for a player piano." But he feels heartened, he said, by Fred Allen's comment that TV is "a wonderful medium for puppets. I give human beings just one more year."

If that's the shape of things to come, he observed, "I've nothing more to worry about than anyone else."

Hazam has been writing documentaries for 15 years and has accumulated so many awards and citations he's stopped counting them. He lives in suburban Silver Spring, Md., where he does his work.

He has been doing the "Living" series for NBC since it began as "Living, 1948." Show is carried sustaining on Saturday 4-4:30 p. m., with Ben Grauer as narrator.

Cigarets

Continued from page 27

Luckies will continue to ride along with it.

Competing With Self?

(While not exactly competing with itself, Luckies' sponsorship of Jack Benny Sunday at 7 on radio, and inviting an immediate switchover to video for the 7:30 pickup of "This Is Show Business," presents something of a media Ripley to the trade.)

Chesterfield: Company is reported unhappy over the Perry Como Sunday night TV showcase on NBC, since all the rating laurels are being snared by the competition, namely, Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town," on CBS. Some say Chesterfield wants out on the show.

Philip Morris: It's a tossup whether PM will play along with "Candid Camera" at the end of the current TV cycle, the ciggie company having also been hesitant at the previous option time. It's considered entirely likely that a video version of the Horace Heidt show may move in as next season's substitute. Company has also bought Dizzy Dean for DuMont baseball.

Old Gold: Still getting one of the best per-cost buys in AM and TV with its dual spread of "Original Amateur Hour" and "Stop the Music," with no changes contemplated.

Pall Mall: Ditto with its AM-TV "Big Story," "and we're very happy, thank you."

Transit Radio

Continued from page 29

transit vehicles are "the bonus factor" which attracts sponsors to FM stations. It expressed hope that "at some time in the future" the transit sets will be a small minority of FM receivers in operation, "but until that time arrives, the transit sets in use serve to create circulation which is otherwise difficult to establish and even more difficult to prove. They make possible the program service that is required to build FM receiver use."

Cleve. Next?

Cleveland, March 14.

Soon there may be music for this city's streetcar and bus rider.

Cleveland Transit System officials have indicated they are studying the possibilities of wiring their equipment. CTS General Manager Donald C. Hyde says he likes and wants transit radio, and that a decision might soon be forthcoming on whether radio would be installed, at no cost to the CTS, but with advertising revenue going to the CTS.

Schenectady — G. William (Bill) Givens, supervisor of farm broadcasting at WGY, WRGB and WGFM for the past two years, has been appointed supervisor of the stations' publicity and promotion, by Robert B. Hanna, stations manager.

West Texas, New Mexico Broadcasters Organize

Big Springs, Tex., March 14.

The West Texas-New Mexico Broadcasters Assn. has been formed here. Emphasis will be placed on regional as well as national problems related to the radio industry.

Membership is open to all stations operators in the area. Jack Wallace, of KBST, here is prez, and J. M. McDonald, of KCRS, Midland, is secretary-treasurer. Directors of the organization are Jack Hawkins, KRIG, Odessa; Harley Hubbard, KXOX, Sweetwater; Lewis Seibert, KGKL, San Angelo; W. D. Dixon, KVWC, Vernon; R. E. Bruce, KRUN, Ballinger, and W. E. Whitmore, KGFL, Roswell, N. M.

Stations now affiliated in the association include KRIG, KGKL, KCRC, KGFL, KVWC, KXOX, KBST, KRUN, KOSA, KTXN, KIUN, KTXL and KVLF.

Lorain

Continued from page 29

aimed to show merchants that advertised over the radio from a station just nine miles from Lorain were not permitted to advertise in the paper.

As the second week of testimony got under way, the Government called Donald Heisner, radio store operator, to the stand. He testified that late in 1948 he had a contract with the Journal, that just before Christmas he took time on WEOL, and then was notified by the paper that his contract had been cancelled. Later, when he tried to advertise again, he was refused by the paper's advertising manager, Victor Bremer, who said, "If I'd play ball with the Journal they'd play ball with me."

Several other merchants, including James Resar, tool rental operator; George Llewelyn, Pontiac dealer, told of similar instances of being forced to either drop WEOL or losing their contract with the Journal.

Another witness was William E. Bennett, sales promotion manager of the Chicago group of Sears & Roebuck stores. He said he moved onto the scene when the Lorain Journal rejected advertising copy from the Lorain store after two Sears ads appeared in the Lorain Sunday News, the other competing media in the Lorain area. Bennett added Sears spent about $20,000 annually with the Journal, and that subsequently the News account was dropped.

The Journal and four of its executives are charged with violation of the civil anti-trust law in that merchants were denied advertising space when they bought radio time from WEOL.

Judge Freed has already notified opposing attorneys they would have a month to prepare their briefs. He will then hear their arguments and decide at a later date whether he will order the Journal to stop the practices alleged in the Government complaint. The case is expected to conclude this week.

The Lorain Journal rested its defense yesterday after one witness, Publisher Horvitz, testified paper's policy was against doing business with concerns using WEOL.

TV ADVERTISING FILM FOR LOW BUDGET ACCOUNTS
ONE MINUTE FILM WITH VOICE
ONLY $150
WRITE CALL OR SEE
FILMACK
1333 SOUTH WABASH AVE.
CHICAGO
HA. 7-3395

Apts. for Rent
NEWLY REMODELLED BLDG.
448 West 55th Street, New York
Immediate Occupancy
2 & 3 Room Fur'd Apts., $120-$145

To

JACK BENNY

voted

"The greatest radio personality during the last 25 years"

...and he's only 39

Congratulations from CBS

Tele Chatter

New York

Bea Lillie and Dinah Shore were pacted this week to guest on the Bob Hope-Frigidaire show Easter Sunday via NBC-TV . . . Bob Keeshan, portrayer of "Clarabelle, the Clown" on "Howdy Doody," now doubling as the new Indian character on the show . . . As a result of his success in the TV version of "On Borrowed Time," seven-year-old Tommy Rettig has been inked by Metro for a role in the next Jane Powell starrer, "In the Tender Hours" . . . Actress Marie Kenney, featured on NBC-TV's "Big Story" twice last month, set for a role in CBS-TV's "Escape" tomorrow night (Thurs.) . . . Harry Blackstone has packaged a magic show for TV, which Dan Tuthill, as exclusive rep, is now peddling to agencies and clients . . . Stanton M. Osgood upped to coordinator of CBS-TV production services . . . With Sunset Appliances picking up the tab for Dennis James' Monday night boxing via DuMont, the announcer's sports schedule is now completely sold out . . . INS-Telenews sports review, "This Week in Sports," will be sponsored by Guinness Stout via WPIX starting this month . . . CBS-TV's "Faye Emerson Show" became a five-station network program starting Monday night (13), with four stations outside N.Y. picking it up . . . Special Purpose Films pacted to lens a series of TV spots for Sealtest, through N. W. Ayer.

WJZ-TV is airing 30 minutes earlier on Fridays (at 1:30 p.m.) to carry "Adventures in Sewing," which Apollo Distributing Corp. and Sulzman Distributing Corp. are backing . . . Arthur Godfrey's Mariners Quartet planning a classical concert in N. Y., similar to their recent venture in Baltimore . . . Lenore Lonergan, recently in "Alive and Kicking," on Broadway, will play the telephone operator in "Holiday Hotel," which preems March 23 on ABC-TV. Tom Adair will script and Don Sadler will direct the choreography . . . Tony Charmoli, choreographer for "Stop the Music," will guest on CBS-TV's "Winner Take All" Saturday (18) . . . Sylvia Peyser, wife of CBS-TV director John Peyser, playing "Little Women" in Gotham hospitals . . . Lute Pease, 81-year-old Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist, to guest on "Life Begins at 80" next week . . . Charles Collingwood, of CBS-TV's "People's Platform," to conduct debate at Philadelphia Bulletin's fourth annual forum

London

The Oxford-Cambridge boat race, which last year proved to be one of the topical highlights of British TV, is to be telecast again April 1. Four mobile units will be used to insure stroke by stroke coverage . . . Film Star Valerie Hobson makes her bow in a TV play when she will have the part of the strange lady in Shaw's "A Man of Destiny." Hugh Burden, Brian Coleman and Percy Walsh are featured . . . From Monday (13) until next Wednesday (22) there will be six telecasts of the World and European ice-hockey championships from Wembley, Harringay and the Empress Hall . . . Next Sunday (19) and the following Friday there will be a revival of "Men of Darkness," which was first telecast two years ago. Royston Morley is producing and the cast is topped by Clement McCallin and Victoria Hopper.

Richards

Continued from page 26

views which appear to be pro-Republican and anti-Communist."

One of the Richards' stations involved in the commission's investigation is WJR, in Detroit. Richards has also proposed to transfer voting control in his stations to three Michigan trustees. The qualifications of the trustees (two directors of General Motors and the president of Michigan State College) to take over Richards' operations is an issue in the proceedings.

Ferguson suggested the possibility that FCC "may be using its authority over radio stations for political censorship. If this is so, it is of vital concern to every member of the senate and to the country."

The senator said that "if radio station owners of one particular leaning are being favored and those of opposite leanings are being frowned upon, clearly then the commission is embarking upon the dangerous course of political censorship."

Clete Roberts today (Tues.) testified at FCC hearing here that while he served as director of KMPC department of public affairs Richards gave him instructions to place FDR and Mrs. Roosevelt always in an unfavorable position in station's news broadcasts: to minimize Truman administration, to present Republicans in best and most favorable light and to quote frequently from such columnists as Westbrook Pegler and Fulton Lewis.

Richards, he said, referred to Truman as "that necktie salesman in the White House."

Boston—Joseph Lopez, formerly manager of Yankee Network's Providence outlet, WEAN, has been appointed sales manager for the newly-formed sales office in Boston. Lopez will direct sales for network stations outside Hub, which include WEAN, Providence; WONS, Hartford and WICC, Bridgeport. Mowry Lowe of WEAN sales staff will take over management of WEAN during Lopez's absence.

Color TV Followup

Continued from page 35

what its system can tackle. There was even a demonstration of a spinning white rod, highly touted at recent FCC comparative tests as the most difficult technical feat for color TV. Object is to show that white, which is a composite of all colors, emerges on the screen sans color break up. Results were convincing; at its highest speed of rotation there was a pale green fringe, but general effect was one of whiteness.

CTI color, at its best test here to date, is bright and faithful. Such familiar objects as a bunch of grapes, package of well known breakfast food or household soap flakes, flash on the screen as almost exact reproductions as the original. Contrasts between colors is sharp, and closeups are excellent. Facial features are still the weak point of the system, but there's marked improvement.

Skin tones are truer than in any of the competing systems, even that of CBS. There is a faint color fringe, which could easily be the result of lighting, but even this is not objectionable. Haziness in long shots has still to be overcome, but general effect is impressive.

Biggest improvement showed up on the black and white receivers, proving company's claims of compatability. In past tests, the black and white images were hazy and unsteady. Use of direct view, rather than projection receivers, undoubtedly helped, as seen Monday the black and white reception of the color test was of first rate quality.

Sen. Edwin Johnson (D., Col.), present at the test, summed up the situation by stating, "No one can discount CTI after this demonstration." This reviewer is inclined to agree with the senator. Lowe.

CBS-TV Savings

Continued from page 31

tisers. Web spokesmen pointed out that they are in business to sell time to sponsors, not to make a profit on production facilities. In fact, the spokesman said, CBS in the past has lost money by quoting a price to sponsors which was less than the show actually cost. New production rates have been lined up to hit a break-even point. While the web is taking advantage of the lower costs now, all advertisers will reap the benefits at their next option times. CBS claims it can now give a sponsor and agency a flat price according to a script and make that price firm.

In addition to sets and props, the web has effected savings up and down the line. It has pacted with Eaves and Brooks costume outfits for bulk buying, which brings down the overall price. In addition, it now rents trucks on a yearly basis, which again means a savings of 25% in trucking charges. Other savings in production facilities include 9% in the hour rates for set design; 6% for operating labor; 30% for lighting supervision; 23% for prop shopping, and 25% for wardrobe attendants.

NBC's 'Me, Too'

Continued from page 31

ers? Who introduced opera and rodeo to TV fans?

Who was the first to successfully achieve the cross-fading split screen technique for video? Or, again, who, but NBC, provided video fans with one of the alltime single telecast sparks by that memorable initial performance by Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony?

How, too, NBC argues in presenting its case for TV leadership, can you laugh off a $40,000,000 cash reserve as revealed in the RCA parent company balance sheet?

The network refuses to yield to contentions that CBS outstrips NBC in TV imagination and initiative, whatever the general reaction about radio rivalry. The projection of the "Saturday Night Revue" with the emergence of Max Liebman into variety production leadership; the Tuesday night rating bonanza; the ability to transfer Monday night CBS allegiance on radio to NBC allegiance on TV through the Robert Montgomery "Lucky Strike Theatre" dramatics—these are cited as evidence that, video-wise, NBC is alerted to the need for creative knowhow in patterning for the TV future.

Inside Television

CBS television this week pacted to move the transmitter for WCBS-TV, its N. Y. flagship station, to the Empire State building, N. Y., from its present site atop the tower of the neighboring Chrysler building. CBS shift represents the fifth of the seven N. Y. video outlets who will be broadcasting from the same transmitter site, which is expected to prove a boon to the majority of setowners. Only station holdouts in the metropolitan area are WOR-TV and WATV, both of which now transmit from across the Hudson river in New Jersey.

WCBS-TV transmitter will be installed on the 83d floor of the Empire State, with the antenna to be set up on the new tower now undergoing construction. Date when the station will begin transmitting from the new site has not been set, but there will be no holdup in present operations.

CBS-TV's "Ford Theatre" may be the next big dramatic show to switch to film via the Jerry Fairbanks multi-camera system. While nothing has been signed yet, spokesmen for the Kenyon & Eckhardt agency, which produces the show, said this week they had been huddling with Fairbanks reps in N. Y. on the possibility of testing the system on an experimental basis. Ford might run into difficulties over film rights, however, which would make it more difficult to procure scripts. K&E does not kinescope the series, specifically so as not to buck the major film companies for TV rights to story properties.

Agency has decided, meanwhile, to set up two separate production units on the Ford show when it goes once a week next September. Move will virtually double the overall budget, since Ford will be forced to spend each week as much as it now spends on its alternate week setup. Certain economies might be effected, however, by having some of the administrative personnel double in their duties.

New promotion stunt for "Howdy Doody" devised by Martin Stone Associates and NBC to find the boy in the U. S. who most closely resembles the television puppet is expected to be one of the major TV promotions of the year. All 25 NBC video outlets carrying the show will be tied in on the search to splurge on publicity at the local level. In addition, the kid who eventually wins will be brought to N. Y. to guest not only on the H-D show but on several other top video programs.

Contest tees off March 17, which marks the 500th program in the series. Total of 500 prizes will be awarded, 250 going to the "Double-Doody" winner and another 250 to the charitable organization of his choice. Prizes include such items as film projectors, bicycles, record players, radios, TV sets, etc.

Following a report of the Stamford, Conn., survey last week showing high school students with video sets spend as much time watching their screens as they spend in their classrooms, it was revealed this week by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that highschoolers in that Texas city benefit from TV via better grades. Survey conducted by S-T video editor Ira Cain showed 60% of all students with TV sets had boosted their grades over the previous year, 5% more than the decrease in grades shown by the remaining 40%. Less than 15% of the students listed any restrictions from parents on viewing time. From that group, one student dropped from a B to a C-plus average, one raised from B-plus to an A, while the others maintained their A averages.

WFIL-TV, Philadelphia, received a trans-ocean phone call from a Bermuda-bound DC-4, flying 200 miles southeast of the city. Col. Victor Dallin, director of the Philadelphia International Airport, called the station and said the guests aboard at that moment were watching the Dennis James' "Okay Mother" show on WFIL-TV and the program was "coming in fine."

The plane, the "Esso-Atlas Sky Merchant," was transporting a group of civic and business officials from Philadelphia for an introductory "week-end in Bermuda." The trip was made to induce airlines to schedule regular service between this city and Bermuda. Among the passengers were the mayors of York, Allentown, Bethlehem, Chester and Williamsport, Pa. Col. Dallin represented Mayor Bernard Samuel of Philadelphia.

DuMont this week reshuffled its programming setup, integrating its production facilities under supervision of a central group of execs, instead of spreading them out under local studio chiefs as before. Move was taken, according to program director James L. Caddigan, because of increased programming activities resulting from more shows being fed to affiliates and renewed emphasis on daytime programs.

New setup includes four basic departments—program development and procurement, production, studio supervision and training. Alvin Hollander, formerly supervisor of the web's Studio A, N. Y., was upped to the newly-created post of production facilities manager. Don Russell has been named chief announcer, and Duncan MacDonald supervisor of training.

FIRST AGAIN

February TV Pulse reports 7 out of 10 top once-a-week TV shows in Cincinnati are seen on

WCPO-TV
CHANNEL 7

WCPO-TV . 7
TV STA. B . . 2
TV STA. C. 1

. . . and in multi-weekly TV shows WCPO-TV takes 6 out of the top 10 shows

WCPO-TV . 6
TV STA. B . . 4
TV STA. C. 0

. . . TV surveys always show WCPO-TV has the MOST viewers MOST of the time!

WCPO-TV CINCINNATI, OHIO
Call a Branham Man for Availabilities

for profitable selling INVESTIGATE

WDEL WILMINGTON DELAWARE
WGAL LANCASTER PENNSYLVANIA
WKBO HARRISBURG PENNSYLVANIA
WRAW READING PENNSYLVANIA
WORK YORK PENNSYLVANIA
WEST EASTON PENNSYLVANIA

and

WDEL-TV WILMINGTON DELAWARE
WGAL-TV LANCASTER PENNSYLVANIA
NBC AFFILIATES

STEINMAN STATIONS
Clair R. McCollough, General Manager
Represented by ROBERT MEEKER ASSOCIATES
Chicago San Francisco New York Los Angeles

Color Hearings

Continued from page 30

fied 6 mc for color and, further, that it is not interested in systems which are still in the "theoretical" stage.

New Converter

However, the agency told the Celomat Corp. of New York, which has developed a converter for CBS color to be marketed for $9.95, that "this information is pertinent to the issues relating to color television and should be made a part of the record" in the hearings.

Celomat's converter is for use in sets which would be adapted to receive CBS 405-line color in black and white. This would be accomplished by incorporating adaptation (compatibility) in new sets at the factory through use of a device invented by CBS and improved upon by an FCC engineer which would automatically tune in colorcasts from three different systems in monochrome.

Incorporation of adapters, either at the factory or by set owners, is predicated on adoption of CBS color or of multiple standards, which would give broadcasters a choice of color transmission systems and the public a choice of color receivers or converters. FCC Chairman Wayne Coy pointed out recently during Commission hearings that if adaptation was built into sets at the factory, the compatibility problem of CBS color could be licked on all new sets, and that in a few years, with production climbing, only a small proportion of existing sets would be incompatible, or incapable of receiving color.

While FCC has no control over manufacturers, it is anticipated that adaptation would be built in, once color is authorized. Should the larger companies resist putting in adapters, it is believed the smaller companies would take the lead and force the issue. However, it is regarded doubtful that reputable firms would risk almost certain public censure, to say nothing of possible Federal Trade Commission or anti-trust action, to avoid a relatively slight change in cost and design of receivers.

Actually, it is suggested, there is nothing to prevent manufacturers from putting in adapters now—without waiting for the color decision. With the possibility that buyer resistance may develop as action on color draws near, it is believed that the first producer who can offer "all-compatible" receivers may gain a distinct competitive advantage.

Pa. Liquor Board

Continued from page 30

as raffles, dance contests, and other tournaments. The order applies not only to the bars, but to all parts of the licensed premises.

Gelder said change was made after numerous licensees and others had inquired if licensed places could be used for such contests. Gelder said "Licensed places are for the sale of food and the dispensing of liquor and are not places of entertainment. A place of entertainment needs an amusement license."

The order, according to Gelder, was aimed directly at the recently organized leagues playing the pool bowling machines and shuffle boards. This ban, however, does apply to clubs, which are exempt from the amusement provisions of the liquor law, nor to private parties held on licensed premises.

A bridge club, for example, would still be permitted to award prizes in a hotel or restaurant and a private organization could still award dance prizes. But the licensee, under no consideration, is permitted to offer or award prizes, Gelder emphasized.

WNBT Daytime

Continued from page 31

"Ladies First," will originate from a remote location in line with the station's plan of spreading out to solve the studio space problem. WNBT and Stone are now dickering with the Tavern-on-the-Green eatery, in Manhattan's Central Park, as a possible site. While some cash prizes will be handed out to winners of contests staged on the program, emphasis is to be placed on entertainment. Ed Herlihy has been pencilled in as emcee, with Dick Doan handling the show for the Stone office. Cooking show is being packaged by the Mole-Davis agency.

WNBT's daytime plan received a push forward this week with the signing of Sacks-34th Street, department store, to continue as sponsor of the first half-hour of "Shoppers Matinee" when Miss Norris moves the program over from its present spot on the DuMont web. Second half-hour is to be pitched to participating bankrollers under the same system as it was sold on DuMont.

CTI

Continued from page 30

best features of the CTI, RCA and CBS systems worked out as the solution to the color problem. "I realize it's not simple," he said. "It's like mixing an ox, a camel and an elephant, but I do hope that some composite standard can be developed."

Asked what he thought of multiple standards which would give the public a choice of all three systems, he said: "I don't take to them like a duck takes to water but I would favor them as a last resort."

Johnson said that color video is "no longer just around the corner. It's here, though it's not perfected." The CBS system, he said, is further advanced than the others. "It could give very good service. With respect to its potential, I won't commit myself."

Tues. Top Nite

Continued from page 31

only partially responsible for the king-sized sets-in-use total. Figure, they contend, also reflects the fact that those people owning their sets for a long time previously also had them tuned in during the month. As more sets are sold, consequently, new viewers will be added to the older setowners, which will result in increased competition for radio, films, etc.

While Tuesday night regained its spot as the No. 1 viewing night, the spread in sets-in-use figures for the various nights of the week showed a tendency to decrease again reflecting that more people are watching their sets more of the time. Tuesday figure was a 64.8, with Sunday a close second with 64.2. Other nights showed Monday with 62; Wednesday, 58.6; Thursday, 59.2; Friday, 58.6; and Saturday, 55.8. Intensified competition among the networks for Saturday nights is expected to boost the total on that night.

Affiliates Cry 'Chain Gang'

Continued from page 29

some bankrollers firm rates means that others will have to get similar guarantees and will tend to hold down rates generally, both local and national.

Works Both Ways, Says Rep

Chain spokesman reply that protection is a two-way proposition, with the stations being assured of a 104-week contract and no cancellations. Even though an affiliation contract is for only one year, pacts are firm regardless of possible changes in affiliation. "Lone Ranger" plan got heavy acceptance, it's stressed, because broadcasters feel it is a strong audience series.

While local outlets may beef that some spot spenders are going network, chains answer that on an overall basis national spot was up 7% and local biz up 6.4% in 1949 with net billings down 4%, which doesn't indicate the stations suffered. Additionally, the webs argue, shifts in ad allocations from AM to TV or from spot to network are reflections of the advertisers' needs and preferences.

On the charge that webs are moving into station option time, it's pointed out, about 95% of national commercials are in network option time and the remaining 5% in station time with the outlets' consent. (FCC regulations limit network option time to three morning, three afternoon and three evening hours.) However, those airers in local time are strong and affiliates would gripe if these were dropped for any reason.

Although stations may contend that nets can pressure them to yield station time and other concessions, webs argue that stations are free agents. On one AM web last year there were over 3,000 single broadcast cancellations (because of public service or local commercial broadcasts) and many more delayed broadcasts. These cost the chains money and endanger accounts. And in TV, it's stressed, stations are calling the tune.

Webs admit that some big sponsors using net shows to plug many products may withhold coin from the spot field. But, it's pointed out, these sponsors are paying for good programs which offer the affiliates lucrative adjacencies for local bankrollers.

Many of the affiliates' gripes are handled by station representatives on behalf of their clients. But, webs counter, if the outlets are unhappy with their affiliation, why do so many seek chain ties and why do the reps use their influence to obtain network pacts for their stations? Answer, they say, is that stations need the networks as much as vice versa.

famous firsts in T-V

In 1927 television by radio was demonstrated — both image and sound on the same frequency band by a single transmitter.

★

Blair-TV Inc. was the first exclusive representative of television stations.

BLAIR TV INC.

REPRESENTING

Birmingham	WBRC-TV
Columbus	WBNS-TV
Los Angeles	KTSL
New Orleans	WDSU-TV
Omaha	WOW-TV
Richmond	WTVR
Salt Lake City	KDYL-TV
Seattle	KING-TV

Old MacDonald had a Farm
Ee-i Ee-i DOUGH

And on this farm he has need for new implements, fencing, paint and electrical appliances for his home. Farmer MacDonald also has the money . . . plus the inclination to spend.

Just where can you find this potential customer? Right in the heart of WLW-Land. And there are 689,999 other WLW-Land farmers just like him. All together, they plan to spend $890,000,000 in 1950.*

It's the greatest farm market in history

And the quickest, surest way to reach this rich market is via WLW, which attracts one-sixth—16.1% —of all rural radio listening throughout WLW's four-state area.

Of all farm families in the WLW Merchandise-Able Area, 38.7% listen to WLW more often than to any other station (with 257 stations competing). WLW reaches . . .

85.2% of all rural radio homes in four weeks

69.1% of all rural radio homes during an average week

And, the average rural home reached listens ONE HOUR AND TWELVE MINUTES PER DAY to WLW.

For further information, contact any of the WLW Sales Offices in Cincinnati,

New York,
Chicago or
Hollywood.

* Special farm consumer survey—now available
Nielsen Radio Index, Feb-March, 1949*

THE GREATEST FARM MARKET IN HISTORY
THE GREATEST SELLING MEDIUM IN THE MIDWEST

WLW
the nation's most merchandise-able station

Crosley Broadcasting Corporation

Rossiter, 83, Celebrates 60th Year As Pub; Van Alstyne's 50th as Writer

Chicago, March 14.

Two of Chicago's pioneers in the music publishing and composing business will have celebrated their 50th and 60th years in the business within 10 days of each other. Tomorrow (15) marks the 83d birthday and 60th year in publishing for "Uncle" Will Rossiter. Egbert Van Alstyne, composer of "Memories" and "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," celebrated his 72d birthday and 50th year in the field on March 5.

Both are active. Rossiter still has his publishing firm and is busy plugging his latest composition, "You Haven't Changed." Van Alstyne, although confined to his bed, is still writing and is awaiting release of the Warner picture, "Pretty Baby," which features his better-known tunes, including the title song.

Both have their individual ideas on the tunes of today as compared to those of 20 and 30 years ago. Rossiter doesn't think today's compositions compare. He points to one of the present hits and makes a wry face. But he can't quite pin down the reason for it. At one point he is definite, though. The older tunes had the quality of leisureliness and stateliness that are lacking today.

Van Alstyne, on the other hand, says, "There are wonderful songs written today." He points out, though, that he can use only his own experience as a guide as to what makes a good song. "I've been very fortunate," he says, "in being able to write songs for common individuals whom I know." He feels that a good song must have some element of universality to it. And some of the songs today, he goes on, have this element of universality.

Modern Plugging

But both agree that whatever good music is written today doesn't last for long. And they agree in attributing this to modern methods of song-plugging and to radio. The average life of a song 30 years ago was four or five years; today it is four or five weeks. "They hammer them to death," both say. "You can't eat icecream 10 times a day and continue to like it, no matter how good it is. And it's the same thing with a song. No matter how good it is, if you keep hearing it, you're going to get tired of it."

Neither sees any way out of the dilemma. In fact, they feel that with the successful advent of television, it will be accentuated. "An ambitious composer," Van Alstyne says, "isn't going to tell his publisher not to plug his tune."

Rossiter points to another development radio has brought about. Radio artists, he says, won't touch a new tune until somebody else does it, whereas in the vaudeville days a performer would pay to be the first to introduce it. The paradoxical thing about this situation, he goes on, is the fact that the vaudeville performer had to stand in front of an advertising curtain, which carried ads of stores and restaurants, and try to deliver the song while the audience sat and read the ads. Today over radio, the audience in the studio applauds on cue. "What in the world," he wants to know, "are they afraid of when the audience is guaranteed to applaud?"

Rossiter Started in 1890

Rossiter started in the business in 1890. He had written his first song, "Sweet Nellie Bawn," and had been turned down by publishers. When he decided to publish it himself, he was in business to stay. Other hits came quickly; he published "Some of These Days," "Darktown Strutters Ball," "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland," "The Vamp" and "Turkey in the Straw." Under the pseudonym of W. R. Williams, he wrote a score of hits, including "I'd Love to Live in Loveland With a Girl Like You," which is still selling. The list of composers who wrote for him is a "Who's Who" in modern pop music. One of these was Van Alstyne, who, after realizing that he was not good enough to be a successful concert pianist, started to write.

Rossiter published a march and some waltzes for Van Alstyne. That was about 1900. In 1903, Van Alstyne wrote his first hit—"Navajo." Then came "Memories," "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "Pretty Baby," "Pony Boy" and "Good-a-Bye, John."

"Good-a-Bye, John" was the only tune ever interpolated into a Victor Herbert score. Montgomery and Stone, leads of the "Red Mill," wanted a song which they could sing to a barrel organ with a monkey capering round it. Herbert felt that to write such a song was beneath his dignity, and they called upon Van Alstyne to write it.

Van Alstyne's 20 Scores

Van Alstyne wrote about 20 musical comedy scores, but quit after his greatest success, "The Broken Idol," which ran for two years in Chicago. "Too much work, too much worry and anxiety," he says. He has written several film scores, and his total of compositions number over 700. For the past 45 years, Remick Music has been his publisher, ever since his first contract with them was a shake of the hand with Leon Remick.

Van Alstyne's bed, from which he celebrated his birthday, was canopied with strings of telegrams and cards of congratulations, and he has been named guest of honor at the Chicago Music Festival in August. Rossiter has a cabinetfull of recorded radio tributes to him.

S-B GETS U.S. RIGHTS TO ENGLISH DP TUNE

Shapiro, Bernstein & Co. last week obtained the American sales rights to "Where Can I Go?" English song about displaced persons in which a number of U. S. publishers had shown interest. Song, in a minor key, was written by Leo Fuld and Sonny Miller (words) and Sigmund Berlant (music). Fuld has an international reputation as a singer.

Shapiro, Bernstein acquired the number via transatlantic phone conversations with John Firmin of B. Feldman & Co., original publishers of the song in England.

Al Donahue's 8-Weeker

Al Donahue band closes at the Hotel Statler, Washington, D. C., March 18, following an eight-week run.

Orch goes into the Rice hotel, Houston, April 11.

Best British Sheet Sellers

(Week ending March 4),

London, March 7.

Dear Hearts	Morris
Jealous Heart	New World
Harry Lime Theme	Chappell
Down in the Glen	Maurice
Bunch of Coconuts	Box & Cox
Garden of Weeds	Box & Cox
I'll String Along	Feldman
Hopscotch Polka	Leeds
Music, Music	Leeds
Is It True About Dixie	Wood
Why Is It	Cinephonic
Breaking My Heart	Sterling

Second 12

Our Love Story	Carolin
Mule Train	Chappell
Where Are You	Victoria
Scottish Samba	Sun
Forever and Ever	F.D. & H.
Is It Too Late	Yale
Song In Our Heart	20th-Cent.
Clear Blue Sky	Yale
Kiss in Your Eyes	Bosworth
Someday My Heart	Chappell
Best of All	Connelly
Confidentially	New World

ROBBINS SUES ASHLEY ON FOLIO'S COPY ACT

Charging unfair competition, J. J. Robbins & Sons, Inc., brought suit in N. Y. supreme court last week against Ashley Music Supply Co. The Robbins firm complains that it published a series of books, from 1947 to 1949, called "Music for Millions." These volumes, which contain selected copyrighted and public domain songs, were said to have sold in excess of 70,000 copies prior to the "fraudulent and deceptive" acts of the defendant.

Originally a jobber for Robbins' series, Ashley assertedly set up Amsco Music Publishing Co. to publish "Everybody's Favorite Series," an allegedly similar group of albums. In papers filed by Abeles & Bernstein, it's claimed that, prior to forming Amsco, Ashley had never before engaged in the publishing business.

To "palm off" the defendant's series on the public by imitating the Robbins' format, the suit charges that Ashley even hired the same printing firm. Last fall Ashley was said to have been twice notified to discontinue its "unfair" practices, but continued to do so.

An injunction, accounting and damages sustained by the allegedly unfair competition is asked in the action. Julian T. Abeles, Robbins' legalite, is scheduled to move for a restraining order in N. Y. supreme court next Monday (20).

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Frankie Laine "Swamp Girl"-"A Kiss For Tomorrow" (Mercury). "Swamp Girl" has all the earmarks of a standout hit. It has a dramatic lyric, a driving tempo and a deep-colored vocal job by Laine. Even more so than "Cry of the Wild Goose," this number is tailor-made for Laine's flamboyant style, particularly because of its pashy overtones. Disk is effectively backgrounded with Loulie Jean Norman's eerie soprano and Harry Geller's orch. Reverse is a good item with a quasi-Latin beat.

Stan Kenton "Innovations in Modern Music" (Capitol). This four-disk album won't diminish Kenton's rep as a purveyor of daring music that strays way off the beaten commercial track. Yet, despite all the atonal dissonances and other ultra-modernistic flourishes, Kenton retains a basic syncopated attack that keeps him within the pop precints. Jocks with a taste for the unusual will give some of these sides a big-play. A few of these numbers are in the straight pop vein except for some superimposed fancy instrumental twists. Kenton's new orch is far better than his former aggregation, giving out with more depth, resonance and, above all, a self-assurance of style. Tipping off the musical approach, disks are titled "Trajectories," "Conflict," "Theme For Sunday," "Incident In Jazz," "Lonesome Road," "Mirage," "Solitaire" and "Cuban Episode. Latter is driven by a powerful drum and voice solo by Carlos Vidal. Vocalist June Christie is spotted on a couple of sides with her voice integrated into the orchestral arrangements a la Kay Davis in Duke Ellington's. "Creole Love Call."

Fran Warren-Tony Martin "Darn It Baby—That's Love"-"That We Is Me and You" (Victor). This disk falls in line with the marked upbeat in mixed vocal duets. Miss Warren and Martin join on a couple of cute numbers that should garner heavy jock and juke play. "Baby" has a clever lyric and a light bounce that easily sells on basis of the duo's neatly blended styles. It has a better chance than the flipover, which has, however, a pleasant novelty lilt. Background orch is batoned by Henri Rene.

Mary Martin-Arthur Godfrey "Go To Sleep, Go To Sleep, Go To Sleep"-"But Me, I Love You" (Columbia). A takeoff on an a.k. romance, "Sleep" is slated for the hit lists. It's a clever number winding on a once-lightly-over risque note that doesn't hurt. The Martin-Godfrey disk is solid in its vocal contrast and well-timed crosstalk both singers wrapping it up with a sense of humor. The Mindy Carson-Don Cornell pressing for Victor is equally good, according to taste, with the number dished up in a snappier beat. M-G-M's Betty Garrett-Larry Parks version is okay but doesn't have the personality touch of the other two. Reverse of the Columbia disk is another nice novelty, but designed for the younger generation.

Sammy Kaye "Wanderin'"-"The Bicycle Song" (Victor). Kaye gives a powerful ride to "Wanderin'," a moving folk-type ballad in the manner of "Lucky Old Sun." Disk is impressively dressed with a Tony Alamo vocal backed with choral harmonies. It's offbeat from Kaye's normal light rhythms but it has a solid b.o. impact nonetheless. Bottom deck has more of the usual Kaye flavor, a deftly executed pop with a duet by Laura Leslie and Don Cornell.

Lionel Hampton "Sad Feeling"-"Hamp's Gumbo" (Decca). Both firstrate jock and juke items for a racey change of pace. "Feeling" is a slow-tempoed number with a solid beat vocalled in blues-shouting stlye by Sonny Parker, a fine jazz singer, who is particularly impressive here. Flipover is in a jumpier style also well-vocalled by Parker. Hamp's vibraharp solos are spotted on both sides.

Eddie Cantor "Enjoy Yourself"-"I Love Her" (Victor). Two cute numbers that could catch on. Cantor's style has been standard for these many years, and he isn't tampering with it in his last couple of waxings for Victor. "Enjoy Yourself" is a bright inspirational number with a good lyric and some French-accented horseplay by Cantor. Reverse is a clap-hands type of bouncy ballad with Cantor having a good time. Three Beaus and a Peep lend a rhythmic choral background.

Platter Pointers

Approach of the Easter season is hatching another mystifying holiday hit like last Christmas' "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." Now it's "Peter Cottontail," which has been waxed by almost a dozen diskeries. It's another kid's tune that's getting a big play on regular pop labels. Among the best versions (although they're all very much alike) are Gene Autry's (Columbia) and Jack Day's (Coral). Guy Lombardo has at least tried to put a neat dance twist on his Decca pressing. Lombardo has also sliced two fine novelties with organist Ethel Smith, "Zing-A Zing-A Zing Boom" and "Scottish Samba" (Decca). . . The oldie, "Rain," is coming back with Toni Arden's ace out for Columbia and Dean Martin's for Capitol. Larry Fotine's orch version for Decca and Frank Petty Trio's for M-G-M aren't likely to get the same play. . . Interest in the "Third Man Theme" is generating those "zither dithers" on disks. Irving Fields' Trio has cut a tricky version for Victor as has Dave Apollon for National. Best arrangement, outside of the original by Anton Karas, is Ray McKinley's for Victor. . . Jerry Gray's cut of "Star Dust" for Decca is a solid jock bet. . . Reports that Dizzy Gillespie has given up on bebop are not backed up by his latest sides for Capitol, "Carambola" and "Honeysuckle Rose," both wild and woolly. . . Lisa Kirk has a solid juke and jock item in "Kiss Me" (Victor). . . Ditto Margaret Whiting's "Dream Peddler's Serenade" (Capitol). . . Art Mooney has a good, though slightly late, waxing of "Flying Dutchman" and "Cry of the Wild Goose" for M-G-M. . . Billy Holiday (Decca) cuts a fine side in "Gimme a Pigfoot and a Bottle of Beer," a standard worked over by the late Bessie Smith.

Standout hillbilly, western, race, polka, jazz, etc.: Red Alton, "I Keep So Many Women" (Capitol) . . . Jimmy Dickens, "Then I had to Turn Around and Get Married" (Columbia). . . Buz Butler, "A Year of City Living" (Decca). . . Delmore Bros., "Sand Mountain Blues" (King). . . Alvino Rey, "A Snow White Horse" (Capitol). . . Mae Williams, "Don't Take Your Love From Me" (Crystalette). . . Brother John Sellers, "When the Rolls Is Called Up Yonder" (Decca). . . Pee Wee Hunt, "Royal Garden Blues" (Capitol). . . "Fat Man" Robinson Quintet, "Gimme a Pound O' Ground Round" (Decca).

Fiske Joins MCA

Former bandleader Charlie Fiske has joined the band dept. of Music Corp. of America N. Y. office.

He'll work with Johnny Dugan in handling bands for theatres.

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin-Machines

Week of Mar. 11

1.	MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC (7) (Cromwell)	Teresa Brewer Eddie Miller	London Rainbow
2.	RAG MOP (7) (Hill & Range)	Ames Bros Ralph Flanagan	Coral Victor
3.	CHATTANOOGIE SHOESHINE BOY (5) (Acuff-Rose)	Red Foley Bill Darnell	Decca Coral
4.	I SAID MY PAJAMAS (8) (Leeds)	Martin-Warren	Victor
5.	CRY OF THE WILD GOOSE (2) (American)	Frankie Laine	Mercury
6.	DEAR HEARTS, GENTLE PEOPLE (13) (Morris)	Dinah Shore Bing Crosby	Columbia Decca
7.	THERE'S NO TOMORROW (15) Paxton)	Tony Martin Alan Dale	Victor Harmony
8.	ENJOY YOURSELF (1) (Morris)	Guy Lombardo	Decca
9.	DEARIE (1) (Laurel)	Merman-Bolger Stafford-MacRae	Decca Capitol
10.	CRAZY HE CALLS ME (3) (Massey)	Billie Holiday	Decca

Second Group

IF I KNEW YOU WERE COMING (Robert)	Eileen Barton	Mercury
DREAMER'S HOLIDAY (15) (Shapiro-B)	Perry Como E. Wilson-Jenkins	Victor Decca
I CAN DREAM CAN'T I (25) (Chappell)	Andrews Sisters	Decca
FOOLISH HEART (Santly-Joy)	Gordon Jenkins	Decca
OLD MASTER PAINTER (13) (Robbins)	Sinatra-Modernaires Snooky Lanson	Columbia London
C'EST SI BON (Leeds)	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M
DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL (Beacon)	Dick Todd Mills Bros.	Rainbow Decca
BROKEN DOWN MERRY-GO-ROUND (Vogue)	Whiting-Wakely	Capitol
HAVE I TOLD YOU LATELY (Duchess)	Crosby-Andrews	Decca
QUICKSILVER (Morris)	Crosby-Andrews Doris Day	Decca Columbia
SITTING BY THE WINDOW (Shapiro-B)	Dinah Shore Billy Eckstine	Columbia M-G-M
BIBBIDI BOBBIDI BOO (Disney)	Perry Como Dinah Shore	Victor Columbia
WE'LL BUILD A BUNGALOW (Algonquin)	Johnny Long	King
EYES WIDE OPEN I'M DREAMING (Crawford)	Patti Page	Mercury
IT ISN'T FAIR (Words-Music)	Sammy Kaye	Victor
SENTIMENTAL ME (Knickerbocker)	Ames Bros.	Coral

[Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10.]

DISK 'EXCLUSIVES' AS PUB AID

'49's 'Battle of Speeds' Generates 1950 Fast Tempo Sales of 33 and 45 RPMs

After sloughing the record business last year, "the battle of the speeds" has begun to pay off with increasing sales for both the 33⅓ and 45 rpm type of disks. Industry leaders regard the upbeat in the slow speeds as the direct result of the heavy competitive promotions by Columbia and RCA, which made the public "record conscious" on a wider scale than ever before.

Columbia, which launched the LP development about 18 months ago, has jumped away from the rest of the field in disk sales. According to the company's latest figures, 5,500,000 LP disks have been produced since their birth, or an equivalent of about 27,500,000 conventional 10-inch platters. Currently, Columbia has stepped up production of the LP's to 600,000 per month.

In the pop field, Columbia is cutting approximately 1,000,000 seven-inch LP disks monthly. Victor, which entered the field months later with the 45 rpm disks, is now turning them out at the rate of over 600,000 per month and is planning to step up that figure to 1,200,000 before the end of the year. Victor, at the same time, began marketing its 33⅓ records this week. Columbia, however, is making no move to enter the 45 rpm field but, on the contrary, is renewing its promotion of the 7-inch LP's for pop music and shorter classical selections.

Latest figures on LP machines show that approximately 2,500,000 homes are currently equipped to play 33⅓, while there are about 1,000,000 45 rpm machines in circulation. Columbia, through the VM company of Chicago, is presently turning out 1,000 player attachments daily and it's estimated that all other companies are producing an equivalent number.

JIM MURRAY NEW VEEPEE AT CAPITOL

Hollywood, March 14.

Jim Murray, formerly a top executive with RCA-Victor and Columbia, has been made a v.p. of Capitol Records. Murray begins his new job this week.

Murray left RCA several months ago, resigning a vice-presidency during a policy battle at that waxery. Before going with RCA in 1942 he was with Columbia for more than 10 years, after breaking into the biz with the old Okeh label in 1928.

Cascade Gardens New Dancery in Brooklyn

Another indication of the possible resurgence of the dance band field is the addition to the New York ballroom scene of the Cascade Gardens, Brooklyn. New dancery, formerly a rollerskating rink, opened Friday night (10) with a weekend (Friday, Saturday and Sunday) policy of three bands nightly.

Opening orch array last Friday comprised Art Mooney, Esy Morales and Lee Merrill's 12-man house crew. Blue Barron replaced Mooney Saturday and Sunday, latter having started a Capitol theatre, N. Y., run Saturday. Band lineup for this coming weekend is Shep Fields Friday night, Elliot Lawrence Saturday and Sunday, and Jose Curbelo for the rhumbas over the three nights, in addition to the Merrill house orch. Pencilled in for Sunday, March 26, is Charlie Spivak.

Cascade Gardens also is trying a hillbilly square dance policy Tuesday nights, first of which teed off last night (14). Typical western talent will be offered at 50c. a head. Weekend admission is $1.

Ballroom, operated by Harry Rifkin, has an approximate capacity of 2,500, and drew 6,000 over the first three nights. Leonard Green is handling the band-buying for the spot.

Muzak's Unique Trailer For Romberg's Concert

In a unique promotional tieup, Sigmund Romberg's concert at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., March 17, received heavy plugging for a full night last Thursday (9) in the New York metropolitan area via the Muzak system. It's the first time that Muzak entered into such a deal with any composer or conductor and it was done on a test basis for possible similar projects in the future.

Harry D. Squires, Romberg's manager, angled Muzak's cooperation on a reciprocal arrangement in which Squires paid for ads in the daily press for both the Romberg concert and Muzak while the latter agreed to pipe Romberg's music in 800 restaurants and hotels in N. Y. Muzak also distributed printed programs to each of its outlets detailing the time and titles of the Romberg compositions to be played and the date of the concert. Carnegie Hall date, which was made on short notice Feb. 22, is currently near to an advance sellout.

Col. 'Speedup' Plan Pays Off With 2 Big Hits

Columbia Records' new "press 'em and sell 'em" speedup plan has paid off with two hits released during the past three weeks. One of the biggest Columbia sellers in several years, the Mary Martin-Arthur Godfrey waxing of "Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep" is hitting well over the 200,000 marker since its release Feb. 23. Diskery is also getting big action on Gene Autry's "Peter Cottontail," which is currently around 175,000.

Under the new regime inaugurated by Mitch Miller, Columbia's pop artists chief, "Go to Sleep" was pushed into distrib channels within three days of the initial Martin-Godfrey recording session. Similarly, "Cottontail," first cut by Decca, was readied in a couple of days, with Gene Autry flown in from the west for the recording date.

Columbia's a.&r. division, meantime, was slightly reshuffled last week to give Miller more elbow room on the creative end. Joseph Higgins, formerly assistant director of the division, was upped to associate director to handle publisher contacts and release dates. Percy Faith also stepped into his new job as musical director.

Kaye Wants Ex-Vocalist Don Cornell for Cap Date

Sammy Kaye is angling to get vocalist Don Cornell on the bill with him when he opens at the Capitol, N. Y., April 8. Singer's appearance looks dubious, however, since theatre has already hit its budget for the show.

Bandleader is still looking for a vocalist to replace Cornell, who recently left his aggregation to do a solo.

Irving Fields' Kine

The Irving Fields Trio is kinescoping a half-hour TV show for audition purposes. Program, labeled "Melody Cruise," is being produced by Arthur Modell. Madelaine Chambers, who was in the recent Broadway production of "Alive and Kicking," will appear as vocalist on the show.

A dance team will also be spotlighted.

HIT SEARCH HELPS GIVE FREE TESTS

Major music publishers who for some time have been finding it increasingly difficult to interest recording companies in their plug material, because of the diskers' strong desire for "exclusive" rights to new songs, are now turning that desire to their own advantage. In recent months a number of publishers have used one or another of the disk firms as a proving ground for tunes not scheduled for a No. 1 plug and sometimes still only in manuscript form.

Pubbers feel that since the recorders are so hot in their quest for that exclusive hit platter they might as well let them try and find it among their own tunes not slated for any particular plugging attention. Giving one waxworks a temporary exclusive on such material results in a good test of the song for the publisher, with the expense all on the side of the disk firm. If a hit emerges, the pub has a readymade moneymaker that he might otherwise have relegated to the shelf. If nothing happens, he's had a free test of a song that he didn't expect much from anyway.

The system of exclusivity has its drawbacks, however, in the case of tunes in which publishers place great faith. Poor performance of a song can ruin the disk's chances, and unless immediate sales strength is shown, other labels aren't likely to cut the number, thus removing the possibility of another platter version that might have made the song a hit. But where a publisher gives an exclusive on a tune which he himself feels has little chance to hit, he figures he's not taking too much of a risk that way.

The record companies' yen for exclusive material has been as rough on major pubs trying to line up disks on plug tunes as it has been a boon to smalltime songwriters and publishers who don't care what financial or other concessions they have to make as long as they can get their tunes on a record. Big publishers can't afford to invite antagonism from other diskers by giving one company a temporary exclusive, and the stymie becomes complete with the reluctance of recording men to show interest in plug tunes which they know everybody else will be cutting.

CARLE 'EXHAUSTED,' FORCED TO REST

Maestro Frankie Carle will be out of action for the next few weeks as the result of nervous exhaustion which caught up with him last weekend while playing a Cleveland ballroom. Doctor's orders call for complete rest for at least a couple of weeks, and the bandleader left Cleveland for California yesterday (14) to follow the prescription.

Orch will be forced to cancel a batch of midwest dates, and will be idle until Carle's return, unless a suitable substitute front man can be gotten to fill in on some of the one-niters.

Incidentally, Carle's orch has been pencilled in for a big push this spring by RCA Victor under the company's dance band promotion. Following his waxing of a brace of Frank Loesser numbers in Victor's "design for dancing" series, Carle will record a "Sweethearts" album for April release. Bandleader has also cut singles for Victor, including "Spaghetti Rag" and "Little More Time."

Before his moveover from Columbia to Victor, Carle was a major piano album seller. Manie Sacks, Victor's artists relations' director, intends to maintain the keyboard accent in Carle's upcoming disks.

Les Brown band booked for one nighter, at Club Sevenoaks, San Antonio, April 12, when spot opens its Starlit Terrace for summer season.

Fran Allison's 1st Disk; RCA Eyes 'Kukla' Album

Chicago, March 14.

RCA-Victor hopped on the "Peter Cottontail" bandwagon last week when it cut the side, featuring Fran Allison, star of the "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" television show here.

Columbia has been promoting Gene Autry's version of the song as another "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer." Since "Petter Cottontail" has the seasonal angle, Victor is speeding pressing to get it on the market in time for Easter sales.

This was Miss Allison's first record date. She cut only two sides. Victor is huddling with Burr Tillstrom, who does the other voice parts on the TV show and writes the show, on prepping a "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" album.

Record Retailers Mull National Org To Buck Distribs

Chicago, March 14.

Record retailers may organize on a national scale and hold their first convention here in July simultaneously with the annual convention of the National Assn. of Music Merchants, it was indicated last week.

The Record Retailers Assn. voted to send letters to record dealers all over the country questioning them on the advisability of such a move.

Dealers feel that the advent of three speeds in records is putting them in unfavorable position in a number of ways. First, they feel that it is an "economic necessity" for them to have at least a 10% return privilege. Some dealers charge tie-in sales, others delivery discriminations and franchise holders point out that 45-r.p.m. record franchises are being handed to appliance shops, hardware stores, furniture dealers and automobile dealers.

They argue that the three speeds in records are forcing them to build up inventory without a corresponding acceleration in sales, and claim the situation is further aggravated by constant shifts by manufacturers in distributorships, injuring their credit setup.

Hogan Takes Over Universal Recorders

Hollywood, March 7.

With the purchase of 140,000 shares of stock, Arthur B. Hogan has gained complete control of Universal Recorders. Hogan bought out the interests of his partner, Wesley I. Dumm. Universal is capitalized at $500,000, with $250,000 in capital stock.

Dumm will retire from the business to devote his time to four Frisco radio stations he owns: KSFO, KPIX-TV, KWID and KWIX.

Durante, Sinatra, Rooney Help Damone in Pic Bow

Hollywood, March 14.

Vic Damone will break into pictures in Metro's "They All Sing," the story of a singer breaking into pictures.

Film is slated for summer shooting, with Frank Sinatra, Jimmy Durante and Mickey Rooney playing themselves.

Dick Kuhn Music Corp., N. Y., changed name to Margold Music Corp., according to papers filed in Albany.

100% Performance Would Be Key To Revised ASCAP Pub Classification

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers board of directors is finally giving serious consideration to a completely revised system of publisher classification which has been suggested to it on previous occasions, but which has periodically been tabled.

Proposed new publisher ASCAP classification plan would do away with the present 55-30-15% payoff split for, respectively, performance, availability of catalog, and seniority in the Society. Replacing the three-way classification system would be one whereby publisher revenue from ASCAP would be based 100% upon performance.

ASCAP Decree

Details on the Government consent decree in the ASCAP anti-trust suit, handed down yesterday (Tues.), on page 1.

Under the revised setup discussed at the last ASCAP board meeting, performance points on songs would be weighed according to the age of the particular tune, with a 10-year-old song receiving more points than a five-year-old one, and so on up and down the line, even though the actual performance values on copyrights of different ages might be equal. Thinking behind this is that a song which has survived as a good performance tune for 10 years is entitled to greater payoff consideration than one whose durability has been proven over a period of time only half as long.

The major reason for the elimination, if and when, of the availability and seniority sections of the present pub classification system would be to obviate the protests and embarrassment that have always stemmed from the looseness and intangibility of the availability rating. While performance and seniority are a matter of record and bookkeeping, availability—the overall value, importance, prestige, etc., of a catalog—has always been a sore spot for publishers with complaints about their ASCAP ratings, as well as a difficult and embarrassing annoyance to the ASCAP board before which the complaints are laid.

Typical of such embarrassment was the recent squawk of a publisher who felt his availability rating was less than it should be, and who compared his catalog with that of another pub in substantiation of his claim. The ASCAP board found it could not raise the protesting pub any higher, but decided that in all fairness the catalog with which it was compared had to be lowered. What made the matter even more uncomfortable was the fact that the publisher whose rating was dropped was a member of the board.

With any adoption of a pub rating based 100% on performance,

(Continued on page 52)

MERCURY WINS 100,000 ORDER ADVANCING DATE

Chicago, March 14.

A quick decision by Mercury Records to switch release date on "Swamp Girl," Frankie Laine's latest side, brought it an advance distributor order of 100,000 disks.

Decision was made at Music Operators of America meet here last week, when persistent rumors circulated to the effect that Columbia musical director Mitch Miller was going to record tune with Frank Sinatra. Mercury pushed release date from April 1 to immediate release, and secured orders from distributors at meeting for 100,000 disks. Waxing was Miller's last session at Mercury before he took over present Columbia spot.

Song was written by Michael Brown, young pianist-singer-composer, now appearing at the Buttery here. Publisher is Hill-Range.

Top Record Talent and Tunes

AS POLLED VIA LEADING U. S. "REQUEST" DISK JOCKEYS

VARIETY

Weekly chart of the records on disk jockeys' programs, as "most requested" by listeners. This compilation is based on information gathered from disk-spinners across the nation and is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of 10 points for a No. 1 mention, 9 for a No. 2 and so on down to one point. Cities and jockeys will vary week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country.

WEEK ENDING MAR. 11

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	Pub.		N. Y.	Chi.	L. A.	Boston	Cincy	Port., Ore.	D. C.	St. L.	Alaska	Phil	Det.	S. F.	Syracuse	Omaha	Denver	Richmond	K. C.	Seattle	Pitt.	N. O.	Ft. Worth	Port., Me.	Atlanta	L'ville	TOTAL POINTS
								Paul Brenner—WAAT	Jim Lounsbury—WIND	Al Jarvis—KLAC	Art Tacker—WTAO	Nelson King—WCKY	Sammy Taylor—KWJJ	Jackson Lowe—WWDC	Pat Bradley—KXLW	Hal Knutson—KENI	Joe McCauley—WIP	Larry Gentile—WJBK	Les Malloy—KYA	Ed Murphy—WSYR	Joe Kennedy—KOWH	Herb Trackman—KMYR	Mike Novello—WRNL	Bob Kennedy—WHB	Wally Nelskog—KRSC	Art Pallan—WWSW	Larry Wilson—WNOE	Jimmy Lowe—KXOL	Dick Smith—WMTW	Herb Harris—WQXI	Del Roy—WKYW
1	6	6	Frankie Laine	Mercury	Cry of the Wild Goose	American	BMI		4	2	3	9	7		6			1	3	1		7		6	2	3		4	1			106
2	4	7	Teresa Brewer	London	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell	ASCAP		2	3	5	2		10	2		2	2							1	1		5	3		5	100
3	1	10	Ames Bros	Coral	Rag Mop	Hill-Range	BMI	3	3	5		3	2		5				1				3	5	4	6					1	91
4	2	20	Tony Martin	Victor	There's No Tomorrow	Paxton	ASCAP						3	3			5		2		5	10		2	5				6		2	67
5	9	7	Sammy Kaye	Victor	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music	ASCAP	2			4				1			3						4			8	3	7		4	63
6	3	9	Red Foley	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose	BMI		1			1			3	1												6	5			49
7	8	5	Bing Crosby	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose	BMI			4									4		1	3				5					3	46
8	5	7	T. Martin & F. Warren	Victor	I Said My Pajamas	Leeds	ASCAP						10	6			3		10		3	1										33
9A	20	2	Eileen Barton	Mercury	If I Knew You Were Coming	Robert	ASCAP		7		8	5		9				8								4	5					31
9B	7	10	Patti Page	Mercury	With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford	ASCAP				1			2	7												6	8				31
11A	..	2	Phil Harris	Victor	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose	BMI						1												3					2		27
11B	11	8	Bill Darnell	Coral	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose	BMI							7			4							3			3					27
13	34	5	Mindy Carson	Victor	Candy and Cake	Oxford	ASCAP									6					7		2			7			8			25
14A	14	7	Vaughn Monroe	Victor	Bamboo	Shapiro-B	ASCAP			6					10	5				4						8						22
14B	..	2	Billy Eckstine	M-G-M	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy	ASCAP				2			4				5														22
14C	12	7	Ames Bros	Coral	Sentimental Me	Kn'bocker	ASCAP										1	4							8				9			22
17	..	1	Carmen Cavallaro	Decca	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell	ASCAP													2		5								5		21
18A	16	5	Ralph Flanagan	Victor	Rag Mop	Hill-Range	BMI									2					4							7				20
18B	16	29	Andrews Sis. & G. Jenkins	Decca	I Can Dream, Can't I	Chappell	ASCAP												5		10	2			7							20
20A	16	4	Mills Bros	Decca	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon	BMI		5												2										7	19
20B	26	5	T. Martin & F. Warren	Victor	Have I Told You Lately	Duchess	BMI														8		4						2			19
22A	51	5	B. Crosby & Andrews Sis.	Decca	Quicksilver	Morris	ASCAP						4		8										6						9	17
22B	21	4	Lionel Hampton	Decca	Rag Mop	Hill-Range	BMI							1								4										17
24	13	5	Gordon Jenkins	Decca	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy	ASCAP	10		1																				6		16
25A	..	2	Guy Lombardo	Decca	3rd Man Theme	Chappell	ASCAP			7																		10		3		13
25B	..	1	Fran Warren	Victor	Almost Lost My Mind	Hill-Range	BMI					8											1									13
25C	23	14	Bing Crosby	Decca	Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris	ASCAP												8								1					13
28A	16	9	Bill Eckstine	M-G-M	Sitting By the Window	Shapiro-B	ASCAP			9		4													9						10	12
28B	..	1	Ames Bros	Coral	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell	ASCAP												6								4					12
30A	..	4	Frank Sinatra	Columbia	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose	BMI	1										10														11
30B	15	11	Dick Todd	Rainbow	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon	BMI								9		9												4			11
32A	29	3	Bill Farrell	M-G-M	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music	ASCAP		6			6																				10
32B	38	13	Owen Bradley	Coral	Blues Stay Away From Me	Lois	BMI																	1								10
32C	..	1	Russ Morgan	Decca	Sentimental Me	Kn'bocker	ASCAP																					1				10
32D	..	2	Dennis Day	Victor	Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris	ASCAP																							1		10
36A	23	5	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M	C'est Ci Bon	Leeds	ASCAP	9	8									9					9									9
36B	..	1	Don Cornell	Victor	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music	ASCAP																			2						9
36C	..	2	Guy Lombardo	Decca	Rain or Shine	Lombardo	ASCAP																				2					9
36D	..	1	Bing Crosby	Decca	Yodel Blues	Chappell	ASCAP																					2				9
40A	40	2	E. Merman & R. Bolger	Decca	Dearie	Laurel	ASCAP				10									7										8		8
40B	..	1	Perry Como	Victor	Dream Is A Wish, Heart Makes	Disney	ASCAP									3																8
40C	..	1	B. Crosby & C. Richards	Decca	Sunshine Cake	Morris	ASCAP													3												8
43A	..	2	V. Damone	Mercury	God's Country	Robbins	ASCAP	4																								7
43B	40	4	Doris Day	Columbia	Quicksilver	Morris	ASCAP															6		9								7
43C	23	4	Blue Barron	M-G-M	Big Movie Show in the Sky	Chappell	ASCAP																							4		7
46A	..	1	Frank Sinatra	Columbia	Sunshine Cake	Morris	ASCAP	5																								6
46B	10	18	Dinah Shore	Columbia	Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris	ASCAP						8																		8	6
46C	40	6	Guy Lombardo	Decca	Enjoy Yourself	Morris	ASCAP									8	8															6
49A	..	3	Richard Hayes	Mercury	Flying Dutchman	Oxford	ASCAP		10											9			10									4
49B	..	2	Vic Damone	Mercury	Kiss Me	Jefferson	ASCAP																7									4
49C	..	1	Jack Burch	London	Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo	Disney	ASCAP																							7		4
52	..	1	Leo Fuld	London	Where Can I Go	B. Feldman	ASCAP	8																								3

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

This week's New Releases ...on RCA Victor

RELEASE 50-11

POPULAR

MINDY CARSON AND DON CORNELL

Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep
Ask Me No Questions (And I'll Tell You No Lies) 20-3718—(47-3718)*

FRANKIE CARLE

Spaghetti Rag
A Little More Time 20-3719—(47-3719)*

THE HONEYDREAMERS

Silver Dollar
Plaything (To You) 20-3720—(47-3720)*

GENE KRUPA

Dust
These Foolish Things Remind Me of You 20-3721—(47-3721)*

THE THREE SUNS

Blue Prelude
I May Hate Myself in the Morning (For Falling in Love Tonight) 20-3722—(47-3722)*

BLUEBIRD

LUCYANN POLK

It's So Nice to Have a Man Around the House
(If I Knew You Were Comin') I'd've Baked a Cake 30-0027—(54-0027)*

POP SPECIALTY

MERRIE MUSETTE

Chug-a-Lug Polka
Chalet in the Valley 25-1152—(51-0059)*

ELTON BRITT AND ROSALIE ALLEN

Acres of Diamonds (Mountains of Gold)
Prairieland Polka 21-0302—(48-0302)*

HANK SNOW

I Wonder Where You Are Tonight
The Drunkard's Son 21-0303—(48-0303)*

BLUES

THE FOUR TUNES

Am I Blue?
There Goes My Heart 22-0072—(50-0072)*

*45 r.p.m. catalog numbers.

NOTE: All records in this panel are listed alphabetically by song title.

Going Strong...

$ . . . indicates records which, according to actual sales, are recognized hits. The trade is urged to keep ample stocks of these records on hand, or to reorder promptly when current stocks begin to approach the "sold-out" stage.

7 . . . designates that record is one of RCA Victor's "Certain Seven"—among the leading numbers on the trade paper best selling retail sales charts. Obviously, sure things!

$	Bamboo Vaughn Monroe		20-3627—(47-3143)*	7
$	Candy and Cake Mindy Carson		20-3681—(47-3204)*	7
$	Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy Phil Harris		20-3685—(47-3208)*
$	I Said My Pajamas Tony Martin-Fran Warren		20-3613—(47-3119)*	7
$	It Isn't Fair Sammy Kaye		20-3609—(47-3115)*	7
$	Marta Tony Martin		20-3598—(47-3104)*
$	Mommy and Daddy Broke My Heart Eddy Arnold		21-0146—(48-0150)*	7
$	Music, Music, Music Freddy Martin		20-3693—(47-3217)*
$	Rag Mop Ralph Flanagan		30-0025—(54-0020)*	7
$	There's No Tomorrow Tony Martin		20-3582—(47-3078)*	7

Coming Up...

★ indicates records which have enjoyed better than average initial consumer acceptance and stand an excellent chance of entering the top-selling hit category. The trade is advised to watch these records carefully in order to maintain stocks consistent with demand.

★ C'est Si Bon
Tommy Dorsey . . 20-3712—(47-3712)*
(Billboard Tips on Tops March 11th.)

★ Wilhelmina
Freddy Martin . . 20-3693—(47-3217)*
("The catchy novelty ditty from the "Wabash Ave." flick gets a crisp, sparkling orking and happy warbling from Merv Griffin and group." Billboard Possibilities March 11th issue.)
(Number five the Disk Jockeys Pick. The Billboard March 11th.)
(Number two the Operators Pick. The Billboard March 11th.)

★ Roulette
Tony Martin . . . . 20-3695—(47-3219)*
(Number one the Disk Jockeys Pick. The Billboard March 11th issue.)
(Number one the Retailers Pick. The Billboard March 11th issue.)

★ Count Every Star
Hugo Winterhalter
20-3697—(47-3221)*
(Number two the Disk Jockeys Pick. Billboard March 11th issue.)

★ I Almost Lost My Mind
Fran Warren . . . 20-3686—(47-3209)*
(Number three the Disk Jockeys Pick. The Billboard March 11th issue.)

★ Did Anyone Ever Tell You, Mrs. Murphy
Perry Como . . . . 20-3684—(47-3211)*
(Number seven the Disk Jockeys Pick. The Billboard March 11th issue.)

★ We'll Build a Bungalow
Larry Green . . . . 20-3624—(47-3130)*
(Number nine the Retailers Pick. The Billboard March 11th issue.)

★ Quicksilver
Elton Britt and Rosalie Allen
21-0157—(48-0168)*
(Number five Most Played by Country and Western Disk Jockeys. The Billboard March 11th issue.)

The stars who make the hits are on RCA VICTOR Records

RCA VICTOR DIVISION RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA, CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY

JAN FEB MAR The APR MAY JUNE Swing's to "45"

Music Operators Indicate Strength At Closing of Chicago Convention

Chicago, March 14.

First annual Music Operators of America convention closed on note of strength as members swept present officers back into office and unanimously voted to hold a convention in 1951. Time and place were left to the executive committee.

George A. Miller will serve again as national chairman and trustee and Al Denver as vice-chairman. Present executive board was reelected and board will be expanded to include heads of each state operator association.

One factor indicating success of 1951 meeting was reaction of exhibitors. Every major record company had an exhibit, and some smaller ones came in for the meeting. The exhibits, originally designed for benefit of the operators, soon became a sort of market place where contactmen hit talent present for the show, record companies met and got orders from distributors, and publicity men met with reporters.

Certainly the exhibitors considered their time and money well spent, and all have given indications they'll be back in greater force next year. Add to that the fact that manufacturers and record companies paid for associate memberships in MOA, and it adds up to a stronger convention for 1951.

Final day of convention was spent on public relations. Operators reiterated need to change public opinion of the industry. Along these lines, Hirsh De La Viez, chairman of the Washington, D. C., Music Guild, outlined a program for operators to get into public favor. Program included cutting records for charities and public health drives and placing them in machines, bringing in talent for charities, donating jukeboxes and records to community centers and schools, and generally participating in civic and charitable activities.

Pinball Machine Gripes

Objection of most operators to being associated in any way with pinball or slotmachine operators was pointedly demonstrated during the convention. At one point, while De La Viez was illustrating value of public relations and mentioned a legal battle involving his pinball machine activities, a member rose from the floor and vehemently objected to De La Viez having brought up the pinball industry. Miller then ruled De La Viez out of order and forbade all mention of any coinmachines other than jukeboxes.

Objections to slot and pinball machines were more sharply voiced when, discussing MOA campaign to bring industry under the fair trades acts of the states, Miller said that purpose of campaign was to "eliminate possibility of the industry being degraded by the introduction of other types of equipment inimical to our interests."

Also on the fire for the next convention is an educational program in merchandising. Most operators displayed complete lack of knowledge of the music business. D. M. Steinberg, head of New Jersey's Music Guild of America, outlined merchandising methods used by that organization in order to select records which would bring in most business. Organization used its own "record play scoresheet," "Hit Parade" service, radio logging systems and tradepaper lists of best-selling records. All information was distributed to members of Guild, enabling them to save "thousands of dollars in hidden costs," according to Steinberg.

Individual operators left convention with feeling that they had an independent organization that would both represent them on a national basis and would help them on the local level with public relations and merchandising studies, and organizational problems. One indication that the MOA might become a strongly-knit body was a vote to have local groups study advisability of incorporating the executive board and make known its decision to the board in 90 days. Up to now, the whole thing has been purely voluntary and informal.

Leide to Head Up Pops; 20G Budget Seen for May Non-Profit N.Y. Series

Enrico Leide, conductor of the Atlanta Symphony, has been appointed musical director of Carnegie Pops, longhair series which will be presented during May at Carnegie Hall, N. Y. Leide will also conduct, along with Alfredo Antonini, of CBS; Franco Autori, N. Y. Philharmonic's associate conductor, and Igor Buketoff, Fort Wayne Symphony maestro. Musicians (65) will be members of the N. Y. Philharmonic.

Concerts will be given six nights a week (Sundays omitted), starting May 3 and ending May 31. Series will be managed by a new non-profit org, Music Sponsors Foundation, with Arthur Judson as advisory manager and William M. Judd as manager. Weekly budget is estimated at $20,000.

Series was started four seasons ago by Daniel Rybb, a Philharmonic player, and ran three seasons, being discontinued last year. This year's event is admittedly a setup to give Philharmonic players an extra month's work, between regular winter and the summer Lewisohn Stadium seasons. Judson is manager of the Philharmonic, and Judd is associated with him in his Columbia Artists Mgt. concert work.

Onorati Vice Hendler As Victor Ballyhooer

Henry Onorati, RCA Victor field promotion rep, has been named to succeed Herb Hendler, who exits this week as the company's promotion manager in New York under Dave Finn. It's understood that Hendler's former chores will be split up between Onorati and another staffer, as yet undesignated.

Hendler resigned from Victor to join Bernie Woods in the management of the new Ralph Flanagan band which recently completed auditions for its roster of sidemen and vocalists.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music sales, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 11

National Rating This wk.	National Rating Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York, MDS	Chicago, Carl Fisher	Los Angeles, Morse M. Preeman	Boston, H. N. Homeyer	Detroit, Grinnell Bros.	San Francisco, Pacific Coast Music	Philadelphia, Charles Dumont	Minneapolis, Schmidt Music Co.	Seattle, Capitol Music	Rochester, Neisner Bros.	St. Louis, S. L. Music Supply Co.	Omaha, A. Hospe Co.	TOTAL POINTS
1	5	"Music, Music, Music" (Cromwell)	1	2	1	7	2	5	1	3	2	1	3		93
2	1	"Chattanoogie Boy" (Acuff-Rose)	2	1	2	5	3	1		4	1		1	1	89
3	3	"I Said My Pajamas" (Leeds)	5	4	6	4	5	3		5	4	3	5	8	69
4	2	"Dear Hearts, People" (Morris)	8		3	2	6	2	9		8		2	5	54
5	12	"Dearie" (Laurel)	3	8	8	3	1		5	9					40
6A	4	"There's No Tomorrow" (Paxton)	10	9	7			8	4				6	2	31
6B	9	"Rag Mop" (Hill-Range)				8	8	4		1	9		9	7	31
7	6	"Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo" (Disney)		3		10		9		6	5		4		29
8	11	"Cry of Wild Goose" (American)		10						2		6		4	22
9	10	"Daddy's Little Girl" (Beacon)	6						2			5		10	21
9B		"Enjoy Yourself" (Morris)	7	5			4					7			21
9C		"Candy and Cake" (Oxford)					10		8			2		3	21
10	7	"Johnson Rag" (Miller)		6				7	3						17
11		"Knew You Were Coming" (Robert)	4		5	9			10						16
12	14	"It Isn't Fair" (Words-Music)	9			1						9	10		15
13		"Dream Is a Wish" (Disney)			10						6	4			13

DIXIE VOGUE REVIVES 2 BASIN ST. 'MUSICALES'

Concurrent with the Dixieland music "revival," a new "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street" is scheduled for an NBC audition Friday (17). Show, which was a popular airer about a decade ago, has been under wraps for about seven years. Half-hour program will spotlight Arthur Treacher in the moderator role, originally handled by Milton Cross. Also featured in the "music society" will be Henry ("Hot Lips") Levine and an 11-piece orchestra; Abrasha Barodkin and his chamber music string quartet and vocalist Martha Lou Harp. Robert K. Adams is directing the show written by Welbourne Kelly.

Also in line with the Dixieland trend is "Dr. Gino's Musicale," half-hour show, which bowed over ABC Monday (13) night. If the NBC audition pans out, Levine will be holding down two radio spots since he's musical conductor also on the ABC airer.

Ex-Sec to Start Jail Term for Orch Fraud

Tulsa, March 14.

Wanda Wall, 27, former secretary of Leon "Take-It-Away" McAuliffe, western orch leader, is in Tulsa county jail awaiting transfer to McAlester state penitentiary to start serving two concurrent four-year sentences for embezzlement of orch funds. Miss Wall admitted taking nearly $10,000 during a six-month period and spending it on "clothes, whisky and living."

Coral Re-Pacts Roberts, Takes on Day, Coleman

Coral has inked western singer Kenny Roberts to a new two-year pact and has taken on another country artist, Jack Day, on an exclusive disking basis.

Pianist Cy Coleman, head of a rhythm trio currently at the Shelbourne hotel, N. Y., has also been pacted by the Decca subsid.

SPIKE JONES TO DEFRAY COSTS FOR RUNYON FUND

Chicago, March 14.

Spike Jones will play the Hollywood Bowl this summer in a giant benefit, at which he will pay all costs of musicians and production, the proceeds to go to the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund. Although no definite date has been set as yet, it will probably be late in July.

Group, currently at the Lyceum, Minneapolis, for two weeks opening yesterday (13), starts a long one-night trek March 27 and ending on the Coast June 11. Tour starts in Minneapolis, swings south into Virginia and North Carolina, then back for 25 days in Canada alone before hitting California.

Donahue Cuts 1st Four Sides for Dana Records

Sam Donahue cut his first four sides for Dana Records this week, including the novelties, "Go To Sleep" and "If We Could Be Alone."

Donahue orch is booked for the Paramount theatre, N. Y., starting March 29 and will wax additional sides for Dana following that date.

'SUGAR THROAT BURNS,' 'HOPPY' TOPICAL SONGS

Two songs, born of topical radio and video situations, have just been hatched. Harry Ruby with Joe Cooper whipped up "Sugar Throat Burns," a novelty western inspired by the recent radio running gag wherein George N. Burns (& Gracie Allen) fancies himself a crooner. Edwin H. Morris will publish.

Al Piantadosi, in collaboration with Charles Nields, has written and is self-publishing "I'll Tell Hoppy On You," a kid song inspired by the television-popularity of the "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns, with the youngsters.

Bill Boyd's Objection

Hollywood, March 14.

Al Piantadosi and Bob Stabler, Bill Boyd's (Hopalong Cassidy) manager, are tangling over publication of the former's tune, "I'll Tell Hoppy on You." Controversy stems from fact that Boyd long ago copyrighted all phases of "Hopalong Cassidy" usage, including, according to Stabler, incorporating the word Hoppy in a song, particularly where it obviously is a direct reference to Cassidy character.

Six months ago Stabler notified publishers that all tune material on the subject must be submitted to Boyd and that only one number would be officially okayed. Piantadosi did not submit his song and he defies Stabler to stop him from exploiting it.

U. S. Jazz Disks Going Over Big in Denmark

Copenhagen, March 7.

Danish jazz expert Timme Rosenkrantz, recently returned from New York, is bringing out a series of American disks under the special label of Baronet, the platters being pressed and distributed by the big Danish gramophone company, Tono.

The first bunch of seven disks has been enthusiastically received by Danish fans and crix. Mary Lou Williams and Joe Sullivan in piano solos, Teddy Wilson's and Lennie Tristano's trios, Yank Lawson's band and Moe Koffman's Main Stemmers present old and new styles in American rhythm, and Coleman Hawkins plays solo-variations on sax.

New L.A. Ballroom

Inglewood, Cal., March 14.

While Coast band biz isn't booming, new ballroom here is the Hawthorne, which unveiled Saturday (11) here with Denny Beckner's 12-piece crew.

Glenn Hepler, formerly floor manager at the Aragon, is heading the new spot. Beckner will get $1,650 weekly against a 50% privilege.

In My 83rd Year!
Our first "NATURAL"
"YOU HAVEN'T CHANGED"
BY W R. WILLIAMS
Writer of "I'd Love to live in Loveland"
WE KNOW The greatest compliment we can pay the FAIR SEX is to tell 'em "YOU HAVEN'T CHANGED" and the melody has a regular Vaudeville KICK FINISH. Anyone can "stop the show" with this "NATURAL."
WILL ROSSITER 173 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, 2. ILL.

1928—"LONESOME ROAD"

1930—"SONG OF THE VAGABOND"

1932—"BROTHER CAN YOU SPARE A DIME"

1933—"HALLELUJAH I'M A BUM"

NOW... The great hit of 1950

WANDERIN'

INTRODUCED ON A POWERFUL "DOWN TO EARTH" SMASH HIT RECORD BY...

SAMMY KAYE

WITH A SENSATIONAL VOCAL BY...

TONY ALAMO

RCA VICTOR Records

78 rpm 20-3680

45 rpm 47-3203

Beneke Charges RCA Brushoff For Flanagan; Asks Contract Release

That perennial row over the inheritance of the late Glenn Miller's mantle has broken out again in the band field. Latest hassle revolves directly around the new Ralph Flanagan orch and Tex Beneke's crew, both with RCA-Victor, with the Jerry Gray band, on the Decca label, also getting into the act.

Beneke, currently on the Coast, brought the smoldering dispute out in the open last week when his manager, Don Haynes, asked Victor to release the band from its recording contract, which expires next January. Haynes charged that Victor had been brushing off Beneke in its advertising campaigns in favor of Flanagan, who also plays in the Glenn Miller style.

While on the Coast recently, Manie Sacks, Victor's new director of artists relations, attempted to iron out Beneke's grievances. Haynes, however, put in his bid for a contract release following Sacks' departure to his New York homeoffice.

Decca, meantime, has also been building up Gray as the logical successor to the Miller organization. It's being pointed out that Gray was the arranger for Miller and composed some of the latter's most popular tunes, including "Pennsylvania 6-5000," "Sun Valley Jump" and "String of Pearls." Gray has recently been on the receiving end of a strong Decca promotion in line with the disk industry's general accent on dance bands.

Seek Jenkins Release For Performance Of Portion of 'Towers'

Gordon Jenkins' television presentation of his "Manhattan Towers" on the Ed Sullivan CBS-TV Sunday night show in New York a couple of weeks ago resulted in a demand by radio artists and recording companies for the release for performances and disks of the "New York Is My Home" theme of the work. "Towers," since its Decca album issue by Jenkins, has been on the restricted list as regards performance and waxing.

Reaction from its recent video airing and the appearance of New York's Mayor O'Dwyer on the show to pay tribute to Jenkins and his composition aroused enough public response to bring on the increased pressure from diskers for recording permission.

"Towers" has never been available in published form nor been given blanket release for recordings and performances largely because Jenkins has felt that inferior interpretation or indiscriminate performance of it might weaken the value to him of his close association with the composition not only as composer but as its principal delineator. Further reason for reluctance on the part of Pickwick Music, newly-activated Lou Levy firm, which controls the copyright on the work, to issue a blanket release at this time stems from interest of several picture companies on the possibilities of getting rights to the title and story line of the work.

Oscar Peterson, Canadian pianist, who bows at Bop City, N. Y., March 16, signed recording contract with Mercury.

Tops of the Tops

Retail Disk Best Seller
"Music, Music, Music"
Retail Sheet Music Seller
"Music, Music, Music"
"Most Requested" Disk
"Cry of the Wild Goose"
Seller on Coin Machines
"Music, Music, Music"
Best British Seller
"Dear Hearts, Gentle People"

ASCAP Decree

Continued from page 1

by individual members of ASCAP or by the Society itself. Film licensing provision of the decree is for a two-year trial period, unlike other licensing arrangements which may be made for a period of not more than five years.

Right of individual ASCAP members to make deals for their music independently of the Society is only one aspect of the loosening of ASCAP's authority over its members ordered by the decree. Members may now resign from ASCAP and take his music with him, on one year's notice. Members also will now be able to carry appeals for reclassification beyond the previous limit of the ASCAP board of directors to an outside panel of impartial arbitrators.

Users of ASCAP material also have further recourse as regards dissatisfaction with fees fixed by the Society. Licensees may now take ASCAP to court in the event of a dispute over the amount of licensing costs.

Foreign Rights

Consent judgment in the international cartel field orders ASCAP to terminate all arrangements which give it exclusive control of a foreign country's music or which compel foreign societies of authors and composers to deal only with it. ASCAP was further restrained from belonging to any international organization of such societies which would help it to create or maintain a monopoly of foreign music in this country.

In video, broadcasters won a major point in the consent decree's ordering of ASCAP to license the use of recorded material for both radio and television programming. Up to now, video broadcasters were forced to get such rights for the use of recordings from individual publishers and composers since ASCAP refused to license directly the use of music on disks.

Elections to the ASCAP board of directors will also have to undergo a change in procedure. Under the decree, the full board has to be voted in every two years in place of the current practice of electing eight members out of the 24 directors on a rotating annual basis.

Wrigley's 'Spearmint' Tie

Benny Strong's waxing of "Does the Spearmint Lose Its Flavor (On the Bedpost Over Night?)" on the Rainbow label has whetted the interest of Wrigley Gum in the 25-year-oldie. In a tieup with Mills Music, publishers of the number, Wrigley is sending every disk jockey a box of Spearmint.

Billy Rose and Ernest Breuer authored the words and Marty Bloom wrote the music.

Cap Times Distrib With Kenton Dates

Capitol has set up a staggered distrib arrangement for Stan Kenton's new album, "Innovations in Music," through which the four-disk set is being released in conjunction with Kenton's concert dates. Album, being marketed this week, will first be shipped to the half-dozen midwestern cities where Kenton has already played this month. Future distrib points will be spotted in Detroit, Buffalo and several Canadian cities, where Kenton's itinerary will take his crew this month.

Kenton is due in New York in April for a Carnegie Hall debut of his new 40-piece orch.

Band Review

JOE OLIVER ORCH (7)
With Carmen Velez
Eddy's, K. C.

Band originated on the Coast four or five years ago under the leadership of Dale Cross. When he died a few weeks ago, drummer Joe Oliver stepped in to take the helm and keep the outfit intact and on the job at Eddy's Baltimore Ave. eatery, where the crew has been since last December.

Oliver is holding the band pretty much to its established style—essentially sweet music with emphasis on the reeds and drums. To section of three reeds Oliver has added trumpet, string bass, piano and drums for compact instrumentation. The prettier current ballads are the basis for dance tempos, Oliver working up a fairly good balance with Dixieland, Jump, Latins and novelty numbers intermixed. Eddy's is one of the newer downtown spots, and the evening crowd there is a hep terping patronage. They're finding the Oliver rhythms suitably danceable as evidenced by the 12-week stand for the band.

In the vocal department Oliver has Carmen Velez, young singer who handles ballads in firstrate fashion and also doubles in amiable manner on m.c. work for the evening shows and band specialties. Crew adds to its versatility with generous sprinkling of vocals, calling on nearly every member for solo, trio or choral work.

Following its date at Eddy's, Oliver takes the crew into Louisiana, but will continue more or less in the midwest area. Quin.

Disk Jockey Review

RECORD ROOM
With Bob Wortendyke
2½Hrs.; Sat., 1:30 p.m.
Participating
WROW, Albany

Unadorned and unpretentious platter-patter has drawn as many as 800 letters and cards per broadcast, the only offers being theatre tickets and an album of records, for identification of two mystery tunes.

Wortendyke, who started at WTRY, introduces numbers in simple, straight-forward style. He lists names of those who have requested the transcription and "dedications." Style is friendly though not too personal. A record shop gets a moderate amount of plugging (an MGM album) is offered. Spot announcements are included.

Considering length of program, Wortendyke's voice holds up well. It's resonant, but has a throaty drag and some tonal unevenness. Jaco.

Col. Irving Fogel, president of Hollywood's Tempo Record Co. of America, sails from New York to Genoa March 21.

Songs With Largest Radio Audience

The top 30 songs of the week (more in case of ties), based on the copyrighted Audience Coverage Index Survey of Popular Music Broadcast over Radio Networks. Published by the Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John G. Peatman, Director.

Survey Week of March 3-9, 1950

A Dream Is Wish Your Heart Makes—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Big Movie Show In the Sky—*"Texas, Li'l Darlin'"	Chappell
Blossoms On the Bough	Bourne
Candy and Cake	Oxford
Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff & Rose
Cinderella Work Song—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Copper Canyon—†"Copper Canyon"	Famous
Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon
Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris
Dearie	Laurel
Echoes	Laurel
Enjoy Yourself	Morris
Happy Times—†"The Inspector General"	Harms
I Don't Know Whether To Laugh Or Cry Over You	Porgie
I Said My Pajamas	Leeds
I Wanna Go Home	Paxton
If I Knew You Were Coming	Robert
Little Gray House—*"Lost In the Stars"	Chappell
Music, Music, Music	Cromwell
My Foolish Heart—†"My Foolish Heart"	Santly-Joy
Old Master Painter	Robbins
Quicksilver	Morris
Rag Mop	Hill & Range
Sitting By the Window	Shapiro-B
Some Enchanted Evening—*"South Pacific"	Williamson
There's No Tomorrow	Paxton
With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford
You Missed the Boat	Advanced
You're Wonderful—†"Paid in Full"	Famous

The remaining 20 songs of the week (more in case of ties), based on the copyright Audience Coverage Index Survey of Popular Music Broadcast over Radio Networks. Published by the Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John G. Peatman, Director.

Bye Bye Baby—*"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"	J. J. Robbins
Charlie My Boy	Bourne
Girl That I Marry—†"Annie Get Your Gun"	Berlin
God's Country	Robbins
I Can Dream Can't I	Chappell
I Gotta Have My Baby Back	Peer
It Isn't Fair	Words-Music
It's So Nice To Have a Man Around the House	Morris
I've Got Lovely Bunch of Cocoanuts	Cornell
Johnson Rag	Miller
Leave It to Love	BMI
Let's Bake a Sunshine Cake—†"Riding High"	Burke-VH
Marta	Marks
Out Of a Clear Sky	Dreyer
Scarlet Ribbons	Mills
Sorry	Spitzer
Sure Thing—†"Riding High"	Burke-VH
Third Man Theme—†"Third Man"	Chappell
Toot Toot Tootsie Goodbye—†"Jolson Sings Again"	Feist
Wilhelmina—†"Wabash Avenue"	Feist
You Kissed Me—*"Arms and the Girl"	Chappell
Zing-A Zing-A Zing Boom	Pemora

† Filmusical. * Legit musical.

Inside Orchestras—Music

Far-reaching progress in the manufacture of high fidelity records is expected in the wake of a new record-cutting technique developed by Columbia Records' engineering department. New technique, known as the thermal engraving process, is currently being used by Columbia for its Long Playing disks.

Advance is based on the use of a heated stylus which provides a much quieter cut with reduced loss in the high frequency area. Ordinary cold styli require a compromise between high frequency loss and quietness of the recording. New cutting tool is electrically heated by means of hair-thin wires wrapped around the stylus.

The N. Y. Times ran an ad for Macy's Music Festival last week with a picture of Guy Lombardo and his name spelled out as "Umpdy-ump." It was a mistake of the department store's ad department, which forgot to fill in the right name when Lombardo was set as the festival's daily guest. Lombardo, however, got a special spread the following day with an apology from Macy's under the heading of "To the sweetest 'Guy' this side of Heaven."

Jaxson Sisters, Decca's newest trio, which recently cut "Stranger In the House," is comprised of three Negro youngsters, aged 14, 16 and 18, who were first heard on disk jockey Johnny Clark's show on WNJR, Newark. Gordon Jenkins, another Decca performer, was instrumental in getting the trio pacted by the disk company. Decca is planning a special push for the trio's first platter.

PHIL BRITO
M-G-M RECORDS
MEMORIES OF SANTA LUCIA (sung in English and Italian)
I DON'T KNOW WHETHER TO LAUGH OR CRY OVER YOU
MGM #10-649
Watch for "SQUARE DANCE KATY," a Monogram picture starring Phil Brito

On the Upbeat

New York

Pianist Dick Carey replaced Al Waslohn in the Jimmy Dorsey band, current at the Hotel Statler. . . . Bob Merrill, writer of "Candy and Cake," signed to an exclusive pact by Santly-Joy . . . J. J. Robbins & Sons issuing a new Spike Jones song folio . . . Bass singer Jimmy Riggs of the Ravens quartet slightly injured in a backstage accident at Bop City, where foursome winds up two-week stint tonight (15) . . . Burl Ives' mother in the hospital in serious condition . . . Music Research Foundation, non-profit membership corporation dedicated to the development of music as an adjunctive form of therapy in medicine and psychiatry, is starting an intensive membership drive to help raise funds to expand its work.

Gus Meyers, former musical director for the Loew-Poli circuit in New England, now batoning a small band on the S. S. LaGuardia . . . Johnny Warrington, who pens the majority of stock dance arrangements for a number of publishers, authored a series of books on "How to Play Popular Music," which Charles H. Hansen Music Co. is publishing . . . Milton Page, music editor of Ethel Smith Music, awarded a degree of Doctor of Music from Southern College of Fine Arts, Houston.

Ray Anthony's orch and Mel Torme into the Click, Philadelphia, for one week beginning March 27, with the Anthony aggregation continuing onto the Statler hotel, N. Y., April 3. . . . Mystery Quartet, vocal group, signed to a recording contract by Philadelphia's Palda Records. . . . Mindy Carson scheduled to return to the Copacabana, N. Y., June 30. . . . Ink Spots cut four sides for Decca this week.

Hollywood

Gene De Paul is at the Ready Room for four weeks . . . Billy Daniels held over at the Mocambo until March 28 . . . Ted Campbell now in his fourth year as organist at the Kopper Kart . . . Bobby True Trio returns to the Showtime Club, starting March 15 . . . Madelyn Russell and Doye O'Dell cutting four sides for Mercury.

Frank DeVol waxed three of his and Charles Bird's originals for Capitol—"Time Will Tell," "Simple As a Simon" and "About That" . . . Dick Stabile batons the square dance sequence in Paramount's "My Friend Irma Goes West" . . . Leith Stevens used a 65-piece band in two days of scoring George Pal's "Destination Moon" . . . Jan Garber orch moves from the Grove to the Trianon ballroom, Chi, April 8 . . . Jack Fina orch set for six-week stand at the Aragon, Chi, starting May 5.

Joan Brandon, currently at the Orpheum here, starts soon on a concert tour, a two-hour, one-woman show, through Nevada, New Mexico, Colorado, Pennsylvania and N. Y. . . . Hoagy Carmichael personals at the Long Beach Muni auditorium March 18 for Westside Boys Club building fund . . . Mike Gaynes looking for piano teams and singles for late evening stretch at the Dells . . . Gordon MacRae will do a one-nighter at Russ auditorium, San Diego, April 15 . . . Herschel Gilbert writing the musical score for I. G. Goldsmith's "Three Husbands," indie for UA . . . Al Brackman named general professional manager by Lou Levy for the Pickwick Music Corp.

Chicago

Music Operators of America convention last week had record company toppers flooding in. . . . King Cole Trio set for eight days at Riviera Club, St. Louis, starting April 8. . . . Leo Pieper to Music Box, Omaha, for a week, starting March 29. . . . Will Back to Trocadero, Henderson, Ky., for two weeks starting March 31, then to Music Box April 19 for week. . . . Mercury musical directors Harry Geller and Joe Carlton in to cut four sides with Dave LeWinter and eight with Eddy Howard. . . . Tommy Dorsey coming through on one-nighters first two weeks of April. . . . Bill Bishop to Peabody, Memphis, for three weeks starting March 20. . . . Wayne Gregg starts two weeks at Trocadero, Henderson, Ky., March 17. . . . Sharp label has signed organist Bob Kames, author of "You Are My Own True Love." . . . Jim Martin, Sharp prez and midwest distributor for London, off to England for 10 days of huddles with London toppers. . . . Page Cavanaugh in indefinite engagement at Fort Wayne hotel, Detroit. . . . Russ Carlyle signed with Associated Booking. . . . Jimmy McPartland, cutting several sides with Tommy Dorsey, who is doing another raft of Dixieland sessions on Victor. . . . The Horseshoe, Rock Island, Ill., is doubling seating capacity for engagement of Louis Armstrong, which starts May 18. . . . Lee Angelo to Claridge hotel, Memphis, for two weeks starting April 21. . . . Don Ragon to Play-Mor, Kansas City, April 25 for two weeks. . . . Ray Pearl to Greystone ballroom, Detroit, March 29 for a week. . . . Chris Cross divides this week by shuttling back and forth between East Market Gardens, Akron, and New Elm ballroom, Youngstown. He goes into Hotel Claridge, Memphis, for four weeks starting March 24. . . . Gary, Ind., station WWCA signed Joe Monroe, former trumpeter with Glen Gray and Jack Teagarden, for three one-hour disk jockey shows daily. . . . Davenport, Ia., station WOC held Bix Beiderbecke memorial program last week.

Mrs. Vaughn Opens Agency

Oklahoma City, March 14.

Mrs. Jimmy Vaughn, wife of orch leader Jimmy Vaughn, has opened a booking office.

Magic Music chartered to conduct a music publishing business in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value.

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 11

National Rating This wk.	National Rating Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(Davega Stores)	Chicago—(Hudson Ross)	Los Angeles—(Denel's Mus. Shop)	Boston—(Boston Music Co)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	San Francisco—(Sherman-Clay)	Philadelphia—(Wanamakers)	Indianapolis—(Pearson)	San Antonio—(Central Radio Co.)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music Co.)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary)	Seattle—(Sherman-Clay)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	TERESA BREWER (London) "Music, Music, Music"—604	1	3	4	7	3	1	3	..	..	8	1	2	77
2	3	TONY MARTIN (Victor) "There's No Tomorrow"—20-3582	8	4	1	..	..	7	1	..	..	1	..	1	54
3	7	T. MARTIN & F. WARREN (Victor) "I Said My Pajamas"—20-3616	..	..	2	2	4	9	9	..	..	5	4	..	42
4	5	RED FOLEY (Decca) "Chattanoogie Shine Boy"—46205	3	5	..	5	..	..	..	6	3	3	..	..	41
5	6	SAMMY KAYE (Victor) "It Isn't Fair"—20-3609	10	..	..	1	9	..	..	5	2	2	..	..	37
6	9	EILEEN BARTON (Mercury) "Knew You Were Coming"—5392	9	2	9	..	1	..	8	3	..	..	..	..	34
7	2	FRANKIE LAINE (Mercury) "Cry of the Wild Goose"—5363	7	..	..	6	..	2	..	..	9	6	..	3	33
8	4	AMES BROS. (Coral) "Rag Mop"—60140	6	8	..	..	..	3	4	..	..	4	..	..	30
9	8	ANTON KARAS (London) "3rd Man Theme"—536	5	1	5	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	9	29
10	8	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "Enjoy Yourself"—24825	4	..	..	..	7	4		..	10	..	8	8	25
11	..	J. STAFFORD & G. McRAE (Cap.) "Dearie"—858		..		..		..	7	..	5	..	6	5	21
12	11	B. CROSBY & ANDREWS SIS. (D.) "Quicksilver"—24827	..	..	..		..	..	..	4	8	..	2	..	19
13A	15	BILLY ECKSTINE (M-G-M) "My Foolish Heart"—10623A	..	7	..	4	10	..	10	..	..	..	..	6	18
13B	..	E. MERMAN & R. BOLGER (Decca) "Dearie"—24873	..	..	7	3	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	18
14	14	DINAH SHORE (Columbia) "So Nice to Have a Man"—38689	2	..	8	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	15
15	12	ARTHUR GODFREY (Columbia) "Candy & Cake—38721	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	14
16A	..	M. MARTIN & A. GODFREY (Col.) Go To Sleep, Go To Sleep—38744	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	11
16B	..	MERVIN SHINER (Decca) Peter Cottontail—46221	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	4	11
17A	13	JIMMY DORSEY (Columbia) "Johnson Rag"—38649	..	..	6	..	..	10	..	..	..	7	..	..	10
17B	..	RUSS MORGAN (Decca) "Sentimental Me"—24904	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	10
18A	15	VICTOR YOUNG (Decca) "La Vie En Rose"—24816	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9
18B	10	DICK TODD (Rainbow) "Daddy's Little Girl"—80088	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	9
19A	14	LIONEL HAMPTON (Decca) "Rag Mop"—24855	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8
19B	..	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "3rd Man Theme"—24839	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	8
19C		M. WHITING & WAKELY (Cap.) "Broken Merry-Go-Round"—800	..	..				..					3	..	8

FIVE TOP ALBUMS

1	2	3	4	5
SOUTH PACIFIC Broadway Cast Columbia	GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES Broadway Cast Columbia	SONGS OF BILLY ECKSTINE Billy Eckstine M-G-M	DIXIE BY DORSEY Jimmy Dorsey Columbia	TEXAS LI'L DARLIN' Broadway Cast Decca

Disk Best Sellers by Companies

(Based on Points Earned)

Label	No. of Records	Points	Label	No. of Records	Points
Decca	9	149	Coral	1	30
Victor	3	133	Capitol	2	29
London	2	106	M-G-M	1	18
Mercury	2	67	Rainbow	1	9
Columbia	4	50

THE RICH BARITONE VOICE OF HANDSOME . . .

LARRY DOUGLAS

IS WORTH THINKING ABOUT FOR 1950'S . . .

RADIO STARDOM

Critics Say Nicest Things About Him.

● ● ●

"Singing with ease with a smooth romantic blend in his bary balladeering, Larry Douglas brushes fem ears just the right way."

—BILLBOARD.

THE EVER POPULAR STANDARD

DEED I DO

LAUREL MUSIC CORP.
1619 Broadway, N. Y. 19

DECCA data

The Nation Applauds Gordon Jenkins

●

Sunday, February 25th, Gordon Jenkins presented his world-famous musical tribute to New York.

MANHATTAN TOWER

on the

ED SULLIVAN SHOW

'TOAST OF THE TOWN'

CBS-Television Network

●

In 88 weeks of consecutive TV broadcasting, Sullivan reports, he has never had a more sensational response . . . and the mail is still pouring in! Just a few days ago, Sullivan devoted his entire column to Jenkins and his wonderful composition.

●

The Great DECCA Album

MANHATTAN TOWER

by

GORDON JENKINS

Available in 2 Speeds (Long Play 33 1/3 RPM and 78 RPM)

DAU-723 Two 10-inch 78 RPM DECCALITE* Records Price $2.75

*Unbreakable Under Normal Use

DL 8011 (coupled with CALIFORNIA 12-inch Long Play Microgroove Unbreakable Record Price $4.85

DECCA RECORDS

VARIETY SONG CAVALCADE

(Musical-Historical Review: 1800-1950)

Compiled for VARIETY

By JULIUS MATTFELD

(Copyright: Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Legends and other basic background information, attendant to the compilation and presentation, appeared in the Oct. 6, 1948, issue when the Variety Song Cavalcade started publication serially. It is suggested that these installments be clipped and filed for future reference.

Attention is hereby called to the fact that this material is copyrighted and may not be reproduced either wholly or in part.

1945

Aren't You Glad You're You—(film: The Bells of St. Mary's). w., Johnny Burke. m., Jimmy Van Heusen. Burke & Van Heusen, Inc., cop. 1945.

Autumn Serenade. w., Sammy Gallop. m., Peter DeRose. Robbins Music Corp., cop. 1945.

Cruising Down the River. w., m., Eily Beadell and Nell Tollerton. Henry Spitzer Music Pub. Co., Inc., cop. 1945 by Cinephonic Music Co., Ltd.

Dig You Later—A Hubba-Hubba-Hubba (film: Doll Face). w., Harold Adamson. m., Jimmy McHugh. Robbins Music Corp., cop. 1945 by Twentieth Century Music Corp.

For Sentimental Reasons. w., Deke Watson. m., William Best. Duchess Music Corp., cop. 1945.

Give Me the Simple Life (film: Give Me the Simple Life). w., Harry Ruby. m., Rube Bloom. Triangle Music Corp., cop. 1945 by Twentieth Century Music Corp.

I Can't Begin to Tell You (film: The Dolly Sisters). w., Mack Gordon. m., James V. Monaco. Bregman, Vocco & Conn, Inc., cop. 1945 by Twentieth Century Music Corp.

I'll Be Yours—J'attendrai. English words, Anna Sosenko. French words, Louis Poterat. m., Dino Olivieri. Southern Music Pub Co., Inc., cop. 1938 by P. Leonardi, Milan; cop. 1945 by Southern Music Pub. Co.

I'll Close My Eyes. w., Buddy Kaye. m., Billy Reid. Peter Maurice Music Co., Ltd., cop. 1945 by World Wide Music Co., Ltd., London; cop. 1945 by Peter Maurice Co., Ltd.; cop. 1946 by Peter Maurice Music Co., Ltd.

If I Loved You (Carousel). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers. Williams Music Inc., cop. 1945.

It's a Grand Night for Singing (film: State Fair). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers. Williamson Music Inc., cop. 1945.

It's Been a Long, Long Time. w., Sammy Cahn. m., Jule Styne. Edwin H. Morris & Co., Inc., cop. 1945.

It Might as Well Be Spring (film: State Fair). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers. Williamson Music Inc., cop. 1945.

June is Bustin' Out All Over (Carousel). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers. Williamson Music Inc., cop. 1945.

Laura (film: Laura). w., Johnny Mercer. m., David Raksin. Robbins Music Corp., cop. 1945.

Let It Snow! Let It Snow! Let It Snow! w., Sammy Cahn. m., Jule Styne. Edwin H. Morris & Co., cop. 1945.

The More I See of You (film: Diamond Horseshoe). w., Mack Gordon. m., Harry Warren. Bregman, Vocco & Conn, Inc., cop. 1945 by Twentieth Century Music Corp.

No Can Do. w., Charlie Tobias. m., Nat Simon. Robbins Music Corp., cop. 1945.

Oh! What It Seemed to Be. w., m., Bennie Benjamin, George Weiss and Frankie Carle. Santly-Joy, Inc., cop. 1945.

On the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe (film: The Harvey Girls). w., Johnny Mercer. m., Harry Warren. Leo Feist, Inc., cop. 1945.

Rodger Young. w., m., Frank Loesser. Bob Miller Inc., cop. 1945.

Some Sunday Morning (film: San Antonio). w., Ted Koehler. m., M. K. Jerome and Ray Heindorf. Harms, Inc., cop. 1945.

Symphony, w., Jack Lawrence. m., Alstone. Chappell & Co., cop. 1945 by Editions Salabert, Paris; assigned 1945 to Chappell & Co.

That's For Me (film: State Fair). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers, Williamson Music Inc., cop. 1945.

There Must Be a Way. w., m., Sammy Gallop, David Saxon and Robert Cook. Stevens Music Corp., cop. 1945.

Till the End of Time. w., m., Buddy Kaye and Ted Mossman, based on Chopin's "Polonaise in A flat, op. 53." Santly-Joy, Inc., cop. 1945.

Waitin' For the Train to Come In. w., m., Sunny Skylar and Martin Block. Martin Block Music, cop. 1945.

You Came Along—Out of Nowhere (film: You Came Along). w., Edward Heyman. m., John W. Green. Famous Music Corp., cop. 1931; cop. 1945.

You Won't be Satisfied. w., m., Freddy James and Larry Stock. Mutual Music Society, Inc., cop. 1945.

The actual invasion of the Japanese homeland, for which the greatest fleet ever assembled in any waters was waiting, was not needed. A long and costly research project by American and British scientists to discover the secret of atomic fision had been successful. With President Truman rested the dreadful decision to use the A bomb. One was dropped on Hiroshima Aug. 6, another on Nagasaki three days later. Japan sued for peace, and her formal surrender took place on the battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay Sept. 2, 1945. In human life, World War II cost us 201,367 killed, 570,783 wounded and 56,867 missing.

Meantime, in the European Theatre (March), Patton's army reached the Rhine, and Germany's last defense line was breached. In addition, the Russian forces, advancing from the East, captured Berlin—where Hitler had already committed suicide—and Germany surrendered in May.

Aside from "Objective Burma," with Errol Flynn, there were no war films of moment during the first half of the year. Two of the best pictures to come out of the conflict—"Pride of the Marines" and "The Story of GI Joe" were released just after the surrender of Japan. Most popular non-war films of the year were "A Song to Remember," "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "The Valley of Decision" and "Wonder Man."

Favorite subject of conversation and admiration was Joe Rosenthal's "Flag Raising on Iwo Jima," the greatest war photo to come out of the Pacific.

The top U. S. singer of all time was still Bing Crosby, whose recordings had sold 75,000,000 copies in two decades. When he signed a Decca contract, to run to 1950, the following sales figures were revealed: "White Christmas," 1,700,000; "Silent Night," 1,500,000; "Don't Fence Me In," 1,250,000, and "Sunday, Monday and Always," 1,000,000.

Enemy fire killed Ernie Pyle during the battle on the island of Ie in the Pacific, and all Americans—but most especially the GI Joes in all theatres of operations—mourned the loss of the nation's most beloved war correspondent.

A B-26 bomber, piloted by a war veteran unfamiliar with the New York terrain, flew headlong into the 77th story of the Empire State Building. The tragedy killed the entire crew and more than a score of office workers, and turned the tower into a huge torch in the world's highest blaze.

In February, U. S. Marines landed on Iwo Jima. We paid heavily for this air base (in 26 days of fighting there were 20,196 casualties, of which 4,305 were killed), but the victory was invaluable.

Later that year, Okinawa, containing naval anchorages and air bases from which all sea lanes from Japanese and Chinese mainlands could be controlled, was invaded. After 82 days of bitter, bloody fighting—during which desperate Japanese resorted to suicide crashes of bombing planes which hit 250 vessels, sinking 34 of them—the enemy was defeated. Japan lost not only 109,000 men (our forces, 39,000), but her Empire.

America suffered the worst winter, weather-wise, in 50 years, with hardship aggravated by fuel and some other shortages. In April, President Franklin D. Roosevelt died. The nation remained in a state of shock for 24 hours, and no such public grief had been known since the passing of Lincoln.

Vice-President Harry S. Truman, virtually unknown to the average American citizen, took on the back-breaking task of leading the country in the worst war recorded by civilization.

General George S. Patton, who commanded the American Third Army in its smashing drive from the Normandy Beachhead into the heart of Germany, died in the military hospital in Heidelberg as result of injuries received in an auto accident.

(Continued Next Week)

Cavalcade Into Book

There have been so many inquiries about VARIETY's Musical-Historical Cavalcade being published in book form that such a volume will be brought out this fall by Prentice-Hall at $4.

It can be ordered in advance through VARIETY.

Bands at Hotel B.O.'s

Band	Hotel	Weeks Played	Covers Past Week	Total Covers On Date
Eddy Duchin*	Waldorf (400; $2)	†1	2,170	2,170
Guy Lombardo	Roosevelt (450; $1.50-$2)	24	2,250	63,925
Jimmy Dorsey	Statler (450; $1.50-$2)	5	1,390	8,140
Tony Pastor*	New Yorker (400; $1-$1.50)	†1	800	800

* New Yorker has Connie Haines; Waldorf, Dorothy Shay.
† 5 days.

Chicago

Johnny Aladdin (Swiss Chalet, Bismarck, 250; $2 min.-80c. cover). Slow with only 1,000 customers.

Dick LaSalle (Mayfair Room, Blackstone, 350; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Dunninger holding biz up nicely with 1,800 covers.

Frankie Masters (Boulevard Room, Stevens, 720; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Ice show biz up with trim 3,515 patrons.

George Olsen (Marine Room, Edgewater, 700; $1.20). New show opened Friday (10). Fair 1,800 diners.

Eddie O'Neal (Empire Room, Palmer House, 500; $2.50 min.-$1 cover). Biz took sudden drop here in Victor Borge's second week, but still okay with 3,037 tabs.

Bill Snyder (College Inn, Sherman, 500; $3.50 min.). Last few weeks of room's nitery format lifts biz to bright 2,200 customers.

Los Angeles

Jan Garber (Ambassador, 900; $1.50). With Evelyn Knight, first week, okay 2,495 covers.

Paul Neighbors (Biltmore, 900; $1.50). So-so 2,000 covers.

Phil Ohman (Beverly Hills, 300; $4 min.). Good 700 covers.

Location Jobs, Not in Hotels

(Chicago)

Cee Davidson (Chez Paree, 560; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Jimmy Durante boff 6,000 in fourth week.

Jimmy Featherstone (Trianon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Biz so-so; 5,000 dancers despite easing of cold weather.

Eddie Howard (Blackhawk, 500; $2.50 min.-80c. cover). Howard's last full week here lifts traffic to fair 1,700 diners.

Orrin Tucker (Aragon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Biz better, but still off with 6,500 terpers.

(Los Angeles)

Harry Owens-Nick Stuart (Aragon, Santa Monica). Solid 8,100 admissions.

Claude Thornhill (Palladium B., Hollywood). Second week eased to 11,990 admissions.

PETER LIND HAYES IN NEW DECCA PACT

Comedian Peter Lind Hayes has been inked by Decca to a new two-year recording pact for kiddie and pop labels. Hayes has been disking for Decca since 1946.

Hayes' initialer under the new pact will be "Darn It, Baby, That's Love," duetted with his wife, Mary Healy.

ASCAP 100%

Continued from page 45

such situations could not arise, for a publishers' classification would be determined purely by bookkeeping. Whether such a system would be as workable as it appears to be on the surface was one of the major points mulled over by the ASCAP directorate.

How such classification, as against the present setup, would affect publishers financially is a moot question. With large, long-established firms it would be unlikely that any great changes in their annual ASCAP revenue would occur, and smaller or new pubs who benefit to little or no extent from availability and seniority possibly might do better under a straight 100% performance payoff. In the case of old music firms with fair catalogs and little current activity, removal of the "security" of the combined 45% for availability and seniority might have an adverse monetary effect.

Even if the ASCAP board should vote in the near future to change the publisher classification setup, it would take at least six months to become operative, due to the big clerical job that would be necessary to assign the proper points to every song in the ASCAP file.

GOD'S COUNTRY
recorded by
VIC DAMONE ....Mercury
BILL FARRELL ....M-G-M
PHIL HARRIS..........RCA Victor
AL JOLSON ....Decca
SNOOKY LANSON ....London
RALPH SIGWALD..........Magnolia
FRANK SINATRA..........Columbia
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION

2 Great Songs!
SCARLET RIBBONS
(FOR HER HAIR)
THERE'S A LOVELY LAKE IN LOVELAND
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway, New York 19

PEGGY MARSHALL
and
THE HOLIDAYS
with
TOM ELDRIDGE

MAIN STREET RECORDS
THERE'S AN ACHE IN MY HEART
Backed by THEY'RE POSITIVELY WRONG (801)
DON'T FEEL SORRY FOR ME Backed by
THE WOMAN WHO DONE ME WRONG (802)

It's Music By
JESSE GREER
Program Today Yesterday's
KITTY FROM KANSAS CITY
(Feist)

The American Love Song
I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE, BABY
Music by . . .
JIMMY McHUGH
MILLS MUSIC

PETER COTTONTAIL
(The Rabbit of Distinction)
LIKES
JUDY
CANOVA

"MUSIC FOR DANCING"
ROY STEVENS
HIS ORCHESTRA,
HIS TRUMPET AND SONGS
10th WEEK!
FRANK DAILEY'S MEADOWBROOK
Nightly—NBC-Mutual Networks
LONDON RECORDS
Mgt.: ALLEN BEST, 149 W. 51st Street, New York

Showmanship Makes Hollywood Market Town's Favorite Nite Spot

By GEORGE PHAIR

Hollywood, March 14.

When you ask a cafe owner or a barkeep on Hollywood Boulevard how business is, he will shrug his shoulders and say: "How do I know? I ain't seen it lately." He will tell you that business has not been hanging around that vicinity since last December when Santa Claus wrapped up his prop reindeer and went into cold storage.

Six blocks south of the celebrated boulevard, on Vine street, is a spot where business goes on day and night. Outside is a sign bearing the legend: "We Never Close." It is known as the Ranch Market. Showmanship and smart merchandising keep it going at top speed, too.

It has no cocktail bar, no floor show, no streamlined hat checkers and no dance band, but the boys and gals of the film industry congregate there in the wee hours when the night clubs have turned off their charm and restaurants have turned off the gas in their kitchens and the saloons have turned off their televised wrestling jousts.

Along the Vine street front of the market is an outdoor soda fountain where the customers gather to inhale their banana splits or dunk their doughnuts while weeping on each other's shoulders and bewailing the fact that the old town ain't like it used to be, pausing now and then to stop inside and buy a carton of eggs or a can of beans for the morrow's breakfast.

The Ranch Market, which never sleeps, was once known as the Mandarin Market, which went to sleep for good during the prewar depression. The old oriental ensemble, once visible in the market's architecture, has disappeared completely since the new owners moved in. They moved adjacent bungalows to make room for parking lots, a modern necessity in any chow mart. They bought the old-fashioned restaurant next door and replaced it with an al fresco snackery where the lights gleam long after Hollywood Boulevard has folded for the night.

Along about sun-up the ranchers rumble in from San Fernando Valley with truckloads of rutabagas, cabbages, oranges, Mexican squashes and other comestibles for the neighborhood trade. All day the housewives prowl the shelves and vegetable bins and bakery counters while a loudspeaker breaks out now and then to hand the shoppers timely hints on today's bargains. They can buy anything from a watermelon to a jackknife, including imported cheese, beer on ice, slick magazines, fertilizers and the latest editions of the afternoon papers.

And when the sun sets amid the California smog, the lads and lasses who have been working, or looking for work, in the film studios, gather at the non-alcoholic bar. That is Hollywood night life in Vine street—vintage 1950.

HOTEL LANGWELL
123 West 44th Street
NEW YORK
LUXEMBERG 2-2300

3-Room Suites, Complete Kitchens, Well Furnished
Suitable 3-4 People
$150 to $225 MONTHLY

2-Room Suites, Well Furnished
Suitable 3-4 People
$90 to $100 MONTHLY

Single and Double Rooms
With and Without Baths
$3.50 to $5 DAILY
$12 to $28 WEEKLY

Full Hotel Service
In All of the Above
Suites and Rooms

COMEDY MATERIAL
For all branches of theatricals
FUN-MASTER
"The ORIGINAL Show-Biz Gag file"
● Nos. 1 thru 35 @ $1.00 ea. ●
(Order in Sequence Only)
SPECIAL: First 13 files for $10
All 35 files for $30
● 3 Bks. PARODIES, per book. $10 ●
● MINSTREL BUDGET ..... $25 ●
● HUMOR-DOR FOR EMCEES. $25 ●
● 4 BLACKOUT BKS., ea. bk. $25 ●
—or all 4 diff. Vols. for $85—
● "HOW TO MASTER THE CEREMONIES" (re-issue)
—$2.00 per copy—
NO C.O.D.'s
PAULA SMITH
200 W. 54th St. Dept. V
NEW YORK 19

JR. BYFIELD PREFERS CONTINUING IN VIDEO

Ernest Byfield, Jr., as director of television for Weiss & Geller agency, feels he prefers remaining in this field than returning to the hotel chain founded by his late father in Chicago. This includes the Sherman and Ambassadors West and East—latter with its famed Pump Room, and the Sherman famed for 40 years via its College Inn—along with other affiliated hostelries.

With Jimmy Hart elected managing director of the Chi hostelries and Frank Bering continuing as board chairman, Byfield, Jr., along with his brother Hugh, retain voting control. But the agency man, after a stint in Hollywood, thinks TV is more his metier, and is concentrating thereon.

PAR, HOLLYWOOD, TO RESUME VAUDE POLICY

Hollywood, March 14.

Stage shows resume at the downtown Paramount Thursday (16) with Marco Wolff and Fanchon Simon, operators of the house, staging them. One top name weekly, a line of girls, and fill-in acts will be used. Rube Wolff will conduct the orchestra.

Rube, Marco's brother, has been managing director of theatre since stage shows were dropped in 1941. Ross Stableton, of F&M booking office, is lining up the acts.

Republic's "Singing Guns" is film accompanying new policy.

Icer Spirals A.C. Aud Take To Near 500G

Atlantic City, March 14.

"Ice Capades," which played here for six weeks last summer, was the top single attraction at the Municipal Auditorium, paying the city $24,118.63, according to an audit of the auditorium accounts just released by the city comptroller.

Altogether the big hall was a profitable venture for the city during the nine-month period just passed. Receipts for the period were $737,727, including $100,000 deficiency appropriation from the city. Expenses were $646,480, including costs of management and staging of all attractions. Cash on hand at the end of the year was $442,876.46.

Stores and conventions paid the hall management $372,635.47. The Miss America Pageant brought in $15,677.75, while ice hockey returned $11,037.78, boxing and wrestling $4,734.70, and basketball $4,905.40.

Uncle Sam didn't do too badly. He got $72,602 in amusement taxes while the city took in $12,186 in city luxury taxes.

Al Morgan Settles With Chi Bistro for $16,800

Chicago, March 14.

Al Morgan settled his hassle with Bill Helsing, operator of Helsings nitery yesterday (13) when he agreed to pay $16,800 to pick up his six-month contract. Singer-pianist, booked in for a six-week engagement, quit after opening night, Friday, Feb. 24 and his doctor refused to let him return. Date was to have been the first of four engagements under a delayed contract commitment.

Morgan was catapulted to fame last year with his London disking of "Jealous Heart" and a six months run at Helsings. He's also on the DuMont TV web for Stromberg-Carlson, and if manufacturer doesn't pick up renewal in a month, frigidare is set to take over and move the show to New York.

Morgan paid $1,000 down and will pay the remainder out of earnings. He also signed a five-year booking pact with General Artists Corp., but retaining Frank J. Hogan as personal manager.

Under doctor's orders Morgan is prohibited from taking long bistro engagements and will limit his activities to concerts and TV with occasional excursions in one or two week nitery dates.

Vaude Revival Seen Slowing Up In Summer; Budgets Worry Agcys.

The vaude revival which started out in high gear last year is figured to slow down to pedestrian pace by summer, according to talent agency execs. In fact, percenters feel there will be less outlets for acts, lower salaries, and this consequently will affect the income of the agencies.

Situation is pointed up by the fact that the Orpheum, Los Angeles, may shutter for the summer with fall policy rather bleak. At the same time, the RKO Palace roadshows aren't going out with the frequency originally planned. Simultaneously, several houses, including the Adams, Newark, have dropped regular displays in favor of spot showings when a suitable potent attraction is available.

The major encouragement is the continuance of the Schine time, which while not as lucrative as some of the other circuits, provides a developing ground for new talent and keeps more than 50 acts employed weekly.

On a longterm basis, the percenteries are hopeful that a sufficient amount of talent is being developed via the smaller houses, and new acts may come out of the video shows.

However, the agencies feel their cooperation with smaller houses has failed to pay off, so far. The Palace, N. Y.'s small talent budget, has proven to bookers of the deluxers that many standard names can be delivered at a reasonable price. At the same time houses, such as most of those on the RKO route, which used to buy names, are now getting by with lesser salaried talent. Commissions aren't as lucrative as they used to be in vaude.

Agencies are still hopeful that the lesser houses may open up more vaude time, but it will be a matter of a few years. The major studios, by Federal order, will eventually divest their theatre holdings and thus create terrific competition. Once that starts there won't be sufficient picture product and the agencies hope for increased playing time.

N.Y. LATIN QUARTER PACTS BUDDY ROGERS

Buddy Rogers will play his first nitery date at the Latin Quarter, N. Y., April 12. The former filmster recently has been making theatre appearances, and also on video and radio. He recently appeared at the Paramount, N. Y.

Rogers will precede his LQ stand with a date at the Oriental theatre, Chicago, but after that will have to remain in New York because of his new video show, probably on ABC, next month. He now does a Monday through Friday radio show for that web.

Icers Again for N.Y. Roxy

Roxy theatre, N. Y., is slated to restore ice shows in June. Blades display will probably run until the end of the year.

Roxy plans to use this type of show for six months a year in conjunction with its regular stage show.

Waldorf Sets Damone

Vic Damone has been signed for the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, N. Y., starting June 1. Singer was originally slated to start a film for Metro on that date, but shooting has been postponed for a month.

The Guy Lombardo orch, which will be on the bill with Damone, will add several strings for this engagement.

JUDY CANOVA
COMEDIENNE

PERSONAL APPEARANCES
WM. H. KING
2025 N. Argyle Ave.
Hollywood 28, Calif.

PATRICE HELENE and JAN HOWARD
Currently
LATIN QUARTER
BOSTON

America's First Lady of Magic
The Joan Brandon Story for '49-'50

Full page in color—Life Magazine
Full page—Televiews
Feature story—Associated Press
Numerous guest appearances—Radio and TV

Own Show, Sundays—NBC-TV, New York
THEN
Club Capri—Caracas, Venezuela
Paramount Theatre—Havana, Cuba
Olympia Theatre—Miami, Florida
Fox Theatre—St. Louis, Mo.
Color Television Demonstration for Federal Communications Commission—Washington, D. C.
Concert Tour—Two-Hour, One-Woman Show

NOW
Orpheum Theatre, L. A.
NEXT
Orpheum Theatre, Oakland

on the American label
"I'VE GOT NO USE FOR THE WOMEN"

BOB MORRIS
Currently:
THE PADDOCK
ST. LOUIS
●
Management
PHIL EDWARDS
545 Fifth Avenue
MUrray Hill 7-6865
New York 17

ESCO LA RUE
★ TRIXIE booked solidly with stork for a few months
starts 5th year with ICE CAPADES, Atlantic City, July 15

Currently Being Held Over Bellevue Casino,
Montreal, till March 22

★ "Comedy corner goes to Esco La Rue whose drunk act gets him into the show in spite of gag efforts to throw him out. La Rue teams up with dancers Hibbert and Bird for some very funny acro-ballroom work."
—Max Newton, THE STANDARD.

★ ". . . when La Rue comes up out of the audience pretending he is a customer who has one too many, the result is some comedy of a very high order."
—Harold Whitehead, THE GAZETTE.

★ "Esco La Rue as a drunken customer evades the maitre d' and sparks up the dancing of Hibbert and Bird with timing and sly farce."
—Brian MacDonald, THE HERALD.

Will Need Replacement of Self for Present Routines with Hibbert and Bird by June 20

Contact ESCO LA RUE, MU 8-4558 or Miles Ingalls, Hotel Astor, New York City

'Water Follies,' Icer, Circus to Spark K.C. Centennial, Also Some Legits

Kansas City, March 14.

The Centennial Assn. is going to depend upon show business attractions during the peak of the celebration here June 3-July 4. For that purpose it has appointed a Centennial Attractions Committee headed by John Antonello, local impresario.

Antonello and his committee have set two major attractions for the celebration and are working on a third. First show is "Holiday on Ice" set for June 16-24 in the Municipal Auditorium. This marks the first time an ice show has been set for the main arena of the auditorium, and means that a 60x120 foot rink will be built there. With a seating capacity near 10,000, Antonello said the top price will be held to $2.50 to give the show as large a play as possible.

Second show is "Water Follies of 1950," also set for the Auditorium arena, to play June 26-July 8.

Third attraction is to be a circus. Plans are underway on this already, but dates and details are not complete.

These attractions will be in addition to the historical pageant which the Assn. has scheduled for Swope Park to run for the entire June 3-July 4 period, with possibly extended playing time.

Legit may also be called upon for bookings here in connection with the Centennial. Although the season usually lets down in May, Antonello said the committee may book attractions during June if there are any available. The Music Hall where these would play is air-conditioned, and has had legit attractions during the warmer months at times in the past.

The combination of the pageant, the arena attractions and legit in the Music Hall would give the city a fitting line-up of entertainment during the celebration.

Talent War Looming For Riviera, B'way Spots

The opening of the Riviera, Ft. Lee, N. J., is being eyed with greater interest this year because of a possible change in Broadway cafe-going habits. The Riviera's preem may mean a battle for headliners between Broadway spots and the Jersey nitery.

Currently the Latin Quarter is getting major Broadway trade. The Copacabana, which also gets a large sprinkling of Broadwayites, is also expected to be affected.

Bill Miller, Riviera operator, has already lined up Tony Martin for three weeks starting May 14 and Danny Thomas is set to follow. He's still dickering for a headliner on the opening show. Deal has been on for sometime for Sam Levenson, but it's still to be finalized.

'THE BODY' SUBS FOR SCHNOZ

Chicago, March 14.

Marie (The Body) McDonald subs for Jimmy Durante at the Chez Paree for two nights starting tonight (14) as comic planes to the Coast to meet picture deadline.

Tony Martin, who opens March 17, was unable to get here before that date. Rest of the show holds over.

Midwest Vaude Dates

Chicago, March 14.

Four Step Bros. have been pacted for six month stint at the Lido, Paris, starting June 1. Marcus Glaser, of the Charles Hogan office, set the deal . . . Margaret O'Brien makes her vaude debut at the Oriental theatre, March 23, followed by another MGM star, Lena Horne, April 6. Chicago theatre counters with Dean Martin & Jerry Lewis, March 31 . . . Willie Shore opens at the Bellerieve hotel, K. C., April 21 . . . Peter Zamuto, formerly of the Blue Note nitery, joins the staff of Associated Booking, replacing Bob Phillips, who left to take over the Coast operation.

Keane Sisters have been added to the Chez Paree new show, March 17 . . . Charlie Hogan off to Florida for several weeks . . . Sophie Tucker set for Lake Club, Springfield, Ill., April 6 . . . Jonnie O'Brien into Eddie's, K. C. March 31 . . . Harry Stevens opens at Helsings March 17.

Chi Cafe Assn. Making Pitch for Reduced Taxes, Hearings on Revocations

Chicago, March 14.

Chicago Cafe Owners Assn., under revitalized program which brought Paul Sander in as executive secretary, jumped membership 100% in two weeks. CCOA, which has been inactive for the past year, is going into the personal service angle rather than former basis. One of the new planks will demand court hearings on revocation of licenses, which have been taking place without hearings.

The group is also fighting the return of the refund of the 2% sales tax on nitery receipts, which was declared illegal several years ago and then ruled legal this winter by Illinois State Supreme Court. Money involved is over $300,000. Bistro ops are also cooperating with other amusement industries in asking for the revocation of the 20% cabaret tax. Among other measures that CCOA is backing are: Extension of consumer credit past 30 days, elimination of single drinks in package-stores, and self patrol of undesirable bistros.

Tom Rosenberg and Milt Raynor are retained counsel and Belle Kozak is in charge of the office.

Taubman Buys In On Penthouse, N.Y.

Paul Taubman has purchased an interest in the Penthouse, N. Y., from Phil Rosen, who has been running it solo. Purchase price wasn't disclosed.

Taubman, who has been working as an organist at the Shelton Corner, N. Y., leaves that spot Saturday (18). His spot there will be filled by guitarist Tony Colucci.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, N. Y., March 14.

Johnny Lake, radio actor-announcer, who rated tops during observation period, skedded for an operation.

Jean Perry in from Cleveland to pay a weekend visit with her husband, Arthur Perry, and at the same time celebrate their 11th wedding anniversary, a bed side blowout that packed plenty of good cheer. Among the gang attending were Ed Gaiser, Joe Fallon, Joe Bishop, Larry Garber, Jack Wasserman, Mary Lou Weaver, Jenny Foley and Nurse La Vern Hult.

Dolly (Warners) Gallagher upped for pictures twice weekly, and showing good progress.

365 patients from the Raybrook, N. Y., sanitarium and 26 from the Northwoods san here, wish to thank the Jerry Vogel Foundation for its kindness. Every patient received gifts and candy.

Dr. Grace Moyer, house medico of the Variety Clubs hospital, leaving for Honolulu, where she'll do medical and missionary work.

Write to those who are ill.

Nitery Reopenings and Yank Tourist Influx Seen Booming London Biz

British show business prospects for the next two years are exceedingly bright, according to Bernard Delfont, English producer, who flies back to London today (Wed.) after a quick trip to New York. Delfont thinks that the opening of London niteries coupled with the fact that the tourist influx next season will be the heaviest in the history of the Empire because of the British trade fair next year, will provide tremendous impetus to the entertainment industry.

Delfont says that since Jan. 1, when bottle clubs were outlawed and niteries were permitted to sell beyond midnight, cafe business has been excellent. Already 10 cafes are in operation and that number will most likely be doubled within a year. Delfont says that the Bernard Bros.' recent engagement at the Colony indicated that name acts can do well in London niteries. Delfont will attempt to get Kay Thompson, current at the Versailles, N. Y., for a London cafe date.

Delfont declared that British showbusiness is in solid shape. He says "America has the best acts, best songwriters and the best material, but Britain has the best showbusiness."

Greene with Later Agcy.

Irving Greene has joined the Ken Later Agency, N. Y. He'll work in cafe and vaude depts.

Greene previously was with the William Morris cafe dept. in New York and Chicago.

Henny Youngman opens tonight (15) at the Beachcomber, Miami Beach.

Nitery Flacks Organize, Will Ask Pacts, Wage Scale

Relations between nightclub operators and pressagents may undergo drastic revisions in the next few months. Publicists Guild, recently formed organization of flacks, is setting up an economic research committee to survey the field. It's expected that when their findings are reported, pressagents will demand contracts and minimum scale. Same is expected to apply when a performer employs a publicist.

SG meets Friday (17) at the Warwick hotel, N. Y., to elect permanent officers. Group is as yet undecided as to whether it will become a union or trade association. Sam Geison is temporary chairman, Kay Norton, veepee and treasurer, and Frances Kaye, secretary.

Darcel's Nitery Bow

Denise Darcel, French film import who appeared in Metro's "Battleground," will make her U. S. nitery debut at the Latin Quarter, Boston, March 26. She'll be followed into the spot by Ted Lewis and his revue.

Other dates are being lined up for Miss Darcel by Music Corp. of America.

Fred Harris, formerly of the dance team of Harris, Claire and Shannon, has turned agent. He joined the Abner J. Greshler agency last week.

NEW! NEW! NEW!
PIANISSIMO SINGER

CHRISTINE
GARDONI
"SINGS WITH HER HEART"
●
APPEARED SOLOIST
N. Y. PHILHARMONIC SYMPHONY
CAROUSEL—MONTREAL
ST. REGIS—TORONTO
Currently at
CORONET—QUEBEC
on a Hold Over Engagement
●
DELL-SPEAKER
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
Suite 301-3 PLaza 7-3195

LOEW'S
THE THEATRES OF THE STARS
MARCUS LOEW BOOKING AGENCY
GENERAL EXECUTIVE OFFICES
LOEW BUILDING ANNEX
160 W. 46th St., N.Y.C. • JUdson 2-2000
★
J. H. LUBIN GENERAL MANAGER
SIDNEY H. PIERMONT BOOKING MANAGER
★

Hollywood's Newest Discovery

MYRON WELTON
Young Comedian and Harmonica Virtuoso
Now starring as "Danny" in Columbia's "Military Academy" soon to be released. Also seen in "City Across the River," "Mr. Soft Touch," "The Vicious Years."
Available for Limited Personal Appearance Tour
Contact Personal Mgr.:
LOU WELTON
6141 W. Olympic Blvd., L. A. 36
WEbster 3-0269

JERRY
COOPER
Radio and Record Singing Star
HELD OVER
MOULIN ROUGE
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Entrancing Dancing of the
TALBOTS
Now at COTILLION ROOM
Pierre Hotel, New York
Management:
INTERNATIONAL THEATRICAL CORP.
1501 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y.

NOW PLAYING
WEST COAST
MAX AND HIS GANG
MAGE AND KARR
RUBY RING
JOAN BRANDON
ALL PLACED BY
KALCHEIM & SMITH
R. K. O. Bldg., New York City
JUdson 6-3345

BENNY MEROFF
With KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN
BROWN HOTEL
Louisville, Ky.
Thanks:
Chester LORCH Joe HILLER Anton SCIBILIA

YOU MUST VISIT
RAILWAY LOST PROPERTY
when in LONDON for Bargains in Furs, Fur Coats, Luggage, Travel and Sports Goods:—Call at 1 Portman Street (corner of Oxford Street), Marble Arch, London, W.1.

Feb. 23, '50
Brunn, Miami Beach Sun
"A rare quality in a beautiful and talented young girl . . . the audience simply recognized a beautifully packaged package."
LOIS LEE
Burke, Miami Herald Feb. 24, '50
"Wholesome in appearance . . . already test-proven as a Broadway musical artist, in 'High Button Shoes,' Miss Lee also gives indication she can score as well in our better boites."
Just Closed
GOLDEN SHORE CLUB, MIAMI BEACH, Florida
Representative:
GENERAL ARTISTS CORP.
Opening March 15
OLYMPIA THEATRE, Miami

Night Club Reviews

Wedgwood Room, N.Y.
(WALDORF-ASTORIA HOTEL)

Dorothy Shay, Eddy Duchin Orch, Mischa Borr Orch; $2 couvert.

The Wedgwood Room generally hits an amazing stride when it goes on the single-act standard, especially with acts that proved their value at this hospice previously. Dorothy Shay, who demonstrated that mountain music can be a magnet for the carriage trade, entertains for a solid 40-minute session. Eddy Duchin also contributes handily with literate dansapation and his full-bodied ivoryings. Together, they're a parlay that should maintain the high biz standards of this room, even in these parlous times.

Miss Shay has increased her stature with the eastside set. From her beginnings at the late Glass Hat at the Belmont Plaza hotel, she's come up considerably with her particular specialty, having picked up a great skill in the handling of her bucolic ballads. Despite her succession of the variations on the same theme, she is ingenious enough to provide sufficient variety within that framework. One number may catch the crowd's fancy because of lyrics, another for infectious rhythm, but at all times her upper-shelf delivery is an important factor. She makes for contagion throughout.

Miss Shay is capable of song exposition in other than the rural fields. She delivers a pair of sentimental numbers that also shows her ability in that department.

Duchin has been at this room several times during the past year. He's a hard working maestro either off or on the podium. Whether his major value is as a table-hopper or as music-dispenser is of little import. He's tops in both departments. Mischa Borr's relief-orch work is similarly upper crust. Jose.

Marine Room, Chi
(EDGEWATER BEACH HOTEL)

Chicago, March 10.

Amazing Mr. Ballantine, Maurice & Maryea, Dorothy Hild Dancers (11), Charles Sheldon, George Olsen Orch (13), Betty Norman; minimum, $1.20.

Quality of new Marine Room show is far above previous displays. Producer Dorothy Hild, retaining pattern of two feature acts, plus opening and closing production numbers, has come up with type of acts that fit perfectly.

Amazing Mr. Ballantine is excellent, both as magician and comedian. Routine involves tricks which don't come off when he wants them to but somehow manage to come out right when nobody is expecting. In closing trick, for example, he pulls cloth off empty flowerpot after telling audience they will see roses in pot. When no roses appear, he lifts pot off stand and roses spring out of stand. Magico employs staccato type of delivery and his self-depreciatory patter gets fine reception.

Maurice and Maryea contrib a neat act. Dance team works ballroom style, and relies mainly on series of twirls. Maurice is smooth and steady as he twirls blonde partner around, and she shows grace and equilibrium as she emerges from whirl into regular dance steps as if she were merely stepping off the curb.

Hild dancers are okay in show-opening production number of "Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy." Nifty costuming, good line work by eight girls and fine ballet by three boys add up to an exciting number.

George Olsen orch provides excellent backing for show and fills floor for dance sets. Betty Norman and trumpeter Marshall Gill handle vocal chores capably. Chan.

Fanchon & Arnold's
(NEW YORK)

Betty Reilly, Robert Clary; no minimum, no cover.

This is Betty Reilly's first attempt at playing a spot as intime as this, but there's no denying her click whether it's a 75-seater or the big Capitol theatre on Broadway. This spot certainly allows Miss Reilly to experiment with certain types of songs that she couldn't do in a big-capacity theatre or larger nitery.

The blonde "Irish senorita"—who gets that billing because of the Latin-type tunes that she features—has had to tone down her spirited rhythm numbers, or else she'd blast the customers out of the joint. But this she's done, and it gives listeners a chance to hear Miss Reilly do the softer numbers. That baby spot idea, incidentally, during which she's seated on the piano, is plenty cute and effective salesmanship.

Robert Clary, French chanter, the only other act on the bill, has a habit of over-selling, this coupled with a foghorn voice that likewise fails to click. Kahn.

Oval Room, Boston
(COPLEY PLAZA HOTEL)

Boston, March 10.

Martha Stewart & Blackburn Twins; Harry Marshard's Orch (11), Tony Peters Trio; $2 cover.

The teaming of Martha Stewart and the Blackburn Twins brings together three talented and lively youngsters in what should eventually be a neat entertaining act.

As it stands now, however, their stint lacks the solid punch necessary to capture ringsiders' attention for the 45 minutes expected in this swank room.

The youngster, plenty handsome, have sufficient talent and an enthusiastic and refreshing approach, but they need bolstering of material before hitting the money belt. Miss Stewart, a cute gal, has a pleasing but not a strong voice. Also has a neat flair for the comic to blend nicely with the lads. She vocals standards like "Soon" and "I Get a Kick Out of You" for nice results.

The Blackburns sing well and dance well, but their neatest bit is their mirror stunt, always okay for returns. In general, however, the show lacks sock save in a couple of numbers like "Baby, It's Cold Outside" and "Sister Kate." Marshard's band backs them nicely, with Tony Peters' Trio filling the lulls competently. Biz was only so-so. Elie.

Kitty Davis', Miami

Miami Beach, March 12.

Red Buttons with Alan Walker, Jackie Bright, Kenny Davis, The Arnauds (2), Johnny Silvers Orch; no minimum, or cover.

There's a well-knit show on tap currently, with Red Buttons, headliner, hitting solidly via fresh comedy ideas.

The cleancut youngster has an intelligently written line of chatter and gags, anent his trip here, his knowledge of the town, and the school-days autograph book bit for nostalgia that pays off. His sock routine on New York's east side types is another topper, and the sketch of the not so punch drunk young ex-pug, with Alan Walker, is is a show stopper bit. Comes back for the Yiddish radio commercial "Joe and Paul" for additional plaudits.

The Arnauds are terp familiars here; they work smoothly and with charm to score handily with their waltzes, faster tempos and latin-airs, to highlight their easy lifts. Kenny Davis contribs his usual routine of pops to nifty reception.

Jackie Bright's giveaway idea in auctioneering is smoothly handled. He gets the ringsiders up for the hat bit, the stripping-down-to-waist idea with the males, all to continuous howls. Act is neat asset to warm up an audience, and at the same time satisfy them. Lary.

Latin Quarter, N. Y.
(FOLLOWUP)

Will Mahoney, back on Broadway after a 15 year absence, hasn't lost the knack of being a show-stopper before American audiences. In the intervening time, he nearly became a permanent resident of Australia where he found national favor by doing periodic appearances on the Tivoli circuit and had a permanent income as operator of the Cremorne theatre, Brisbane. He sold the theatre some time ago to revisit Broadway, and according to reaction at the Latin Quarter, he made a wise move.

Mahoney's hard clogs, prattfalls and tapping atop a xylophone are still sock items. His comedy terps stopped the show cold at session caught. It's virtually the same routine that he did before his departure in 1934, and it's still boffola in the U. S. At Sunday's (12) preview, Mahoney attempted a longer session of gab which apparently wasn't in keeping with his socko terps, but at the second show of that evening when all the extraneous matter was cut out, his skill with the Broadway trade made itself evident.

The surrounding show holds up extremely well, with Landre and Verna getting salvos with top ballroomology; Ben Yost's Vikings hitting good hands with their harmonics, Ernestine Mercer making a good mark in the production numbers and Sherrier getting by with his comedy shuffles. Linda Lombard and the Spanish ballet line do well in their departments. Jose.

Cotillion Room, N. Y.
(HOTEL PIERRE)

Jimmy Carroll, The Talbots (2), Stanley Melba (10) and Ralph Lane (5) orchestras; $3 minimum.

This is a sprightly show for the class Cotillion. Jimmy Carroll gives out with song in the lighter manner, and the dancing Talbots are likewise in the popular idiom.

Personable terpers, Byron and Margaret Ann Talbot, with several film stints in their background, were off form at the premiere, notably the attractive femme. Burden seemed to be extraordinarily on Byron Talbot as the anchor man of the team. Their cavalcade of dance styles, from the turn of the century, is appropriately attuned to the mid-century mark, reprising the bunny hug, maxixe, turkey trot, Charleston, black bottom, etc.

Carroll is a robust, uninhibited chirper who works in a bouncing manner whether with straight pops, musicomedy or Irish excerpts. He brings to the room a mild rep via RCA Victor records, radio and niteries like the Versailles and Wedgwood Room. He's professional all the way and audience response is commensurate.

Per usual Stanley Melba, who is the ambidextrous chef d'orchestre and also entertainment director of the Hotel Pierre, emcees and purveys the key dansapation, alternating with the equally fetching Ralph Lane ensemble. Biz good. Abel.

Terrace Room, N. Y.
(HOTEL NEW YORKER)

Connie Haines, Tony Pastor Orch (14), with Adele Castle, Buddy James; $1-$2 cover.

Current show here is the slimmest in content and entertainment value since this room abandoned its ice-show policy some months ago. Bill consists of a single act, Connie Haines, with the Tony Pastor band supplying only the regulation dance sets and backing for the former Tommy Dorsey and Harry James vocalist.

Miss Haines is a cute, personable chirper who knows how to sell a lyric with maximum effect, particularly in the rhythm department, but the job of carrying a show by herself is more than she can handle. She possibly might get away with it in small, intimate clubs, but as the sole attraction in a spot of the Terrace Room's proportions she needs the help of supporting acts.

Singer's arrangements are also very much in need of help. For the most part they are straight, one-chorus affairs that fail to showcase properly Miss Haines' considerable vocal capabilities. And the thinking behind linking such diversified items as a ballad, "So This Is Love," with "Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo" in medley form is somewhat peculiar.

Pastor orch distinctly short-changes the customers by doing nothing for the floorshow but back up Miss Haines and add a bit of ensemble chanting to her "Sugar Coated Lies." Considering Pastor's comedy and rhythm singing and his band's predilection for novelty tunes, it's especially strange that the crew isn't allowed an opening number or two before running Miss Haines on. As it is, she starts and ends the show, period.

For the dance sets the band does its usual capable job, with a nice balance maintained between ballads and jump stuff and an occasional rhumba thrown in for the addicts who find it impossible to last through a whole evening without the Latin touch. Pastor's gravel-voiced vocals spice up the rhythm arrangements, and Adele Castle and Buddy James are adequate in the boy-and-girl lyric roles.

Cocoanut Grove, L.A.
(HOTEL AMBASSADOR)

Los Angeles, March 8.

Evelyn Knight, Jan Garber Orch (15); $1.50 minimum.

Evelyn Knight and Jan Garber's orch took over at the Cocoanut Grove last Tuesday (7) and delivered as satisfactory a show as this spot has offered in some time. The Knight gal clicks strongly with group of five tunes and is brought back for three more. Garber, making his first appearance in the Grove since 1934, received royal welcome from the packed house.

Teeing off her routine with "There's Gonna Be a Great Day," the bell-clear voiced Decca disk star really hit her stride with "My Fickle Eye" and "A Woman Likes to Be Told." Displaying poise and natural showmanship, she impresses with her apparently effortless style of delivery. Walt.

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 15

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show whether full or split week

Letter in parentheses indicates circuit (FM Fanchon Marco; (I) Independent; (L) Loew; (M) Moss; (P) Paramount; (R) RKO; (S) Stoll; (W) Warner; (WR) Walter Reade

NEW YORK CITY
Capitol (L) 15
Art Mooney
Harvey Stone
Eileen Wilson
Fontaines
Music Hall (I) 16
Earl William
Roy Raymond
Adriana & Charly
T & F Vallett
Lucienne & Ashour
Myrna Galle
Alpheus Koon
Rockettes
Corps de Ballet
Sym Orc
Palace (R) 16
Gus Van
Winton & Diane
Tu-Tones
Ross Wyse, Jr, & Peggy Womack
Brick Bros & Gloria
Clem Bellings Co
2 to fill
Paramount (P) 15
King Cole 3
Larry Storch
Johnny Coy
Ray McKinley Orc
Roxy (I) 17
China Doll Rev
Ming & Ling
Lee Mortimer's China Dolls
Long Tack Sam
Toy & Wing
Kanazwana 3
Florence Ahn
Strand (W) 17
3 Winter Sis
Geo Andre Martin
Tito Guizar
Roger Ray
Geo Shearing 5
BALTIMORE
State (I) 16-18
Telaks
Blossom Sis
Dick Carlson
Vernons
19-22
Jimmy Jimae Co
Gene Jimae
Jimmy Husson
R & M Norman
BUFFALO
Buffalo (P) 17-19
Jack Carson
Janis Paige
Robert Alda
Tommy Wells
Honey Bros
Arden & Hartman
CAMDEN
Towers (I) 16-18
Lockwells
Lee Bartell
S & S Arthur
Steve Evans
Barkleys
CHICAGO
Chicago (P) 17
Ink Spots
Dean Murphy
Lina Romay
Martin Bros
Oriental (I) 17
Sugar "Chile" Robinson
Richard Hayes
Saul Grauman Co
Elsa & Waldo
4 Continentals
Carl Sands Orc
DAYTON
Keith's (R) 16
Roulettes
D & D Workman
Virginia Lee
Thank-A-Drink Hoffman
Rex Weber
M & M Viera & Monkeys

Alan Carney
Salici Puppets
ERIE
Warner (W) 20-22
Jack Carson Rev
Janis Paige
Robert Alda
Tommy Wells
3 Honey Bros
Arden & Hartman
HARTFORD
State (I) 18-19
3 Suns
Charlie Ventura O
Paul Winchell
Lipham 3
LOS ANGELES
Orpheum (I) 17
Novellos
Mort Herold
Burns Birds
Knight & Day
B "Pat" Moreno
Rochelle & Beebe
West & Lorenzo
Cycleonians
Rene Williams Orc
MIAMI
Olympia (P) 15
Lary & Lynn
Norman Brown
Lois Lee
Basil Rathbone
Sammy Walsh
MINNEAPOLIS
Radio City (P) 17
Horace Heidt Rev
PHILADELPHIA
Carman (I) 15
Johnny Mack Co
Hank Seiman
Nancy Walker
Mario & Francisco
POUGHKEEPSIE
Bardavon (P) 16-17
Robinson & Martin
Henny Nadell
Wilbur Hale & Rene
Yvonne Moray
Vic & Adio
ROCKFORD
Palace (I) 17-19
Talley & Dexter
Wilkie & Dare
2 Harmoniclefs
Barr & Estes
1 to fill
ST LOUIS
Fox (FM) 18
Vic Damone
Frank Marlowe
Rowena Rollins
Kemmys
3 Rhuthmettes
Victoria Tp
Archer & Gile
Del Stanton
ST PETERSBURG
La Plaza (P) 19 Only
Johnny Long Orc
Pat Rooney Sr
SAN FRANCISCO
Golden Gate (R) 15
Dick Contino Show
SPRINGFIELD
Court Sq (I) 16-19
Marie-Louise & Charles
Unger Twins
Billy Bishop
Florida 3
Billy Gilbert
Bobby Whaling & Yvette
WASHINGTON
Capitol (L) 16
Blair & Dean
De Witt & Allison
Dave Barry
Jaywalkers
Howard (I) 17
Dizzy Gilespie Orc
Will Maston 3
Amos Milburn Bd
Congaroos

BRITAIN

BLACKPOOL
Winter Gardens (I) 13
Lee Lawrence
Boris
Jackie Co
Clifford Henry
Zio 3
3 Aberdonians
Reino Co
Bolton & Gardner
BOSCOMBE
Hippodrome (I) 13
Cyril Dowler
Richard Bell
Rhoda
Cox Twins
Noble & Denester
Whitehead & Blades
New Look Girls
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome (M) 13
Arthur Lucan
Kitty McShane
Willer Neal
LeRoys
Flannigan Bd
Keith & Cortez
Dancing Coleens
S & R Maxwell
BRISTOL
Empire (I) 13
Phil Strickland
Joanne Gaye
Johnnie Laycock
3 Lamarres
Noel Talbot
Jackie Crosby
Gordon Jones
10 Adoreables
Fred Renwick
Matt Lamar
Vee Suzette
CHISWICK
Empire (S) 13
Frankie Howerd
Clive Richardson
Donald B Stuart
Jose Moreno Co
3 Robertis
Jackley & Jee
Mills & Belita
Sandow Sis
EDINBURGH
Empire (M) 13
Piddingtons
MacDonald & Graham
Radio Revellers
Albert Whelan
Falcons
Semprini
Morecambe & Wise
Jon Pertwee
FINSBURY PARK
Empire (M) 13
Leo Fuld
Suma Lamonte
Al Burnett
Eva & Lillian Arthur Worsley
George Meaton
Tovarich Tp
GLASGOW
Empire (M) 13

Cheerful Charlie Chester
Ken Morris
Fred Ferrari
Arthur Hayes
Edwina Carol
Len Marten
Grip 4
Mariotti & Wenman
5 Brahms
Gene Anderson
Harry Richards
12 Tiller Girls
GRIMSBY
Palace (I) 13
S & M Harrison
Andre Twins & Sandra
Bob Grey
Freddie Mirfield Co
Skating Colorados
Susan Pet
HACKNEY
Empire (S) 13
Edmundo Ros Bd
Peter Sellers
North & Stoyle
Dorothy Gray Co
Denvers
Veronica Martell
LEEDS
Empire (M) 13
Jean Sablon
2 Valettos
Jimmy Wheeler
Frances Duncan
Sheridan Boys
Terry Hall
Dom Saunders
Alan Clive
LINCOLN
Royal (I) 13
Monty Marks
Francis Whitmar
3 Loonies
Paul Sheridan
Louise Lorraine
Spangled Beauties
George Alex
Terry's Juveniles
LONDON
Casino (I) 18
Vic Oliver
Les Compagnons
Sylvie St Clair
Clark Bros
Walton & O'Rourke
Lela Moore
Kermond Bros
Les Curibas
Dynamite Jefferson
Fortunia
MANCHESTER
Hippodrome (S) 13
Vera Lynn
Cairoli Bros
Arnaut Bros
Sirdani
Maurice & May
3 Astaires
Revel & Fields
NORWICH
Hippodrome (I) 13
Ray Ellington 4
Bartlett & Massey
Les Raynor & Betty

Douglas Francis
Harry Korris
Sheridan & Bee
Eddy Bayes
NOTTINGHAM
Empire (M) 13
Derek Roy
Nina Rialtor
Charles Cole
7 Volitants
Spike Milligan
Rona Ricardo Co
PORTSMOUTH
Royal (M) 13
Harry Lester Co
Regon & Royal
B & M Konyot
3 Astons
Prince Wales (M) 13
Jimmy Edwards
Joy Nichols
Dick Bentley
Wallas Eaton
SCUNTHORPE
Savoy (I) 13
Rhodes & Lane
Dorothi Neal
Paul Newington
Avril & Grant
Tommy Dee

Bon Soir Mesdames
SHEPHERDS BUSH
Empire (S) 13
Frank Randle
Hal Swain
Swing Sis
Rita Shearer
Jon Boden
Mandalay Singers
Kay Sothern
Gus Aubrey
Hal Mack
Dancing Demons
A J Powell
Stan Stafford
Jimmy Clitheroe
A Wazzan Tp
YORK
Empire (I) 13
Denny Dennis
Frazer Haze 4
M & J Mangean
Chas Hague
Les Brunos
Sasha Hannel Co
Moreton & Plant
Hal Blue
Hal Yass
Clownettes

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Birdland
B Darnell
Les Young Orc
Miles Davis Orc
Blue Angel
Garland Wilson
Stuart Ross
Eadie & Rack
Mickey Deams
Imogene Coca
H Chittison 3
Portia Nelson
Bop City
Doc Sausage Orc
Ravens
Amos Milburn
Cafe Society
Mervyn Nelson
Thelma Carpenter
Cliff Jackson
Copacabana
Ted Lewis
Geraldine DuBois
Reed Sis
Meribeth Old
Gordon Gaines
Patricia Adair
Toni Carroll
M Durso Orc
Alvares Orc
Diamond Horseshoe
Walter Dare Wahl
Gloria Leroy
W. C. Handy
Billy Banks
Noble Sissle Orc
Chic Morrison Orc
Rigoletto Bros
Jack Spoons
Frank Evans
Tommy King
Harry Meehan
Billy Banks
Harry Armstrong
El Chico
Rosita Rios
Los Gitanos
Pilarin Tavira
Sarita Herrera
D'Alonso Orc
Havana-Madrid
Castila Twins
Gayner & Ross
Eulalia Del Pino
Fausto Orc
Pupi Campo Orc
Hotel Ambassador
Jules Lande Orc
Hotel Biltmore
Harold Nagel Orc
Hotel Edison
Henry Jerome Orc
Hotel New Yorker
Tony Pastor Orc
Connie Haines
Adele Castle
Peter Kent Orc
Hotel Pierre
Jimmy Carroll
Talbots
Stanley Melba Orc
Ralph Lane Orc
Ralph Teferteller
Hotel Plaza
Lisa Kirk
Nancy Donovan
Eric Victor
Bob Grant Orc
Mark Monte Orc
Payson Re Orc
Nicolas Matthey
Hotel Roosevelt
Guy Lombardo
Hotel St. Moritz
Roberta Welch
Leo Pleskow
Erwin Kent
Ramoni Orc
Hotel St Regis
Julie Wilson
Laszlo & Pepito
Milt Shaw Orc
Hotel Shelbourne
Monica Boyar

Phil Leeds
Eddy Manson
Marjorie Welles
Paul Villard
Cy Coleman
Hotel Statler
Jimmy Dorsey Orc
Hotel Taft
Johnny Thompson
Lopez Orc
Hotel Warwick
J Thompson Orc
Airline Trio
Latin Quarter
Will Mahoney
Vikings
Linda Lombard
Francis & Grey
Ernestine Mercer
Landre & Verna
Art Waner Orc
Le Coq Rouge
Oscar Calvet Orc
Jack Towne Orc
Leon & Eddie's
Eddie Davis
Rosette Shaw
Bella Smaro
Frank Stevens
Macombo
Baer & Rosenbloom
Roy Sedley
Boylan & King
Gordon Andrews
Monte Carlo
Dick Gaspare Orc
La Playa 6
No 1 Fifth Ave
Walling & McHugh
Downey & Fonville
Hazel Webster
Old Knick
Billy Bryant
Paul Killiam
Janie Stevens
Frank Wayne
Charlotte Ray
Bob Gallagher
Al Cooper Orc
Old Roumanian
Sadie Banks
Jackie Phillips
Irving Grossman
Diana Goldberg
Susan Brooks
Joe LaPorte Orc
D'Aquila Orc
Park Ave
Robert Clary
Four Tones
Beverly Dennis
Benny Payne
Penthouse
John Conte
Herb Schutz
Ruban Bleu
Kirkwood & Goodman
Larry Blake
Estelle Loring
3 Riffs
Ronnie Graham
Julius Monk
Norman Paris 3
Versailles
Kay Thompson
Lee Scott
Buzz Miller
George Martin
Emile Petti Orc
Panchito Orc
Village Barn
Homer & Jethro
Fletcher 3
David Blight
Bobby Myers
Village Vanguard
Weavers
Clarence Williams
Waldorf-Astoria
Dorothy Shay
Eddy Duchin Orc
Mischa Borr Orc

CHICAGO

Blackhawk
Jack Tygett
Janet Campbell
Deon Sherman
Joyce Harley
Jean Stanley
Sammy Shore
Sherman Hayes Orc
Blackstone Hotel
Dunninger
Dick La Salle Orc
Chez Paree
Tony Martin
Joey Bishop
Szyonis (2)
All Wallis
Adorables (12)
Cee Davidson Orc
Helsings
Al Morgan
Margo Good
Don Bradfield
Billy Chandler Orc
Hotel Bismarck
Noble & King
Joe Isbell
Johnny Alladin Orc
H Edgewater Beach
Mr Ballantine
Charles Sheldon
Betty Norman
D Hild Dcrs (11)
George Olsen Orc
Hotel Stevens
Joan Hyldoft
Arnold Shoda
Morgan 3

Douglas Duffy
Harper Flaherty
Bob Fitzgerald
Skating Blvdears
Jack Raffloer
Buddy Rust
Jerry Mapes
Frank Masters Orc
Palmer House
Victor Borge
Gracie Barrie
A & B Lund
M Abbott Dcrs
Eddie O'Neil Orc
Sherman Hotel
"College Inn Story"
Phyllis Gehrig
Don Weismuller
Christine Nelson
Carmen Albino
Norman Fields
Frank Wagner
Ward Garner
Kenneth Remo
Eileen Green
Cliff Norton
Carolyn Gilbert
Les Weinrott
Vera Gahan
Bill Snyder Orc
Vine Gardens
Adeline Neice
Lew Saxon
Adams Bros
Mel Cole Orc
Pancho Orc

Capitol, N. Y.

Art Mooney Orch (17) with Johnny Martin, Jimmy Grosso, Harvey Stone, Eileen Wilson, Fontaines (3); "Black Hand" (M-G), reviewed in VARIETY Jan. 25, '50.

There are too many familiar items on the Cap bill to provide any major excitement. Harvey Stone and the Art Mooney band have lost a good deal of novelty in the past few years despite the infusion of new material by both. Thus the focal points of this layout present a known entertainment picture devoid of surprises.

Although Mooney merely suggests his hit disk of a couple of years ago, "Four Leaf Clover," at the closing of the show, the numbers with banjo kerplunks and chimes suggest a familiar treatment, and one that lost its freshness with a pair of recordings. Mooney, though, still puts out a congenial show. The stage is well-dressed with an instrumentation of five reeds, seven brass and four rhythms, and the maestro backs his musical presentation with some good corn items. The spirit of "Canadian Capers," in which all parties concerned seems to have fun because of the smart and deliberate razzmatazz of the '20s, isn't as evident or as well produced in the other numbers.

The band entertainers include Johnny Martin, in a single of "Wild Goose;" his bary fits the temper of this particular piece. Jimmy Grosso gets a strong palm with his vocal impressions of various singers. Although the vocal fidelity isn't up to par, he indicates some good showmanly values.

Stone, as always, comes in with new material and delivers his GI routine as an encore after he's set himself. His opening stuff isn't up to his par, but his Army reminiscences still rate prolonged applause.

Openers are the Fontaines, a two-man-and-girl acro-terp turn, who show up handily despite the space limitations of this platform. Their lifts and hand-to-handing are excellently conceived and executed.

Eileen Wilson is listed under New Acts. Jose.

Palomar, Seattle

Seattle, March 9.

Jack Wolcott, Dale Hall, Michael Foster, Berk & Hallow, Billy Eckstine, Ray Watkins House Orch (8); "Mrs. Mike" (UA).

Billy Eckstine tops current bill in fine fashion, putting over his slick vocalizing for boff returns, ably supported by Michael Foster, a comer, and Dale Hall in some neat terping.

Jack Wolcott opens with a zany bit of drumming, using a chair, the stage, and goes out into the audience clicking his sticks without losing a beat. Miss Hall, on second, has an unusual turn and s[illegible] over a Mexican fantasy num[illegible] and an Indian dance for nice returns.

Foster, elongated comic, who doubles as emcee, now in his third week at the Palomar, does a fine job with a radio quiz sketch for solid applause.

Berk and Hallow click with their precision taps and acro routines.

Eckstine projects his vocalizing in top fashion, opening with "Yours Is My Heart Alone" and getting solid returns with "Bewildered," "Body and Soul" and "Caravan." He does as well in a change of pace with "You're Driving Me Crazy" and ties things up with "Sitting By the Window" for bow-off with the packed house clamoring for more. Reed.

Casino, Toronto

Toronto, March 10.

Ella Fitzgerald, Larry Foster, David Powell, Coco, Steve & Eddy, Jimmy Cameron, Marion Lynn, Charles Gregory Girls (18), Archie Stone House Orch; "Without Honor" (UA).

Ella Fitzgerald is packing them in for the biggest audience response in many weeks. Working with a background trio of piano, bass and drums, Miss Fitzgerald gives her usual standout performance that had the customers pounding their palms. The affable singer, whose evident enjoyment in her work is communicated with enthusiasm to her listeners, was also generous in her request numbers. Her songs include "How High the Moon," "Can't Give You Anything But Love," "You Turned the Tables" and "Basin Street Blues." Then they begged for "Tisket a Tasket," with the singer throwing in "Mule Train" in baby voice to stop the show.

In a fast-paced 70 mins. all acts on the bill score solidly, with the work of the Gregory line a standout this week, enhanced by nifty costuming and sets for the two production numbers. They open with a colorful number, with girls in scarlet and silver gowns and elbow-length black gloves; and Marion Lynn on for a specialty shawl dance. Coco, Steve and Eddy score with comedy acrobatics and difficult head and shoulder stands, spaced by knockabout antics. Their effortless teeterboard comedy catches get terrific response. Larry Foster also gets over with double-switch impressions of filmsters introducing current popular singers, then sandwiching in impreshes of Jimmie Stewart, Humphrey Bogart, Peter Lorre, et al, requesting numbers from Vaughn Monroe, Perry Como, Tony Martin and Frankie Laine, for a smash finish.

David Powell, with a blend of ballet-taps and use of drumsticks on golden chair and floor, also clicks. Strombolite full-stage production number of line girls for a voodoo routine in a jungle setting provides a sock finale. McStay.

Fox, St. Louis

St. Louis, March 11.

Vaughn Monroe, Vic Damone, Frank Marlowe, The Kemmys (2), 3 Rythmettes, Rowena Collins, Frank Panus Orch; "Singing Guns" (Rep).

It was a photo finish between Vaughn Monroe, making a p.a. with his first starring picture, "Singing Guns," and Vic Damone with the audience that turned out in such numbers for the teeoff that it constituted the biggest opening house since vaude was revived. Both warblers scored terrif and even though they went far beyond the usual repertory the ducat holders demanded more.

At the conclusion of the pix that also copped a hand, Monroe opens the stage show with a vocal of "Ballerina" and then with the Moon Maids, four gals, warbles "There, I Said It Again," and then with Moon Men "Ghost Riders in the Sky" and soloing on "Bamboo" and "Some Day."

It was in the final slot that Damone grabbed his share of audience appreciation with "What Is This Thing Called Love?," "Little Girl," "This Shouldn't Happen Again," "You're Marvelous," "Begin the Beguine" and "Return to Sorrento," the latter in Italian.

The balance of the layout is above the average in entertainment value, with Frank Marlowe, arriving just five minutes before curtain time, due to a delayed plane journey, m.c.'ing and doing some swell ad libbing in addition to his regular routine. His prattfalls, tumbling into the aisle from the stage, chasing an audience stooge out of the house and a one-man baseball skit score heavily.

The Kemmys, an agile gal, and an equally clever male sock over one of the slickest roughhouse comedy acro stints presented in this house.

Three Rythmettes, eye-filling and well stocked gals, have a clever dancing routine on miniature stairs in addition to individual and collective tap dancing, and are well rewarded by the palmpounders. Rowena Rollins, a tall blonde looker, also cops a terrif hand for her burlesk of a housewife preparing a stewed chicken in wine and getting on a swell bender while so doing. She also wins hefty hand for her impersonation of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

There was so much talent that the management dispensed with Joe Schirmer, the talented banjoist with the band, for this session. Frank Panus' orch backs show neatly. Sahu.

Olympia, Miami

Miami, March 11.

Herb Shriner, Lina Romay, DeVal, Merle & Lee, Frank Paris, Asia Boys, Les Rhode House Orch; "Sands of Iwo Jima" (Rep).

Herb Shriner's humor in the Will Rogers tradition and Lina Romay's zingy Latinairs standard pops add up for sock fare on current layout here.

The dry humor in the Hoosier vein as purveyed by Shriner makes for solid laughs all the way. Miss Romay's hip-swinging and songs also hit for sock effect.

Asia Boys (recently at Copa City for a long run) repeat former click here. Their balancing and acroantics atop table win hefty applause. Puppet work blends well in the lineup via Frank Paris's slick manipulation of dolls, including Carmen Miranda, ballroom team, skeleton and Sonjo Henie for solid returns.

Satirical dances of DeVal, Merle and Lee garner plenty laughs and mitts. Les Rhode house orch are okay on the backgrounding. Lary.

Strand, N. Y.

Tito Guizar, George Shearing Quintet, Roger Ray, George Andre Martin, Three Winter Sisters, Dave Schooler Orch; "Perfect Strangers" (WB), reviewed in VARIETY, March 1, '50.

Current layout at the Strand has solid entertainment values, but it's not the type of bill to have much impact at the b.o. Most unusual facet of the bill is the headlining of the George Shearing Quintet, an esoteric musicrew which has stirred up some excitement in the jazz niteries but has limited appeal in large houses.

Tito Guizar tees off tepidly with a brace of south-of-the-border tunes rendered in Spanish and English. He builds into a strong finish, however, with a colorful vocal of "El Rancho Grande," which arouses the customers into giving out with cowboy yells. It's a standard tune with which he's become associated. Guizar also does a cute boogie-woogie item for an overall crowd-pleasing turn.

The Shearing quintet is one of the best rhythm combos in the business but it's slightly lost in this spot. This music is designed for the cognescenti and, in any case, needs a more intimate setting. Shearing, in his introes of each number, impresses as an ingratiating personality with a stock of clever lines.

Three supporting acts neatly round out the bill. In the opener, Three Winter Sisters flash a snappy brand of tumbling, balancing and somersaults. Gals drive hard throughout with some standout leaps to earn strong mitting.

George Andre Martin's clever mimicking of hoofing styles with his fingers is still an unusually effective bit. On a miniature stage, with the spots directed on his hands, Martin creates a remarkable illusion of full human beings going through various dancing routines, from the tango to the kazatska.

Roger Ray dishes up the show's comedy segment in a well-varied and casually-executed turn. Opening as a straight instrumental act, Ray rolls out his vibraharp, then does some for some gagged-up musical commentaries and horseplay with the background orch. Ray closes with a firstrate acro-hoofing routine with zany twists that get plenty of laughs.

Dave Schooler, batoning the house orch, does a nice job. Herm.

Orpheum, L. A.

Hollywood, March 8.

The Dick Contino Show with Dick Contino, Pat Therault, Jerry Rathous, 3 Ladd Sisters, Johnny Mungall, Glen Pigott, Johnny Tulucci, Nadine Jensen; "Spring In Park Lane" (EL).

Orpheum is headlining the Dick Contino Show this week, featuring Contino and seven supporting acts. Unit, first to be booked into this theatre since it opened up for vaude, is comprised of acts which competed in the Philip Morris amateur hour contest radio show. Layout lacks punch and professional poise registering as a better than average amateur program only. A few of the acts show promise that should be fulfilled with further trouping.

Contino handles his accordion expertly for the strongest applause of the day, but he runs through 10 tunes during the course of the 66-minute program. Though his technique is top-notch, none but the accordion aspirant can weather close to 25 minutes of the squeeze box soloing. Glen Pigot steps out of the orchestra for a single solo number and should be allowed another as he shows top talent on the 88 and brings in strong response from payees. Pigot ran through "Louisiana."

Pat Therault hits solidly with his three banjo numbers, the top number being his opener, "Chinatown." Therault unfortunately follows last week's headliner, Eddie Peabody. The difference in showmanship is all too obvious. Jerry Rathous displays versatility through his beating of the vibes, pounding of the drums and jangling on the piano. Rathous puts his drumsticks to use on anything in sight, pounding away on the boards, chairs and piano, and makes it sound good.

Johnny Tulucci gets sock response with his imitations of musical instruments, using naught but his vocal chords. His imitation of a slide trombone is especially true. Tulucci, in an imitation of vocalists, runs through a Frankie Laine number. He catches Laine's mannerisms perfectly but gets none of the voice quality or inflection. Johnny Mungall gives with a few Irish tunes in tenor tone for strong applause. Mungall, however, appears strained and lacks smoothness in presentation. His strongest is "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

The Three Ladd Sisters sing and dance, both in amateurish style. They do well enough in vocal efforts and tap routines show adequate rehearsal, but inadequate originality and styling. Nadine Jensen also displays versatility by vocalizing, playing piano and trumpet. Her best turn was shown when seated at the piano. Vocal efforts are by no means inspiring and trumpeting sounds as though much more practice is in order.

Unit is backed by a six-man unit; three-rhythm, a clarinet, a trombone and trumpet. Group manages well enough though backstopping behind Contino's emcee chore is overdone and confusing. Free.

Palace, N. Y.

Cathalos Trio, Dietrich & Diane, Ford & Harris, Jan Rubini with Terry Walker, George Conley, David Street & Mary Beth Hughes, Helene & Howard, Roland Marcelli & Janice; "Mr. Lucky" (RKO).

Standard eight-act bill has its good moments, also its bad. There's hardly any indication of a heavy nut for this one.

Opening are the balancing Cathalos Trio, two guys and a girl, who go through the standard stunts with balls, hoops and ladders. They're effective.

Dietrich & Diane fail to hold the pace with their luminiscent puppetry, the male-woman manipulators working against a darkened stage. They fail to give enough of an illusion of the puppets' acting.

Ford and Harris, male colored comedy-hoofers, are stage wa[illegible] as the fat boy sings, gags and hoofs while the lean lad hoofs and heckles.

Jan Rubini, back in America after several years in Australia and South Africa, is still giving out with the old violin schmaltz, and effective with it, too. With Terry Walker, who comes out later, he indulges in some poor-taste talk and sour gags.

George Conley, using the material all the comics love, gets laughs despite standard material. He's a likeable youngster who is even more effective here than he was recently at the nearby, plushier Roxy.

David Street and wife, Mary Beth Hughes, do the usual song duets and a takeoff on a Mr. and Mrs. radio show just casually diverting.

Helene and Howard, next-to-closing, are the bill's most effective turn with their ballroom buffoonery and the finale zoot-suit standard. They got the best laughs and applause when caught.

Roland Marcelli and Janice are a wire-act who go through the standard stunts entertainingly, including the male's one-wheel balancing, his slip through a hoop while balancing on a slack wire, etc. They're the closers. Kahn.

Oriental, Chi

Chicago, March 9.

Saul Grauman Trio, Richard Hayes, Elsa & Waldo, The Continentals (6), Frankie "Sugar Chile" Robinson; "Nancy Goes to Rio" (M-G).

While perhaps one of the best playing bills since the first of the year, much of the flavor is lost in a faulty public address system.

Saul Grauman returns with his musical stairs, minus one femme, leaving only two stately girls to tap out rhythms. It seems a little light during one selection especially, "Overture to the War of 1812," which should have been the finisher, rather than "Bells of St. Mary." Two straight tap numbers before the chime work is overlong.

Richard Hayes, cleancut youngster, was the first to be hampered by the balky mike. His "Toot, Toot Tootsie, Goodbye" is a fast opener but "It Isn't Fair" is slow. However, he clicks with his record hit, "Old Master Painter." Elsa and Waldo, eccentric tap dance team, score with their slow motion panto work and grotesque getup. Gal does some neat taptoe work, and her partner seems double-jointed with his bend back. Close with semi-jive stint for hefty returns.

The Continentals, five male singers and piano leader, beside being okay in the song department, have borrowed a page from the Kay Thompson book, acting out all of their material in comic vein. After intro, they give out on "Persian Market," taking the parts of beggars, dancing girls, and salesmen. Bob Garson does a slick job of whistling "Flight of the Bumble Bee" and Freddie Bixler gets good reception with his tenoring of "Donkey Serenade." However, their medley of Negro spirituals as a closer seems a little weak.

Diminutive "Sugar Chile" Robinson has not grown much in the two years since seen here, but has solid entertainment value. Ten-year-old plays terrific boogie and is solid in the comedy department. Youngster gets chuckles with "Teacher, Teacher." Also displays a gravel undertone in "I Can't Give You Anything but Love" and gets fine reception for "Numbers Boogie." In his give-and-take with Carl Sands, orch leader, he acquits himself neatly. Closes strong with "Caledonia." Carl Sands orch suffers under the bad p. a. system along with the rest of the acts. Zabe.

New Acts

THE JUGGLING COLLEANOS
Juggling
10 Mins.; Full
Colonial, Albany

Jimmie and Julie Colleano, youngest members of the famed Colleano circus family, offer a fast and skilled juggling turn in which he predominates. In appearance and style, it suggests an outdoor background; for the more intimate vaudeville medium, a change in costume and greater facial animation by the lad might be desirable. He is dressed in a toreador outfit; she wears a same-colored attire, with short dress.

They start with hoops, after which Jimmie—who is also a wire walker under the big tent—takes up tennis balls. He does a number of tricks, at various speeds, with three, four and five spheres. Then Jimmie switches to Indian clubs, for a series of arresting passes under the legs, climaxed by juggling from the rear. Sister returns to stage for a five-club exchange between the legs. Opening night he missed twice with three balls, but from then on performance was flawless.

A small audience brought pair back for three bows in trey spot—third straight silent act. Jaco.

JACK BYRON
Songs
18 Mins.
Ruby Foo's, Montreal

Jack Byron, another of the innumerable musicomedy alumni to hit town, is clicking with his first appearance in the Starlight Room of Ruby Foo's Montreal eatery.

Taking the leadoff slot in the new revue, Byron starts too fast with "Beautiful World" and it takes a couple of following vocals to get back into stride. An awkward mike manner doesn't help but once he forgets this menace offering builds neatly.

Noveuty piping to "McGinty's Goat" clicks with new lyrics, and gimmick of working some of the simpler feats of magic into one of his songs pleases. From "Brigadoon," Byron reprises "Come to Me, Bend to Me" for nice reception but his begoff, "Nothing Like a Dame," is a poor choice, being handled too fast and without presentation. Newt.

EILEEN WILSON
Songs
9 Mins.
Capitol, N. Y.

Eileen Wilson, singer on the "Hit Parade," has some solid vocal values which she is still to display to best advantage. She's capable of good interpretation and delivery, but indicates that she must learn much in stage deportment. Entrances, exits, bows and gown need considerable improvement.

Miss Wilson is armed for this Capitol showing with a series of sock tunes of former years, befitting a Hit-Parader, and one new number, "If I Knew You Were Coming." These tunes are delivered with a proficiency that leaves little room for personality to come through. Her returns, though, were strong when caught. Jose.

BILL PARKER
Songs
15 Mins.
Bucharest, Montreal

Bill Parker shows much improvement over last appearance in Montreal. A grad from "Finian's Rainbow," Parker shows plenty of stage savvy. Taking a fast opener with "No Business Like Show Business," he drops into "Why Was I Born" with ease and sells in staunch fashion with "Old Man River."

Manner throughout is a click for this small cafe although a few of the hoked-up dramatics during such numbers as "Lucky Old Sun" could be trimmed for better visual and listening effects. But general styling good for the intimeries and vaudeo. Newt.

New Fall River Nitery

Fall River, Mass., March 14.

The Candlelight Room, Fall River, Mass., is slated to open on the site of the former El Morocco, April 8.

Spot will have medium bracketed talent.

40G Guarantee for 'Lost' Coast Run Seen Paying Off Production Cost

Guaranteed profit of $40,000 at least on the Coast engagement of "Lost in the Stars" this summer will probably pay off the balance of the show's production cost. Maxwell Anderson-Kurt Weill musical drama has thus far earned back about $40,000 of its $100,000 production cost and, until the recent slump in Broadway attendance, was making an operating profit of about $3,100 a week on its capacity business of $26,600.

Under the deal with Edwin Lester, general director of the Los Angeles and San Francisco Civic Light Opera companies, the production will close July 22 at the Music Box, N. Y., open Aug. 7 for four weeks, at the Curran, San Francisco, and Sept. 4 for four more weeks at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles. Edwin Lester is paying all the expenses, including transportation, royalties and salaries involved, and has guaranteed the Playwrights' Co. a minimum of $40,000 against a percentage of the gross.

Depending on business between now and the closing July 22, "Stars" may be brought back to Broadway in the fall. If so, a larger house will be sought for it. Because of the limited capacity of the Music Box (1,012 seats), the show has not been paying off as rapidly as the management had hoped.

Angle on the situation was that the cast of the musical was enlarged shortly before the premiere, but after the boxoffice scale, with a $5.40 top, was announced and the advance sale opened. Because of press agitation, the management decided not to boost prices thereafter, even though various non-musical shows subsequently charged $6 for weekends.

Two other current Broadway hits have also announced closing dates for early in the summer, obviously as a move to hypo advance sales. "Caesar and Cleopatra" will shutter June 2 at the National, and "I Know My Love" will go dark the same date at the Shubert.

Managements of both shows hope to reopen on Broadway in the fall, preparatory to tours. In the case of "Caesar," Sir Cedric Hardwicke has agreed to stay with the Shaw play on the road, but Lilli Palmer isn't definite and may have to be replaced. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will tour with "Love" and are set to star in the play in London the following season.

'HARVEY'-BROWN FOR HAWAII PRE-AUSSIE

Joe E. Brown will do "Harvey" with the Community Players of Hawaii in Honolulu the week of April 24. Comic is leaving the Coast April 14 for Australia, stopping off for the Honolulu stint. He leaves the Islands for Aussie May 8, to open in "Harvey" for J. C. Williamson Theatres May 27 at the Comedy, Melbourne. Dorotry Stewart, Williamson's N. Y. rep, signed pact with Brown last weekend.

Paul Foley is going out from N. Y. to direct "Harvey" in both Hawaii and Australia.

Shuberts' UBO Get Delay in Govt. Action

The Shuberts and the United Booking Office have been granted an extension until April 23 to file answer to the anti-trust suit brought by the Government. Delay was granted yesterday (Tues.) in N. Y. federal court.

The Government action, which seeks to force the defendants to give up either the production or booking of shows, or the ownership of theatres, was filed Feb. 21 and called for an answer within 20 days. Named as defendants were Lee and J. J. Shubert, Select Theatres Corp., the UBO and its president, Marcus Heiman, and the LAB Amus. Corp.

'Hasty Heart' for Dallas

Dallas, March 14.

The Edward Rubin Studio Players will present "The Hasty Heart" instead of "Two Blind Mice" March 24-29.

L'ville Judge Sustains Segregation Motion

Louisville, March 14.

Effort of Louisville Negroes to share the Iroquois amphitheatre with white patrons was given a setback last week by Federal Judge Shelbourne. In sustaining a motion to dismiss a suit as to the Louisville Park Theatrical Assn., the judge gave Robert L. Carter, New York Negro attorney, until March 27 to amend the complaint to show the amphitheatre operators perform a public function.

Carter, rep of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, argued that while the Louisville Park association is a private corporation, it uses a public park leased from the city. As a private corporation, the amphitheatre did not violate the 14th amendment of the Constitution in denying admission to a municipal college student, it was argued by the Theatrical Assn. Carter said the "equal protection under the law" clause of the 14th amendment has been construed to mean no state can deny to Negroes the facilities afforded whites.

Author Longstreet Tags Mgt. on 'Shoes' Royalty, Voids Rights to Show

Stephen Longstreet, author of the book of "High Button Shoes," has served notice on co-producers Monte Proser and Joseph Kipness, cancelling their rights in the show and revoking a royalty reduction agreement dating back to the Broadway opening Oct. 7, 1947. Similar notice served months ago by composer Jule Styne, is apparently in abeyance. Position of lyricist Sammy Cahn in the matter is uncertain.

According to Longstreet, he received no royalties from the musical during its last six weeks on tour. Under his contract, he has the right under such circumstances to demand payment within three days. If that is defaulted, he may cancel the producers' rights in the property. Proser and Kipness intend fighting the author's move on the ground that the contract is illegal, as the Dramatist's minimum basic agreement covering such pacts has been outlawed by the courts.

Another recent legal action involving "Shoes" has been brought by Ned Litwak, one of the backers, demanding an accounting of profits. A breach-of-contract suit brought by Mary Hunter, who had been signed to direct the show, was paid in full and a damage suit by Mack Sennett was settled out of court.

'SNOW WHITE' OPERETTA LOOMS FOR BROADWAY

Operetta version of "Snow White," with a score by Franz Schubert, arranged by Felix Weingartner, and libretto by Otto Maag, is a possibility for Broadway presentation next season. Rights to the musical, which has been produced in Switzerland, Stockholm and Brussels, are held by Hans Curjel, of Swiss conductor-director, who is trying to interest New York managements in the property. The work has not been translated into English.

Curjel, currently in the U. S. on a two-month survey of production methods on Broadway and in university and little theatres, is also readying the first theatre seminar to be held at the Salzburg Festival this summer. About 90 students from various countries will attend the four-week session, at which English will be the official language.

Harris Eyes 'Bay Tree'

Jed Harris is considering a revival of "The Green Bay Tree," with Basil Rathbone and Jay Robinson in lead roles. Latter at present has the Le Beau role in "As You Like It."

Production would be for next season.

Langner's Protest

During a recent discussion of the Washihgton legit situation at a Committee of Theatrical Producers meeting, Lawrence Langner arrived just in time to hear one of the members describing the disreputable neighborhood in which the Gayety theatre is situated there.

Langner, who, besides being co-director of the Theatre Guild, is a noted patent attorney, immediately protested, "That's not a rundown neighborhood," he declared. "I know. My Washington office is in that same block, almost directly across the street from the theatre."

Pinza's Many Voice Setbacks Cost Him $25,000

Ezio Pinza's numerous absences from the cast of "South Pacific," at the Majestic, N. Y., are figured to have cost him between $25,000 and $26,000 salary thus far. In according with standard legit practice, the star is not paid for missed performances, so he loses one-eighth of a week's pay for each missed show. He's been out of the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical 56 times to date.

The actor-singer's contract gave him 7% of the gross until the production was paid off, and 7½% since then. At the unvarying pace of $50,600 per week, that amounts to nearly $443 for each performance at the old rate and over $474 at the present rate. Moreover, besides the $25,000-$26,000 he has lost in earnings, the missed performances have cost him a substantial amount in doctor bills, etc.

Situation is unfortunate for everyone concerned. Besides the financial loss, it is emotionally upsetting to Pinza to be out of the show. Like any performer, he likes to appear before the public, in addition to which he is a conscientious artist and feels a responsibility to the show and to the theatregoers who have bought tickets to hear him sing.

The male lead in "South Pacific" is not a tough one for a basso of Pinza's power. But he has recurrences of laryngitis and on several such occasions, in his anxiety to get back in the show, has returned to the cast before being entirely recovered. That has had ill effects. In one recent instance, the star had ear trouble that complicated his chronic condition.

Although Pinza's absences actually increase the "South Pacific" profits, since his understudy, Dickinson Eastham, is paid only a fraction of the star's salary, it is a headache to the management. There is natural resentment and criticism from the public, particularly those who have bought tickets for the show far in advance. Also, although it apparently hasn't lessened the production's boxoffice draw thus far, it may do so ultimately.

But despite the financial sacrifice and aggravation to Pinza and the worry to the management, there doesn't appear to be any solution to the difficulty. Pinza takes as good care of himself as possible, and misses performances only when he cannot avoid it. Furthermore, he will go to Ormond, Fla., for a rest while the show lays off during Holy Week. Meanwhile, the management has an understudy ready to go on whenever the star is out of the cast. And, although demands for refunds are extremely rare, they are always immediately available when Pinza doesn't appear.

L.A. Will Vote On New Auditorium

Los Angeles, March 14.

This city will have a new municipal auditorium and music centre if the citizens vote that way in the November election. City Council voted unanimously for a $31,000,000 bond issue for that purpose.

If the vote is favorable, the auditorium will have a seating capacity greater than New York's Madison Square Garden, and will be used for national conventions as well as musical and dramatic exhibitions.

'Cage,' 'Road' Fold at $90,000 Loss; 'Streetcar' (No. 1) Hit, 'U.S.A.' So-So

Four shows closed last Saturday (11), two on Broadway and two on the road. First two were "The Bird Cage" and the negro-cast "Tobacco Road," both quick flops. Other two were the No. 1 company of "Streetcar Named Desire" and "Inside U.S.A." Former was a major smash, while the latter, never quite paid off, despite nearly a year's run in New York and a season on tour.

Broadway company of "Streetcar Named Desire," which closed in Boston, was one of the top hits of recent seasons. Irene Selznick production of the Tenessee Williams drama opened Dec. 3, 1947, at the Ethel Barrymore, N. Y., running a trifle over two years. It was finanaced at $100,000 and cost about $94,000 to bring in, including bonds.

Second company, financed from profits from the original, went on tour that season and continues through next April, 22 winding up with a three-week stand at the Gayety, Washington. After that, a cast chosen from the two troupes will play a date at the City Center, N. Y., opening May 23. Thus far, the aggregate profit from the two companies, plus the production share of the down payment from the film rights, comes to almost $700,000.

"'Inside U. S. A.,' revue with music and lyrics by Arthur Schwartz and Howard Dietz and sketches by Arnold Auerbach, Moss Hart and Arnold B. Horwitt, was presented by Schwartz, with Beatrice Lillie and Jack Haley costarred. It opened April 30, 1948, and continued 399 performances until Feb. 19, 1949, when it went on the road. The tour, spanning two seasons but with a summer layoff, was marked by the repeated illness of Miss Lillie. Latter situation aroused disputes between the star and management, the latter complaining to Equity on at least one occasion.

"U. S. A." was financed at $250,000 and cost $243,000 to bring in, including bonds. During the Broadway run 80% of the investment was repaid to the backers, and virtually all the balance was earned back. However, the performances cancelled because of Miss Lillie's illnesses caused severe losses several times, so the show never actually got into the black. Besides the 80% repayment, there are reportedly assets of about 10% in bonds and deposits, plus about 5% in cash reserve.

"Bird Cage," a melodrama by Arthur Laurents, was presented Feb. 22 by Walter Fried and Lars Jorgenson and played 21 performances. It was financed at $75,000 and was brought in for $73,000. In-

(Continued on page 60)

A. Ben Fuller Eyes U.S. For Aussie Importing

A. Ben Fuller, general manager of Fullers Theatres of Australia, arrived in the U. S. last week to look over American talent and Broadway legit shows with an eye to importing some acts and plays for his Down Under loop. Despite a dollar shortage, Fuller has been able to present "Streetcar Named Desire" for Aussie audiences. Royalties are remitted on a partial dollar basis.

Fuller's U. S. visit is his first since 1926. Before sailing for Britain March 23 on the Queen Mary, he plans to swing through several other key American cities besides New York. Theatre topper, who is the son of Sir Benjamin Fuller, the circuit's chief, o.o'd Washington over the weekend.

Diana Barrymore Hurt In Car Crash, Forced To Forego Atlanta 'Light Up'

Atlanta, March 14.

Diana Barrymore, injured in an automobile crash last week near Charlottesville, Va., discovered upon her arrival here by train that she had received injuries to her spine and was forced to cancel her engagement to play lead in Moss Hart's "Light Up the Sky." Actress was due to open six-night run at Atlanta's Penthouse theatre, Greek-type playhouse atop Ansley hotel. Management secured Audrey Christie, who played in original Broadway production, as replacement.

Miss Barrymore was traveling in car with Robert Wilcox, her leading man. He was tossed out of car by impact of crash, but, with exception of black eye and superficial bruises, escaped unhurt. He opened opposite Miss Christie at Penthouse last night (Mon.). Heading supporting cast for Christie-Wilcox team are Robert McBride, business manager of Penthouse, and Elsbeth Hofmann, who, with her husband, Don Gibson, produce all Penthouse plays.

Cesar Romero closed Saturday (11) night in Preston Sturges' "Stirctly Dishonorable," setting a new boxoffice mark for Penthouse, $7,500. Romero broke his own record, since best previous gross was $7,400, garnered when he was here before in same play.

Romero opened Monday (13) night in "Dishonorable" at Penthouse No. 2 in Roosevelt hotel ballroom, Jacksonville. With him went Jean Barnes and Carl Betz, members of local Penthouse company, who have been here with company since it opened 26 weeks ago. They will stay in Jacksonville during six-week test at that spot. Miss Christie and Wilcox will also move to Jacksonville with "Light Up" after their week in Atlanta. Prior to Romero's record week, Guy Kibbee grossed $4,100 in "The Late Christopher Bean."

Penthouse is scheduled to close its run here after three more weeks. Mady Christians is scheduled to open Monday (20) in "The Vinegar Tree."

CARROLL DEAL NOW OPEN FOR BIDS IN L.A.

Los Angeles, March 14.

Agreement to sell the Earl Carroll theatre-restaurant to a syndicate headed by Gene Mann for $1,025,000 has been vacated by L. A. superior court. Showplace is now open to bids by other theatrical groups. Understood several N. Y. producers are seeking control.

Meanwhile Carroll's niece, Mrs. Patricia Carroll Peck, has accepted $63,500 for her interest in the estate.

Molly Picon Vacations

Molly Picon, currently starred at the 2d Ave. Theatre, N. Y., in "Sadie Is a Lady," will interrupt the run of the Yiddish musical for two weeks for a vacation.

Miss Picon will close "Sadie" this Sunday (19) night. It will reopen April 3.

'SO. PACIFIC', 'ROBERTS' SKED HOLIDAY SIESTAS

Broadway's two top hits, the musical "South Pacific" and the straight-play "Mister Roberts," have already scheduled layoffs for Holy Week and next pre-Christmas week. In the case of "South Pacific," it will be the cast's first vacation, coinciding with the show's first anniversary on Broadway. "Mister Roberts" laid off pre-Christmas week last year, but this will be its first Holy Week hiatus.

With the April 7 anniversary of "South Pacific" occurring during the pre-Easter layoff, the management has scheduled a party for the cast for the following Wednesday night, April 12, at the Ritz-Carlton hotel, N. Y., after the performance. Members of the "South Pacific" touring company, which will be in rehearsal at that time, will be invited. So will the cast of "Happy Time," the other Rodgers & Hammerstein production on Broadway.

Musical 'Lifetime'

A musical version of George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart's "Once in a Lifetime" will be preemed by The Fifty, newly formed off-Broadway company, at Carnegie Recital Hall, N. Y., from March 31 to April 8. Julie Mandel has written the music and lyrics for the production. Show will be directed by Michael Case and choreographed by Vivian Smith.

Cost of presentation is budgeted at less than $750.

Some See Loophole in Enforcement Of Theatre Ticket Agcy. Checkups

With the new ticket code now in force, the N. Y. City Department of Investigations will soon begin a series of periodic spot checks of broker and theatre records, and is prepared to seek revocation of licenses of violators. However, feeling in the trade is that the new code contains a broad loophole that may seriously weaken its enforcement. Meanwhile, with legit attendance currently in a slump, reports of ticket scalping have been scarce.

According to James H. Shiels, new commissioner of investigation, succeeding John M. Murtagh, he will have a regular crew of three or four men assigned to the theatre ticket situation. They will be men who worked on the scalping probe of last summer and are familiar with the trade. They will make checkups every four or five weeks, picking agencies more or less at random.

The routine will be for the crew to visit an agency without warning, ask for all records, including "extras" and "exchanges." These will be taken to the Investigation Department offices and carefully checked, including comparison with the corresponding allotment and allocation records of theatres. While at the broker offices, the investigators will also check inventories. The possibility of agencies having tickets for shows for "open weeks" will also be watched, Shiels says.

Brokers are not required to submit weekly records of tickets, but they and theatres must file statements of allocations and allotments at the start of an engagement, and must notify the License Department of any change in the allocations and allotments for any show.

Joker

According to those in the trade, there is a joker in the new regulations for both brokers and theatres. In each case, its specifies that the licensee may not be penalized for violations by an employee unless it is proved that the violation was with the knowledge and consent of the licensee. In other words, theatre owners are not responsible for the actions of their boxoffice men, and brokers are not liable for the actions of their employees, except on the slim chance that they can be shown to have known and approved of the infractions. The code, adopted recently by the Department of Licenses, was drawn up and approved by the Mayor's theatre committee, including representatives of the various elements of Broadway legit, including producers, theatre owners, brokers and Actors Equity.

Meanwhile, License Commissioner Edward T. McCaffrey announced last week that nine brokers whose licenses were revoked during the scalping probe last year had been given new licenses and and put on probation. They included the Louis Cohn agency, Bernard Jacobs, George Hader for the Hollywood Ticket agency, Joseph Davascio, Oscar Alexander, Jacob H. Rubin for the Manhattan ticket agency, Henry Martino for Henry's Ticket office, George Ziegler and Hickey's ticket agency.

Special D.C. Revue

Washington, March 14.

"Spring Is a Wonderful Thing," special musical revue being staged this year in connection with Washington's annual Cherry Blossom Festival, is being produced by Allan Zee, production manager of the Capitol theatre, New York, and Joel Margolis, manager of Loew's Capitol, Washington.

Revue will be presented for matinees at the Watergate theatre, town's civic open airer on the banks of the Potomac, on April 1 and 2. Cherry Blossom Festival is being given a special push this year by the fact that it is being tied in with the sesqui-centennial of the District of Columbia.

Actors Lab Lead

Hollywood, March 14.

Kathryn Steele moves up from the ensemble to become ingenue lead in "The Banker's Daughter," Actors Lab production at the Globe theatre here. Marjorie Nelson has bowed out of the spot.

Connie Lee has been added to the ensemble to replace Miss Steele.

Gallic Tempers Flare At Canadian Drama Festival

Montreal, March 14.

In the usual effete atmosphere that surrounds the annual Canadian Drama Festival, a first-class hassle developed last Wednesday (8), when adjudicator William Wray threatened to walk out of the festival altogether following an outburst of heckling and insults at Les Compagnons theatre.

Wray, author and drama critic brought from England to handle adjudications throughout Canada, was heckled off the stage a few minutes after he began his comments on Les Compagnons' production of "Le Malade Imaginaire." Interruptions were led by Jacques Herbert, freelance journalist, and a group of other spectators, who shouted attacks on Wray's adjudication of La Compagnie du Masque's offering of Jean Cocteau's "'Antigone" the night before. Hecklers objected to Wray's "clowning remarks'" about "Antigone," which was being given its initial North American try.

Revamp in Met Dance With Ballet Theatre In Setup; Tours Continue

A sharp change in the ballet picture at the N. Y. Metropolitan Opera House is seen for next season. Lucia Chase, co-director of Ballet Theatre, is in negotiations with the Met's incoming manager, Rudolf Bing. Although details haven't been definitely set, it appears that the Met will take in a new ballet unit next fall to replace its present setup, the new unit to be picked by Miss Chase. She'll likely utilize many dancers in the present Met setup.

Contracts with Boris Romanoff and Alexander Gavrilov, the Met's present choreographer and ballet master, respectively, which expire this season, won't be renewed, it's believed, with Miss Chase to appoint the successors. It's thought likely she'll pick Anthony Tudor, artistic director of her ballet troupe, and Edward Caton, for the respective posts. Caton has been ballet master at the Met before.

New unit will have the Ballet Theatre tag, being in a sense a branch of the troupe, as well as a feeding school for the dance company. But Ballet Theatre isn't expected to dance at the Met during the opera season, as reported. Nor will the Met setup interfere with Ballet Theatre's regular touring season, the troupe to go out next fall as before.

Pitt Nixon's Last Days Nipped by Cancellations

Pittsburgh, March 14.

It's beginning to look as if historic Nixon theatre here will pass into eternity in anything but a blaze of glory. Management had hoped to give playhouse's last days a big lift before the wrecking crews come in May 1 to raze building to make way for new office skyscraper of Aluminum Co. of America, but booking hazards seem to be ruling otherwise.

Final month of April was to be highlighted by "Lend An Ear" week of April 3, and there was considerable interest in this musical because show had its inception here at the Pittsburgh Playhouse. Date's been cancelled, however, with show bypassing this city to chance a Chicago run. Judith Evelyn company of "A Streetcar Named Desire," booked for April 10, is likewise out; that one's going into Washington's Gayety theatre instead, on April 3 for three weeks. Only thing definite is that Nixon's closing week, April 24, will go to Mae West's revival of "Diamond Lil." Otherwise, house has nothing else except Ballets de Paris March 27.

So, indications are that the final days of famed Nixon will be pretty limping ones. Senator theatre, heretofore a film house, gets touring attractions next season; it was recently taken over by a local syndicate under corporate name of Astor Theatre Corp.

Balanchine's Brit. Stint

George Balanchine, artistic director of the N. Y. City Ballet Co., sailed for London Saturday (11) to stage his "Ballet Imperial" for the Sadler's Wells Ballet. The Balanchine work, now in the repertory of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, will be restaged in a new choreography, with scenery and costumes by Eugene Berman.

Ballet will preem at Covent Garden April 5, after which Balanchine will return to the U. S. to prep his own troupe, the N. Y. City Ballet Co., for its first visit to England this summer.

'Harvey' Was Sock Climax to Brock Pemberton's Life

The death of Brock Pemberton last week came while his most successful production, "Harvey," continued to pile up profits. The 64-year-old producer succumbed to a heart attack Saturday (11) at his New York apartment exactly a week after making one of his stunt guest appearances in the comedy at the Sombrero Playhouse, Phoenix, and after stopping off in Topeka, Kans., to catch the touring edition of the play, starring James Dunn.

"Harvey" was the climax of Pemberton's 30-year career as a Broadway producer. The Mary Coyle Chase comedy has thus far earned a profit of nearly $2,000,000 on an investment of $30,000. That does not include returns from the film rights, which were sold for $1,000,000, with payments in installments over a period of years. Other notable Pemberton hits included "Personal Appearance," "Strictly Dishonorable," "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and "Ceiling Zero."

Mild - mannered, unobtrusive, Pemberton had been a driving force in the legit production field. He had been suffering from a heart ailment for several years, but recently seemed to have that condition under control.

The Critical Side

Unlike most of his contemporaries, who generally vaulted into producer spots from either acting or directing, Pemberton matriculated via the newspaper field. After graduating from college, he became a protege of William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette. After a time he hit out for New York, where he landed a job on the old Evening Mail. His interest in the theatre soon won him the post of second-string reviewer for the paper. He later became drama reporter and assistant to the late Louis DeFoe, drama critic of the old N. Y. World and later assistant to Alexander Woollcott, then critic of the N. Y. Times.

It was on the latter beat that Pemberton met and joined with Arthur Hopkins, producer, and after three years with him in various capacities, decided to do some producing on his own. He took his initial fling in 1920 with a play by Gilda Varesi, "Enter Madame," in which she also starred and was a Broadway hit. Some of his followup productions did not fare as well until he acquired Zona Gale's "Miss Lulu Bett," which won the Pulitzer Prize for 1920.

Later, he produced Sidney Howard's "Swords" and Maxwell Anderson's first play, "White Desert," both having modest runs on Broadway. He subsequently took "Madame" to London and while it failed to evoke enthusiasm there, he acquired the rights to Pirandello's comedy, "Six Characters in Search of an Author," which he produced in New York in 1923. He also produced Pirandello's "Henry IV" under the title of "The Living Mask," with Arnold Korff in the leading role, which put Pemberton in the money again.

In 1929 Pemberton began his long association with Antoinette Perry, former actress who came out of retirement to direct "Strictly Dishonorable." This was the beginning of an association that lasted until her death several years ago. She directed all of Pemberton's productions, such as "Personal Appearance," "Ceiling Zero," "Chalked Out," "Christopher

(Continued on page 60)

Inside Stuff—Legit

The devil was to pay at City Hall in Pittsburgh last week following an interview in the Post-Gazette with Paul Langton, who plays older of the two sons in the national company of "Death of a Salesman" with Thomas Mitchell. Reporter took a cameraman out to the Langtons' suite at Hotel Schenley and he lensed them with their Dalmatian dog and parrot, two pets actor has carried with him ever since he went into "Salesman." Then somebody remembered that there's been an anti-parrot ordinance in Pittsburgh ever since city had a parrot-fever scare back in the early '30s. Department of Health, City Solicitor and other biggies in the town, got their heads together, called Langton down to City Hall and after several sessions told him he'd have to get rid of the parrot. So Langton shipped it back to California, where it'll be taken care of by friends until the Pittsburgh engagement's over. Meantime, show got plenty of space since all three dailies kept the story alive for couple of days.

"Wisteria Trees," which has been having its breakin troubles since opening in Princeton, is almost completely revised from its opening version. Overhauling in New Haven consisted mainly of a session of rewriting, with scant opportunity for restaging. It is on latter chore that efforts will be concentrated during show's current two-week Philadelphia stand.

Show did terrific business here, almost 90% of the take being advance sale, based on the Helen Hayes name draw.

Legit Bits

Elmer Rice is working on a new play at his home in Stamford. . . . Cheryl Crawford leaves Friday (17) for a three-week vacation in Florida. . . Irving Winter will join "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep" next week, succeeding Rick Jason, who goes to the Coast on a Columbia film contract. . . . Next meeting of the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers will be held April 20 at the Claridge hotel, N. Y. . . Pressagent Phil Stevenson to work on the reissue of Universal's "Story of GI Joe." . . . Harry Shapiro is manager and Jim Keefe p.a. for the touring "Silver Whistle."

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II, have optioned John Steinbeck's "In the Forests of the Night" for production next season . . . Anthony Brady Farrell plans London and Australian editions of his "Texas, L'il Darlin'" production . . . Show-of-the-Month Club bought out five evening performances and part of a matinee last week of "As You Like It" . . . Broadway click of T. S. Eliot's "Cocktail Party" surprised the cast as well as co-producers Gilbert Miller and Henry Sherek. Players figured on appearing in the show only a few months in New York, but now may have to remain here into next season, while a second company is formed to do the verse-comedy in London . . . Donald Flamm, back from Florida vacation, is planning Broadway presentations next season of the London hit, "The Late Edwina Black."

"Talent '50," third annual showcase for non-featured legit players, will be held April 28 at the Guild theatre, N. Y. . . . Francis L. Sullivan takes over the Pothinus part Monday night (20) in "Caesar and Cleopatra" while Nicholas Joy takes a month's leave to appear in a film edition of Richard Wright's "Native Son," to be produced in Buenos Aires by Argentina Sono Film . . . Herb Kneeter is manager and Samuel J. Friedman agent for "Cry of the Peacock" . . . Joe Shea has taken over as advance man for "Harvey," succeeding Al Butler, who will p.a. the touring "South Pacific" . . . Jack Potter has replaced Dixie French as manager of the No. 2 company of "Streetcar Named Desire."

George Oshrin is subbing as manager of "Oklahoma!" until Herb Farrar is fully recovered from his recent operation, on the Coast . . . Tyrone Power will be the star of the Broadway original of "Mister Roberts" this summer, while Henry Fonda vacations . . . Max Gordon announces that he will produce a new musical, authors being E. Y. Harburg and Fred Saidy, for which a composer isn't selected . . . Louis Calhern has agreed to star in a Robert L. Joseph revival of "King Lear" next season.

Peter Glenville, stager of "The Innocents" and the recent "Browning Version," sails today (Wed.) for England. . . Ernest H. Martin, co-producer of "Where's Charley?," returned last week from the Coast, but will go back again shortly to resume search for cast leads for his and Cy Feuer's production of "Guys and Dolls." . . . Don Russell joins the cast of "Where's Charley?" next week, succeeding Bob Held, who's leaving to play the William Tabbert part in the touring edition of "South Pacific." . . . Maxwell Anderson's libretto of "Lost in the Stars" was published yesterday (Tues.) by William Sloane Associates. "Cry, the Beloved Country," Alan Paton novel from which the show was adapted, was published two years ago by Scribner's.

Robert Keith, Jr., whose father created the role of the ship's doctor in "Mister Roberts," takes over a small part in the same play next week, succeeding Alex Nicol. Robert Burr joins the same cast as a super. . . Rebecca Brownstein, Actors Equity attorney, left over the weekend for a two-week vacation in the Virgin Islands. . . . Rex Harrison sails March 30 on the Queen Elizabeth. . . . Dorothy (Mrs. Oscar) Hammerstein, II, is designing the decor for the new Rodgers & Hammerstein offices. Incidentally, her husband will not have an individual room in the layout, but will continue to work from his home. . . . Webb Tilton will succeed Dickinson Eastham in "South Pacific" when the latter leaves to play the lead in the road company.

Gertrude Apple has joined the office of Dorothy Willard Productions, which is readying a presentation of a musical adaptation of "The Liar." . . . Aldrich & Myers, unable thus far to sign a top femme star to resume touring in "Goodbye, My Fancy," may lease the show to Lewis & Young for presentation on the Coast. Stock rights to the Fay Kanin play may be available for strawhats this summer. . . . Ben Steinberg, associate conductor with Ballet Theatre the last two years, will be musical director of the Peter Lawrence revival of "Peter Pan," to costar Jean Arthur and Boris Karloff. . Douglass Montgomery will star in the London production of "Detective Story," to open March 25. . . . Bibi Osterwald has been signed as understudy for Carol Channing, femme lead of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Mary Hinton, British actress who recently appeared on Broadway in "Yes, M'Lord," sailed from New York Saturday (11) on the Queen Elizabeth to star in Sir Charles B. Cochran's upcoming London production of William Templeton's "Ivory Tower".

Off-B'way Show

When the Bough Breaks

(MASTER THEATRE, N. Y.)

A realistically touching drama, "When the Bough Breaks," was offered for three performances last week by the Abbe Practical Workshop. Play, centered in a lying-in-hospital, presents a compassionate study of a couple's reaction to news that their new-born son shows signs of abnormalcy. With some ironing out, this work, authored by Robert S. Scott and John L. Gerstad, might find a Broadway audience. A vivid picture of incidents and characters familiar to a lying-in-hospital is also brought into focus.

Toni Darnay is excellent as the baby's mother, while William Windom gives a fine performance as her husband. Priscilla Morrill, Al Thaler, John Boruff, Anne Dougherty and the rest of the cast all turn in good portrayals. Peter Wolf's sets are creditable, while George Schafer shows a capable directorial hand.

'Salesman' for Zurich

Zurich, March 7.

Following the recent German preem at Theater in der Josefstadt, Vienna, Zurich Schauspielhaus is rehearsing Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" under the German title "Der Tod des Handelsreisenden." Preem is set for March 16.

Based on Ferdinand Bruckner's translation, play will be directed by Joseph Millo-Pacovsky, with sets by Teo Otto and background music by Max Lang.

Total Legit Grosses

The following are the comparative figures based on VARIETY'S boxoffice estimates for last week (the 41st week of the season) and the corresponding week of last season:

BROADWAY	This Season	Last Season
Number of shows current	29	26
Total weeks played so far by all shows	868	936
Total gross for all current shows last week	$629,000	$601,200
Total season's gross so far by all shows	$21,715,900	$22,366,000
Number of new productions so far	47	58
ROAD (Excluding Stock)
Number of current touring shows reported	23	28
Total weeks played so far by all shows	795	928
Total road gross reported last week	$478,500	$524,000
Season's total road gross so far	$16,273,600	$19,090,000

'Kate' Fair $28,700 in Chicago, Big 'Madwoman' Advance; Ballet Paris 27G

Chicago, March 14.

Chi boxoffice picked up last week after previous week's slump. "Madwoman of Chaillot" opened last night (13) to healthy advance. Initialer of two-week stay, despite lukewarm reviews, of the Ballets de Paris, brought terrific trade at the Blackstone. Also slightly on the upgrade is "Kiss Me, Kate."

Spike Jones, with his "Musical Depreciation Revue," wound up five-week stay with a profitable week closing Saturday (11). Blackstone, the magician, also closed the same day but with light take.

In the offing is "Borschtcapades" at the Blackstone, March 20, bucking the opening of "Private Lives" (Tallulah Bankhead), returning to the Harris for four weeks. "Lend An - Ear" goes into the Great Northern March 27.

Estimates for This Week

Ballets de Paris, Blackstone (1,358; $4.40). Sock $27,000.

Blackstone, Erlanger (3rd week) (1,334; $2.50). Light $8,000 for final week. Closed Saturday (11).

"Kiss Me, Kate" Shubert (25th week) (2,100; $6.18). Dropped to $28,700.

"Madwoman of Chaillot," Erlanger (1,334; $4.33). Opened last night (13) with strong advance.

"Musical Depreciation Revue," Great Northern (5th week) (1,500; $3.71). Closed Saturday (11) with bright $21,000.

HAYES NAME MAGIC IN NEW HAVEN AT $30,000

New Haven, March 14.

Pulling power of the Helen Hayes name was evidenced last week when it drew thousands of playgoers to Shubert pews to view the untried "Wisteria Trees" in a full-week stand (6-11). Coming in with a hefty advance, final figures, on eight shows at $4.20 top, registered just over $30,000—a house record for a straight dramatic play.

Legit takes a siesta this week, then resumes with preem of "Cry of the Peacock" March 23-25. Next in line is another curtain-raising, the Hartmans bowing in with "Tickets, Please" (March 30-Apr. 1). Alfred Drake - Edward Eager musical, "The Liar," is pencilled for an April 13-15 unfurling.

Mae West-'Lil' Neat $28,000 in Split Wk.

Cincinnati, March 14.

Mae West in "Diamond Lil" grossed over $14,000 for four performances the last half of last week in 2,500-seat Taft theatre at $3.69 top.

First half got a reported $14,000 at the Hartman in Columbus.

'Streetcar' Poor $10,000 In 9 Shows at Mpls.

Minneapolis, March 14.

Playing a return engagement, "A Streetcar Named Desire" ran into blizzards, below-zero temperatures and icy thoroughfares, with unfortunate boxoffice results. At $3.60 top for six nights and three matinees in the 1,900-seat Lyceum, it pulled poor $10,000.

Cast, topped by Judith Evelyn and Ralph Meeker, won praise. Spike Jones is current for a fortnight, with "Diamond Lil" and "Death of a Salesman" underlined.

Monte Carlo Ballet 21G

Toronto, March 14.

On annual visit, Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo did a satisfactory $21,200 at the Royal Alexandria (1,525), scaled at $3.60 top.

'LADY'-CORNELL RAPPED BUT $22,000 IN ST. L.

St. Louis, March 14.

Despite the worst rain, sleet and snowstorm of the winter, a near-capacity house greeted Mae West in "Diamond Lil" at the opening of a one-week stand at the American theatre Sunday (12). Comedy was greeted with mixed reviews, but a good advance points to a profitable engagement. House is scaled to $4.27.

"That Lady," Kate O'Brien's drama, with Katharine Cornell in the lead role, drew panning from the local crix but natives paid no attention and the piece wound up a week's run at the American (11) with a fine $22,000, scaled at $4.27 for eight performances.

Peters-'Barretts' Strong $19,000 In D.C. Return to Legit

Washington, March 14.

Return of legit to nation's capital was given a rousing b.o. cheer by natives to tune of $19,000 for the Susan Peter's starrer "Barretts of Wimpole Street." Potential is $22,000, at $3.00 top, (including tax) for the newly converted 1,500-seat Gayety.

Faye Emerson and Sam Wanamaker in "Goodbye, Mr. Fancy" follow for two weeks starting March 21. House will be scaled to $3.60 top.

'U.S.A.' IN WINDUP HITS $28,500 FOR SPLIT WEEK

Hartford, March 14.

"Inside U. S. A.," with Bea Lillie, grossed about $28,500 in its windup stands last week, split between the Metropolitan, Providence, and the Bushnell Aud. here.

Show played the Metropolitan Monday-Wednesday (6-8), coming here Thursday (9) and playing through Saturday (11).

Woolley-'Dinner' Nice $18,000 in Frisco

San Francisco, March 14.

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," with Monty Woolley, hit a nice $18,000 for its final and third stanza at the 1,550-seat Curran last week.

Curran remains dark, with the Geary, town's other legit house, showing "Bicycle Thief," which opened Sunday (12). Geary a 1,775-seater, is scaled to $1.80 for pix.

'Lady in Dark' Added

St. Louis, March 14.

"Lady in the Dark," Moss Hart musical, has been added to the repertory of the Municipal Theatre Assn's 1950 sked and will be presented for the first time under al fresco conditions in the Forest Park theatre during the season that tees off June 8 with an 11-night stand of "Brigadoon" and winds up with a two-week engagement of "Carousel." Other pieces already selected are "Rosalie," "East Wind," "Of Thee I Sing," "Desert Song" and a Rodgers and Hammerstein concert.

"Lady," produced in 1941, was presented at the American theatre here several years ago.

'Roberts' Wow 30½G, 'Streetcar' Ends, 19G, 'Ear' $20,000, Boston

Boston, March 14.

"Mr. Roberts," coming in for an indefinite run with a top advance, was the only opener in town this week, but it gave the local rialto a much-needed shot in the arm as other attractions faded. No prospects of much in the future, either, save for Cornelia Otis Skinner, and all indications are that the local season has conked out six weeks early. "Streetcar" coasted out in its finale here and "Lend an Ear" failed to be too sharp in its second.

Estimates for Last Week

"A Streetcar Named Desire," Plymouth (3d week) (1,200; $3.60). Final week here, with cast breaking up as of Sat. (11); this attraction lost its grip on the b.o. Wound up at about $19,000, but had a profitable run nonetheless.

"Lend an Ear," Shubert (2d week) (1,750; $4.80). This one was priced out of the market for a no-star lineup and began to dip on its second to an offish $20,000, with cold weather blamed in part. Moved out for the whistle stops enroute to Chi.

"Mr. Roberts," Colonial (1st week) (1,500; $3.60). A wow attraction, with $90,000 in the till before it opened. Went clean first week to take almost $30,500, against a capacity of about $31,000. Should be here in June.

'Consul' $27,500 Leads Philly

Philadelphia, March 14.

Legit biz was generally okay last week although there were no actual smashes among the quartet of shows on display.

This week the Locust is dark, cutting the number of active playhouses down to three and next week, according to all indications, there will be only one legiter in town, "The Wisteria Trees," the new Helen Hayes vehicle which opened a two weeks' run at the Shubert last night (13). Not only is the immediate prospect dismal but the future bookings are few and far between.

Estimates for Last Week

"What a Day," Forrest (2d week) (1,766; $4.55). Vinton Freedley musical has been doing a steady trade, but a long way from capacity. Did $26,700 last week—second of three. House has no definite booking in sight.

"The Silver Whistle," Walnut (1st week) (1,340; $3.90). Theatre Guild offering won nice notices with Lloyd Nolan getting praise too. Biz was fairish at $12,200. Offering is sixth and last of this season's American Theatre Society subscription offerings. Show probably folds next week.

"Private Lives," Locust (one week only) (1,580; $3.90). Return of this Tallulah Bankhead starrer didn't do biz expected after last season's sensational enagement. However, its $14,000 gross wasn't too bad. House dark for two weeks and gets "Cry of the Peacock" March 27.

"The Consul," Shubert (2d week) (1,877; $4.55). Gian-Carlo Menotti musical led the town with $27,500, excellent after the satisfactory $13,700 for five performances the previous week. House has nothing in the offing after "The Wisteria Trees," Helen Hayes vehicle, which opened a two weeks' tryout run last night (13).

'Okla.!' Over $37,000 in 5 Through the Southwest

Fort Worth, March 14.

"Oklahoma!" racked up over $37,000 in five engagements last week. Musical played the Convention Hall, Tulsa, Sunday (5); Home, Oklahoma City, Monday (6); Convention Hall, Enid, Okla., Tuesday (7); Majestic, Wichita Falls, Wednesday-Thursday (8-9) and the Majestic here, Saturday (11).

Show is splitting the current week between three engagements.

Shows in Rehearsal

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical), O (Operetta).

"Cry of the Peacock" (D) — James Cooligan & Donald Medford; Leonora Corbett, director.

"Peter Pan" (D) — Peter Lawrence, John Burrell, director.

"Tickets Please" (R) — Arthur Klein.

Broadway Generally Spotty Again; 'Cage,' 'Road' Out, 'Ice,' 'Touch' Next; 'Wedding' $24,200, 'Sleep' OK 21G

Legit business on Broadway was generally spotty last week. Four shows registered capacity grosses, several others improved the previous week's offish pace, but some others sagged to new lows. The combined gross for all 29 entries was 68.78% of capacity, a decrease of .34% from the previous week.

"Bird Cage" and the Negro "Tobacco Road" folded Saturday night (11), and "Howdy, Mr. Ice of 1950" and "Touch and Go" are scheduled to close next Saturday (18). Only one opening is slated for this week.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical), O (Operetta).

Other parenthetic figures refer, respectively, to top price, number of seats and capacity gross. Price includes 20% amusement tax, but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of tax.

"All You Need Is One Good Break," Mansfield (4th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,041; $26,000). Hasn't caught on after reopening; under $5,000 again.

"Arms and the Girl," 46th St. (6th wk) (M-$6; 1,319; $39,000). Slipped a bit to nearly $36,500.

"As You Like It," Cort (7th wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,064; $27,000). Katharine Hepburn name remains the primary draw; bettered $25,700.

"Bird Cage," Coronet (3d wk) (D-$4.80; 1,027; $27,000). Arthur Laurents play failed to make the grade, folding Saturday night (11) after 21 performances; finale grossed sad $8,800.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," National (12th wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,172; $30,000). Shaw revival got about the same; $20,000.

"Clutterbuck," Biltmore (14th wk) (C-$4.80; 920; $22,600). London comedy also improved, with Sunday performances an apparent factor; $12,100.

"Cocktail Party," Miller (8th wk) (C-$4.80; 940; $21,600). Goes clean at all performances; $21,600.

"Come Back, Little Sheba," Booth (4th wk) (D-$4.80; 712; $20,000). About the same; $12,700.

"Death of a Salesman," Morosco (57th wk) (D-$4.80; 914; $23,800). Eased a trifle, but has a strong advance sale; $18,500.

"Detective Story," Hudson (51st wk) (D-$4.80; 1,016; $23,675). Up to $16,500.

"Devil's Disciple," Royale (3d wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,035; $27,500). Held almost even at $20,200.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Ziegfeld (14th wk) (M-$6 1,628; $48,244). Another capacity week; topped $48,200.

"Happy Time," Plymouth (7th wk) (C-$4.80; 1,063; $29,019). Made a quick jump to $28,000.

"Howdy, Mr. Ice of 1950," Center (42d wk) (R-$2.88-$3; 2,964; $58,000). Business has skidded recently and the show is now slated to close Saturday (15); down to $15,000.

"I Know My Love," Shubert (19th wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,391; $33,000). Rose with the field; $21,900.

"Kiss Me, Kate," Century (62d wk) (M-$6; 1,645; $46,650). Eased a trifle to $43,400.

"Lost in the Stars," Music Box (19th wk) (M-$5.40; 1,012; $26,600). Ebbed slightly to $23,800.

"Member of the Wedding," Empire (10th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,082; $24,000). Back to over capacity; $24,200.

"Miss Liberty," Imperial (35th wk) (M-$6.60; 1,400; $44,500). Climbed back from the previous week's low, but must do considerably better at the lowered scale ($4.80 top week nights and $6 weekends); $20,500.

"Mister Roberts," Alvin (108th wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,360; $34,276). Leland Hayward production going along at powerful tempo; up to $28,000.

"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," Broadhurst (2d wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,160; $29,500). Elaine Ryan-Ludwig Bemelmans play has started promisingly; first full week grossed $21,000.

"South Pacific," Majestic (49th wk) (M-$6; 1,659; $50,186). Never fails to get all the house will hold; bettered $50,600 again.

"Texas, L'il Darlin," Hellinger (16th wk) (M-$6; 1,543; $42,000). Faded a bit to $24,500.

"The Innocents," Playhouse (5th wk) (D-$4.80; 819; $18,740). Tapered a bit further; $12,200.

"The Man," Fulton (8th wk) (D-$4.80; 966; $23,000). About the same; $7,600.

"Tobacco Road," 48th Street (1st wk) (CD-$3; 917; $15,000). Jack Kirkland's sharecropper saga, with a Negro cast, couldn't weather the unanimous critical beating, and closed Saturday night (11) after eight performances; $1,800.

"Touch and Go," Broadway (22d wk) (R-$4.80; 1,900; $46,300). Didn't get the expected response from the lowered scale and is set to quit Saturday (18); slumped to $16,000.

"Velvet Glove," Golden (11th wk) (CD-$4.80; 769; $18,127). No change; $7,900.

"Where's Charley?," St. James (73d wk) (M-$6; 1,509; $37,800). Also registered a healthy rise; $30,500.

Opening

"The Consul," Barrymore (M-$4.80-$6; 1,066; $30,000). Opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, presented by Chandler Cowles and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr.; financed for $100,000, production cost about $68,000 (including $21,000 in bonds) and can break even at around $16,000; opens tonight (Wed.).

Future Dates

"Great to Be Alive," March 23, at Winter Garden; "Wisteria Trees," March 29, at Martin Beck; "Cry of the Peacock," April 6, at Mansfield; "With a Silk Thread," April 17, at Lyceum; "Peter Pan," April 23, possibly at Imperial; "Tickets, Please," April 24, at Coronet.

'Salesman' 22½G In Pitt Week

Pittsburgh, March 14.

Freezing cold weather and continuing economic slump locally brought on by coal strike held "Death of a Salesman" down somewhat in first of show's two weeks at Nixon. But session was still plenty profitable at $22,500. Sale for the windup indicates current gross will be even better than that by a couple of grand or so.

"Salesman" got a unanimous set of the kind of notices every attraction dreams about, and while a little sluggish at the getaway began to go into high at the midway mark. Weekend performances were SRO. Scale was $3.90 top, including federal and city taxes, and while not under ATS-Theatre Guild auspices, subscribers were offered tickets at slightly reduced rates, which accounted for some cash deflections.

Following finish of "Salesman" this week, house will be dark again for a stanza, relighting March 27 with Ballets des Paris.

'MADWOMAN' OFF TO 14G IN 2D WEEK AT DETROIT

Detroit, March 14.

"Madwoman of Chaillot" dropped to $14,000 in the second week at the Cass after a good $19,900 the first week. The Cass goes dark for a week, reopening March 20 with Les Ballets de Paris, in for six days.

Shubert reopened Monday (13) after two months with Blackstone, the magico, in for 10 days.

'Philly Story' Neat In L.A. at $18,000

Los Angeles, March 15.

Biltmore continues to lead the scanty legit field here presently, with "Philadelphia Story" (Sarah Churchill), holding up well in its second week. Only other attraction going at the moment is "The Banker's Daughter," at the small Globe theatre. Okay, too.

Estimates for Last Week

"The Banker's Daughter," Globe (285; $2.40). Still near capacity at $4,200.

"The Philadelphia Story," Biltmore, (1,636; $3.60) (2d week). Sound $18,000, almost as good as first week.

'Congressional Baby' $9,300 in 2 Wks., Albany

Albany, March 14.

"Congressional Baby," staged by Eddie Dowling, drew an estimated $9,300 in two-week tryout at $2.40 top in the 850-seat Playhouse. Gross was racked up in the face of divided notices and unfavorable weather.

It was the first Broadway tryout here in two decades. Nina Foch starred.

551031B

Plays Abroad

Home at Seven

London, March 8.

Alec Rea, E. P. Clift & H. M. Tennent, Ltd., presentation of drama in three acts by R. C. Sherriff. Directed by Murray Macdonald. At Wyndham's, London, March 7, '50.

David Preston	Ralph Richardson
Mrs. Preston	Marian Spencer
Dr. Sparling	Cyril Raymond
Major Watson	Philip Stainton
Inspector Hemingway	Campbell Singer
Mr. Petherbridge	Frederick Piper
Peggy Dobson	Meriel Forbes

From every angle this latest opus by R. C. Sherriff is good theatre. It has a suspenseful story, faultless direction and superb acting, being always slightly under than overplayed, which enhances its dramatic value. With studied casting and adaptation, it might well appeal to U. S. audiences and would make good screen material.

Would a man's honest and decent character change during a spell of amnesia and turn him into a thief and a murderer? This is the appalling situation facing a humdrum, respectable bank official who returns home at his usual time to find his wife in deep distress over his complete absence for 24 hours. He has no recollection of the lost day and tragedy soon follows. The local club funds are missing and one of the stewards is found dead in the woods, with damning evidence revealing the banker was seen the previous night at the safe by his victim, providing a motive for the crime. Also, he had been borrowing money to get out of a jam.

An understanding doctor probes his patient's mind and tries to convince him that inherent goodness couldn't suddenly become vicious even in a mental blackout. He becomes obsessed with the idea he must be guilty, makes all domestic plans for his wife's future and calmly awaits arrest. When a complete alibi materializes, the tortured man seems too dazed with relief to believe it. Unknown to his wife he had been in the habit of dropping in to a saloon before catching his train. A backfiring car in the street had jarred his mental balance due to his nerve-racking experience as an air raid warden. The kindly landlord had cared for him overnight but didn't know his identity until he read the case in the paper.

Ralph Richardson has seldom been seen to better advantage as the sensitive suburban citizen confronted with the awful possibility he may be a Jekyll and Hyde. Marian Spencer is human and natural as his devoted, distraught wife and Cyril Raymond makes a kindly, neighborly personality of the doctor. Meriel Forbes brings light relief as the pert, matter-of-fact barmaid who saves the situation, and Philip Stainton and Campbell Singer make contrasting individuals of the blustering major, chairman of the club, and police inspector. Clem.

The Way Things Go

London, March 6.

Stephen Mitchell (for London Theatrical Productions) presentation of comedy in two acts by Frederick Lonsdale. Directed by Anthony Pelissier. At Phoenix, London, March 2, '50.

Mary Flemin	Glynis Johns
Gerard	Michael Gough
Charles	Ronald Squire
Bishop of Weston	Tristan Rawson
Venetia	Janet Burnell
Ernest	David Stoll
Helen	Margaret Gordon
John	Kenneth More
Anne	Cecily Byrne
Duke of Bristol	Peter Macdonnell
Dr. Shaw	Arthur Hewlett
Tinne	Edward Wheatleigh
An Old Lady	Frances Waring
Robert Flemin	Robert Adair

For his latest comedy, Frederick Lonsdale has picked a trivial, scant plot and embellished it with wit and humor. The result is entertainment with many laughs and an occasional sparkle, but an odd dull patch which minimizes the effect of the play as a whole. Its minor defects notwithstanding, the show is likely to prove a prolonged West End attraction.

The author puts the focus on an impoverished duke and the members of his family, brothers, sisters, aunts and uncles, who are wondering what the future holds in store for them. Only one is high-principled and he inevitably is regarded as the "bolshie" of the family. This view is reinforced when he refuses to marry an American heiress, because he is too poor and she too rich.

This is clearly an ideal vehicle for Lonsdale dialog, although the flimsy situation is difficult to sustain for two-and-a-half hours. Nevertheless, there are frequent scintillating lines and intriguing situations, uppermost of which is a single scene held almost entirely by Glynis Johns (as the heiress) trying to persuade Michael Gough (duke's brother) to seduce her.

That the show is rich in characterization as well as comedy is due as much to the capabilities of the cast as to the script. Gough, as the duke's only non-parasitical relation, strikes a note of complete sincerity, while Miss Johns as the ardent wooer is captivating. She also establishes herself as a first-rate comedienne. Ronald Squire is happily cast as Lord Crane, the duke's uncle who cannot see why a mere $10,000,000 should stand in the way of true love. Kenneth More gives a perfect performance as the whisky-drinking brother and Robert Adair is effectively cast as the heiress's father.

Direction by Anthony Pelissier is highly efficient, and Michael Weight's decor admirably fills the bill. Myro.

PRODUCERS BOOK YOUR SHOW
in the
NATION'S CAPITAL
WASHINGTON, D. C.
At the New Legit Theatre
Now Available
Put this town on your Itinerary
Write or phone
JAY J. HORNICK
c-o I. HIRST ENTERPRISES
803-05 N. 7th St.
Philadelphia, Pa.
LO [illegible]rd 3-0988

June Walker Goes On Despite Cracked Rib

Pittsburgh, March 14.

June Walker, playing femme lead in national company of "Death of a Salesman," opened in Pittsburgh last week (6) against doctor's orders. Three days before, she had broken a rib in Cincinnati, falling against her wardrobe trunk and missed final trio of performances there because of the severe pain.

Physician told actress to rest for at least another week, but she decided only couple of hours before curtain time to do the Pittsburgh preem despite her physical condition. Audience noticed that she winced every once in a while from pain while forced to stoop or bend, but Miss Walker got glowing notices from the reviewers, most of whom were aware of her condition.

Patrick's 'Savage' Headed For Broadway Next Fall

Hollywood, March 14.

John Patrick's new play, "The Curious Savage," will be presented on Broadway next fall by Russell Lewis and Howard Young, possibly with Patricia Collinge as star. Contrary to usual Lewis & Young policy, the show will not be tried out on the Coast.

Patrick, whose previous plays have included "The Hasty Heart" and "The Story of Mary Surratt," is also readying an adaptation of Dickens' "Bleak House" for possible production by Lewis & Young, with Cornelia Otis Skinner figured for the star part. His adaptation of "Earth and High Heaven," the Gwethalyn Graham novel, has been shelved.

'Brig' $18,400 in Split

Reading, Pa., March 14.

"Brigadoon" took in an okay $18,400 in three engagements last week. Musical played Pottsville, Pa., high school Aud. Monday (6); Lyric, Allentown, Pa., Tuesday-Wednesday (7-8) and the Rajah here Thursday-Saturday (9-11).

Show is current at the Ford's, Baltimore.

Stevens Back in Hosp

Chicago, March 14.

Ashton Stevens, vet Chicago drama critic, suffered a severe bronchial infection Thursday (9) and was taken back to Passavant hospital here.

Doctors found it necessary to feed him oxygen over the weekend but he is now recovering.

Henry Sherek is readying "The Cocktail Party" for London, with Donald Houston to play his original role when the show was produced at the 1949 Edinburgh Festival.

Current Road Shows

(March 12-25)

Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo — Erlanger, Buffalo (12); Paramount, Toledo (13); Empire, Syracuse (15); Music Hall, Cleveland (17-19); Bushnell Aud., Hartford (21-22); Aud., Worcester, Mass. (23); Klein Memorial, Bridgeport, Conn. (24) Municipal Aud., Providence (25).

Ballet Theatre — Ryman Aud., Nashville (13); Aud., Jackson, Tenn. (14); Poche, New Orleans (15-18); Lanier H.S. Aud., Montgomery, Ala. (20); Tower, Atlanta (21); College Field House, Clemenson, S. C. (22); Page Aud., Durham, N. C. (23); Academy of Music, Phila. (24); Rajah, Reading (25).

Ballets de Paris — Blackstone, Chi. (13-18); Cass, Detroit (20-25).

"Barretts of Wimpole Street" — Gayety, Wash. (13-18).

"Borschtcapades" — Blackstone, Chi. (20-25).

"Brigadoon"—Ford's, Balto. (13-18); Playhouse, Wilmington (20-22); Community, Hershey, Pa. (23-25).

Cornelia Otis Skinner — Wilbur, Bost. (20-25).

"Cry of the Peacock"—Shubert, N. H. (23-25).

"Death of a Salesman"—Nixon, Pitt. (13-18); Hanna, Cleve. (20-25).

"Diamond Lil" — American St. L. (13-18); Music Hall, K. C. (20-25).

"Goodbye, My Fancy"—Gayety, Wash. (20-25).

"Harvey"—Arcadia, Wichita (13); Convention Hall, Hutchinson, Kan. (14); Home, Oklahoma City (16-17); Convention Hall, Tulsa (18); Memorial Hall, Joplin, Mo. (20); Shrine Mosque, Springfield, Mo. (21); Aud., Memphis (23-25).

"Kiss Me, Kate"—Shubert, Chi. (13-25).

"Lend an Ear" — Court Square, Springfield, Mass. (13-15); Aud., Rochester (16-18); Empire, Syracuse (20-21); Erlanger, Buffalo (22-25).

"Madwoman of Chaillot" — Erlanger, Chi. (13-25).

"Man Who Came to Dinner" — Civic Aud., San Jose, Cal. (12); Mayfair, Portland (14-16); Metropolitan, Seattle (17-22); Temple, Tacoma, Wash. (23-24).

"Mister Roberts," — Colonial, Bost. (13-25).

"Oklahoma!" — Aud., Galveston (13-14); McNesse Jr. H. S. Aud., Lake Charles, La. (15-18); Poche, New Orleans (19-25).

"Philadelphia Story"—Biltmore, L. A. (13-25).

"Private Lives"—Royal Alexandra, Toronto (13-18); Harris, Chi. (20-25).

"Silver Whistle"—Walnut, Phila. (13-18).

"Streetcar Named Desire" (No. 2) — Robinson Aud., Little Rock (14); Iowa, Cedar Rapids (15-16); KRNT theatre, Des Moines (17-18); Orpheum, Davenport (20-21); Palace, South Bend (22-23); Shubert, Detroit (24-25).

"That Lady" — KRNT theatre, Des Moines (13); Orpheum, K. C. (14-18); Municipal Aud., Topeka (20); Convention Hall, Tulsa (21); Home, Oklahoma City (22); Melba, Dallas (23); Worth, Ft. Worth (24-25).

Webster - Shakespeare — City Aud., Pueblo (12); Home, Oklahoma City (14); Convention Hall, Tulsa (15); Arcadia, Wichita (17); H. S. Aud., Topeka (18). Fraser, Lawrence, Kansas (20-21); Technical H. S. Aud., Omaha (23); H. S. Aud., Spencer, Ia. (24); H. S. Aud., Ames, Ia. (25).

"Wisteria Trees" — Shubert, Phila. (13-25).

'Cage,' 'Road'

Continued from page 57

cluding production costs of $54,100, a tryout loss of $7,500, pre-opening expenses of $3,700 and bonds and deposits of $7,700. The play had an operating profit of $1,600 the first week, but had a deficit thereafter and ended with a loss of approximately the entire $75,000.

"Tobacco Road," which made a fortune for author-producer Jack Kirkland in its original, record-breaking Broadway run, was produced for around $15,000 in this Negro edition. It opened March 6 and, despite a straight sharing arrangement with the house and minimum operating costs, went into the red on its single-week engagement. It had a spotty record before reaching Broadway, with some profitable and several losing weeks. Everything considered, the venture lost almost $15,000.

Donagh MacDonagh, Irish playwright who authored "Happy as Larry," seen briefly on Broadway this season, has finished a musical, "Sweet is the Music." Adrian Beecham, son of Sir Thomas Beecham, did the score and holds a two-year option.

'Harvey' Was Sock

Continued from page 58

Comes Across," "Red Harvest" and many others.

Two stories recalled by former pressagent-manager Ralph T. Kettering illustrate some of the "opposite" characteristics of Pemberton. While advance man for Gladys George in "Personal Appearance," Kettering was in Dallas with no booking beyond Houston. After twice wiring the producer a query about where the comedy would go next, the p. a. telegraphed Gus Pitou, of the United Booking Office, to find out the future route, receiving an answer an hour later.

In Los Angeles 10 days later, Kettering received a postcard from Pemberton, which had gone to Dallas and been forwarded along the route, with the desired information. As usual, Pemberton had declined to pay for a wire or a three-cent stamp for a letter when a penny postcard would do. But true to his "opposite" nature, he gave Kettering two unasked-for $50 raises during that season.

Kettering also remembers how, as a practical joke, he sent Pemberton what he thought was a terrible script by a young actor. When the producer decided to do the play and offered him a share of the production, Kettering alibied his way out of the proposition. The show was "Strictly Dishonorable," Pemberton's first big money-maker, which launched the spectacular Hollywood career of its author, Preston Sturges.

The producer's long association with Miss Perry, starting with her staging of "Strictly Dishonorable," began when they struck up an acquaintance during intermission at a concert. Reaching home after that incident, Miss Perry told her husband, "I just picked up a man at the concert, and I'm going to direct a play for him." She subsequently supplied substantial backing for many of the Pemberton productions.

Probably one of his most curious productions was "The Ladder" in 1926, which made theatrical history on Broadway by remaining for 264 performances despite an all-time low in critical reviews and attendance. The play's backer, wealthy Edgar B. Davis, was willing to spend $500,000 on his belief in reincarnation, the theme of the play. Pemberton quit the assignment after several months. During the 1929 depression he was a prime factor in setting up the Stage Relief Fund to assist the needy of the theatre. During World War II he had been active with USO-Camp Shows and the Theatre Wing canteens.

In 1944 Pemberton produced "Harvey," with Frank Fay as star, at the Playhouse, N. Y. Comedy had a phenomenal run and chalked up top grosses. It also copped the Pulitzer Prize. Pemberton formed a road company with Joe E. Brown starred, which was equally successful. Fay later took to the road while "Harvey" was still current on Broadway, with Bert Wheeler, James Stewart and others, taking over the star role at various times. On out-of-town dates Pemberton made intermittent appearances in the play. His last production was "Mr. Barry's Etchings," starring Lee Tracy, which recently closed after a brief run at the 48th Street, N. Y.

In addition to his production activities Pemberton was president of the League of New York Theatres. His wife, Margaret McCoy Pemberton, did the costuming for most of his productions. A brother, Murdock Pemberton, former pressagent and writer, also survives.

Virtually a who's who of show business attended Pemberton's funeral services yesterday morning (Tues.) at Christ Church (Methodist), N. Y. The 60 honorary pallbearers included the producer's close friends among fellow-managers, authors, actors, editors and critics. Lawrence Tibbett sang "The Lord's Prayer" and Bert Lytell delivered the eulogy, calling Pemberton "a friend of the actor" and recalling how, as former president of Equity, he had always had friendly dealings with the producer as head of the League of N. Y. Theatres.

Raps N. Y. Critics

Kansas City, March 14.

Brock Pemberton teed off on the New York critics in an interview with the Kansas City Times here last Thursday (9). This was two days before his fatal heart attack in N. Y. He was in town for the opening of a four-day run of his production of "Harvey," with James Dunn, in the Music Hall.

Much of the current recession in theatre attendance can be laid at the feet of the critics, Pemberton said. They kill a play before it gets going, before the public gets a chance to determine its true value.

A case in point is "Mr. Barry's Etching," with Lee Tracy, which closed last week on Broadway after a four-week run. It wasn't a good play, Pemberton frankly admits, but the public seemed to like it. A few words from the critics, however, and the theatre was empty.

"In the days before the war, expenses weren't nearly as high, and a producer could keep the play going four to six weeks until the play overcame the critics' disapproval, or he was shown that it wasn't a success," Pemberton said. "With expenses like they are today, a producer can't afford to play to empty theatres while waiting for a play to catch on."

N.Y City Ballet Co.

(CITY CENTER, N. Y.)

For the final preem of the six new works done this winter season, the enterprising N. Y. City Ballet Co. presented "Jones Beach" at its home grounds last Thursday (9). The work is a pleasant frolic, eulogizing the familiar summer playground on Long Island. It isn't a great piece of work, but it's topical, fresh and engaging. George Balanchine choreographed the ballet, with an assist by Jerome Robbins. More could have been made of it with some of the satire and slapstick Robbins put into his bathing number in "High Button Shoes," but it's entertaining enough on its own.

The crowded beach, with a bather stepping gingerly to seek out her playmates; the rescue from drowning; the pesky mosquitoes; the jazz hour, picnic and hotdog sequences, are all amusing or tender Americana. Music by a young Dutch composer, Jurriaan Andriessen, is lean, breezy and colloquial, to fit the subject-matter. The young N. Y. City Ballet dancers had a merry romp going through the motion in attractive bathing suits. Robbins and Maria Tallchief, in the jazz sequence; Tanaquil LeClerq and Nicholas Magallanes, in the romantic drowning scene pas de deux, and Todd Bolender, William Dollar and Roy Tobias, as the pest-beset bathers, led the terp festivities admirably. Bron.

Ballet Theatre $26,700 In 6 Southwest Stands

Ballet Theatre racked up some good grosses in mainly one-nighters through the southwest last week. Troupe did an okay $26,700 in six performances.

It played two nights in Dallas for a $10,000 take. Single-nighters were San Antonio, $3,300; Little Rock, $6,000; Oklahoma City, $3,800, and Tulsa, $3,600.

Mpls. Concert Series

Minneapolis, March 14.

U. of Minnesota Artists Course for 1950-51, just announced, will have Lucia Chase and Olver Smith's Ballet Theatre as its principal attraction.

The course also will include six other attractions.

INSURANCE
D. DAVIDSON CO.
INCORPORATED
100 WILLIAM ST.
NEW YORK 7, N. Y.
Bowling Green 9-4420

SUMMER THEATRE
FOR RENT
Excellent location, near New York.
Fully equipped — Well established.
Box V-214-42, Variety
154 W. 46th St., New York 19, N. Y.

SECRETARY
Experienced, efficient. Excellent references; $55-$65.
Please write Box V-4852, Variety
154 W. 46th Street, New York 19

Literati

Ewen's Berlin Blog

"The Story of Irving Berlin" — first book on the songsmith since Alexander Woollcott's biography in the early '20's—will be published by Holt April 10.

Book was written by David Ewen. It is his 25th to be published.

McKay Pub House Sold

David McKay Co., Philadelphia book publishing firm, has been sold to Kennett L. Rawson and Quentin A. Bossi, who will be president and veepee of the new company, respectively. Both are execs of G. P. Putnam's Sons.

McKay firm has specialized in foreign language dictionaries, classical translations, juvenile publications and game books. The new regime plans to extend the publication list by adding fiction, biography and travel. Rawson and Bossi will also set up their headquarters in New York.

Wilson's Reverse "Curtain"

Earl Wilson may do a flying trip to Europe this summer, with a Doubleday book idea as the objective.

This would be something along the lines of "The Iron Curtain Behind Wilson," visiting the other European countries which the N. Y. Post columnist didn't cover last season.

N. Y. Herald-Trib. Votes Guild

Editorial and commercial department employees of the N. Y. Herald Tribune last Wednesday (8) voted 487 to 89 for a shop affiliated with the Newspaper Guild of N. Y.

Ballotting represented a union security vote under the National Labor Relations Board. Previously the Guild also triumphed in a test at Standard & Poor's where employees approved a full Guild shop 211 to seven.

Oursler Parlay

An anthology of Fulton Oursler's "Modern Parables" is being brought out by Doubleday in July. These are his writings in the N. Y. Journal-American and syndicated by Hearst.

In the fall, Oursler's "Why I Know There Is a God" will be published by the same firm.

New Distrib Tests

Cities of Columbus, O., and South Bend, Ind., will be the scenes of an experiment by the Curtis Publishing Co. early in April for the distribution of its periodicals directly to householders instead of by mail, and Reading, Pa., is the scene of a similar experiment being conducted now by Curtis and the McCall Corp.

The plan is being tried out as a result of the House-passed postal bill which would raise rates to some publishers as much as 50%. The plan provides for shipping the magazines to a central point in each city. Salaried agents then pick these up and distribute them to subscribers door-to-door.

Marvin Pierce, president of McCall, said he favored further experimentation with the plan even if the higher postal rates are sidetracked. At the present, in Reading, only Redbook and McCall's are being distributed under the system. When the plan is tried in Columbus and South Bend, additional McCall publications will then fall under the new method of distribution.

Field men of the Curtis Circulation Co., a Curtis subsidiary, were in Columbus studying routes and other details, in preparation for the test.

Betty Cashman's Show Biz Tome

Series of valuable hints to actors in all phases of show business, as well as public speakers, has been rounded up into 19 brochures penned by Betty Cashman and published by Pama Press, N. Y. Overall title is "Personality of You," with Miss Cashman detailing how a thesp in legit, films, television and radio can best punch across his individual personality for top results. Series has three separate categories, devoted to personality, acting and public speaking.

First one details such factors as speech and voice and how to attain vocal, emotional and word color. Second one features a short history of each of the four acting media, details acting techniques and presents short scenes on which readers can try their abilities. Public speaking section stresses the study and use of "personable speech" and lists some speeches of famous personalities in history.

CHATTER

Peter Martin, ABC scripter, has been inked by Little, Brown for a series of three novels.

Howard S. Cady is repping Doubleday on the Coast, with offices in San Francisco.

Beth Harker, formerly with WMGM, N. Y., appointed beauty editor of Seventeen magazine.

Legit-film director Elia Kazan has been profiled by author-scenarity Walter Bernstein for Collier's.

Bennett Cerf tossed a party in Hollywood to introduce Leonora Hornblow's first novel, "Memory and Desire."

Omar Ranney in Hollywood to round up intimate material about the film studios as drama editor of the Cleveland Press.

Max Brand's "Singing Guns," written as a screenplay for Republic, is being issued in novelized form by Fawcett Publications.

Jack Sayres resigned as veepee of Audience Research, Inc., to join Cowles Magazines, Inc., publishers of Look, Quick and Flair.

Robert A. Low, ad manager of Saturday Review of Literature, on leave of absence to join Washington staff of Sen. Herbert H. Lehman.

Vanguard publishing "The Name Is Fogarty" by Jonathan Titulescu Fogarty March 21. It's understood that Fogarty is the pseudonym for novelist James T. Farrell.

Irene Kittle Kamp appointed executive editor of Seventeen mag. She was formerly managing editor of Glamour and theatre critic as well as feature editor of Cue.

R. Kenneth Kerr, publisher of the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette, has been elected president of the Ohio Newspaper Assn., succeeding Roger N. Ferger, publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Robert Downing, production stage manager of "Streetcar Named Desire" No. 1 troupe, has an article on his collection of 5,000 books on the pioneer theatre west of Broadway in the Antiquarian Bookman for March 4.

Overseas Press Club is staging a St. Patrick's Day convocation on Friday (17) evening in its clubrooms. As a gesture of friendship to an ancient rival, Irish OPC members will honor Eugene English, just returned from Europe.

Ezra Stone will write the foreword to "Actor's Auditions" (Henry Koosis & Co.) by Eddie Lawrence, one of the writers of the Kay Kyser show. The book is designed to give actors material that will be of practical aid to them in getting jobs.

Dick Condon, former Disney and 20th-Fox publicity chief, is subject of an article in April issue of Holiday mag on his methods of promoting Paramount's "Samson and Delilah." He's been handling special flack chores on the film for many months.

Annual dinner of the Women's National Press Club will be given for President and Mrs. Truman in Washington on April 15. Of the four press-radio dinners given each year for the President, this is the only event to which men and their wives come together.

"Almost a Hero," M-G scribe Bill Ornstein's short story, appears in "Practical English," currently being distributed to public schools throughout the country. It will be reprinted in April "Literary Cavalcade," monthly supplement by Scholastic Magazines, edited by Eric Berger.

Richard Joseph's "Your Trip Abroad" due from Doubleday April 20. He's travel editor of Esquire with a wide knowledge of many foreign lands as working newspaperman and film publicist, variously stationed in London and Paris, among other capitals. He's an ex-VARIETY correspondent.

National Book Award dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y., tomorrow (16), will be attended by an impressive list of publishers, editors writers, designers, booksellers and manufacturers. More than 100 w.k. authors will be guests at the affair at which awards will be made for fiction, non-fiction and poetry.

Bendix's Deal

Continued from page 1

pear on television, even to denying them right to take bows for teevee audiences at film premieres. Bendix's contract with RKO begins May 1, 1951, immediately upon expiration his present pact with Hal Roach.

Under the new deal he will make two pictures per year, and realize approximately $1,000,000 in earnings. Pact also calls for RKO to pay him every week for the first four years, although he will make but two annually. It is customary for contracts to give stars 40 weeks pay per year, or a lump sum per picture. Bendix will continue to appear on the "Life of Riley" airshow. He has no teevee deal lined up at present, but says he will record a television series on film as soon as his contract goes into effect.

Foreign Filmers

Continued from page 4

the specialized film in the U. S. and taking steps to secure more outlets.

Those at the conclave expressed hope that their objectives would best be accomplished by working closely with theatre men and distributors in the U. S., as well as with producers abroad and the MPAA. A policy planning committee includes Joseph Burstyn, Mayer & Burstyn; Jacques Chabrier, Pathe Cinema; Jack Ellis, Crest Films; Mrs. Gerard; J. H. Hoffberg, Helprin, Edward Kingsley, Oxford Films; Marty Levine, Distinguished Films; George Margolin, Continental Films; Ilya Lopert, Irvin Shapiro, Films International and E. R. Zorgniotti, Lux Films. Next meeting is scheduled for March 28.

India, Ireland Give Nix to Several Pix

Madras, March 7.

Bombay Censor Board banned Russian film, "Triumph of Youth," which ran to good houses both at Bangalore and Madras in the south. Board has also put "Madame Bovary," "Sand of Rope" and "Mourning Becomes Electra" under Adult classification, which means children under 18 should not see the picture.

Walter Wanger's "Rope" also has been put on the banned list by the Bombay Board. "Rope" played at Madras.

'Without Honor' Nixed

Dublin, March 7.

UA's "Without Honor" has been handed a rejection slip by Irish Film Censor Richard Hayes.

Film stars Laraine Day, Dane Clark and Franchot Tone.

'Get-'Em-Out'

Continued from page 3

public view for up to 30 months in order for the lot to whip into release such then topical films as "Air Force," "Edge of Darkness," "Mission to Moscow" and the noteworthy "Casablanca." Holdups worked for the studios by helping to bring in top grosses on the topicals, but style changes and production improvement played havoc with some of the others.

Long Wait On Shelf

Policy is still followed to some extent, but format worked out to get 'em out fast has narrowed down the list of shelved films to only seven at this time, five of them resting at RKO. Of quintet there, two, "Vendetta" and "Mad Wednesday," the Harold Lloyd comedy, are Howard Hughes productions. Both wound up over two years ago. One, "Montana Belle," is an indie purchased by the studio following its completion in November, '48. Remaining pair, "Weep No More," which was canned in May, '48, and "It's Only Money," completed in December of that year, are both straight RKO productions. Only other pair of shelved films are "Curtain Call from Cactus Creek," Donald O'Connor starrer which wound a year ago at UI, and Warners' "This Side of the Law," canned 15 months ago.

Policy of "release as soon as possible" has brought the list of topbudgeters completed but not yet tradeshown to a low of 106. Figure includes all top pictures from the majors, smaller lots and independent efforts. Paramount, for instance, is in the position of having but nine pictures completed which have not been shown to the press. UA has eight. Highest is Warners, with 13.

All in all it's a healthy sign. Policy is keeping the studios up-to-date on what the public wants and allows for a quick shift in case of a trend change.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

No, Mo:, March 10.

Back in the dear old days when a split atom was a smaller catastrophe than a split week, a handsome hunk of olive-skinned manhood visited me at a Riviera villa where I was convalescing as a five-star general in the Great Army of Pain. In his middle years, tall, dark and lean, he looked Spanish but said he was descended from the Dutch branch of the Sephardic Jews, the aristocrats of these people. He told me he had retired from manufacturing knives in Chicago and was going to devote the rest of his life to writing.

He didn't look like a retired business man and he must have seen a look in my eye that suspected as much. So he explained further that he had been general secretary of the Socialist party in America, which could easily account for his leanness. He took a typically American pride, however, in the fact that even as a revolutionist he had made good. He had managed the campaign when Gene Debs parlayed a handful of parlor reds into a million votes. Nobody had done as well before or since in getting money to liquidate capitalism in America.

But he wasn't calling on me to air his past. He wanted to discuss his new career with me.

The other day I saw his face on the cover of The Saturday Review of Literature. It seems he had authored "Two Friends of Man: The Story of William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips and Their Relations With Abraham Lincoln."

It struck me that in 20 years our positions had changed so completely that I ought to be making a pilgrimage to him to pick up his current know-how, or perhaps to salvage his old political organizing ability, because only a few days before reading of his latest literary success I had been lulled into running on the Democratic ticket for the office of lieutenant-governor of California.

The Answer Is, "Not Much"

"What is this?" I heard myself saying to the split personality which shares my thoughts, "an ex-politician comes to me for some guidance in the field of writing and 20 years later he's the bestseller and I am a guy who has written himself out of that class and into politics. How crazy can you get?"

The sketches of the author of "Two Friends of Man" made him look as if he had not gained a pound nor a line in his face in the years since we first talked about the hazards of switching horses in midstream. So it was the same Ralph Korngold. I recalled that his first writings read as if he had read too much of Stendahl. I think at the time he was living on 500 francs a month (about $20) in a little room in Nice, having given the rest of his income and his knife business to his wife and son back in Chicago.

I haven't ever seen his writings of that earlier period in print, so I suspect they ended their days as contrapuntal exercises. But around 1938 a French publisher brought out his "Robespierre and the Fourth Estate." It was subsequently published in this country. It was a very good book and ultimately was published in at least six languages.

Like others of his politics and his creed, Korngold reached America in 1940 with the hot breath of Hitler on his neck. In 1941 I ran into him on upper Broadway, near Columbia U., where he was researching on "Citizen Toussaine." It seems that his studies in the French Revolution and its effects upon slavery had led him to the West Indies, and from there to the U. S.

The only trace of his earlier years as a worker in the field of political economy which could be found in his latest book is that Lincoln does not emerge as the great emancipator. At best he becomes the reluctant emancipator.

Utopias On Paper

Rarely has a writer gone into politics, and succeeded. Now and then one like Bruce Barton, who hovered between inspirational writing and advertising, might succeed for a while in politics, but in the main the thing will destroy them because it is geared for people who are built like tractors not sulkies.

The author who has deserted writing for politics and, seeing himself sinking, has managed to get back to his original calling, is even rarer than a day in June. The only one I remember who managed to cross the stream and get back with his talents reasonably intact was Upton Sinclair. In fact he not only was able to tie together the threads of his broken career but he seemed to write better after the ordeal than he did before. At any rate he had greater popular success. During the period of his political activity he must have written millions of words which were just about as good or as bad as those he published for profit, but only a painstaking research student like Ralph Korngold would ever bother to look up those writings today.

Like Korngold, Sinclair had been a Socialist of sorts. In fact in California he used to run for governor on the Socialist ticket and get 50,000 votes and the next election he'd run for U. S. senator and get 51,000 votes. He persuaded himself and his friends that these small gains represented great progress.

The Old Switcheroo

But then one day in 1934 he decided to take his old bill of goods and stop peddling it on Skid Row. He moved his program almost bodily into the Democratic primaries and the idea took on such momentum that by election time he had moved up from the sort of guy who could get 50,000 votes as a Socialist to the Democratic nominee with 450,000 votes. It looked as if California would surely get a governor who not only could read and write but who could spell.

This so terrified Hollywood that its producers besieged the eastern seaboard to save the state from such a fate. Lord & Thomas' advertising copywriters were brought in, and the billboards were deluged with propaganda to stop this menace to the American way.

The election ended so close that to this day most non-partisans believe that Sinclair actually won but was counted out at the count of nine.

Les Wagner in the L. A. Mirror reported the other day on the wacky character of California politics and dealt me in as proof of same. He told about a state convention in Sacramento when some years ago I was mistaken for Tom Scully, the late Democratic party wheelhorse, described by Wagner as my opposite.

Solon As a Gag Man

Tom Scully was working like a beaver to get himself elected state chairman. I was working just as hard to elect Jimmy Roosevelt instead. An assemblyman assigned to make Tom's nominating speech passed me on the way to the mike.

He dwelt long on the virtues of his candidate, holding back the name to the last gasp.

Then he cried: "I give you that great Democrat, that man among men . . Frank Scully!"

His eyes glazed when he realized he had blown up in his lines. "I mean," he pleaded, "Tom Scully!"

But according to Wagner, I didn't hesitate a second. I hobbled to the microphone and said:

"I heard you the first time. I accept the nomination."

Amusant, but I'm telling Les Wagner et al. that I'm not accepting the nomination this time. Teamed with General Holdridge, who was running among the gubernatorial goobers, I was pencilled in as his lieutenant-governor. But I found I was carrying more weight than a Derby winner. So I pulled out this week to do a book for Holt on flying saucers instead (do I hear prolonged laughter).

Broadway

Geraldine Fitzgerald back from a trip to Ireland Saturday (11) on the America.

Hedy Lamarr, who just completed "Visa" for Metro, left Friday (10) for Florida.

Show biz attorney Paul O'Brien planes to Rome today (Wed.) with his wife for a two-week Holy Year visit.

Ann Vernon, French actress, returned from the Coast Friday (10), where she was screentested by Universal-International.

The Benny Fields (Blossom Seeley) feted backstage at the Capitol theatre, last week, on their 30th wedding anniversary.

John A. Cassidy, RKO Theatres' flack, addressed Fordham U. journalism students last night (Tues.) on theatre publicity.

George Raft off to Europe to co-produce and star in "I'll Get You For This," which Joe Kaufman is making in Britain and France.

Pat Ballard, songsmith, to conduct summer course in television and pop songwriting at N. Y. State Music Camp in the Adirondacks.

The Arthur Schwartzes (Kay Carrington) to Palm Beach this weekend, directly after his final "Inside U. S. A. for Chevrolet" video show.

The Fitzgeralds (Ed and Pegeen) made it an all-Viennese soiree when Anton Karas, composer of "The Third Man" score, gave out with his zither at their apartment last week.

Coleen Gray in from the Coast Monday (13) for short vacation before trekking to Europe to appear in the George Raft starrer, "I'll Get You For This."

George Sidney, and his wife, Lillian Burns, ailing with colds which they contracted shortly after arriving from the Coast for a three or four week vacation.

Ruth Draper, Danny Thomas and former silent screen star Leatrice Joy (Mrs. L. J. Westermark) sailing for Europe today (Wednesday) on the America.

Tenor Donald Dame sailed Saturday (11) for his first concert tour of Europe. Johanna Beek, Dutch concert manager, has set up a tour that will cover six countries.

Henry R. Arias, film exporter and importer, sailed from New York Saturday (11) for a two-month swing through continental Europe, to look over new foreign product.

Paul Henried returned from Cannes this week, where he filmed "Pardon My French" with Merle Oberon. Headed immediately for the Coast to do "Last of the Buccaneers" at Columbia.

Sol A. Schwartz, RKO Theatres veepee-general manager, arrived on the Coast Monday (13) after a stopoff at 20th-Fox's showmanship meet in Chicago. Stays a fortnight in Hollywood to o.o. fresh product.

Charles Schlaifer, head of the ad agency bearing his name, in Washington this week to appear before the Senate Appropriations Committee in behalf of the national committee for mental hygiene.

William Horning, art director for Metro's "Quo Vadis," planed to London and Rome last week in advance of other unit members who start leaving the Coast the end of the month for the Italian production.

Joseph H. Moskowitz, 20th-Fox veepee and eastern studio representative, leaves for the Coast tomorrow (Thurs.) for a series of huddles with production veepee Darryl F. Zanuck and other studio execs.

Bryan Dority, of Chicago, and Robert Kurka, of New York, both ex-GI's, are winners of the fifth annual George Gershwin Memorial Contest. Dority's prizewinning work, "Allegro and Pastorale," will be given its first performance at the memorial concert at Carnegie Hall, March 26.

Washington

By Florence S. Lowe

Nathan Golden, Dept. of Commerce film chief, back on job after two-month tussle with illness.

Alec Templeton, here for a concert, feted with Mrs. Templeton by American Newspaper Women's Club.

Sidney Farr, of Corpus Christi, Texas, joined staff of National Assn. of Broadcasters as an attorney and assistant to Don Petty, NAB general counsel.

MPAA prexy Eric Johnston named by Tau Kappa Alpha, national speech honor society, as year's outstanding speaker in field of business and commerce.

Robert Young, screen and radio star, in town last week for series of p.a.'s on behalf of National Committee for Traffic Safety cause he espouses weekly on his NBC airer, "Father Knows Best."

Tony Muto, Fox Movietone News and 20th rep here, received Army Certificate of Appreciation for his handling of newsreel assignments during and after the war and for work on feature films with a war theme.

Susan Peters, here in "Barretts of Wimpole Street," rates as number one guest of week, with parties by Senator Harry Cain, and Rep. Walt Horan, tossed in her honor, plus invitation to Congressional Club party in honor of the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley.

Rome

By Helen McGill Tubbs

Director John Brahms vacationing in Vienna.

Hollywood scripter Richard Sherman visiting Rome.

W. Lee Wilder left for Hollywood, but returns to Italy in June.

George and Gwynne Pickford Ornstein returned from a month in Austria.

Hollywood scriptwriter Homer Croy seeing Rome on his way back from Egypt.

Walter and Ruth Resce in Italy to do a series of documentaries on Italian subjects.

The Wanda Osiris Revue features the Nicholas Bros. at the Teatro Adriana.

Maurice Chevalier did a sellout concert business at the Teatro Palazzo Sistine March 5.

Faye Marlowe, now playing in "Thief of Venice" in Italy, is the daughter of Fanchon and Marco of Hollywood.

Vittorio DeSica's new film, "Miracolo A Milano," with story by Cesare Zavattini and DeSica, will be made in Milan, starting late March.

Lisbon

By Lewis Garyo

Ferruccio Tagliavini and wife Pia Tassinari singing at the San Carlos theatre until mid April.

Songstress Amalia Rodrigues back from Brazil; will return to Rio de Janeiro in May to work in radio.

American tenor Riccardo Manin (Richard Manning) touring Spain and Portugal with Opera Comica Co. from Milan.

J. G. Priestley's "Dangerous Corner," produced at Estrela Hall, was a sock; will be transferred to the Teatro Nacional.

Spanish revue company of Jacinto Guerrero, president of Spanish Society of Authors and Composers, is at the Teatro Variedades until Easter.

Teatro Apolo's big success at the moment is "The Light of Heart," by Emlyn Williams, starring Alves da Cunha, Maria Lalande and Alvaro Benamor.

Swedish artists Lisa Ericson, Gunnar Bjornstrand, Karl Holmster and Jan Molander, with director Allen Ekelund, in Portugal and Madeira for a month to film location scenes for a pic produced by Aktiebolaget Svensk Filmindustri.

Detroit

Jack Carson and his Hollywood revue to Fox stage March 24.

Russ Hall, former summer replacement announcer at WXYZ, added to regular staff.

Singer Dee Parker and her orchleader husband, Phil Brestoff, opened Sunday (12) at Statler Terrace Room.

Fred Wolf, WXYZ sportscaster, named outstanding sports broadcaster by the Detroit Council of Management Clubs.

John Pival, WXYZ-TV program director, off to Lakeland, Fla., to direct filming of "Detroit Tigers in Training," a video feature.

Barcelona

By Joaquina C. Vidal-Gomis

Dancer Jeanne Essex at Rio nitery.

Angela Maria Vargas, singer, a hit at Bolero nitery.

Hawaiian trio, Tau Moe, at the Bagdad nitery; also the Marley Ballet.

Fernando Fernan Gomez to star in "El Ultimo Cabello," Edgar Neville production.

Annabella, for the time being, has fixed her residence in Madrid.

Henry Salvador at Rio nitery.

Valeriano Leon and Aurora Redondo company give first performance of comedy, "Algo flota sobre Pepe," at the Barcelona theatre.

Quintero and Guillen have presented a new play at the Comedia theatre, "Johnny Lobito," story of a Spanish gangster in New York.

Lola Membrives' legit company has arrived from Buenos Aires. She's due in Madrid April 8 to begin spring season with Peman's play, "Pepa Almuzora."

After minor throat surgery, pic star Alfredo Mayo made final scenes in "Maria Antonia, la Caramba," and is in Barcelona to work on "Debla," the Ramon Torrado production.

London

George Formby in hospital recovering from appendectomy.

Mary Ellis' husband, J. M. S. Roberts, killed while mountaineering in Scotland.

Ben Henry sailed for vacation to South Africa and due back shortly after Easter.

Oscar Barber appointed "drive captain" for RKO's 20th anniversary sales campaign.

Anne Shelton is booked for six weeks with option in South Africa, opening sometime in May.

Gabriel Pascal in town and already lining up cast for filming of Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

Arthur Pincus to Frankfurt and Berlin on the first leg of his continental survey and due back here end of April.

Theo Lageard producing a new Columbia British film "Midnight Episode," in which Stanley Holloway is starring.

Jack Hylton's new "Crazy Show," starring the Crazy Gang, to return at the Victoria Palace tomorrow (16) with $70,000 advance bookings expected.

Councillor Harry P. E. Mears elected new Cinematograph Exhibitors Assn. vice-prexy by ballot, scoring an almost 2-1 victory over his opponent Dennis Walls.

William Douglas Home, author of "The Chiltern Hundreds" and "Now Barrabas," making a stage adaptation of Desmond Young's bestselling book, "Rommel."

John C. Dennett, of the Rank Organization, elected chairman of the Film Industry Publicity Circle, succeeding Jack Griggs, of Associated-British Pathe, who held the post for two years.

Renown Pictures added "Tom Brown's Schooldays" Thomas Hughes' classic, to its 1950 production slate. Film is due to roll in midsummer with John Howard Davis in the title role. Noel Langley is writing the screenplay.

Minneapolis

By Les Rees

Ink Spots underlined for Radio City.

Alexander Uninsky here for piano recital.

Dome has Red Allen orch with J. C. Higginbotham.

Martha Raye back at Club Carnival with Ben Yost Singers.

Carol Bruce and her husband here from New York to visit latter's relatives.

Jimmy Nederlander, manager of Lyceum, legit house, in N. Y. in search for more shows.

Hotel Nicollet Minnesota Terrace has Bert Wheeler, Slate Bros. with Linda Bishop and Cecil Golly orchestra.

Al Bloom, vet exploiteer, handling Northwest Variety club safety slogan contest to raise more funds for its heart hospital project.

Myrus into Hotel Radisson Flame Room for fourth engagement there, heading show that also includes Jean Nelson and Bob Cross orch.

Luba Malina went from Minnesota Terrace here to New York to confer with Jed Harris about role in his forthcoming new show, "Gala Premiere."

Mexico City

By D. L. Grahame

Zully Moreno, Argentinian actress, here to play in a pic.

Pepe Iglesias, top Argentinian comic, here to play El Patio nitery.

John Jones has taken over as WB manager. He came here from Havana.

Pianist Beatriz Murillo and Juan Garcia Esquivel, orch leader, married.

Stella Inda (Soledad Garcia Corona) back to pix after long stage trouping.

Arturo de Cordoba back from a long stay in South America to make three Mexican pix.

Pay paid actors in the 110 pix produced in Mexico last year totaled $1,500,000, a new high.

Cesar Santos Galindo, manager of the Azteca studios, organizing a Mexican pic distribution company.

Opening of the swank 4,000-seat Real Cinema by Luis Castro brings to 111 the number of cinemas here.

Pedro Infante inked for lead in the pic, "Sobre las Olas" ("Over the Waves"), with Ismael Rodriguez to produce.

Rosita Fornes, Cuban comedienne, now a naturalized Mexican. She and her husband, Manuel Medel, Mexican comic, to produce revues here.

Teatro Lirico, revue house, has inked Charles Trenet, French singer, and Sofia Alvarez, Colombian comedienne who's a Mexican stage and screen star.

Government to build a 60,000-seat national stadium here, replacing the 55,000-seat bowl that's being razed to make a site for a 1,000-family apartment house.

The State of Mexico has sold the cinema, Cine Coliseo, it operated for some time in Toluca, the state capital, and will use proceeds to build a 300-bed public hospital.

Sidney T. Brukner, long chief here of Col's Spanish pic production department, readying to make pix in Spanish on his own. A Novelli takes over as department chief.

Manuel Espinosa Iglesias, cinema chain operator, is the new prez of the national cinema operators association. Other officers are Luis R. Montes, veepee; Antonio de G. Osio, secretary, and Adolfo Lagos treasurer.

Pittsburgh

By Hal Cohen

Lois Donn is taking a rest on the orders of her doctor.

Wynters and Angeline playing their eighth date at Terrace Room.

Evans Family signed for spot on Ken Murray's TV show March 18.

Connie Sawyer heads for Europe in July to play London's Colony.

Reuben Rabinovitch in town beating drums for Les Ballets de Paris.

Stan Kenton brings his new band to Syria Mosque for concert Friday (17).

Eddie Klein, former nitery owner, out of danger on Coast after a heart attack.

Bobby Breen joined Doraine and Ellis and Duke Alden in show at Monte Carlo.

Lawrence Welk band gave Bill Green's the biggest Saturday night in its indoors history.

Pneumonia has delayed Gordon Contee's departure for Washington to take over UA exchange.

Billy Hinds pinch-hitting for vacationing Rosey Rowswell on latter's daily WJAS waker-upper.

J. English Smith, head of school of acting at Pittsburgh Playhouse and frequent actor in community theatre productions, has resigned to join promotion staff of Ketchum, Inc., here. New post also washes up Smith's summer-time connection with Civic Light Opera Assn.

Ireland

By Maxwell Sweeney

Forsyte and Seamon in for vaude stint at Olympia, Dublin.

Sean O'Casey reported to have two new one-acters ready for production.

Jimmy Campbell named as resident musical director, Belfast Opera House.

Tenor Christopher Lynch skedded for concerts in July on return from U. S.

Attorney James C. Fagan has been named as 1950 prexy of Irish National Film Institute.

Ida Shepley, Earl Cameron, Dorothy Rolston inked for Illsley-McCabe presentation of "Deep Are the Roots" at Gaiety, Dublin.

Michael A. Bowles, former conductor of Radio Eireann symphony orch, leaving for New Zealand soon on three-year stint as conductor of N. Z. National Symphony.

Buenos Aires

Nini Marshall back from making pix in Spanish studios.

Imperio Argentina signed for broadcasts on Splendid network.

George Abbott giving B. A. the onceover as guest of U. S. Ambassador Stanton B. Griffis.

Mexican pic star Maria Felix to broadcast for Belgrano web in June at $1,000 US per half-hour.

Oliver S. Johnston of Walt Disney Productions in Argentina to inspect Walt Disney Dibujos Animados, B. A. affiliate.

Cinemactress Mirtha Legrand and director husband Daniel Tinayre postponing European junket to make two pix each with Artistas Argentinos Asociados.

Kansas City

By John Quinn

Ice-Capades set for Pla-Mor rink on annual stop April 3-9.

Smiley Hart, AGVA rep, back on job after bout with flu.

Hamid-Morton shows into Muny Auditorium for Police Circus for 10th straight year.

Bob Hope and troupe set for matinee and night March 19 with $4.88 top in Muny Auditorium.

Georgie Gobel set to open at Statler, Washington, D. C., March 20, following fortnight at Eddy's Restaurant here.

El Casbah, dinner-dance spot of the Bellerive hotel, went to a $1 cover charge policy during date of Henny Youngman.

Katharine Cornell returns Orpheum to legit, after a run of films, when she brings "That Lady" in for five-days March 14.

Hess Mayer moving his booking office out of town to take over a deal for booking and publicity at Shamrock hotel in Houston.

Hollywood

Carlton Alsop laid up with virus pneumonia.

Stewart Granger hospitalized with pleurisy.

Ruth Warrick to Phoenix for a strawhat stint.

Jimmy Van Heusen in town after a siesta in Acapulco.

Charles Coburn celebrated his 60th anni as an actor.

Alfred Hitchcock in from N. Y. for huddles at Warners.

Samuel Goldwyn tossed a luncheon for Sarah Churchill.

Jack Baur moved from Warners' casting department to join MCA.

George Jessel opened the National Orange Show in San Bernadino.

Jimmy Durante in from Chicago for L. A. opening of "Great Rupert."

Richard Thorp leaves for London next month to work in Metro's "Ivanhoe."

Ruth Roman laid up with virus while "Lightning Strikes Twice" is shot around her.

Nick Castle named stage director of Academy Awards show at Hollywood Pantages.

Jean Hersholt spoke at Occidental College to honor a delegation of Danish gymnasts.

Marilyn Maxwell joins Bob Hope this week in 12-day personal appearance tour of midwest.

Franklyn Farnum started his 550th film role in "My Friend Irma Goes West" at Paramount.

Henry Wilcoxslon off for the midwest on his fourth plugging tour for "Samson and Delilah."

Charles Heston in from N. Y. for huddles with Hal Wallis about a picture to be made in London next summer.

Albert Rogell was named prexy, pro-tem, of new Irving Thalberg Lodge, an entertainment affiliate of B'nai B'rith.

Ann Blyth won the Ancient Order of Hibernians' award as outstanding Irish personality on screen and radio.

Joe Kirkwood wound up his film acting for a time and left for Georgia to practice for Masters Golf Tournament.

Francis, the mule in Universal-International picture, will be jest-of-honor at luncheon tossed by the N. Y. Comedy Writers Guild.

Frank Whitbeck and Cary Grant made a short subject at Metro for Variety Clubs International's Will Rogers Memorial Hospital at Saranac Lake.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Dick Mabry, WIBG gabber, leaves in April to join staff of new Cleveland station, WDOK.

Sidney Bechet's combo, currently at Rendezvous has had its one-week run extended to three.

Marie Powers will sing the Mme. Flora role in "The Medium," which will be filmed in Italy this fall.

Metropolitan Opera Assn. announced Philly would get only five productions next year. In previous seasons Met has given as many as 22 operas here.

"The Consul," which preemed at Shubert here, picked as the benefit show, which Toscanini will conduct in New York, March 21, to aid the Casa Verdi rest home for musicians which Verdi founded in Italy before his death.

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway

Teddy Powell's orch into Ciro's.

Red Buttons and Sophie Tucker at Lord Tarleton.

Buddy Lester follows Lenny Kent into Five O'Clock club at end of month.

Henny Youngman due to follow Joe E. Lewis into Copa City in two weeks. Lewis opened Sunday night (12).

Leon Enken, Jr., son of the ex-Leon & Eddie's, N. Y., boniface, is a junior partner in the operation of Wolfie's, Miami Beach.

AGVA benefit show at Roosevelt theatre here disappointing in attendance to toppers Renry Duhn and Jack Irving, who are in town.

St. Paul

Only two plays so far on Theatre Guild-ATS series.

Mae West in "Diamond Lil" set for St. Paul Auditorium April 1.

Ice-Capades grossed $117,000 at Auditorium arena Feb. 28-March 5.

Television sets have been selling at rate of 2,000 weekly, but warm weather has started decline in sales.

Macalaster College Choir, under Hollis Johnson, which is on national broadcast over Mutual, finished a record album.

"Excursion" at Edyth Bush Little Theatre. After this show, director Howard Lambert is leaving with no new director selected.

OBITUARIES

SID SILVERMAN

Sid Silverman, publisher of VARIETY, and DAILY VARIETY, died March 10 in Harrison, N. Y. after a long illness.

Further details on pages 1 and 2.

BROCK PEMBERTON

Brock Pemberton, 64, vet legit producer and prexy of the League of New York Theatres, died after a heart attack at his home in New York, March 11.

Details in Legit section.

HENRY CLAY KLEIN

Henry Clay Klein, 50, a vice president of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., advertising agency, died following a heart attack in New York, March 7.

Prior to his connection with BBD&O, he had been associated with Columbia Broadcasting System and J. Walter Thompson agency in Chicago, and wrote and produced radio programs for the network and agency.

In 1935, he joined BBD&O in Chicago as radio director. Five years later he transferred to the N. Y. office, where he assisted Arthur Pryor, Jr., head of radio activities, in developing new programs and talent. He became vice president in 1948.

Survived by wife, son and mother.

WILLIAM WALKER

William J. Walker, 51, vet Pittsburgh exhibitor, died recently in that city. A brother, Harry, who had been his business partner, was killed in an automobile accident several years ago.

Walker was a son of the late Harry C. Walker, who used the name of Harry Williams on the stage and as operator of the old Academy of Music, a burlesque and vaude house, in Pittsburgh. Walker owned and operated two theatres in Crafton, a Pitt suburb, and was a partner with Harry Rachiele in two more in Sharpsburg, Pa. In addition to his wife, he leaves a son, William H., who has been working in his father's theatres while completing a law course at Univ. of Pittsburgh.

ROLAND ROBBINS

Roland Robbins, 72, veteran theatre manager, died in Garfield Hospital, Washington, D. C., March 13 from injuries suffered last Tuesday (7) when he was struck by an auto.

Robbins had been manager of the Trans-Lux theatre in Washington since its opening in 1937. Formerly he had managed Keith's theatre during its years as a vaude house in the national capital

When Keith's switched to a film policy 23 years ago, Robbins retired, but returned to active theatre management to take over the Trans-Lux post.

Survived by wife.

JOHANNES W. MATTERN

Johannes Wolfgang Mattern, 41, former film director, died in Woodstock, Ill., March 5. Mattern fled his native Germany in 1941 in an escape from a concentration camp where he had been imprisoned in an officer's revolt against Nazi regime. While serving in the U. S. Air Force, he assisted in direction of RKO's "Hitler's Children" in 1943.

He was diplomatic coordinator of the First International Fair, an officer in the pre-war German army and author of the book "Four Years of Nazi Torture."

Survived by wife, Florence Bourke Ellis, Chicago book reviewer, and two daughters.

F. STANLEY MARSHALL

F. Stanley Marshall, clarinetist who played in pit theatre orchestras of the Keith Circuit and with the bands of Victor Herbert and John Philip Sousa, died last week in Upper Darby, Pa.

Born in England, Marshall came to this country in 1912 and got his first job with the Ringling Bros. circus band. He played with Leopold Stokowsky's "Band of Gold," largely made up members of the Philly Orch, and for the last 10 years played for Meyer Davis.

Survived by wife and son.

CHARLES O. TENNIS

Charles O. Tennis, 86, former booking agent and legit producer, died in White Plains, N. Y. March 10.

Born at Covington, Ky., Tennis began his career at the age of 18 as an advance booking agent for a circus. Later he managed road companies and in 1912 was an organizer of the Eastern Theatre Managers Assn. in New York.

For several years he booked roadshows and also produced, in association with John Coutts, "When Dreams Come True," "The Kiss Burglar" and "Way Down East." In the first World War he managed shows at Army camps.

Survived by a sister.

STEPHEN MALEY

Stephen Maley, 84, retired comedian, died in New York, March 8.

Early in his career he appeared in "Bulls and Bears" and later in Charles H. Hoyt's "A Black Sheep." This was followed by a long engagement with Peter F. Dailey and with David Warfield, before appearing under the management of Henry W. Savage in George Ade's "The College Widow."

Survived by wife, Florence Turner Maley.

SAMUEL W. SEGAL

Samuel W. Segal, 51, member of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, died after a heart attack during the orchestra's concert at Madison, Wis., March 11. He collapsed over his drums and, sliding to the floor, tried to crawl off the stage. Other orchestra members helped him backstage where a physician from the audience pronounced him dead.

Survived by wife and two daughters.

MARGUERITE DE LA MOTTE

Marguerite De La Motte, 47, former actress who had appeared in silent films, died in San Francisco, March 10.

Among films in which she appeared with Douglas Fairbanks Sr., were "Arizona," "Mark of Zorro," "Three Musketeers" and "The Iron Mask."

With the advent of sound pictures, she made only a few talkies, the last in 1940, with Harrison Ford, in "Man's Woman."

She was married twice. One of her husbands was the late John Bowers, an actor.

Survived by a brother.

MARK WILSON

Mark Wilson, 61, who had been publicity director for the Shuberts in the Philadelphia area since 1914, died at the Variety Clubs-Will Rogers Memorial sanitarium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., March 8.

Prior to joining the Shuberts, he had operated his own publicity office, mainly representing operatic and concert artists, and for several seasons had handled publicity for the Steel Pier, Atlantic City.

Survived by wife and daughter.

CLAUDE WARFORD

Claude Warford, 72, composer and singer, died in Keyport, N. J., March 11.

Warford had more than 40 compositions published, with his best known songs being "Dream Song," "Earth Is Enough" and "Three Ghosts." They were featured by many artists, including Mary Garden, Ezio Pinza, Frieda Hempel and Reinald Werrenrath.

Surviving are two brothers.

GEORGE RAIKES

George Raikes, president of radio station WMCK in McKeesport, Pa., died March 6 in that city. Raikes had organized WMCK just a few years ago and it has grown into one of the outstanding sports stations in the district.

In addition to his wife, he leaves a daughter.

JACK EVANS

Jack Evans, 57, western actor and honorary mayor of Gower Gulch, died March 14 after a heart attack at his home in Hollywood.

In the silent days Evans was a contract player. In later years he appeared now and then as an extra.

Father, 80, of Harry Greenman, managing director of the Capitol theatre, N. Y., died in Buffalo, March 6. Survived by three other sons and three daughters.

John F. Knoepfler, 63, veteran member of Local No. 143, IATSE, died of heart ailment in St. Louis, March 6.

Father, 68 of Jack Carson, screen actor, died March 5 in North Hollywood.

Father of Russell A. Bovim, manager of Loew's State, St. Louis, died in Milwaukee, March 5.

Edith E. Miller, 62, studio make-up artist for more than 20 years, died March 14 in Hollywood.

Father, 84, of Edward Small, head of Edward Small Productions, died in Miami, March 10. Two other sons, Morris, head of the Small Co. Agency; Joseph, exec with Edward Small Productions, and a daughter also survive.

Mother of Harry and Leonard Romm, N. Y. talent agents, died March 11 in Philadelphia.

Father, 71, of Dean Jagger, screen actor, died March 7 in Columbia City, Ind.

'South Pacific'

Continued from page 1

adapted from novels, the former from Edna Ferber's story of the same name and the latter from James Michener's "Tales of the South Pacific." Music for "Show Boat" was composed by Jerome Kern, while that for "South Pacific" is by Richard Rodgers.

With the original production of "South Pacific" making a weekly profit of more than $10,000, a second company is about to go into rehearsal. It is budgeted at $150,000 and is being financed with profits from the Broadway edition. Because of its probable lower operating cost, it is likely to have larger -operating profits than the original.

Indication of the draw of the touring edition is the unprecedented advance sale for the two-week engagement in Cleveland, where the show opens April 24. In response to a single Sunday ad in the local papers, $738,000 in mail orders were received. Since the capacity gross for the run is only $135,000, the balance of $603,000 had to be returned to the appicants.

Subsequent engagements for the show will include 10 weeks each in Los Angeles and San Francisco, both of which are expected to be completely sold out in advance. On that basis, it's figured that a third company will have to be formed as soon as possible, and that even a fourth edition may ultimately be necessary, if it can be cast.

Gravy Train

Because of its production setup, under which Rodgers and Hammerstein are partnered with stager Joshua Logan and Leland Heyward, the show is a highly profitable one financially for the creator-presenters. The royalty arrangement gives Rodgers and Hammerstein 9% of the gross, with 1% going to original author, Michener, and 3% to Logan. At the $50,600 weekly gross, that amounts to $2,277 each for Rodgers and Hammerstein, $506 to Michener and $1,518 to Logan.

Of the approximately $10,000 weekly profits, $5,000 goes to the backers. The management's half is split two-to-one between Surrey Enterprises (the Rodgers & Hammerstein producing firm) and Logan and Hayward. Rodgers and Hammerstein divide their end evenly, giving them about $1,667 each (in addition to their author royalties). The Logan-Hayward one-third split is divided two-to-one between the two, giving Logan about $1,111 (besides his director royalty) and Hayward about $556. Although he is billed as co-author of the show's book, Logan does not share in the author royalties.

Others getting a royalty from the show are the stars, Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza, with 7½% each (they were upped from 7% when the production cost was earned back) and scene designer Jo Mielziner, who gets a straight $100 a week.

"South Pacific" was financed at $225,000 and cost $163,000 to bring to Broadway, having about broken even on the tryout tour. It has made an operating profit of approximately $500,000 as of last Saturday night (11).

Folsom Thinks

Continued from page 1

continues the RCA topper, "and what we now give them on the telescreen must appeal to those so-called 'lost' film audiences concerning which I read so much about in VARIETY and hear from almost every film executive with whom I come in contact. We only can give our present television audiences 10-year-old films which, apart from their poor quality, are also low-key in general standard, i.e. as compared to the manner in which Hollywood has moved forward. Show 'em a little soupcon of 'Samson and Delilah,' or 'Cinderella,' and like the time-honored letter-carrier neither sleet nor storm nor hail will keep 'em home if there is a want-to-see type of show."

Joseph H. McConnell, whom Folsom recently spotted into the presidency of NBC, when Niles Trammell moved up to chairman of the board, added: "Don't forget that television has already passed the novelty stage. It's moved so fast that it even surprises us. We give the public peak quality talent, as for instance our 2½ hours on Saturday night from New York and Chicago. When you do that, admittedly even the most jaded will be intrigued by the convenience of what is to be had at home. But let Hollywood have a strong enough counter-attraction and television nor anything else this side of Betty Grable will keep 'em home."

Folsom is close to the theatre end through his direct contacts with film toppers like Nick Schenck, Spyros Skouras, Charlie Skouras, the Warners, Barney Balaban, Paul Raibourn, Si Fabian, et al., because of the large-screen theatre TV aspects. Hence he sees the picture from both TV's subjective sales merchandising-programing and the problems facing production-exhibition on the film theatre side.

Reversing Time-Cost Charts

McConnell makes the observation that a new phase for talent in AM broadcasting versus TV is this: Radio spends about 25% for talent and 75-100% as much for time facilities. It's the reverse in TV: The shows cost twice as much as time facilities. In short, the ratio is 1-to-4 in AM; but 2-1 in TV.

That may be interpreted to mean that when and if Hollywood becomes wedded to television, the long end of the income will go for the shows, rather than the time sales. The hint that Folsom and McConnell might want to convey is that Hollywood—i.e. the shows, talent, production, writing and all kindred components—may realize much more generously from video than ever fell to the lot of the film production phase, per se..

Oblique to this is the presumption that if, as and when some theoretical "Ford Motors Corp. presents a Super-Hollywood Production titled So-and-So, starring such-and-such Top Cast Names," that $1,200,000 production, let us assume, would be underwritten by Ford for $2,000,000 for a certain pseudo-"first run" on TV. That insures an immediate profit; no elaborate sales organization; no hassle with exhibitors on terms, conditions, clearances, Governmental policing, etc. Naturally, it is not as pat as all this. Apart from the theatre-owners' vital concern, labor's position is potent, because such a move must affect an army of theatre staffers, from high to lowliest duties. But that is some of the future thinking in TV-Hollywood circles.

That Hollywood is anxious to maintain the status quo is very understandable. Fact of the matter is that going-to-the-movies is too much of an American institution to be swept aside so summarily by the most scientific of electronic showmanship.

But, on the other hand, it is an open secret that many a home with linoleum on the floors has an expensive TV set, and perhaps that represents the family's entire amusement expenditure, for the first year anyway. This is Hollywood's concern.

It is because of this, if Hollywood wants to ressurect mass interest or disprove the canard that quality has deteriorated, that Folsom, McConnell & Co. urged the usage of TV to plug Hollywood. "It's just too good a showcase right now to ignore," says Folsom.

MARRIAGES

Joy Hodgkinson to Hugh Burden, London, March 4. Both are British legit actors.

Lucille Allen to Frank Clark, Malibu, Calif., March 5. Bride is a screen actress; he's a writer.

Mary Anne Goetz to Raymond Crawford, Chicago, March 9. Bride is dancer in "Kiss Me, Kate;" he's electrician at Silver Frolics, Chi.

Carolyn Gilbert to James Fitzgerald, Chicago, March 6. Bride has tele show on ABC-TV.

Fed License

Continued from page 1

foreign commerce, which Johnson chairmans.

Under terms of the proposed bill, which provides for a licensing setup under the Dept. of Commerce, each actor would pay $1 to appear in a picture and producers would be forced to pay $100 to turn out the film. Nobody would be eligible for a license who had been found guilty, according to Johnson, "of any crime involving moral turpitude."

Distributors, for their part, would be forced to pay $10,000 for a license and Johnson would make it a crime to distribute an unlicensed film. Similar license would have to be taken out for foreign films but with one extra proviso—that "the producers of, and actors and actresses in such motion pictures are not criminals or persons of ill repute." License bureau, Johnson pointed out, would take in about $4,000,000 per year under the system.

In his accompanying speech, the senator also attacked Motion Picture Assn. of America prez Eric Johnston, questioning Johnston "on what basis he permits films to be shown in America which are produced by persons who themselves are barred from setting foot on American soil on the grounds of moral turpitude." He added: "Congress can and should curb by a law the movie industry's people-be-damned attitude in such a case so that never again with impunity will Hollywood run roughshod over the righteous indignation of an aroused American public." He noted that Hollywood, for the most part, is made up of "respectable, God-fearing people."

Johnson pointed out that A. B. ("Happy") Chandler, as czar of the baseball industry, has met his responsibility with "courage, decisive action and good judgment, while unfortunately the motion picture czar (Johnston) is merely the front for the money-changers of his association."

Miami Beach

Continued from page 1

uor bottom was charged during Berle's stand for $4,000 nightly. Patrons resented the high nicks.

Convincer on cafe operators' contention that the bonifaces have gone beyond the limits in prices being paid to acts and on menu charges comes with the realization that this season brought as many tourists as ever to the resort. It's felt that the vacationers were careful on how they spent their money.

A major factor that makes the booking of expensive acts a risky proposition is the disappearance of late business. Dinner shows find the niteries jammed, but there's no repeat for the late show, upon which nitery owners depend for profitable liquor trade.

Smaller spots with lower tariffs have been getting by. Clover Club in an illustration. With the Jan Murray, Vagabonds, Rose Marie triple parlay in its 12th week, plussed by a $3.50 food or beverage (for supper) minimum, spot has been jammed every night, making summer and fall losses just a memory. Same goes for stripperies and intime rooms such as Park Avenue Club (Charlie Farrell), Bar of Music (Bill Jordan), and Allan Gale (Celebrity Club).

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Loudermilk, daughter, Santa Monica, March 9. Father is a TV actor known as Cowboy Slim.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ramsey, twins (son and daughter), Hollywood, March 9. Father is a technician at Metro.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gardner, daughter, Van Nuys, Calif., March 9. Father is chief announcer at KLAC.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Morris, daughter, Burbank, March 4. Father is a screen actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Draper, daughter, New York, March 6. Mother is the former ballerina, Heidi Vosler; father is also a dancer.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lester, son, New York, Feb. 18. Mother is legit photographer Eileen Darby; father is general manager of Graphic House photo syndicate.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kravitz, daughter, New York, March 12. Father is a pressagent.

NOW ON Television

FREDDY MARTIN

AND HIS ORCHESTRA

Martin's new T-V show, "THE BAND OF TOMORROW," makes its debut over KTTV, Los Angeles CBS affiliate, in April. The finest amateur talent in the nation will be featured in addition to the famous Freddy Martin orchestra. Under the eye of the television camera, Martin will discover outstanding musical talent and will, week by week, build a BAND OF TOMORROW from among the musicians, singers and soloists who will compete for a spot in the orchestra. A new BAND OF TOMORROW will be built in each region of the country every 13 weeks. Thanks to Harrison Dunham, general manager KTTV.

business is still booming!

FREDDY MARTIN SMASH AT PALLADIUM!

By popular demand, the only band to play nine consecutive weeks at the Hollywood Palladium — The first band to play a return engagement within six weeks — The highest attendance record since the war! Thanks to Earl Vollmer, general manager, for helping to make the Freddy Martin Palladium engagement such a smash success.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS AT THE ST. FRANCIS!

The biggest opening night the Mural Room has seen in twelve years took place February 28, according to Dan London, general manager of the St. Francis Hotel. (And in the middle of Lent, too!)

TOP RECORD HITS ON RCA-VICTOR!

Number one best seller on the RCA list still selling big: "I've Got a Lovely Bunch of Cocoanuts."

The NEW Jerome Kern album has been acclaimed by juke box operators and disc jockeys all over the country.

Personal Management:
ARTHUR MICHAUD
9111 Sunset Boulevard
Hollywood 46, Calif.

MANAGEMENT: MCA

FILMS RADIO VIDEO MUSIC STAGE

VARIETY

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 19, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $10. Single copies, 25 cents
Entered as second-[illegible]s matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879
COPYRIGHT, 1950, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

VOL. 178 No. 2 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1950 PRICE 25 CENTS

MAR 24 1950
108

U.S. EDICT AS SPUR TO MUSIC BIZ

'Variety'

With the death of Sid Silverman, VARIETY ownership has passed on to his son, Syd, just past 18. It remains a wholly-owned Silverman property, with no change in management, policy or direction, following the precepts and standards set down by Sime Silverman when he founded the paper in 1905. VARIETY marks its 45th anniversary next winter.

Syd Silverman graduates from Manlius Military School in June and enters college in the fall. His virtual 100% stock control and ownership of VARIETY and DAILY VARIETY, the latter published in Hollywood, is held in trust for him until he comes of age. Meantime, the same editorial and business direction of both publications remain as before.

Senator Johnson's Anti-H'wood Blast Inspired by Rick Ricketson Boom?

Washington, March 21.

Capital dopesters see more politics than morality behind the charges hurled at the film industry by Senator Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado, the past week. They view the attack as a cleverly-conceived, double-pronged jab at the growing boom in Denver to elect Frank H. (Rick) Ricketson, Jr., to the governorship.

Ricketson is president of Fox-Intermountain Theatres, a 20th-Fox subsid. He's also a Republican. Senator Johnson is a Democrat. Ricketson two years ago was urged to run against Johnson for the Senate, but refused. The anti-film drive by Johnson is seen as a body-block in the event Ricketson should heed the bid to run for governor in the August primaries.

Johnson himself is in no danger of losing his post, since he won in 1948 and will serve until 1955. His move is seen, therefore, as being made for his party, so that in the event Ricketson runs, he'll be immediately tied up with the big, bad people of Hollywood who are responsible for "Stromboli," Ingrid Bergman and the myriad of other changes Johnson has seen fit to hurl.

All that is aside from the usual

(Continued on page 4)

N.Y.-L.A. Coaxial Cable Still Nowhere in Sight; Video Link a Year Off

Washington, March 21.

It's going to be a long time before television networks extend from coast to coast. Even American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which will make the interconnections, doesn't know just when the twain will meet. It depends on a number of factors, including the company's telephone expansion plans. Coaxial cable usually carries telephone as well as television transmissions.

Testifying before the FCC last week, Frank A. Cowan, engineer for A.T.&T.'s Long Lines Dept., said that even if work were to start immediately to modify the telephone coaxial in the southern route to the west to carry TV, it would take a year to do the job. Cowan asserted that A.T.&T. "will probably" undertake this project,

(Continued on page 63)

TV Upsurge Cuts Into Home Movie Projectors

Television is being accused this week of killing off another industry—the so-called home movies. Retailers are complaining that, with TV spreading so rapidly in the homes, their sales of 8m and 16m projection equipment, as well as film cameras, have fallen off drastically.

Rentals of film, especially those with sound, have similarly slumped. In several cases, however, it has been found that the individual customers, who already own projectors, will come back to rent films after the novelty of their video sets has worn off. In addition, many parents still rent film for kid parties, since TV programming to date is not yet selective enough.

Some Drive-Ins May Play Acts

Philadelphia, March 21.

Drive-in theatres are being encouraged to book live talent by the National Assn. of Drive-In Theatres. According to the organization, number of exhibitors turning to live talent as a business stimulant is on the increase. Since drive-ins aren't built with stages, some theatres have put on the shows on the roof of the concession building, while others have built platforms to accommodate the acts.

One group, the Sleepy Hollow Gang, a hillbilly unit, has already played many of these spots.

'GO TO SLEEP' BARRED BY CBS BECAUSE OF LYRIC

Columbia Records' top current pop tune, "Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep," has been put under a broadcast ban by CBS because of an alleged suggestive lyric.

CBS directive not only hit its disk company subsid, but its top airlane salesman, Arthur Godfrey, who duets the number with Mary Martin on the platter.

'STAGNATION' HIT BY ASCAP DECREE

By ABEL GREEN

The Government's crackdown on the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers via consent decree last week, its second since 1941, should have a salutary effect on American popular music. It figures to be the shot-in-the-arm that Tin Pan Alley has been lacking for years. In fact, ever since it graduated from the now-historic West 28th street, N. Y., where the late Monroe H. Rosenfeld, a Broadway newspaperman and songsmith of another era, first dubbed it an "alley," the music business perhaps has become too plush because of its sleek associations with the chromiumed environs of the ad agency and Radio City set.

It is probable that the decree may inspire the music biz to stop resting on its laurels and start writing the type of songs which made it a great institution. As it has been of late, a sorry commentary within the trade is that, for years, those "good old solid songs"

(Continued on page 49)

New Price Slash Due on Tele Sets In Booming Market

Chicago, March 21.

Television set manufacturers, currently riding the crest of the greatest sales boom in their short history, plan another slash in retail prices of 15%-23% when the new price structures become effective about July 1. Set producers anticipate no foreseeable end to the boom so that the price cuts, while dictated partly by competitive reasons, will pass on savings to consumers resulting from lower production costs.

With only a few new stations having taken the air during the last several months, manufacturers are looking for other reasons for their tremendous sales than the opening of new TV market areas. Majority of them believe the chief factor is the recent GI insurance refund, pointing out that TV probably benefited more from the vet's bonus than did any other industry. Also playing a part in the sales have been increased program quality, lower prices effected shortly before Christmas, larger screens and better cabinet styling. As one manufacturer put it, "the sets are now designed as furniture, not as electronic instruments."

Of equal importance is the psychological reaction among the general public, referred to by manufacturers as the "period of germination" having set in. With TV now practically a byword in most

(Continued on page 61)

Only the Peanuts Remain the Same; Circuses Star 'Howdy Doody,' Hopalong

Two top circus giants are girding for a colossal battle of the Big Tops this season with two major television stars as bait. It will be Hopalong Cassidy vs. "Howdy Doody." The Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus is countering the attraction of Bill Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy), featured in the combined Cole Bros.-Barnes Bros. outfits, with the booking of "Howdy Doody." The prize in this battle is not only the lush booking at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., in 1951, but also supremacy in the entire outdoor field.

Battle lines are being drawn so that the crucial actions will be fought in cities where there are most television sets. Barnes-Cole is designing its schedule so that there will be at least one head-on clash, probably in Philadelphia. The Hopalong show is expected to take advantage of Boyd's video lure. When Ringling plays Philly, it's likely that Hoppy will put up his (Cole-Barnes) tent in the Municipal Stadium of that city so that several days of the engagement will coincide. It will be the first time that any two major circuses will play one city simultaneously.

Whatever outfit wins this battle is expected to get the Madison Square Garden stand from 1951 on. Since the Ringling lease at the Garden expires at the end of the Ringling's engagement on May 7, Garden is now in a position to make a new deal with whichever outfit it chooses.

Another important phase in the

(Continued on page 63)

Armstrong Turns Into Hot Literary Property

Louis Armstrong, currently on tour in the west, has turned into a hot literary property. Harper Bros. has already commissioned Satchmo to write his autobiography, while Doubleday is planning to publish a study of the jazz man, who will celebrate his 50th birthday July 4.

Also in the offing is a legit adaptation of Armstrong's autobiog in which Satchmo would star. Joe Glaser, Armstrong's manager, is trying to set up the play for production in London next fall.

Is There a Hope In Ch'field's Future?

With the Bob Hope-Lever Bros. splitup at the end of the current season now considered a foregone conclusion, some quarters say don't be surprised if the comedian winds up in the Chesterfield sponsorship columns when the '50-51 curtain goes up in September.

The Liggett & Myers tobacco hierarchy became Hope-conscious when the comic a couple months back, along with Perry Como and Arthur Godfrey (also Chesterfield salesmen), helped originate the Como NBC show out of North Carolina in connection with the company's plant expansion. Fact that the Como stanza shot up from 70th position on the Hoopers into a Top 10 payoff was attributed in large measure by the Chesterfield boys to Hope's contrib.

With Chesterfield now doing some of the fanciest ciggie spending with Bing Crosby, Como and Godfrey, a Hope acquisition (a $25,000 per week package) would hike the budget to an all-time radio high.

SAM BRONSTON'S FILM SHOT INSIDE VATICAN

After 15 months in Rome, Samuel Bronston, film producer and production chief of All-Nations Television Corp., has returned to the U. S. with an all-color film, shot inside the Vatican. Pic is slated for theatrical distribution this summer. In addition, footage will be broken up into a series of shorts for the video market.

Pic, termed "a cavalcade of Christianity," includes shots of the carefully-guarded excavation under the basilica of St. Peter's Cathedral. Still photos of this operation are scheduled to appear in a forthcoming issue of Life mag. Film will also include shots of current Vatican activities.

Cardinal Spellman's Reported Frown May Nix 'Cardinal' for Pix

Word that has seeped through to film companies that Cardinal Francis J. Spellman is not kindly disposed toward "The Cardinal" has cooled whatever interest there was among major film companies for the Henry Morton Robinson novel. Deal is still pending, however, by which Marshall Field might finance production of a film version by Louis de Rochemont.

Yarn just wound up seven-part serialization in Cosmopolitan and is now being published by Simon & Schuster simultaneously in a $1 and $3.75 edition. Field's interest in the film version stems from his principal stock ownership of S&S.

Major company interest has wavered from intense to nil in the fictionalized story of a top churchman. There were high hopes during early part of the Cosmo serialization, but they appeared to die off later; and now, with Cardinal Spellman said to be viewing the project askance, there's no major visible interest at all.

The de Rochemont deal is temporarily stalled. If it goes through

(Continued on page 55)

DeHavilland, Crawford, 'King's Men' Set Pace in Voting for Oscar Awards

Hollywood, March 21.

DAILY VARIETY's third annual poll on the leading contenders for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Oscar Derby, based on a tally of 20% of the vote, was completed last night. Of the Academy's approximately 2,000 members, more than 10% didn't participate in the annual voting. Explanations were that all pix hadn't been seen by those who refrained from the voting, that many were out of town and hadn't returned their ballots, and a few stated they hadn't voted as they were not satisfied with some of the nominations.

A number of members voted only on a portion of the selected nominees.

Results in top classifications were:

Best picture, "All the King's Men."

Best actress, Olivia de Havilland.

Best actor, Broderick Crawford.

Best supporting actress, Mercedes McCambridge.

Best supporting actor, Dean Jagger.

Best director, Joseph L. Mankiewicz.

Best song, "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Best screenplay, "Letter to Three Wives" (20th).

Best original story, "Stratton Story" (M-G).

Final tally of straw poll shows winners in each classification out in front by wide margins. Here are the breakdowns:

Best picture: "King's Men," 139 votes; "Letter to Three Wives," 83; "Heiress," 56; "Battleground," 55; "Twelve O'Clock High," 32.

Best actress: Miss DeHavilland ("Heiress"), 179; Susan Hayward ("Foolish Heart"), 78; Jeanne Crain ("Pinky"), 47; Deborah Kerr ("Edward, My Son"), 29; Loretta Young ("Come to Stable"), 19.

Best actor: Broderick Crawford ("All King's, Men"), 156; Kirk Douglas ("Champion"), 85; Richard Todd ("Hasty Heart"), 46; Gregory Peck ("Twelve O'Clock High"), 39; John Wayne ("Sands Iwo Jima"), 35.

Best supporting actress: Mercedes McCambridge ("All King's Men"), 146; Ethel Waters ("Pinky"), 86; Ethel Barrymore ("Pinky"), 61; Elsa Lanchester ("Come to Stable"), 34; Celeste Holm "Come to Stable"), 25.

Best supporting actor: Dean Jagger ("Twelve O'Clock High"), 138; Ralph Richardson ("Heiress"), 85; James Whitmore ("Battle-

(Continued on page 56)

Kay Buckley's Pic Pact; Ex-N.Y. Nitery Beaut

Another from the Versailles-Copacabana (N. Y.) nitery lines to click with a Hollywood contract is Kay Buckley who starts a straight one-year Columbia contract April 1, plus the usual options. Col prexy Harry Cohn personally set the deal. Van Heflin "agented" it at a party which Miss Buckley attended, where she attracted Cohn's attention.

Like Lucille Bremer, who went from the Copacabana to a Metro contract, Miss Buckley went from cafes to stock, then with Bert Lahr in "Burlesque" in his successful Broadway revival, and later in the strawhats.

Stolz's New One Looks OK

Munich, March 21.

"Fruehling im Prater," Robert Stolz's newest operetta, opened auspiciously Sunday (19) at the Nuremberg Opera House. Piece appears assured of a long run.

Among first nighters were British producer Prince Littler and playwright Guy Bolton, both of whom flew in from London for the preem.

Plush Rome Club, Built On ECA $, Has Strange 'Exclusive' Standards

Rome, March 21.

Economic Cooperation Administration, which recently agreed to provide funds for a series of film shorts to promote Italian tourism by Americans, is causing some elevated eyebrows among U. S. taxpayers here by allowing its coin to be used for construction of a swank club to which blue blood or a documented facsimile thereof is the sole ticket of admission.

Club is called The Open Gate. It was erected as a hangout for distinguished guests to Rome. It cost about $15,000 to build. The money came out of a $3,000,000 allocation by ECA to the Italian government for construction and reconstruction to better take care of tourists during the Holy Year.

The overall allocation was made by ECA when the Italians realized that present accomodations wouldn't suffice for the large number of tourists and pilgrims due during 1950. As a result, Rome, Genoa and Naples now boost of Pilgrim's Specials, where travelers can get a clean bed and three meals a day in a reconstructed palazzo for 1,700 lire (less than $3). There are 17,000 such accommodations available.

The Open Gate Club is something else again. It consists of a swank nitery, lounge rooms and a bar and grillroom. Here one can entertain at breakfast, luncheon, cocktails, tea or dinner in exceedingly plush surroundings. Late in

(Continued on page 55)

Brit. Studio Bars Press After Peck Interview

London, March 21.

A Sunday newspaper interview with Gregory Peck has resulted in the closing of Denham Studios, where Raoul Walsh is directing Warner Bros.' "Capt. Horatio Hornblower," to the press.

Interview was published in the Sunday Express under the name of show columnist Logan Gourlay, following a visit to the "Hornblower" set. His report of the interview ended with the following comment: "What is the toughest job he's had to face? He told me that it is making a bad picture when everyone, except the director, knows it's bad. 'You try to do something about it. Usually it's hopeless. It's like swimming upstream.' He did not say—and I did not ask—if he is swimming upstream as Captain Hornblower."

The ban imposed by Walsh applies not only to the press, but also to normal studio visitors.

3 22

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for One Year / Two Years

To .... (Please Print Name)

Street

City . Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$10.00 Two Years—$18.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 19, N. Y.

WILL MAHONEY

THE INIMITABLE

Currently LATIN QUARTER, N. Y.

VARIETY (March 15) said—"Will Mahoney, back on Broadway, hasn't lost the knack of being a show-stopper . . . sock items . . stopped the show cold."—Jose.

Booked By

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.

'UNEXPURGATED' VERSION OF 'STROMBOLI'

Rome, March 21.

Roberto Rossellini has an ace-in-the-hole in his battle with RKO over the latter's editing and exploitation of "Stromboli." It's in the form of a private print of the film which was cut and scored by the Italian producer-director. Whether Rossellini's version of "Stromboli" will go into commercial distribution, however, will hinge on the outcome of legal contests between him and RKO.

Surprise aspect of Rossellini's "Stromboli" was its copping of the top film prize awarded annually by the Italian government, the Rome Prize for Poetry, Drama and Cinema. Until the last minute, it was thought that "Bicycle Thief" would win handily. The unpredictable Rossellini, however, completed his "Stromboli" print, gave a showing for the committee and created so much comment that it was necessary to screen "Bicycle Thief" over again. Final verdict gave the palm to Rossellini.

It's not yet known whether RKO's contract with Rossellini gives him the right to dispose of the private print as he sees fit. It's understood, however, that the legal pact has enough loophopes to permit Rossellini to show his version in some countries at least.

Meantime, Joe Bellfort, RKO Continental manager, is heading to Italy from Paris to ready a European version of "Stromboli," which will run 25 minutes longer than the pic shown in the U. S.

Benny's May 16 1-Niter Teeoff

Hollywood, March 21.

Jack Benny hops off in May for a tour of 22 one-nighters, first such short-stand junket he's ever essayed. He'll give a two-hour show in each town, supported by Phil Harris, Rochester, a femme pic star, vaude acts plus Harris orch.

Local charities at each stop will get a portion of the proceeds. Tour starts May 16 in Wichita, with Kansas City, Des Moines, St. Paul, Moline, Milwaukee, Peoria, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Toledo and Cincinnati already set. Troupe of 40 will make jumps by train.

The French Idea

Paris, March 17.

Producer, to secretary, on Saturday morning: "Make out a check for payment of salaries."

Secretary: "It's going to be hard to cash now, with early closing of banks."

Producer: "Do you find it easier to cash a check when the bank is open?"

Jack Lait's NBC Show

Jack Lait has been signed by NBC for a summer series of half-hour shows, with June 15 as the approximate starting date.

The N. Y. Mirror editor and co-author of the recently-published "Chicago Confidential," will star in the series, handling the narration-continuity, background, etc., in dramatized versions of real-life stories and personalities on the N. Y.-Chi scenes.

Rathvon L.A. to N.Y. En Route Abroad On Possible Europe Prod.

N. Peter Rathvon treks east from the Coast this week for confabs with Eagle Lion toppers on new indie financing deals. Erstwhile RKO prez who now heads his own film-backing outfit is scheduled to cross the Atlantic, March 31, to study the possibilities of pic production on the Continent. European trip, in which he will be accompanied by his wife, has no connection with his role as production consultant to EL.

Rathvon will meet with William McMillen, exec veepee of EL, and William J. Heineman, distribution veepee, while in New York. Four potential film packages are up for decision on financing. Three of these are EL projects, while one is a personally sponsored Rathvon production.

All four films, if financing is given the greenlight, would be made in the fall for EL release next year.

ALL THE GOLDWYNS ON THE LAM TO EUROPE

Samuel Goldwyn, Jr., and writer Blaine Littell are slated to leave New York for Germany this week to do research and writing on "No Time Like the Present," which young Goldwyn will produce under his father's banner. Goldwyn, Sr., and his wife, Frances, arrived in New York over the weekend from the Coast, prior to departing for Europe April 14.

Goldwyn, Jr., and Littell spent two days in Washington last week getting clearance on filming their story abroad. It concerns a GI of the occupation army. Littell, who is on leave from the Denver Post, is the son of a Reader's Digest editor and grandson of Walter Damrosch.

Young Goldwyn and Littell will probably headquarter in Frankfort. The Goldwyns, Sr., will visit England and a number of countries on the Continent and then fly to Israel. While in New York they'll hunt talent for their forthcoming "Billion Dollar Baby."

Baer, Slapsie Turn Up As Rasslin' Gabbers

Television wrestlers are in for another major push forward—or backward. Max Baer and "Slapsie Maxie" Rosenbloom were signed yesterday (Tues.) to handle the "color" narration for a new series of wrestling matches from Hempstead, L. I., starting tonight (Wed.) via the N. Y. Daily News' WPIX.

Former fight champs turned comics are expected to detail the various grunt 'n' groan holds for the edification of their viewers, while WPIX announcer Jack McCarthy will be on hand to fill in the more serious aspects. Duo, current at the Mocambo, N.Y., will continue the telecasting as long as they are in New York. Matches are being sponsored by the local Studebaker dealers.

Sherriff's Hollywood Deal Stumbles Because of Tax

London, March 21.

Because the British government would not agree to an accommodation arrangement and accept 99.9 percent of his Hollywood earnings as a gift instead of taking it in taxation, playwright R. C. Sherriff has turned down a Hollywood script offer which would have brought in $28,000.

Sherriff, whose hobby is archaeology, had suggested that he should retain only $280 of the fee and the balance should be given to the Society of Antiquaries for the endowment of an excavation site in Norfolk. He has been told that it would be regarded as a precedent and has therefore not accepted the Hollywood offer.

Skouras Defends Use of Dunne As Queen Victoria

London, March 21.

Comeback statement to the critics of 20th-Fox for bringing over Irene Dunne to play Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark" was made by the company's topper, Spyros Skouras, at a press conference in London last week. His retort came 24 hours after Nunnally Johnson and Jean Negulesco, who are here to produce and direct the picture, had sought to justify the importation policy.

To suggest that 20th-Fox in particular, and Hollywood generally, was trying to keep British star names off the American screens was sheer nonsense, said Skouras. "We are literally starved for new names and new faces, and would be only too eager to use British whenever possible."

In the program of four pictures which it had planned for the current year, 20th hoped to give many opportunities to British actors and technicians, Skouras added. He warned however, that innumerable obstacles were being placed in the way of British production by American companies—not by the Board of Trade, "which was most cooperative"—and if that persisted and was intensified, 20th-Fox might be forced to abandon its program.

Rejecting outright the criticism against Miss Dunne, Skouras argued that here was a star of international repute whose talent and ability had never been questioned. Her name at the top of the cast list would play an important part in insuring the success of the completed film wherever it was shown.

The same theme had been developed the previous day by Negulesco, who explained that this was a top budget production expected to cost $1,500,000, and it would need a wide showing throughout America to make it a financial success. Had they made the film with British artists who may be unknown in America, they would have been faced with sales resistance from the exhibs there whose first question always is: "who is in it?" If they were to cite the names of three British stars unknown to him the inevitable answer would be "what have you got with Betty Hutton?"

Both Johnson and Negulesco have met with resistance to the granting of their labor permits, but in defending the company's policy not only stressed the obvious angle of substantial employment which was provided to British technicians and actors, but also reiterated the statement made last year by 20th's Lew Schreiber that London was regarded as a "location." Pictures were only made in Britain which could not logically be made elsewhere.

Film starts lensing May 15 at Shepperton and will be the last 20th-Fox picture to be made at Korda's lot.

Hardwicke Sounds Off

Twentieth-Fox's action in casting Irene Dunne as Queen Victoria in the company's London locationer, "The Mudlark," drew support in New York last week from veteran British actor Sir Cedric Hardwicke. He found it "deeply disturbing" that his fellow thesps criticized the selection of Miss Dunne solely because she is an American and not because of her acting ability.

In rapping the objections of his colleagues, Sir Cedric held, "You might as well argue that a man has to be a murderer to play a murderer. It strikes at the very root of my craft." At least three Presidents of the U.S., he pointed out, were played in his time by English actors. He then asked emphatically, "What the hell has acting to do with being an Englishman?"

Meanwhile, Alec Guinness, a British actor who's been appearing in the Broadway production of "The Cocktail Party," has been inked by 20th-Fox for the role of Disraeli in "The Mudlark." He is scheduled to leave the play June 3 when his agreement with producer Gilbert Miller expires.

TV'S UNEVEN IMPACT A PUZZLER

No Target Practice

Any time a Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Col.) wants to make the headlines, the easiest approach is to latch on to Hollywood. That's an old story. Even the lay press gives this sort of space-grabbing the tongue-in-cheek.

Policing of human behaviorism, whether it's in the orbit of the Brown Derby or the RKO Stromboli, will always be one of those things. But self-regulation, where it is feasible, is something else again. Particularly if the human equation is governed, as it is, by radio's and television's intrusion into the home.

Deportment there must be most circumspect. When a Mae West gives s.a. line-readings to an Elsie Dinsmore type of script, the association, at least, is not totally unexpected. But when comedians known for their folksy style of peddling sponsors' products slip over indigo comedy it is not only inexcusable but rather silly. It also encroaches on investments in time and talent.

This doesn't apply only to Godfrey. Vaudeo necessarily culls from the niteries, and sometimes the saloon brand of humor is not exactly for home-and-hearth consumption. It embraces song material, gags, bits of business, manner of delivery (the arched eyebrow, semi-leer, etc.) and everything else.

Pop songs loom importantly at the moment. The music business has been wise through the years to regulate itself. If some innocuous romantic lyrics are interpreted beyond their true meaning, that is something beyond control as long as the basic single meaning is sufficiently forthright. Postwar standards, however, have given rise in some quarters, and with certain artists, to a "cute" lyric. That's usually synonymous for polite double-entendre. Polite or more directly French-postcardy, the double-meaning is there. CBS banned one of its own affiliated Columbia recordings for that reason.

Hollywood periodically fingerpoints to the pyramiding interest certain foreign film productions seem to enjoy, and wonders whether the self-regulatory Production Code warrants some revision, at least commensurate with mid-20th century standards as against the popular thinking that came with the turn of the century. Whatever the merits in that direction, conservatism—with the exception of the uncontrollable backslidings of a relative handful of personalities—generally obtains.

On all fronts, show business is fighting a boxoffice battle. Certainly the hazard of public antagonism is not worth engendering by trying to be flip, smart or pseudo-sophisticated. If television is making the inroads on pictures that Hollywood alleges, that's a basic plus for TV. It can be a serious minus if video complicates its future by permitting smut.

It's a show business adage not to try rewriting a hit. If TV is growing, it should quit cracking spicy gags while it's ahead. That goes for all show business.

Pix, radio, television—next to boy-meets-girl—are still the most popular (and cheapest) forms of mass entertainment. Let's keep it all above suspicion and sidestep any target practice for publicity-seeking solons. Or just targets for nervous networks.

Abel.

Rank Will Find British Pix At Their U.S. Peak

When J. Arthur Rank, British producer, arrives in the U. S. today (Wed.) on his annual visit, he will find British pix at their highest earning point ever. While the tumult and bally over British features as a possible challenge to American films has faded completely, fact is that Rank's pix in 1949 netted the producer in excess of $4,000,000. This net is close to 100% higher than any previous year.

Rank's lustre as a successful filmmaker has been dimmed by the troubles of his film empire, stemming mainly from a loss of $9,000,000 last year on production. However, although his rep has been hit in the U. S., Rank's films showed greater progress here in the past 12 months than at any time in the past. Diminishing domestic returns rather than in America spelled his stumble.

Big success of "Hamlet" and "The Red Shoes," former handled here by Universal and the latter by Eagle Lion, is the main factor in the rise of U. S. revenues. Rank's deal with U permits him to withhold $2,000,000 in earnings from U's pix in Britain as a recoupment on profits of "Hamlet" in this country. A somewhat parallel deal with EL gave the Britisher another $1,200,000. Smaller pix, mainly "Quartet," another EL release here, makes up the balance.

Combined with the sudden spurt

(Continued on page 4)

JOHNSTON MAY EYE JAPAN THIS SPRING

Washington, March 21.

Eric Johnston is reportedly considering a trip to Japan in the late spring to get a first-hand look at the motion picture industry there. If the prexy of the Motion Picture Assn. of America goes through with the plan, the trip would come some time after the Anglo-American film agreement huddles. Since no definite date has been set on these yet, Johnston cannot make plans for the trip to Nippon.

Meantime, the MPAA prez leaves for the Coast Friday (24), planning to be there about a week. It is understood he will inform the studio toppers on international developments. He may also visit Frisco.

Skouras Back From His 10-Day Foreign Quickie

Spyros Skouras, 20th-Fox prexy, is due back in New York today (Wednesday) after 10 days in England. While abroad he confabbed with J. Arthur Rank, looked into the production situation on "The Mudlark," which 20th is producing there, and talked with officials on the Anglo-U. S. pact, which expires June 13.

On the 20th topper's immediate agenda is preparation of the company's annual report, which will be issued in about three weeks. It is understood that Skouras will have considerable to say in it on video. He's also planning to go to the Coast within a few weeks.

20th foreign chief Murray Silverstone, who was with Skouras in England, is coming to New York by ship. He arrives Monday (27).

CAN'T GENERALIZE ON B.O. INROADS

Comparisons of the take in TV and non-TV areas in an effort to determine how big a bite the new medium is digging into film b.o.s has proved a dud. No one these days is denying that tele is taking its toll, but the comparative statistics for various parts of the country don't clearly reveal it.

Effort to get a correlation between tele areas and drop in film biz has been made by one of the major companies, which has supplied VARIETY with the figures, but requests that its name not be used. Five top distribs are showing their concern over video's inroads by instituting various types of surveys. Companies are Paramount, 20th-Fox, Columbia, Warner Bros. and Republic.

Comparison of business in the five exchange areas which did not have TV outlets during 1949 with those that did shows very mild correlation, at best. Nationwide increase in rentals of 15% was weighed by the company against the percentage of increase in each exchange area.

Four of the five key cities sans TV showed an upturn in biz greater than the 15% national average. But there were likewise significant increases in film rentals in such heavy TV areas as New York and

(Continued on page 16)

REPUBLIC SALESMEN MAKING OWN TV POLL

Hollywood, March 21.

Republic prexy Herbert J. Yates has started his salesmen on a nationwide survey to determine to what extent video has encroached on film boxoffices. Study began Feb. 1 and will run through July 1.

Research is being conducted through Rep's 32 exchanges, with the salesmen making weekly reports on how many telesets are sold in each city and town in their respective territories. The film peddlers also make a concurrent report on b.o. conditions, stacking these figures against grosses of same houses last year.

Rep salesmen have also been instructed to enlist Chambers of Commerce in various cities to get them interested in the problem of declining boxoffice and its causes. Spokesmen for Yates said this week it was still too early for any solid findings.

20th to Appeal Decree by March 31; U.S. to Attack 'Lenient' Divorcement

Meet the Mrs.

Billing on RKO's "Every Girl Should Be Married" was given a neat twist when shown last week at a nabe N. Y. second-run house. Marquee of the Alden theatre, Manhattan, which booked pic for a three-day run, gave starring credit to Mr. and Mrs. Cary Grant.

Film's lead roles are handled by Grant and Betsy Drake, who became his wife after picture's initial release early last year.

Reissues NSG, Patrons Go For Better New Pix?

The market for revived oldies has taken a definite downbeat trend during the last several months. Only solace to be found in the situation is that it possibly represents the improved quality of new product emanating from Hollywood, with the public passing up reissues in favor of the more recent films.

Underscoring the new deemphasis being placed on reissues, 20th-Fox has virtually abandoned its national release plans for them. Company several years ago set up a special reissue department under assistant sales manager William C. Gehring, whose job it was to screen 20th's old films with an eye on the then-lucrative reissue market. Gehring established the package plan for the oldies, pairing them for double-billing purposes on a national release basis. Such packages now, however, are being sold

(Continued on page 16)

Roach Sues Former Veepee for Shortage

Los Angeles, March 21.

Charging a shortage of $35,000, Hal Roach filed suit for $60,000 in L.A. superior court against Hugh C. Huber, former veepee-treasurer of the Roach organization.

Plaintiff asks the recovery of $35,000 and punitive damages amounting to $25,000.

Appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the anti-trust decision ordering complete divorcement will be taken by 20th-Fox, it was officially confirmed this week. Step is being taken by the major to clear the way for a retreat in the event peace talks with the Dept. of Justice, scheduled for renewal in the near future, fail to jell in a deal. Appeal by 20th is expected to trigger a cross-appeal by the Government, which will attack the lenient three-year grace period for divorcement ordered by the Federal district court.

Spokesman for 20th said that the appeal would be filed before March 31, date when the deadline works against further action. Twentieth will also file simultaneously an application for a stay of the present lower court decree. If granted, it would take 20th off the hook so far as the requirement to file a plan for divorcement within one year and divestiture in six months.

While no confirmation is forthcoming from Warner Bros., it is reliably reported that Warners will take similar steps. If so, the move would be to avoid burning its bridges by permitting the time for appeal to expire while settlement talks were on. From Washington, there are reports that

(Continued on page 22)

Grad Sears Back and OK After Mild Heart Attack

Grad Sears, who suffered a slight heart attack in Palm Beach 10 days ago, returned to New York by plane yesterday (Tuesday). United Artists prexy has informed his staff that he'll be in his office today.

He has a number of major problems facing him, including the lining up of further product for next year and some switches in the sales staff in the field. He'll presumably restrict his activities somewhat for the time being, however, with his exec aide, Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., handling most of the day to day chores.

VARIETY
Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED BY SIME SILVERMAN
Published Weekly by VARIETY, Inc.
Sid Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 19, N. Y
Hollywood 28
6311 Yucca Street
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building
Chicago 1
360 No. Michigan Ave.
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq.

SUBSCRIPTION
Annual.... $10 Foreign $11
Single Copies............25 Cents

Vol. 178 No. 2

INDEX

Bills 56
Chatter 62
Film Reviews 6
House Reviews 54
Inside Legit 58
Inside Music 48
Inside Pictures 18
Inside Radio 30
Inside Television 34
International 12
Legitimate 57
Literati 61
Music 40
New Acts 56
Night Club Reviews 50
Obituaries 63
Pictures 3
Radio 24
Radio Reviews 30
Records 40
Frank Scully 61
Television 29
Television Reviews 31
Vaudeville 50

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a Year—$20 Foreign

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Still Sluggish; 'Francis' Captures 1st Place, 'Cinderella' Second; 'Horn,' 'Rio' Next Best

Although helped in some spots by St. Patrick's Day crowds, the Lenten influence and continued cold weather continues to make biz very spotty this week in key cities covered by VARIETY. Several new pix are not shaping up too strongly in present session, although obviously both distributors and exhibitors are holding back much stronger product until Easter.

"Francis" (U), a close second last stanza and fourth in week ahead of that, is roaring ahead into first position this week. Uniformly strong to smash previous engagements, pic is landing some unusually big totals currently, including sock week at big N.Y. Paramount. It is topping both St. Louis and Toronto, with showing in N.Y. tops for any new picture.

"Cinderella" (RKO), champ for last two weeks, is winding up second. "Man With Horn" (WB), much stronger in recent sessions, is solid third. Fourth money goes to "Nancy Goes to Rio" (M-G), while "Key to City" (M-G) is taking over fifth slot.

"Red Shoes" (EL) is pushing up to sixth place, with "12 O'Clock High" (20th), seventh. "Dear Wife" (Par), "Outlaw" (RKO) and "Third Man" (SRO) round out the Big 10 in that sequence. Top runner-up films are "Love Happy" (UA), "Eiffel Tower" (RKO), "Malaya" (M-G) and "Black Hand" (M-G) in that order.

Few of new entries are doing much this round. "Under My Skin" (20th) looks very slow in N.Y. on initial date. In contrast, "Singing Guns" (Rep) looms okay in St. Louis and L.A., and fair in Buffalo. "Woman of Distinction" (Col) shapes mild in N.Y. "Outside the Wall" (U) is not doing too badly in view of conditions, being fine in Philly, good in Seattle and fair in N.Y.

"Three Came Home" (20th), which started its first engagement several weeks ago, is shaping solid in Philly and Boston, but is mild in Providence. "Buccaneers' Girl" (U), which started nicely last round, is not faring so well this frame.

"Love Happy" (UA), with a flock of new dates, is perking this session in several spots, being best in Philly and K.C. "Paid In Full" (Par) looms good in Detroit. "Johnny Holiday" (UA) is stout in Cincy and nice in Indianapolis.

"Samson" (Par) is nice in Detroit and Philly, and okay in N.Y. "Ambush" (M-G) is big in Denver.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

Wartime-Delayed Renovations Consumed Exhibs' Ready Cash, Hence Stalling Big-Screen TV

Installation of large-screen television equipment into circuits on a wholesale basis is being sharply hampered by a shortage of loose money in exhibs' pockets. Ready cash among theatre men is at a lower level than at any time since the end of the war, informed circuit ops claim. Because of this stringency, exhibs are regarding big-screen video as a luxury which must wait out assurances that there will be a direct and immediate payoff when expensive equipment is bought.

Tremendous sums of ready cash have been laid out by exhibs in the past couple of years, it is said, for theatre reseating and renovations. Exhibs were forced to mark time during the war years and only in the past 36 months have theatre ops given the greenlight to heavy but essential expenditures on the interiors of their flickeries.

Added to this outlay has been tremendous spending on cooling systems which are now considered a "must" for any house. As indication of what amount can be spent on this alone, understood Skouras circuit has paid out $2,000,000 for large-scale cooling installations in the past two years.

One other factor has cut the ready cash to a minimum. That is the amount of coin which a large number of chains have spent to build drive-ins. Frequently, it is said, circuits regarded the need to construct the ozoners as essential to protect their total take. Practice has been to build the drive-ins in outlying sectors surrounding the circuits' best conventional houses

(Continued on page 16)

Director Geo. Sidney Sees Phonevision Idea As a Big B.O. Potential

Following the lead of Cecil B. DeMille, Metro director George Sidney said in New York last week that he saw Phonevision or a similar system as the answer to TV's impact on the film boxoffice. Tele must "conjure up a boxoffice of its own," Sidney asserted, and a method of piped entertainment over telephone lines appears to be the solution for both the TV and film production industries.

Sidney is in New York for four or five weeks to look over the current crop of legiters and for publicity interviews on "Annie Get Your Gun," which he recently completed for M-G. Pic is slated to open at Loew's State, N. Y., and in some seven other key cities May 10.

Metro megger feels that Hollywood must take on video and use it to its own advantage. Most practical way, in his view, is the Phonevision system using telephone lines and billing the customer via the phone company. He thinks grosses of millions in one night are possible for quality pictures on this basis.

Video needs a wired system as much as Hollywood does, Sidney opines. "It's foolish," he declares, "for the public to think that tobacco firms or industrial corporations, no matter how big their ad budgets, could possibly find the wherewithal to present free entertainment on the same scope as a $2,000,000 Hollywood production."

Sidney's next directorial stint has been reported as "Show Boat." He said, however, that he is still reading half a dozen scripts and this next assignment has not yet been determined.

Jack Cohn's AMPA Talk

John Cohn, Columbia exec veepee, will be principal speaker at a luncheon of the Association of Motion Picture Advertisers next Wednesday (29) at the Hotel Edison, New York. AMPA will play host to National Cartoonists Society with Cohn making the introductions of leading cartoonists.

Rube Goldberg, Milton Caniff, Bill Mauldin, Russell Patterson, Carl Rose and Paul Terry are among the cartoonists who have already accepted the AMPA invitation.

Lesser-Poe's 52 TV Shorts

Deal for distribution to TV stations of 52 shorts in color has been set by Television-Film Booking Office, adjunct of Irving Lesser and Seymour Poe's Producers Representatives, Inc. Pix are being made by Fortuna Films, headed by J. C. Martin. Seven have been completed to date.

Although made in color, TV-FBO is distributing the films in black-and-white now. Additional cost of shooting tint versions was felt worthwhile, however, against the day when video goes into color and a sharp demand develops for rainbowed product.

U Turns Corner With Black Ink

Short of unexpected writeoffs not currently on the horizon, Universal should be heavily in the black at the end of its first six months of fiscal 1950. In the 13 weeks ended Jan. 28, first quarter stretch, Universal finally broke through the red-ink barrier to turn up a net of $12,924. While the profit is meager, it compares more than favorably with a loss of $717,535 for the corresponding period of fiscal 1949.

Company's second period has traditionally been its strongest, ranging over the good months of February-April. During '49, quarter was the only one which showed a profit in a generally bad year. U earned $252,000 during that semester last year.

Sharp cut in amortization costs in addition to a gain in gross rentals brought about the company's entry into the black after two red years. U has finally written off itis expensive product released in '48 and early '49. Number of these pix brought about costly losses.

Besides fixing on its net for the first quarter, newly-named U board reelected the following officers: Nate Blumberg, prez; Adolph Schimel, veepee, secretary and general counsel; John J. O'Connor, William A. Scully, Joseph H. Seidelman, Edward Muhl and Matthew Fox, veepees; Leon Goldberg, veepee and treasurer; Eugene F. Walsh, comptroller, ass't treasurer and asst. secretary; George Douglas, asst. treasurer, and Morris Davis, Percy Guth and Anthony Petti, asst. secretaries.

Board also took prompt steps to restore Fox as a director. Fox was elbowed from that niche by John G. Eidell in a surprise move during the recent stockholder meet. Board enlarged its membership to 16 in order to rename Fox.

In another step, board named Blumberg as chairman of its executive committee with Daniel M. Sheaffer, Robert S. Benjamin, Paul G. Brown, Preston Davie and Goldberg as its other members.

MPAA to Review Italo 'Thief' After Breen's Nix

Members of the board of directors of the Motion Picture Assn. of America will view the Italian "Bicycle Thief" at a screening in Columbia's New York projection room next Tuesday (28). Gander by those directors who have not already seen the pic will precede a vote on whether to award it a Production Code Administration seal without deletions.

MPAA board has been called on to decide the seal question as a result of an appeal by Joseph Burstyn, distributor of the film, from a nix imposed by PC Administrator Joseph I. Breen. Breen wants two scenes cut, which Burstyn refuses to take out. Appeal to the board is authorized procedure in such a case.

Date for the MPAA's annual meeting, which generally takes place about this time of year, hasn't been set. It will probably be held in New York in early April, when all the company prexies are in the city.

Rubin, Arnall West-East

Robert J. Rubin, counsel for the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, planed from New York to the Coast Monday (20) for three weeks of confabs with SIMPP members there. He's due back at his N. Y. headquarters, April 12.

Ellis G. Arnall, SIMPP prexy, will be in New York and Washington this week, following a week at his law office in Atlanta.

See Campbell As New Odeon Chief; Storms Delay Rank

J. Arthur Rank will reportedly personally install Desmond Campbell as controller of his Odeon circuit in Canada in the course of his current trip to America. Campbell is due to plane to New York from England tomorrow (Thurs.) in the company of Rank's operating chief, John Davis, and then go to Canada with them to take over. Rank arrives here today (Wed.) aboard the Queen Mary after a 48-hour delay caused by heavy seas.

Need for a fiscal expert to help run the circuit becomes greater because J. Earl Lawson, head of all Rank's interests in the Dominion, is hospitalized as gravely ill. He has been away from his desk for more than one year. David Griersdorf was named operating head of Odeon last year, and Campbell will serve as aide to him.

Delay in the arrival of the Queen Mary has cut sharply into Rank's Gotham schedule. Universal board meet, slated for yesterday (Tues.) was postponed as was a cocktail party which Robert Benjamin, head of Rank's U. S. wing, and Jock Lawrence, exec veepee, had mapped. Also stalled was a trip that the Britisher planned to Philadelphia.

Schedule now tentatively stands that Rank and Davis will be in Gotham until March 29 when the twosome head for Toronto with Campbell. Before that, producer will probably meet with major company prexies individually on joint production plans in Britain. No general meet is slated.

Davis returns to England immediately after the Toronto visit. Arriving on the Coast April 8, Rank and his wife will remain there until April 23 in a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Fred Packard. Duo will then head for London via New York.

As biggest stockholder in Universal, Rank plans to attend two sessions of the board, one preceding his Coast trip and the other upon his return to N. Y.

Rank Will Find

Continued from page 3

of "Hamlet" and "Shoes" in '49 was a revised policy on ad-pub expenses in the U. S. Dollar-for-dollar; his current releases are netting a bigger margin of returns for him because Rank has dropped the expensive policy of attempting to popularize British films generally on an institutional basis. Moreover, he has dumped expenditures on specific pix in national magazines.

During Rank's heyday here, his office had ambitious plans for his product. "Caesar and Cleopatra," for instance, was launched with a budget of $30,000 spent on national ads. Film grossed about $1,900,000 but only some $500,000 of this landed ultimately in Rank's purse. Smaller, but still substantial outlays, were made for "Great Expectations," "Odd Man Out" and "Stairway to Heaven," his major offerings on the U. S. market.

Result has been that while the gross on Rank's films were fairly substantial, his net was never in excess of $2,500,000 or so. Under his new operation, if Rank can turn out a scattering of pix with the b.o. pull of "Hamlet" or "Shoes," he can better his past performances here. Both pix have already grossed over $2,000,000 in the U. S.

Recoupment deals were such that U and EL bought participations in the films. When the pix earn sufficiently, Rank will again collect his share from both films.

Senator Johnson Expected to Modify Certain Facets of Anti-Film Measure

Johnson's Blast

Continued from page 1

reasons for Capitol Hill expletives on Hollywood—an effort to get personal publicity by tying onto film glamor names. Since Senator McCarthy is stealing current thunder on the Communist angle, and that's wearing pretty thin now, anyway, Johnson jumped on the other surefire way of hitting the front pages by—again—denouncing Hollywood.

In 1946, of course, J. Parnell Thomas, then head of the House Un-American Activities Committee, hit on the happy idea of combining both Hollywood and Communism and scored mightily on the front pages. But Senator Johnson has no squawk coming from that standpoint. He's had his fair share of newsprint this past week and promises to get a good deal more if he is able to go through with his plan for holding public hearings on the bill he proposes for licensing actors, directors, producers and distribs.

While the Senator has done right well on page one, he's apparently batted himself a foul on the editorial pages. Most of the nation's press has found the idea of licensing people's morals abhorrent and have spoken out on the subject.

Editorials Hep to the Gag

Typical is the Minneapolis Star in an editorial captioned "Who's Moral?". It calls Johnson's tactics "a cheap publicity stunt."

"Any 'investigation' of filmland is good for a lot of headlines, of course, with Congressional investigators basking in the reflected limelight of publicity-wise movie stars," the editorial said. "If that's all Johnson is after, he probably can't do any more harm than perhaps smear some innocently bystanding reputations, plus bringing a certain amount of public ridicule down on Congress. But if the senator seriously suggests the Federal government should try to regulate the morals of movie people, or anyone else, it's time really to be disturbed . . . surely there is an example of the kind of thing citizens can be relied on to do without Government interference. We can continue to accept or reject movie stars, writers and even politicians on the basis of their moral or other qualifications, or lack of them. No one will try to defend public displays of what is generally conceived to be immorality. The trouble comes when you try to define the term. There are people who sincerely consider smoking, dancing or even meat-eating immoral . . . In some parts of the country today it's considered darned near 'immoral' to vote Republican. And the time is not beyond the memory of living man when the Democrats were widely damned to such a shady status."

L.A. to N.Y.

Sammy Cahn
Melville Cooper
William Joyce Cowen
Andy Devine
Betsy Drake
Jose Ferrer
Samuel Goldwyn
Cary Grant
Jack Gregson
Dr. Renato Gualino
Harold Huber
Hugh Hunt
Danny Kaye
Charles Korvin
Mervyn LeRoy
William B. Levy
Arthur Loew
Johnny Maschio
Raymond Massey
Gregor Rabinovich
N. Peter Rathvon
William F. Rodgers
Ann Ronell
Phil Silvers
R. G. Springsteen
Spencer Tracy
Jack L. Warner
Jerry Wayne
Betty Wells
Cornel Wilde
Fred Zinneman

N.Y. to L.A.

Robert Bernard
Sam Bronston
Lee Eastman
Abe Lastfogel
Arnold Moss
Robert J. Rubin
J. J. Unger

Washington, March 21.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, who blasted "Stromboli" (Bergman-Rossellini) and introduced legislation last week to license motion pictures and the actors appearing in them, is expected to quietly eliminate the actor-producer licensing portion before the measure gets to public hearings. A second hinted modification would remove the section licensing motion pictures for transmission over television.

This would strip down the bill to one, which simply licensed motion pictures in interstate commerce. The license fees would remain at $10,000 per picture, as in the original. In addition, the licensing power would remain—as provided in the bill — under the Secretary of Commerce, who could refuse or revoke such license unless he should find that "such film cannot reasonably be expected to contribute to juvenile delinquency, and that such film is not reasonably calculated to encourage a contempt to law, or public or private morality."

The changes would considerably ease the measure. Nevertheless, they would make it no more palatable to the film industry. The basic element of Goverment censorship of motion pictures would remain.

Constitutional Rights

Decision to strip the actor-producer licensing provision from the bill reportedly is based on constitutional grounds. Legal talent here contends that licensing of actors would be thrown out by the courts and that the entire measure might die as a result. On the other hand, there is a precedence for controlling the transportation of motion pictures in interstate commerce.

About 35 years ago, Congress passed a law barring the interstate transmission of motion pictures of prizefights. The act was fought up to the Supreme Court, which upheld the right of Congress to make such a law. Subsequently, Congress repealed the law. However, the right to control interstate movement of films remains with Congress—or so Johnson has apparently been advised by friends here.

In the case of films being transmitted by video, Johnson apparently has decided to remove that section since the FCC already has the power to regulate, the senator believes. Confusion would result, one friend of Johnson's explained, if exhibition of motion pictures included the language presently in the bill: "The transmission of such motion picture, or any part thereof, by airwaves for showing on, or by means of, standard television equipment." Hence, Senator Johnson is expected to knock this out.

Meantime, the Senator is going ahead with his decision to conduct hearings on the bill about the third week in April. Nobody will be subpoenaed, according to present plans, but anyone with something to contribute will be welcome to testify. The Senate Commerce Committee is "assuming" that Eric Johnston, prez of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, who was

(Continued on page 23)

N.Y. to Europe

Buddy Basch
Charles Einfeld
Art Ford
Victor Francen
A. Ben Fuller
Roger Furse
Ben Goetz
Samuel Goldwyn, Jr.
Alfred Junge
Blaine Littell
Samuel Taylor
Leslie Whelan
John Wildberg

Europe to N.Y.

Isadora Bennett
Jules Borkon
Yvette Chauvire
Montgomery Clift
George Dawson
Wladimir Lissim
Louis Nagel
Edward J. Noble
J. Arthur Rank
Gen. Kenneth C. Royall
Murray Silverstone
Spyros P. Skouras
Robert Wolff

BRIT. PACT RENEWAL UNCERTAIN

N.E. Exhibs Hop on 20th's Bandwagon, Hire Own P.A. to Push Bally Drive

Boston, March 21.

New England exhibitors, in an unprecedented move to follow up on 20th-Fox's drive for more film merchandising, banded together at 20th's regional meet here today (Tues.) for a mass institutional campaign throughout the territory to hypo pix. Exec committee, comprising the heads of all indie and affiliated circuits, as well as leading indie exhibitors, will appoint an advertising manager to work full time for one year to get the drive rolling at top speed.

Exhibs attending the meet from Rhode Island, meanwhile, started to lay plans today to have every theatre operator in the state pledge $10 per week for a year to defray the costs of running 20th's institutional ads, on which the company has offered to split charges on a straight 50-50 basis.

Meet was presided over by 20th division manager E. X. Callahan, with Paul Terry, producer of Terry-Toons, and Roger Ferri from the homeoffice as guest speakers. Samuel Pinanski and Martin Mullin moderated the afternoon open forum. Despite one of the worst snowstorms of the year, more than 500 exhibs from all parts of New England attended the session.

Antidote to B.O. Dip

Theatre exhibitors in all parts of the country hopped on the 20th-Fox showmanship bandwagon this week, accepting the "Movies Are Better Than Ever" drive as one of the most potent antidotes to dwindling grosses offered them in the last several years. As 20th started its series of regional showmanship meets in all of its 36 exchange centres yesterday (Tues.), indie theatre operators, as well as the major affiliated circuits, planned a mass revival of oldtime exploitation and ballyhoo techniques to revitalize the filmgoing habit among their potential customers.

(Continued on page 20)

Praise From Allah Dept.

Outspoken admiration by other companies for 20th-Fox initiative in running its series of showmanship meetings took tangible form this week in an unusual ad in the tradepapers by Columbia, to say: "Thank you, 20th Century-Fox. We join with the exhibitors of America in congratulating you on your showmanship meetings. They are a fine, forward-looking contribution to the general welfare of everybody in the motion picture business."

Philly Critic Suggests Dept. Store Technique ('Leaders') for Pix Sales

Philadelphia, March 21.

Suggestion that exhibitors adopt department store techniques of "special sales" and "leaders" was broached at the 20th-Fox regional showmanship meet here today (Tues.) by guest speaker Laura Lee, film critic of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. Despite poor weather, the meet attracted 418 exhibs to the Benjamin Franklin hotel, undoubtedly the largest turnout of theatre operators ever to attend an event in this area.

According to Miss Lee, exhibs should start working more with community groups. To achieve this, she suggested setting aside nights for family groups at special bargain prices and other adaptations

(Continued on page 20)

MAJOR WARNER'S 4,200 STOCK GIFT TO UJA

Washington, March 21.

Major Albert Warner, veepee and treasurer of Warner Bros., has gifted 4,200 shares of Warner common to the United Jewish Appeal of New York. At present quotations, his stock donation amounts to some $60,000. Warner still holds 438,800 shares of WB common outright and another 21,000 shares in trust.

Harry M. Warner, WB prexy, has just made donations of 6,000 shares of common to charities. Warner report does not identify these charities. Company topper now owns 259,750 shares of common stock.

Joseph H. Seidelman, Universal's foreign dept. veepee, has sold 3,000 warrants on U's common stock. Overseas chief holds a balance of 9,000 warrants.

1st Statements By 2 New Par Cos. Seen Significant

Industryites will get their first gander into the profit-and-loss accounts of the nation's largest non-affiliated theatre circuit on April 16, United Paramount prexy Leonard Goldenson revealed last week. Goldenson said the first quarterly statement of the new corporation would be sent out on that date with a dividend check.

Financial side of the industry has been looking forward with considerable interest to the initial report by UP, since it is the first major chain to break away from its production-distribution affiliate under divorcement. The split was effective Jan. 1 and the initial quarter will end March 31.

First statement by Paramount Pictures, the production-distribution company, will be considerably later in coming out, since the accounting is much more complicated than it is for a theatre chain, which is entirely a cash biz. Comparison of earnings of the two outfits will be avidly noted, since it has always been widely stated and accepted that the theatre chain in any affiliated setup is the big profit-earner, while the production end makes very little or may actually lose money. Par figures will give a good look-see into that situation and undoubtedly influence thinking by other integrated companies that are on the list for breakup and will also probably have an effect on the stock market.

FEB. PIC DIVIDENDS OFF $26,000 FROM YEAR AGO

Washington, March 21.

Motion picture industry dividends during February were a thin $198,000, U. S. Department of Commerce reported today (21). This is a reduction from the $224,000 of February, 1949.

During the three-month period terminating with the end of February, the stockholders received $9,398,000, compared to dividends of $10,939,000 for the same quarter of a year earlier. Commerce department estimates that these publicly reported dividends amount to about 60 or 65% of all dividends paid out in an industry.

Par Frisco Houses Bombed

San Francisco, March 21.

Three main stem Paramount theatres, the Paramount, St. Francis and State were stench-bombed last Saturday (18) night only about 15 minutes apart by a shabbilly-dressed man. He was not caught, although a full description was given to the police since singled out by Paramount management when asked to leave because of odor of his clothes. Five minutes later, the stink bomb was discovered.

Bombings cost each house about $1,000 in Saturday night biz.

DELAYS IN TALKS WEAKEN CHANGES

Possibility of there being no renewal of the Anglo-U. S. film pact when the present agreement expires June 13 has cropped up with increasing frequency in intra-industry discussions during the past few weeks. Talk results from the apparent reluctance of the British government to have negotiators for the U.S. come to England until late April or early May, at the soonest.

While company toppers are operating on the assumption that a variation of the present $17,000,000 annual remittance contract will be worked out, they are not precluding the possibility that they won't be able to come to terms with the British government. An important segment of the industry is adamant that it will not give approval to a deal which it does not consider satisfactory.

For one thing, there's a feeling that failure to re-enact a contract may prove to be an advantageous pressure move against the British government. Without a pact all restrictions on the conversion of pounds to dollars are off and the Yank distribs—in theory, at least—could get out all their future earnings.

Actually, no one expects that the British government would allow that to happen. Bank of England would undoubtedly refuse permits for such free export of currency. Americans figure, however, at that point they'd be in a great position to yell and force intervention of the U.S. government, since there are several treaties and agreements requiring free exchange. Most recent is con-

(Continued on page 18)

Amus. Shares So Far Ahead of '49

Amusement stocks in the past 30 days eased off slightly from the big peak reached at the end of January. At the same time, entertainment shares listed on the New York exchange were still far ahead of prices quoted for most of 1949. Total value of all stocks listed on the big board, including major film companies, radio networks and disk firms, has reached $1,016,083,549 or an average of $17.63 per share.

Latest total represents a slide of $17,256,026 from the late January peak which came after a protracted bull market on all stocks. Per-share average is a shade off from the $17.93 figure at that time. Entertainment stocks are still holding up against the 1949 year-end figure of $990,202,136.

During the same period, bonds in the amusement field traded on the big board reached $6,389,310 or an average per-bond figure of $89.

COMPO's Next Confab Awaits Ned Depinet's Return; Need It Now?

Next all-industry session on the Council of Motion Picture Organizations awaits the return of chairman Ned E. Depinet from a current vacation in Phoenix, Ariz. RKO prexy's office anticipates that he'll be back at his desk in a week or 10 days.

Since all of the 10 groups participating in COMPO have now stamped their approval on the all-industry public relations plan, next meeting, according to intentions, was to be for the purpose of actually setting up the organization. Some of the constituent groups, however, have put such serious reservations on their approval that considerably more discussion will be needed.

Theatre Owners of America has thrown the principal block in its objection to the size and scope of

(Continued on page 56)

H'wood's Full ASCAP Load?; Report $235,000 Payoff to Brandt's Indies

In the wake of the new consent decree fixed on activities of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, the film industry appears uncertain whether the added charge against production, which now must clear performance rights on music, can be retrieved from exhibition via score charges or upped rentals. The studios are faced with an added headache, the need to dicker with ASCAP on performance rights. ASCAP, for its part, will undoubtedly seek to make up the loss of $1,400,000 which it annually tapped exhibs.

Plight of pix production is deepened by reliable reports now circulating that the Government is studying the possibilities of bringing a new divorcement suit to force the majors to give up their music publishing subsids. Warner Bros., Metro, Paramount and 20th-Fox would be most affected by this move. With the ASCAP decree out of the way, the road is cleared for this supplementary move by the Dept. of Justice.

The ASCAP Decree

Details of the analysis and interpretation of the ASCAP decree in the Music Dept.

Reportedly, the Government believes that so long as ASCAP members are affiliated with studios, there can be no fair division of performance and synch charges among filmmakers. Membership in ASCAP gives the studios involved an edge on the payment of fees since part of these are recouped in the form of royalty payments by ASCAP.

Adding another fillip to the developments of the week is the fact that ASCAP paid $160,000 in damages to the Harry Brandt group as part of the price for the more than 100 members of Brandt's Independent Theatre Owners Assn. dropping their collateral action. Another $75,000 was given to Weisman, Celler, Quinn, Allen & Spett, attorneys for the Brandt group. This outfit, of course, went along with the Government in accepting the consent decree.

This would appear to open the door for a flood of actions by other

(Continued on page 43)

Exception to the Rule

The Motion Picture Assn. of America, which long has imposed an official nix on naughty words in titles, has given Warner Bros. a special dispensation.

It has been given an okay by the board of directors on "The Damned Don't Cry," to be filmed from Henry Hervey's novel of the same title.

Trustees to Buy Or Sell Theatres RKO Jointly Owns

RKO's plan which trustees its stock holdings in Metropolitan Playhouses and Gifts, Inc., two partnership circuits, gives both the major and the trustee, to be named by the Federal district court, plenty of room to maneuver either a sale or purchase of theatre interests. Plan, now in the hands of the court, also paves the way for the trusteeing of the company's slice of both the Trenton-New Brunswick and Springco chains, if current actions for their dissolution fail to win that decision.

RKO has acted under the anti-trust consent decree which calls for breakup of all theatre partnerships. Plan recites that RKO has been unable to dispose of its holdings in Metropolitan and Gifts on fair terms. Trustee would be in control for five years if the major's interests in the big New York circuit is not ended through sale or purchase in that time. At the end of five years, trustee must come forward with a plan for further action.

Court is to name the trustees from the Bankers Trust Co., Irving Trust Co., Empire Trust Co., National City Bank and Chase National Bank, all listed as eligibles in the plan. When tapped by the court, trustees will take over the stock and give RKO certificates of interest in their stead. Company has the right to pledge these certificates for any indebtedness now owing or hereafter incurred.

While the trustee votes the stock, RKO collects the dividends.

(Continued on page 56)

2D FILM TO BE BASED ON SYLVESTER NOVEL

Script is now in preparation in New York for a second film to be made from Robert Sylvester's novel, "Rough Sketch." Columbia's "We Were Strangers" was made from a section of the book on Cuba. Now another section, on the subject of jazz, is being screenplayed by Robert Condon, working with Sylvester.

It's being done on an option basis for Roberts Productions, indie unit in which John Garfield is partnered. Garfield and Lena Horne will top the cast if script works out. Garfield also starred in "Strangers."

Sylvester is amusement editor of N. Y. Daily News. Condon is United Artists account exec with Buchanan ad agency. Bandleader Eddie Condon (no relation) is acting as technical adviser on the musical portions.

Lena Horne Exits Metro

Hollywood, March 21.

Lena Horne and Metro parted amicably after an association of nine years. Pact had more than a year to run.

Singer has lined up a series of bookings in Europe, winding up in September with four weeks at the London Palladium.

Vic Hoare, as New SRO Veepee, Cues Expansion Into Worldwide Org

Victor J. Hoare, managing director of Selznick Studio Releasing Division, Ltd., London, signed a new long-term contract with Selznick Releasing Organization, Inc., of New York, and also has been named veepee in charge of the company's foreign distribution.

Appointment of Hoare to the top foreign berth reportedly is in line with SRO's worldwide expansion in the distribution field. Company has branches in France, Belgium, Mexico and the Philippines. Deals are underway to set up offices in Germany and Austria and future plans call for inclusion of Japan, Israel and South Africa in the SRO orbit.

Hoare, 35, was overseas branch supervisor for the Rank Organization prior to joining SRO as executive director in 1948. Following year he took over as managing director for the United Kingdom, Europe and the Middle East.

STABILIZED JOBS NEW POLICY AT U-I

Hollywood, March 21.

Universal - International has adopted a new production policy designed to maintain a steady flow of employment throughout the year. With its 1950 program increased to 36 pictures, the studio will put three pictures into work every month in the year.

In the past there have been sudden spurts of activity, followed by slack periods.

Our Very Own

Hollywood, March 18.

RKO release of Samuel Goldwyn production. Stars Ann Blyth, Farley Granger, Joan Evans; features Jane Wyatt, Ann Dvorak, Donald Cook, Natalie Wood, Gus Schilling, Phyllis Kirk, Jessie Grayson. Directed by David Miller. Written by F. Hugh Herbert; camera, Lee Garmes; music, Victor Young; editor, Sherman Todd. Tradeshown March 17, '50. Running time, 92 MINS.

Gail	Ann Blyth
Chuck	Farley Granger
Joan	Joan Evans
Lois Macaulay	Jane Wyatt
Mrs. Lynch	Ann Dvorak
Fred Macaulay	Donald Cook
Penny	Natalie Wood
Frank	Gus Schilling
Zaza	Phyllis Kirk
Violet	Jessie Grayson
Bert	Martin Milner
Gwendolyn	Rita Hamilton
Mr. Lynch	Ray Teal

"Our Very Own" does a good job of depicting the spirit of the teenager and the value of family life. It does it all rather obviously, with quite a number of tried and true tricks, but end results are dramatics that manage to capture considerable of the flavor of the adolescent age and parental problems. Exploitation possibilities are good, so selling may help attract bobby-sox and family trade. Otherwise, strong grossing possibilities are not indicated.

Samuel Goldwyn's production touch has supplied the F. Hugh Herbert story and script with a physical background that never overglosses characters or plot. Herbert, an expert exponent of the adolescent, shapes his story well. That situations have a familiarity and patness is due to fact that mostly spring from life, but this does tend to make sequences appear overlong and the pacing spotty.

However, director David Miller is reasonably sure in handling the dramatics and film is a series of high spots of good trouping, climaxing in a finale that will wring sniffles from the femmes and throat-clearing from the males.

The Macaulays are a happy family: mother, father and three daughters. The eldest, Ann Blyth, is ready for her 18th birthday and graduation from highschool. The second is Joan Evans, envious of sister and the latter's best beau, Farley Granger. In the pigtail stage is Natalie Wood, family pest.

Through the mother's carelessness, Miss Evans finds out that her elder sister is an adopted child and reveals this in a fit of anger. Miss Blyth seeks out her natural mother in a particularly well-staged, emotional sequence; is disillusioned with plot emphasis on how she returns to a normal, happy life with the mother and father who have raised her. Curtain comes down on a stirring, eye-moistening sequence at highschool graduation when Miss Blyth tells of the value of family, foster or natural.

The younger players in the drama are completely natural and compelling, but the adults have their shining moments that add a lot of dramatic worth to the footage. Jane Wyatt is fine as the foster mother, and Ann Dvorak, in two sequences, demonstrates no small talent in portraying the natural mother who has abandoned her child. Gus Schilling, a frustrated installer of a television set; Jessie Grayson, the family cook; Donald Cook, the foster father; Phyllis Kirk, child of a broken home, and Ray Teal are among the others who add capably to the dramatic aims.

On the technical side the film has a number of credits that are meticulous in backing the story. Among them are Lee Garmes' photography, the music by Victor Young, costuming and set decorations. Brog.

City Lights

(RE-RELEASE)

United Artists release of Charles Chaplin production. Directed, written and composed by and starring Chaplin. Camera, Rollie Totheroh, Gordon Pollock, Mark Marxblatt; music arrangements, Arthur Johnston; musical director, Al Newman. Tradeshown N. Y., Feb. 17, '50. Running time, 85 MINS.

A Tramp	Charlie Chaplin
A Blind Girl	Virginia Cherrill
Her Grandmother	Florence Lee
An Eccentric Millionaire	Harry Myers
His Butler	Allan Garcia
A Prizefighter	Hank Mann

(Originally released in 1931, "City Lights" is the first in a series of Chaplin reissues. VARIETY is republishing the original review by Sid (Sid Silverman, the late publisher of VARIETY*) in the Feb. 11, 1931, issue. Sid's estimation of the pic's entertainment values is still sound, and his comment about an "hysterical press" may be even more timely, in a reverse sense, than it was two decades ago.)*

Chaplin has another good picture. The three-year period since "The Circus" and sound will give "City Lights" a percentage of "novelty money" in that it contains no dialog and it's Chaplin—which has come to mean an hysterical press. These factors ought to total heavy b.o. receipts.

It's not Chaplin's best picture, because the comedian has sacrificed speed to pathos, and plenty of it. This is principally the reason for the picture running some 1,500 or more feet beyond any previous film released by him. But the British comic is still the consummate pantomimist, unquestionably one of the greatest the stage or screen has ever known.

Certain sequences in "City Lights" are hilarious. Perhaps the high spot is a burlesque prize fight which in rehearsal time alone must have taken weeks to shoot.

What actually appears to be the only original piece of business is a cigar bit between Harry Myers and Chaplin at a table, and excellent. Otherwise the comedian is his usual tramp self, going through an aquatic suicide attempt, also with Myers, and appearing for brief footage as a streetcleaner to anticipated gags.

Probably the smartest thing is the manner in which the picture has been chopped off. All through Chaplin schemes how to procure money for a blind flower girl (Virginia Cherrill). Finally getting enough to pay off the girl's landlord and permit an operation, the continuity leaps to the girl, with her sight restored, running a flowershop. The comic, released from jail, shambles along the street. In front of the shop he becomes the brunt of bean-blowing newsboys. The girl is attracted to the window by the rumpus and Chaplin sees her. She comes outside to give him a flower and recognizes him through the touch of his hands in the exchange. And as Chaplin gazes at her worshipfully, while fearing what she'll think because of his threadbare and torn apparel, the picture ends.

Script is something of a fable in discovering the comic asleep in the lap of a statue when it is unveiled and then having him in and out of trouble through the means of a millionaire (Myers), whom Chaplin prevents from a drunken suicide, and who thereafter only recognizes the comic when drunk. A great piece of business is a twist to a butt-snatching item which has Chaplin, expelled from the millionaire's home, getting a whiff of a pedestrian's cigar and hopping the parked roadster to follow the cigar-owner, leap from the car, beat another poacher to the butt, and then climb back into the Rolls to drive away.

The lax memory of Myers, after giving Chaplin $1,000 and then sobered into forgetfulness by a thug's blackjack, is the means of getting the comedian to prison. It's also the background for having him posing as of wealth to the blind girl.

It can be imagined how much stuff has been tossed away in getting this picture down to its present length, after spasmodically shooting on it over a period of 18 months or more. Chaplin's pantomime remains superb and there is many a gem mixed up in the running. As previously, Chaplin mainly paints in broad strokes, with his most subtle maneuvering here being the sly turning of the sympathy away from the girl to himself as the picture draws to a close.

Comedian has given his latest a fast start by poking fun at talking pictures through simulating the voices of the speakers at the unveiling by musical instruments. He also takes credit for composing the score which has as its theme Raquel Meller's "Violets."

Cast support is minor other than in Meyers, who does exceptionally well in foiling the star. Miss Cherrill is very fair of face but demands upon her are not enough to permit rating other than expected.

Chaplin making a silent is merely sticking to his last. He never talked on the stage when in vaudeville, before going into pictures, and having made himself the foremost exponent of pantomime the world knows today, there doesn't appear any reason why he should talk. With his ability to create and take familiar situations to make them look differently, he can go on making successful silent films until he chooses to retire—so long as they entertain.

Talkers have not affected Chaplin and neither will he affect talkers. There will always be room for a Chaplin. He doesn't make bad pictures because he has the talent, time and means as a safeguard. There was no one like him before in pictures, and since sound came in that is doubly true. The only thing sound can do to a silent Chaplin is, perhaps, make him slightly less important in the general public eye as time goes on.

It is also probably true that a good comedy by anyone, silent or talking, will always be saleable while there remains a theatre screen for it. Sid.

Miniature Reviews

"Our Very Own" (RKO). Drama slanted towards family life and the teen-ager. Obvious but with good tearjerker exploitation possibilities.

"The Golden Twenties" (RKO). Nostalgic dip into the era between the 1918 Armistice and the 1929 economic crash, with newsreel and film clips highlighting the period.

"Tarzan and the Slave Girl" (RKO). Good Tarzan adventure, up to series standard for entertainment and b.o. prospects.

"Dynamite Pass" (RKO). Another good Tim Holt western for the oater market.

"Federal Agent at Large" (Rep). So-so meller about smuggling in Mexico, okay for dualling.

"Sarumba" (EL). Weak musical; scant b.o. prospects.

"Western Pacific Agent" (Lippert). Good action drama due for pleasant returns if properly exploited.

"Jiggs and Maggie Out West" (Mono). George McManus' cartoon characters having fun and thrills among the sagebrush. Okay for family houses.

"Messenger of Peace" (Astor). Low-budgeter with religious theme. Will probably get tremendous Church hypo.

The Golden Twenties

Hollywood, March 18.

RKO release of March of Time production, produced by Richard de Rochemont. Assistant producer, Samuel Wood Bryant; from an original story by Frederick Lewis Allen and Bryant; musical direction, Jack Shaindlin; films edited by Leo Zochling; assisted by Whitfield Davis; research, Lois Jacoby, Leona Carney, Nancy Pessac. Tradeshown March 13, '50. Running time, 67 MINS.

That curiously secular period in America spanned by 1918 and 1929 comes to the screen as "The Golden Twenties." For the youngster it's a slice of history that will educate and amuse. For the oldster it is a dip into memory of a roaring period in American growth; a period of postwar prosperity, hysteria and depression.

Richard de Rochemont produced for March of Time. RKO is releasing. They and all others concerned capture the period's flavor graphically, and the research and editing that went into the 67 minutes' running time are virtually historical reporting.

An era's color was never more flamboyant than that depicted here. The 1918 Armistice brought an emotional release to U. S. citizens that led them into strange ways. Carrie Nation's hatchet cut the national throat but failed to quench the national thirst. Prohibition brought its Al Capone and a baseball player who renounced the diamond for a pulpit to spread his exhortations as Billy Sunday.

Hungry mobs, fired by the Bolsheviks, labor agitation and Klu Kluxers, are all recorded for today's history searcher. Silly femme styles (as seen today), vaude's Palace hey-day, the rise of radio and aviation, the intense movie kiss that makes tame stuff out of today's celluloid clinch, overdressed bathing beauties and the marathon dance, the Charleston and Black-bottom, the Teapot Dome scandal, emancipation for the femme voter, Will Hays, Coue, Scope's Monkey Trial, the Florida real estate boom and bust, sports of the era, Floyd Collins, concluding with VARIETY's famous headline: "Wall Street Lays An Egg," which ended the period.

Jack Shaindlin's musical score lays stress on the songs of the time depicted, and the research, editing credits figure strongly in making "The Golden Twenties" a booking that will please the exhib and the ticket buyer. Brog.

Tarzan and the Slave Girl

Hollywood, March 17.

RKO release of Sol Lesser production. Stars Lex Barker, Vanessa Brown; features Robert Alda, Hurd Hatfield, Arthur Shields, Tony Caruso, Denise Darcel, Robert Warwick. Directed by Lee Sholem. Screenplay, Hans Jacoby, Arnold Belgard; based on the characters created by Edgar Rice Burroughs; camera, Russell Harlan; music, Paul Sawtell; editor, Christian Nyby. Tradeshown March 13, '50. Running time, 74 MINS.

Tarzan	Lex Barker
Jane	Vanessa Brown
Neil	Robert Alda
Lola	Denise Darcel
The Prince	Hurd Hatfield
Doctor	Arthur Shields
High Priest	Robert Warwick
Sengo	Tony Caruso
Chief's Son	Tito Renaldo
Moana	Mary Ellen Kay

Slavegirls: Shirley Ballard, Rosemary Burton, Gwen Cauldwell, Martha Clements, Mona Knox, Josephine Parra, Jackee Waldron.

"Tarzan and the Slave Girl" figures out as a neat entry for this long-lived series market. The casting is apt, the production design good and the action pace just right to sustain the adventuring. Where theatre patrons like "Tarzans" this one will go, and juves in particular will respond.

Lex Barker has settled down to his tree-man character and backs up the necessary physique with his derring-do. The Hans Jacoby-Arnold Belgard fictionizing comes through logically under Lee Sholem's direction, supplying suspense with action to please the fans.

Barker, as Tarzan, takes to the jungle on the trail of some femme natives who are being held prisoners by a group of lost tribesmen. With him on the trek are a doctor, searching for the source of a jungle disease; a comely half-breed nurse with a yen for men; a drunken jungle beachcomber, and sundry native carriers. Enroute, the safari fights off natives disguised as bushes and armed with deadly blowguns. This adds up to a particularly effective bit of suspense in the footage. The lost village offers sundry other dangers, including sealing of Tarzan, his mate Jane, and the nurse in a tomb, a hand-to-hand fight over a pit filled with hungry lions, and other adventure setups for thrills.

Vanessa Brown makes her bow in the Jane role and fills the bill on all counts. Denise Darcel is the nurse, adding plenty of s.a. spice. Robert Alda, the jungle drifter; Arthur Shields, the doctor; Hurd Hatfield, ruler of the ancient tribe; Tony Caruso, his evil henchman, and the others in the cast answer satisfactorily to story demands.

Sol Lesser's good production framework, designed by Harry Horner, benefits from Russell Harlan's lensing, and Paul Sawtell's music score plays an important part in establishing thriller moments. Editing is tight. Brog.

Dynamite Pass

Hollywood, March 18.

RKO release of Herman Schlom production. Stars Tim Holt; features Lynne Roberts, Regis Toomey, Robert Shayne, Richard Martin. Directed by Lew Landers. Written by Norman Houston; camera, Nicholas Musuraca; music, Paul Sawtell; editor, Robert Swink. Tradeshown March 14, '50. Running time, 60 MINS.

Ross	Tim Holt
Mary	Lynne Roberts
Dan	Regis Toomey
Wingate	Robert Shayne
Mizzouri	Don Harvey
Lulu	Cleo Moore
Thurber	John Dehner
Sheriff	Don Haggerty
Stryker	Ross Elliott
Whip	Denver Pyle
Chito Rafferty	Richard Martin

Story and character emphasis, without forgetting action, frames "Dynamite Pass" as a good Tim Holt western, filled with the type of saddle heroics that pull the Saturday matinee trade. Payoff in its market should be satisfactory.

Only critical quibble that will be echoed by the moppet ticketbuyers is the lack of markmanship in such a barrage of lead flung by the script's sixguns. Outside of that Holt and saddle pal Richard Martin are again playing sagebrush heroes out to right wrong.

The Norman Houston story has the boys meeting up with Lynne Roberts and her sodden husband, Regis Toomey, and helping them overcome dirty doings that are preventing a town to build a toll-free road to a marketing place. John Dehner is the toll-road owner who places a heavy tax on highway users. He's abetted by a seemingly honest townsman, Robert Shayne. They and their henchmen are out to prevent the construction of a new road but Holt and Martin, after sufficient riding and shooting, straighten out the mess and ride off into the sunset towards their next adventure.

Twogun-wearers deliver expertly to continue their fan following. Miss Roberts is an appealing damsel in distress and Toomey comes across capably. Skullduggery is exactly what it should be as projected by Shayne, Dehner and their sundry followers. Cleo Moore is in for a Martin sideline romance, and others measure up.

Lew Landers' direction of the Herman Schlom production keeps it moving, and lensing by Nicholas Musuraca is just as actionful. Paul Sawtell's background music and editing by Robert Swink are good. Brog.

Extras Row Again

Hollywood, March 21.

Leaders of the defunct Screen Players Guild have filed a petition seeking to recall all officers and board members of the Screen Extras Guild, a total of 33 persons. Guild constitution provides that a special election must be held if 51% of the members sign the petition. SEG board declared:

"This is just another in a long series of disruptive moves by a small dissident group which has been repudiated time and time again by the overwhelming majority of the membership."

Federal Agent at Large

(SONGS)

Republic release of Stephen Auer production. Features Dorothy Patrick, Robert Rockwell, Kent Taylor, Estelita Rodriguez. Directed by George Blair. Screenplay, Albert DeMond; camera, John MacBurnie; editor, Arthur Roberts; music, Stanley Wilson. Tradeshown, N. Y., March 15, '50. Running time, 60 MINS.

Solitaire	Dorothy Patrick
Dr. Ross Carrington	Robert Rockwell
Matt Reedy	Kent Taylor
Lopita	Estelita Rodriguez
"Big Bill" Dixon	Thurston Hall
Angelo "Angel" Badillo	Frank Puglia
Nels Berger	Roy Barcroft
"Jumpy" Jordan	Denver Pyle
Goodwin	Jonathan Hale
Monahan	Robert Kent
Captain	Kenneth MacDonald
Mildred	Sonia Darrin
Duke Warren	Frank McFarland
Customs Officer	John McGuire

"Federal Agent at Large" is a so-so crimeller for the double bills.

Story is a routine T-Man yarn, pitting Kent Taylor as the Treasury agent against a band of gold smugglers operating in old Mexico. It works in some femme allure in the person of Dorothy Patrick, as a hardboiled gangleader who eventually is softened by love and turns state's evidence. Miss Patrick gets all she can from the role of a cold-blooded moll who can warm up to man, who can keep her henchmen in check and in the end chuck away all her loot for romance.

Plot involves some ingenious, if implausible schemes. Gold is secreted in Aztec pottery which an archaeologist gets out of Mexico without customs inspection and the Federal agent uses a wire-recorder to get the story of the smuggling and his own murder to the authorities.

Acting is competent. In addition to Miss Patrick, Taylor turns in a believable performance as the T-Man who joins the lawbreakers in the guise of a mobster. Frank Puglia is convincing in a sympathetic role, that of a Mexican who has become an outlaw to send his daughter to school and who finally helps the U. S. break up the ring. Robert Rockwell, as the archaeologist who temporarily runs afoul of the law, handles his relatively brief stint well. Two songs, both with English and Spanish lyrics, are put over by Estelita Rodriguez, who plays the buxom singer in Miss Patrick's cafe hangout.

Action fanciers get two walloping fist fights and one gun battle aboard ship. Direction is fast-paced and editing brings the film in as a tight 60-minute vehicle. Bril.

Scandals of Clochemerle

(FRENCH)

Siritzky release of Cinema-Productions production. Features Felix Oudart, Brochard, Simone Michels, Cri-Cri Muller and Maximillienne. Directed by Pierre Chenal. Screenplay by Gabriel Chevallier, based on his own novel; additional dialog, Pierre Laroche; camera, Robert Le Febvre; music, Henri Sauguet. Previewed in New York March 13, '50. Running time, 86 MINS.

Ponosse	Felix Oudart
Piechut	Brochard
Judith	Simone Michels
Adele	Cri-Cri Muller
Justine Putet	Maximillienne
Torbayon	Max Dalban
Tafardel	Armontel
Toumignon	Paul Demange
Baronne de Courtebiche	Jeane Marken
Rose Bivaque	Jacqueline Dor
Claudius Brodequin	Jack Gauthier
Bourdillat	Saturnin Fabre
Poilphard	Orbal

(English Titles)

If, as many Hollywood filmmakers are coming to believe, the key to b.o. success lies in pictures with a "gimmick" that give audiences something to talk about, this French importation should be hotter than "Gone With the Wind." It's probably the champion "gimmick picture" of all time, its main action having to do with the construction of the well-known French type open-air comfort station in the main square of the little town of Clochmerle.

Picture is a satire on all French films, loaded with amusing caricatures of all the standard rural Gallic types and of unabashed bedroom and behind-the-bushes action that have often been associated with the best French comedy. It's generally more like a French postcard than a French picture, but it is often hilariously funny.

Unfortunately, Gabriel Chevallier, who has concocted the screenplay from his own best-selling (in both French and English) satirical novel of the same title, has often spoiled his effect by trailing off into slapstick. He and director Pierre Chenal just didn't seem to know when enough was plenty and went overboard in literal pictorialization of what might more effectively just have been suggested. Story, likewise, is allowed to meander meaninglessly.

As a result, what could possibly have been artistry in satire and a solid b.o. entry for sophisticated audiences has turned into a curiosity piece. Wherever the censors let them get away with it in the U. S. [pic opens at the Ambassador, N. Y., next Monday (27)], Siritzky International should find it doing well on the basis of w.-of-m. and the curiosity of audiences who just want to see all this with

(Continued on page 20)

O.O. DUALS IN MOVE TO HYPO B.O.

'Tarzan' Paid Off Big to Burroughs

Edgar Rice Burroughs, who died in California Sunday (19), is believed to have earned more from the screen than any other writer in the history of films. The 27 pictures which have been based on his "Tarzan" character reportedly paid him well over $2,000,000 in royalties. Sol Lesser, who currently controls the rights but is only one of many producers who have made the "Tarzan" pix since National Film Co. did the original in 1918, estimates that he alone has paid the author better than $1,000,000. Burroughs received as high as $160,000 royalty from Lesser on a single picture.

Best part of this coin was that it entailed no work by the author. First few pix were adaptations of his yarns, but after that they were written entirely by studio scriveners. Burroughs' payoff was strictly for the "Tarzan" character. Lesser recently inked a deal giving him the right to make 15 more pix in the next 10 years. He owns rights to each film for only seven years, anything beyond that requiring a new agreement.

House Group Won't OK 20% Tax Cut Unless Low-Priced Tix Reap Benefits

Washington, March 21.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee will not approve any reduction of the 20% admissions tax which bars low-priced tickets from the benefits of such a slash. This is flatly predicted here by leading members of the committee following disclosure that such a recommendation has been made in executive session.

One suggestion by a committee employee was to maintain the 20% bite on tickets costing under 75c and to reduce it only for the higher-priced paste boards. "That was suggested," said a member of the committee, "but it will get nowhere. We want to help the little fellows. They get the relief even if the establishments selling expensive tickets do not."

So far the committee has not even begun to work on any individual excise tax. It is merely considering the overall situation, and the possibilities of new levies to make up some of the revenue to be lost from the cuts. It now appears that a bill may not be ready until after the Easter holiday.

COMPO's committee on taxation and legislation huddled here last Thursday (16) under chairmanship of Abram F. Myers and pledged a fight for complete repeal of the 20% admissions tax. Committee said it was not in favor of only a reduction and that there existed a genuine possibility that full repeal could be effectuated. In a statement issued after the meeting, committee said.

Paramount Leads Again In Reacquiring Own Stock

Three major companies continued active on the New York exchange in picking up their own stock as part of a drive to streamline capital structure. As in the past, biggest campaign was waged by Paramount. Company bought up 12,300 shares of common at a cost of approximately $240,000. Par now holds 72,710 shares in its treasury, all acquired since divorcement, Jan. 1 of this year.

Columbia bought 300 shares of its high-priced preferred stock in the same period. Col now holds 2,870 shares of preferred in its treasury for ultimate retirement. Block of 100 shares of preferred was also picked up by 20th-Fox. Company's preferred purchases thereby hit 34,500 shares.

No activity during the 30-day stretch was registered by Universal. Previously, that major had been accumulating shares of its limited preferred issue.

DOS & SONS TO P.R.

David O. Selznick left New York for Puerto Rico over the weekend. He's vacationing there with his two sons. They'll be away until about April 1. Selznick's wife, Jennifer Jones, returned to the Coast from New York last week.

Selznick is planning to leave New York for Europe in May. He intends being there most of the summer, setting up production deals.

Ex-Sureseaters

Universal, which as a principal distributor of British product playing such houses, has its flack engaged in trying to find a satisfactory substitute for the "art theatre" tag. It feels that the "art" appellation has long since ceased to be an apt description and that it hurts business.

Best that anyone has come up with yet, but still not felt to be completely satisfactory, is "class house," moniker which VARIETY has used in recent years in a like effort to get away from the "art" misnomer.

Coast P.A. War Continues Hot

Hollywood, March 21.

Petition for union shop election among publicists is expected to be filed today (Tuesday) with National Labor Relations Board by Screen Publicists Guild. Guild needs signatures of only 10% of eligible membership, or 15. It has 109 and expects to obtain more at the membership meeting tonight. Guild has requested a meeting with majors for pact talks but no date has been set as yet.

Petition grows out of the war between the SPG and an IATSE flack group, Local 818, SPG, was recently certified as bargaining agent for studio press agents. The vote, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, was 64 to 62.

Dan Thomas, SPG prexy, declared the Guild would move for immediate contract negotiations with the major companies. Meanwhile, the IATSE group said the vote was indecisive and announced that it will not be necessary for its members to join or pay dues to SPG. IA group said it would seek another election and ask support from AFL unions to stymie Guild's attempts at contract negotiations.

Telenews Switch Leaves Chicago With 1 Reeler

Chicago, March 21.

Chicago is left with one newsreel theatre as a result of the Telenews theatre's decision Monday (20) to convert to a first-run policy. Change takes place April 8, when house brings in "Red Shoes" for an extended run at popular prices.

Only newsreel house left is the Today theatre on Madison street. Changeover reflects poor returns of newsreel houses. Telenews' sister house, the Carnegie, was converted into art house last December after a month of newsreel operation.

Telenews has shown newsreels for a decade. Name of house will be changed, possibly to Loop theatre, and prices will be competitive with rest of loop first-run houses, with 98c top.

SINGLE-PIC AREAS HOLDING UP BEST

Double features may be in for a new attack as a killer of boxoffice grosses. Long an aspect of the film industry about which everyone talked but seldom did anything about, the dual bills have become the subject of renewed trade discussion during recent weeks. With the entire industry scouting every possible method of stopping the current boxoffice dip, new tests of the power of double-billing may result in a switch to single-feature policies in some areas.

Key to the new thinking on duallers was sounded by Interstate Circuit chief Robert J. O'Donnell. Claiming that Texas, the home territory of Interstate, was the last territory in the country to feel the b.o. decline, he suggested that maybe it's because Texas is a single-feature area. Twentieth-Fox veepee Al Lichtman was more blunt about it, labeling double features one of the scourges of the industry. But, according to Lichtman, the policy is one which must be corrected by exhibitors. Distributors can do nothing about it, he said.

Exhibs, for their part, recall that attempts to switch from a dual to single-feature policy in several test regions a few years back almost invariably resulted in decreased grosses. New policy was okay in a non-competitive situation but, wherever two theatres were lined up against each other, one would switch back to the dualers as soon as his business fell off. And, the exhibs claim, with the customers to the dualing house, forcing the competing theatre to follow through.

Chief argument against the dual bills is that the policy is a tremendous dissipator of product. Subsequent run and nabe houses in

(Continued on page 18)

Par's Competitive Selling Expands

Paramount is beginning to sell its product on competitive bids in a scattering of situations where its circuit previously took first-runs on an automatic basis. Latest swing into competitive selling is New Orleans. Previously, United Paramount as successor to the E. V. Richards chain bought Par's releases without the need to buck rival offers on terms.

All Par's product will henceforth be sold competitively in the N. O. sector. Besides that city, company is using the same method in a few situations where exhibs have asked for the right to match rentals with UP following the chain's divorcement under the anti-trust decree.

In the main, however, divorcement has failed to develop a flood of requests by outside exhibs for a crack at Par's lineup in competition with UP. Hence, distrib is dealing with its divorced chain in hundreds of spots where UP is in position to take first-runs on the basis of its choice flickeries.

As a result, Par has been obtaining about the same terms from the new chain as it previously charged the circuit when the two wings were commonly owned.

Goldwyn 'Unfair,' SWG Rules in Krims Beef

Hollywood, March 21.

Samuel Goldwyn was placed on the Screen Writers Guild's unfair list, following a complaint registered with the Guild's grievance committee by Milton Krims, scripter.

Krims declares he was hired by Goldwyn to write the screenplay for "Christmas Present" and discharged without pay.

U's Lipton Avers 'Vast' Untapped Audience Awaits Well-Sold Pix

Making 'Em Eat It

New kind of party was staged by Arthur Lubin, director of "Francis," Universal's current release on a talking mule, when the film was completed. Director, who was instrumental in U's purchase of the story from David Stern, invited to dinner every producer in Hollywood who had turned down the yarn. Story was peddled around considerably before U picked it up.

After the knife-and-fork work was over, Lubin screened the film. He did it to demonstrate that the story, rejected widely on the grounds it couldn't be done, was picture fare. Incidentally, every producer invited showed up.

Film patronage at the present time consists of "an undulating audience that still responds in huge waves when we sell pictures creatively," David Lipton, Universal's ad-pub chief is convinced. Lipton tabs himself as optimistic of future business because he believes a "vast audience" is on tap despite the overworked crying towels. Intensified showmanship drives have turned out a big following for such U pix as "Francis," ad-pubber declares, and there is room for the entire industry taking the cue.

"The variations in boxoffice figures in small towns are simply astounding when we do something the right way," Lipton said. "Sell a picture in these towns with showmanship and the Sunday business can be better than that of the entire week on a cut-and-dried operation. The business is there and can be done when you keep in close touch with the needs of the people."

U is so convinced of the need for showmanship, Lipton went on, that when no player is available for hinterland tours, company is drafting not only producers but behind-the-scene personnel from the lot. For instance, he said, U sent Mel Hanks, technical advisor, on one trip and its hairdresser on another. In both instances, treks paid off in plenty of newspaper space.

Lipton is operating on the Coast because the closest liaison, including physical organization, is essential between ad-pub forces and those of production. His staff is now consulted on scripts, casting, story ideas and almost every other phase of filmaking for the promotional possibilities of pix. Commissary has a huge display of all exploitation stunts to stress the needs of selling on producers.

U has also revamped its ideas so that longrange planning of campaigns is now the order-of-the-day. Campaign on "Erancis," company's current big grosser, was mapped from the script. "Harvey," filmization of the play which does not go before the cameras for several more months, already has a campaign pencilled in with eve nthe release date and preem site chosen.

Because U is now completely sold on the needs of exploitation, locale for the shooting of pix is judged frequently on what it will mean for the film when it hits the theatres. "Outside the Wall," U's new release, for instance, was shot mainly in Philadelphia because that area had not been the background for a pic in many years.

Within the limitations prescribed by the studio toppers, television is being used as much as possible. Lipton disclosed that the lot is now distributing bi-weekly a five-minute video program consisting of stills plus a running commentary. Some 45 TV stations are using this fodder, he said.

Lipton is east for h.o. confabs. He expects to return to the Coast next week.

2d Billion Lire Thawout Stalled

Possibility of the Italian government removing all restrictions on export of frozen film funds reportedly contributed to the falling through of a deal by the American industry to thaw 1,000,000,000 lire (about $1,300,000). This would have been the second 1,000,000,000 lire deal in recent months. First was consummated successfully a few months ago by the Motion Picture Assn. of America for benefit of its member companies.

Both transactions were with organizations associated with the Catholic Church and called for payment by them of dollars in the U. S. in return for release of frozen lire to them at a discount in Rome. Italian government stamped its okay on the first one, but found a number of flaws in the second.

Meantime, there were reported developments that may mean the end of all restrictions on the convertibility of lire into dollars. As a result, the MPAA decided not to push the negotiations, but rather to wait further action. In the event there is a lifting of restrictions, coin can be removed without giving the discount necessary under present conditions.

MPAA is pushing hard to have the freeze removed. Most of their earnings are now being obtained by U. S. films from Italy, but there'd be a saving in eliminating discounts. Even more important, however, it would be the first important country to lift its coin blockade officially and thus might encourage similar action by other nations.

TV Rasslers Glorified In Laurel's Indie Pic

Grunt-and-groan boys who've made good on TV in various sections of the country are going to get a chance to repeat in "Mr. Universe," feature which Laurel Films will make in New York. Jack Carson was inked last week to star in the pic, a comic expose of the wrestling dodge.

Laurel exec producer Joe Lerner is lining up 20 wrestlers for chores in the pic. Tieins will be made later for publicity and exploitation on the TV outlets in the territories in which each of the muscle artists is a local hero.

With shooting slated to start April 2, Lerner is still hunting a combo of Man Mountain Dean, Adonis and the All-American Boy for the principal rassler role. No release has been set for the pic as yet. Laurel's "Guilty Bystander," with Faye Emerson and Zachary Scott, is now in distribution by Film Classics.

Carson's appearance in "Universe" is his first since release from his Warner Bros. contract.

U.S. Moves to Avert N.Y. WB Collarites Walkout

In a move to avert a threatened strike of Warner Bros.' 525 homeoffice employees, Federal mediation officials are stepping into the picture this week to attempt resumption of contract negotiations between the company and collarite Local H-63, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. Local H-63 moved closer to a walkout, meantime, with a unanimous strike vote Monday (21) authorizing the union's exec board to launch a strike whenever it saw fit. Richard F. Walsh, IA prexy, also gave the local permission to carry through the action.

Dispute between WB and the union centers over the 10c. hourly wage hike demanded by Local H-63. Company made a counteroffer of 6c., which was turned down. Both sides have been in negotiations for a new pact since last September, when the previous contract expired.

L.A. Still in Doldrums But 'Shoes' OK $42,000, 'Key' Smooth at $33,000; 'Strangers' Slim 25G, 'Treason' 17G

Los Angeles, March 21.

Seven new bills are current this week but the first-run boxoffice picture has failed to improve, and overall doldrums continue. From a money standpoint, "Red Shoes" is collaring the largest total with $42,000 or near in five theatres. While not hefty, this is considered okay in view of fact that film has played about 18 months in this area and is first time at regular prices.

"Key to City" shapes fairly good $33,000 in two spots, being comparatively best in the Hollywood location. New vaude bill at the downtown Paramount is helping "Singing Guns" to okay $28,500 in two sites. "Perfect Strangers" is slim $25,000 in three houses, staying single week. "Guilty of Treason" in two spots is very dull $17,000 while "Buccaneer's Girl" also is way off for five locations with $20,000. All other houses are in line with general biz slowdown.

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Hawaii, Forum, Music Halls (Princor) (902; 512; 834; 1,106; 2,100; 55-$1)—"Love Happy" (UA) and "Tyrant of Sea" (Col) (2d wk). Light $20,000. Last week, $29,000.

Los Angeles, Chinese, Uptown, Loyola, Wilshire (FWC) (2,097; 2,048; 1,719; 1,248; 2,296; 60-$1)—"Red Shoes" (EL). First time at pop prices after more than year's roadshow run. Okay $42,000. Last week, "Willie Marching Home" (20th) and "Girl San Lorenzo" (UA) (2d wk-5 days), $18,000.

Hollywood, Downtown, Wiltern (WB) (2,756; 1,757; 2,344; 60-$1)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB). Slim $25,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) (2d wk), $24,500.

Loew's State, Egyptian (UA) (2,404; 1,538; 60-$1)—"Key to City" (M-G). Fairly good $33,000. Last week, "Ambush" (M-G) (9 days), $32,800.

Hillstreet, Pantages (RKO) (2,890; 2,812; 50-$1) — "Guilty of Treason" (EL) and "Beauty on Parade" (Col). Very dull $17,000. Last week, "Palomino" (Col) and "Father Is Bachelor" (Col), $18,000.

Los Angeles, Hollywood Paramounts (F&M) (3,398; 1,451; 40-$1) —"Singing Guns" (Rep) with stagebill headed by Gil Lamb, Herb Jeffries at L. A. only. Okay $28,500, but not standout in view of L. A. stage policy. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and "Unmasked" (Rep) (L.A. only) (2d wk), $15,000.

United Artists, Ritz, Vogue, Studio City, Culver (UA-FWC) (2,100; 1,370; 885; 880; 1,145; 60-$1) — "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) and "Palooka Meets Humphrey" (Mono). Slow $20,000. Last week, "Francis" (U) and "There's Girl in Heart" (Mono) (3d wk), big $23,300.

Orpheum (D'town) (2,210; 50-95) —"Blonde Bandit" (Rep) (2d run) with eight acts vaude. Light $14,500. Last week, "Spring Park Lane" (EL) (2d run) with Dick Contino unit, strong $25,300.

Four Star (UA) (900; 60-$1) — "Vicious Years" (FC) (2d wk). Near $2,500. Last week, oke $2,600.

Fine Arts (FWC) (679; 85-$1.25) —"Il Trovatore" (Indie). Good $5,000. Last week, "Letter Three Wives" (20th) and "Come to Stable" (20th), $3,500.

'Ambush' Big $12,000 In Denver; 'Ruth' Fine 14G

Denver, March 21.

"Ambush" at Broadway and "Dear Wife" at Denham are getting good weeks here. Weather is right for theatres, too. "Mother Didn't Tell Me" looks fine in two houses.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Wolfberg) (1,500; 35-74)—"Ambush" (M-G). Big $12,000. Last week, "Battleground" (M-G) (6th wk), fair $5,000.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,750; 35-70) —"Dear Ruth" (Par). Fine $14,000. Holds. Last week, "Capt. China" (Par) (2d wk), fair $9,500.

Denver (Fox) (2,525; 35-74)— "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) and "Unmasked" (Rep), day-date with Esquire. Fine $15,000. Last week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Lip), good $14,000.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 35-74)— "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) and "Unmasked" (Rep), also Denver. Trim $3,000. Last week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Lip), good $2,500.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,600; 35-74)— "Malaya" (M-G) and "Man of Evil"

(Continued on page 22)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $452,500
(Based on 18 theatres.)
Last Year $489,000
(Based on 16 theatres.)

'Home' Rousing $25,000, Philly

Philadelphia, March 21.

Lent has started to exact its toll on first-runs here and biz was off all along the line. Two newcomers, "Nancy Goes to Rio," at the Boyd, and "Three Came Home," at the Fox, drew good trade but not up to hopes. "Mrs. Mike" shapes fair at Goldman while "My Foolish Heart" is nice at the Randolph.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (WB) (1,303; 50-99) — "Guilty of Treason" (EL) (2d wk). Down to $8,000 after neat $15,000 opener.

Boyd (WB) (2,360; 50-99)—"Nancy To Rio" (M-G). Fine $25,000. Last week, "Francis" (U) (3d wk), mild $11,000.

Earle (WB) (2,700; 70-$1.25) — "Samson and Delilah" (Par) (7th wk). Still nice at $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Fox (20th) (2,250; 50-99)—"Three Came Home" (20th). Solid $25,000. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th), slim $16,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; 50-99)—"Mrs. Mike" (UA). Fair $13,000. Last week, "Paid in Full" (Par) (2d wk), $12,000.

Karlton (Goldman) (1,000; 50-99) —"Love Happy" (UA) (3d wk). Nice $6,000. Last week, $8,500.

Mastbaum (WB) (4,360; 50-99)— "Man with Horn" (WB) (3d wk). Down to $13,500 after sour $16,000 second round.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 50-99)—"Foolish Heart" (RKO). Big $19,000. Last week, "Key to City" (M-G) (4th wk), $9,000.

Stanley (WB) (2,950; 50-99)— "Sundowners" (EL). Fairish $14,000. Last week, "Eiffel Tower" (RKO), $15,000.

Stanton (WB) (1,475; 50-99)— "The Outlaw" (RKO) (3d wk). Okay $7,500. Last week, hefty $14,000.

Omaha Off; 'Wife' Okay At $11,000, 'Willie' 10G

Omaha, March 21.

"Dear Wife," shaping okay at Paramount, and "When Willie Comes Marching Home," fair at Orpheum are leading mild week here. "Young Man With Horn" at Brandeis looks good. For the third time recently openings had to contend with blustery weather.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Tristates) (2,800; 16-65)—"Dear Wife" (Par). Okay $11,000. Last week, "The Heiress" (Par), fair $10,000.

Orpheum (Tristates) (3,000; 16-65)—"Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Federal Agent" (Rep). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Black Book"

(Continued on page 22)

Prov. Dips But 'Francis' $14,500; 'Home' $15,000

Providence, March 21.

Everybody is complaining this week because biz is way down. Best of the lot are State's "Key To City" and Majestic's "Three Came Home."

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 44-65) — "Francis" (U) and "Black Shadows" (EL). Fairish $14,500. Last week, "Cinderella" (RKO) (3d wk-4 days), good $8,000.

Fay's (Fay) (1,400; 44-65)—"Twilight in Sierras" (Rep) and vaude onstage. Fairly good $7,000. Last week, "Paleface" (Par) (2d run) and vaude, oke $6,500.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 44-65) — "Three Came Home" (20th). Mildish $15,000 or near. Last week, "Lady Takes Sailor" (WB) and "Unmasked" (Rep), good $15,000.

Metropolitan (Snider) (3,100; 44-65) — "Beau Geste" (Par) and "Lives Bengal Lancer" (Par) (reissues). Not too bad $7,500. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Blonde Dynamite" (WB), nice $9,500.

State (Loew) (3,200; 44-65) — "Key To City" (M-G). Fair $16,500. Last week, "East Side" (M-G) and "Silent Dust" (Mono), $17,000.

Strand (Silverman) (2,200; 44-65) —"Paid in Full" (Par). Started Monday (20). Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and "Body Hold" (Col), weak $7,500.

'Francis' Toronto Leader, Smash 12G

Toronto, March 21.

Though business generally is not spectacular, "Dear Wife" is doing okay at Imperial, with "Francis" sock at Loew's and "Mother Didn't Tell Me" nice at two houses. Of holdovers, "Willie Comes Home" and "Heiress" are holding up well "Train of Events," British film of the "Quartet" pattern, is doing near-capacity at Humber on third week.

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Glendale, Scarboro, State (20th) (1,059; 955; 698; 694; 35-60)—"Baby Makes Three" (Col) and "Kazan" (Col). Okay $10,500. Last week, "Port New York" (EL) and "Shamrock Hill" (EL), $11,000.

Eglinton, Victoria (FP) (1,080; 1,140; 40-70) — "Heiress" (Par) (4th wk). Fair $8,000 after last week's $10,500.

Fairlawn, Odeon (Rank) (1,200; 2,390; 50-$1.20)—"Guilty of Treason" (EL) (2d wk). Light $9,000 after last week's $9,500,

Humber (Rank) (1,203; 50-80)— "Train of Events" (EL) (3d wk). Still near-capacity at $3,700 after last week's $4,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,373; 40-70) — "Dear Wife" (Par). Fine $12,500. Last week, "Montana" (WB), $11,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,096; 40-70) — "Malaya" (M-G) (2d wk). Satisfactory $8,000 after last week's fine $12,000.

Nortown, University (FP) (959; 1,556; 40-70)—"Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th). Very good $12,500. Last week, "Man with Horn" (WB) (2d wk). Nice $11,500.

Shea's (FP) (2,386; 40-70) — "Willie Comes Home" (20th) (2d wk). Okay $8,000 after last week's $11,500.

Uptown (Loew) (2,743; 40-70)— "Francis" (U). Sock $12,000. Last week, "Ambush" (M-G) (2d wk), poor $4,000.

'Cinderella' Sockeroo 21G Tops Cincy; 'Holiday' Loud $12,000, 'Rio' Lush 14G

Cincinnati, March 21.

"Cinderella" is stepping out in fantastic style to top town this round. Two other new bills, "Nancy Goes To Rio" and "Johnny Holiday," are in solid stride and helping to boost biz generally above seasonal level.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 55-75) — "Cinderella" (RKO). Wham $21,000. Had benefit of city-wide Cinderella search, merchandise tieups, co-ops ads and windows. Last week, "Baby Makes Three" (Col) plus vaude onstage, all right $20,000 at 55-85c scale.

Capitol (Mid-States) (2,000; 55-75)—"12 O'Clock High" (20th) (3d wk). Good $7,000 trailing swell $10,500 second round.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 55-75) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G). Bright $14,000. Last week, "Key To City" (M-G) (3d wk), oke $6,000.

Keith's (Mid-States) (1,542; 55-75)—"Capt. China" (Par). Favorable $7,000. Last week, "Blue Grass Kentucky" (Mono), so-so $5,500.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 55-75)— "Johnny Holiday" (UA). Sturdy $12,000. Bolstered by 5-station radio campaign and press smears on p.a. of "Ronnie" Alcorn, film's producer, native of nearby Hamilton, O. Last week, "Paid in Full" (Par), $9,000.

Shubert (Mid-States) (2,100; 55-75)—"Here Come Co-Eds" (Indie) and "Can't Cheat Honest Man" (Indie) (reissues). Fairish $4,500. Last week, "Girl From Manhattan" (UA), $3,500.

Det. Auto Strike Sloughs Biz But 'East Side' $10,000; 'Tower' Fair 22G

Detroit, March 21.

Biz has sloughed off again with the Chrysler strike getting major share of the blame. Patronage is nearly back to point it was near the end of the coal strike. "East Side, West Side" looks about liveliest at the Adams. "Paid in Full" shapes okay at United Artists. "Eiffel Tower" is only fair at Fox. "Man With Horn" is slipping badly in second semester at Michigan.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Mich) (5,000; 70-95) — "Eiffel Tower" (RKO) and "Masked Raiders" (RKO). Fair $22,000. Last week, "Outlaw" (RKO) and "Tattooed Stranger" (RKO), fine $21,000 in second week.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,000; 70-95)—"Man With Horn" (WB) and "Indian Scout" (Col) (2d wk). Slipping $15,000. Last week, lusty $23,000.

Palms (UD) (2,900; 70-95) — "Black Hand" (M-G). Okay $17,000. Last week, "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) and "Tarnished" (Rep), $16,000.

United Artists (UD) (2,000; 70-95) —"Paid in Full" (Par) and "Palomino" (Col). Good $16,000. Last week, "Wing and Prayer" (20th) and "Submarine Patrol" (20th) (reissues), $8,000.

Madison (UD) (1,800; 75-$1.20)— "Samson and Delilah" (Par) (9th wk). Steady $9,000. Last week, $9,500.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 70-95)— "East Side" (M-G) and "Leave To Henry" (Mono). Good $10,000. Last week, "Red Shoes" (EL) (3d wk), $7,000.

Downtown (Balaban) (2,900; 70-95) — "Red Shoes" (EL) (m.o.). Fourth week downtown. Okal $8,000. Last week, "G. I. Joe" (UA) and "Stole Million" (Indie) (reissues), $6,000.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,349,500
(Based on 23 cities, 203 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,641,000
(Based on 24 cities and 202 theatres.)

'12 O'Clock' High $23,000, K.C. Ace

Kansas City, March 21.

Big money is going to "Twelve O'Clock High," heading for a huge session and a certain second week at Fox Midwest first-run trio, the Tower, Uptown and Fairway. Rest of films currently are moderately good, including "Love Happy" at Missouri, "Black Hand" at Midland and "Young Man With Horn" at Paramount. "Francis" is sticking around for third stanza in moveover to Esquire and kicking up nice capers there. Weather turned off cold for weekend and was no help to trade.

Estimates for This Week

Esquire (Fox Midwest) (820; 45-65)—"Francis" (U) and "Blonde Bandit" (Rep) (m.o.). Third downtown week for mule comedy. Looks hefty $4,000, and possible holdover. Last week, "Jolson Sings Again" (Col), first time at regular scale, 8 days, $3,500.

Kimo (Dickinson) (550; 75-$1.20) —"Hamlet" (U) (2d wk). Holding up nicely at pleasant $2,500 and likely will go a third. Last week, $3,500.

Midland (Loew's) (3,500; 45-65)— "Black Hand' (M-G) and "The Palomino" (Col). Just topping average at $13,000. Last week, "Nancy to Rio" (M-G) and "Border Incident" (M-G), $11,000.

Missouri (RKO) (2,650; 45-65)— "Love Happy" (UA) and "Killer Shark" (Mono). Good $11,000. Last week, "Chain Lightning" (WB) and "Mule Train" (Col), $9,500.

Paramount (United Par) (1,900; 45-65)—"Man With Horn" (WB). Nice $11,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) $10,000.

Tower - Uptown - Fairway (Fox Midwest) (2,100, 2,043, 700; 45-65) —"12 O'Clock High" (20th). Smash $23,000 and best money for this trio in months. Holds. Last week, "Francis" (U) (2d wk), great $15,000, over hopes.

'RIO' RICH $13,000 In BALTO; 'HAPPY' 10G

Baltimore, March 21.

No decided lift noted in the downtown sector here this week. Best current action is being recorded by "Three Came Home," at the New, and "Nancy Goes to Rio," at Loew's Century. Some interest also in "Love Happy" at Keith's but nothing really big in any situation.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew's-UA) (3,000; 20-60)—"Nancy Goes Rio" (M-G). Big $13,000. Last week, "East Side" (M-G), $11,800.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,240; 20-80) — "Cinderella" (RKO) plus vaude (3d wk). Maintaining good pace at $14,000 after fine second session at $17,700.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,460; 20-60)—"Love Happy" (UA). Okay $10,000 or over. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par), $9,300 in 10 days.

Mayfair (Hicks) (980; 20-65)— "Outside the Wall (U). Opening tomorrow (Wed.) after second week of "Dakota Lil" (20th) drooped to $5,000.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 20-60)— "Three Came Home" (20th) (2nd wk). Starts second round tomorrow (Wed.) after doing very well in opener at indicated $13,500.

Stanley (WB) (3,280; 25-75)— "Barricade" (WB). Not up to hopes at $8,500. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB), slow $9,000 the final count.

Town (Rappaport) (1,500; 35-65) —"Sundowners" (EL). Opens tomorrow (Wed.) after week of "Guilty of Treason" (EL) did slow $6,000 take.

'Home' Brisk at $24,500, Hub; 'Buccaneer' $18,000, 'Cinderella' 16G in 5th

Boston, March 21.

Biz shapes a little more solid this stanza after big letdown last week, new product and St. Patrick's Day helping. "Three Came Home" at Paramount and Fenway looks nice with "Buccaneer's Girl" at Boston and "Young Man With a Horn" at Met okay. "Cinderella" in fifth week at Memorial still is solid and "All King's Men" at State and Orpheum still is nice on holdover.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (Jaycox) (1,200; 50-95) — "Foolish Heart" (RKO) (7th wk). Down to $4,500 after neat $7,000 for sixth.

Beacon Hill (Beacon Hill, Inc.) (780; 40-95)—"Bicycle Thief" (Indie) (5th wk). Still nice at $6,500 after fine $7,800 for fourth.

Boston (RKO) (3,200; 40-85) — "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) and "Sarumba" (EL). Fair $18,000. Last week, "Deadly Is Female" (UA) and "Red Desert" (EL), $15,000.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 40-85) — "Three Came Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Indie). Oke $6,500. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th) and "Backfire" (WB), $4,800.

Mayflower (ATC) (700; 35-85)— "Four Days Leave" (FC) and "Cry Murder" (FC). Fair $3,500. Last week, "Guilty Bystander" (FC) and "To Ends of Earth" (Col) (reissue), $2,500.

Memorial (RKO) (3,500; 40-85)— "Cinderella" (RKO) (5th wk). Neat $16,000 after nice $19,000 for fourth.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,367; 40-85)—"Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tarnished" (Rep). Fair $18,000. Last week, "Chain Lightning" (WB) and "Blonde Dynamite" (Mono), $14,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 40-85) —"All King's Men" (Col) and "Chinatown Midnight" (Col) (2d wk). Okay $20,000 after strong $26,000 opening.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 40-85) —"Three Came Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Indie) Nifty $18,000. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th) and "Backfire" (WB), $12,000.

Pilgrim (ATC) (1,700; 35-85) — "Four Days Leave" (FC) and "Cry Murder" (FC). Mild $6,000. Last week, "Guilty Bystander" (FC) and "To Ends of Earth" (Col) (reissue), same.

State (Loew) (3,500; 40-85) — "All King's Men" (Col) and "Chinatown Midnight" (Col) (2d wk). Neat $11,000 after tasty $17,000 in first.

'Horn'-Ink Spots Fine $53,000 Pace Spotty Chi; 'Cinderella' Strong 16G, 4th Wk.; '3d Man' Ups to 12G in 5th

Chicago, March 21.

With only two first-run features showing in the Loop this week, biz is spotty and off a bit in many houses. "Young Man with Horn," teamed with the Ink Spots onstage at Chicago, should do nice $53,000. "Black Hand," at State-Lake, looks moderate $17,000.

Of the holdovers, "Third Man" is surprising with upturn of business in fifth week at Selwyn. Rose to sock $12,000 from $10,000 week before, with increase accredited to excellent retail record sales of zither music. "Cinderella," in fourth week at Palace, is strong at $16,000.

"Key to City" shapes prime $10,000 in second frame at United Artists. "Nancy Goes to Rio" and Sugar Chile Robinson onstage at Oriental for second week is holding to trim $33,000. "Buccaneer's Girl," in second frame at Grand, is fair $8,000. "12 O'Clock High" is holding well at lusty $20,000 in third week at Woods.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 50-98)—"Man with Horn" (WB) and Ink Spots topping stageshow. Fat $53,000. Last week, "Heiress" (Par) and Billy DeWolfe onstage (2d wk), $44,000.

Garrick (B&K) (900; 50-98) — "Blossoms in Dust" (M-G) and "Johnny Eager" (M-G) (reissues). Slow $4,500. Last week, "Shadow of Doubt" (U) and "Follow Boys" (U) (reissues), $4,000.

Grand (RKO) (1,500; 98)—"Buccaneer's Girl" (U) (2d wk). Fair $8,000. Last week, $12,000.

Oriental (Booth) (3,400; 50-98)—"Nancy To Rio" (M-G) with Sugar Chile Robinson onstage (2d wk). Looks trim $33,000. Last week, $46,500.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 98)—"Cinderella" (RKO) (4th wk). Showing strength at solid $16,000. Last week, $23,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,500; 50-98)—"Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Blue Grass Kentucky" (Mono) (2d wk). Modest $7,500. Last week, $11,000.

Selwyn (Shubert) (1,000; 98-$1.20) —"Third Man" (SRO) (5th wk). Remarkable $12,000. Last week, $10,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,700; 50-98) —"Black Hand" (M-G). Looks fair $17,000. Last week, "Battleground" (M-G) (5th wk), $13,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 50-98)—"Key To City" (M-G) (2d wk). Fat $10,000. Last week, $16,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,073; 50-98) —"12 O'Clock High" (20th) (3d wk). Smooth $20,000. Last week, $28,000.

World (Indie) (587; 80)—"Bicycle Thief" (Indie) (5th wk). Smart $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

'Francis' Wow $18,500, St. Loo; 'Tower'-Vaude 15G, 'Horn' Hefty 13G

St. Louis, March 21.

Hypoed by sock bally, "Francis" is proving big noise here this week despite another weekend of bad weather. Playing at the St. Louis, it is smash. "Black Hand" also is being helped at Loew's by fact that a weekly quiz program originates from stage. "Eiffel Tower" with vaude is good at the Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (F&M) (3,000; 50-75)—"Singing Guns" (Rep) and "12 O'Clock High" (20th) (m.o.). Oke $13,000. Last week, "Pinky" (20th) and "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th), $14,000.

Fox (F&M) (5,000; 50-75)—"Eiffel Tower" (RKO) and vaude. Good $15,000. Last week, "Singing Guns" (Rep) and vaude, socko $21,000.

Loew's (Loew) (3,172; 50-75)—"Black Hand" (M-G) and "Dalton Gang" (Lip). Good $14,000. Last week, "Nancy to Rio" (M-G) and "Alias the Champ" (Rep), $15,500.

Missouri (F&M) (3,500; 50-75)—"Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tattooed Stranger" (RKO). Fancy $13,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and "Great Rupert" (EL) (2d wk), $9,000.

St. Louis (F&M) (4,000; 50-75)—"Francis" (U) and "Blondie's Hero" (Col). Smash $18,500. Last week, "12 O'Clock High" (20th) (2d wk), $11,000.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net, i.e., without the 20% tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'12 O'Clock' Stout $13,000 in L'ville

Louisville, March 21.

Town has only medium biz on tap, best being done by "12 O'Clock High" at Rialto, single-billed. "Malaya" at Loew's State is none too strong, while "Backfire" at Mary Anderson is mild. Plenty of excitement in downtown area over weekend, with the High School Basketball Tournament bringing mob of high schoolers but not any help to trade.

Estimates for This Week

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,200; 45-65)—"Backfire" (WB) Medium $6,000. Last week, "Borderline" (U), $6,500.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; 45-65)—"12 O'Clock High" (20th). Strong $13,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and "Tarnished" (Rep), nice $12,000 and m.o.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 45-65) — "Malaya" (M-G) and "Daring Caballero" (Col). Modest $9,000. Last week, "Ambush" (M-G) and "Challenge Lassie" (M-G), neat $12,000.

Strand (FA) (1,200; 45-65)—"Red Light" (Mono) and "Masked Raiders" (Mono). Satisfactory $5,000. Last week, "Bluegrass Kentucky" (Mono) and "Bomba Panther Island" (Mono), strong $6,000.

'East Side' Okay $15,000, Pitt; 'Wall' Lofty 10G, 'Francis' $8,000 in 2d

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Biz showing a slight pick-up generally with a break in the weather and economic conditions showing some slight improvement all along line. "East Side" is doing well at Penn and "Dear Wife" has been getting attention, too, at Stanley. Holdovers of "Francis" at Fulton and "Sundowners" at Barry are fair enough. "Outside the Wall" is showing some life at Harris. "Man On Eiffel Tower" at Warner also is good.

Estimates for This Week

Barry (Skirball) (1,100; 45-80)—"Sundowners" (EL) (2d wk). Falling off to around $4,500 should still be profitable. Last week, neat $7,000.

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 45-80)—"Francis" (U) (2d wk). Word-of-mouth keeping mule comedy in the black at $8,000. Last week, fine $12,000.

Penn (Loew's) (3,300; 45-80)—"East Side" (M-G). Crix weren't very kind to this one, but marquee is in its favor. Okay $15,000. Goes to Ritz for another stanza. Last week, 'Malaya" (M-G), $14,000.

Harris (Harris) (2,200; 45-80)—"Outside Wall" (U). Melodramas of this type go well here. Fine $10,000 or near. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th), $8,000.

Stanley (WB) (3,800; 45-80)—"Dear Wife" (Par). Fairly nice, $13,500. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) (2d wk), $7,000 in 5 days.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 45-80)—"Eiffel Tower" (RKO). Good campaign producing results at $9,000. Last week, "Samson and Delilah" (Par) (3d wk), fine $20,000 in 9 days at upped scale.

Exhib Reelected

Durham, N. H., March 21.

Arthur P. Stewart, owner of the Franklin theatre, has been reelected town clerk and tax collector.

'Rio' Fancy $18,000 In Cleve.; 'Francis' 12G, 2d

Cleveland, March 21.

Lenten influence is producing only middling trade at key houses this week. "Nancy Goes To Rio" is making best showing at Loew's State. Others are only okay to light. Sturdiest holdover continues to be "Francis" at Allen which is better than some new entrants.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (Warners) (3,000; 55-70)—"Francis" (U) (2d wk). Kicking up lusty $12,000 or close. Last week, sock $15,000.

Esquire (Community) (705; 55-70)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (4th wk). Nice $6,500 following $7,500 last lap.

Hipp (Warners) (3,700; 55-70)—"Never Fear" (EL). Light $13,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB), $16,000.

Palace (RKO) (3,300; 55-70) — "Tarzan and Slave Girl" (RKO). Slow $10,000. Last week, "Outside Wall" (U), oke $12,500.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 55-70) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G). Strong $18,000. Last week, "Malaya" (M-G), $14,000.

Stillman (Loew's) (2,700; 55-70) —"Malaya" (M-G). Oke $8,000. Last week, "Stars in Crown" (M-G), same.

'Third Man' Giant $12,000 Paces D.C.

Washington, March 21.

Two sock newcomers, plus a brace of hefty holdovers, are licking the usual seasonal slump. "Third Man," at the Playhouse, is crowding the house record in a smash first week. "Key to City" plus vaude, at Loew's Capitol, shapes big, though nowhere near record-breaking. "Cinderella," in fourth week at RKO Keith's, and "Red Shoes," in second week at regular prices at Trans-Lux, show solid staying power.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Loew's) (2,434; 44-85)—"Key to City" (M-G) plus vaude. Solid $28,000. Last week, "Black Hand" (M-G) plus vaude, better than hoped for, $16,500.

Keith's (RKO) (1,939; 44-80)—"Cinderella" (RKO) (4th wk). Still holds to sock $14,000 for this stage of run. Last week, big $17,000.

Palace (Loew's) (2,370; 44-74)—"Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th). Opened Saturday, with mild weekend biz shaping week's take to fair $15,000. Last week, "Mrs. Mike" (UA), so-so $14,000.

Playhouse (Lopert) (485; 50-85) —"Third Man" (SRO). Terrific opening, $12,000 or better, crowding house record of $12,500 set by initial stanza of "All King's Men" (Col). Last week, "King's Men" (17th wk), $4,500.

Warner (WB) (2,164; 44-74)—"Dear Wife" (Par). Disappointing $13,000 or less. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB), not up to hopes with $14,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (654; 44-80)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (2d wk). Very steady $9,000. Last week, $11,000.

'KID TEXAS' RUGGED 13G, BUFF; 'HAND' 12G

Buffalo, March 21.

Biz is offish in most spots this stanza with only two bright spots among newcomers. "Kid From Texas" shapes good at Lafayette while "Red Desert" is being boosted to big total by Jack Carson, Robert Alda and Janet Paige onstage at Paramount.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew's) (3,500; 40-70)—"Black Hand" (M-G). Okay $12,000. Last week, "Nancy To Rio" (M-G) and "Wolf Hunters" (Mono), $14,000.

Paramount (Par) (3,000; 40-70)—"Red Desert" (Lip) plus Jack Carson, Robert Alda, Janet Paige onstage. Big $13,500 in three days. Last week, "Barricade" (WB) and "Unmasked" (Rep), $16,000.

Center (Par) (2,100; 40-70) — "Man With Horn" (WB) (2d wk). Holding near $10,000. Last week, big $14,000.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 40-70)—"Kid From Texas" (U) and "Mary Ryan, Detective" (Col). Good $13,000. Last week, "Father Is Bachelor" (Col) and "Palomino" (Col), $10,000.

Century (20th Cent) (3,000; 40-70) — "Singing Guns" (Rep) and "Tarnished" (Rep). Fair $9,000. Last week, "Sundowners" (EL) and "Port New York" (EL), $12,000.

6 New Bills Don't Help B'way Much; 'Francis'-King Cole Sock 73G; Mild 107G For 'Woman,' 'Skin'-Vaude Slow 50G

Despite six new bills and a slight assist from St. Patrick's Day, Broadway first-run business generally continues its offish trend. Lent and general business conditions still hurt most.

Pacing the new pictures is "Francis," with King Cole Trio, Larry Storch, Ray McKinley band, at the Paramount. Getting a strong opening, the Universal comedy about a "talking" Army mule of the past war is pushing to sock $73,000 in first week, biggest this year since "Samson & Delilah" year-end holiday session, of course, aside from Bob Hope's two all-time record weeks just ended.

"Woman of Distinction" with stageshow is very disappointing with mild $107,000 at the Music Hall. "Without Pity," Italian-made, is doing sock $12,500 at bandbox Rialto, to win a holdover.

"Under My Skin," with nightclub revue onstage, shapes up at very slow $50,000 at the Roxy, making one of the lightest opening sessions at this big house in months. "Outside the Wall" is only fair $14,000 at Criterion but holds four extra days. "Davy Crockett," with vaude, is leaving the Palace around recent losing level at $16,000.

Both "Third Man" and "Cinderella" continue to battle the downbeat, each being big on their extended runs. Former, on a spurt for two weeks running at the Victoria, figures to wind up seventh week at boffo $27,000. The Disney cartoon feature also is perking, beating previous session, with smash $35,200 in fourth round at the Mayfair.

Elsewhere, excepting most of sure-seater houses, current business is at the lowest ebb this year. Indicative of how dull trade has become is the fact that both the Capital and Strand are bringing in new bills this week after only two stanzas at each house for current combos.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 60-$1.50) —"Three Came Home" (20th) (5th wk). Not holding so well at $15,000 in fourth round ended Monday (20) after $18,500 last week. Stays on, with new film due in for Easter.

Bijou (City Inv.) (589; $1.20-$2.40)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (74th wk). Firming up a bit with about $8,500, sock, this round, after $8,200 last week. Continues indef.

Capitol (Loew's) (4,820; 55-$1.50) —"Black Hand" (M-G) with Art Mooney orch, Pied Pipers, Harvey Stone topping stage bill (2d-final wk). Down to dull $36,000 after mild $44,000 opening week. "Yellow Cab Man" (M-G), with George Paxton orch and Artie Dann heading stageshow, opens Saturday (25).

Criterion (Moss) (1,700; 50-$1.75) —"Outside Wall" (U) (2d wk-4 days). Started yesterday (Tues.). First week was fair $14,000. In ahead, "Borderline" (U) (10 days), $15,000. "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) opens Saturday (25).

Globe (Brandt) (1,500; 50-$1.20) —"Outlaw" (RKO) (5th wk). Reaching $12,000, very good for stage of run after $15,000 last week. Stays on, with "City Lights" (UA) (reissue) opening April 7.

Mayfair (Brandt) (1,736; 50-$1.20) "Cinderella" (RKO) (5th wk). Continues very strong with $34,500 after $34,000 for fourth session. Continues until April 9, when "Guilty of Treason" (EL) is due in. Disney opus could run well past Easter at present pace but goes to subsequent-runs Easter Day.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; 55-$1.20)—"Davy Crockett" (UA) and vaude. Still dragging along at recent mild pace with about $16,000 likely this week. Last week, "Mr. Lucky" (RKO) (reissue), with vaude, $16,200.

Paramount (Par) (3,664; 55-$1.50) —"Francis" (U) and King Cole Trio, Larry Storch, Ray McKinley orch onstage (2d wk). Starts today (Wed.). First week soared to big $73,000. In ahead, "Capt. China" (Par) and Bob Hope, Jane Russell, Les Brown orch (2d wk), smashed house all-time high for second week here at $126,000 after beating 23-year-old record on initial week with $141,000.

Park Avenue (U) (583; 90-$1.50) —"Astonished Heart" (U) (6th wk). Fifth round ended Monday (20) was $4,300 after $4,200 for fourth week. Continues.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (5,945; 80-$2.40)—"Woman of Distinction" (Col) with stageshow. Crix pushed this light comedy around, and likely won't better mild $107,000. Holds, with "Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" (WB) coming in with Easter Show March 30. Last week, "Stage Fright" (WB) and stage show (3d wk), $95,000.

Rialto (Mage) (594; 44-98)—"Without Pity" (Indie) (2d wk). First week ended last night (Tues.) hit sock $12,500. In ahead, "Mafia" (Indie) (2d wk), $7,500.

Rivoli (UAT-Par) (2,092; 90-$1.80) —"Samson and Delilah" (Par) (13th wk). Still okay at $13,000 after $15,000 last week. "Comanche Territory" (U) due in next, around April 7.

Roxy (20th) (5,886; 80-$1.75)—"Under My Skin" (20th) with China Doll Revue onstage. Disappointing at very slow $50,000, but holds one week. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) with Beatrice Kay, Buck and Bubbles, Beatrice Kraft and Dancers onstage (2d wk), $38,000. House brings in its Easter show with "Cheaper By Dozen" (20th) on March 31.

State (Loew's) (3,450; 55-$1.50)—"Outriders" (M-G) (3d wk). Opens today (Wed.). Initial holdover session fell to $13,000 after mild $18,500 opener. "Nancy Goes to Rio" (M-G) due in next as the Easter picture.

Strand (WB) (2,756; 55-$2) — "Perfect Strangers" (WB) and George Shearing Quintet, Tito Guizar, others, onstage (2d-final wk). Down to dim $18,000 after $26,000, very dull opener. "Barricade" (WB) with Count Basie orch, Billie Holiday, The Chocolateers opens Friday (24).

Sutton (R & B) (561; 90-$1.50)— "Fallen Idol" (SRO) (19th wk). The 18th session ended Monday (20) held to $6,700 after $6,400 for 17th week. Stays on, with "Winslow Boy" (EL) penciled in to open next.

Trans-Lux (60th St.) (453; 74-$1.50)—"Tight Little Island" (U) (13th wk). Twelfth round ended last Saturday (18) was $5,000 after $5,500 for 11th week.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 95-$1.50) — "Third Man" (SRO) (7th wk). Picking up to around $27,000, socko, after remarkable spurt in sixth frame which sent this to smash $25,500, about $2,000 ahead of fifth week. Stays on indef.

Satchmo Lifts 'Wife' To Wham $12,000, Seattle; 'Outlaw' Terrif $18,000

Seattle, March 21.

Big blasts and ads herald showing of "The Outlaw" at Paramount, with terrific session likely. Louis Armstrong band is boosting "Dear Wife" to smash total at Palomar. "Francis" still is sock in second Orpheum session.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (800; 59-84)—"Outside the Wall" (U) and "South of Santa Fe" (U). Good $4,000. Last week, "Chain Lightning" (WB) and "Cry Murder" (FC) (3d wk), $2,900.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,877; 59-84)—"Nevadan" (Col) and "Mark Gorilla" (Col). Fast $10,000. Last week, "Gun Crazy" (UA) and "Fighting Stallion" (EL), $6,800.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,349; 59-84)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (2d wk). Strong $8,000. Last week, big $9,600.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,650; 59-84) —"Nancy To Rio" (M-G) (2d wk) plus 60 minutes of shorts. Big $7,000. Last week, $9,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; 59-84) —"Guilty Bystander" (FC). Poor $1,500 in 6 days. Last week, "Intruder in Dust" (M-G), $2,600.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; 59-84)—"Malaya" (M-G) and 60 mins. of shorts. Great $11,500. Last week, "Key To City" (M-G) and "Tarnished" (Rep) (2d wk), 8 days, $8,000.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; 59-84)—"Francis" (U) and "Story Molly X" (U) (2d wk). Sock $11,000 after great $14,600 opener.

Palomar (Sterling) (1,350; 59-84) —"Dear Wife" (Par) (2d run) with Louis Armstrong orch onstage. Smash $12,000. Last week, "Roseanna McCoy" (RKO) plus stageshow topped by Sarah Vaughan, big $9,500.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,039; 59-84)—"Outlaw" (RKO). Wow $18,000. Last week, "Samson and Delilah" (Par) (2d wk), rousing $12,000 at $1 top.

"... and God bless M-G-M!"

THIS PHOTO WAS SENT TO US BY H. I. BROWN, VICTORIA THEATRE, GREENFIELD, MASS.

"This is my daughter Vicki, writes Mr. Brown. "She always includes M-G-M with her 'God bless Mother and Dad'."

DEAR VICKI BROWN:

Your Dad is one of many thousands of fine Americans with whom we are honored to do business.

It touches us very deeply that you, a little girl, are already aware of M-G-M's place in your family life. That place is one of obligation and responsibility for the welfare of our customers.

(Continued)

(Continued)

Our prayer is that you, and all the other children of the vast M-G-M family may grow up happily in the security of Leo, the Friendly Lion. To that end we pledge ourselves anew. Blessings Vicki from all of us!

Sincerely—

The Friendly Company

P. S. Please tell Dad that we've got a lot of fine pictures for the fans, for instance:

"STARS IN MY CROWN"
Great Family Film!

"THE REFORMER AND THE REDHEAD"
The Comedy High of 1950!

"THE OUTRIDERS"
Technicolor Spectacle!

"THE YELLOW CAB MAN"
Red Skelton's Riot on Wheels!

"BLACK HAND"
Sock Thriller!

"NANCY GOES TO RIO"
Technicolor Musical Joy!

"MYSTERY STREET"
Unique Detective Drama!

"PLEASE BELIEVE ME"
Romance and Fun!

"DUCHESS OF IDAHO"
Big Technicolor Musical!

"THE BIG HANGOVER"
Romance of Today's Youth!

"FATHER OF THE BRIDE"
Best Seller Now A Screen Gem!

"ANNIE GET YOUR GUN"
Soon! The Technicolor Giant!

"THE ASPHALT JUNGLE"
Powerhouse!

"THE HAPPY YEARS"
Wild and Wonderful Days! (Tech.)

"DEVIL'S DOORWAY"
Action All the Way!

"THREE LITTLE WORDS"
Technicolor Musical Wow!

"SUMMER STOCK"
Stars! Music! Technicolor!

"CRISIS"
Tops in Thrills!

"THE SKIPPER SURPRISED HIS WIFE"
An Audience Riot of Everyone's Life!

"THE TOAST OF NEW ORLEANS"
Romantic Technicolor Musical!

"A LIFE OF HER OWN"
Star-bright Delight!

"THE MINIVER STORY"
At Last! The Sequel!

(Don't Relax Until We Axe The Movie Tax!)

British Pix Biz Nearer Breaking Logjam on Big Screen Theatre TV

London, March 14.

All sections of the British film industry, in co-operation with the Assn. for the Protection of Copyright in Sport, have agreed on a formula to solve the present TV big screen deadlock which has resulted in a government ban on theatrical video. In a united memorandum submitted to the Beveridge committee, which is taking evidence on the next five-year charter for the British Broadcasting Corp., British distributors, exhibitors and producers have appealed to the Postmaster General for a private wavelength over which TV programs can be transmitted direct to theatres. By this medium it would be possible to break down the boycott on telecasting of major sporting events.

Since the resumption of the postwar TV service in London, there has been a resolute opposition to the granting of telecasting facilities to the BBC by sports promoters. With one exception, TV cameras have been kept out of all sporting events and there is little prospect of the ban being lifted.

The Sporting Copyright Assn. has taken the view that a greenlight for telecasting top sporting events would lead very quickly to a declining gate. The amount the BBC is prepared to pay for the rights to the contests, they say, would not be adequate compensation.

There is a feeling among the promoters however, that if the film industry had its own TV service, it would be in a healthier financial position to pay an adequate fee.

At least three theatre groups are waiting official sanction to go ahead with TV big screen installations, and others, particularly news theatre groups allied to TV companies, would follow quickly. The Rank and Associated British Cinemas circuits have been in the forefront of the agitation and Sidney Bernstein long ago applied for a government permit. Capital and Provincial News Theatres, with their affiliation with the Scophony-Baird company, are also raring to go.

Venture Capital Still Available for British Pix, Gaitskell Claims

London, March 21.

The financial crisis notwithstanding, there are still people around who are prepared to put money into films, was the comment made by Hugh Gaitskell, MP, Minister for Economic Affairs, speaking as honor guest at annual luncheon of Assn. of Specialized Film Producers last Thursday (16). Gaitskell, who acquired intimate knowledge of the industry in the years preceding his election to Parliament in 1945, when he was head of the Board of Trade films division, referred to the unchanging trade lineup and continued lack of unanimity.

Refusing to be drawn into the entertainments tax controversy, the Minister, speaking as a filmgoer, claimed that Britain had, during the past five years made a number of pictures of which it could be truly proud, although was conscious of the fact that the world market productions had not always been financially successful.

ASFP chairman, Frank A. Hoare, said what the industry obviously required now, was action and not further governmental inquiries. He regretted that the hope of an ascending quota had failed to materialize.

Keyser Int'l Publicity Chief

Gerald R. Keyser, ad-pub director of Warner Bros. International, named chairman of International Film Relations Committee at a meeting held in New York last week.

Keyser, who will hold the post for a one-year term, replaces Samuel Cohen, foreign publicity chief of United Artists.

Imports of films into the Republic of Ireland totalled 1,230,636 feet, in January last, compared with 578,418 in corresponding month of 1949.

Ready to Ink Deal For Canadian Prod. Setup

Toronto, March 21.

Deal is in final stages by British and Canadian film interests to purchase 1,600-acre country estate of R. S. McLaughlin, president of General Motors of Canada Ltd., as a location base for Canadian film production. New company is headed by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger, producers of "Red Shoes" and other British films.

Seeking Canadian financial backing, the two have been periodically ducking in and out of here for the last three years and refusing interviews, but Mayor Michael Star and Lou McConachie, member of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce, admitted over the weekend that the deal is ready to be inked.

Radio Lux Gains Brit. Audiences

London, March 14.

In less than 12 months the listening audience in Britain for sponsored programs from Radio Luxembourg has soared from 1,000,000 to almost 4,000,000. The figure is rising steadily and would have long surpassed its prewar peak if the promoters were not stymied by the advertising ban.

With British radio a British Broadcasting Corp. monopoly, the only sponsored programs which can be received in the United Kingdom are those from the continent. Radio Luxembourg remains the dominating centre of such entertainments and program time is being booked by national and international advertisers on an increasing scale.

In almost every case the programs are planned, conceived and cut in London and flown to Luxembourg for transmission. Gracie Fields, who has been on the Luxembourg wavelength in a sponsored series for some months, is back here to cut 26 more half-hour programs.

Program time on Luxembourg is handled mainly by two agents, but others are now moving into the field, and competition will be keener in the coming months. Plans are being considered for top American artists to cut a series of programs in London, or, if that is impossible, in the States, subject of course to approval from the U. S. musicians union.

Experience during the past 12 months has shown that Radio Luxembourg is, generally speaking, a more economical advertising medium than the press, and the listener response continues to grow. One of the highspots of the Sunday programs are the Dreft "True Stories" which every week brings a flood of true stories from listeners.

London Legit Bits

London, March 7.

Jack Buchanan's "Detective Story," originally due at Princess theatre March 20 has been postponed to March 25, and is now likely to debut first week in April due to casting difficulties . . . Terence de Marney has $280,000 backing for his newly-formed producing company. His biggest backer is Sir Charles Dennistoun Burney, prominent British engineering inventor whose first venture this is in show biz . . . OHEL players from Tel Aviv, sponsored by the Israeli government, are set for a three weeks' season at the Scala theatre, opening May 22 . . . Marjorie Ristori, who produced the 1920 cabaret sequence in the Rats Revels March 5 at the Victoria Palace, has been engaged by Cecil Landeau to include this scene in his forthcoming revue "Sauce Piquante" at the Cambridge theatre end of March . . . Stanley French's production, "The White Falcon," now touring the provinces prior to West End production, is being withdrawn March 18.

Conciertos Daniel Maps Own Mexico City Aud.

Mexico City, March 14.

Due to disagreements with the Palace of Fine Arts (National Theatre), which the government owns and operates, Conciertos Daniel, a major booker of foreign longhair talent, has decided to build and operate a theatre of its own here. Agency had used the Palace since it opened in 1935, but has had almost continuous hassles since in use of the hall. Theatre is expected to be ready by next spring.

A theatre of its own, for art presentations only, is also to be built here by the Ateno Espanol, Spanish cultural organization. That will make three art theatres here.

U.S. Prod. Methods Overseas Burns Native Thesps

Paris, March 14.

Protests anent American production methods in England and Italy have reached here in recent weeks. Biggest squawk is over "Captain Hornblower" made in Britain by Warners. British talent claims trickery. Director Raoul Walsh had Gregory Peck as imported star, as well as some technicians from the U. S. Story reaching here is that more than 300 English girls were interviewed for femme lead, with tests given about 40.

Payoff was that all were nixed, although these included models and several well-known British actresses. Then there was a reported threat not to make the picture unless Virginia Mayo could be brought in for the top femme role.

Protests also were raised in Italy over Metro imports for "Quo Vadis," contention being that the number brought in from America was in excess of requirements, since talent and extras as well as technicians were available there.

Zinneman's N.Y. Huddle On Arthur Loew's Own Production in Italy

Fred Zinneman, film director, arrived in New York today (Wednesday) for huddles with Arthur Loew, Metro's foreign chief, on the production of "Teresa" in Italy, which Loew is producing personally. Zinneman, accompanied by a production crew, will sail for Italy early in April. Reportedly, Loew expects to head for the Continent some time during the same month.

Zinneman and Loew will concentrate on casting problems while the producer is in New York. Some tests were made on the Coast, but final decisions have been postponed until the duo could get together. Femme lead will be filled by an Italian actress.

Pic is scripted by Stewart Stern and Alfred Hayes from an original of Hayes.

London Film Notes

London, March 7.

Richard Green and his wife, Patricia Medina, plane to Hollywood today (Wed). Former is to star in a Universal film with Yvonne de Carlo . . . Gino Arbib, of the Jack Hylton office, to the Continent to negotiate sale of Beniamina Gigli's new film, "Taxicab 94," which starts shooting in Rome end of April . . . Ealing Studio's next pic will be titled "The Magnet," original by T. E. B. Clarke and directed by Charles Frend. Shooting starts April 17, with no cast yet set.

As soon as Jean Simmons finishes "Sacrifice," currently being made at Ealing Studios, she goes over to Pinewood to start in Betty Box's "Clouded Yellow," which will be directed by Ralph Thomas for J. Arthur Rank organization, with location shots around mid-April. Associated British Picture Corp. has closed deal with Stanley French for film rights of his Savoy theatre hit, "Young Wives' Tale," which is expected to be made this year.

Other Foreign News
On Page 15

'3d Man' Not Only Scores in Vienna But Brings Fame to Native Zither

Vienna, March 7.

When "Third Man" finally hit screen here, Vienna had already been softened up by the most intensive dose of showmanship administered here on behalf of any postwar film. First few days of the run at French zone Apollo (following Forsts' "Wiener Madeln" run of 14 weeks) showed solid boxoffice response to joint British-Austrian buildup. There also was natural interest in the picture's local backgrounds and liberal use of Viennese acting talent.

English-sponsored paper, "Weltpresse," has been overboard on "Third Man" plugs for weeks. Before pic opened, it sponsored a "Harry Lime" search in streets, offering prizes for those successful in spotting an Orson Welles character at advertised times.

On the other side of the political fence the Commie "Abend" did almost as much for "Man," with top headline and most of its front page devoted to an impassioned attack on the picture, opening day. Communist blast was headed, "Is Vienna A Robbers' Den?" and went on to paint lurid picture of film's alleged indictment of the Austrian capital's present world prominence as center of espionage, kidnapping, black marketeering and assorted skullduggery. Since practically all of the population is fully conscious of what is going on here, where worst elements of east and west meet, and most have participated in "schleichhandel" in one form or another since the war ended, the story pulled many laughs. This definitely bolstered biz for the film.

Triumph For Vienna

Other crix without exception (non-Commie) viewed the picture as a triumph for Vienna. "Neues Osterreich," indie daily, devoted a long editorial to praise "Man." It went on to needle the Austrian film industry for continuing to make trash imitative of Hollywood's worst when so genuine and dramatic a theme and setting was right under their noses.

Passersby have been getting a heavy dose of "Harry Lime" theme played on Anton Karas' zither platters over loudspeakers mounted over entrance to British Information Services reading room in Hotel Bristol. While the zither is a familiar instrument here, it has taken this "Third Man" sound track to give it standing. Considered here about on a par with non-virtuoso harmonica as cheap cafe entertainment.

Song pluggers never used to bother with the Grinzing wine garden where Karas played before Carol Reed picked him up to record his picture score and go on to fame and fortune abroad. Now, Karas writes friends, he's good for $1,600 a week and is booked for months ahead. Zithers are appearing in music shop windows and wine house ads and papers are popping up with "zither music" featured, a fact they previously would have concealed.

British Troops Saw It First

First sizeable Vienna group to gander "Third Man" were occupation troops. British booked it into their Park Cinema, open only to soldiers and their families for six days, and stretched the run to seven as against customary two days. It played to capacity for entire run. As soon as opened at the Apollo, tip-off on pic's success was the number of ticket hustlers in front of the house. They scalp ducats at one to six schillings advance (about 25c.) between frequent police raids.

Pic is the subject of much word-of-mouth plugging, and looks in for a solid run.

Frankovich Links With John Woolf Pic Units

London, March 12.

Mike Frankovich's new production company, Venus Films, which just completed its first film in Italy, "The Dark Road," has become allied to John Woolf's Romulus Films and Kaydor Films. New Anglo-American-Italian combo starts work soon in San Remo on "I'll Get You for This," starring George Raft, Coleen Gray and Binnie Barnes.

Italian and English versions of "Road" have been made. Picture stars Janis Paige and Miss Barnes. Sidney Salkow directed. Frankovich plans an early return to Hollywood where he hopes to sign Errol Flynn or Montgomery Clift for his next, "Lover of Great Bear," by a Polish writer.

Aussie May Thaw Its 50% Freeze

Sydney, March 14.

Although no official announcement has been made by the Treasury office operating under the Robert Menzies' Liberal Party government, there are indications that the 50% coin freeze on U. S. films will be cut, probably next July. That is when the Aussie government begins its new fiscal year.

It is known here that many of the major American companies have sounded out the government regarding relief from the present freeze which keeps half of rental revenue impounded here. The principal argument advanced is that additional dollars are needed to keep Hollywood production wheels turning at current high level.

Understood that many leading politicians here favor some dollar relief, some hinting that if a trade upswing with the U. S. is to be launched this year, then Australia in turn must be prepared to release dollars obtained in America. This naturally takes in motion pictures.

Percy Spender, one of the toppers in the Menzies' cabinet, has advocated a closer link with the U. S. both in trade and in defense matters. R. C. Casey, another Menzies' leader and former Aussie ambassador to the U.S., also is for an improved link between the two countries.

Kortner's Return

Basle, March 10.

German actor Fritz Kortner made his return to Europe, after 17 years of exile in the U. S., with his production in Ibsen's "The Father" in Munich, Hamburg, Berlin and now Switzerland.

He himself directed and plays the name part.

Current London Shows

(Figures show weeks of run)

London, March 21.

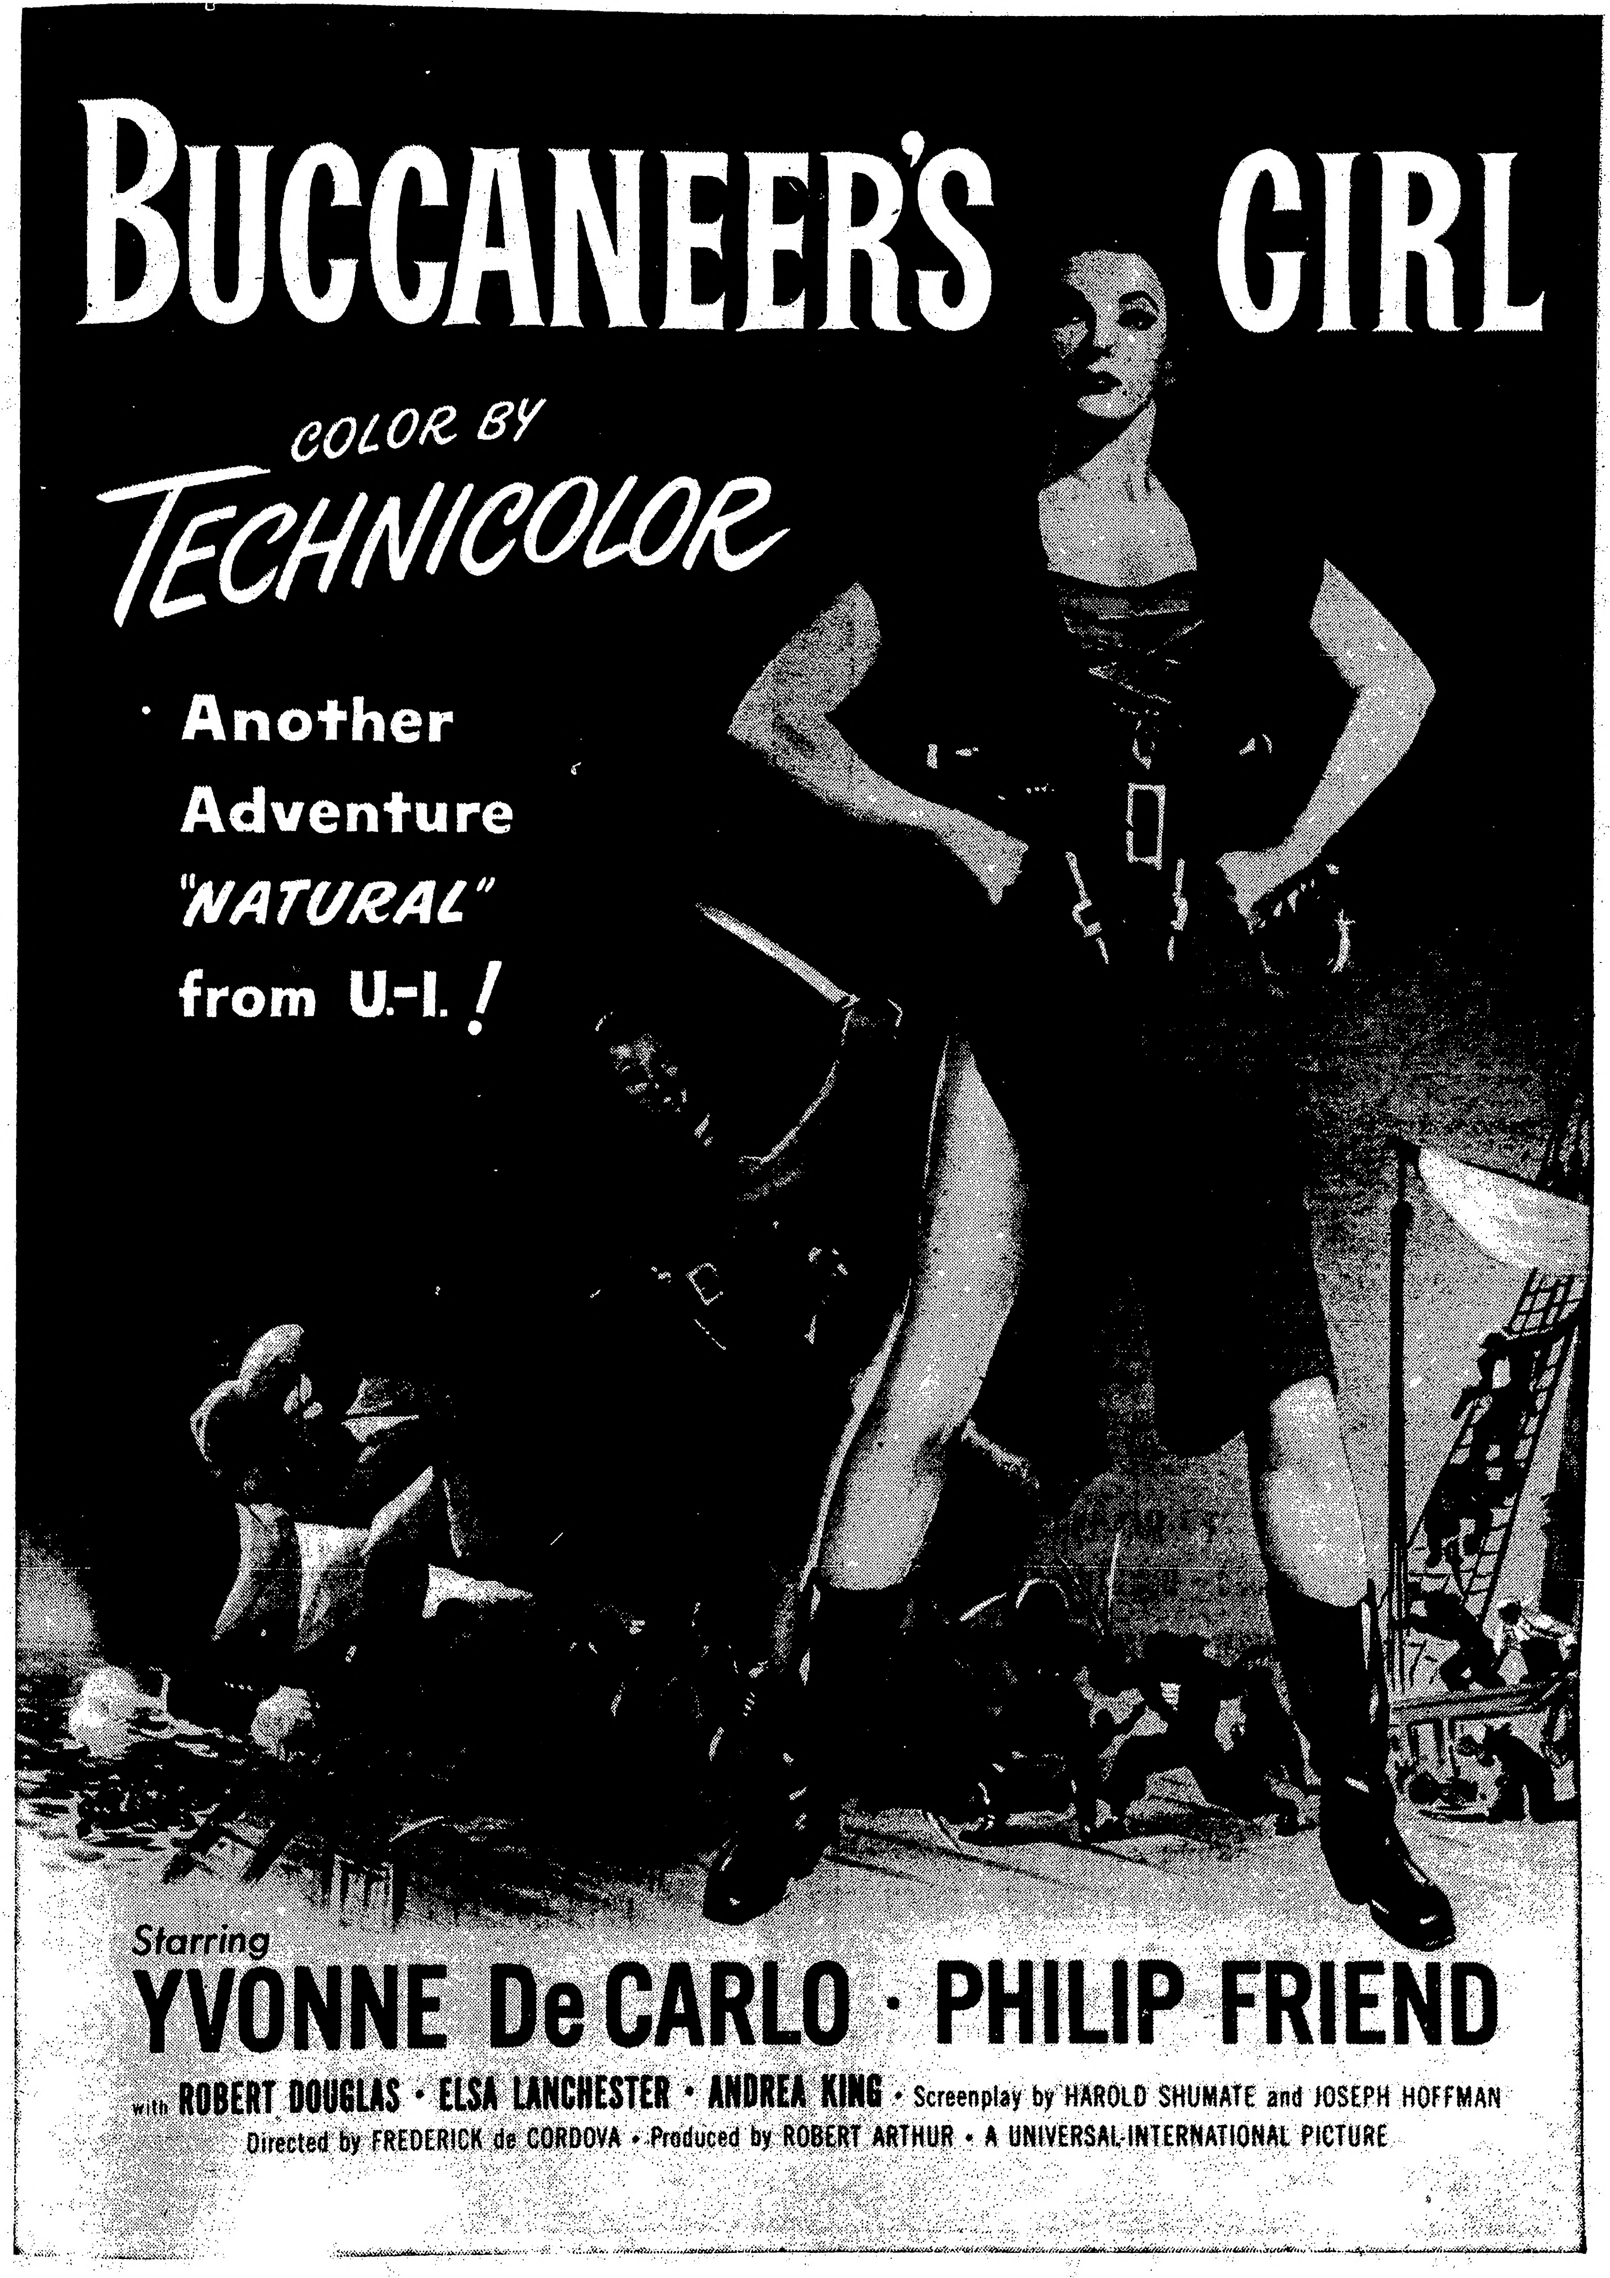
"Annie Get Gun," Col's'm (146).
"Beau Strategem," Lyric (47).
"Black Chiffon," West'ster (47).
"Bonaventure," Vaude (15).
"Brigadoon," Majesty's (19).
"Castle Air," Adelphi (15).
"Eliz. Slept Here," Strand (21).
"Fallen Angels," Ambass. (15).
"Flowers," Dutchess (4).
"Folies Bergere," Hipp (24).
"Harvey," Prince of Wales (64).
"Heiress," Haymarket (60).
"Home at Seven," W'ham's (2).
"King's Rhapsody," Palace (27).
"Lady Mislaid," St. Mart (8).
"Larger Than Life," York (6).
"Latin Qt. 1950," Casino (1).
"Mr. Gillie," Garrick (2).
"Murder at Vic," Playhouse (14).
"Oklahoma!" Drury Lane (146).
Old Vic Rep, News (23).
"On Mon. Next," Comedy (42).
"Ring Round Moon," Globe (8).
"Schoolmistress," Seville (7).
"Streetcar," Aldwych (24).
"Traveller's Joy," Criterion (93).
"Treasure Hunt," Apollo (27).
"Venus Observed," St. James (9).
"Way Things Go," Phoenix (3).
"Worm's View," Whitehall (152).
"Young Wives Tale," Savoy (36).

Irish Players for Europe

Dublin, March 21.

The Irish University Players will leave here in July for a three-month tour of England, France, the U. S. Zone of Germany, Austria and Italy. It is the most international tour yet undertaken by an Irish company. Players will be top-ranking artists from Irish university groups with guest artists from the Irish stage.

Plays have yet to be announced but understood they will be representative works of Irish dramatists including Sean O'Casey, J. M. Synge and W. B. Yates.



BUCCANEER'S GIRL
COLOR BY TECHNICOLOR
Another Adventure "NATURAL" from U.-I.!

Starring

YVONNE DeCARLO · PHILIP FRIEND

with ROBERT DOUGLAS · ELSA LANCHESTER · ANDREA KING · Screenplay by HAROLD SHUMATE and JOSEPH HOFFMAN

Directed by FREDERICK de CORDOVA · Produced by ROBERT ARTHUR · A UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL PICTURE

1950 is the BIG YEAR for YOU from U-I!

JAMES STEWART · SHELLEY WINTERS
DAN DURYEA · STEPHEN McNALLY
"WINCHESTER '73"
Directed by ANTHONY MANN

MARJORIE MAIN · PERCY KILBRIDE
"MA AND PA KETTLE GO TO TOWN"
Directed by CHARLES LAMONT

RICHARD CONTE · COLEEN GRAY
"THE SLEEPING CITY"
Directed by GEORGE SHERMAN

JAMES MASON · MARTA TOREN · DAN DURYEA
"ONE WAY STREET"
Directed by HUGO FREGONESE

MARTA TOREN · JEFF CHANDLER
"DEPORTED"
Directed by ROBERT SIODMAK

AUDIE MURPHY · GALE STORM
"THE KID FROM TEXAS"
Color by TECHNICOLOR
Directed by KURT NEUMANN

MAUREEN O'HARA · MACDONALD CAREY
"COMANCHE TERRITORY"
Color by TECHNICOLOR
Directed by GEORGE SHERMAN

SCOTT BRADY · MONA FREEMAN
ANDREA KING
"I WAS A SHOPLIFTER"
Directed by CHARLES LAMONT

RICHARD BASEHART · MARILYN MAXWELL
SIGNE HASSO · DOROTHY HART
"OUTSIDE THE WALL"
Directed by CRANE WILBUR

AUDIE MURPHY · WANDA HENDRIX
BURL IVES · DEAN JAGGER
"SIERRA"
Color by TECHNICOLOR
Directed by ALFRED E. GREEN

DONALD O'CONNOR · GALE STORM
WALTER BRENNAN · VINCENT PRICE · EVE ARDEN
"CURTAIN CALL AT CACTUS CREEK"
Color by TECHNICOLOR
Directed by CHARLES LAMONT

RONALD REAGAN · CHARLES COBURN
RUTH HUSSEY · EDMUND GWENN
SPRING BYINGTON ·
"LOUISA"
Directed by ALEXANDER HALL

The Industry's SHOWMANSHIP Leader

30% Quota Up in Parliament Before April 1; Indie Prods. Balk Change

London, March 21.

Parliament will not debate the 30% quota order until a day before it must be officially enacted. Matter will be raised in the House of Commons Thursday week (30) but will almost certainly be preceded by a discussion in the House of Lords. Under terms of the Films Act approval of both Houses must be obtained six months before the operative date for new quota Oct. 1.

The quota will provide the first opportunity for a full dress film debate in the new Parliament and opposing interests in the industry are already briefing their supporters. Political observers have no doubt that the Wilson order will be adopted and that only a very small minority will be induced to campaign in favor of retention of the 40%, or even going back to the 1948 level of 45%.

May Try to Cut Supporting Pix

While the Commons debate will focus attention on the first feature quota, exhibiting interests are beginning to whip up a campaign for slicing the quota on the supporting program which has remained solid since 1948 at 25%. Provincial theatre owners argue there is little prospect of fulfillment and the figure bears little relations to product availability.

Denis C. Walls, a recent president of Cinematograph Exhibitors' Assn., has initiated a move to reduce the supporting quota to 15% in his home territory of Manchester, and support is forthcoming from CEA branches in other areas. This campaign is too late to affect the issue for current year, but may bear fruit later.

Indie Producers Fight New Quota

Representations have been made to the Board of Trade by independent producers on the contention that the 30% quota will nearly put them out of business. The first feature market will virtually be closed to them, they claim, with the main hope of survival through the limited, and not too profitable second film field.

For the three main circuits, a total of 45 British films is all that is required to fulfill the 30% in theatres playing a six-day program. For the twice-a-weekers this total will, in most cases, also prove adequate.

Associated British Pictures Corp. has a program for current year of at least eight pictures, which will be stepped up to 10 or 12 in coming year. For their ABC circuit of more than 400 theatres they have therefore, already contracted for more than half their quota. In addition, it will have the British pix being made by Warner Bros. and Metro as well as having first options on Korda product.

Rank Set on Product

For the two circuits in Rank group, the necessary total of 30 pix is also more or less assured well in advance. In addition to the limited amount of direct production from the Organization, account must be taken of the increasing co-production tie-ups with Hollywood which will emerge during the year.

Indie producers realize there is little scope for playing time either on the circuits or with the major independent theatres who play concurrently with the main groups. One indie film maker, Arthur Dent, chief of Adelphi Films, told VARIETY that he has scrapped his future program and is only carrying on with the pictures actually in production.

The situation has been made more acute by the attitude of many exhibs who would automatically reject a British picture over and above their quota because they fear this might lead the Board of Trade to increase the present percentage.

Theatre Royal Net Off 50G

London, March 14.

Net profits of the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, where "Oklahoma!" is now in its third year, declined over $50,000 during the past year. Final result of $57,000 compares with $108,000 in 1948.

Divident is being maintained at 10% and only $28,000, as against $56,000, is being put into reserve for deferred repairs.

British Want Theatre Tax Cut, Same Admission

Washington, March 21.

While U. S. exhibitors have pledged admission price cuts if the Federal theatre tax is reduced, the British industry is seeking a reduction in the admissions levy without any easing off of the ticket price. British Film Producers' Assn. and Cinematograph Exhibitors' Assn. are seeking a formula to present their government, on the ground that they need additional revenue, according to a report issued today by Nathan D. Golden, chief of film branch of U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

The exhibitors want the admissions tax lifted on all tickets up to 7 cents British (about 8 cents in American money), with a 1-cent British tax reduction on all higher price admissions.

Philippines May Cut U.S. Imports

Manila, March 21.

Philippine Islands government is considering clamping a 50% cut on the import of American pix, according to reports here. Action would be taken to conserve dollar remittances since country is suffering a currency crisis. Since American films earn $4,000,000 annually, the action would be a blow to Yank distribs.

If the government makes the reported move, it would be a reversal of a recent ruling that American pix be treated as a basic commodity. At that time, PI government fixed remittances on films at 72% of the total in 1949.

Champs Elysee Ballet Set for Aussie Tour; Sydney Preem in July

Sydney, March 14.

A. Ben Fuller, son of Sir Benjamin Fuller, currently in New York, booked the Champs Elysee Ballet for an Aussie tour. Company of 40 will be planed in for the stand. Opening is slated for a house here some time in July. Following its local run, ballet will be routed throughout Australia and New Zealand.

Meanwhile, the Fullers presently have two British comedian playing this area. "Old Wild Oat" is now in its 20th week at the Palace with Arthur Rigby in the top role, and "Is Your Honeymoon Really Necessary" is chalking up a run at the Princess, Melbourne.

Fuller Sails from N. Y.

A. Ben Fuller, who's been away from Sydney since Dec. 10, 1948, on a talent hunt, is due to sail from N. Y. this week on the Queen Mary for London after a three-week U.S. stay. He leaves Britain April 20, bound for Aussie.

Opera Singers, Chorus Into Mex Actors Union

Mexico City, March 14.

Grand opera artists and chorus have induced the National Actors Union to take them in as members, in a local of their own, so as to protect their interests. Irma Gonzalez, top Mexican diva, was instrumental in getting the union's okay via a speech in which she deplored limited opportunity in grand opera in Mexico for native talent. Foreigners, she said, cop all the juicy roles and pay.

Word is that the union will fix for the opera local either the 60% Mexican domination it has for theatres or the 50% it has for pix. Miss Gonzalez cited as a case of foreigners excluding Mexicans in grand opera in this land the booking for the entire forthcoming opera season of Simionati, the Italian soprano, an inking that totally bars Oralia Dominguez, top Mexican soprano, from opera in her own country in the new season.

Irish Tour Guides on Air

Dublin, March 21.

Produced for the Irish Tourist Assn., a series of Irish holiday brochures in sound are to be aired over Radio Eireann, state-controlled radio here, starting next month. Programs have been disked covering all regions of the country.

Aim is primarily to reach English listeners and encourage them to spend holidays in Ireland. Probable that disks will be offered stations in U. S. later.

French National Theatre Strike In Deadlock

Paris, March 21.

Strike in the national theatres, now dark for three weeks and with little prospect of reopening soon, is calling attention to an involved situation that needs readjustment. The walkout, which started at the Opera with the pit orch striking several months ago, was promptly called off when Minister Petsche promised a readjustment of conditions. When Petsche was replaced by Minister Plehven, the latter disclaimed any responsibility.

Nevertheless, the musicians' strike is not official, and, as government officials, they are drawing their salaries as if working as do other staff members excepting stagehands and electricans. Latter two groups are officially striking and darken the house. All others, including talent contribute 10% of their pay to support the strikers, and consequently there is no reason to reopen since they all get 90% of their salaries without working. Walkout is said to have been engineered by the Reds for political motives.

But shuttering of the national theatres has started a probe. Admission scale at the opera ($1.50 for operas and $2.50 for ballets) is about a fourth what is charged in other countries. This explains the subsidy given the theatres (Opera, Opera Comique, Comedie Francaise, Luxembourg, Chailot) because it enables those with moderate means to see better entertainment.

Subsidy of the Opera (about $800,000 annually four years ago) has been amended so that the government promises to make good any losses. This has grown until it now is about $2,000,000 yearly. Georges Hirsch, manager, claims if he operates the Opera as required by the unions it will total about $3,000,000.

When Hirsch took the French Opera Ballet on a tour of the U. S., it is claimed that the final gala performance could not be done because Hirsch insisted he be paid an additional amount. He runs both the Opera and the Comique.

At the Francaise and Luxembourg (former Odeon), the position of manager Aime Touchard also is difficult. The company has been increased apparently far beyond real needs, and now an attempt is being made to break up into separate units, releasing many actors. Name of Jean Louis Barrault has been mentioned as possible manager for the Luxembourg, if and when it branches out of the Francaise.

Growing belief here is that the French subsidized theatres are a drag on the French economy, with the Marshall plan paying for part of the rather apparent waste.

K-D Sues Eastman In France for $30,000,000

Paris, March 21.

Attorney Paul-Francois, acting for the French color process Keller Dorian Co., has introduced in the French court suit asking over $30,000,000 damages from the American Eastman Kodak Co. French company alleges that, whereas the American company was to exploit the patents of the French company, it kept them from the market to plug the Technicolor process.

Already the U. S. Keller-Dorian subsid, Colorfilm Keller-Dorian, has a suit pending in American courts against Eastman Kodak and Technicolor for similar reasons.

Better U.S. Distrib Setup in Japan Near But Coin Still Partly Frozen

An Army regulation which limits film distribution in Japan to one importer from each producing country will be lifted within very short time, according to Charles Mayer, Motion Picture Export Assn. of America managing director in Japan. Prospective change in the original ukase would enable any outfit to secure a license to import pix.

Pointing out that the MPEA's Japanese setup exists solely because of the occupation authorities' original directive, Mayer said he would like to see others come in because their entry would offset claims of monopoly against MPEA. Although MPEA is acquiring a substantial amount of yen through its Nippon operations, he noted, there is no indication when there will be free convertibility of earnings. However, member companies are receiving $1,600,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30 this year, under an arrangement approved by Gen. MacArthur.

Reviewing MPEA's operations in Japan since entering there in 1946, Mayer declared that audience-impact of American pictures upon the Nipponese has improved tremendously after the organization hit upon employing Jap lecturers to tour schools, colleges and factories. For several years these speakers have been explaining the cultural, artistic and entertainment aspects of Yank films. Their talks, he said, are invaluable since with superimposed titles there was always the chance that the filmgoer would miss the meaning.

Based upon results to date, Mayer is convinced that U. S. films are an ideal means of spreading democracy among the Japanese. One of the prime supporters of Yank product, he revealed, is the American Movie Cultural Assn. which was formed by some 30 prominent Japanese including educators, scientists, legislators and publishers. With a current membership in excess of 10,000, this group interprets American pictures through the medium of roundtable forums, special publications and radio broadcasts.

Mayer returned to Japan yesterday (Tuesday) via plane after several weeks in N. Y. for homeoffice confabs.

Mex Solons Seek Nix On 'Bad' Pix Exports

Mexico City, March 14.

Increased censorship of pix is wanted by Congress. A bloc, headed by Congressmen Matias Rebollo, Mario Romero Lopetegui and Alfonso Reyes, is demanding that the ministry of the interior prevent the export of certain Mexican pix.

These films, say the solons, do great harm to Mexico and the Mexican pic trade, because they "distort the realities of Mexico by being tinged with interclass hatreds and guns and the firing thereof."

Spain Makes Bid For Yank Stars

Madrid, March 14.

Spanish studios are doing their best to produce pictures with U. S. and other foreign film stars and directors in order to sell their productions in Central and South America. Also in an effort to make headway in the American market.

Unofficially the Madrid Government is helping this policy by giving foreign artists entry visas and permits promptly to export part of earned pesetas. This is a big change from usual very slow pace of bureaucracy here, possibly showing a strong desire on the part of Franco regime to establish the most friendly relations with America. A spokesman for the Foreign Office said a few days ago that every foreign artist who comes here becomes automatically the best propagandist abroad of present day Spain.

Among the U. S. players expected here soon are Ava Gardner and James Mason. They will star in "The Flying Dutchman." It will be shot on the picturesque Catalunia coast. Hungarian director Ladislao Vajda is also inked to direct a pic in April.

Antonio Vilar gave a big party at his Madrid house to announce formation of the new Iberia Films, organized with Portuguese producer Artur Duarte and some Spanish capitalists. Pix will be made in Spain in Spanish and Portuguese, using artists of the two countries.

Intercontinental Films is preparing a big musical biopic about famous singer Malibran. Rovira Beleta will direct and the title role will go to soprano Maria de Los Angeles Morales, who recently scored in Paris after a European tour.

Cifesa toppers are trying to get the loan of some Mexican stars for their productions in exchange for their own leading players. Starlet Aurora Bautista has been offered 2,400,000 pesetas (about $70,000) for two pix to be made in Mexico City under director Juan Bustillo Oro. Deal is not definitely set because Cifesa, which has Bautista under a six-year contract, will release her only if she can get a Mexican femme star to work in Madrid studios.

Austro Songsmiths Want Coin on Radioed Records

Vienna, March 14.

Viennese supreme court will decide whether Austro Mechana, the mechanical rights branch of AKM, the Austrian performing rights society, is entitled to collect coin from the Austrian broadcasting system, Ravag, when it platters tunes for public performance on the air. AM demands a fee, even if records aren't aired, claiming disking is a reproduction under the copyright law.

Indicative of AM's reason for bringing suit was a paragraph in Autorenzeitung, official AKM publication, which noted that Ravag could sell and lend such platters without AM control. A decision in favor of AM was already handed down in a lesser court.

Crazy Gang's 'Madness' Revue a Hit in London; 'Latin Quarter' Also Big

London, March 20.

The Crazy Gang, whose last show drew packed houses for more than two years, is back at Victoria Palace for as long as it cares to stay. "Knights of Madness," which opened there last Thursday (16), received a great ovation, and unanimous press praise.

Bud Flanagan, Nervo and Knox, and Naughton and Gold are as irrepressible and boisterous as ever. A great hit was registered by Pat Hill and Lenny Delma with their singing puppets, and femme angle is nicely handled by Grace Draper and Linda Lee. Show is lavishly staged.

A new edition of the "Latin Quarter," which had a West End run of about 10 months last year, bowed at the Casino, Saturday (18). Produced by Tom Arnold and Emile Littler, current edition, "Latin Quarter 1950," should duplicate the successful business done by last year's show. Lavish, it falls short in comedy division.

Staged by Robert Nesbitt, it features Vic Oliver, Les Compagnons De La Chanson, Sylvie St. Clair, Clark Bros., Walton & O'Rourke, Lela Moore, Kermond Bros., Les Curibas and Dynamite Jefferson and Fortunia.

New British Indie Distrib

London, March 14.

Ralph Bromhead, who recently resigned from board of Eagle Lion, and Eric Fredman, who relinquished his directorship with Imperadio Pictures, joined forces in forming a sales organization for independent producers in Britain and overseas. Name of new company will be announced shortly.

Fredman plans to negotiate sales contracts for recent Herbert Wilcox productions which he is continuing to handle.

Showmen Pro and Con in Their Reactions to Television; Exhibs Fear Hollywood's Sellout to TV

Large-screen television in theatres and the creation of exclusive shows to fill those screens is seen by Spyros Skouras as the answer to the present threat to the film industry by TV. The 20th-Fox prexy's ideas are among several hundred received since VARIETY's editorial of March 1, "Nothing to Fear But Fear," deploring some present industry attitudes toward the new medium.

Deepening concern among filmites over the invasion of TV is pointed up by the unusual number of opinions the editorial has brought. A large number of them take the theme—with a good many variations—that a return to old-fashioned salesmanship (by both distrib to exhib and by exhib to the public) will provide at least part of the picture industry's answer to tele.

There is a large measure of agreement in the letters with the editorial's stance that TV must be viewed in the same vein as radio—as another source of competition (like night baseball or roller rinks) for the amusement dollar. This point, however, also brought the sharpest dissents.

Numerous readers denied the analogy of TV to other sources of competition so far as films are concerned. Morris Helprin, U. S. rep for Sir Alexander Korda, declared: "The difference is that TV is films. Except that instead of being presented in theatres, these are presented right in your own home. Television is precisely the same visual medium as theatres offer—this isn't night baseball or radio or some other entirely different form of competition."

The Helprin school finds further support from David E. Milgram, Philly circuit operator. He opines: "Seeing a picture at home can in many ways replace the same visual entertainment the public gets at the movies. It's going to hurt a lot more than radio did at the first crack."

Milgram, incidentally, also succinctly voices the fear which most exhibs, who have written, intimate. That is, whether indie producers will turn to television with their product as a new source of revenue. From the Hollywood replies it appears that Milgram has a genuine source of fear—most production people indicate their belief that it will only be a matter of time before they'll be making TV product.

Heightens Pix-Mindedness?

On the optimistic side is W. K. Hedwig, operator of Nu-Art, an indie film exchange in New York. He sees TV making people picture-conscious and increasing the market.

Similarly to the views expressed in most of the letters received by VARIETY in the past few weeks, attitude of most industryites at 20th-Fox's recent showmanship conclave in Chicago (where the "What-shall-we-do-about-TV?" theme dominated) was that tele must be accepted like radio as another gadget. Like Helprin and Milgram, however, those who disagree with that thinking are strong in their opinions.

A New 'Opposition'

Russell R. Kelley, of New York, makes the case as follows:

"I think it would help in soundly appraising the impact of TV if the film industry would look upon TV not as just an added gadget to the existent radio setup, but as an 'electronic transmission of motion pictures' into the home.

"In short, it is a new method of 'broadcasting' motion pictures . . . a method that is owned and operated by another industry, abetted by an 'Alice-in-Wonderland' financial setup in the form of well-heeled sponsors, all dedicated to one central purpose: How to deliver as many hours of 'motion picture entertainment' as possible each day, free of charge.

"In other words, another industry has virtually destroyed the monopoly-use of motion pictures as the basis of mechanized show business, and has erected a miracle setup that has completely short-circuted the established producer-exhibitor channel of distribution by delivering an equivalent product direct to the fireside for free.

"By the simple process of buying a TV set (through convenient installment payments) the picture patron acquires a franchise to receive motion pictures free of charge and for the rest of his life.

"It is almost axiomatic that when an industry sets out to give away what another industry is selling for an average price of 46c each, it doesn't take an Einstein to figure out which one will emerge on top.

"I was in a good position to watch what radio did to the talking machine business. When the first Red Seal Victor Artist (Sofie Braslau) condescended to broadcast over the radio, the directors of the Victor Talking Machine Co. had to scurry around and borrow sets from the neighbors in order to hear her.

"If the industry will face the unpalatable fact that television is the miracle that is fast installing 'picture projectors' in the homes, and furnishing their former patrons with free motion pictures in great variety to suit most tastes, and it will continue to furnish this material for the rest of their lives.

"And this process is aided and abetted by a dozen of the finest laboratories, staffed by hundreds of technicians and by thousands of advertising and merchandising men coupled with an endless list of national and local sponsors, working to give away as a free premium what the motion picture industry has been making and selling . . . they will, perhaps, come to realize the position they are in and set out to do something constructive to meet the challenge.

"As it is, divorcement, clearances, devaluation and quotas seem to occupy their attention. Whereas, if they go on neglecting the major matter of TV usurpation, they won't have much need to worry about the former."

Spyros Skouras' Stance

Excerpts from some other typical letters follow:

Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox:

It might be well for all of us to remember how the automobile industry met the challenge of radio, which for a time almost "kayoed" it. The automobile manufacturers eventually installed radios in their cars and increased their sales! The quicker we heed this analogy the better it will be for all of us, and I firmly believe that we should install large screen television in the theatres—with shows that will be televised exclusively for the theatres—and give the public the high-grade entertainment it demands today.

In the past four years, in nearly all of my public utterances on the industry, I have stressed this, but no one paid much attention or gave it serious thought. Now, there is a growing need for us to create the type of entertainment that is being demanded by the American public and other audiences everywhere. Today, good pictures won't do business—the have to be GREAT.

Therefore, to stimulate greater public attendance at our theatres, I believe we should provide added entertainment through television—the new medium of communication that offers limitless facilities and possibilities that we should make full use of.

A Film Sales Manager

Abe Montague, general sales-manager for Columbia Pictures:

Television, of course, whether we want to acknowledge it or not, is in its infancy. And from where I sit it looks to me as if it could be quite a competitor. I don't see anything to be afraid of; I don't think there is any fear of our going out of business. It may be the very thing we need to stimulate us so that we won't forget that we are salesmen selling pictures to the public. And I am one of those fellows who believes there is quite a public for each picture made if you are willing to go out and find that particular public for the particular picture and not sit in your office waiting for what we call the "natural" that will pack the theatres, be it yesterday, today or tomorrow, without any effort on our part.

I remember in the old days, when I was a state-righter, they occasionally used to ship the film to me C.O.D. I used to have a funny feeling, call it fear or anything else, everytime I saw an American Express truck. But I overcame it very easily. All I had to do was go out and work like a son-of-a-gun, sell enough film, ship enough film and I found we got the money to lift those C.O.Ds.

The writer has no fear, and when his thinking becomes as old as yesterday's newspaper he will give the younger fellows a chance. He does not believe they have nearly as much fear as some of the older ones.

The Indie Exhib

David E. Milgram, president of the Milgram circuit, in Philadelphia:

I think you are off the beam on comparison of TV to radio in its days of infancy. True, radio hurt us for a while, but not near as much as TV. The reason, simply is that seeing a picture at home can in many ways replace the same visual entertainment the public gets at the movies. It's going to hurt a lot more than the radio did at first crack.

The exhibitor's main worry is: Will independent producers (with no theatre holding interests) turn to television for new channels of revenue?

Those 2 Bouncing Bills

William Pine and William Thomas, independent producers for Paramount release:

We all know that too many people in this business have been spending too much time at the crying wall. If they'll read and digest the VARIETY editorial, "Nothing to Fear But Fear," they'll adjust their thinking, quit crying and get back to ballyhooing.

In our humble opinion, too many men who make pictures figure their jobs end when the pictures have been previewed and shipped. We don't agree. Certainly the independent producer has no right to figure that way.

Last year we hit the road ahead of our pictures and personally beat the drum. We visited 47 cities and did everything from addressing gatherings of 50 to 100 theatre owners and managers to visiting department stores for window tie-ups.

So far this year we've made 16 cities. It pays off—not only in helping to sell our product, but in learning first hand what our customers want us to give them.

We aren't theorizing—we're speaking from experience when we say that if you really hustle for a buck you can still get it. Call it work if you want—but it's fun too if you really love showbusiness.

Ex-Loew's Manager

Edward Melniker, former manager of theatres for Loew's:

I think an answer to the "ailment" of the moment, which we will call, coining a phrase, "Receipts Decreasitis," is the great lack of merchandising in the field. Not merchandising at the national level, but merchandising at the local level. I don't mean the periodical visits of the "flacks" and "pub-ad men," who work out of the branch or home office, but, rather, the "go after 'em" job that should be done by the man running the theatre in his community, of which he should be part and parcel.

The local man should know his community, the resources most commonly used for his advertising and exploitation purposes—but he must also know his "merchandise." Many managers, with the possible exception of those operating theatres in exchange centers, never see a picture before the playdate. Producers and distributors spend a lot of money on press books with pretty synopses and star biographies. They are fine, but not the answer.

How many managers of theatres today take the time to dissect their attractions? I don't mean be critics, because the majority are not qualified to criticize the product. Do managers sit down and ask themselves, "What is the best selling angle for this picture?" There are many ingredients that go into the making of a picture. The star value, the story value, the author value, the title value and even the director value. In many pictures one of these values can be found and in some a combination of these values are present.

Go Out and Sell

Max E. Youngstein, publicity-advertising director of Paramount:

I have been making a spot check with some of the circuits, particularly with reference to smaller situations which normally do not receive co-op advertising. In every case where the exhibitor has put on a special campaign and taken special effort, the picture has done better, and in many cases far better, than in the situations where they just go through the motions and depend on the picture alone to pull people in.

I realize how trite this must sound to you, but the fact of the matter is, neither the exhibitor nor the distributor is doing as much as he could to bring in the dollars.

Sees TV Benefits

W. K. Hedwig, Nu-Art Films N. Y.:

I am of the firm belief that television will in the long run benefit all phases of the film industry. Many of my friends have television sets, and reaction is all ready setting in. People will not only go out to see pictures in theatres, but they will also continue to show pictures in their homes with their own projectors. On the other hand, many people who were not picture-conscious are becoming so because of television. In short, Americans always did and will select their own entertainment. They will never live by a pattern.

TV's Impact

Continued from page 3

Chicago. Most that can be said is that there seemed to be slightly more strength in the non-tele territories.

Slightly Better Here

Latter include Denver, where rentals were up 32% for the year against the 15% national average; Des Moines, up 19.9%; Omaha, up 27.2%; Portland, Ore., up 18.3% and Oklahoma City, which at 12.9% was the only non-tele area that showed less increase than the overall average.

Milwaukee, which has TV, was up 29%, however, and Dallas was up 28%. New York, Chicago, Washington and Atlanta were other cities that exceeded the national average. Los Angeles was right at the 15% marker, while cities that were below that included Albany, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City and San Francisco.

Film rental figures were used in this study rather than boxoffice returns, since there is no single circuit with houses in every exchange area.

All of the five distribs making surveys of TV's effects were reticent on giving information, claiming they did not have broad enough studies to shed any real light. It has been learned, however, that Warner Bros.' results showed a drop of 3% to 4% directly attributable to tele at the moment. Paramount had previously disclosed research indicating individual families with video sets go to theatres 20% to 30% less often than before.

In theory the Warner figures should gradually creep up and meet those of 20th as more and more families buy receivers. Set sales are said now to be running between 75,000 and 100,000 a week.

It has also been learned that Par in its survey was able to get a correlation of Broadway biz last year and the Milton Berle tele show on Tuesday nights. Boxoffices were hit at all the theatres with stageshows similar in style to the Berle entertainment.

VIDEO WILL BOOM B.O. EVENTUALLY—BRANDT

Hollywood, March 21.

Video will be the biggest boon to the film industry since the advent of sound, Harry Brandt, New York circuit operator, opined here this week. He predicted a wedding of films and TV via large-screen reception in theatres.

In the meantime, Brandt admitted, the new medium constitutes "the worst opposition to movie theatres in history." He added, however, that he felt it would soon lose its novelty and constitute no greater threat than any other form of entertainment.

"When television is able to present programs good enough to serve as added attractions in the theatre, we'll have the greatest boom we've ever seen," he said. He asserted he foresees the day when every theatre will have TV wavelengths on which news and sports events will be piped in as a cost-free addition to the film program.

Majors' % Chiz Suits Now a Big Cross-Country Biz

Major distribs are piling up a string of straight wins in courts throughout the country in answer to a stream of legal attacks on percentage-chiselling actions levelled by exhibs. During the past couple of weeks, Federal courts in Iowa, Utah, Louisiana, Kentucky and Indiana have ruled against exhibs attempting to knock over percentage actions for lack of jurisdiction and other grounds.

In Iowa, latest ruling denied three motions by R. M. Bernau to dismiss four suits for lack of jurisdiction; to strike out parts of the complaints; and compel Warners, Universal, RKO and Metro to make their suits more definite and certain. Federal district court in Salt Lake City has granted an audit in six actions against Samuel L. Gillette and Associated Amusement Co.

Utah court also denied plea to dismiss the suits for failure of jurisdiction. Distribs suing are Metro, Warners, United Artists, Universal, Columbia and RKO. Defendants operate three houses in Utah as well as five Coast drive-ins.

Louisiana court has beaten down an attack of H. Paternostro against actions of Metro and Universal. Recently, Kentucky bench ruled against a dismissal motion of Price Coomer in suits of Columbia, UA and U. Plea of Mallers circuit in Indiana for a separate trial of counterclaims was also denied by Judge Swygert.

Big-Screen TV

Continued from page 4

to capture the auto ticket-buyers' dollar while fending off possible competitors from building ozoners on these sites.

Waiting for Big Payoff

Exhibs still regard large-screen TV as being in its experimental stage without an immediate prospect of paying its own way. For that reason, chain operators say, it is considered bad business judgment to dig deep for the necessary coin. Average cost of equipment runs in the neighborhood of $25,000 per set.

When and if there is an assurance of a steady supply of tele programs on an exclusive basis for flickeries, number of exhibs say they will jump on the gravy train. Without that assurance, equipment will only be a headache to keep in shape while those notes come along monthly as an added burden. Exhibs are still convinced that there is no need to rush for TV apparatus. If it proves itself, there will be time enough. Besides, they say, the cost will more likely drop than the reverse.

Reissues NSG

Continued from page 3

by individual territories rather than nationally, with Gehring querying the 20th division managers in the field to ascertain what pix would go best in each separate market. Company still turns out an average of four reissue packages a year in each territory, but few, if any, of them are made available throughout the country.

The Palace on Broadway tested the drawing power of a reissue last week, when it booked in RKO's "Mr. Lucky" with its regular vaude bill. Warners is now reviving two Errol Flynn oldies, "Virginia City" and "Dodge City," but the latter, released originally in Technicolor, will play its repeat dates in black-and-white.

Also coming up are Paramount's "One Hour With You" and "Love Me Tonight," both starring Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier. Universal, through Realart, is reviving "Ladies Courageous" and "We've Never Been Licked." Title on the former has been switched to "Fury in the Sky," while the latter has been retagged "Fighting Commandos." In addition, United Artists is reissuing several Charles Chaplin oldies, starting with "City Lights."

a showman's guide
to better business . . . .

JUST WHEN YOU NEED IT MOST!

THE BIG LIFT

IS COMING!

Get your copy from your 20th representative and GET INTO THE CAMPAIGN!

There's No Business Like 20th CENTURY-FOX Business!

Devaluated £ Complicates 'B' Pool Payoff

New hassle over payments on the British "B" pool has cropped up in London between the Motion Picture Assn. of America and the British government with no solution of the tiff in sight. Argument stems from the devaluation of the pound by the British late last year. Involved is a payment of $400,000 to the American distribs which has been authorized by the British but is being held up pending settlement of the dispute.

Remittance of the $400,000 was ordered by the Bank of England before devaluation was fixed on the pound by the British government. Between that authorization and the date set for payment, the devaluation ukase was imposed. American companies now claim that the old rate of $4 to the pound should apply to the $400,000 while the British are insisting on the current $2.80 basis.

If the British win out, 142,867 pounds would be used up in making the remittance against the 100,000 pounds under the old rate. Amount of dollars is not affected by the tiff since the $400,000 total stands either way.

Fayette Alport, MPAA London rep, is fronting for the companies in the dispute. It is expected, however, that the battle will continue until Eric Johnston, MPAA prez, and Ellis Arnall, head of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, come to Britain to discuss a new Anglo-U. S. film pact. Duo will also take up the question of the payment.

"B" pool is created by the earnings of British pix in the U. S. Under the current film accord, amount of these revenues are added to the $17,000,000 which the British permit to be remitted annually. Several previous "B" pool payments have been made.

Harlem's Apollo Again Outbids RKO on Picture

Leo Brecher and Frank Schiffman have taken another nip at the RKO circuit in New York by walking off with a bid for Warner Bros.' "Chain Lightning" for their Apollo theatre in Harlem. They grabbed the pic from the competing RKO Alhambra in what is believed to be the only active bidding situation in the New York territory as yet.

Apollo opens the Bogart-starrer Friday (24). Alhambra will present a stage show and has resurrected a 1936 WB film, "Green Pastures," to fill the playing time.

"Lightning" is the second pic in recent weeks that Brecher and Schiffman have nabbed from the Alhambra. Previous one was "Prince of Foxes." House didn't quite meet its nut that week, but figures it was a profitable venture since house had a very weak stage show on which the owners felt they would otherwise taken a beating.

They also have obtained one other film from the Alhambra, "Undertow," but that was relinquished by the house without the necessity of bidding, since it was one of the occasional weeks that the Alhambra had a stageshow. Plan of the Apollo is to bid on about 10 to 12 films a year to bolster its programs when it feels its flesh presentations aren't strong enough to make the grade with its ordinary subsequent-run product.

Brecher and Schiffman have also attempted to invade the product of Loew's Victoria on "Intruder in the Dust," "Home of the Brave" and "Lost Boundaries," but couldn't get bids accepted. Suit is now pending versus United Artists because of its failure to allow bidding on "Brave."

SLAFF'S SHIFT

Hollywood, March 21.

Further reduction in Samuel Goldwyn's staff was marked last week by the resignation of George Slaff, who served in a combination capacity as the producer's studio counsel and ghost-writer.

Slaff left Goldwyn to become general counsel for Charles K. Feldman Group Productions and Feldman's Famous Artists Agency.

No Duffer

As a golf addict, J. Arthur Rank is taking the challenge of American courses literally. Because the British filmmaker was told that the Pine Valley, N. J., layout is particularly tough, he is making a special trip to that near-Philadelphia course this week along with Nate Blumberg, Universal's prez, and Daniel M. Sheaffer and Robert Lea, U board members. Blumberg is in danger of being drafted as caddy, since he plays no golf.

Rank also has a date to meet Elmer C. Rhoden and Frank H. (Rick) Ricketson, Jr., National Theatres biggies, in Kansas City while en route to the Coast. He played golf with them in England, and is accepting a return bout in KC. Ricketsen is coming in from Denver to match swings with Rank.

COWDIN STILL OWNS 11,637 U COMMON

Washington, March 21.

J. Cheever Cowdin, who resigned Jan. 3 as a director of Universal Pictures, notified the Securities and Exchange Commission that he owned 11,637 shares of Universal $1 par common at that time, plus another 1,005 shares through holding companies, and warrants for 91,538 shares. Information is contained in the SEC report on "insider transactions covering the month from Jan. 11 to Feb. 10.

Albert W. Lind, a Republic Pictures board member, reported selling his last 500 shares of that corporation's $1 cumulative preferred. Douglas T. Yates made a late December report. He said he had purchased 450 additional shares of Republic's 50c par common, which gave him a total of 1,600. Through a subsidiary, Tonrud, Inc., he also owns 106,635 shares of the common and 12,200 shares of the preferred. Frederick B. Ryan said he bought 200 shares of preferred. That gave him a total of 400. He also has 500 shares of the common.

In RKO, Frederick L. Ehrman sold 800 shares of the $1 common; that left him 200 shares. Joseph McConville added 200 shares of Columbia pix no par common and now has 1,000.

Abraham Schneider bought 200 shares of Columbia common and then gave away 250. This left him with 9,542. He holds options for an additional 12,500.

Harry Brandt made a belated report on his December holdings in Trans-Lux Corp. His Brandt Foundation made a gift of 100 shares of the $1 par common, but still had 2,200. In addition, Brandt owns 93,315 shares; his wife has 14,700; and a subsidiary, Broadyork, Inc., has 1,000 shares. A second subsidiary, Harday, Inc., holds 1,400 shares.

A report on the Hilton Hotels Corp. disclosed that Y. Frank Freeman sold 800 shares of the $5 par common but still owned 13,646.

Release Cut Tax Rate On Canadian Admish

Toronto, March 21.

With the former 20% amusement tax dropped on children's admissions to picture houses, and the levy on adults' admissions now to be 15%, the film industry is thankful for small favors as indicated in Premier Leslie Frost's weekend announcement of his new government budget. Decision was a result of longtime lobbying by exhibitors' associations who had sought the total lifting of the onerous tax, which had been brought in some years ago as a wartime tax-collecting measure. The tax reductions will be passed on to film theatre patrons—with all admissions to be lowered but with the attendant headache of cashiers making change in pennies.

Replacing the former 20% tax, new tariff effective April 1 is as follows; straight 15c admission, where such prices obtain, for children's tickets (this mainly applying to Saturday matinees; on tickets over 15c and up to 18c, 2c tax; up to 23c, 3c tax; up to 31c, 4c; up to 36c, 5c; up to 44c, 6c; up to 50c, 7c; up to 57c, 8c; up to 64c, 9c; up to 70c, 10c; up to 77c, 11c; up to 83c, 12c; up to 90c, 13c; up to 99c, 15c; $1 and over, 15% of price of admission.

Anglo-U.S. Pact

Continued from page 5

tained in terms of the last $3,750,000,000 loan to Britain and another is in Economic Cooperation Administration regulations.

75% Duty Dodge

British got around such restrictions in 1947, of course, when they instituted the 75% ad valorem duty. That was a customs charge and not a tax or currency block, officially. Similar move now would be cause for considerable governmental pressure and loud squawks by American firms.

The ad valorem duty brought on a boycott of Britain by U.S. distribs—which is the one thing no one expects to occur again, whether or not there's agreement on a new pact. Main reason is that a boycott requires unanimity among the Americans, and that's highly unlikely. For one, 20th-Fox would undoubtedly not go along on withholding its product from England.

An odd part of failure to renew the present contract is that it might save the Yanks from making a forced contribution to a British cultural fund of part of the coin they have frozen in England as of the June 13 expiration date. If there is no new compact, the original 1948 agreement states, the parties "reserve their full freedom of action" to utilize their frozen money during the two-year period ending June 14, 1952, for similar purposes as during the first two-year period, "except that no expenditure of such funds shall be permitted for the purchase of foreign distribution rights in British films."

However, if the agreement is extended for a second two-year period, 50% of the unexpended residue as of June 14, or £2,000,000 sterling, whichever is the greater, shall be carried forward into the second two-year period. "Disposal of the balance," pact states, "shall be subject of consultation and unless within six months after June 14, 1950, there is agreement on a definite program of uses for such balance or any part thereof, then such balance or any remainder shall be disposed of by transactions to be agreed upon by the parties prior to June 14, 1951. . . . It is contemplated the transactions may take the form of charitable or public uses, including encouragement of the arts and sciences."

Delay in departure of Eric Johnston and Ellis G. Arnall for England results from advice of Fayette W. Allport, Motion Picture Assn. of America's British rep. That presumably followed consultation with the British negotiator, Harold Wilson, prez of the Board of Trade.

It is thought that Wilson wants the delay because of the problems raised by the shaky Parliamentary majority held by the British Labor party following the recent elections. In any event, postponement until late April or May means that the trip by the MPAA prez and his opposite number in the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers will likely not be of the exploratory nature that Johnston has suggested. There will hardly be time, it is thought, between the Johnston-Arnall visit and June 14 for both exploration and a later visit to England by a team of negotiators consisting of company heads.

O.O. Duals

Continued from page 7

many sections of the country, and even some key city first runs, have been combining the best pictures put out by the majors in recent months. Several theatres in Chicago last week, for example, were dualing such pix as "All the King's Men" and "Inspector General." Such a policy, it's claimed, can have nothing but a deleterious effect on business in the long run. In addition, with impending divorcement creating the need for more and better pictures, continuation of the double-feature policy in too many situations might prove disastrous.

Interstate, instead of dualing, spends considerable time and effort in setting up good shorts to replace the second feature. That is suggested as one basis on which the double-feature policy might be permanently outlawed.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Universal charts the mounting pressure of exhib anti-trust actions in a detailed statement of their growth filed this week with the Securities & Exchanges Commission. Total of 44 triple-damage trust actions were filed against U during the single fiscal year of 1949, report states. At the close of the year (Oct. 29, 1949), there were 82 suits pending against the company, U discloses, compared to 52 actions in existence when the 12-month stretch started.

While U's report indicates the hypoed pace in volume of trust actions, same totals would not apply to the other majors. Big five companies, for instance, are named with even greater frequency. Paramount recently disclosed 94 actions pending against it as of the end of 1949. In most instances, suits name all or the greater number of major distribs.

Impact of the actions on the pocketbooks of the majors have not been too great as yet, U's report indicates. On this score, company said: "It is the belief based upon the experience of Universal and its subsidiaries in similar suits during previous years, that ultimate liability of Universal by reason of such suits will not be substantial as compared with total resources of Universal, but the company makes no representation as to amount which may be ultimately decreed as damages in connection with such suits."

During the 12 months of fiscal '49, 14 suits were completely disposed of in one form or another, U said. Seven of these by judgments or stipulations of dismissal either before, during or after trial. Eight others were settled.

Bob Hope's two weeks at the N. Y. Paramount (he took around $133,000 as his share of his engagement) apparently still is helping the Par flagship. Ad-publicity on "Francis," current picture there, was tied into the smash trade done by Hope while the comedian was still at the Par, including newspaper ads in which Bob Weitman, managing director of the house, promised that the picture was top fare. Jack McInerney, Par theatre ad-publicity director, got a tape-recording of the mule, featured in the film, doing its spiel and Hope answering.

Aside from the huge crowds the Par staff had to handle during the comic's two weeks, the entire Paramount flagship crew still remembers Hope because of the gifts given out the final day. It was the first time that every member of the theatre's staff, including the stage crew, was gifted by a visiting performer. Even the ushers and usherettes were so treated, gold pencil-pen sets going to them.

For the final show, Hope stayed on the stage for two hours, from 10:30 until 12:30 at night, longest any star had held sway. Later he tossed a backstage party that lasted until 3 a.m.

Although the Academy's Oscars are felt by many Hollywoodites to have lost some of their gilt in recent years because of the multiplicity of other awards, the nation's press apparently doesn't feel that way. Business of handing out the statuettes, set for the Pantages theatre, Los Angeles, tomorrow (Thursday), appears to be getting wider newspaper coverage than ever.

This Week mag ran a major piece last Sunday (19) by its film editor, Louis Berg, titled "The Inside Story of the Oscars." N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun started a series Monday (20) by its critic, Alton Cook, labeled "The Truth About the Oscars: They're a Hollywood Headache." Neither writer gave much "inside" beyond reprising the genesis of the Oscar and last year's decision—later reversed—of Motion Picture Assn. of America member-companies not to support the award-giving financially.

Oscar-derby will be aired as usual tomorrow by the American Broadcasting Company at 11 p.m., EST, in the U. S. and by ABC relays around the globe.

Citing misleading advertising as a present cause for b.o. difficulties, Harry Kosiner, sales chief for Edward Small, has gone whole hog for the opposite type pitch on "Davy Crockett, Indian Scout." George Montgomery-starrer has been doing considerably better than average biz for this type western and Kosiner thinks the ads may be the reason. Same technique will be applied on Small's next hoss opry, "The Iroquois Trail," due in June and likewise a United Artists release.

Ads are extremely simple with a minimum of text. They carry a large illustration of typical western action and just a one-word headline, such as "Massacre," "Danger," "Adventure" or "Action." Kosiner feels that this provides a definite draw for action fans and touts others off the pic. Word-of-mouth is therefore good, because patrons are a selected audience who go for this type product and are not going to be disappointed.

Republic, which never went in for reissues before, is now distributing eight of its oldies in streamlined versions. Pictures originally ran 75 to 90 minutes, but are now reedited down to around 60 minutes. New prints, accessories, pressbooks and posters have also been prepared for the pix all of which have been retitled. Original tag, however, is contained on all prints and ad matter.

Block of films include "Rhythm Hits the Ice," re-edited from "Ice-Capades Revue"; "Change of Heart" ("Hit Parade of 1943"), "Beyond the Rio Grande" ("Mexicana"), "I'll Reach For a Star' '("The Hit Parade"), "Music in the Moonlight" ("Ice-Capades"), "Inside the Underworld" ("Storm Over Lisbon"), "The Tiger Man" ("Lady and the Monster") and "The Castaway" ("Cheaters").

Period during closing chapters of the Civil War is becoming a new favorite for producers. Where once picture-makers refused to consider a story which touched on this phase in U. S. history, on ground that experience showed the public shied away for some unexplained reason from such films, now they're going all-out for this colorful era.

Past few months have seen several films in this category either completed or planned. Four definitely are set for production between now and summer. Other producers are toying with idea of turning out films of this order. Project is such a full-scale movement that actually it marks a very definite cycle.

Paramount execs found some grim humor in the appearance of Cecil B. DeMille side-by-side with Eugene F. MacDonald, Jr., prez of Zenith, while the latter expounded in Hollywood last week on the advantages of Phonevision. DeMille indicated considerable sympathy with MacDonald's plea for product to run a 90-day test of his wired video method.

It was suggested facetiously at Par with that if DeMille were really anxious to see a test the company might oblige by supplying MacDonald with "Samson and Delilah." DeMille has a percentage participation in the film.

Republic toppers are holding heated huddles to determine how to sell "Macbeth," which was withdrawn from circulation a year ago after one engagement in Boston. Film has gone through several redubbing sessions to eliminate the heavy Scottish accent used by Orson Welles in the original version. Herbert J. Yates and James R. Grainger are wondering whether to sell it to the art houses or release it through the regular channels.

Oldtime producers on a major lot are reported grumbling because some of the new producers brought in by the producing chief are drawing some of the best story properties. Several of the veterans are now without assignment, or have only one picture in preparation, while most of the newcomers have from two to five films on their programs.

THANK YOU,
20th CENTURY-FOX.

We join with the exhibitors of America in congratulating you on your showmanship meetings. They are a fine, forward-looking contribution to the general welfare of everybody in the motion picture business.

Columbia Pictures Corp.

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

Scandals of Clochemerle

their own eyes before they'll believe it.

New York State censor boards has given "Clochmerle" a seal with obviously little scissoring — although its commendable liberality in dealing with foreign product must have been strained close to the edge. And as for Hollywood's Production Code Administration, if it objected to the youngster relieving himself against a wall in the Italian "Bicycle Thief," its reaction to this should be too funny even to consider.

Aside from censorableness on its frank treatment of biological functions, cuckoldery, just plain sex and some of the lowest-cut gowns in screen history, pic is extremely anti-clerical. The comfort station around (and in) which the yarn takes place is purposely erected next to the church by the "progressive" politicians as a sign of disdain. The clergy is depicted as a hapless and ineffectual wine-imbibing lot with a suggestion of worse in the finale scene in which the priest is saying a prayer while eyeing his housekeeper.

Pic is way overlong on its 86-minute running time and lacks a sustained story line in switching back and forth among various incidents and characters in telling of the "scandals" of Clochmerle. Aside from the satirized lovemaking by varied lusty wives with the town's caricatured pretty boy, principal story is the mayor's efforts to win votes by erecting his "monument" in the square. Funniest sequences are of the dedication, with the band out, a grandstand for celebrities and the prettiest gal in town elected to break a bottle of wine over the fresh-air utility. That's followed, of course, by cries from the crowd for the mayor to succeed his dedicatory address by christening the new facility.

Production quality is good. English subtitles are just about adequate, being neither very literate nor very funny. And an English off-screen commentary at beginning and end is entirely too obvious, belabored and fulsome.

Herb.

Sarumba

Eagle Lion release of Marion Gering, George P. Quigley and Julian Roffman production. Features Doris Dowling, Michael Whalen, Tommy Wonder. Directed by Gering. Screenplay, Jay Victor; camera, Don Malkames. Tradeshown N. Y., March 17, '50. Running time, 65 MINS.

Senor Valdez	Michael Whalen
Hildita	Doris Dowling
Joe Thomas	Tommy Wonder
Maria	Dolores Tatum
Rodriguez	Rodriguez Molina
Helen	Shelia Garret
The Beggar	Manuel Folgoso
"La Paloma" Manager	Red Davis
Sailors	Ira Wolfer, John D. Bonin, Collins Hay
Laurie	Laurette Campeau

Few entertainment values are contained in "Sarumba." Story and dialog are weak, and the overall production reflects a skimpy budget. Market for this musical appears to lie almost entirely in situations that are in need of a filler. Exploiting the film's tropical romantic angles via peppy lobby and marquee dressings may help promote audience interest, but for the most part the picture offers a tough challenge to theatremen.

While the pic was lensed as a locationer in Havana, little use has been made of the Cuban capital's natural surroundings. Most of the action takes place on a couple of nightclub sets. Plot is one of those time-honored "boy-meets-girl" themes. Tommy Wonder, a sailor who's jumped ship, falls for dancer Doris Dowling. Wealthy Michael Whalen is an obstacle to their happiness, but ultimately things work out satisfactorily.

About the film's only saving grace is Wonder's terp routines. Best of these is the title number, which combines portions of the samba and rhumba. Miss Dowling does fairly well as his hoofing partner. Whalen handles his role in mechanical fashion, and little can be said for the supporting players. Veteran director Marion Gering didn't have much to work with on this one. Don Malkames' camerawork is standard. Gilb.

Western Pacific Agent

Hollywood, March 15.

Lippert release of Sigmund Neufeld production. Stars Mickey Knox, Sheila Ryan, Kent Taylor, Morris Carnovsky, Robert Lowery; features Sid Melton, Frank Richards, Dick Elliott, Anthony Jochim. Directed by Sam Newfield. Screenplay, Fred Myton; story, Milton Raison; camera, Ernest W. Miller; musical score, Albert Glasser; editor, Carl Pierson. Previewed March 15, '50. Running time, 61 MINS.

Sparked by a fine performance from Mickey Knox, Lippert's "Western Pacific Agent" shapes up as good action-drama twirled around a crazed killer's flee from justice. Film is sure to reap healthy returns if properly exploited.

Outdoor locations and cheap interiors give a feeling of realism. Direction of Sam Newfield neatly blends a tight script and fine technical aid. Screenplay by Fred Myton, from an original by Milton Raison, builds up the characterizations and mood to give a lift to the story-line. Never subordinated, however, is the popular action ingredient.

Yarn sees Knox commit robbery and double-murder at the start. From there it is merely the case of Kent Taylor, agent called in on the case, getting the right facts to trap his victim. In to help footage along is Sheila Ryan, as sister of the murdered railroad paymaster and later love interest to Taylor; Robert Lowery, as paymaster who is murdered and Morris Carnovsky, father of the killer. All register soundly. In for some fine comedy bits is Sid Melton.

Ernest Miller's photography is an aid, as is the musical score by Albert Glasser. Editing by Carl Pierson keeps the pace fast.

Jiggs and Maggie Out West

Hollywood, March 18.

Monogram release of Barney Gerard production. Stars Joe Yule, Renie Riano, George McManus; features Tim Ryan, Jim Bannon, Riley Hill, Pat Golden, June Harrison. Directed by William Beaudine, Sr. Screenplay, Barney Gerard and Adele Buffington, from story by Gerard and Eddie Cline; based on George McManus' cartoon strip, "Bringing Up Father"; camera, L. W. O'Connell; editor, Roy V. Livingston. Previewed March 16, '50. Running time, 66 MINS.

Jiggs	Joe Yule
Maggie	Renie Riano
George McManus	George McManus
Dinty Moore	Tim Ryan
Snake Bite	Jim Bannon
Bob Carter	Riley Hill
Dugan	Pat Goldin
Nora	June Harrison
"Bomber"	Henry Kulkowich
Cyclone	Terry McGinnis
Lawyer Blakely	Billy Griffith

This screen adventure of George McManus' strip characters takes them to the rough and ready outdoors on a gold hunt. What comes off in "Jiggs and Maggie Out West" will prove sufficient fun for the family trade and the youngsters, indicating best bookings are in the smaller situations.

Barney Gerard produced, did the original with Eddie Cline and the script with Adele Buffington. All hands keep it light and laughable up to the conclusion, which sags, but there's enough plot realization to that point to make it prove okay for release intentions.

William Beaudine, Sr.'s direction is broad, and the playing by Joe Yule and Renie Riano, in the title characters, is in keeping. Maggie inherits a home and goldmine in the west from an uncle, sets out with her family to claim the property. The treasure hunt goes on in the face of plenty of opposing skullduggery from Jim Bannon, out to claim the mine for his own.

Gerard and Beaudine inject a lot of sideline laughs, including a wrestling match staged in the boomtown saloon operated by Tim Ryan (Dinty Moore). Jiggs is a ludicrous sight in western regalia, as is Maggie. For romantic heroics there's Riley Hill and June Harrison, latter the Jiggs-Maggie daughter. Finale sag is the way writers have explained all the previous action as the whim of George McManus, who appears as himself in this sequence. Device is an unsatisfactory conclusion to the comedy and leaves the tag without a laugh.

Cast is uniform in furthering comedy aims of the script and, on the technical side, picture shapes up well for budget. Lensing, editing and musical score are good.

Brog.

Messenger of Peace

Astor Pictures release of Roland Reed production. Stars John Beal. Directed by Frank Strayer. Screenplay, Glenn Tryon, based on story by Henry Rische; clergy advisor, Rev. Lawrence Acker; production supervisor, Guy V. Thayer, Jr.; camera, Walter Strenge; musical director, Al Columbo; editor, Jack Ogilvie. Tradeshown N. Y., March 16, '50. Running time, 87 MINS.

Pastor Armin Ritter	John Beal
Evangeline Lockley	Peggy Stewart
Pastor Willie Von Adel	William Bakewell
Peter Kerl	Paul Guilfoyle
Hans Dache	Fred Essler
Gus Frommel	Raphael Bennett
Matty Frommel	Maude Prickett
Harry Franzmeirer	Al Bridges
Lottie Franzmeirer	Elizabeth Kerr
Jacob Torgel	William Gould
Hilda Torgel	Edythe Elliott
Magda Torgel	Brook Shayne
Ted Horner	Joe Brown, Jr.

Apparently made on a small budget, this pic could end up with some healthy figures on the black side considering its obvious blessing of the Church.

"Messenger of Peace" is on the order of 16m films released for Church and school showings. However, it does have a "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" flavor that will enhance its commercial prospects. Picture's spiel on behalf of religion is told simply and obviously. Yarn leaves little to the imagination, but does hit some effective spots in its essayance of a pastor's usefulness and service to a community.

Story, told in flashback fashion, follows a seminary student from his graduation to retirement as pastor of his second parish. The various tributes paid the pastor by his congregations, the loss of one of his sons during the first World War and similar incidents woven into the story will probably find favor with the femme element. Picture, however, is snagged a number of times by corny exampling of goodness itself.

John Beal carries weight as the hard-working pastor, while Peggy Stewart fills the bill nicely as his wife. Paul Guilfoyle does okay as a drunkard who finds his salvation in the Church. Production, except for some shots of trench warfare probably clipped from some other pic, is mostly confined to landscapes and one-story wooden structures.

Gates of the Night
(FRENCH)

Films International of America release of Marcel Carne production. Stars Nathalie Nattier, Yves Montand, Pierre Brasseur, Serge Reggiani. Directed by Carne. Story and screenplay, Jacques Prevert; camera, Philippe Agostini. At 55th Street Playhouse, N. Y., starting March 15, '50. Running time, 87 MINS.

Malou	Nathalie Nattier
Diego	Yves Montand
Georges	Pierre Brasseur
Monsieur Senechal	Saturnin Fabre
Raymond Lecuyer	Raymond Bussieres
Guy	Serge Reggiani
Monsieur Quinquina	Carette
Le Clochard	Jean Vilar
Claire Lecuyer	Sylvia Bataille
Madame Quinquina	Maddy Berry
Cri-Cri	Christian Simon
Etiennette	Dany Robin

(In French; English Titles)

"Gates of the Night" is intriguing melodrama most of the way. It is only when the story tries to ring in some symbolism that the plot goes slightly awry. A strong entry for many arty houses and surefire for foreign-language spots.

Although it sometimes wanders, "Gates" is always interesting whether trying to point up the treachery of an old man's son, the hardships of a railway worker under the Nazis, an ardent love affair, an especially violent suicide or the vague ramblings of a rich man over his comely wife. Paris here is pictured as a melancholy place after the first thrills of liberation, with constant reference to incidents under the German yoke before the actual main theme is unfolded. There is the hurried but vivid romance between Nathalie Nattier, the wealthy man's wife, and Yves Montand, the Parisian who served the underground during the war.

Film spots an old street musician in sort of Voice of Destiny role, doing a forecast of what is going to happen to the main characters. This odd character is pictured playing a harmonica from time to time—the theme tune of the picture.

Marcel Carne's influence is visible in building lesser incidents, his direction helping over the rougher spots. It is his skill, too, that enables a cast of players virtually unknown to U. S. audiences to come through with polished performances. Miss Nattier, an unusually pretty blonde, is excellent as the wife who is trying to get away from her rich mate. Montand, central figure in the plot, makes a superb, loyal Frenchman who falls in love with the gal. Sergi Reggiani, who has been seen in many French pix, is adequate as the informer son. Pierre Brasseur heads a fine supporting cast.

Philippe Agostini's lensing is remarkably good, especially on his outdoor and moving shots. Wear.

NAT'L BOARD OF REVIEW TEES OFF 41ST ANNI

National Board of Review's 41st Anniversary Conference starts tomorrow (Thursday) at the Hotel McAlpin, N. Y., with some 400 delegates from the group and its affiliated organizations scheduled to attend the one-day conclave. Subject of the meet will be "The Motion Picture 1950." Current public interest is said to have prompted the Board to put emphasis this year on activities involved in "Making Motion Pictures" and "Showing Motion Pictures."

Those announced to address the session include Maurice Bergman, Universal; Bertram Bloch, 20th-Fox; Arthur DeBra, director of the MPAA community relations department; Joseph Lerner, veepee Laurel Films; H. M. Richey, Metro; and George J. Schaefer.

20th's Bandwagon

Continued from page 5

Circuits affiliated with major producers in direct competition with 20th likewise are preparing to push the campaign, indicating it has assumed the industry-wide proportions for which the 20th execs originally intended it. Illustrative was a memo sent to all Loew's theatres personnel from the homeoffice, noting that the circuit is obtaining for every house manager, division manager and publicity representative a copy of 20th's "Showman's Guide to Better Business," in which is detailed the company's point-by-point showmanship plan. Memo declared:

"We urge you to sit down and read every note in this brochure—then do something about it. The campaign on 'Movies Are Better Than Ever' has ceased to be a one-company (Fox) promotion. In a display of unity seldom seen in our kind of industry, circuit heads and independent showmen all over the country have enthusiastically latched onto the idea. It provides us with our one great opportunity to retard or bring to a complete halt our tobogganing boxoffice receipts."

Twentieth's regional meetings, which are expected to attract over 8,000 exhibitors in all parts of the country, kicked off yesterday (Tues.) in 13 key cities. Exhibs in each area, whether or not they are regular 20th customers, were invited to attend, with conclaves in the other cities scheduled for today and tomorrow. Meets are being conducted in each city by a 20th division or branch manager who, with a homeoffice ad-publicity rep, details plans for the campaign and the "Showman's Guide." Afternoon parts of the huddles are turned over to the exhibs for an open forum on showmanship techniques and problems, with exhibs then being hosted by 20th to cocktails, dinner and a sneak screening of one of the company's top upcoming pictures in the evening.

Several indie circuits, following up on the unprecedented tradepaper coverage given 20th's original Chicago meet last week, are holding special sessions of their own with their managers after the regional meets. New England Theatres chief, M. J. Mullin, for example, in a note reminding his house managers of the 20th conclave called for Boston yesterday, declared:

"Within a short time after this meeting, it is our intention in this office to sit down with each manager and discuss his individual problems. We ask that you be prepared for such a meeting by having all data pertinent to your theatre, such as admission prices, policy and clearance information, type of product best for your theatre, advertising costs, new media of merchandising, television, children's attendance, special activities, etc."

WB PAIR TEES OFF 20-PICTURE SCHEDULE

Hollywood, March 21.

Two high budgeters, "Two for Two" and "Breaking Point," will roll at Warners tomorrow (22) to tee off recently announced schedule of 20 pix within the next four months. Studio currently has three lensing on the home lot plus "Captain Horatio Hornblower" before the cameras in England.

"Tea," Technicolor tunefilm, stars Gordon MacRae and Doris Day, with Eve Arden, Gene Nelson and S. Z. (Cuddles) Sakall, with David Butler megging for producer William Jacobs. "Point," John Garfield-Patricia Neal starrer, has Mike Curtiz megging for Jerry Wald. Next month studio has three to go, "Dallas," starring Gary Cooper; "We're Working Our Way Through College," a Technicolor tunefilm, plus an untitled Humphrey Bogart starrer.

Mgr. Gets Damages For False Arrest

Minneapolis, March 21.

Bert G. Langley, manager of the Lake theatre, Duluth, Minn., has been awarded $1,050 damages by a district court jury for "false and malicious arrest."

Policemen making the arrest charged that Langley was operating without a license while the Lake theatre's license application was resting in the license bureau's files. Langley was acquitted in municipal court.

COMPO Urges Exhibs To Press Tax Repeal

Washington, March 21.

All exhibitors attending the 20th-Fox regional showmanship meetings are being urged by the Council of Motion Picture Organizations to redouble their efforts toward complete repeal of the 20% admissions tax. Wire from Abram F. Myers, chairman of the COMPO tax committee, is being read at the meetings through the cooperation of 20th, which adds its personal "Amen" to the message.

Film industry has marshalled tremendous forces for the repeal of the tax, with result that 15,000,000 petitions to date have been received by Congress demanding tax relief, A. Julian Brylawski, head of Washington's Theatre Owners of America's regional and a member of the industry's tax committee, told the 325 exhibs attending 20th's showmanship meet here.

A COMPO poll reveals that 19 of the 25 members of the House Ways & Means committee stand committed for tax relief, Brylawski added. Two others are doubtful; two oppose and two more have not been contacted. Some 338 Congressmen out of the House total of 435 have declared themselves in favor of a tax slash.

Philly Critic

Continued from page 5

of department store merchandising. She also urged exhibs to return to mailing lists and criticized newspaper ads and trailers for overdoing the lurid adjectives.

Meet was chairmanned by division manager Howard Minsky, branch manager Sieg Horowitz and homeoffice exploitation chief Rodney Bush. Also seated on the dais were Lyle Trenchard, general manager of the Goldman chain, and Sidney Samuelson, prez of Allied of Eastern Pennsylvania. Harold Cohen, indie exhib from Lewisburg, Pa., moderated the open forum during the afternoon.

Good Buffalo Attendance

Buffalo, March 21.

Twentieth-Fox regional meeting, held here at the Statler hotel today, was well attended by western New York indie and circuit exhibs. Morning session, presided over by branch manager Charles Kosco and Dave Golding of the homeoffice publicity department, consisted of a recap of speeches of Spyros P. Skouras, Al Lichtman and Andy Smith, Jr., delivered at the recent Chicago meeting.

Afternoon session was an open forum for exhibs, with William Dipson (Dipson Theatres) and Elmer Lux (Darnell Theatres) as moderators.

Coast Lauds Grauman

Los Angeles, March 21.

Opening session of 20th-Fox's Southern California showmanship drive at the Elks Club here followed the pattern laid down at the Chi meeting. It was opened by Clyde Eckhardt, L.A. branch manager, who introduced west coast sales chief Herman Wobber. He read the Chi speeches of Spyros Skouras, Al Lichtman and Andy Smith.

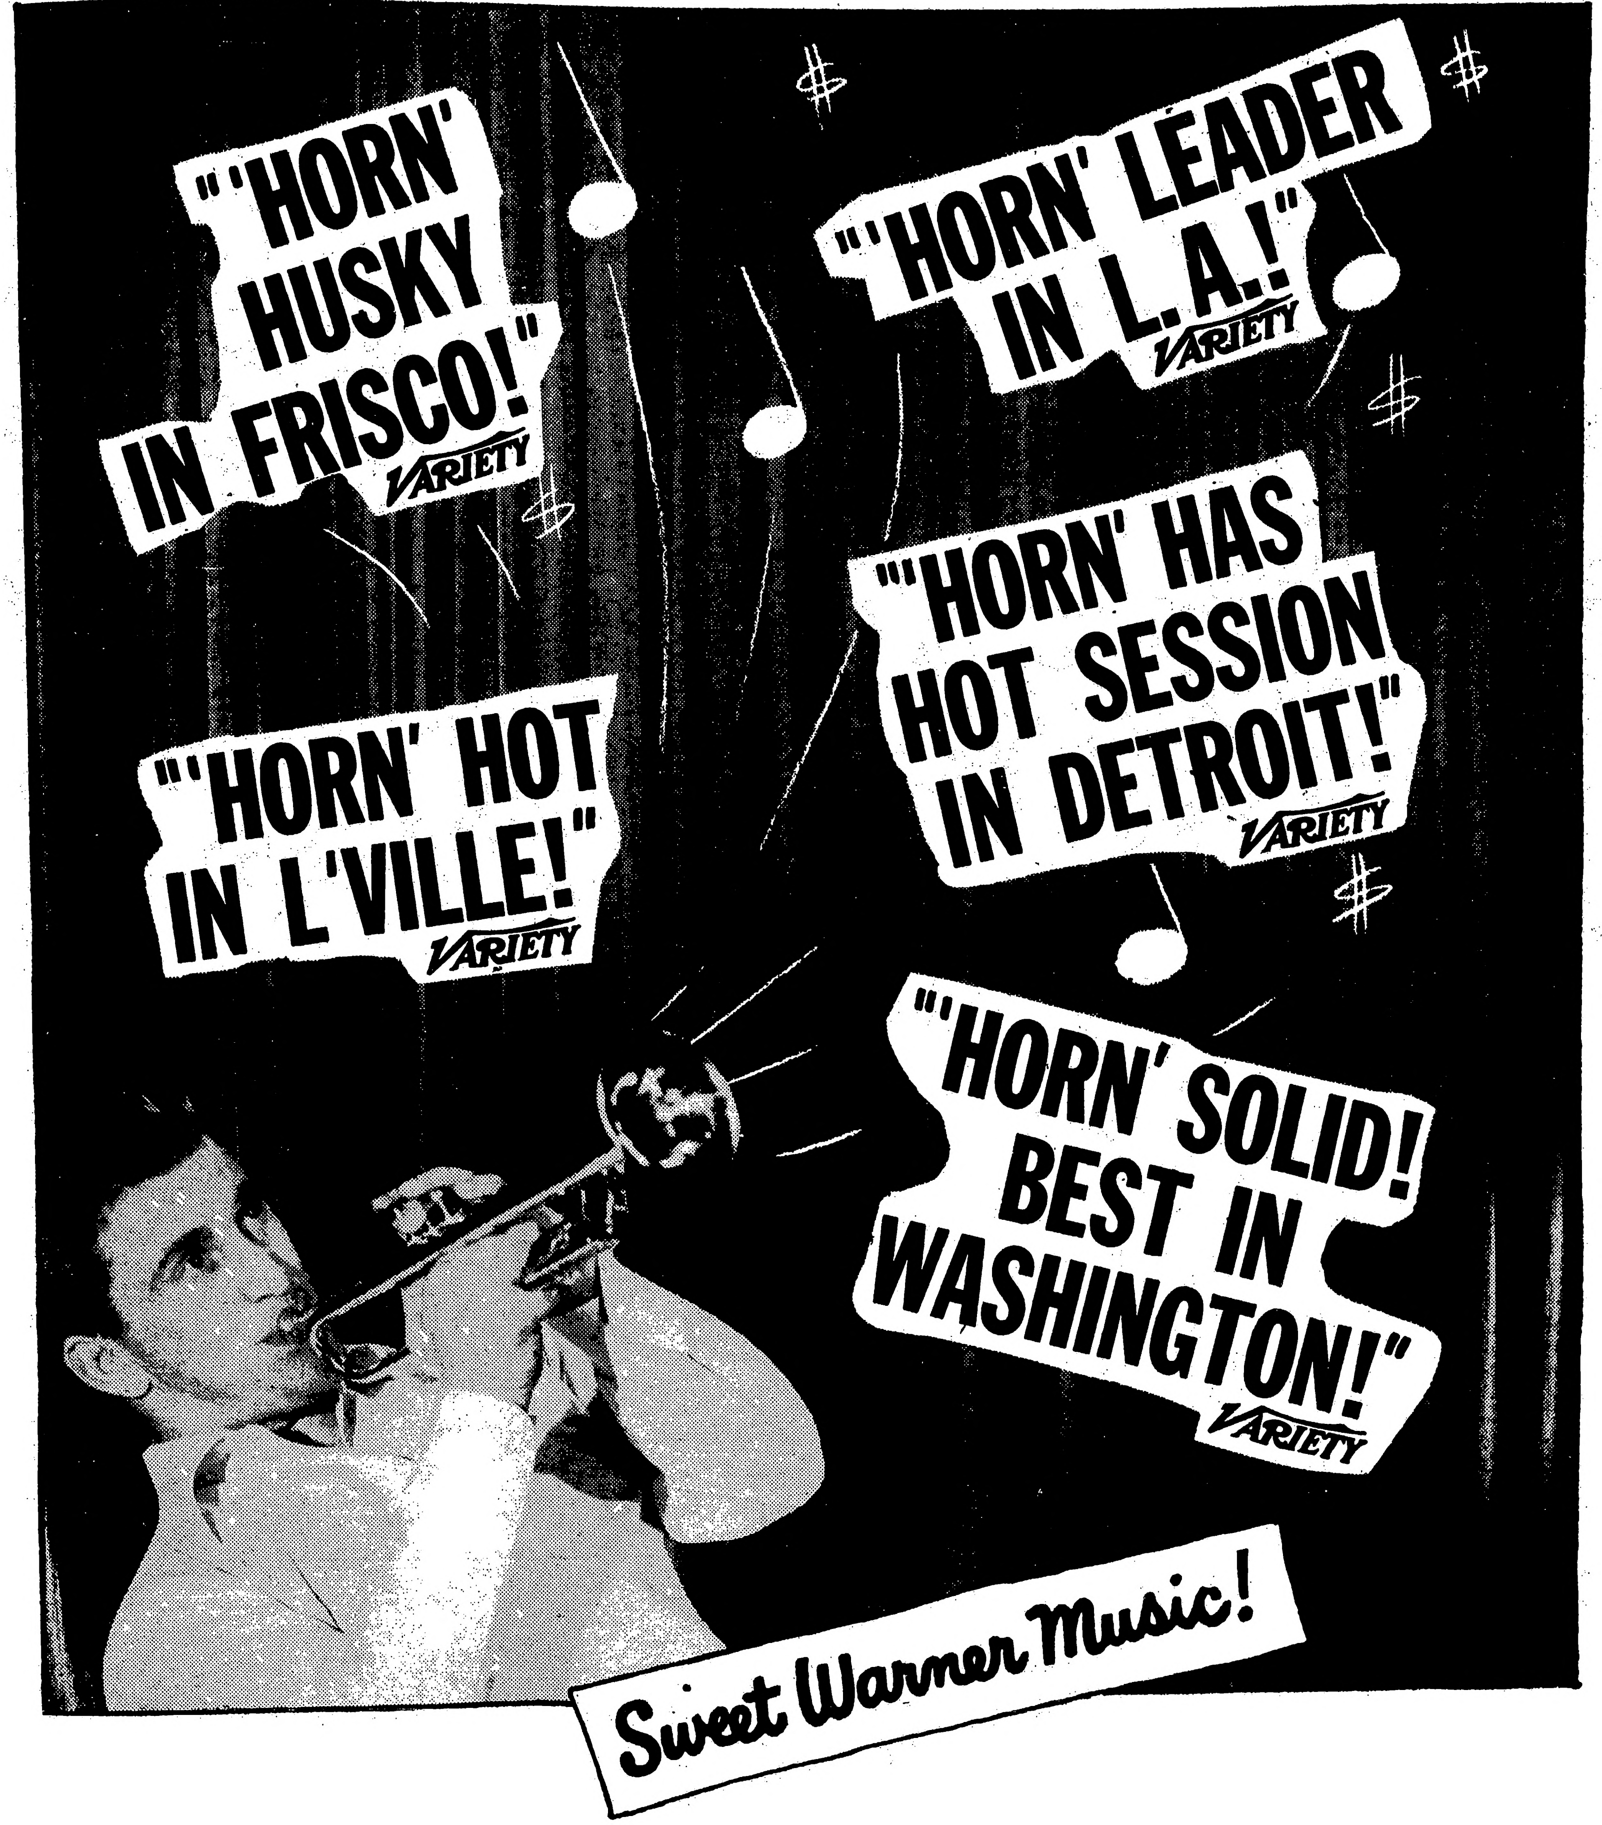
Edwin Schallert, L.A. Times film critic, advised some 300 exhibs present that television can't be blamed for all troubles. He cited several instances of Coast crises and how showmanship overcame them. He also paid tribute to the late Sid Grauman as an example of a master showman.

D.C.'s Big Turnout

Washington, March 21.

Big turnout of exhibs at 20th-Fox regional meeting here today (Tues.) indicated theatre operators' interest in 20th's plan for revitalizing showmanship. Representatives of all major affiliated circuits were numbered among the 325 exhibs from this area.

Glenn Norris, 20th's Washington branch manager, presided, along with Stirling Silliphant of the homeoffice ad-publicity staff. Jay Carmody, Evening Star film critic, was principal guest speaker. He minimized television's threat to the boxoffice, pointing out that TV could never hold an audience the way pictures played in a theatre do. As in other regional meets, the D.C. session followed the pattern set down at 20th's Chicago meet last week.



"'HORN' HUSKY IN FRISCO!" VARIETY
"'HORN' LEADER IN L.A.!" VARIETY
"'HORN' HAS HOT SESSION IN DETROIT!" VARIETY
"'HORN' HOT IN L'VILLE!" VARIETY
"'HORN' SOLID! BEST IN WASHINGTON!" VARIETY
Sweet Warner Music!

KIRK DOUGLAS · LAUREN BACALL · DORIS DAY

"young man with a horn"

WITH HOAGY CARMICHAEL JUANO HERNANDEZ PRODUCED BY JERRY WALD

DIRECTED BY MICHAEL CURTIZ

SCREEN PLAY BY CARL FOREMAN AND EDMUND H. NORTH

FROM THE NOVEL BY DOROTHY BAKER • MUSICAL DIRECTION BY RAY HEINDORF

Clips from Film Row

NEW YORK

Following addition of two sales divisions by Metro, company realigned its h.o. forces. Charles F. Deesen will handle Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Oklahoma City and Memphis exchanges. Albany, Boston, Buffalo, Philadelphia, New Haven, New Jersey and N. Y. sectors go to Paul J. Richrath. Irving Helfont takes over L. A., San Francisco, Denver, Kansas City, Portland, Seattle and Salt Lake. Leonard Hirsch is handling Atlanta, Charlotte, Dallas, Washington and New Orleans; Sidney Lefkowitz gets Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha, Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

James R. Grainger, Republic's sales chief, and his assistant, Edward L. Walton, left N. Y. last week for onceover of the company's Coast studio and a swing through western exchange centers.

Fred Goldberg, Paramount's trade press contact, promoted to syndicate contact. Goldberg's old post goes to John C. Alicoate, who moves over from Eagle Lion.

KANSAS CITY

Allied Theatres will combine equipment show and drive-in theatre owners convention with its annual spring convention. Date is set for May 9-10 at Phillips hotel here.

Kansas-Missouri Theatre Assn. set one-day spring meeting for Phillips Hotel here March 28. This is in lieu of regional meetings it has held in previous years.

Three-man board of city censors reached an impasse in St. Joseph, Mo., last week on an official attitude toward "Stromboli," and film likely will be booked and shown before official reaction is known. H. D. Allison, mayor, said he believed no action to block film's showing could be taken legally unless it has been seen.

PITTSBURGH

National AMPTOA convention scheduled for the William Penn Hotel here Oct. 2-4.

Six outdoor houses owned and operated by Norbert, Ernest and George Stern will be run this year under corporate name of Associated Drive-In Theatres. Norbert Stern was pioneer in this type of operation here, having opened South Park Drive-In 11 years ago.

Gordon Contee resigned as manager of 20th-Fox exchange here to head UA branch in Washington, his home town. Being replaced by Al Levy, formerly sales chief for 20th in Detroit.

Jack Simons, formerly with Loew's here and in New England, resigned as manager for Warners in Washington, Pa.

Harris Newsreel Theatre altered its policy to include a feature picture daily after 6 p. m. and all day Sunday. During the day, news and shorts will be the fare.

H. J. Bechstein, former manager of Karen theatre which was recently transferred from Paul Bronder to Nick Melucci, is now managing the Castle at Castle Shannon.

Academy Pictures Corp. organized here for purpose of producing and distributing films. Incorporators are James L. Baker, George L. Johnston, George Mikalauskis, Warren R. Smith and John H. Ware. Baker is a vet cameraman and producer here and headed Mode-Arts Pictures for years.

SYRACUSE

Distinctive Theatres Corp., headed by Vance Schwartz, purchased Midtown theatre from Jack Zurick and Otto Cratzner. House has been on arty policy and Schwartz will continue house that way.

The Midtown, Syracuse's only arty theatre, purchased by Vance Schwartz, head of Distinctive Pictures, from Jack Zurich and Otto Gratzer, local owners. It becomes part of little cinema circuit which Schwartz directs in Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton, O. James Foley stays as Midtown manager.

PHILADELPHIA

Jay Emanuel and his brother Edward named co-chairmen of Red Cross drive for film industry here.

Leonard Mintz, former branch head of United Artists, in Pittsburgh, named sales manager for UA here. Move is a homecoming for Mintz, who was a salesman here for UA before he went to Pittsburgh.

Robert H. Suits named manager of Paramount's Tower Theatre, Upper Darby (tryout spot for the N. Y. Paramount's stageshows). Suits, who has managed theatres in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City and Toronto, replaces Norman H. Bailey, who resigned to move to Tucson, Ariz.

Harry Chercoff will open his King Theatre, Lancaster, Pa., April 1.

Henry Friedman, indie theatre owner, has formed a syndicate to launch a chain of drive-ins in Puerto Rico, San Salvador and Cuba.

BOSTON

Weymouth Theatre, Weymouth, sold by Bill Deitch and Oscar Goldberg to Joseph and Philip Averback of Lawrence, Mass. New owners are newcomers in the industry and have appointed Dick Rubin of State Theatre, Saugus, to handle buying and booking for them.

Annual Retreat held by Catholic Motion Picture Guild set for March 31-April 2 at Campion Hall, North Andover. Tom O'Brien, Columbia manager, heads reservation committee.

George Kraska, managing director of indie Beacon Hill, awarded a 10-day vacation trip to Florida by his new bosses, Ben Sack and Irving Sisson, for outstanding promotional efforts in connection with foreign films featured at theatre.

MINNEAPOLIS

Attorney General J. A. A. Burnquist has held "auction night" gimmick under which a Virginia, Minn., film theatre gives away a bicycle, illegal under unlawful gift enterprise, even though not a lottery.

Northwest Variety club in final stage of drive to raise additional funds for its heart hospital project by safety slogan contest with valuable prizes.

North Central Allied again has changed date of its annual convention here, this time setting it for May 3-4 in place of April 4-5. Reason for postponement is fact that better hotel accommodations can be obtained.

20th-Fox symposium on "How to Get More People into Theatre," patterned after recent Chicago conference, set for March 23 here.

Henry Wilcoxon in Twin Cities for three days, beating drum for "Samson and Delilah."

Jerry Gruenberg, Eagle Lion salesman, passing out cigars. It's a boy—the Gruenberg's second child.

RKO-Orpheum here gets fifth Palace vaudeville unit in mid-April.

George Turner, M-G salesman, and Hack Heywood, New Richmond, Wisc., exhibitor, back from vacation motor trip through far west.

Bennie Berger, North Central Allied president, returned from a Florida vacation.

TORONTO

Move of Toronto's city council to prohibit use of overhanging signs and marquees along first four-mile leg of main stem's subway under Yonge St. has the 111 exhibitors involved up in arms over the threat of what they say is confiscation of about $1,000,000 capital investment. Fight for the film interests is being lead by Motion Picture Theatres Assn. of Ontario. All signs and marquees, mercantile as well as theatrical, are being necessarily removed as the subway excavation proceeds southward on the city's principal thoroughfare, with city fathers now arguing such overhanging signs should not be re-erected.

CHICAGO

Bill Hollander, Balaban & Katz publicity director, persuaded three Chicago dailies to use slogan "Movies are Better Than Ever" to head film advertising sections and as filler slugs. Herald American, Sun-Times and Daily News will cooperate.

John Balaban, B&K head, returned from Coast.

Abe Teitel secured midwest distribution rights to 'Fame Is Spur," Two Cities production. He has also started Chicago-Milwaukee distribution of "Bicycle Thief," "Battle of Rails" and reissue of "Open City."

Attorney Abe Brussell filed amended complaint for De Luxe theatre in the indie house's antitrust suit against B&K and the majors.

Harold Butchin, former Universal flack, signed as field exploitation man by Eagle Lion on picture-to-picture basis.

Ed Solomon, 20th-Fox midwest exploitation head, will address 20th-Fox regional showmanship meets in Cleveland March 21 and in Cincinnati March 23.

Alliance Theatres, 70-house circuit centered in Illinois and Indiana, will follow through on the 20th-Fox showmanship drive with a series of three manager meetings starting tomorrow (22). The meetings will be held to prepare for Alliance's 15th annual 16-week showmanship drive, which begins April 16. Following today's (21) 20th regional meet in Indianapolis, Alliance will hold its first regional meet tomorrow in the Lincoln Hotel there. Other managers will meet Thursday (23) in Kokomo, and a third meeting will take place March 28 in Chicago. All three conferences will be headed by Alliance toppers James Gregory, Pete Penagos and John Doerr.

SAN FRANCISCO

Sherrill C. Corwin, head of North Coast theatres, appointed Graham Kislingbury to succeed Cliff Giesseman as division manager of houses here, the Orpheum, United Artists and Esquire. Former had been ad-publicity director for the last year. Giesseman will replace Allan Warshauer, who resigned as manager for Blumenfeld theatres in the East Bay.

OKLAHOMA CITY

Annual convention of Theatre Owners of Oklahoma will be held here March 27-28. Slated for discussion are television, trade practice, excise tax reduction, ASCAP divorcement and arbitration. Gael Sullivan, Theatre Owners of America executive, and Herman Levy, general counsel, will lead discussions.

GREENSBORO, N. C.

Frank P. Bruton, present manager of the Carolina theatre at Burlington, purchased Burlington Alamance theatre from North Carolina Theatres, Inc., of Charlotte, and will assume direction of its operation. Bruton said he will leave his Carolina theatre position with Wilby-Kincy organization, operators of North Carolina Theatres, to devote his time to the Alamance.

MEMPHIS

J. I. Miller of Brinkley, Ark., awarded contract to build Holly Springs theatre at Holly Springs, Miss. New building will replace the theatre destroyed last Dec. 15 by an explosion and fire of undetermined origin.

LYNCHBURG, VA.

Contract for complete renovation of the Trenton, recently taken over by Warners, was awarded to W. W. Jones, Inc., facelifting to cost about $300,000.

20th Appeal

Continued from page 3

Warners has been revising its consent decree aims in light of the court decision which gives the company a full three years to sever production-distrib ties with its theatres.

Twentieth expects to pick up the settlement threads on the return of Kenneth C. Royall, former U. S. Secretary of War, and his law partner, Otto E. Koegel. Royall is now in Paris on business while Koegel is vacationing.

While both majors are intent in driving for a peace deal, it is understood the Government is peeved over the belief that these companies are now playing hard-to-get. Since the Government won its main objective, complete divorcement, the only solid ground available to it for a counter-appeal is from the three-year period provided by the court. D of J was set back on its heels on this proviso since it argued that these companies should get no greater time period than the one-year granted Paramount and RKO.

It is believed the countermove will be pressed by the Government against Metro since that major has already filed an appeal. As for Warners, reports are again circulating that the company is renewing a request for decree provisions permitting the three brothers to divide with the company so that Harry and Jack Warner can stay with production-distribution and Major Albert Warner could take over the theatres. Warner freres are said to be encountering difficulties in unloading their stock interest in WB theatres because of Wall Street fears of television's impact on exhibition.

Picture Grosses

OMAHA

(Continued from page 8)

(EL) and Art Kassel orch, onstage, $13,800 was below average for stageshows.

Brandeis (RKO) (1,500; 16-65)—"Young Man With Horn" (WB) and Mark Gorilla" (Col). Good $6,500. Last week, "Tell To Judge" (Col) and "Bodyhold" (Col). Fair $6,000.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,100; 16-65)—"Dakota Lil" (20th) and "Shamrock Hill" (EL). Mild $8,000. Last week, "12 O'Clock High" (20th) (m.o.) oke $10,000.

State (Goldberg) (865; 16-65)—"Malaya" (M-G) and "Angels in Disguise" (Mono) (3d wk). Opened Monday (20). Second week of "Malaya" alone, nice $4,800.

'STRANGER'-CONTINO SOCK $27,000, FRISCO

San Francisco, March 21.

"Tattooed Stranger" is being boosted to big session by Dick Contino unit onstage this week at Golden Gate. Stench bombing of Paramount hurt but "Sundowners" is fairly nice. Biz elsewhere is dullish. "Francis" is doing okay on moveover.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 60-95)—"Tattooed Stranger" (RKO) plus vaude headed by Dick Contino unit. Big $27,000. Last week, "Pirates Capri" (FC) and "Flying Saucer" (FC) $11,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; 60-95)—"Baron Of Arizona" (Lip) and "Whirlpool" (20th). Okay $16,000 in 5 days. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th) plus Duke Ellington orch, $22,500.

Warfield (Loew's) (2,656; 60-85)—"Key To City" (M-G) (2d wk. Fine $19,000 in 10 days. Last week, sock $30,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 60-85)—"Sundowners" (EL) and "Palooka Meets Humphrey" (Mono) "with John Barrymore, Jr., doing personal first two days. Nice $15,000. Last week, "Paid In Full" (Par) and "Grass Always Greener" (WB) $13,500.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 60-85)—"Man with Horn" (WB) (3d wk). Fair $8,000 after $9,000 last week.

Orpheum (No. Coast) (2,448; 55-85)—"The Palomino" (Col) and "Tyrant Of Sea" (Col). Thin $8,500. Last week, "Francis" (U) and "Bodyhold" (Col) (3d wk), strong $10,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 55-85)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (3d wk). Husky $7,500. Last week, $10,500.

Stagedoor (Ackerman - Rosener) (370; 85-$1) — "Pygmalion" (Indie) (reissue) (3d wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Esquire (No. Coast) (955; 55-85)—"Francis" (U) and "Bodyhold" (Col) (m.o.). Fourth downtown week. Hefty $7,500. Last week, "Young Widow" (UA) and "Strange Woman" (UA) (reissues), low $1,900.

Larkin (Rosener) (400; 65-85)—"Love Life Napoleon" (Indie). Trim $3,000. Last week, "Scott Of Antarctic" (EL) and "Canterbury Tale" (EL) (2d wk), $2,500.

Geary (Indie) (1,550; 60-$1.80)—"Bicycle Thief" (Indie). only $6,000 despite crix raves. Last week, legit operation.

NEW RULES ON U.S. PIX FOR REICH SHOOTING

Washington, March 21.

Scripts for motion pictures with locales in the U. S. zone of Germany must now be cleared with the Chief of Public Affairs for the High Commissioner of Germany, according to a new directive sent to American army and civilian brass functioning in the Reich.

The basic procedure for Hollywood studios wishing to shoot on location in western Germany was laid down in March, 1949. However, the new change comes about because a civilian high commissioner has taken over top authority from American army officials. Before a studio may send a crew to Germany, the shooting script must be approved by the U. S. public information division of the Department of Army, which then sends it on to the public information division of the European command. After clearance there it now goes for final approval to the Chief of Public Affairs for the High Commissioner of Germany.

No change has been made in Japan. There is no civilian high commissioner there. General Douglas MacArthur continues as the last word on approving scripts.

Heidt Pushes 'For All' Terrif $30,000 in Mpls.; 'Horn' Top Filmer, 12G

Minneapolis, March 21.

Bulk of trade currently is drifting to Radio City where Horace Heidt and his stage show plus "Free for All" will hit the ceiling. Despite continued near-zero weather and more snowstorms, Heidt is demonstrating powerful pulling power. Straight film newcomers getting a good play are "Young Man with a Horn" and "Tight Little Island." "Outside the Wall" looks moderate at RKO-Pan.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Par) (1,600; 50-70)—"Guilty of Treason" (EL). Mild $5,000. Last week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) (2d wk), $4,500.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 50-70)—"Montana" (WB) (m.o.). Here after fair first stanza at State. Mild $4,000. Last week, "Sands Iwo Jima" (Rep) (3d wk), okay $5,200.

Radio City (Par) (4,000; 50-85)—"Free for All" (U) and Horace Heidt and his stage revue. Heidt's radio drag is real turnstile grease. Special Sunday night Philip Morris broadcast from theatre with all seats reserved at $1.80 helping to swell total. Smash $30,000. Last week, "Malaya" (M-G) (55-70), moderate $13,500.

RKO - Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 50-70)—"Man With Horn" (WB). Good $12,000 and top straight filmer. Last week, "Davy Crockett" (UA), fair $9,000.

RKO-Pan (RKO) (1,600; 50-70)—"Outside the Wall" (U). Moderate $7,000. Last week, "Buccaneer's Girl" (U), $7,400.

State (Par) (2,300; 50-70)—"Capt. China" (Par). Light $8,000. Last week, "Montana" (WB), $9,000.

World (Mann) (400; 50-85) — "Tight Little Island" (U). Despite fact it is British pic and has no cast names to mean much, this one, helped by crix acclaim, is getting surprisingly good biz. Big $4,000 and sure to hold. Last week, "Major Barbara" (Indie) (reissue), light $2,200.

'Bachelor' Bright With 12G, Indpls.; 'Wife' 11G

Indianapolis, March 21.

Grosses are moderate here this week, with special promotion effort giving "Father Is Bachelor," at Loew's, top money. "Dear Wife" is oke at Indiana, "Johnny Holiday" is getting satisfactory return in third week at Keith's. Special promotion, exploiting state boy's school locale of story and one-night preem here last winter, paid off on this one, too.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Gamble-Dolle) (2,427; 44-65) — "Sword in Desert" (U) and "Woman in Hiding" (U). So-so $9,000. Last week, "Thelma Jordon" (Par) and "Blue Glass Kentucky" (Mono), $7,500.

Indiana (G-D) (3,300; 44-65)—"Dear Wife" (Par) and "Radar Secret Service" (Lip). Satisfactory $11,000. Last week, "12 O'Clock High" (20th), $13,000.

Keith's (G-D) (1,300; 44-65)—"Johnny Holiday" (UA) and "Belle Old Mexico" (Rep) (3d wk). Nice $5,000 after brisk $8,500 second stanza, making about $24,500 for run. Year's sleeper here.

Loew's (Loew's) (2,427; 44-65)—"Father Is Bachelor" (Col) and "Nevadan" (Col). Sturdy $12,000. Last week, "East Side" (M-G) and "Intruder in Dust" (M-G), $10,600.

Lyric (G-D) (1,600; 44-65)—"12 O'Clock High" (20th) (m.o.). Good $6,000. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th) and "Bomba on Panther Island" (Mono), mild $5,500 first-run in 6 days.

DENVER

(Continued from page 8)

(UA) (2d wk). Poor $8,000. Last week, good $15,500.

Paramount (Fox) (2,200; 35-74)—"South Sea Sinner" (U) and "Rugged O'Riordans" (U), day-date with Webber. Fair $7,000. Last week, "Nevadan" (Col) and "Mary Ryan, Detective" (Col), good $8,500.

Tabor (Fox) (1,967; 35-74)—"Flying Saucer" (FC) and "Pirates of Capri" (FC). Good $5,000. Last week, on reissues.

Vogue (Wolfberg) (600; 60-74)—"Major Barbara" (Indie). Neat $2,500. Last week, "Carnival in Flanders" (Indie) and "Rubens" (Indie), fair $1,800.

Webber (Fox) (750; 35-74)—"South Sea Sinner" (U) and "Rugged O'Riordans" (U), also Paramount. Fine $2,500. Last week, "Nevadan" (Col) and "Mary Ryan, Detective" (Col), good $2,200.

RESTRICTING '3D MAN' THEME AIDS B'WAY B.O.

Selznick Releasing Organization's action in restricting the public performance of music from "The Third Man" until March 1 has paid off tremendously, sales chief Sidney Deneau opines. He credits that as a major reason for the unusual strength pic is showing in its current run at the Victoria on Broadway, where the sixth week beat the fifth by $2,000 and the seventh topped the sixth by another $500.

Failure of the film to show the normal drop in biz from week to week is seen by Deneau resulting from the fact that the restriction on the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers permitting the tunes to be played on the air wasn't lifted until "Third Man" had completed the first month of its run at the Vic.

Further benefit from the restriction is anticipated in that "The Third Man Theme," the principal tune, will be hitting its peak of popularity in April just at the time the film is going into general release. Pic has opened so far only in New York and Washington.

Victoria figures have been very strong, particularly in light of generally weak biz on the Stem. Preem session was $38,500, with the succeeding week $31,600; third week $30,000; fourth week $20,500 (that's the stanza the Broadway dimout hit); fifth round $23,500, the sixth $25,500 and the seventh $26,000.

"Third Man Theme," composed by Viennese zither player Anton Karas, has had 17 different recordings. More remarkable, according to Chappell, the publisher, is that no lyric version of the song is available..

TAUSIG
THROUGH TAUSIG'S DOORS
TRAVEL
THE TOPS IN SHOW BUSINESS
We have served..
WILLIAM MORRIS
GEORGE M. COHAN
SARAH BERNHARDT
NORA BAYES
PAUL TAUSIG & SON, Inc.
Our 50th Year as Specialists in World Travel for the Entertainment World
Official & Bonded Agents for all Air & Steamship Lines • Hotel Reservations
29 WEST 46th ST. • NEW YORK 19, N. Y.
Telephones: LUxemburg 2-4611, 12, 13, 14

THEATRE MANAGER AVAILABLE!

ALL AROUND SHOWMAN, can handle one or more theatres. Capable administrator, organizer, good will builder/ exploitation and promotion ideas.

30 years' experience every type policy and situation, with a creative "know-how," offers an unusual ability to someone capable of properly evaluating same. Location unimportant if permitting liberal scope for results.

BOX V-7277, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York

CINECOLOR
CORPORATION
New 3-color process makes the stock of this company an attractive low-priced speculation.
SEND FOR REPORT
GRIMM & CO.
Members New York Stock Exchange
Digby 4-2500 44 Wall St., New York

OUTDOOR REFRESHMENT CONCESSIONAIRES FROM COAST TO COAST OVER ¼ CENTURY
NOW SPECIALIZING IN REFRESHMENT SERVICE FOR DRIVE-IN THEATRES
SPORTSERVICE Corp. JACOBS BROS.
703 MAIN ST. • BUFFALO, N. Y. • WA. 2500

L.A. Bank Forecloses On 'Town,' 'Dorseys'

Los Angeles, March 21.

Two foreclosure suits were filed by the Bank of America in L.A. superior court on two pictures: "Magic Town" and "The Fabulous Dorseys," released respectively by RKO and UI in 1947.

Bankers declare Riskin Productions owes $660,258 on "Magic," and Embassy Productions is behind to the extent of $260,486 on "Dorseys."

ILL. JUDGE UPHOLDS OZONERS AS LAWFUL

Chicago, March 21.

An amendment to a zoning ordinance banning drive-ins from village of Skokie, a Chicago suburb, has been declared invalid by Judge John A. Sbarboro in Illinois Superior Court. Suit was brought by Skokie Amus. Co. and Trust Co. of Chicago after the village refused them a permit to build a drive-in. Village then passed an amendment banning drive-ins.

"It is clear," Judge Sbarboro ruled, "that the amendment was adopted for the purpose of outlawing an admittedly lawful business, i.e., a public theatre."

Ohio Supreme Ct. Hears Plea on 'Weed' Pic

Columbus, O., March 21.

Ohio supreme court has been asked to compel Dr. Clyde Hissong, State Education Director and head of the film censorship division, to permit the showing of "The Devil's Weed," in a suit filed last week by Hallmark Productions, Inc., Wilmington, O., film producer and distributor.

The film, dealing with marijuana, was turned down by the film censorship division on March 10 "on account of being harmful." Dr. Hissong said the film was not a "deterrent to the use of marijuana and should not be shown under any circumstances." He said the showing of the film would "only accentuate interest in the weed and stimulate people to buy some and see how it reacts on them."

Freed Takes Metro Troupe to Hawaii

Hollywood, March 21.

Metro is sending a troupe of 66 to Honolulu this week, headed by Arthur Freed, producer, and Esther Williams and Howard Keel, co-stars, to shoot "The Pagan Love Song."

Company will spend five weeks on six location spots on the Island of Kauai.

Sen. Johnson

Continued from page 4

roughly handled in the original Senator Johnson statement anent Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini, will come.

Modifies Bergman Stand

The Senator from Colorado, who earlier had declared that moral turpitude barred Ingrid Bergman from returning to the U. S., considerably modified this position yesterday (20) in a statement on the Senate floor. He admitted that our law would permit her to return in connection with her marital suits. The Senator went on to predict that she would probably receive a royal reception, and to bemoan that situation.

"If she returns here," he commented, "in all likelihood she will receive a reception greater than that accorded Charles Lindbergh, General Eisenhower, or the King and Queen of England. Americans might trample one another for a close view of her, for she is a notorious attraction.

"The youth of the country will have cause to think that America approves her conduct. Such an interpretation would be most unfortunate since it would not be true, but it would be far worse if we should bar her entrance for a temporary visit and thereby deny to her her day in court."

Johnson pointed out that Miss Bergman is likely to be a plaintiff in one case and a defendant in another. In such situations, he continued, it has been the American policy to permit aliens in temporarily. He added that "she should be admitted for that purpose, even though guilty of moral turpitude."

Father-Son Team

Another father-and-son film setup will develop within a few months when Hayes Goetz, Metro producer, leaves the Coast for England to shoot his first "Bulldog Drummond" feature. Hayes is the son of Ben Goetz, managing director of Metro's British studios. It will be the first time that the two will work together.

Hayes recently became a full-fledged producer after serving his apprenticeship under Arthur Hornblow, Jr. Ben planed into London over the weekend after a two-week visit to the Culver City lot for talks with Dore Schary, M-G production chief, on plans for British filmmaking. He was accompanied by Alfred Junge, art director for the British studios.

Briefs From the Lots

Hollywood.

Alec Guinness will play the Disraeli role in "The Mudlark," to be produced for 20th-Fox by Nunnally Johnson in England. . . . Metro's "Dink Stover," formerly "You're Only Young Twice," will be released as "The Happy Years." . . . Jack Elam signed a player ticket at 20th-Fox. . . . John Sutton joined the "Story of a Divorce" cast at RKO, where Bette Davis and Barry Sullivan are co-starring. Emlyn Williams got a two-day vacation between "Three Husbands," which finished Friday, and "The Dungeon," which started Monday, both pictures produced by a British outfit, Gloria Films, for United Artists release. . . . Nicholas Ray leads his RKO troupe to Denver this week to shoot "Mad With Much Heart," starring Robert Ryan.

John Ireland signed with Lippert Productions for "The Return of Jesse James." . . . "Lucky Losers" is the new tag on "High Stakes" at Monogram. . . . David Loew shifted his headquarters from General Service to Motion Picture Center. . . . John Beck is bicycling between Columbia and UI, putting the final touches on "Kill the Umpire" and prepping "Harvey." . . . Ann Pearce and Frank Ferguson drew support roles in "Louisa" at UI. . . . Tracey Roberts assigned to the femme lead in William F. Broidy's "Sideshow" at Monogram. . . . Thomas Browne Henry plays a medic in UI's "Saddle Tramp."

Dick Powell's pact with Olympic Productions for the star role in "Cry Danger" gives the company a call on his services for TV personals to plug the film. . . . Joe Vitale plays a comic-heavy in Hal Wallis' "My Friend Irma Goes West." . . . Charles Kemper drew the top support role in "The Golden Tide" at Republic. . . . Robert Rossen signed Pilar Castrilla for the moppet role in "The Brave Bulls." . . . Julian Johnson's 19th option as story chief picked up by 20th-Fox. . . . Two former Olympic swimming champs, Stubby Krueger and Chuck Horvath, joined the "Last of the Buccaneers" cast at Columbia. . . . Paramount bought the Horace McCoy novel, "This is Dynamite," as a starrer for Alan Ladd.

Ida Lupino brought in "Outrage" $47,000 under its original budget at RKO. . . . Republic picked "The Showdown" as the release title for "Sleep All Winter." . . . Next film by Sidney Buchman Enterprises for Columbia release will be "The Hero," with Buddy Adler producing and David Miller directing. . . . Lippert Productions will film "The Mission Play," based on the drama written by the late John Stephen McGroarty.

Short to Plug Industry

Hollywood, March 21.

Metro is rounding up a symphony of tunes from filmusicals for release as a short subject, titled "Moments in Music." Film will be sponsored by the Motion Picture Assn. of America and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as a plug for the film industry in general.

Cary Wilson is editing the short, which will include brief appearances by Bing Crosby, Xavier Cugat, Judy Garland, Betty Hutton, Nelson Eddy, Betty Garrett, Danny Kaye, Jeanette MacDonald, Harry James, Jose Iturbi, Yehudi Menuhin, Leopold Stokowski, Red Skelton, Rise Stevens, Mario Lanza and Lily Pons.

Public Demand for Battle Films Revives Govt. War Documentaries

U. S. and British Governments are cashing in on the public's current appetite for war pix under a peculiar deal between them and Film Renters, Inc., distrib headed by Nat Sanders. FR has the 35m theatrical rights in the U. S. and Canada to a large number of official documentaries made by both governments during the war. Under the terms of his deal, distrib splits net proceeds 50-50 with the British government. Latter, in turn, has the American films on a lend-lease basis from the U. S.

With four pix already making theatre rounds, Sanders is preparing another package consisting of "Target for Tonight" and "Coastal Command." Distrib kicked off with "The True Glory" and "Burma Victory" which copped bookings in 2,300 situations including such affiliated chains as Fox-West Coast, Loew's, RKO, Balaban & Katz and Fox Midwest.

Second package consisted of Frank Capra's "Tunisian Victory" and "Desert Victory." Sanders is also readying "The Story of Lili Marlene" and "Close Quarters," submarine pic for early entry on the U. S. scene. Understood that while FR pays directly to the British, latter splits proceeds with the American Government. Net on teeoff package approximated $60,000.

Couple of majors are also hopping on the grapeshot bandwagon via reissues of war films. Latest in the field is RKO with a dualer in the form of "Back to Bataan" and "Marine Raiders." Twin offering is currently playing a large number of RKO houses in the New York metropolitan area. Distrib reports fair returns to date.

Paramount has released a war package in "Wake Island" and "So Proudly We Hail." Dualer is now playing in a number of Coast houses. Par is using some 100 prints on the reissues in territorial playoffs. Films will be brought east, June 1.

Par's oldies were marked for general release after test bookings were made in four-five spots by its special art house division. Latter wing, headed by Monroe Goodman, is handling a large number of Par's big pix of the past on limited bookings. Package came up with strong revenues in its pre-test engagements resulting in a decision by Alfred W. Schwalberg, distribution veepee, to book them generally.

NLRB Sanctions SPG, Painters

Washington, March 21.

National Labor Relations Board handed down two important Hollywood decisions over the weekend, stemming from the drive by International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employers to become the motion picture industry's all-in-one union.

In the first, involving the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers' Screen Publicists, NLRB okayed the results of an election last December in which the celluloid flacks had voted 64 for the Screen Publicists Guild, 62 for IATSE and one for no union at all. Challenges of three other ballots were sustained. Thus, the labor board found the publicists' guild the proper bargaining agents for the publicists working for Columbia, Loew's, Paramount, RKO, Republic, and Warners—the AMPP members. Election covers only flacks working in California.

The second, a highly involved ruling, brings close to settlement the long jurisdictional fight for the studio painters between IATSE and Local 644 of the Painters Union. Decision covers several different groups but final decision was found in only one instance.

The Painters were approved as the appropriate bargaining agent for film companies affiliated with Independent Motion Picture Producers Assn., the small indies.

Of the ballots cast, nine were for the Painters, two for IA and three were challenged.

In the other cases, the Labor Board ordered certain challenged ballots to be opened and counted to determine the results. These were:

Assn. of Motion Picture Producers, 95 votes for IATSE, 69 for the Painters and 649 challenged. NLRB ordered 347 of the challenged ballots to be opened and counted. It sustained the challenges against the other ballots.

Ressan, Inc., unaffiliated employer, seven voted for IATSE two for the Painters and 47 were challenged. The board ordered a group of 18 of the challenged votes to be opened and counted.

Motion Picture Center Studio, six voted for IATSE, three for the Painters, and 12 were challenged. All the challenged ballots were ordered counted.

Pine-Thomas Productions, four voted for the Painters, three for IATSE and one was challenged. The board ordered that vote to be opened and counted.

The count of all challenged ballots must be completed by March 26.

Arthur Stern Withdraws 3 Houses from Essaness

Chicago, March 21.

Arthur Stern will withdraw his three theatres from operation by Essaness circuit and start his own circuit, the Triangle Amus. Co. Move is effective April 30. Stern is the son of Emil Stern, former partner in Essaness and now retired.

Reason given for move by Stern is that the way pictures are bought today, on a bidding basis, there is no extra advantage in belonging to a circuit. He described the departure as "completely amicable."

Three houses are the Argmore, Avon and Liberty, all on northwest side. Argmore will continue "art picture" policy, while others will be subsequent-run houses.

THERE'S ONLY ONE
Lord Tarleton
MIAMI BEACH
OCEAN FRONT • 40th to 41st Sts.
COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED
Reservations Invited • Walter Jacobs
N. Y. Office TR 4-3193

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center
RAY MILLAND • ROSALIND RUSSELL
EDMUND GWENN in
"A Woman of Distinction"
A Columbia Picture
SPECTACULAR STAGE PRESENTATION

Cecil B. DeMille's masterpiece
"Samson and Delilah"
Color by TECHNICOLOR
HEDY LAMARR • VICTOR MATURE • GEORGE SANDERS
ANGELA LANSBURY • HENRY WILCOXON
See the destruction of the Temple on the MAGIC CYCLORAMIC SCREEN!
RIVOLI

JOHN GARFIELD - MICHELINE PRELLE
in Ernest Hemingway's
"UNDER MY SKIN"
A 20th Century-Fox Picture
On Stage—THE CHINA DOLL REVUE
ROXY 7th Ave. & 50th St.

The Funniest film surprise in years!!!
"Francis"
A Universal-International Picture
IN PERSON
NAT "KING" COLE AND HIS TRIO
LARRY STORCH
RAY McKINLEY AND HIS ORCHESTRA
PARAMOUNT
Midnight Features Nightly

Trade Deplores 'Circus Liberalism,' Feels Sincere Guys Take Rap, Too

In the wake of last week's cancellation of Paul Robeson as a panel participant on Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's Sunday afternoon NBC video show, industry pro and con sentiment projected the conflicting issues:

1) Was NBC's action high-handed and indicative of "radio's latest crime against freedom of the air" as charged by the Voice of Freedom Committee in a telegram despatched by Dorothy Parker, chairman? or 2) Did Elliott Roosevelt, as owner of the show, put his mother in an embarrassing position and administer a setback to the whole cause of liberalism on radio-TV?

As far as NBC is concerned, the web has a special gripe of its own. On the basis of the stature achieved by Mrs. Roosevelt's program in its initial few telecasts, there were three sponsorship nibbles, with indications that the show would wind up in the commercial columns shortly. On the heels of the Robeson notoriety, however, NBC execs fear that the show's a "dead duck" so far as snaring a bankroller is concerned. Web spokesmen argue that Elliott Roosevelt and his package partner, Martin Jones, not only put Mrs. Roosevelt in an awkward and embarrassing position, but hurt the cause of liberalism and projection of controversial issues, and particularly the Negro problem, on radio-TV programming.

Within the trade there's the mounting conviction that too many flaunting the banner of liberalism via their programs are "circusing" public opinion because they're primarily concerned with parlaying sensationalism into bigger and better Hoopers. These "extremists," it's pointed out, are inviting the cries of "censorship," and thus harming the sincere liberals who also get it in the neck.

Voice of Freedom Committee's wire to NBC asserts.

"All freedom-loving and fair-minded listeners are shocked at NBC's high-handed cancellation of Mrs. Roosevelt's March 19 NBT show because Paul Robeson was one of the scheduled participants. We are horrified that NBC permits the Journal-American to dictate who shall or shall not be heard on its network as a public service feature, especially so since NBC itself invited Mr. Robeson to speak as vice-chairman of the Progressive Party.

"Mr. Robeson is eminently qualified to discuss the question of "The Negro in American Political Life," both as an outstanding leader of the Negro people and one of the foremost Americans of our time. Millions of listeners would like the privilege of hearing Mr. Robeson's views on the subject. We urge that you remember that the air still belongs to the people, and is only leased to the broadcaster. We demand a rescheduling of the original show, including Mr. Robeson, or we shall be obliged to petition the FCC."

U.S. Secret Service Agcy. To Secret Service NBC's New Secret Service Show

NBC is all set to roll (with an audition platter coming up in two weeks) on the new Douglas Fairbanks "Silent Men" series, based on U. S. Secret Service files. But for the privilege of having access to the Government documents, NBC will have to submit to a bit of snooping on the part of the Secret Service agency.

Actually, the scripts will be based on the mccoy records of the Immigration, Secret Service and Narcotics Divisions of the U. S. Government, but in each instance the agencies reserve the right to double-check on script material and all NBC production details. Furthermore, without the stamped seal of the agency, no script gets by.

To add to the show's authenticity, NBC has passed along the word to its special events men in all parts of the world to record sound events on the key thoroughfares in the major cities. Thus a "sound library" will be held in reserve and utilized when the proper script—Paris, London, Berlin, Shanghai, etc., comes up for airing.

Double Feature?

Washington, March 21.

WTOP, the 50,000-watt CBS affiliate here, has booked in a one-shot documentary for next April 11 under the title of "Sex Offenses in Washington."

With a perfectly straight face the station discloses that the show will be substituted in the 10:30 p.m. slot normally occupied by the web meller, "Pursuit."

4 Philly Stations Get Off Libel Hook

Philadelphia, March 21.

Judge William H. Fitzpatrick in U. S. District Court dismissed libel suits brought against four Philadelphia radio stations by Attorney David H. H. Felix, who asked damages of $200,000 from the stations because of a political speech allegedly made during the last municipal election campaign.

Felix demanded payment from the owners of stations WCAU, WFIL, WPEN and KYW, each of which carried an address by Republican City Chairman William F. Meade. In the broadcast Meade charged Felix had been a member of the Socialist party and added that "socialists and communists are the same thing," it was alleged.

Felix was a member of the Americans for Democratic Action, a group which backed the Democratic candidate, Richardson Dilworth, for city treasurer. The suit was filed Nov. 18.

In ruling for the defendants, Judge Kirkpatrick found that the FCC forbids radio stations to censor the speeches of political candidates. The fact that Meade himself was not a candidate was not a factor. Since candidates must be permitted the uncensored use of radio, the same privilege must be extended to their campaign managers and spokesmen, Kirkpatrick held.

Ewing Wins 23G Verdict Vs. Former WJBW Owner

New Orleans, March 21.

P. K. Ewing, former gen. mgr. of WJBW, won a suit against Charles C. Carlson, former owner of station, for damages for alleged breach of contract. He was awarded judgment of $23,799.68 Wednesday (15). Originally Carlson filed suit in civil district court in May, 1946, asking cancellation of a contract entered in December, 1943, under which Ewing was to serve as gen.mgr. for five years. The contract was offered in evidence in the suit.

In his answer and re-conventional demand Ewing charged that Carlson had violated numerous provisions of the contract and had forced him (Ewing) out of his position. Ewing asked judgment of $63,666, his estimated earnings during the life of the contract.

RUFE DAVIS
Hollywood's Favorite Hillbilly.
Featured this season in Gene Autry's Road Show.
Appearing Saturday, March 25th, Max Liebman's "Show of Shows" Television, Channel 4—NBT.
Week March 30, RKO Palace, New York.
Personal Management
KALCHEIM AND SMITH
RKO Building

CBS Nixes 900G Lord Operation

It looks like "no dice" in the negotiations between Phillips Lord and CBS whereby the latter would acquire Lord's package operation, which is on the market for $900,000. This involves a takeover of such properties as "Counterspy," "Gangbusters," "Mr. District Attorney" and "We, the People," plus one TV entrant, "The Black Robe." (Latter, however, is being dropped by NBC after a year's unsuccessful effort to wrap up a sponsor.)

CBS nix is said to stem from a feeling that, while "Gangbusters" (sponsored by General Foods) and "Mr. District Attorney" (Bristol-Myers) can be classified as surefire bankroll deals, "We, the People" has always involved a succession of option-time huddles with the sponsor, Gulf, and Pepsi-Cola's "Counterspy" coin is reported shaky.

It's understood that Bernard L. Schubert, another bigleague package operator, may negotiate a deal with Lord for a takeover.

CAMPBELL SCOUTS NEW SHOW VICE 'ROCHESTER'

Franco-American Division of Campbell Soups, via Dancer, Fitzgerald, Sample agency, is still in the market for a show (in addition to its present sponsorship of Ed Murrow cross-the-board on CBS).

Outfit originally wanted to pact Rochester (of the Jack Benny stanza) to a deal, but American Tobacco, Benny's sponsor, nixed it.

The ASCAP Decree

Details of the analysis and interpretation of the ASCAP decree in the Music Dept.

Crosley Stations Offer Bonus Plan To Attract Summer AM-TV Biz

Cincinnati, March 21.

Time bonuses of up to 25% for AM and 50% for TV spot advertisers on Crosley stations to keep them on the air during the summer are offered under a bonus plan announced by Robert E. Dunville, president. The plan was set up at the Crosley Broadcasting Corp. sales meeting here last week. It is said to be the first such major station inducement.

Dunville said the bonus plan will be more than justified if it helps solve the "recurring summer problem of the hiatus, which for years has meant poorer summer programming, added expense, and a three-month anarchy in schedules for station owners generally."

A spot advertiser's regular billing is not reduced by the bonus plan, Dunville said. For example, he explained, an advertiser spending $1,000 weekly on 50,000-watt WLW would receive $250 weekly additional time, and an advertiser spending the same $1,000 on WLW video stations would receive a bonus in time of up to $500 to be used during July, August and September.

The plan is not applicable to network accounts.

For current 52-week advertisers on WLW, said Harry Mason, veepee in charge of sales, the bonus would be 20% of their gross billing during the three summer months.

For new accounts using any time between April 1 and Sept. 30, for less than 10 weeks, 20% in added facilities. New accounts who will broadcast not less than five months from May through Sept., 25% in additional time.

Regular accounts buying additional facilities will also be entitled to a 25% facilities bonus. On Crosley TV stations in Cincy, Dayton and Columbus, O., advertisers can use either the established 40% summer cash discount or the 50% bonus in extra time.

DiMag's 2-Way NBC Swat

NBC sees a two-way radio-TV future in Joe DiMaggio's career, the network last week finalizing plans for inheritance of the ex-CBS Saturday morning stanza.

Effective April 15, the Yankee star moves into the Saturday evening 7:30 to 8 slot. Only the quiz insert will be retained from the old show, with the kids-only format to be dropped and the program slanted toward adult listeners.

NBC also signed DiMaggio for TV and is even thinking of a second radio sports show.

'Wait-&-See' On New BAM Setup

Networks and stations are taking a "let's wait and see" attitude to the proposed Broadcast Audience Measurement, Inc., which will seek approval of Broadcast Measurement Bureau's board to take over the latter's assets. Decision to incorporate BAM came last week when committees of the Assn. of National Advertisers, American Assn. of Advertising Agencies and National Assn. of Broadcasters met to hash out the plan for continuing BMB's work after the bureau is dissolved next July.

Among those incorporating BAM would be the agencies, advertisers and broadcasters who are in favor of the kind of studies BMB has made. Details of the BAM's setup have not been officially released, but the broadcasters will be given more of a say in BAM than they had in BMB. The latter, many radioites feel, has control divided between AAAA, ANA and NAB, although the broadcasters provide all the financial backing.

Radioites' control of BAM would be assured through broadcasters constituting nine of the 15 incorporators, with advertisers and agencies the other six. AAAA and ANA would not participate officially in the incorporation, but agencies and sponsors would take part as individuals. They would also have an important say on committees, etc., in determining

(Continued on page 38)

It Still Scares 'Em

Berlin, N. H., March 21.

This area had a scare reminiscent of the Orson Welles "Men From Mars" broadcast of some years ago when a forest fire prevention program became too realistic over WMOU here last week.

Although the real nature of the program had been announced in advance, many listeners were still startled when announcer Phil Brown came on the air with an "on-the-spot" newscast of a fictitious inferno raging in the area with orders to evacuate.

The entire eastern half of Coos county was in an uproar until the excitement died down

'Falcon' Soars to NBC On Its Hooper Pull, As Web Bolsters Sundays

NBC is taking over the "Falcon," beginning in May, and it will go into the Sunday afternoon at 4 period, back-to-back with the web's "High Adventure" show. Chief factor in the web's decision to buy the Bernard Schubert mysterioso package has been its ability to snare a better than 9 rating in the Mutual Sunday at 7 niche despite the competition of CBS's Jack Benny.

NBC figures it will also be eliminating some of the Sunday at 7 competition in its own bid to make a respectable rating dent.

In a further reshuffle of its Sunday afternoon schedule, NBC moves Dick Powell's "Richard Diamond" (which Rexall is picking up for a summer ride), out of the 5 p. m. segment and into Wednesday night at 10:30, succeeding "Curtain Time," which Mars Candy is dropping. The web's "Voices and Events," now heard Saturday afternoons, will be returned to the Sunday at 5 time, but with a revitalized format using a name emcee and getting a "March of Time" format dressing.

'Counterspy' Spreads, Seeks Sat. Sponsor

"Counterspy," currently sponsored on Tuesday and Thursday nights on ABC under Pepsi-Cola bankroll auspices, may soon emerge on a three-times-a-week basis, with the network peddling it for Saturday airing, too.

Pepsi has expressed willingness to let another sponsor ride on the third night, although there have been some reports that the soft drink may bow out of its participation at the season's end.

Lee Tracy's WOR Show

Lee Tracy will launch a 15-minute weekly theatrical gossip and news stanza for Baker Brushes on WOR, N. Y., April 5 at 9:15 a.m. Show will deal with Broadway but bypass the film field.

Baker has used radio previously on test campaigns in New England,

Hooper Inaugurates His 'Shift of Accent' Ratings

With the following breakdown on New York City ratings C. E. Hooper is back in business—"like Henry Ford, when he replaced Model T with Model A, except we didn't stop to retool," as Hooper explains it. On the premise that "the big differences are no longer between networks or between programs; the big differences are between markets," Hooper in this New York breakdown claims the "shift of accent" is to pinpoint the radical audience differences between such markets as N. Y. (with 44% of the evening audience devoted to TV) and Portland, Ore. (with 0% of the evening audience devoted to TV). The following N. Y. Hooperatings are for February:

ALL HOMES

Sponsored Network Programs
Milton Berle	25.5	TV
Talent Scouts	17.6	TV
Toast Of the Town	16.2	TV
Talent Scouts	14.5	Radio
Radio Theatre	14.0	Radio
The Goldbergs	13.9	TV
My Friend Irma	12.9	Radio
Bing Crosby	12.9	Radio
Godfrey & Friends	12.7	TV
Studio One	12.3	TV
Jack Benny	12.2	Radio
Philco Playhouse	12.0	TV
Walter Winchell	11.8	Radio
Lights Out	11.8	TV
Suspense	11.5	TV

'RADIO-ONLY' HOMES

Sponsored Network Programs
Talent Scouts	21.3
Radio Theatre	21.1
Bing Crosby	19.3
My Friend Irma	18.9
Jack Benny	18.4
Walter Winchell	16.1
Groucho Marx	15.5
Louella Parsons	15.2
Suspense	14.4
Mr. Keen	14.1
Bob Hawk	13.6
Fat Man	13.6
Fibber & Molly	13.4
The Sheriff	12.8
Phil Harris	12.3

TV HOMES

Sponsored Network Programs
Milton Berle	68.3
Talent Scouts	45.3
Toast of the Town	42.4
The Goldbergs	35.1
Godfrey & Friends	33.9
Studio One	33.8
Philco Playhouse	31.1
Man Against Crime	30.7
Lights Out	30.5
Suspense	28.8
Silver Theatre	27.0
Kraft Theatre	26.9
Lone Ranger	26.5
Stop the Music	25.5
Break the Bank	25.4
Robert Montgomery	25.4

MUTUAL'S $1,200,000 PRICE TAG?

ABC's 'Anchor to Windward'

Amidst all the rumors and counter-rumors as to ABC's future sphere in the radio-video realm, the network, whose capital expenditures in TV to date have totaled $8,200,000, has just entered into a standby-loan agreement with the New York Trust Co., involving a $2,500,000 commitment. Loan would have a maximum maturity of five years, payable at the rate of $500,000 a year.

In order to make the loan, ABC had to get a go-ahead from Prudential, from whom board chairman Ed Noble had previously borrowed $5,000,000. It appears that maturity date on the Prudential loan starts in 1951 and in order to get ABC off the "too many maturities" hook, Prudential agreed to balloon the 1951-to-1955 maturities back to 1960.

In essence, ABC says there are no alarming overtones to the loan; merely an "anchor to windward" cushion in case the network needs it for continued radio-TV programming expansion, etc. "We might not even touch it," says a web spokesman, "but the chances are we will."

NBC's 'Let's Have a Reorganization' Accents Basic Program Loophole

When anything appears to go amiss at NBC, the prevailing jest circuiting the web ever since the Booz, Allen & Hamilton administrative blueprinters stepped in goes like this: "Let's have a reorganization." That the whimsy carries some kidding-on-the-level overtones was demonstrated anew last week when Tom McCray's program dept. was put through an intra-departmental personnel reshuffle.

The administrative scorecard now reads:

Tom McCray as director;

Leslie Harris, assistant national program director, becomes production manager;

James E. Kovach, operations manager of the Production Division, becomes manager of Program Operations;

Mitchell Benson, administrative assistant and coordinator of new package programs, becomes Package Program and Talent Contact manager;

Joel Hammil, manager of literary rights, becomes program submission supervisor;

Samuel Chotzinoff, general music director, and Sterling Fisher, manager of Public Affairs and Education, will continue in their present positions and will serve both in radio and television.

Within the trade, it's the conviction that a dozen reorganizations won't resolve NBC's programming troubles unless the still-elusive creative flair is accented. Within the NBC organization itself, however, some point to the fact that the execs entrusted with masterminding the programming are enmeshed in red-tape agenda; that the department is so set up as to involve a multiplicity of extra-curricular activity, attendance at meetings, etc. Thus, it's argued, with so much energy expended on detail, there's little time left to hit a creative stride.

Until such time, they argue, that the program men are given carte blanche and a free play for cerebral planning, the situation isn't likely to alter itself.

Hedda Heads For Sun. at 7 Slot

Hedda Hopper may be the next occupant of the Sunday night at 7 slot on NBC, according to present thinking of the network program brass. Hollywood film colony gossip columnist has just been pacted by the web for a half-hour program, which will be taped on the Coast. It is scheduled for a June kickoff and unless the present Sunday at 7 tenant, "Christopher London," chalks up a more impressive rating, the Hopper show will be tossed in the opposite-Benny hopper.

Format will differ from the current flock of gossip columnists on the air, with all portions (including news flashes, interviews, etc.) to be done via a dramatization technique.

One Big Show Biz

Jack (CBS) Benny - Fred (NBC) Allen "feud" was projected last week into the Macy's - Gimbel's department store competition in New York. Following Macy's "Pays To be Thrifty" displays with Benny and Bob Hope, Gimbel's broke out with full page ads featuring a large photo of Allen and a shot of Benny on a teevee screen.

Slogan was "No Benny, But No Benny Is Thriftier."

Borden's 90-City Local Coin Shift; Biz Back to Y&R

Borden's is launching a big national spot radio campaign on April 3, which will find it spending heavily on 100 stations in 90 markets, after it drops CBS' "County Fair" on April 1. Reason for the switch in policy is that 65% of Borden's sales are in fluid milk and ice cream, for which it had no distribution in half of the 168 cities it bought on CBS.

That fact, Borden feels, resulted in waste circulation and building up only the brand name. At the same time, dairy outfit found that in the three minutes of network time it had weekly it couldn't plug the 10-12 products it wanted to hypo. The new selective approach,

(Continued on page 38)

Kraft Ad Exec Predicts Dire Days for Radio If Rate Card Isn't Slashed

Chicago, March 21.

A verbal spanking was delivered to radio industry by John McLaughlin, Kraft Foods advertising manager, at meeting of Chi Radio Management Club last Wednesday (15). The Kraft exec added his voice to the demand that AM rates be reduced in those areas where teevee is cutting into the audience. And he told Chi radio toppers that medium has been on downgrade program-wise for past 10 years.

McLaughlin predicted that by the end of the year video would have 50% of the nighttime audience and warned that the time is near when few advertisers can afford both major radio and TV. He said both media would suffer until the problem of AM audience loss is compensated by a rate card reduction.

The other major problem facing the radio industry, McLaughlin said, is the lack of new ideas. "Radio today is the same old bill of fare with a few bits of garnish added," he said. He warned the radio men they must spend money to get new talent and to come up with something fresh in programming ideas.

WOULD BE FIRST TOP AM CASUALTY

Mutual network, it's reported, can be had for $1,200,000, although in some quarters the price tag is said to be $1,600,000. At any rate, it's stated that MBS, which has been billing itself as the "world's largest network" (with upwards of 500 affiliates) is definitely on the block.

The deal whereby Metro would take over Mutual is now dead. Apparently Metro wasn't interested in the web on a "money consideration," rather expressing a willingness to program the network and put its roster of topflight film talent at the web's command in return for converting Mutual into more or less of a promotional arm for the Metro pix dynasty.

The situation of the controlling stockholder stations would tend to lend credence to the report that Mutual wants to unload. Both Yankee and Don Lee regional networks—two of the major Mutual supports—are reported to be for sale, with Yankee previously having gone through initial stages of negotiations.

Elsewhere along the line of stockholder interests, retrenchments are said to be popularly in vogue, notably on the WGN-Chi Tribune front and the WOR, N. Y. (Macy's) shaving of costs on the Washington end of its operations.

Thus far this year, it's understood, Mutual is in hock to the stockholder-owning stations to the tune of $500,000, with biz considerably off in comparison with a year ago.

For the $1,200,000 consideration, Mutual, of course, is disposing of no stations; since it owns none; merely the goodwill of the network, its billings, and an established 500-station affiliation.

Sale of Mutual would be the first major casualty in radio in the wake of TV's upbeat, since it's recognized that from here on in radio stations will go begging at the auction block, although the AM stations with the proper operational pattern, it's conceded, have plenty of healthy and lucrative years ahead.

Lux, Screen Guild Deal Called Off

Hollywood, March 21.

With AFRA entering objections to arrangement, deal for Lux to take over "Screen Guild Players" next season has been officially called off. Under setup, Lever Bros. (Lux) was to make $10,000 weekly contribution to Motion Picture Relief Fund for gratis use of film stars. Camels currently has similar arrangement.

Pic stars reportedly protested Lux takeover because of long rehearsal period for the Lux hour show and attendant loss of revenue. Negotiations had been under way for months between J. Walter Thompson for Lux and L. K. Sidney, of Metro, repping MPRF.

'Answer Man' to Play ECA Circuit Abroad

"Answer Man," show now airing on WOR, N. Y., and in Rochester, Chicago and the Don Lee network, will get Italian, French and German productions from Paris, Luxembourg, Berlin, Monte Carlo, the Armed Services Network and the British Forces Network in about a month. Deal was set through the Economic Cooperation Administration and Bruce Chapman, packager of the show, who flew to Paris on Sunday (19) to complete arrangements and staff offices in Europe.

Format of the foreign-language versions will be the same as that of the U. S. stanza, with an "Answer Man" replying to a variety of queries. Some, however, will be on the U. S. and Marshall Plan aid.

CBS Plans to 'Sit This One Out,' Calls Off Advisory Board Dinner At NAB; Ryan Seen for No. 2 Spot

Industry speculation mounted last week, as broadcasters were sizing up the agenda for the upcoming NAB convention in Chicago, as to the organization's future sphere of influence. New developments were shaping up thusly:

It's a virtual certainty that, for the first time, none of the CBS high command will show up at the Chi meet. That goes for prexy Frank Stanton and all the other 20th floor top management at 485 Madison, along with the o & o station managers. The CBS Affiliate Advisory Board dinner, always held in the past as an adjunct to the convention, will also be bypassed this year. In fact, present thinking at CBS is to just send along a station relations rep "to case the powwow."

Similarly, Columbia has definitely committed itself to bowing out of NAB. Only thing that remains to be decided is setting the time. ABC will follow in CBS' footsteps. (However, NBC and Mutual will stick it out).

It's reported that Bill Ryan, general manager of KFI, Los Angeles, will get the nod as NAB's general manager as second in command to prexy Justin Miller. That'll put a practical broadcaster in the key operational post.

A top CBS spokesman, expressing his company's viewpoint, takes the position that, in the present scheme of broadcasting, the NAB high command, and notably in the person of Judge Miller, has out-

(Continued on page 38)

Royal's Toscy Topper

John Royal, NBC veepee, who has been closely identified with Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra since its inception, will accompany the ensemble on its cross-country junket starting next month in the role of NBC's public-station relations advisor.

For the occasion, Royal is dusting off his silk topper—the first time he's used it as "working equipment" since his Keith-Albee days as a top vaude exec.

Nets Nuts Over Science-Fiction; 'Mars' Panics 'Em

Everybody wants to do a show with a science-fiction format. Mutual just preemed its "2000, Plus" series; NBC is excited over its upcoming "Dimension X" series. CBS practically did handsprings in some atomic fervor over a Ray Bradbury-scripted show called "Mars in Heaven," and is set to ride with its own weekly series.

In fact, NBC originally had the same ideas about the "Mars in Heaven" excursion into the fantasies of science. But apparently there was nothing scientific about the way Bradbury's agent first peddled "Mars" to NBC for audition purposes, then submitted it to CBS. Latter web got the jump, for in accepting the script for audition, it exercised its "option to use" clause as well, necessitating NBC's relinquishing of the script.

Similarly, the NBC "Mars" audition was directed by Mitch Grayson, whom the web wanted for the "Dimension X" series. Subsequently, Grayson has been talking a deal for a producer-director berth at CBS, and has already moved in to meg the new "Up for Parole" Friday night series. As result, Ed King will probably do the NBC show.

Atlanta Dailies' Merger Creates Radio Duopoly; WCON Fate in Balance

Atlanta, March 21.

Impending merger of the Atlanta Journal and Atlanta Constitution will have an important effect on the broadcast picture here. Amalgamation announced last weekend (see story in Literati section) will mean that the Constitution must divest itself of WCON, 5 kw ABC outlet here. With the Journal owning WSB, 50 kw NBC affiliate, FCC anti-duopoly rules would disallow joint ownership of the two outlets.

WSB has AM, FM and TV adjuncts, and WCON has AM and FM with a TV construction permit (video outlet is skedded to start in three months). If WCON, which represents a $1,000,000 investment, is sold, it would probably remain an ABC outlet. However, if no buyer is inked and the station signs off, ABC would probably shift to WGST (a Mutual outlet) or WATL.

Miles Shaves Hill

Miles Labs is dropping the Tuesday and Thursday airings of Edwin C. Hill on ABC at the end of March, but will return after the summer.

Monday, Wednesday and Friday broadcasts of the five-minute series, heard at 7 p.m., will continue.

Blatz to Blitz Gardner's 'Duffy'?

If, as reported in some quarters, there is doubt as to Blatz picking up Ed Gardner's "Duffy's Tavern" for a continued ride next season. One of the factors is said to be the sponsor's looking-askance at Gardner taping the show in Puerto Rico.

NBC, too, is said to be unhappy over the prevailing sentiment that the program has lost much of its onetime flavor since originating via tape outside the country.

"Duffy's" present rating is 8.2, lowest on the Thursday night NBC roster and a far cry from the Hoopers it piled up when it was back-to-back with "Mr. District Attorney" on Wednesday nights.

Gardner is reported squawking over his present Thursday 9-9:30 period and although there has been some talk of initiating overtures with CBS, it's understood that he has a longterm deal committing him to NBC.

TOM McFADDEN TO TRANSFER TO COAST

Tom McFadden, general manager of WNBC-WNBT, NBC's New York flagship radio and video operations, is transferring to the Coast, in a realignment of the network's o & o stations.

McFadden, who stepped in as WNBC-WNBT manager to succeed Jim Gaines when the latter became head of all o & o operations, will head up KNBH, the NBC-owned video outlet in Hollywood. The transfer becomes effective April 5.

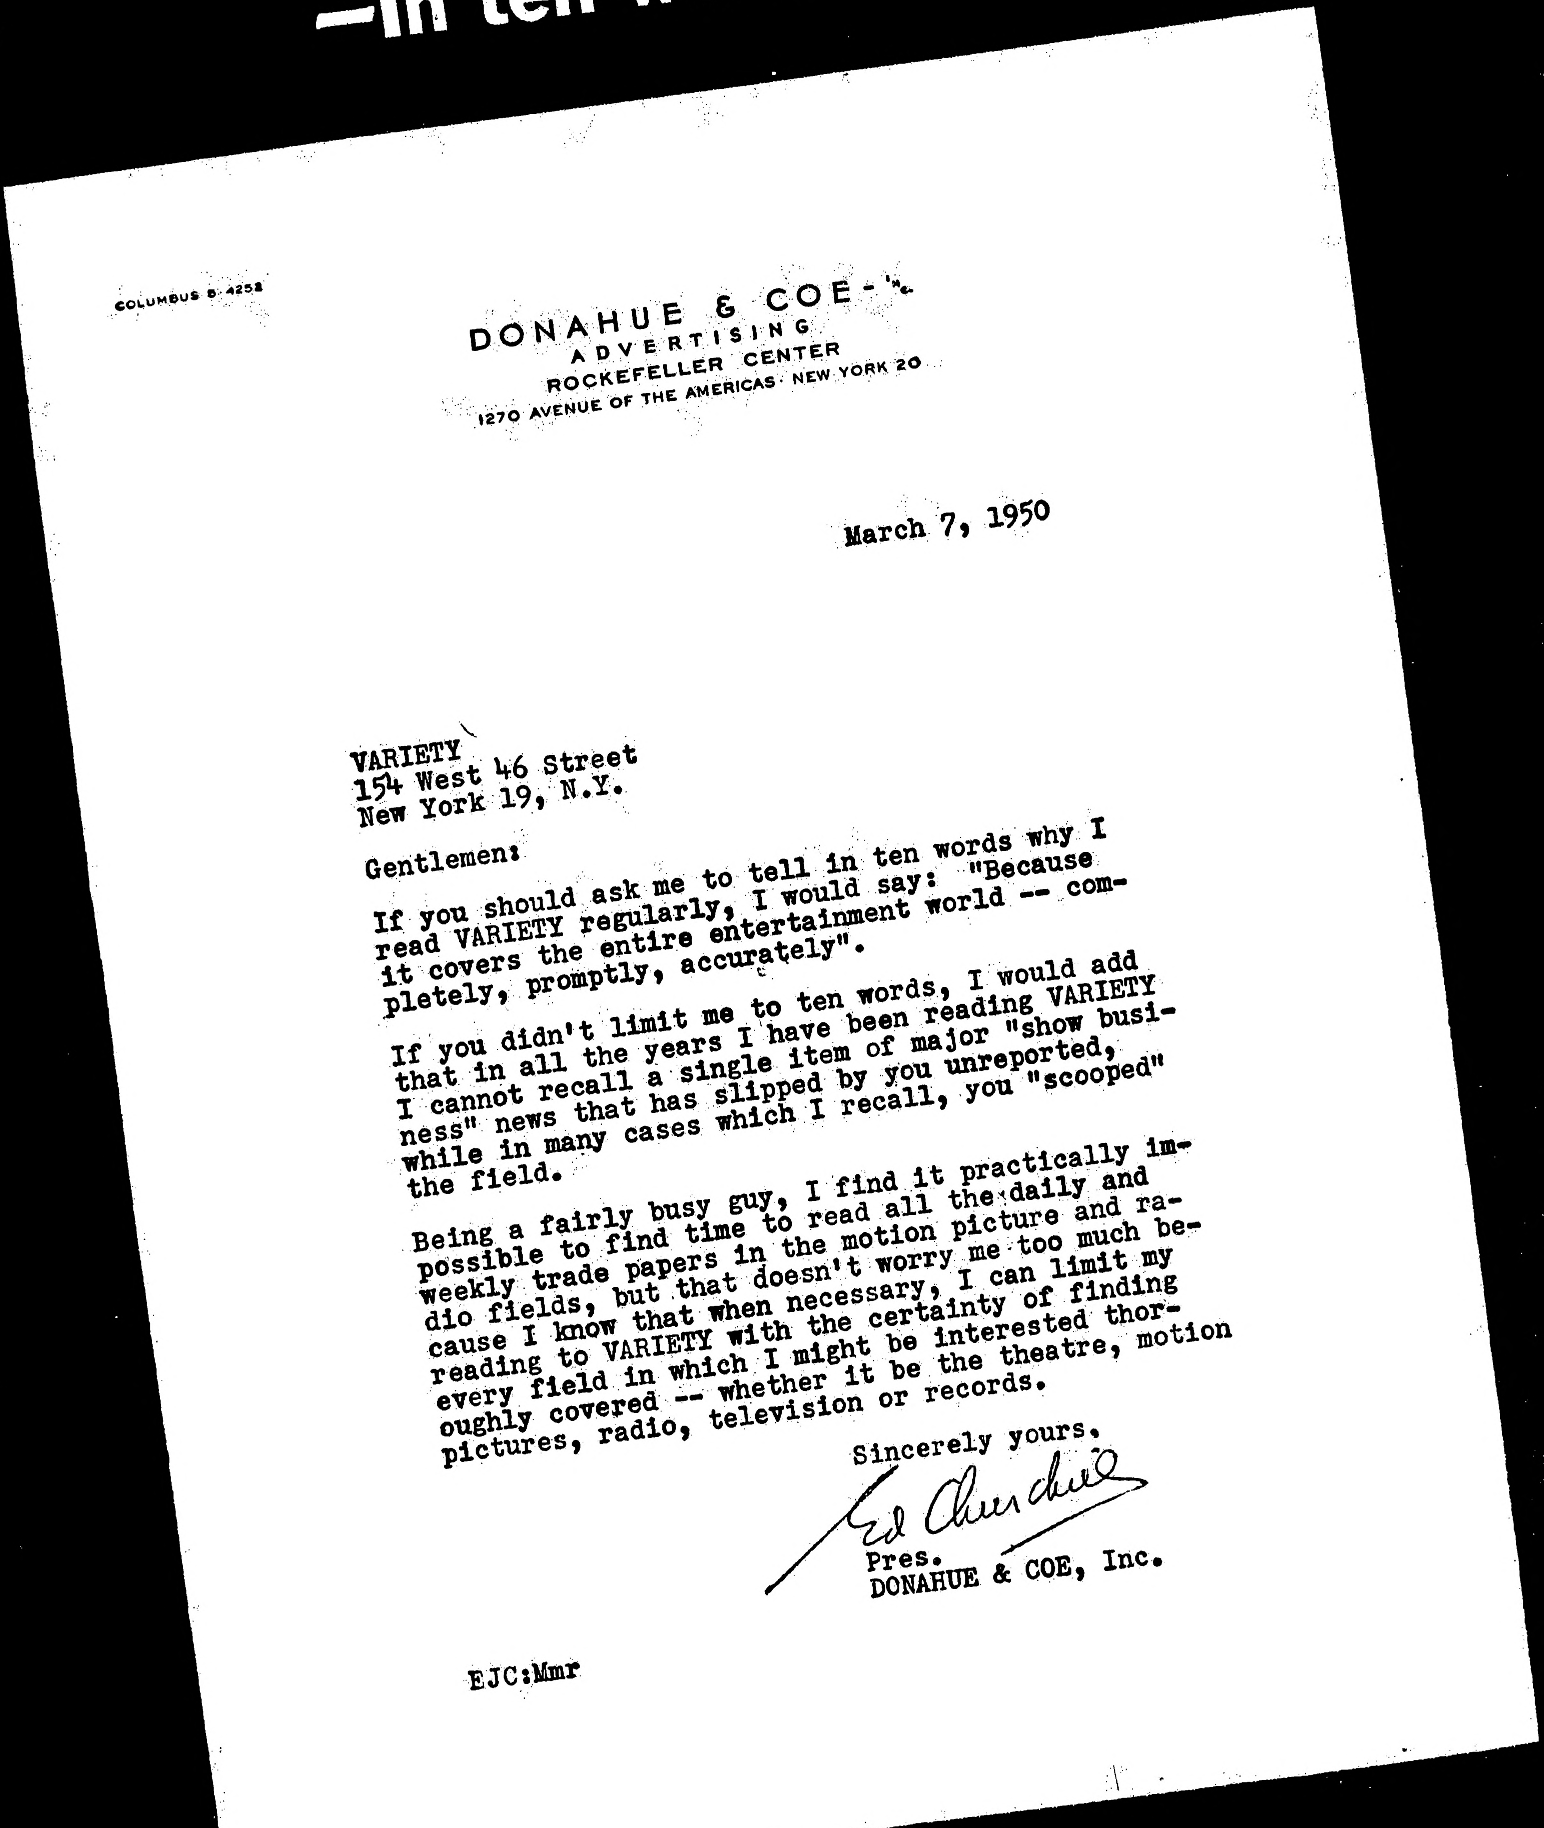
Don Norman, sales manager of WNBC and second in command of the N. Y. flagship, may move into McFadden's spot.

PET DAIRY'S SPLURGE

Pet Dairy products has bought the Fred W. Ziv Co. "Guy Lombardo Show" for sponsorship in 28 markets in six southern states.

Deal, set through Robert E. Clarke agency of Atlanta, starts early next month.

—In ten words or less . . .



COLUMBUS 5-4252

DONAHUE & COE - INC.
ADVERTISING
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
1270 AVENUE OF THE AMERICAS · NEW YORK 20

March 7, 1950

VARIETY
154 West 46 Street
New York 19, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

If you should ask me to tell in ten words why I read VARIETY regularly, I would say: "Because it covers the entire entertainment world -- completely, promptly, accurately".

If you didn't limit me to ten words, I would add that in all the years I have been reading VARIETY I cannot recall a single item of major "show business" news that has slipped by you unreported, while in many cases which I recall, you "scooped" the field.

Being a fairly busy guy, I find it practically impossible to find time to read all the daily and weekly trade papers in the motion picture and radio fields, but that doesn't worry me too much because I know that when necessary, I can limit my reading to VARIETY with the certainty of finding every field in which I might be interested thoroughly covered -- whether it be the theatre, motion pictures, radio, television or records.

Sincerely yours,

Ed Churchill

Pres.
DONAHUE & COE, Inc.

EJC:Mmr

"I Limit My Trade Reading To VARIETY !"

RADIO SCRAMMERS ALARM WEBS

Stanton's Walkie-Talkie Network

Frank Stanton, CBS president, is now a licensed walkie-talkie station operator, one of the few in the country to be assigned an individual call letter, and the first person in America to actually possess a "walkie-talkie network" of his own—even though, as presently set up, it shakes down to a car-to-car network.

Stanton's "Citizens Radio Station License" came through last week from the FCC. His call-letters are 2-W-6012.

The CBS prez is putting the "network" into operation this summer, when he embarks on a 6,000-mile auto tour of the northwest. He's taking along both of his cars and a party of friends. Through the walkie-talkie apparatus he'll be able to keep in constant touch with the other car. Among the "guests" will be talent—but "strictly sustaining," says Stanton.

Rivers Charges Savannah Radio Ganging Up On His Pro-Negro Stand

Washington, March 21.

E. D. Rivers, Jr., son of the former governor of Georgia, told the FCC yesterday (20) that efforts of the Savannah Radio Council to keep him from starting a station in the city is motivated "purely and simply" by fear of competition.

In a vigorous opposition to the complaint by the Council, which asked the commission to set aside his daytime permit in Savannah, Rivers, through his counsel, Philip M. Baker, said his accusers have no basis for questioning his qualifications. He charged that his programming policy of non-discrimination, which he practices in his WEAS in Decatur (just outside Atlanta) is what the Savannah stations, which banded together to form the council, don't want to see introduced.

"The Savannah stations," he said, "know that WEAS has a tremendous popularity with the Negro people of Georgia and surrounding areas. This popularity has consistently grown because WEAS has given the Negro people a real chance to express themselves through the medium of radio. The Savannah radio council wants no part of such a policy in Savannah. In fact, they want no new competition in Savannah."

In his operation of WEAS, Rivers said, he "has sincerely tried to be of service to all of the listeners without regard to race, creed or color." Expressions of gratitude "from thousands of listeners each month," he said, give proof that "this policy has succeeded." (The council charged that Rivers has been devoting a large portion of his WEAS schedule to commercial

(Continued on page 38)

Pitt Theatre Circuits Slug It Out on Radio For Small Fry Trade

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Harris theatre circuit has taken over sponsorship of Virginia O'Donnell's WPGH kiddie show, "Stars of Tomorrow," in a bid to get some of the Saturday morning small fry trade away from Warner Bros. Latter has had a children's program broadcast for years over WWSW direct from stage of Enright in East Liberty, an attraction that weekly packs that house to the rafters.

Harrris interests will do the same thing with "Stars of Tomorrow," airing it every Saturday a.m. at 11:30 from stage of Liberty theatre, only a few blocks away from Enright.

The O'Donnell airer started on WPGH just a few months ago, and has been going out every Sunday afternoon as a sustainer.

Hamblen Exits KFWB

Hollywood, March 21.

Stuart Hamblen has received his notice from KFWB after 17 years of announcing over the outlet. Hamblen is handling, currently, the only live variety program being beamed by the station.

Hamblen feels the reason for his being pink slipped was because of general cutback at KFWB. Announcer also related that the six sponsors picking up the tab on his six-day weekly show have indicated that they will go where he does.

Love That 'Consul'

Musicians connected with the NBC Symphony Orchestra report something of an unprecedented nature occurring at last Thursday's rehearsal of the NBC symph, when maestro Arturo Toscanini, while batoning the boys through their paces, interrupted them while he broke out in song.

However, Toscy wasn't singing from rehearsal score, but snatches from Gian-Carlo Menotti's new musical drama, "The Consul."

Toscy the previous night had attended the preem of the "Consul" on Broadway. He later described the score to friends as "sensational."

$6,625,000 For FCC; State Dept. Gets 'Voice' Plea

Washington, March 21.

The State Dept. was told today (Tues.) not to trim its "Voice of America" broadcasts as the House Appropriations Committee released its omnibus spending bill.

The Committee recommended $34,000,000 for State's International information division, which includes the "Voice" program.

It gave the FCC $6,625,000 for operations in the new federal fiscal year beginning July 1, next.

In addition, the Committee reemphasized the interest of Congress in anti-monopoly action by allocating $3,850,000 for the Justice Dept.'s anti-trust division which has been moving vigorously against several angles of show business in recent years.

The $34,000,000 for State Dept.'s overseas information work is $2,645,000 less than the Department requested. It is, however, about the same as what was allocated for operating expenses of the division during the current year. While the current year's appropriation was about $11,000,000 more, the difference was for construction of new shortwave transmitters, not for operations.

St. Loo's 'Beat Your Wife' Quizzer Grabs Sponsor

St. Louis, March 21.

Through KMOX, CBS outlet, the Westinghouse Electric Co., will bankroll "Beat your Wife," probably the most ambitious quizzer ever produced in this burg and should the program, skedded for a 13-week trial click it may become nationwide. The program will originate from the stage of Loew's State theatre, downtown, and $5,000 in prizes will be dished out weekly. The top prizes will range from an all-expense paid seven-day plane trip and sojourn in Havana, and a $500 diamond ring to lesser prizes.

It will be husband and wife teamed in answering questions

SPONSORS GIVING UP TIME, TOO

With the '49-'50 broadcasting season in the homestretch, there's a growing uneasiness around the networks and the agencies over the realization that, by and large, radio sponsors cancelling out on programs are exiting for good and are not interested in finding replacement shows.

In previous years, it's pointed out, there was a 50-50 chance that a sponsor, in dropping a show, served notice that he was holding on to his time franchise and was interested in picking up the tab for another program. But not so today. The client scramming out of radio either moves into TV or earmarks the coin for other promotional-advertising activity. With renewal time coming up, the webs and agencies have their fingers crossed.

Industry sentiment is that it represents short-sightedness on the part of the client in view of radio's continued sales potency. They point, for example, to the ability of "The Falcon" on Mutual to snare a 9.4 in the Sunday at 7 slot on Mutual opposite CBS's Jack Benny. With Anahist cancelling out on the show, Bernard Schubert, owner of the package, got little or no agency-sponsor response in peddling it. This, in spite of the fact that, as a $2.500-a-week package, it's one of the choice per-point-payoff buys on the market. As a result, Schubert has sold the program to NBC for a sustaining ride.

The Kraft Foods and Sealtest notice of cancellations on their NBC morning cross-the-board programming; Roi-Tan's dropping of the Joan Davis CBS show; U. S. Steel's alerting of the Theatre Guild to its anticipated checkout on its $2,500,000-a-year sponsorship of its Sunday night dramatic showcase—all these are cited as alarming factors in the "we're-getting-out-of-network-radio" credo.

The situation is highlighted on still another front. It appears that for every radio package peddled to agencies, 10 TV shows are submitted. The packagers contend that the agencies "aren't interested" in radio properties, they in turn reflecting the attitude of their clients.

Thus the packaging of radio shows is reported to be at its lowest ebb today.

WFIL, Philly, Goes On A Nighttime Package Binge to Woo Clients

Philadelphia, March 21.

A move to strengthen WFIL nighttime radio schedule and at the same time attract new business has been successfully worked out in the last month with a sweeping revision of the evening program lineup and the skedding of a number of low-cost transcribed shows.

Immediate effect, according to Roger W. Clipp, general manager, has been increased revenue for station and large savings for the sponsors.

The transcribed musical and mystery programs were purchased by WFIL from Charles Michelson, Inc., and Harry S. Goodman Productions, both packaging firms. The programs include "Musical Comedy Theatre," "The Avenger," "The Sealed Book," "Mystery House," all of which are geared to provide entertainment for listeners at bargain rates for advertisers, Clipp said.

In addition to these low-budget productions, WFIL has skedded four 30-minute shows produced and transcribed by M-G-M Radio Attractions and as well as several live and recorded musical shows, originating in its own studios. To make room for newcomers, station discontinued approximately six hours of local and network

(Continued on page 38)

Charges of 'Slants,' 'Plants' Fly As Richards Tries to Parry Roberts

Hollywood, March 21.

Second week of the FCC's hearing into renewal of G. A. Richards license to operate KMPC got under way with a duel developing between Clete Roberts, chief FCC witness, and Hugh Fulton, counsel for Richards. Fulton bore down hard in an effort to sweep aside Roberts' charges of discrimination and news coloring against Richards and KMPC.

Rarely ruffled, the newsman meticulously answered questions ranging from his experience as radio newsman, his fitness as a news judge, his employment background, whether he lifted certain confidential material from station files and his personal opinions on many subjects connected with broadcasting. Roberts outlined his experience, including coverage of both Democratic and Republican 1948 conventions, exclusive interviews with Austrian president, Mussolini's widow, coverage of atom bomb explosions, etc.

Fulton asked if Richards, with his experience, "had just as much right" to select news as Roberts did. The newsman answered "Yes, if when he changed news to put in opinion he labeled it as opinion." Fulton elicited from Roberts that alleged coloring of news was so "cleverly done it would have taken a full-time listening group to detect the way news was slanted by coupling items on Jews, Communists and Eleanor Roosevelt."

Roberts denied he thought only facts should be broadcast, adding his belief that "opinion should be labeled." Fulton sought to determine if Roberts thought it was true that he was "radio's top reporter," as billed by KFWB, where he now works. Newsman referred question to station's promotion department, but when asked point blank if he thought the statement false, replied "No, it probably has the same value as KMPC calling itself the goodwill station of Southern California."

Fulton spent the good part of the day trying to have Roberts identify numerous KMPC broadcasts. Fred-

(Continued on page 38)

Would Probe FCC

Detroit, March 21.

The Michigan Dept. of the American Legion called for an investigation of the FCC to determine whether it has set itself up as a censorship bureau. Request was in the form of a resolution adopted by the Legion's State Executive Committee which met Sunday (19) at the Book-Cadillac hotel.

"We question whether the FCC has the right to look into a radio station owner's personal opinions to determine his right to operate," the resolution stated.

State Legion recently awarded G. A. Richards and his WJR its annual Americanism Award for public service.

Tabbed a Commie, UE Gabber Axed By Penna. Station

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Charles M. Kern, Jr., freelance radio man and former program director of WJAS who was named as a Communist in Washington hearings before the House Un-American Activities Committee, lost his daily program on WMCK in McKeesport last week when station refused to allow him to continue. Kern, once a candidate for mayor of Pittsburgh on the Progressive ticket, had been speaking nightly Monday through Friday at 6:30 on a program called "The Voice of UE" under the sponsorship of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, Local 601.

Union immediately demanded an investigation by the FCC, charging that the action was a "conspiracy between the Westinghouse Corp. and WMCK." Gene Kline, manager of the station, refused to comment other than to say Kern's removal was "a matter of policy."

Frank Panzino, business manager for the local, called the action "a further illustration of the efforts of big electric corporations and their IEU-CIO company union agents to deny UE members freedom of speech in the approaching Taft-Hartley election."

Matt Cvetic, FBI undercover man who worked in the Commie ranks here for a number of years, identified Kern as a Communist in sessions of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Cvetic said Kern was chairman of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America. UE immediately hired William Moody to carry on its WMCK program.

Enright Mulls Bid To Revamp Israeli Radio

Dan Enright, veepee of (Jack) Barry-Enright Productions, has been asked by the U. S. State Department to take a post as consultant to the Israeli Government for two or three months to reorganize the Israeli radio. Enright is mulling whether he can take a leave from his firm, which packages "Juvenile Jury," "Life Begins at 80," "Joe DiMaggio Show" and "Junior Celebrities."

Enright, former program operations manager of WOR, N. Y., lived in the Near East for 10 years before the war.

Cooper's 'Mouthpiece'

Hollywood, March 21.

Frank Cooper has picked up the radio and television rights to Gene Fowler's book, "The Great Mouthpiece," story of the late criminal lawyer William Fallon, which was picturized with William Powell starring.

CBS Sets Mental Health Documentary as Sequel To 'Mind in Shadow'

CBS Documentary Unit is currently prepping a sequel to its "Mind in the Shadow" program which was aired in February, 1949. New program, to be scripted by Arnold Perl and produced by Werner Michel, chief of the Documentary Unit, will be broadcast Wednesday night, May 3, in the 10:30 to 11 segment to tie in with the National Mental Health Foundation's observance of Mental Health Week.

Program will explore the progress made in the past year on the overall mental health question, with particular stress on the notable achievements made in Minnesota. (The initial "Mind in the Shadow" documentary, also scripted by Perl, was the springboard for far-reaching Minnesota legislation).

CRAWFORD'S 500G 10-STATION SPREAD

First sign of an impending battle of the suit-makers in the New York area is the uncorking of a $500,000 campaign by Crawford Clothes, to start tomorrow (23). Clothing chain will use 10 stations in the metropolitan district, with the bulk of the budget being allocated for the upcoming 13-week period. Agency is Al Paul Lefton.

Crawford's move is likely to cue a fullscale radio war in the highly competitive clothing field, with Baarney's, Robert Hall, Bond's, Prentis, and other retailers hypoing their radio expenditures.

Looks Like Real Dog Days on TV This Summer, Despite Rate Lures

Any television viewer planning to spend time in front of his set this summer will have slim pickings, at least from among the top programs now on the air. While sponsors of several of the top-rated shows plan to ride out the summer dog-days, which will improve the TV fare considerably over the virtual sloughoff bankrollers gave video last summer, the majority of them plan to pack up for the usual eight-week hiatus. Reason, of course, is their assumption that the TV audience dwindles drastically during the hot weather.

Broadcasters have been scratching their craniums trying to figure a way to keep the bankrollers on the air. To date, however, they have not been able to explain away the fact that vacationers don't take their TV sets with them and that portable sets for the beach or for cars are practically non-existent. Discount of 35% being offered by NBC on its network rate card for any sponsor sticking it through the summer hasn't achieved any results yet. Bankrollers point out that their time costs are practically negligible, compared with program and production costs, and thus the discount doesn't mean too much to them.

Other networks are mulling similar discount deals but now tend to discount their effectiveness. In addition, both ABC and CBS have annual discount systems in their regular rate cards which can mean a greater savings to an advertiser than the 35% being offered by NBC. Thus, ABC offers a 12½% discount and CBS one of 10% to any advertiser remaining on the air 52 weeks consecutively. And, as an ABC spokesman pointed out, 12½% of 52 weeks' time charges totals more than 35% of the eight weeks that NBC offers.

To date, DuMont looks as though it will have the greatest number of sponsors remaining on the air throughout the summer. Network chief Chris Witting declared this week he knew of no sponsor yet who planned an eight-week bowout. CBS expects to lose such shows for the summer as Fred Waring, "Goldbergs," "Suspense" and others but will retain "Godfrey and Friends" (Chesterfield), "What's My Line" (Stop-Ett) and the new Toni show, among others. Web, in addition, plans to sustain "Toast of the Town" through the summer, as it did last year, even though Lincoln-Mercury dealers will take the standard vacation.

Definitely set to remain on ABC-TV are high-rated "Stop the Music" (Admiral and Old Golds), "Lone Ranger" (General Mills and American Bakeries) and "Blind Date" (Esquire Polish). Several other possibilities are open but their sponsors have not yet indicated their intentions.

NBC expects several shows, such as "Kraft TV Theatre," to remain on through the summer. So far, though, the web has received no time orders for the vacation period.

Frigidaire's 100G Tele Show So Big It Requires L.A.-N.Y. Split Rehearsals

Unique for TV, a single show will be rehearsed on a nationwide basis. Practice sessions for the Bob Hope Easter Sunday show for Frigidaire, April 9 on NBC, will be split into two sections. Producer Max Liebman will put the eastern elements through their paces, while Eddie Sobol has been retained to handle the Coast segments. They'll be collated by Liebman shortly after Hope and others in the Coast contingent arrive in New York for the telecast.

It's planned to have Sobol handle the bits between Hope, Dinah Shore and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., plus others that may be signed from the Coast. Bea Lillie will work with Liebman from New York.

Talent and production costs on this NBC show will run around $100,000, the most expensive program to date. Hope's cut will be $40,000. Time allotted the program is 90 minutes from 5:30 p. m. It's the first in a series of five shows of similar calibre by Frigidaire. Next program is scheduled for Mothers Day. Foote, Cone & Belding is the agency.

Cherchez Le Feyte!

William Esty agency was forced to scout the country this week to find the correct male lead for NBC-TV's "Colgate Theatre" Sunday night (26). Agency bought a three-minute vidfilm lensed by Jesse and Milton Stern, then called in scripter William Kendall Clarke to pen a story which would be acted live, with the film to be tagged on the end as a climax.

Agency then discovered, however, that Robert Feyte who had played the lead in the film, had left N. Y. Since the script is to lead directly into the film portion of the show, the same characters would have to be employed. Esty staffers, therefore, sent a search call to all parts of the country. Feyte was finally located Monday (20) in Florida, from where he flew back yesterday to start rehearsals for the show.

'Girls,' 'Escape' TV Casualties

CBS television, in another major program reshuffle, is dropping two sustaining half-hour programs, seeking a new time slot for another one and looking again for a show to slot opposite the high-rated "Texaco Star Theatre" on the rival NBC web.

Being axed in the rearrangement are "The Girls," which bows out of its Sunday night at 7 slot after this week (26), and "Escape," which leaves the Thursday night at 9 slot after March 30. "Abe Burrows' Almanac" will abandon the Wednesday night at 9 period after the March 29 stanza, but CBS hopes to slot it at a new time, as yet undecided. Web will replace "Girls" with "Romance," a series of half-hour dramatic shows which had a short sustaining run last year. "Escape" will give way to the Esso-sponsored "Alan Young Show," which tees off April 6. Burrows' stanza must be moved to make way for the new Toni program and "What's My Line?" latter to be bankrolled by Stop-Ett deodorant, which will alternate in the Wednesday night period.

"Command Post," the Army training program now occupying the Tuesday night at 8 slot opposite NBC's Texaco show, bows off April 4 after the completion of its scheduled eight-week run. CBS has not yet decided what show will replace it, but, with the Milton Berle stanza still leading the Hooper parade with ratings of 60 or better, it's expected that CBS will revive its series of feature film oldies, which formerly held down that spot. Pictures, running to about a $1,500 top, represent probably the least expensive programming for prime evening time.

Web has taken kinescopes of "Girls," "Escape" and the Burrows show and will continue to pitch them to potential sponsors and agencies in that version.

Laraine Day (Mrs. Lippy) Set for Pre-Giant Show

N. Y. Daily News' WPIX is offering Laraine Day to sponsors for a 15-minute sports interview show preceding all home games of the N. Y. Giants, which the station is carrying this year. Leo Durocher, Giants' manager and husband of Miss Day, is expected to appear on the program whenever possible.

Show is to originate from a special booth at the Polo Grounds, N. Y., with Miss Day interviewing ballplayers, guests celebs, etc.

McCahon Joins WPIX

Robert McCahon, legit actor, producer and director, joins WPIX, N. Y. Daily News TV outlet, as an associate director next month. McCahon, currently appearing on Broadway in "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," will bow out of the production April 1.

Earlier this season, McCahon assisted George Abbott in the production of "Touch and Go," which ended its N. Y. run Saturday (18).

WHAS-TV Preem Delay

Louisville, March 21.

Teeoff of WHAS-TV, which was scheduled for Monday (20) has been postponed a week, due to technical difficulties, said to be troubles in the camera chain. When station gets on the air, the CBS-TV shows will switch from WAVE-TV, which has been carrying the CBS-TV shows for about a year.

There were 25,901 television sets in the Louisville area as of Mar. 1.

Wynn Getting Off Sat. Night Hook

CBS-TV's "Ed Wynn Show" this week deferred to the tremendous competitive attack launched against it by NBC-TV's highly-touted "Saturday Night Revue." CBS, in a desperate bid to hang onto Camel cigarets as sponsor of the Wynn stanza, has decided to move the show from its present Saturday night at 9 slot to Tuesdays at 9 starting April 4—but only in those cities where it bucks the NBC program. In cities where the NBC show is not carried, Wynn will continue in his present Saturday night time.

Wynn stanza thus far has been unable to snare a rating commensurate with the critical acclaim accorded it. Launching of the NBC "Revue" shoved its Hooper even lower, with the program drawing a 7.9 network Hooper the first NBC week, as against the 39.6 snared by the half-hour segment of the two-and-a-half hour NBC spread directly opposite. William Esty agency, which handles the Camel account, reportedly passed the word along to CBS to find a better time segment or else Camels would bow out.

Show will now be carried on Tuesday nights in 14 markets. Several single-station areas, although prime NBC affiliates, will continue to bypass the NBC show for Wynn because of contractual commitments and, in those cities, the show will continue on Saturdays. It is expected, however, that they too will pick up the "Revue" at the end of their current Wynn cycle, at which time the latter show will be moved to Tuesdays also. Fact that the show is kinescoped on the Coast makes it possible to be aired at various times in different areas.

Wynn program will still be facing some stiff competition in those areas where it plays Tuesday nights. It will be bucking NBC's "Fireside Theatre," which drew a network Hooper of 36 in the last report, and the first half of DuMont's "Cavalcade of Bands," which showed a 22.1 in the last Hoopers. (ABC-TV does not program Tuesday nights.). Wynn's move means CBS must find another slot for "Stage Door," sustainer now occupying the Tuesday 9 to 9:30 slot. No decision on that time switch has been made.

Crosley Stations Plan 50% Slash in Cleffers In AFM Negotiations

Cincinnati, March 21.

Crosley AM and TV stations, the only ones in Cincinnati employing union musicians, are expected to make a 50% reduction of their music staff, the payroll for which has exceeded $400,000 under a one-year contract expiring in April.

A new agreement is being negotiated by Crosley executives and bargainers for Local 1, American Federation of Musicians, headed by Oscar Hild, president and a veepee of the national union.

James D. Shouse, board chairman of the Crosley Broadcasting Corp., said he would not "venture comment on statements of statistics relating to the use of musicians on our stations," and added, "the company and the musicians' union are presently negotiating a new contract as they have done successfully for many years."

Presently the Crosley music staff numbers 60 musicians, arrangers and directors.

Four other major AM stations and two other TV stations here have been without AFM card members for periods ranging from one to several years. Their music is mostly canned, and five of them use hillbillies and amateurs for live music.

Visit of TV Emissaries Next Week May Be Prelude to Global Pattern

Washington, March 21.

A delegation of European radio technicians, invited by the State Dept., begins a two-week tour in New York next Monday of U. S. television operations. What they see here may determine how international TV broadcasting standards are set and have a bearing on feasibility of trans-Atlantic telecasts. Sale of American equipment abroad is also involved.

With the Radio Manufacturers Assn. as industry host, the delegates will be given a state Dept. reception at the Statler Hotel, N. Y., on Monday. On Tuesday it will visit Du Mont studios, see a theatre video demonstration at the Paramount theatre, inspect a variety of TV receivers at the Hotel Commodore, and tour NBC operations. A demonstration at the Waldorf-Astoria by Zenith Radio Corp. of Phonevision is included in Wednesday's schedule.

Group will later inspect A. T. & T. relay operations in Nutley, N. J.; RCA camera and receiver plants in Camden, N. J.; Philco broadcasting and manufacturing activities in Philadelphia and CBS studios in New York.

Tour will wind up with conferences in Washington where the Europeans will also observe demonstrations of the RCA, CBS, and Color Television, Inc., color video systems.

The technicians represent Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Hungary, Italy, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Yugoslavia. Invitations to 45 other countries to send guest representatives were also extended by the Government. Following their U. S. visit, the delegates will observe TV operations in Paris, Eindhoven and London.

BALTO TVERS SEE BLACK INK BY JUNE 1

Baltimore, March 21.

February sales of TV sets in the Baltimore area have brought the total to 146,191. This was announced this week by the Baltimore Television Circulation Committee. Sales for the month amounted to 12,943 sets.

All TV managements, of which there are three in this town, state they will be out of the red by June 1, due to the influx of new accounts, and a reduction of overhead by a revision of network charges. Back to back spotting on local accounts is helping revenue. Rates on local accounts seem due for a heist June 1.

43 Live Shows On WBZ-TV's Roster

Boston, March 21.

Home grown video shows are on the upsurge at Hub's WBZ-TV, where the station now programs 43 live studio productions weekly. With three months to go before celebrating its second anni., station has shown a lively interest in local talent and personalities to the point that 15 hours of its weekly schedule is local live talent.

Programs show diversified types with educational, news, musical and kiddie shows featured along with dramatic and sport telecasts. Encouraging feature is that majority of local shows are sponsored with advertisers becoming more alert to the advantages of video pitches in this area, which is fifth ranking in the country.

Two recent additions to WBZ-TV's sponsored shows are a five day a week hour-long pickup from R. H. White, Hub department store at the early afternoon hour of 2, specifically beamed to the housewife, and a dramatic TV show preemed Sunday (19) with cast of players from local popular Brattle Theatre company.

MAYOR O'DWYER PLANS SERIES OF TV CHATS

New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer is planning a series of semi-monthly TV chats discussing "current situations and problems of interest to the people" with members of his staff. Stanza, which will probably be in the format of a roundtable, would go beyond strictly governmental problems. The city's six video stations were invited to send representatives to a meeting today (Wed.) to advise the mayor on the project.

Last November the mayor announced he was planning a series of radio chats, because of his unhappiness of press treatment of the election campaign. However, the series has not materialized.

CBS Cooks Kine On 'What's Cooke-ing?'

CBS this week is auditioning a new half-hour TV talk show featuring Dwight Cooke as moderator and called "What's Cooke-ing?" Audition kine will also feature Russel Crouse and Jan Struther, and, if it comes up to web expectations, efforts will be initiated to pact the trio on a permanent basis.

Idea behind the flexibie format is to kick around such questions as: "Are films going to the dogs?" "Should women wear hats in theatres?" "Is it proper to put your feet on the coffe table?" etc.

Levinson's Story Sales

Leonard L. Levinson, president of Impossible Pictures, has switched from comedy to suspense. The producer of cartoon pix has sold three radic scripts to Anacin's "Hollywood Star Theatre."

"Death Comes By Night," first of the AM scripts, has been bought by Vic McLeod for "Chevrolet Tele-Theatre" on NBC-TV.

WPIX Grabs Off 118 Garden, N.Y., Sports Events in Local Coup

Eventual position of a strictly local television station in a major network city was underscored this week by the N. Y. Daily News' WPIX, which latched onto 118 fall and winter sports events at Madison Sq. Garden, N. Y., for next season. Station has acquired an exclusive on the package for an unspecified time, and is already pitching it to potential sponsors and agencies.

Since the webs are tied up with their network contractual commitments, they have been finding it increasingly difficult to broadcast any event of a more or less local character, into which category most of the Garden sports fall. Both CBS and NBC, it is pointed out, lost their pickup rights to the home games of the Brooklyn Dodgers and N. Y. Giants, respectively, for just that reason, with WOR-TV and WPIX taking them over. Garden exec veepee Ned Irish has been trying to sell his fall and winter slate as a package for some time, and, with the webs unable to find time, WPIX stepped in and took over.

Station's contract with the Garden calls for all events except the Friday night boxing matches, which will continue to be carried by NBC, and possibly the Saturday night events. During the week, though, it will have access to college basketball, pro tennis, the rodeo, dog show, horse show, etc. In addition, WPIX will repeat with the N. Y. Ranger and Rover hockey games, the Silver Skates tourney and Golden Gloves boxing, all of which it carried this year. Station probably will relinquish its exclusive on the package, however, if it fails to line up a bankroller for the entire schedule.

Indpls. Ballcasts

Indianapolis, March 21.

WFBM-TV will televise 55 home games of the Indianapolis Indians beginning April 24. This will include all home games except those on Sundays, Harry Bitner, president of city's only video outlet, said.

WFBM-TV started televising home games on experimental basis in midseason last year. Dick Pittenger, chief sports announcer, will handle play-by-play.

CBS OUT ON A GODFREY LIMB

TV-AM's Bond Drive Hoopla

Washington, March 21.

A gala all-network radio and television show to kick off the annual U. S. Savings Bond drive on May 15 is the goal of the Treasury Savings Bond Division. This year's campaign is labeled the "Independence Drive."

The radio end is mostly shaped up and the television end is making steady progress.

David Levy, who served during part of the war as war bond radio director, on loan from the navy, has been appointed special television consultant for the independence drive. Levy, now with Young & Rubicam, is due in next week for conferences. His job is to organize and produce a one-hour all-star video show. It will be on the ether from 10 to 11 p.m. (EST), at the same time as the radio show, but will not be a simulcast. Already two networks have agreed to clear the time to carry the TV show and efforts are being made to bring the others into line for the one shot.

It will mark the first use of television in a treasury bond drive kickoff and the first use of video on such a scale by the Treasury, with all networks expecting to come into line.

The radio show, to which the four national networks have already pledged full cooperation, will follow the 1949 format of an all-star performance out of Hollywood. But it is expected to be even bigger. Last year 1,981 stations carried the program. This year more than 2,000 are already signed.

Cornwell Jackson, J. Walter Thompson veepee in charge of the Hollywood office, is whipping up the sound radio show with the cooperation of the Hollywood coordinating committee.

President Truman and Treasury Secretary John Snyder will make brief addresses.

TV Film Producers Say Webs Retarding Better Pix Facilities

Television networks are retarding the development of film facilities for TV in order to maintain program control. That is the charge being leveled at the webs by video film producers who claim that, while broadcasters have worked long and diligently to improve the reception quality of live shows, little or nothing has been done to turn out better film reception on TV. New inventions, such as RCA's flying spot scanner, they claim, are sitting still in the laboratories while stations are forced to use oldhat equipment for film projection.

Broadcasters, for the most part, will concede that the quality of TV film reproduction in no way compares with the quality of live program reception. They disclaim, though, any responsibility for the fact that film too often looks washed out and glaring when projected over their TV systems. They maintain that TV requires so much programming that there is room in the medium for all packagers, whether they turn out live or film shows and that it's just a matter of time until they get the projection quality of films improved.

Industryites who have seen closed circuit demonstrations of the flying spot scanner at the RCA labs in Princeton or Camden.

(Continued on page 34)

RTDG Threatens DuMont Strike

Radio-Television Directors Guild has called a membership meeting Monday (27) to consider a strike vote against DuMont.

Union has been trying to negotiate a contract with DuMont, covering about 20 staffers in the web's New York headquarters, since Oct. 6, an RTDG spokesman declared, "but the company has stalled us all this time." Union said that DuMont salaries for associate directors range from $32 to $34, while directors get from $35 to $75. Minimum starting salaries at the other webs are $85 for associates and $125 for directors and hit $100 and $145, respectively, after a year.

Ruby Keeler's TV Shot

Hollywood, March 21.

Ruby Keeler goes to N. Y. within the next two weeks for an appearance on the Ken Murray television show. This will be her first performance in seven years.

Costumes are being made here exactly duplicating those she wore when she was a film dancing star.

CONNIE MACK GETS CBS PHILLY 'TOAST'

Ed Sullivan and his CBS Sunday night "Toast of the Town" TV show will originate from Philadelphia on April 16, show to be staged either in Town Hall or the Forrest theatre, legit house.

Program will climax a three-day Philly celebration commemorating Connie Mack's Golden Jubilee as Athletics' mentor. Program will be built around the event, and will utilize Philly talent.

Fairbanks' Gotham Multi-Cam Studio Booms East Vidpix

Anticipated trek of television producers from N. Y. to L. A. as a result of Jerry Fairbanks' new multi-camera film process may die a-borning. Fairbanks revealed this week the establishment of complete film facilities in N. Y. at a new studio on which he has taken an extended lease. Several advertisers have already signed for production of spot commercials at the studio and, with the installation of a multi-cam system there by late spring, Fairbanks hopes to be able to take care of the longer dramatic shows.

Multi-cam system, involving the use of three cameras shooting a scene simultaneously, supposedly combines the best features of live TV production and films. Young & Rubicam recently decided to shoot the final 13 weeks of its current "Silver Theatre" series (CBS-TV) via multi-cam on the Coast, and it was believed that other sponsors and agencies would follow the Y&R-International Silver lead. Now that Fairbanks will have the system for use in N. Y., the adver-

(Continued on page 36)

Cincy's 100,000 Sets

Cincinnati, March 21.

Sets served by Cincy's three TV stations reached the 100,000 mark this week, reported Don Miller, Crosley Broadcasting Corp. research director.

His figures, based on sales by retail dealers, rank this area as 12th largest in the nation for set ownership, with nearly 25% coverage among 405,500 families and about 2,000 installations in taverns, clubs and public places.

OFF-COLOR TV STIRS AFFILIATES

By GEORGE ROSEN

CBS' 20th floor echelon broke out into a sweat last week in the wake of repercussions stemming from Arthur Godfrey's ad libbed crack on his Wednesday night Chesterfield video show—a crack that provoked guestar Jack Carson to pull his hat below his eyes and comment: "Remember, I wasn't here when you said it!"

CBS president Frank Stanton spent the better part of Thursday trying, as he later admitted, "to keep the network together." The network, however, failed to come out of it intact, with two stations, including one of the major, basic affiliates in the midwest, refusing henceforth to carry the hour-long program, "Arthur Godfrey and his Friends."

Stanton and the other network brass are particularly sensitive over the incident since it followed within 24 hours after FCC Chairman Wayne Coy's warning to the industry—in an address Tuesday night at the State Radio Conference at the University of Oklahoma—that neither he nor his FCC colleagues will tolerate off-color TV. CBS is even willing to admit that Coy undoubtedly had none other than Godfrey in mind when he stated in his talk; "When a comedian gets so big that his network can no longer handle him, then we have a case of the tail wagging the dog."

TV Censorship Involved

CBS makes no bones over the fact that it is worried. At stake, it realizes, is more than Godfrey and Chesterfield, although the web doesn't minimize the fact that, as one of the major phenomena in radio-TV annals, Godfrey singlehandedly is responsible for upwards of $7,000,000 in network billings.

But CBS also recognizes that the future cementing of an entire network and industry censorship is involved; that Coy's closing comment "there must be a day of reckoning" could be interpreted as a warning that, unless TV stops "peddling livery stable humor" (as Coy remarked in his address) the FCC has the right to hold up licenses of stations carrying the programs.

CBS admits that "patrolling" Godfrey is next to impossible, since so much of his material is ad lib. Last Wednesday night's incident, involving a street-cleaning scene with Carson and Morton Downey, was, CBS admits, but one in a series of questionable telecasts that goes back many years. The CBS anxiety is further intensified in view of the fact that last Wednesday's TV incident follows in the wake of the widespread notoriety given Fred Allen's crack, via Time

(Continued on page 36)

Damm Damns 'Filth'

Walter Damm, general manager of WTMJ and WTMJ-TV, Milwaukee Journal stations, sent the following wire to CBS following last Wednesday's Arthur Godfrey telecast:

"Godfrey's remarks to Morton Downey during the street sweeping skit last night were the most obnoxious and filthy that he has ever inflicted upon the TV viewers of this country. Unless we can have your definite assurance that henceforth Mr. Godfrey's remarks and gestures will conform to the recognized standards of good taste and decency, The Journal Co. must refuse to carry any further programs in which Mr. Godfrey appears."

The ASCAP Decree

Details of the analysis and interpretation of the ASCAP decree in the Music Dept.

No Shortage of Sponsors for Kid Trade, Despite Educator Reaction

Television's hold on the moppet market, which has had some educators seeing red, is continuing to draw new kid-slanted shows and sponsors into the medium. Newest entry is Peter Paul, which will back a live production of "Buck Rogers" on 19 ABC-TV stations Saturdays at 7 p. m., for eight weeks, starting April 15, via Maxon agency.

Web had originally pitched the candy manufacturer Keith Palmer's "Dick Tracy," but lost the property when Palmer gave CBS-TV an option. CBS, however, has relinquished its option and Music Corp. of America is now handling the package. NBC-TV was also after the Peter Paul billings and was offering "Winslow of the Navy" outside of Gotham and a clown stanza in N. Y.

"Super Circus," which is backed by Canada Dry, International Shoe and M&M Cady (latter two outfits to take a half hour on alternate weeks), has been renewed by the soft drink outfit for another 52 weeks, with the station lineup expanded from 16 to 21 outlets. Further development of the chain's kid block will be insertion of a film series beamed to the youngsters on Thursday at 7 p. m., preceding General Mills' "Lone Ranger."

WOR-TV, N. Y., has found its addition of kid airers paying off in hypoed ratings, which have gone up an overall 13%. Reason, according to WOR programmers, is that getting the young set to tune in early helps hold family audiences. In the hours from 6-8 p.m., station feels, cross-the-board scheduling is important, because it sets dialing habits. After 8 o'clock, however, it figures that the horizontal pattern isn't necessary.

Besides the candy bankrollers, TV is finding a bonanza in ice cream (Sealtest on NBC-TV's "Kukla, Fran and Ollie"), toothpastes (Ipana backing "Lucky Pup" on CBS-TV and Colgate picking up part of the tab for NBC-TV's "Howdy Doody"), cereals (Kellogg's "Singing Lady" and General Mills' "Lone Ranger" on ABC-TV) and juvenile clothes and shoes (Sundial Shoes on "Lucky Pup"). DuMont's "Small Fry Club" is co-op, with a variety of advertisers. Spots and participations are bringing in coin both locally and networkwise.

'It Pays to Be Clean'

Washington, March 21.

It pays to be clean, said FCC Chairman Wayne Coy on the subject of programming in his much-discussed speech last week at the University of Oklahoma. Said Coy: "When Harry Lauder died . . there was a wave of sadness in the hearts of millions of Americans who had been delighted with his entertainment. Talk about 'giving the people what they want.' The American people responded to his wholesome humor by flocking to him and helping him break box office records. He did not find it necessary to resort to livery stable humor or any other kind of off-color humor. Joe Laurie, Jr., writing of Lauder in VARIETY, said that the Scotman's material was 'always clean . . clean as a kitten's gum.'

"'Clean as a kitten's gum' is the way that American radio and television — the great American home entertainment —ought to be always."

Video Goes On A Quiz Binge, Taking Up Lag in Radio

Television is taking up the quiz shows where radio left them off. Where AM, with several exceptions, has eased off on its emphasis on quizzers of several years, 10 such programs will have prime spots on TV by next month—and many of these are video versions of shows that tried and failed on radio.

Reasons put forward for the emergence of quizzers on TV vary, but most trade observers agree that economics is probably the basic factor. With the exception of a large-scale variety program such as "Stop the Music," they point out, an advertiser can wrap up a quiz show for comparatively little cost and usually come up with a respectable rating—especially if there are cash prizes involved for audience participants. Usually all that's necessary for such programs are an emcee, some times an orchestra and some inexpensive production techniques. Fact that some quizzers succeed on TV while they failed on radio, however, is attributed to tele's greater degree of intimacy. By merely putting the cameras on such a show, it's pointed out, the emcee and participants, who often had little im-

(Continued on page 34)

WDTV, Pitt, Expansion

Pittsburgh, March 21.

DuMont's WDTV, only television station in this area, is finally going to have a studio for live program origination. Web has leased 7,500 square feet of space in the Chamber of Commerce building in the downtown Golden Triangle section and plans to start remodelling it by May 1. Equipment should be installed about July 1, with the studio ready for full operation by late summer or early fall.

Plans call for the new space to be converted into a 58x48 feet studio, a client's room, dressing rooms and office space. According to WDTV manager Donald A. Stewart, about one-third of the station's income is now derived from local advertisers, and he said that several Pittsburgh sponsors and agencies are already building shows in preparation for the studio opening. Bankrollers include Duquesne Brewery.

TV Also Alarms Cleve. Educators

Cleveland, March 21.

Poor homework, poor grades and television appear to go hand-in-hand at Cleveland Heights High School.

When teachers complained the quality of home work began to deteriorate, Principal E. E. Morley took a survey of 274 students, and found that 112, or 41%, had TV sets. More than 89 of them watched television for more than an hour a day; 86 of them thought that this watching handicapped their school work.

"Maybe really good students could stand the diversion," declared Morley, but he doubted poor students can. Although he indicated it is possible for some students to handle their home work and listen to the radio at the same time, Morley claims it is impossible for them to watch TV and study at the same time.

He has urged teachers to check students who have trouble with their work. If it turns out those having trouble also have television sets, he would urge parents to "clamp down" on the amount of TV watching allowed. Meanwhile, another survey is under way to determine whether TV or non-TV watchers have the better grades.

X

ALCOHOLISM IN WASHINGTON

Narrator-scripter: Gunnar Back
15 Mins., Tues., 9:45 p.m.
WMAL, Washington, D. C.

Sparked by an intensive campaign, backed financially by the D. C. Health Department, and inspired by a newly created Alcoholic Clinic, this program sets a new high here for public service crusades.

Gunnar Back, whose brain child this is, brings to the new project a wide background in public service type of airer. His VD series, "The Undiscovered," written when he was a staffer with CBS, won him a national award, and a subsequent series on the same subject, "The Lonesome Road," has been widely syndicated. His latest effort rates attention from any community which is wrestling with the problem of alcoholism.

Series, judged from first two airers, packs a punch by reason of its factual restrained quality which carefully avoids a "holier than thou" attitude. Approach to problem is medical, rather than psychiatric, driving home the point that the chronic drinker is a sick person and that here, in Washington, treatment is readily available. There is a minimum of detail injected and absolutely no preaching. Format consists of a brief introduction outling purpose of series, tape recordings of actual interviews with alcoholics, largely, though not entirely, cured cases recruited from the files of Alcoholics Anonymous and the Police courts, as well as some made on the spot along Skid Row. Narrator Back's statement that the problem exists on "quiet, shady avenues of the City" as well as in its slums, is dramatically brought out by the interviews. Following the stories of the "patients" themselves, there is a short talk by a worker in the field, and an explanation of how help can be obtained.

Strength of the program lies in the technique of Back in skillfully drawing out his subjects, in his careful editing of his material to avoid repetition and, at the same time, keep the meat of the interview, and in the unexpected drama contained in the stories as they unfold on the tape. There is a strong documentary quality to the 15-minute show, and a convincing air of authenticity. Reputation of Back himself is assurance that there is nothing faked but, even without this, one could hardly question the sincerity of a housewife, a successful member of AA, who tells how she was "constantly living a life of fear that I wouldn't get that next drink." The subdued matter of fact account of a Skid Row habitue, just sentenced by the court, as he describes his d.t.'s, has the effect of high drama and is unexpectedly moving. There are no laughs on this show, and there is certainly no room for them.

Plugs for the new clinic are kept to a minimum, but the approach to alcoholism as a public health problem is so strongly brought out, that, as a result of the first program, 85 calls were received at the Alcoholic Information Center, whose phone number is repeated on each broadcast.

"Trailer" technique used by Back to drum up listeners for subsequent airer is effective. Shows heard and outline of "things to come" made this reviewer want to tune in again. There's little doubt it will register as effectively in homes all over town. In its present form, it could be used anywhere with local angles deleted. Lowe.

SONGS WE SING

With Hal Totten, Frank Sweeney, Paula Rae, guests; Bob Trendler orch
Director: Glenn Ransom
Writer: Tom Elvidge
30 Mins.; Thurs. 8:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WGN, Chicago

This musical half-hour makes up partly in friendliness and enthusiasm what it misses in quality. But it falls short of being major nighttime entertainment. Only the emceeing of longtime radio man, Hal Totten, measured up to anything near professional standards. The singing of Frank Sweeney and Paula Rae, latter subbing on show caught (16) for regular Nancy Wright, was generally unexciting. The amateur guest quartet, regular weekly feature, lacked punch. And the singing of studio audience, asked to join in for a couple of numbers, was perhaps fun for the guests but tedious for the home audience.

The local stint, bucking some heavy network competition on its Thursday night slot, might score more strongly on, say, Saturday night. Also needed are a spot or two of straight instrumental music to break up the vocalizing. However, neither show's format nor talent seem sufficiently sturdy to make a firm bid for week night audience or sponsor. Dave.

2,000 PLUS

With Ralph Camargo, Cathleen Cordell, Luis Van Rooten, Mercer McCleod, Ken Williams, Arnold Robertson
Producers: Sherman H. Dryer, Robert Weenolsen
Director: Dryer
Writer: Peter Barry
30 Mins.; Wed., 9 p.m.
Sustaining
MBS, from New York

Mutual has won the race to get a science fiction series on the air—with CBS and NBC also readying stanzas in the Jules Verne tradition. What apparently will be a new cycle is cued in by the mounting sale of books and magazines in the field of fantastic prophecy and developments in science—A-bomb, H-bomb, germ warfare, supersonic planes, radar, television, etc. Sherman H. Dryer, who previously did "Exploring the Unknown" for MBS, wrapped up a fairly suspenseful half-hour which included most of the traditional astounding stories elements—war between the worlds, interplanetary travel and incredible technical inventions.

Yarn concerned an impending invasion of the earth by insidious forces from the planet Klagda, who demanded immediate unconditional surrender or complete destruction by zultanium rays. Fortunately, one scientist and his physicist-girl discover that Anti-A and Anti-B gases will neutralize the Z-rays, but the problem is getting the formula from a professor who had been banished to the Gobi desert. They manage to convince the genius to yield his secret, and your great-grandchildren's lives are spared.

"2,000 Plus" was heavy with psuedo-scientific jargon such as brain reconditioning, selective amnesia, galvanic adrenalin, automatic brains, audiovoxes, etc., which will probably be meat to the scientifiction aficionados. But the 21st Century world, apart from its weird technology, was alarmingly full of this-century jealousy, political intrigue and treachery (in the person of a Klagda fifth-columnist). The broadcast was at its best in those segments dealing with apocalyptic problems in present-day terms: should the earth fight and face destruction or accept slavery, and can scientists allow the world to destroy itself?

Productionwise the airer was neatly done, with flutter boxes, oscillators, spark gaps, echo chambers and other sound effects, together with Richard Du Page's music for the Emerson Buckley orch, building up the illusion of monsters from space threatening the world of 2124 A. D. Ralph Camargo made a good hero-of-the-future, with Luis Van Rooten assisting capably as a scientist. Use of filters and musical backgrounding on news flashes were important in view of the danger of another Orson Welles "Martian invasion" scare. Bril.

Radio Followup

Ezio Pinza's disk jockey guest shot, on the cuff, with Jack Eigen at the Copacabana, N. Y., last Thursday (16) was basically a sentimental journey by the "South Pacific" basso-star to a saloon, in order to oblige a friend, Bennie Bonacio, and plug the latter's song, "Te Ame" (I Loved You), with Charre Gil and (the late) Eugene West authoring the Spanish and English lyrics. It's an oldie, published by Mellow Music, but Bonacio got to Pinza for a Columbia disking, plus a buildup via single-shot deejay stint. Incidentally, it's a single 10-inch platter, coupled with a "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" excerpt, "Just a Kiss Apart." Eigen handled Pinza very well. The basso manifested that this was indeed a strange new world to him. The phoner-inners palpably included a number Pinza-struck babes, who apparently put on a frank pitch for dates, causing him to reiterate he is married, goes home every night to his family, etc. As contrast, Eigen put Maxie Rosenbloom on as vis-a-vis to Pinza, but it all bounced off very well. Eigen had trailerized the Pinza date for several days, and the Copa Lounge did a turnaway that night.

Bob Hope slipped in a couple of trade references to Bankoff & Girlie and Frances Lastfogel as part of his show last week, at the same time trailerizing his imminent video debut. Comedian's timing remains canny, frequently extracting extra values from his sometimes thin material.

LILLIAN ROBBINS' MUSICAL DIARY

With Aime Gauvin, announcer
Producer: Herman Younglieb
Director: Jan Bart
15 Mins.; Sun., 1 p.m.
HELEN T. BROOK CANDY
WMGM, New York
(A. P. Landau)

Airer is an assortment of gab, interviews, disks and songs that packs a lot into its 15-minute span. Lillian Robbins opened her "diary" Sunday (19) with an entry on television, pointing out that video variety shows which use the same standard acts will kill themselves off. She followed with a cultured but cold soprano rendition of "They Didn't Believe Me" and "I'll Never Forget You." Her guest, on tape, was Ted Lewis, who was introed by his waxing of "When My Baby Smiles at Me." Tete-a-tete, in which Lewis discussed his video plans and marriage, was brief and pointed, but Miss Robbins' manner tended to be stiff and scripty. A warmer, more informal delivery would also help her commentary, which was newsy and tightly written.

Commercials and editorial copy were nicely integrated with the slogan "candy of the stars" tied up with WMGM's "call letters of the stars" line. Miss Robbins also gave a miniature review of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" and "chocolate Oscars" to Patricia Neway (of "The Consul") and the talking mule in "Francis." Bril.

JUANITA HALL SHOW

Producer: Ted Cott
Director: Jack Grogan
15 Mins., Sun.; 1 p.m.
Sustaining
WNEW, N. Y.

Juanita Hall, whose characterization of "Bloody Mary" in the current Broadway production of "South Pacific" is one of the show's high spots, is turning in another sock performance via this 15-minute WNEW session. Gal has an ingratiating quality that should draw hefty listenership. Her first-rate song styling is a top-drawer attraction in practically all facets of show business.

Show's weekly format has Miss Hall delivering tunes relative to a particular overall subject. On program caught, numbers with a spring flavor were spotlighted. A line of chatter, pleasantly handled by Miss Hall, paves the way for the various songs rendered.

Tunes that blossomed from the springtime theme were "April Showers," "All The Things You Are," "Blue Skies" and "Younger Than Springtime." The Roy Ross Trio provides a rhythmic background.

WAYNE HOWELL SHOW

Director-producer: Clay Daniel
30 Mins.; Wed., 7:30 p. m.
Sustaining
WNBC, N. Y.

This is a neat job of grafting celeb interviews onto a disk jockey idea. Wayne Howell, who also has a regular morning disk series on this station, is spotlighting new platter releases during this session in addition to making live chatter with the recording artists who guest on each show. Howell is a personable gabber but the impact of this airer will hinge chiefly on the stature of the artists participating in the interviews and the quality of the music that's in the groove.

Preem show (15) was launched promisingly. Guests included Lisa Kirk, Frankie Laine, Kenny Delmar, Mary Hatcher and Russ Case and the showcased disks were first-rate. Each of the recording artists engaged in some chitchat with Howell prior to the playing of their latest releases. Show ran off at a snappy rate with almost 10 numbers featured. Herm.

CRIME REPORT

With Hal Stewart
5 Mins.; 10:15 p.m., Mon.-thru-Fri., Sun.
Sustaining
KMOX, St. Louis.

A switcheroo on the prevailing crime programs has been inaugurated by this CBS outlet and instead of one crime being dramatized for 30 minutes this one break down into short segments a daily report of criminal happenings in St. Louis and surrounding territory. The siren, gunshots, banging of the police teletype machines, etc., that are used in "Gangbusters" are utilitized in this format and is quickly followed by Stewart who goes into a rapid and brief review of street stickups, store robberies, burglaries, purse snatchings, auto thefts and vandalism particularly when the latter is committed by teenagers.

Stress is laid on the proceedings in the criminal courts in the area

(Continued on page 38)

Inside Stuff—Radio

With the shifting of CBS commentators from New York to the Capital, station WTOP in Washington is claiming the distinction of being the biggest news program origination center in the U. S., if not the world. The 50 kw outlet, owned 55% by the Washington Post and 45% by the web, will be feeding out 31 separate news broadcasts per week to the network, effective April 3.

Network staff changes, which takes Edward R. Murrow to D. C. during part of March and most of April and results in the web's "News and News Analysis" show being transferred to the Capital, will raise the number of news broadcasts originations by 16 per week.

Under the expanded schedule, Allan Jackson will broadcast daily from the Capital on "News of America." Jackson will also take over the 6 p.m. daily show broadcast by Eric Sevareid, while the latter takes over the 11 p.m. "Analysis" program now handled by Richard C. Hottelet. Murrow will conduct his regular 7:45 p.m. daily show temporarily from Washington.

In addition, Charles Collingwood and Jackson will continue their weekly Saturday and Sunday broadcasts from WTOP. Other weekly web shows originating from Washington are the Friday "Capitol Cloakroom," the Saturday "Science Service News" and the Saturday "Farm News."

A plan for the communications industry's participation in the Washington Sesquicentennial, to be held in the nation's capital next year, has been submitted to the NAB by Ed Kirby, public relations consultant of the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces.

Kirby suggests that a permanent Showcase Exhibition Hall be built by the American communications industry, comprising AM, FM, facsimile, TV, manufacturers of sets and equipment, NAB and Radio Manufacturers Assn. Hall would house a library and museum with historic instruments such as Morse's first telegraph key, Bell's first phone, Conrad's first microphone, important records and films, etc. In addition to display rooms, building would include studio facilities, public message centers and displays for wireless and telegraph companies and facilities for individual stations. Kirby also envisions a bombproof underground communications center for use in a defense emergency.

With an estimated b.o. of 7,000,000 coming to the fair, public relations and sales promotion value of the building would be great, Kirby feels. Hall would be self-supporting via admission fees and administered by a board of trustees.

Cedric Adams, WCCO, Minneapolis, and CBS network personality, was given civic blowout on return to Minneapolis from his vacation Wednesday (15) and gifted with Cadillac car in return for plugging his home town.

Adams promptly announced cash value of the car would be donated by him to charity. Committee was asked to select Catholic, Protestant and Jewish charities as recipients, Adams specifying a fourth beneficiary as Little Sisters of the Poor.

It made a busy week for Adams who, en route to Minneapolis, did guest shot on Arthur Godfrey morning show and Sunday night (19) guested as judge on Horace Heidt network talent show. Back from three weeks' rest, he resumes schedule of 25 air shows and seven newspaper columns, as well as numerous personal appearances, a week.

Former members of the Writers War Board who campaigned aggressively in 1944 against use of "racial stereotypes" in radio, films, magazine fiction and so on take strong exception to the March 17 cartoon "Our Boarding House" (NEA Syndicate) which pictures a Negro in loud check suit, flaming necktie, big puffy lips and saying, "I is completely moneyized." In this same connection, white condescension, it has again been remarked of a certain Virginia-born radio personality that try as he will (and he has tried) he can't shake his early thinking habits. Introducing a Negro singer recently he called him "boy" several times. Negro happened to have plenty of dignity and poise, making that condescending "boy" the more conspicuous.

WPAT, Paterson, N. J., platter spinner John Henry Faulk not only has to get up before the chickens to do his early a.m. stint, he has to prove he can cook 'em too. Recently when Faulk was discussing his recipe for frying chicken Texas style, a local listener, Joan Tonkin, challenged him to a contest. Event was staged in the Tonkin kitchen Monday (20) night with four judges and 10 eaters present. After devouring the fried fowl from neck to derriere, panel voted 3-1 in favor of the disk and dish jockey.

WXYZ (Detroit) disk jockey Bill Silbert casually mentioned on his "Pow Wow" program that he thought Detroit needed a theme song. His listeners took him seriously and he was swamped with 500 original songs. Bill and Ted Mossman, writers of "Till the End of Time," judged the entries and gave the nod to Caroline Smith's "My Country Cousin Has the Motor City Buzzin."

Mossman set Miss Smith's lyrics to music and it will be published by Fanfare Music Co.

George "The Real" McCoy, vet man-in-street radio broadcaster, has submitted an unusual program idea, "Breakfast at Nedick's," to WJZ, N. Y. Initial test program he has recorded is framed around east side lunch-counter establishment near 42d and Lexington. McCoy plans to use set opening line of "Here We Are in Orange Room of Nedick's," with 15-minute interview stint taking in usual topical questions.

JUBILEE

With Mildred Joseph
15 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 11:30 a.m.
UNION-FERN FURNITURE CO.
WTRY, Troy

"Jubilee" is no riot of entertainment, but it is a fairly well planned program of transcribed music interspersed with chatter and a women's angled new story. Mildred Joseph came into professional radio from Russell Sage College's "How Do You Pronounce It?" program. She possesses a pleasant though slightly metallic voice, and reads script competently. Occasionally an interview is scheduled; one heard (17) was with Barbara Ann Scott, star of "Skating Sensations." Both gals started slightly arch and fencing, but they established rapport and clicked off a reasonably interesting discussion of skating and the show. More interviews and air appearances would undoubtedly benefit Miss Joseph.

Each block has a central musical idea. Advertising leaves no question of sponsor's identity. Group sounding like the Landt Trio adds their bit to the plugging, in theme. Jaco.

MYSTERY MOVIE STAR

15 Mins.; Fri., 6:45 p. m.
JOHN HAMRICK THEATRES
KIRO, Seattle

This giveaway show, the first sponsored by a local theatre group for some time, seems overloaded with clues and mechanics. Format makes for confusion and amount of work necessary to try and win the weekly $100 prize seems inordinate, particularly when compared with the average quiz or giveaway show.

Format uses three clues for the mystery star; first being two jingles; second being the dialing of eight telephone numbers. Listeners must count the clicks so as to know whether the sequence is 2—3—(ABC—DEF) etc. When numbers are learned listener is told to use six of the eight three letter combinations to get the second clue to the star. Third clue is posted weekly in every John Hamrick theatre in Seattle, Tacoma and Enumclaw.

Gordon Tuell and Dick Ross do a good job in putting over the clues and tiein the commercials nicely, but fact remains that overall impact is one of a difficult job in squeezing out the answer from the given clues. Reed.

BALTIMORE CLASSROOM—1950
Producers: Mrs. Eleanora B. Kane, Joel Chaseman
Director: Dennis Kane
30 Mins.; Fri., 7-7:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WAAM, Baltimore

Here's a public service show with an evesdropping slant that figures to keep viewers by their sets. "Classroom" takes average classes from Balto school system, moves kids, teachers, and equipment to huge WAAM studio and a replica of their original room. Pupils run through average lesson with surprising disregard for lights, cameras, and so forth. Result is informal schoolroom lesson seen by TV audience.

Show has value to educators as public relations, and station reports teachers' and PTA groups discussing each show and teacher methods. Board of Education and WAAMer Joel Chaseman cooperated since September in tours of every grade level in all parts of city. All ages and types of lessons to be shown on 13-week series.

Show caught, Negro school No. 132 shown in fourth grade arithmetic lesson. Kids working in groups were covered by well-used closeups as they ran through exercises. Mistakes were made by the young Einsteins, and there was even usual classroom giggling and byplay. Director Kane had hands full, with action all over room, but teacher's route seemed to be logical from group to group. Content and camerawork add up to a valuable show for all concerned.

Station reports that prospective teachers and pupils are taken for tour of facilities during week before show, so they won't be overwhelmed by strangeness of surroundings. Effort is also made to dress them as usual in school. Flannel shirts and one-piece dresses predominate.

Only "professional" scripting is evidenced at beginning and end, when station announcer reads explanation of show over moving title. Message tells viewers to expect a real lesson, and reminds them show is done live from studio with Board of Education backing.

OFF THE RECORD
With Ed McMahon. Skip Allen
90 Mins.; Sat., 10:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WCAU-TV, Phila.

"Off the Record," one of the shows used to expand WCAU-TV's late evening coverage shapes up as good entertainment for Saturday night, especially for the dating crowd. Show is combination disker and quizzer, with plenty platter time to permit stepping for the youngsters who have the rugs up.

Dancers in studio, on whom the camera focuses periodically, also suggest the home terping. Skip Allen, who has an acquaintance with recordings and a jazz background, is the platter spinner, while McMahon roves about the studio asking questions of both dancers and spectators.

For the home audience, there are special questions which are run off on tape against background of the spinning disk. Name brand prizes are available both for the studio audience and the home viewers. On original show, "Off the Record" asked for telephone callers to answer tape queries and response tied up all midtown exchanges. On program caught (11) boys used device of telephoning listeners, while tape reiterated warnings against calling station switchboard.

Type query employed: "What star of a Berlin musical is identified with this number?" while recording plays "My Darling, My Darling." Wrist watches, wallets, perfume, Toni home kits, etc. are distributed for correct replies. Guests appear for interview shots. Among those on program caught were Don Cornell, currently at Latin Casino, and Cathy Allen, now singing at Big Bill's. Both singers did Larry Parks' routine, faking vocals on their hit numbers: Cornell's "It Isn't Fair," with Sammy Kaye's orch, and Miss Allen's waxing with Louis Prima of "Love That Man."

Program is adding gimmicks such as bringing on a couple from Arthur Murray studios to dance and explain the intricacies of the Momba. Studio dancers are asked to suggest title for song, and then each individual is asked to add a line as Allen improvises tune until whole song is written. Contributors of each line are given prizes for help.

McMahon has an informal style and is quick on the trigger. Allen is not quite as much at ease, but is a great help at the pianistics and the interviews of musical personalities. Boys have song and piano intro, which they could easily do without. Gagh.

Tele Followup Comment

Rex Harrison (who made his video debut on "NBC's Saturday Night Revue") had his teevee dramatic bow on NBC-TV's "Chevrolet Tele-Theatre" Monday (20). The vehicle was a charming comedy, "The Walking Stick," in which Harrison played a stuttering, milquetoastish assistant bank manager who inherited a stylish cane. Enchanted by the vision of the stick's proud previous owners, Harrison was transformed into a self-asserting man, changing his baggy suit for a smart outfit and dropping his shy bearing for a swaggering manner. An appealing sub-plot had him beset by a wiley femme fronting for a bank robber, but possession of the cane impelled him to foil the thieves and win the managership—and with it the hand of the girl who had loved him silently all along.

Conception of the drama was that of a broadly played fantasy, with Harrison changing almost instantaneously from the obsequious clerk to a dapper dandy. Narration was by the cane itself and the inanimate object was endowed with near-miraculous powers—tripping the boss and Harrison when they became too cocky and becoming the weapon for thwarting the robbery. Supporting cast in the comedy included Dennis Hoey, Una O'Connor, Elizabeth Eustis and Eileen Peel.

Duplicating its coverage job of last year, WPIX, N. Y., turned the St. Patrick's Day (17) parade into a four-and-a-half-hour video spectacle for the benefit of the few New Yorkers who weren't at the line of march. Not doing much beyond training the cameras on the columns of paraders that passed the reviewing stand at Fifth avenue and 64th street, the program managed to capture all of the massiveness and lots of the color of this annual turnout of the sons of Erin. It more than satisfied normal I-love-a-parade sentiments.

Like last year, the best feature of this elongated airer was the sparkling commentary of Jack McCarthy. McCarthy, a natural spieler in the best Irish tradition of eloquence and humor, furnished a burred background of inventive gab to sustain the basically monotonous screen material, considering the limitations of black-and-white cameras. The greatest section of this program was carried solely on the strength of McCarthy's enthusiasm and flow of fresh descriptive phrases.

Occasional variety was also furnished by interviews with marchers of all ages conducted in first-rate style by Joe Bolton and John Crosson. Equipped with walkie-talkies, the two reporters collared both celebs and ordinary Hibernians for brief chats while proceeding in formation. During the gaps in the parade, top political figures, such as Mayor William F. O'Dwyer and Lt. Gov. Joseph R. Hanley, made their usual ceremonial speeches.

Only difference between WPIX's coverage this year and last was the occasional insert of a filmed plug for R&H beer which bankrolled this year's broadcast.

"The Play's the Thing" (ex-Actor's Studio), the Friday night CBS series that alternates with "Ford Television Theatre," came up with a delightful bit of Ben Hecht zanyism last week in the adaptation of his "Pink Hussar." Production-wise, it offered a quotient of entertainment and superlative dramatics that put TV on an equal footing with any dramatic fare. It was notably in the ability of David Pressman as director and an excellent array of actors to capture the Hechtian comicalities of this piece of nonsense that made "Hussar" one of the TV delights of the season. The casting of Joseph Buloff as the Budapest impresario-in-exile was nothing short of insight.

This CBS lend-leased World Video package, incidentally, continues as one of TV's highlights in the realm of dramatics, betraying a wider scope in its choice of material and qualitative production values than most of the play acting stanzas.

NBC's Saturday night parlay, "Your Show of Shows" on the March 18 session more than maintained the standard set by previous displays. Every succeeding installment, so far, has improved in some respects, with the major hypo coming out of Chicago, where early shows evidenced weaknesses. However, with Eddie Sobol coming from the Coast to iron out some production kinks, Jack Carter's contribution is showing considerable gains. Sobol, with his show biz background, knows how to show acts to advantage. The session achieved sock pacing and the cameras got most out of the performers.

The permanent company which includes Carter, Donald Richards and Benny Baker worked with their usual proficiency in both individual spots and in sketches. Probably of greatest interest was the spot by Smith and Dale, the vet comedy team, who performed a shipboard sketch which had as high a laugh-content as their "Dr. Kronkhite" bit. Duo really mopped up on laugh returns. Other guests included Copsey and Ayres, who impressed handily with East Indian and modern terps. Frances Langford also hit it handily, while Rex Ramer registered with his impressions of musical instruments.

The N. Y. portion of the stanza was tops, Sid Caesar continuing to gain in stature with this show. He's a performer with authority who shows up excellently in both his individual bits and sketches. His resume on fight pictures was terrific and he got in a yocker with the old Niagara Falls bit done with Imogene Coca. He was also up to par on the photographer bit and a dissertation on ski instruction. It's a herculean task lining up this amount of good material weekly.

Melvyn Douglas emceed the proceedings solidly and took part in the show with a satire on "Importance of Being Earnest."

Regulars Marguerite Piazza hit with the Musetta Waltz from "La Boheme" and Robert Merrill scored with "Song of the Flea." The Hamilton Trio, Nelle Fisher and Jerry Ross and the Billy Williams Trio did well in their respective spots. Max Liebman's production was on its usual high plane.

Arthur Schwartz's "Inside U.S.A. with Chevrolet" bowed off CBS-TV Thursday night (16), after a run of 13 stanzas, with a half-hour revue that was on a par with the better shows in the series. While Chevvy dropped the show because its top-heavy budget failed to pay off with the desired ratings, the finale evidenced anew that Schwartz has learned the knack of adapting the legit-type revue to video's facilities.

Regulars Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy carried most of the show, with guest Joan Blondell doing a fair Mae West impersonation in an overlong western barroom skit. Hayes was standout in the "Rip Van Winkle Room" sketch done by Jack Haley in the original Broadway "U.S.A." and Miss Healy, with the ballet and chorus backing her, did a neat job on "Greenup Time." Dancer Sheilah Bond suffered from the lack of closeups on her terp number but still managed to please as a widow being courted by three suitors. Entire cast appeared slightly woebegone in that final commercial, since Hayes was forced to omit his usual "see you in two weeks on this same station." It was a good show while it lasted.

ABC-TV's "Blind Date" set off on a new commercial cycle Thursday night (16) under the sponsorship of Esquire Boot Polish but, in so doing, lost much of the sparkle that featured it as a sustainer. Commercials themselves did not slow down the pace but the show, in an obvious attempt to present something new, emerged almost as a variety program. Sacrificed, as a result, was most of that bright telephonic banter between the young boys and gals on which the show made its name—even though some of the lines previously tossed back and forth seemed pre-rehearsed. Producer Bernard Schubert is to be commended for trying to inject a new note into the program but perhaps a happy medium between the two formats would result in a better show.

Arlene Francis continues as the femcee, demonstrating again last week her welcome vivacity, glibness and dextrous touch in bolstering the lagging parts. Because of the emphasis on "acts," last week's show presented only two girls for whom two teams of boys competed, instead of three as heretofore. Male contestants were drawn from the Columbia Univ. and Yale student bodies. One of them, a nephew of N. Y.'s Mayor O'Dwyer, soloed with the Columbia glee club instead of telephoning, and another, from Texas, yodeled a cowboy tune. Also on hand was "Francis," so-called talking mule from Universal's film of the same title. Commercials, both live and film, were interesting, particularly that charade plug worked out by Miss Francis with the character dressed as the sponsor's brand identification.

Last Friday's installment of Du Mont's "Hands of Murder," the Larry Menkin - Charles Speer-scripted mysterioso series, was an inventive bit of TV legerdemain called "The Hiroshima Ghost." Actually, it resolved itself into a very effective and sincere plea for peace without in any way undermining the dramatic and suspense elements.

A cleverly-contrived plot using a radiated Japanese ghost (victim of Hiroshima) as the story's protagonist permitted espousal of an idea without detriment to the dramatic content. Production and direction were smooth and the acting on an equal par.

"Texaco Star Theatre" last week achieved a terrific pace with Georgie Price at the emcee spot. Price was the second of two emcees subbing for Milton Berle while he played a Miami Beach cafe engagement. Hank Ladd did the first installment.

Price had the good sense to let the show stand on the strength of the acts and sketches gathered for this display. His intrusions into the proceedings were as minor as possible. His main function was to give the acts a hearty sendoff and work in the sketches alloted to him. Price functioned in this capacity with a high degree of excellence.

The collection of talent was generally good and was distinguished by the tele bow of what appears to be one of the best jugglers around. Bela Kremo, a recent import, did five minutes of manipulations with hats and cigar-boxes. He showed adeptness at both, forming some unusual patterns.

Another good spot was taken by Jack Gilford, who recreated the "I Feel Like a New Man" sketch from the defunct musical revue, "Alive and Kicking." The bit scored solidly. Also from that revue, Bobby Van did a Ray Bolgeresque dance turn for good effect.

Lew Parker did two pieces of business that registered nicely and June Havoc's singing and comedy tune with Price came off nicely. Act lineup was completed by Adriana and Charley on the trampoline who did okay in the opening spot.

Price's finale, based on a collection of Gus Edwards' tunes, came off well. A crop of talented moppets assisted for this blowoff.

"Philco Television Playhouse" on NBC-TV Sunday (19) presented an interesting courtroom drama, "The Trial of Steven Kent," based on the book by Josephine Bentham. Unusual aspect was the fact that the crux of the yarn was less the trial itself than the battle inside the jury room, as the foreman—who, since early childhood, hated the defendant—tried to swing the other 11 jurors to convict Kent of murdering his wife. Adaptation by Nelson Olmstead (who also played one of the jurors) opened with the court in session, then moved to the jury room and flashed back to highspots in the trial as the foreman won one after another of the panel to vote "guilty." However, when at the end the score was 11-1 for conviction, the foreman's vindictiveness was exposed and Kent was acquitted.

Fred Coe's production involved a large cast to fill the jury box, judge's bench, lawyers' tables, witnesses, etc., and it was a generally apt group of thespers. Particularly effective was John Newland, as defense attorney, while Richard Sanders, as the d.a., in a couple of spots gave tentative readings of his lines. Richard Frasier was convincing as the accused and Alfreda Wallace had one solidly played scene as the defendant's sweetheart under cross-examination. Reed Brown, Jr., was fair in the part of the biased foreman and was handicapped by an overuse of the inner-thought device, which required him to do a lot of smirking while his revengeful ideas were aired on tape. Delbert Mann's direction fully solved several problems involving flashbacks and handling of group scenes in which a dozen or more characters were present.

Morey Amsterdam's "Silver Swan Cafe" on DuMont last Thursday (16) was an undistinguished comedy offering. Material was weak and lacked freshness although midway in the stanza Am-

(Continued on page 34)

WAITING FOR THE BREAK
With Hank Ladd, emcee; Joan Kilbrig, Rudy Tome, Gizella Svetlik, Lorenzo Fuller, Cynthia Risley, Stan Rose, Penguin Trio
Producer-Director: Herb Moss
Writers: Coleman Jacoby, Arnie Rosen
30 Mins., Sat., 7:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WNBT, N. Y.

"Waiting for the Break" is a variation on the talent finding theme. The idea behind this one is sound and it could eventually build into a pleasant half-hour of variety entertainment. The idea is to project to "front and center stage" the understudies, the supers and the bit players in the Broadway musicals and plays who otherwise are relegated to virtual obscurity, waiting for that one big break that might or might not come.

Obviously, the program will rise or fall on the talent that is showcased. Initial stanza last Saturday brought on the "also rans," from the "Kiss Me, Kate" musical, including Joan Kilbrig, understudy for Lisa Kirk (who inevitably went into the "True to You in My Fashion"); Rudy Tome, a personable hoofer who understudies Harold Lang and who, accompanied by Gizella Svetlik, did an acceptable vocal duet and interpretive terp around something called "Paint and Powder You, Pipe and Slippers Me." Latter is an original by one of "Kate's" lowercase sepia performers, Lorenzo Fuller, who also was projected for the TV break. Cynthia Risley, the show's ballerina, teamed with Stan Rose for another vocal - dance twosome and the half-hour closed with still more dancing in the novelty idiom by three more "Kate" aspirants calling themselves the Penguin Trio.

In and out of all this moves Hank Ladd as emcee who, unfortunately, brought little else than a backstage scratch sheet prop to the proceedings where some needed drollery might have provided spontaneity to the stanza. The overaccent on dancing, the need for comedy which eluded Ladd, and the overall slowness of pace all contributed toward the conclusion that the program lacks a spark.

The idea remains good; perhaps the aspirants in the other big-league Broadway shows will merit the TV buildup. But the emcee spot is basic, and needs attention. Rose.

FRIENDSHIP RANCH
With Olivia Santoro, Cricket Skilling
Producer: Alice Clements
Director: Marilyn Gusten
15 Mins.; Thurs., 6 p.m.
BURRY BISCUIT CO.
WBNT, N. Y.
(Clements Co.)

"Friendship Ranch," which preemed on WNBT, N. Y., Thursday (16), has a format which calls for a "children's variety show with a western atmosphere." Presumably Olivio Santoro, a guitar-playing yodeler; Cricket Skilling, a tyro cowboy, and several smallfry in frontier garb all fit into the required category.

Participants, for the most part, confine themselves to giving out with copious wahoos!, plus tossing off a couple of hossopera ditties betwixt ample plugs for Burry's Biscuits. Inaugural show was a slipshod, disorganized affair with the musical aspect particularly haphazard.

What this show appears to need most of all is some kind of continuity which would provide it a reason for "Friendship Ranch," along with a script that would build interest from moppet viewers. It's not enough to say "boys and girls—here we are at 'Friendship Ranch' with Olivio and Cricket!", then pad out the time with songs and blurbs. Gilb.

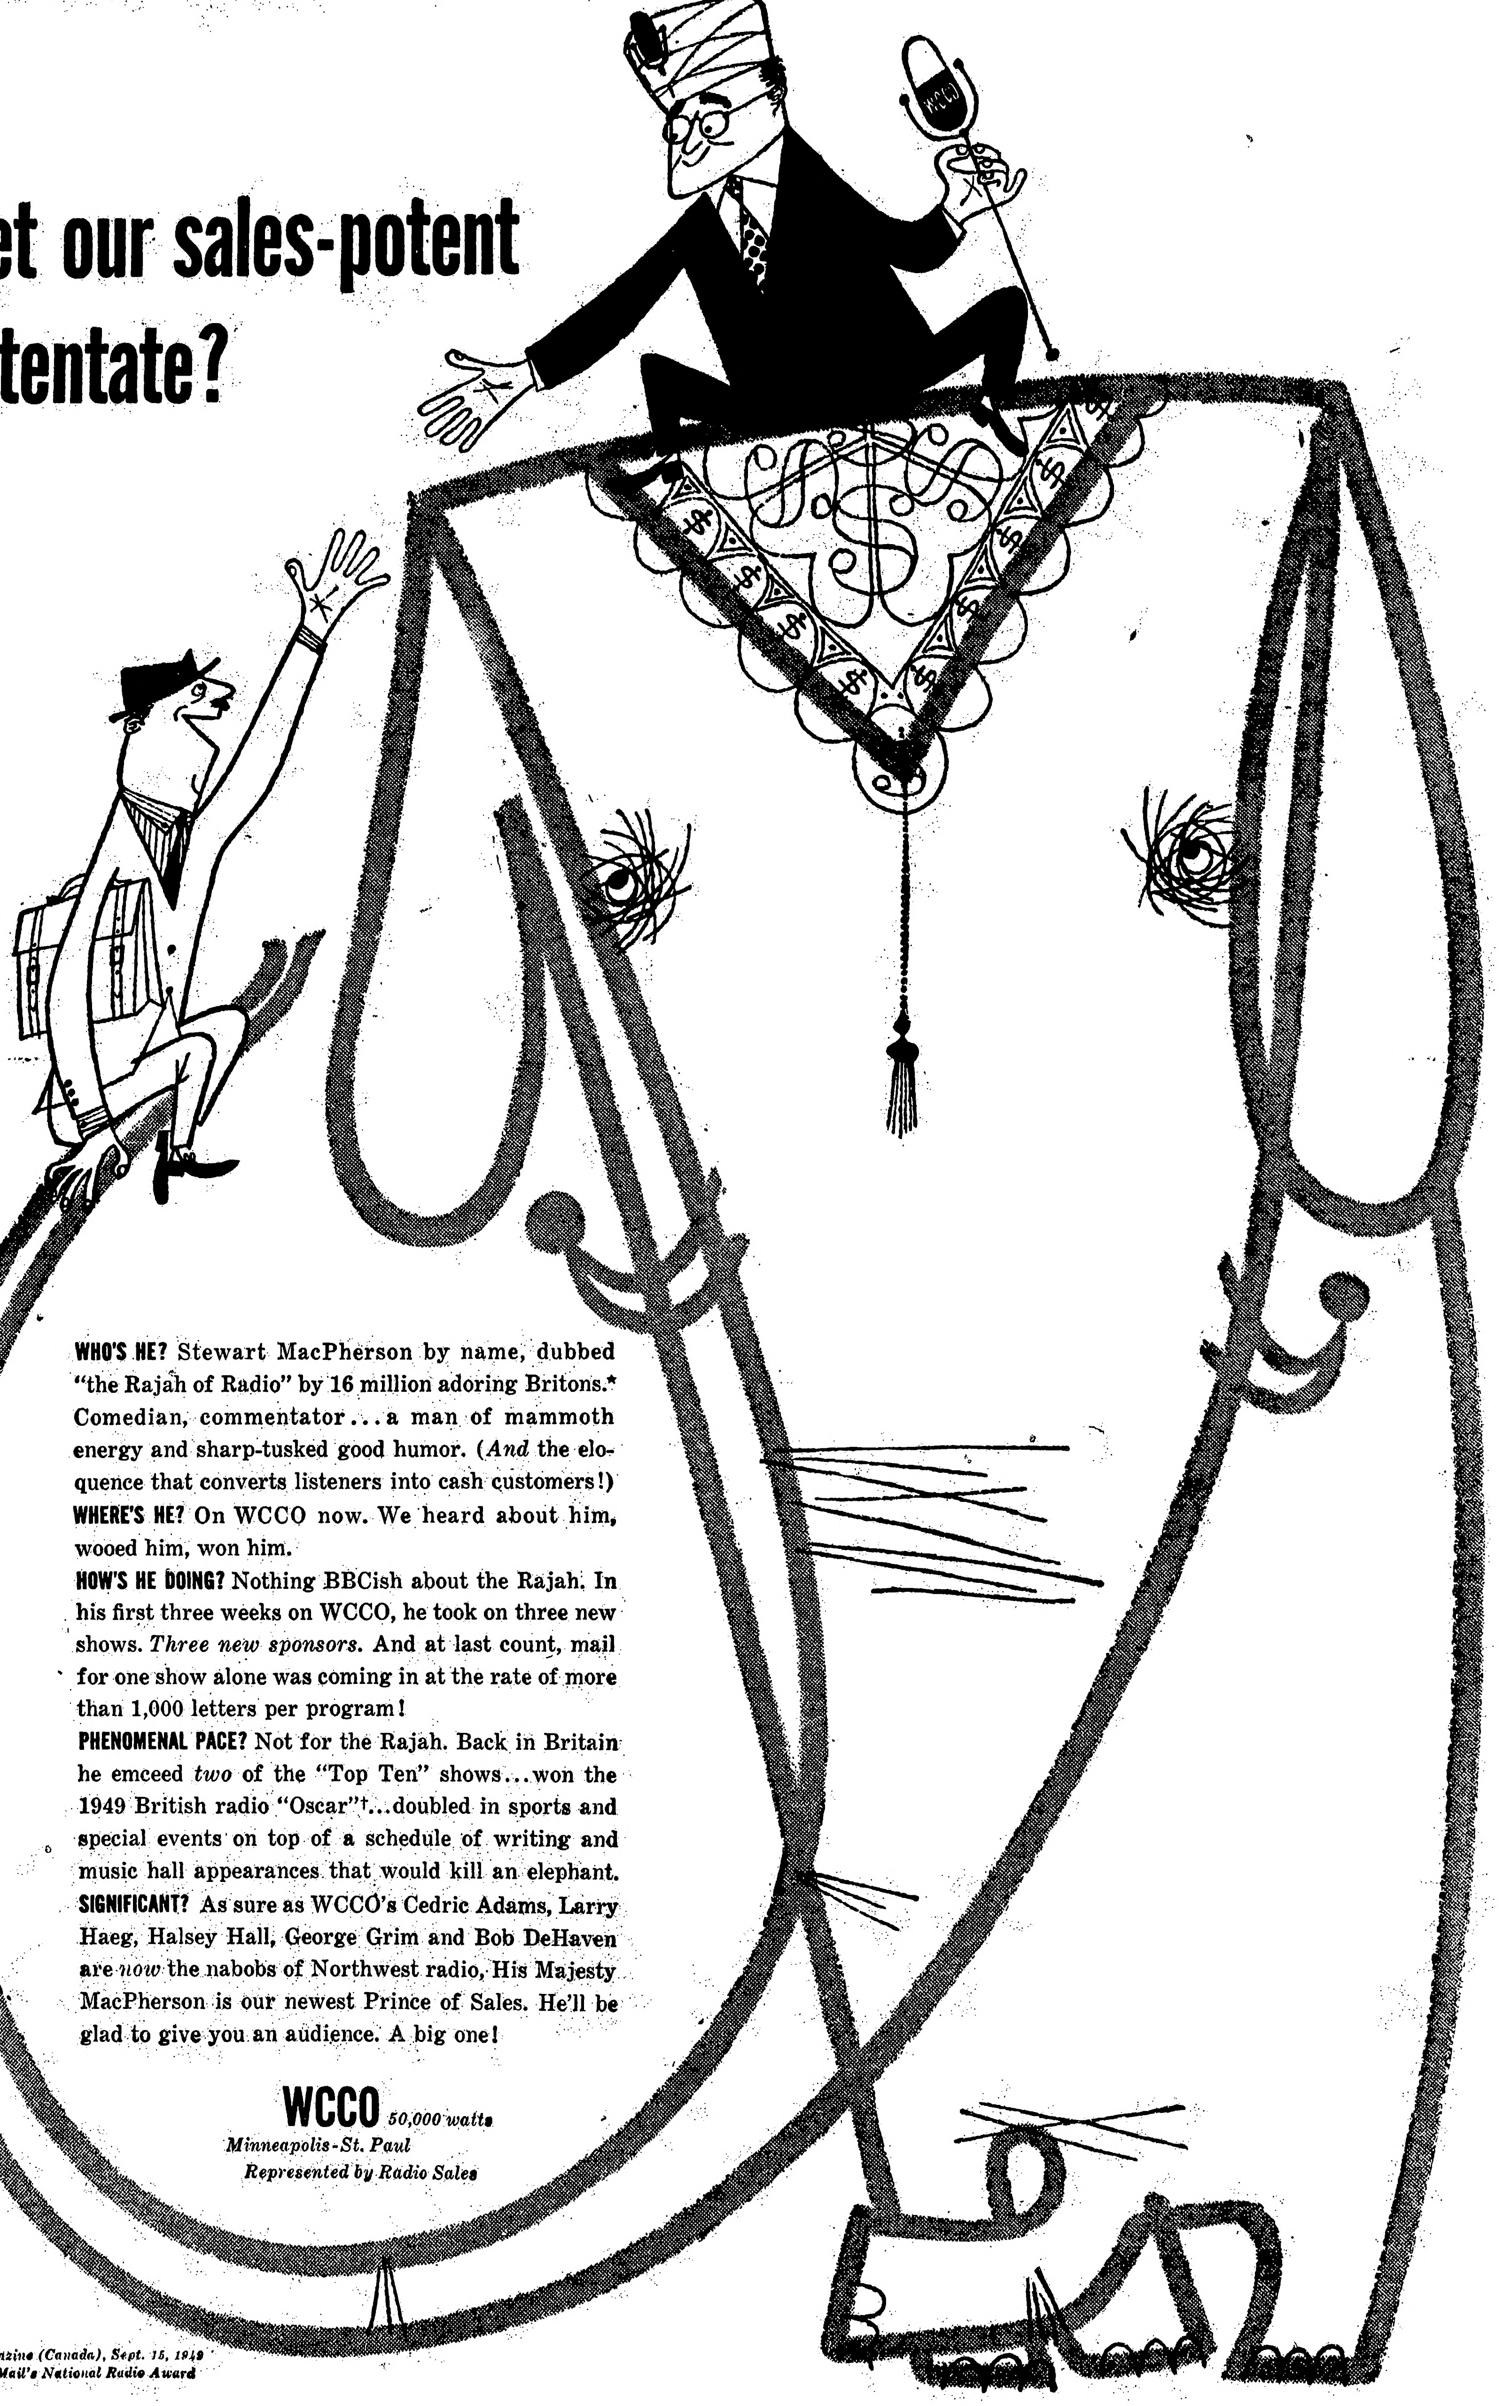
FIVE BOROUGHS QUIZ
With Vivian Farrar; Ben Grauer, Grover Whalen, guests
Producer: Hal Schaffel
Director: Peggy Gannon
30 Mins.; Wed., 7:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WPIX, New York

This quizzer is of purely local interest, pitting boys and girls from New York's five boroughs against each other in a geography-history-civics bee. To give the queries a visual slant, youngsters had to identify scenes from models borrowed from museums and to identify some historic hats. Youngsters were bright and showed good knowledge of their city, although as might be expected they were not too familiar with some subjects (such as celebs of a generation ago).

Vivian Farrar made a pleasant femcee. Ben Grauer, who was by her side for most of the broad-

(Continued on page 34)

Met our sales-potent potentate?



WHO'S HE? Stewart MacPherson by name, dubbed "the Rajah of Radio" by 16 million adoring Britons.* Comedian, commentator... a man of mammoth energy and sharp-tusked good humor. (And the eloquence that converts listeners into cash customers!)

WHERE'S HE? On WCCO now. We heard about him, wooed him, won him.

HOW'S HE DOING? Nothing BBCish about the Rajah. In his first three weeks on WCCO, he took on three new shows. Three new sponsors. And at last count, mail for one show alone was coming in at the rate of more than 1,000 letters per program!

PHENOMENAL PACE? Not for the Rajah. Back in Britain he emceed two of the "Top Ten" shows...won the 1949 British radio "Oscar"†...doubled in sports and special events on top of a schedule of writing and music hall appearances that would kill an elephant.

SIGNIFICANT? As sure as WCCO's Cedric Adams, Larry Haeg, Halsey Hall, George Grim and Bob DeHaven are now the nabobs of Northwest radio, His Majesty MacPherson is our newest Prince of Sales. He'll be glad to give you an audience. A big one!

WCCO 50,000 watts
Minneapolis-St. Paul
Represented by Radio Sales

*Maclean's Magazine (Canada), Sept. 15, 1949
†London Daily Mail's National Radio Award

RTDG Girds for Jurisdiction Battle With SDG Over TV Directors, Prods.

Hollywood, March 21.

Radio Television Directors Guild council held a hurried meeting following the Screen Directors Guild move last week to challenge jurisdiction over video directors and producers.

Videoites were taken by surprise by the SDG move. Session was chairmanned by Los Angeles local prexy Murray Bolen who, after a two-hour huddle, was instructed by the council of eight to huddle with SDG tele consultant Edgar J. Leaman. Bolen is expected to arrange a meeting for later in the week.

RTDG local prexy criticized the SDG for making its move public before making plans known to the TV group, declaring such actions are generally preceded by notification. Bolen admitted some of his Guild members had been approached by the SDG but he had interpreted it as "spadework" not to be taken seriously at this time.

He believes the vidgroup is within its rights in claiming jurisdiction, having 36 directors in its membership out of a round total of 45. Every station is represented on the roster except Don Lee, which has not been "pressed." He said his Guild would meet the challenge of the SDG up to a final determination as bargaining agent by the National Labor Relations Board. RTDG has an AFL charter.

National office of the RTDG yesterday (Tues.) backed its Coast local in its jurisdictional dispute with the SDG. RTDG stressed the fact that it had the AFL's backing for jurisdiction in the TV directorial field and that it already had pacts in New York with CBS-TV, ABC-TV, NBC-TV, and WPIX, and was in negotiations with WOR-TV. In Chicago it has AM pacts with the four webs and members at the four network video outlets, although no contracts have been signed.

Wrigley Gives Autry Okay on TV Films; Reissues a Poser

Chicago, March 21.

Gene Autry, casting jealous eyes at Hopalong Cassidy's tele-inspired spurt of popularity, will produce and star in a series of six 30-minute TV films slated for early summer production in Hollywood. Pics will be designed to test audience response and will not be aimed at any particular sponsor. Autry was here last week and got clearance on the project from Wm. Wrigley Co., sponsor of his radio show. Gum company has been paying cowboy star $500 a week extra for staying away from video.

Autry's move into teevee films seems likely to throw a hitch into Republic's plans to peddle 50 of western favorite's full-length pictures to TV clients for $1,000,000. Republic's Herbert Yates reportedly had turned down an offer from MCA of $750,000 for the old Autry product.

Autry's KOWL Sale

Washington, March 21.

Gene Autry has sold his 50% interest in KOWL, Santa Monica, Calif. Control of the station goes to Arthur H. Croghan, who bought Autry's stock for $80,000. FCC okayed deal yesterday (Tues.).

HENRY WHITE TO CBS; GORDON AS WV PREZ

With Henry S. White leaving World Video to take over as associate program chief for CBS television, the indie package agency's board last week elected Richard H. Gordon, Jr., heretofore exec veepee, to replace White as prez. Latter joins Jerry Danzig, who is to retain his current duties, as associate to CBS-TV program director Charles Underhill.

Wallace A. Ross, publisher of Ross TV Reports, was appointed sales chief of World Video and also was voted stock in the organization. Ross Reports will continue to be published under his name, with a new staff taking over to supervise the operation. John Steinbeck continues as v.p. and retains his stock interest.

WCPO-TV's Passion Play

Cincinnati, March 21.

The Passion Play, 2½-hour dramatic story of Christ's Passion and death, which has been an institution in Cincinnati since 1918, will be telecast this year by WCPO-TV on Passion Sunday (26) at 2 p. m.

Station will televise the play, under the direction of the Franciscan Fathers, from the auditorium of St. John's school, where it has been presented 10 times every Lenten season for the past 33 years.

Drama uses a cast of over 100 and a chorus of 30 voices.

Philly TV Sidewalks No Longer Taken in 10 P.M.; WCAU's Vanda Expands

Philadelphia, March 21.

Charles Vanda, Coast radio and television exec who recently came here as director of television for the WCAU stations, balked at the notion that Philadelphia folds at 10 p.m. and has expanded the station's programming time until midnight. "The Ghost Rider" is run Monday through Friday from 11 p.m. to midnight and "Off the Record" has been added on Saturday nights from 10:30 to midnight.

"Up to now, there seems to have been some sort of rule that television must shut down at 10 o'clock," Vanda said. "We certainly think the television set owners deserve a better break than that. They're entitled to good programming at a time when the kids are asleep and they can sit back and relax.

Indicative of the public response to WCAU-TV's new late program schedule was the breakdown of telephone service in the entire midtown area when "Off the Record," a quizzer, premiered recently. "The reaction of televiewers to 'Off the Record' is very encouraging," Vanda added. "I think it proves we are on the right track and it's a good signpost for other television stations to consider."

Vanda conceived the idea for "The Ghost Rider" program (5:30 to 6:30 p.m.), which consists of two principal ingredients: a daily first-run western film and a "performance card" for youthful viewers, use of which by parents makes televiewing a reward for children. "We have enlarged this program to include the late-evening showing, primarily because we want parents to see what sort of entertainment we are showing children.

"Response to the afternoon showing of the 'Ghost Rider' has run well over 10,000 during the first three weeks," Vanda stated. "In addition, all our surveys show adults want to see these programs, too." Letter replies from adults praising the late film programs have convinced Vanda, Philly is no early-to-bed town.

BBC 'CAFE' TV SHOW TO GET U.S. SPONSOR

"Cafe Continental," top-rated BBC television show, will bow on eight non-interconnected U. S. stations April 20 sponsored by Conmar Zippers, via William Weintraub agency. Series of hour-long monthly telecasts, which has been on BBC for four years, will consist of 13 quarter-hour shows in the American version. It will be filmed in London with John Nasht producing and Henry Caldwell directing, with the same French, German, Belgium and other Continental talent used on the British stanza.

Series will star as hostess Isabel Begley, currently playing the lead in the London production of "Oklahoma!"

Nasht, who arrived here last week, returned to England yesterday (Tues.). After winding up lensing of "Continental," Nasht will go to Paris to shoot series, "Follies Parisienne," with European nitery and vaude acts, which will be offered here for fall TV sponsorship.

Stations carrying "Continental" initially are WNBT, N. Y.; WBZ, Boston; WPTZ, Philadelphia; KNBH, L. A.; WGN, Chicago; WSB, Atlanta; KSD, St. Louis; and WBAB-TV, Fort Worth.

ABC AWAITING COIN NOD ON NEW TVERS

ABC-TV will decide this week whether to take the financial plunge to launch several new video series for spring showcasing as sustainers. If web prexy Bob Kintner okays the expenditure of a large chunk of program coin, as appears likely, it will be to hypo time billings with new product.

The network is already committed to air an Art Ford series and Phillips H. Lord's "Golden Game," Bible charade using nonprofessionals which preems April 2 at 6:30 p. m. preceding Paul Whiteman. Among the stanzas being considered if the budget comes through is "Counsellor at Law," based on the Elmer Rice play which Universal-International filmed with John Barrymore. Series would be scripted under Rice's supervision by Sig Miller and Elihu Weiner, with Sam Wanamaker pencilled in for the title role. "Counsellor" was seen as a one-shot on "Philco Television Playhouse," with Paul Muni, who starred in the Broadway production, in the lead. Series is being packaged by Martin Stone in cooperation with Rice and U-I.

The programming hypo follows ABC-TV's policy of first building up its technical plant (in which it has sunk $8,200,000) before investing heavily in shows. Now that its facilities have been completed, the time may be ripe for expansion in the field of showmanship.

Loewi Says Daytime Programs Necessary To Make Coin in Tele

Hollywood, March 21.

Commander Mortimer Loewi, director of DuMont television, here for two weeks on business, says all television stations must move into daytime programming if they are to make money. Nighttime beaming alone won't support the medium, he said.

Loewi cited KFI-TV and KLAC-TV as having the right approach. These stations, he pointed out, are hitting the buying audience and, at the same time, are holding down production costs.

The FCC's "freeze" is preventing quality programming, Loewi said. He pointed out that if the "freeze" is lifted there will be more stations and more sets which, in turn, would mean more coin for programming.

Loewi will be here until the end of this week discussing a closer affiliation with Don Lee's KTSL. The DuMont director is dickering for a closer exchange of kinescope programs with KTSL.

CHI HOTTEST TV SET MARKET IN MIDWEST

Chicago, March 21.

Chicago is the hottest teevee set market in the midwest, according to a report issued last week by Chi Federal Reserve bank. Tele, radio and phonograph sales here in January were 98.8 per cent higher than same month last year. Chi sales spiraled the gain for the entire Seventh (Midwest) District 80.9% above 1949 monthly average.

Next in line in sales increase was Milwaukee, up 58.6%; Indianapolis up 28%, and other cities in district up 28.8%.

MCA Will Now Rep L.A. Grunt-&-Groaners For Television Shows

Hollywood, March 21.

MCA will agent wrestlers locally. Deal was set here last week with Johnny Doyle, promoter, and name wrestlers. Move is a logical one for the talent agency which has had its eye on the grunt-and-groaners since they proved themselves top television entertainment prior to banishing themselves from the medium.

Move of MCA into the wrestling field means than behemoths will be back on TV—if the agency can get the fee currently being asked for a single card. Agency is asking $3,000 for two hours of grunting one night a week. Figure means that sponsor would have to come up with between $4,500 and $5,000 to cover the rights, station time and facilities charges.

Present plans call for wrestling to be beamed on either Friday or Saturday night only. This means bouts must come from Ocean Park Arena or Jeffries Barn; both small factories. It is understood that name torso tossers being repped by MCA would refuse to go into any arena where teevee cameras

(Continued on page 34)

WJBK-TV's Pix Package

Detroit, March 21.

Total of 49 feature pix, released by Eagle Lion in 1945, 1946, and 1947, have been purchased by WJBK-TV at package price of $12,250.

Features will become a regular weekly supplement to WJBK-TV's programming, and for summer hiatus use.

Tele Chatter

New York

Dr. Peter Goldmark, CBS research chief, bedded with penicillin poisoning . . Diana Herbert, daughter of playwright F. Hugh Herbert, guesting on DuMont's Vincent Lopez show tomorrow night (Thurs.) . . Boltaflex buying a participating run on WJZ-TV's afternoon show, "Market Melodies" . . . Verne Behnke, formerly with Video Varieties, named sales rep of CBS-TV's film syndication department.

Reed Brown, Jr., who played the jury foreman on "Philco Television Playhouse" Sunday (19), broke his ankle shortly before the broadcast but went on despite the injury. He was taken to the hospital after the show.

John Derr, CBS associate sports director, directed wrestling and boxing pickups for CBS-TV when Judson Bailey was called home to West Va. last week because of illness in family . . Ted Esterbrook new director at WPIX . . Larry Lowenstein, Benton & Bowles flack, doubled as bit-thesper on "Big Story" Friday (17) . . American Home Products expanding use of WJZ-TV's "TV Telephone Game" to 30 participations weekly . . Matt Harlib, associate director of CBS-TV's "Goldbergs," to wed Dorothy Nestler in May . . John Ryan switched last week from WQXR to WOR-TV sales staff . . ABC-TV last week closed-circuited Packard's "Holiday Hotel," which preems tomorrow (Thurs.) with film import Denise Darcel guesting.

Chicago

Hal Polaire of Sandra TV Productions is producer of WENR-TV's "Courtesy Hour" . . . Sheila John Daly, Chi Trib columnist, launched tele amateur show on WGN-TV March 20 . . . Fred Kilian, WENR-TV program director, in Detroit last week looking over operations of WXYZ-TV . . . Dorsey Connors, WNBQ's woman commentator, started new five-minute cross-the-board strip March 20, from 10:10 to 10:15 p.m. Clifton Utley's news telecast, formerly heard at that time, moved to 10:15 p.m. slot . . . Jerry Murad's Harmonicats to headline acts on "Courtesy Hour," WENR-TV, March 24 . . . Fran Allison's new personal manager is Al Levy . . . Marian Vinay is scripting WGN-TV's "Hollands Happiness House" . . . Arthur Godfrey will do his end of "Arthur Godfrey and His Friends" show from here March 29. Rest of cast will be in New York . . . Martha Rountree addressed annual joint luncheon of Assn. of Commerce and Industry and Business and Professional Women here March 15 . . . New WNBQ production assistant is Fred Giles . . . Cliff Norton, comic on NBC-TV's "Garroway at Large" show, and wife, Patsy, celebrated their joint birthdays March 21 . . . Nearly 6,000 entries came in during first two days of a puppy-naming contest being conducted on "Quiz Kids" televersion.

'Hot Development' From Stanton Pitch Due at FCC Color TV Hearing Today

Washington, March 21.

FCC resumes hearings on color television tomorrow (Wed.) with Frank Stanton of CBS and Dr. E. W. Engstrom of RCA making direct bids for adoption of their systems. Advance interest was in a reported "hot development" stemming from Stanton's testimony. Arthur Matthews of Color Television, Inc., which has regained its position as a contender for authorization, will also testify.

FCC hearings last week on color television definitely proved that the proceedings are shaking out of the laboratories improvements that were supposed to be not feasible only a few months ago. With Dr. Peter Goldmark of CBS reporting that he has gotten 525-line definition into his color system and David Smith of Philco disclosing that his company is working on a single tube, there appeared to be justification for hope that the "ideal" system might yet be developed.

These outstanding developments led Commissioner Frieda Hennock to suggest that the manufacturing industry now get together to help CBS over its big hurdle—compatibility. She asked Smith if Philco would help out. Smith, while expressing the belief a compatible system at reasonable cost can be developed, didn't think compatibility could be given the CBS system. As far as he was concerned, CBS color should be abandoned as a solution of the problem.

But Dr. Goldmark was more insistent than ever that the CBS system should be adopted. On the basis of the performance of other systems, he didn't see how the Commission could set standards for any but the CBS process.

Suppose RCA perfects its single tube, he was asked. That would make no difference, he declared, as far as the RCA color system is concerned. It would still have problems of color stability, cost and bulk of design, he said.

What about multiple standards, Commissioner Robert Jones asked him; would CBS be afraid to compete with other systems in selling its system to the public?

No, said Goldmark, CBS wouldn't be afraid. But not being a manufacturer of sets, how could it, he asked, get its system to the public? There would be no prob-

(Continued on page 34)

Stromberg Cancelling Al Morgan, Claiming He Two-Timed on Plugs

Chicago, March 21.

Stromberg-Carlson is reported to be writing Al Morgan out of company's weekly 30-minute show on DuMont web when singer-pianist's contract comes up for renewal April 15. Tiff between sponsor and star grew out of a series of radio spots Morgan made for Motorola Television recently.

Stromberg company, which is using the DuMont stint to plug its own video sets had warned Morgan against airing the Motorola spots while under contract to them but warnings, they say, were ignored. The company has disclosed no future plans for the show.

NBC Kine-Auditions Paul Winchell, Marshall

NBC television, getting set for the upcoming summer hiatus period, lensed kinescope auditions this week on two new packages—Herbert Marshall starring in a TV version of his ex-radio whodunit series, "Man Called X," and a half-hour vaudeo program starring Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney. If the kines emerge successful, the two shows will probably be used as replacements during the summer in the hope that they will attract sponsors for a commercial ride next season.

"Man Called X" is a video version of the mellers in which Marshall formerly starred on the NBC radio web. Winchell and Mahoney, with the exception of occasional guest shots, have not been seen on TV since the windup of their Bigelow-sponsored series on CBS-TV last year.

Television Reviews

Continued from page 31

cast, helped get across the questions and was excellent in a charades spot. Grover Whalen, on hand to plug Gotham, told of the city's fabulous role as host to visiting millions. His guest stint, however, could have been more closely integrated into the quiz format. And more could have been done to point up the borough rivalry as a hypo to viewer interest. Bril.

VACATION WONDERLAND
With Richard Joseph
Producer: Caroline Burke
Writers: Rick Fredericks, Joseph
30 Mins.; Sundays, 3:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WNBT, N. Y.

This is a bright inexpensive travelog aired with an assist from Pan American World Airways and Panagra (Pan American-Grace) plugging tourism via the faster air route. It's done obliquely, with accent on the fast air coverage in limited time and on modest budgets to South America. Past Sunday afternoon's stint dwelt on the west coast of S. A., embracing Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia. Argentina and Brazil next week. While not bankrolled by Pan-Air it plays like it should be—in fact figures a natural for that type sponsor.

Richard Joseph, as president of the Travel Writers Assn. and as travel editor of Esquire, gives the travelog authority. He also speaks from experience, getting over his first-hand knowledge of each territory, sans any of the dry Baedeker approach. His narration is always off-screen, and the scripting is in the dryly humorous technique of Pete (MGM) Smith, which isn't a bad standard at any time. The pix shots are good, informative and replete in historical as well as the lush tourist life appeal. Accent is put on how far the Yanqui dollar stretches, good hotels and food at low dollar exchange, etc. Basically good travel pix, Joseph further adds values with his chatty information. Abel.

ADVENTURES IN SEWING
With Louise Winslow
Writer: Miss Winslow
Producer: Ray Culley
Director: Charles Ranallo
30 Mins.; Fri., 3:30 p.m.
APOLLO DIST. CORP., SULZMAN DIST. CORP.
WJZ-TV, N. Y.
(Fuller, Smith & Ross, Inc.)

"Adventures in Sewing" is a practical, educational stanza for the average housewife with an inclination and aptitude toward needlework. New series, appropriately enough, is bankrolled on WJZ-TV by two firms which distribute Domestic Sewmachines in the metropolitan area. Sponsors signed for 13 weeks and in that period viewers will be briefed on custom tailoring, drapery and curtain making and similar operations.

Filmed program amounts to a one-woman stint since Louise Winslow works unassisted for a full 30 minutes to point out tailoring hints and demonstrate the strong points of the Domestic Sewmachine. On Friday's (17) airer, she outlined the steps necessary for her audience to make a skirt and jacket.

However, if Miss Winslow is trying to convert women into machine users who have no previous experience with them, she went through her routines a bit too rapidly on program caught. On the other hand, her reprise of machine sewing's basic steps will be found an excellent refresher by most housewives who already have learned the art either in school or from relatives. She competently handled the commercials. Gilb.

FIVE STAR FINAL
With Bob Elson, Roy Topper
Director-Producer: E. Jonny Graff
15 Mins.; Tues. and Thurs., 6:45 p.m.
DORMEYER MIXER CO.
WBKB, Chicago

Bob Elson and Roy Topper squeeze a goodly supply of sturdy video fare into the 15-minute segment. The flexible format, using news flashes, sports comment and guest interviewee, offers a little something of interest to all members of the adult audience.

Elson, backed by years of radio experience, handles the bulk of the show's gab easily and with good poise. He ad libs a few minutes of sports news and on show caught (14) did most of the interviewing of guest, Cornelia Otis Skinner. Topper, less at ease than his partner, contributes a series of news "scoops."

The middle commercial, a demonstration of sponsor's food mixer done by Jane Quinn in adjoining kitchen set, was smoothly worked into stint. Although this show was nicely balanced by presence of Miss Skinner, Elson-Topper duo must keep in mind kitchen appliance sponsor wants show to appeal to femme viewers and should angle their material accordingly. Camera work was fluid and firm direction kept program at good pace. Dave.

Tele Followups

Continued from page 31

sterdam had a fairly amusing mock-biog monolog, in which he accompanied himself with comic punctuating phrases on the cello. Art Carney, as the waiter stooge, was also handicapped by soggy scripting.

Eileen O'Dare, an acro-dancer, did a fair turn that included some neat flips, but on the whole the act lacked flair. Another colleen (it was St. Patrick's Day eve) bypassed the Irish theme to do "You and the Night and the Music," one of the better spots in the broadcast.

Final number was a takeoff on the Steve Brodie legend with some whacky action in a Bowery saloon. It was an uneven sketch, and didn't rise above the slapstick level.

Ed Sullivan turned actor on CBS-TV's "Toast of the Town" Sunday night (19) and did a good job of it. Emcee took part, with David Burns and Mickey Deems, in a skit lampooning the medical profession, which was lifted from the late Broadway revue, "Alive and Kicking." Trio, with Metopera soprano Mimi Benzell also joining in the fun, made it the high spot of an otherwise lacklustre evening, even though the American Medical Assn. might have objected.

Program suffered from extremely poor routining of the acts. Hillbilly erper Frieda Wing, with little to offer except a couple of overdone hick gestures, led off. Her amateurish routine was enough to chase 'em from their sets. And then she came back for a second number. Then Miss Benzell, who scored in her solo spot with "Over the Rainbow" and an aria from "Romeo and Juliet," held down the next-to-closing, where for top impact she should have been slotted last.

Dunhills, trio of fast-stepping tapsers, did well in the final slot but, appearing after Miss Benzell, found it difficult to sustain viewer interest. Herkie Styles, while showing promise as a comedian, never projected fully. He spent more time berating the studio audience for their deadpanning than he did in trying to make them laugh. Ted and Flo Vallett impressed as a good sight act with their intricate baton-twirling.

Grunt & Groan

Continued from page 33

are located with the exception of the Burbank and Ocean Park palaces. Prior to the ban KECA-TV was telensing from Ocean Park and KNBH was readying its crews for beaming out of Jeffries Barn. Stations are now sponsor searching as tab is too heavy to permit sustaining beaming.

MCA deal set by Mickey Rockford calls for agency to take its 10% off the top. Promoters and wrestlers will get their share of the coin from the remaining. Station exec said wrestlers were to get their cut according to stature and position on the card.

TV Film Producers

Continued from page 29

N. J., maintain that the picture it furnishes compares favorably with the finest commercial theatre projection. While details of the scanner have not been revealed, it is said to work on a principal similar to the carbon arc projection of regular film houses. Vidfilm producers, meanwhile claim they are forced to showcase their product via the old iconoscopes, which the broadcasters tossed out of live programming several years ago in favor of the more sensitive studio orthicons, and projectors that in many cases have been adapted from the 16m "home movie" projectors.

RCA spokesmen declared this week that the scanner still has numerous technical bugs and, with the outfit's chief engineers tied up with color TV currently, they have had little chance to work on it. Chief difficulty, they said, was the synchronization of film projection with TV scanning, in that film runs at the rate of 30 frames per second, while TV scans at 24 frames.

Network engineers, meanwhile, claim they are all pushing for better film reception and are gradually licking the problem. Reiterating that the scanner is still in the labs, they claim other techniques now in the works may be equally good.

Vidfilm producers point out that, once they get their feet in the TV door, the networks might lose whatever program control they still possess. Agencies and sponsors, they aver, can deal directly with the film producers for all shows, which will leave the webs only in the position of time salesmen. In addition, they point out, if a majority of the programs now being transmitted live make the switch to film, the webs will lose whatever revenue they derive in the way of studio facilities charges. Thus, according to the vidfilmers, the webs want to keep them out of business as long as possible.

TV Color

Continued from page 33

lem, he said, if RCA would make CBS sets "but I have a hunch they're not excited about the idea."

Color For Survival: Goldmark

If color is denied a commercial standard now, said Goldmark, research would be discouraged "and I think it would be the death blow" of the art.

Jones asked what would be the effect of color authorization on patent monopoly. Goldmark replied that "a minor revolution" has been going on among big patentees, that there's less and less monopoly. "We in Columbia," he said, "are trying to give more and more service with patents. So is RCA. I think it's a trend."

What's really needed to stimulate color advancement, said Goldmark, is commercialization.

Indication that the Commission will dig deeper into the possibilities of multiple standards was shown in an exchange between Jones and Smith. Jones cited testimony given the Commission in 1940 when black and white standards were being considered which showed that DuMont favored dual standards allowing both 441-line and 625-line definition.

Did Smith know, Jones asked, that at that time RCA's Dr. E. W. Engstrom testified that sets which could receive two systems of black and white TV could be built for only $10 to $15 more than the cost of single standard sets?

Smith didn't recollect and Jones asked him to brush up on the records for further examination at later hearings.

TV Quizzers

Continued from page 29

pact on radio, are readily accepted by the TV audience and the show catches on.

Listed in the latter category are such programs as CBS-TV's "Winner Take All" and "Beat the Clock" and NBC-TV's "Who Said That?" "Winner" ran several years as an across-the-board radio airer but was subsequently dropped. On TV, it was bankrolled for awhile by Chevrolet Dealers and, after they dropped it, has been retained as a CBS sustainer. "Beat the Clock," starting next month on CBS, also had a sustaining run on AM but failed to click. "Who Said That?" started as an NBC simulcast, but the AM version was dropped, while the TV show has snared acceptable ratings in most market areas and is now being co-opped by NBC.

Other video quiz shows now being aired range from the high-budgeted "Stop the Music" (ABC) and NBC's "Kollege of Musical Knowledge" (Kay Kyser) to the simple audience participation programs such as ABC-TV's "Auction-Aire." CBS now has "What's My Line?" and has recently kinescoped radio's "We Take Your Word" for audition purposes. NBC, in addition to those mentioned, now airs "Break the Bank" and "Quiz Kids" on both AM and TV.

Inside Television

Camel cigarets, via William Esty, is prepping a new series of 40-50 minute commercials, which Trans-Film is shooting. Pix are budgeted on a sliding scale from $1,500 to $8,000. Interviews with individuals, e.g., the control tower operator at an airport, are brought in for around $1,500, testimonials from celebs such as Vaughn Monroe are more expensive and animated cartoons come to between $3,000 and $4,000. Musical comedy routines, which are elaborately set, costumed, cast and choreographed, hit as high as $8,000.

Approach to the 60-second vidpix is getting a quality product, and costs of the individual commercial are determined by its requirements, rather than the overall budget. Attempt is made to get full entertainment values to impress the "how mild can a cigaret be" jingle in the public mind, through a variety of techniques. In the past 18 months, Camels has used almost 200 different spots. In addition to chain breaks, the commercials are used on "Man Against Crime," "Camel Newsreel" and "Ed Wynn Show."

New and intense competition for television's Saturday night audience has prompted DuMont to expand its ballyhoo for that night. Web has at stake its "Cavalcade of Stars," which topped all Saturday night ratings until NBC moved in a month ago with its two-and-a-half-hour "Saturday Night Revue." DuMont, as a result, has expanded and strengthened its programming on both sides of "Stars" and is now touting, via paid newspaper ads and publicity handouts, the four-hour round of shows it is offering.

With "Stars" holding down the 9 to 10 period, DuMont starts its Saturday night parade with "Dinner Date," from 8 to 8:30, featuring the Vincent Lopez orch and guestars and originating via remote pickup from the grillroom of the Hotel Taft, N. Y. From 8:30 to 9, "Rocky King, Inside Detective," featuring Roscoe Karns, takes over. From 10 o'clock, immediately after "Stars," until its midnight closing, the web carries pro wrestling matches from Marigold Gardens, Chicago.

CBS television, which has encountered considerable difficulty in lining up its Thursday night programming for the last several months, has come up with a pattern which is to be firm—at least until the summer hiatus period sets in. Starting early next month, the web will air Robert Q. Lewis' "The Show Goes On" each Thursday from 8 to 9; the Esso-sponsored "Alan Young Show" from 9 to 9:30; Ilka Chase's "Glamour-Go-Round," bankrolled by Harriet Hubbard Ayer, from 9:30 to 9:45, and "Beat the Clock," video version of the onetime radio quiz program, from 9:45 to 10:30. "Blues By Bargy" and a newsreel will close out the evening.

Indicative of CBS' earlier Thursday night programming throubles, the hour-long Lewis show started at a different time virtually every week. Constant moving was necessitated by the fact that "Inside U.S.A. With Chevrolet," which was dropped after last week's (16) stanza, was aired only on alternate weeks and by Miss Chase's show being only a 15-minute program. Giving "Beat the Clock" the unusual 45-minute running time, of course, will compensate for the latter factor in the new lineup.

The Hal Roaches, Senior and Junior, are in full production on television film commercials. Roaches will film one-minute TV blurbs for 35 different sponsors within the next two weeks. Sponsors include American Tobacco, General Foods, Gillette Razors, Drene and Ivory Soap. Studio will make an average of six blurbs for each of the 35 films. In addition father and son are putting before the cameras a General Motors feature length film and an audition telefilm of "Fibber McGee & Molly."

ABC-TV managed to hold on to Ronson's "20 Questions" (which WOR-TV airs in N. Y. and MBS carries on AM) although it was a close shave. Problem was that ABC had trouble delivering outlets in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus, markets which Ronson considered necessary for the deal. Web thought clearing the stations would be a simple matter, since in the Friday 8 p.m. spot DuMont has a sustainer, "Hands of Murder." But DuMont opened "Hands" for co-op sponsorship, and in the key Ohio cities DuMont dealers ordered the show. ABC trouble-shooters, however, went into the field last week and were able to clear time just two days before the preem,

---

Show biz and newspaper personalities, including Danton Walker, Earl Wilson, Ham Fisher, Alma Archer, Monica Lewis, Lisa Kirk and Johnny Thompson, will serve as auctioneers on "Beth-El Benefit Auction," which WOR-TV, N. Y., will air Saturday (25) from 5:30-6:30 p.m. Ray Morgan will emcee.

Merchandise such as tele sets, autos and radios will be auctioned off to contributors to the hospital's fund during the broadcast.

With producer Robert Montgomery acting for the first time next Monday night (27) in his "Lucky Strike Theatre" series via NBC-TV, the show will be one of the most ambitious yet staged on video. Play is to be an adaptation of "Ride the Pink Horse," with Montgomery repeating his role from the Universal film of several years back. Script calls for 23 speaking parts plus 35 extras, including 16 Mexican kids who are being recruited from the Spanish neighborhood in upper Manhattan. Thomas Gomez will have the leading supporting role.

Multiplicity of props will be capped by a full-sized carousel, imported intact from the amusement resort at Long Beach, L. I. Merry-go-round, measuring 22 feet in diameter, will occupy so much space at the WOR-TV studios (which NBC leases for this series) that the orchestra and live commercials will work from two studios in Radio City, N. Y., from where they'll be cut into the show on cue. Montgomery's next in the series is to be an adaptation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," for which the cast has not yet been set.

New television production technique to overcome the hazards of super-imposition shots will be tried out Friday night (24) on CBS-TV's "Ford Theatre" by producer Winston O'Keefe and director Marc Daniels. Adaptation of Sir James M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus" calls for a real garden of an English country home to dissolve into an "enchanted" garden for the second act fantasy. Instead of designing only the two gardens and then super-imposing the actors from one over the other, scenic designer Samuel Leve built two identical living-room sets, which are to be lined up side-by-side in the studio.

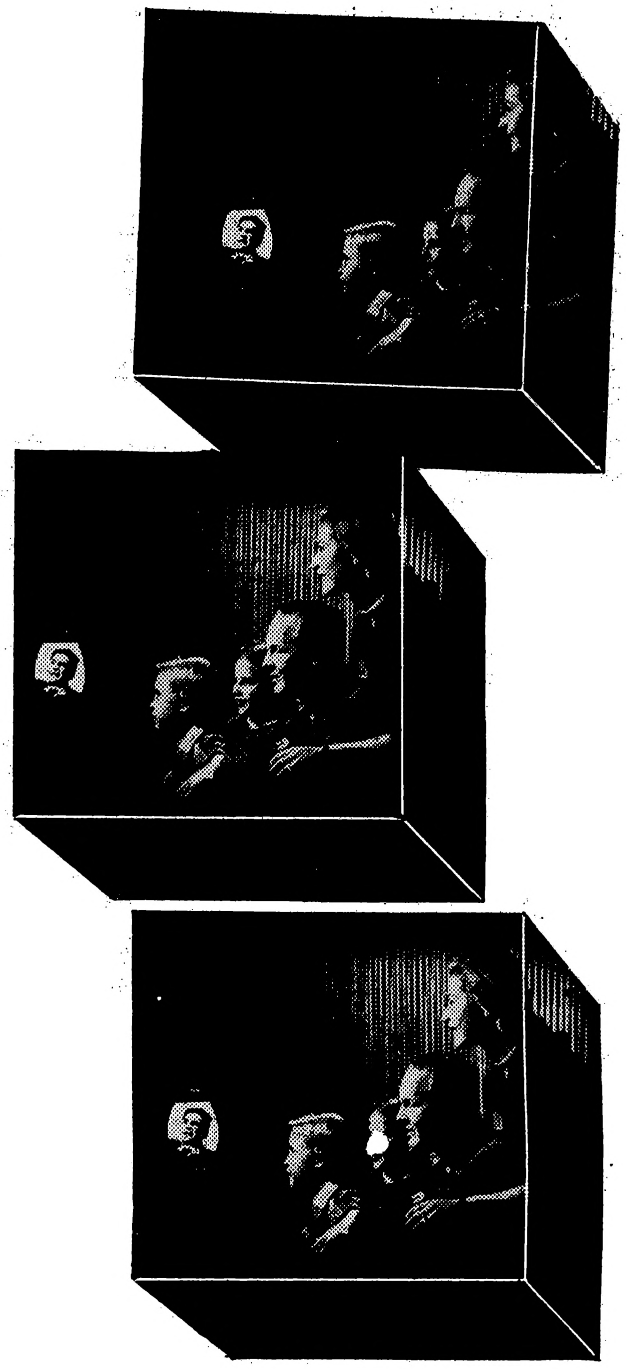
Actors will then move from one room to the other during the play, with the two separate gardens to be seen through the living-room windows. Cameras will then be able to shoot the thesps directly, instead of via super-imposition, which will provide the maximum light intensity usually lost in an s.i. shot. System will also eliminate the usual danger of aligning the actors correctly, one of the other hazards of super-imposing.

Merchandise representation being handled by Martin Stone Associates, indie radio-TV package outfit, is gradually assuming a position of major importance to the firm. Already exclusive agents for all merchandise carrying the name of either Howdy Doody or Brooklyn Dodger star Jackie Robinson, Stone this week set deals to represent Dodger Peewee Reese and Sonja Henie. Latter will endorse skate equipment, knit goods, etc.

Stone is planning a major campaign on the Robinson-Reese articles, plugging them to kids as the "greatest doubleplay in baseball" representing also the top doubleplay in tolerance and democracy. Indicating the payoff in handling the stuff, Macy's, N. Y. department store, is plugging Robinson-endorsed articles in its regular newspaper ads and Sears-Roebuck features them in its latest catalog.

In eight major markets

television circulation leads the largest magazine 3 to 2



IN eight major markets (New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Boston, Cleveland, Washington and Schenectady-Albany-Troy) the nation's largest magazine has a circulation of 1,715,854.*

In these same markets, television's circulation is 2,783,500† . . . over twice as large.

Your advertisement in a magazine is a combination of printed words and static illustrations.

Your advertisement in television is a combination of spoken words and living product demonstrations.

You can capitalize on the unsurpassed impact and the mass circulation of television, today. Your first move is to call your NBC Spot Salesman. His expert counsel will be invaluable in planning your television campaign in these eight major markets:

*Latest published market breakdown of circulation of the magazine
†NBC Research Dept. estimates February 1950

	Television Circulation†	Television Station
New York	1,060,000	WNBT
Chicago	388,000	WNBQ
Los Angeles	376,000	KNBH
Philadelphia	370,000	WPTZ
Boston	277,000	WBZ-TV
Cleveland	154,000	WNBK
Washington	101,000	WNBW
Schenectady-Albany-Troy	57,500	WRGB
	Total . . . 2,783,500

NBC SPOT SALES

NEW YORK • CHICAGO • CLEVELAND • HOLLYWOOD • SAN FRANCISCO

CBS Out on a Godfrey Limb

Continued from page 29

magazine, to the effect that Godfrey works with a short-handled broom, "so he can be closer to the dirt."

Coy Lays It on the Line

Washington, March 21.

FCC Chairman Wayne Coy's speech last week at the U. of Oklahoma Radio Conference is arousing considerable discussion here. In some respects it is considered his most important pronouncement since he assumed office over two years ago. What he said about "livery stable humor" and "horror" programs on radio and TV is attracting big press comment. His summation of the color television problem has driven the smart boys to wondering, "was it pro or anti-color?"

Coy's reference to the comedian who "gets so big that his network can no longer handle him" was believed to be aimed at Arthur Godfrey. This wasn't the first time Coy has lashed out at "bad taste" verging on "obscenity" in radio and video programs. Several months ago he broached the subject at a meeting here of the American Veterans Committee. He has spoken of it on other occasions. But complaints have been piling up and Coy decided to "shoot the works" on the subject in his Oklahoma address.

As Coy indicated, the Commission doesn't relish going after broadcasters on the obscenity issue and for that reason he appealed to them to clean house rather than force "such delicate matters as good taste" to be made a public proceeding.

Significantly Coy stated: "The Commission is rightly prohibited from censorship. On the other hand, it is required to see that the stations operate in the public interest. Violating the law regarding obscenity, indecency and profanity is not in the public interest. Poor taste is not in the public interest."

What is "the law" Coy referred to? It is a provision which, like the lottery law, was formerly a part of the Communications Act and is now in the U. S. Criminal Code. It provides: "Whoever utters any obscene, indecent, or profane language by means of radio communications shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both." FCC rules applicable to commercial broadcasting incorporate this section of the Code.

How the Commission would move if the "day of reckoning" comes has not yet been determined but in previous actions involving programming policy the approach has generally been through hearing of a station's license renewal application, with the decision setting out the agency's "more drastic remedy of governmental action."

However, it is believed that before things would come to such a pass the network would either pull out or tone down the offending program as pressure from affiliates reflects public opinion. In the last analysis, the public would force FCC's hand. Coy was attempting in his Oklahoma speech to cut corners by making the broadcasters do the job themselves and save the Commission a big headache.

Coy laid it on the line to broadcasters on programming policies. When the Commission, he said, considers a station's renewal of license, "it weighs the overall operation during its entire license period to determine if that overall operation has been in the public interest. The most effective day-to-day check on a licensee's program is an immediate and intelligent reaction from the listening public."

Consensus of reactions here to Coy's delineation of the "hydra-headed" color video problems was that it was pro tint, although giving little indication as to whether one system or more than one will be authorized. Considered significant was the chairman's remark that the color proceedings have advanced the art by months and years and will result "in a more enduring system of television" than if the Commission left it to chance for color to be developed "at some unknown date in the future."

In the light of his statement that failure to use the VHF and UHF bands for color would mean postponing the development for a generation, it was believed that action on color was implied in his speech.

WDSU's 'Split Down The Middle' Technique On AM-TV Operations

New Orleans, March 21.

In line with its overall expansion, WDSU has divided its single-unit radio and TV program setup into two separate operational entities, Robert D. Swezey, gen. mgr., announced Friday (17).

Decision was reached, he said, after station plans board survey showed two mediums could not be operated jointly for maximum results.

Stanley Holiday, who formerly headed department, has been named manager of AM and FM operations, and Ray Rich placed in charge of video programming and production. Holiday has been with WDSU since 1935, while Rich came here after Swezey assumed general management of WDSU and WDSU-TV.

Other appointments announced simultaneously were Leroy P. Laudemann, musical director; Carl Junker, director of TV operations; Mel Leavitt, sports director, and Mrs. Joyce Smith, director of women's programming.

WPIX MARCH SPONSORS COME IN LIKE LION

N. Y. Daily News' WPIX, continuing its drive for new bankrollers, snared 17 during the first two weeks of March for programs, participations and spots. Present rate, if it continues through the rest of the month, will top the February record, which was the peak for billings in the station's history.

Topping the list of new bankrollers is the local Studebaker Dealers organization who pacted for 13 weeks of wrestling from Hempstead, N. Y., starting tonight (Wed.). Agency is Roche, Williams & Cleary. Guinness Stout, through Hewitt, Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, signed for the "Guinness Cavalcade of Sports," at 15-minute sports reel, starting March 30 for 13 weeks. N. Y. News will pick up the tab on the weekly 45-minute "Voice of the People" forum; and Dynamic Electronics will bankroll a one-hour remote Saturday (25) to plug the opening of a new store.

Signing for spot commercials were Standard Brands, Jamaica Race Track and Nestles Candy. New participating sponsors include Shop by Mail, Associated Doll & Toy Co., Duke Industries, Jack Baker Sportswear, Schneider International Co., John Middleton Tobacco, Ukelele, Michael Electric and Kalart Cameras.

New Orleans—Ken Muller and Irwin F. Poche, Jr., video cameramen, and Bryon Dowty, announcer, were promoted to producer-director status by Ray Rich, newly appointed director of video operations of WCSU here.

From the Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY

Jim Lipton left last week for Greece, to play in Tanagra Films production of "Wheel of Fire." Actress wife, Shirley Blanc, will join him in Paris in June... Ted Granik of NBC's "American Forum of the Air" profiled by Ben Gross in Collier's, March 24... Ray Diaz upped to ABC's stations dept., with Reginald Willcocks filling the traffic manager spot... Father of Lester Gottlieb died Wednesday (15). Bob Heller subbed for the CBS producer last week... Margery Maude, Sylvia Leigh, Arline Blackburn, Sidney Smith, Gene Leonard and Jimmy Stephens new "David Harum" players... Arthur Kohl and Doris Dalton into "Helen Trent"... Frank Thomas, Jr., and Audrey Egan join "Our Gal Sunday"... Treva Frazee added to "Stella Dallas"... Jimmy Dobson added to "Lorenzo Jones"... Ronald Long and Elizabeth Morgan join "Young Widder Brown"... Helen Claire, Patsy Campbell, Richard Janaver, Ray Johnson and James Monks added to "Front Page Farrell."

Red Barber bowed as newspaper columnist last week, to sub for the Journal-American's Bill Corum for two months... ABC ad scripter Willis Parsons appendectomized Thursday (16)... Arnold Stang to appear at Yonkers Boy Scout circus Saturday (25)... Dan Seymour appointed chairman of judges for Boys Club of America contest... Alvin Sullum into NBC's "Road of Life"... Benton & Bowles basketballers, ad league champs, beat Time Mag last week... WJZ has given Nancy Craig an additional five minutes cross-the-board; she got three new sponsors... WOR's John Gambling and WJZ's Ed Fitzgerald duel for title of worst singer on WOR today (Wed.)... William Rafael, of ABC's script and production dept., now program manager of Radio Free Europe, which will beam recorded shows in six languages to the Continent... McCann-Erickson prexy Marion Harper, Jr., guest-speaks at Radio Execs Club tomorrow (Thurs.)... Bill Tabbert of "South Parific" goes into featured spot on CBS' "Main Street Music Hall" Sunday (26)... Norman Reader, French National Tourist flack chief, added to consultants committee of Radiodiffusion Francaise in North America.

MBS' Cecil Brown to Coast last weekend to address United Jewish Appeal on Israel... Youngsters appearing in Broadway shows and studying at Professional Children's School will be on the N. Y. edition of "Quiz Kids" (WNBC) Sunday (26)... Fred Freed doing a biog-series on a paraplegic vet for Bill Leonard's "This Is N. Y." on WCBS... Ralph Weil (WOV) off on a West Indies cruise... Jim Gaines (NBC) thrown for a virus loop... Marjorie Morrow, CBS audition director, vacationing in Caribbean... Johnny Olsen flying to Chicago March 29 to appear at National Assn. of Tobacco Dealers annual convention... Betty Scott appointed assistant to BBD&O's Jack Zoller, director of Cavalcade.

Sam J. Slate, N. Y. program director for BBC, flies to London today (Wed.) for three-week confab on American operations, with emphasis on video... Elliot Lawrence cutting special recordings for Voice of America in conjunction with his deejay show... Amalgamated Clothing Workers expanding sponsorship of ABC's "Town Meeting" co-op to include WMAL, Washington. Union now has WJZ... WLIB's Hotel Theresa studios in Harlem to be ready April 1... Master Glow floor polish will sponsor "Dr. Kildare" on WMGM starting March 29 Cecil Woodland, WCSS (Amsterdam, N. Y.) prez, in Gotham on visit.

IN CHICAGO

Rey Taylor leaves WGN post as traffic manager and supervisor of announcers to join WGN sales staff. Win Jolly moves into traffic and announcer super slot from assistant public relations post. Latter job taken over by Larry Whitney, up from WGN continuity acceptance office... James V. McConnell, NBC director of national spot sales, and Jacob Evans, national spot sales promotion manager, due here next week for confab with local NBC sales execs... Bob Finnigan, sportscaster and staff announcer, leaves WIND next week, being replaced by Bud Campbell up from WIBR, Baton Rouge, La... Frank Samuels, ABC v.p. in charge of western division, stopped off here last week enroute back to Coast from N. Y... John Harrington, WBBM news and sportscaster, has been pacted to broadcast 11 football games this fall for R. J. Reynolds... Vaughn Monroe's "Camel Caravan" will be aired on CBS from Marquette Univ., Milwaukee, March 25... John W. Mulholland has joined Chi NBC national spot sales staff. He was formerly radio sales rep with Independent Metropolitan Sales and WOAK, Oak Park, Ill... Richard Lewin, general manager of KTRE, Lufkin, Tex., visited MBS Central Division offices last week... "Music For You," WBBM's half-hour variety show, returns to CBS web March 26. Stint features singer Billy Leach and music of Frank Smith with WBBM orch. Skee Wolff is writer-producer... Nancy Wright, WGN vocalist, in Wesley hospital fighting flu bug last week... Andy Murphy joined WBBM-CBS public relations staff March 20... Paula Rae, formerly vocalist with Freddy Nagel band, new member of WGN's "Tom Moore Show"... Betty McCord is new secretary to Dave Moore, WBBM-CBS public relations director.

Fairbanks

Continued from page 29

tisers will have to decide whether the greater availability of film stars in Hollywood will make the westward trek worthwhile.

N. Y. operation is to be headed up by veepee Russ Johnston, with Robert Lawrence named as production chief. Production has started so far with new units lensing filmed spots for Masland Rugs, through Anderson, Davis & Platte; Camels, with Fran Warren and Bill Stern starred, through William Esty, and General Foods, through Benton & Bowles. Fairbanks' N. Y. studio will have complete facilities for 35m and 16m filming, sound recording, dubbing and re-recording.

Several of Fairbanks' Hollywood staff will be transferred to N. Y. J. Burgi Contner will take over as director of photography and Wayne Colvin will head up the creative art department. In addition, Austin Croom Johnson, of the erstwhile (Alan) Kent and Johnson team, is to supervise the music department.

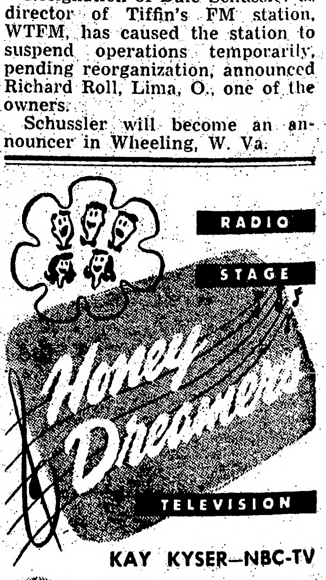
Cleveland—WGAR is planning to turn 8 to 9 p.m. Friday night stanza into local hour for development of talent.

WTFM HANGS IN AIR

Tiffin, O., March 21.

Resignation of Dale Schussler as director of Tiffin's FM station, WTFM, has caused the station to suspend operations temporarily, pending reorganization, announced Richard Roll, Lima, O., one of the owners.

Schussler will become an announcer in Wheeling, W. Va.



KAY KYSER—NBC-TV
"Sweetheart Semicolon"
on RCA VICTOR

HEY KIDS, QUIET!

QUIET, CHILDREN

makes a big difference whose voice it is

In Detroit, WWJ is more than a great radio station... more than a source of entertainment for the nearly one million homes in the Detroit area. WWJ, Detroit's FIRST station, has consistently been the leader in community service and enterprise.

Its acceptance by advertisers is indicative of the faith Detroit has in its voice. One of America's leading advertisers has consistently employed WWJ daily with an hour-long program for 16 years.

When you give your product story the benefit of WWJ's community acceptance, it receives added prestige, more attentive ears, less selling resistance... resulting in increased sales in a market that did three billion dollars retail business last year!

WWJ AM-FM
Basic NBC Affiliate

AM—950 KILOCYCLES—5000 WATTS
FM—CHANNEL 246—97.1 MEGACYCLES

FIRST IN DETROIT... Owned and Operated by THE DETROIT NEWS
National Representatives: THE GEORGE P. HOLLINGBERY COMPANY
Associate Television Station WWJ-TV

WPIX First Television Station in America to win The du Pont Award

WPIX has received the Alfred I. du Pont Award for "outstanding public service . . . through the television presentation of current news and events."

WPIX is pleased with the recognition and proud to serve the public interests of the largest city in the world.

"TelePIX NEWSREEL"
6:30 P.M. and Station Closing Daily, Except Saturdays

"NEWS ON THE HOUR"
7 P.M. and Station Closing Daily

THE NEW YORK NEWS TELEVISION STATION

WPIX
CHANNEL 11

NEW YORK TELEVISION – for NEW YORKERS!

Richards Hearings

Continued from page 27

eric Ford, FCC counsel, objected repeatedly and only those on which Roberts collaborated or worked alone went into evidence. Roberts admitted that many times David Lilienthal and Bernard Baruch were not given worst of it as he earlier charged Richards had ordered him to do, and that he thus broadcast in direct opposition to station owner's instructions.

First Week a Three-Man Act

First week of the hearing developed nothing sensational and proved a three-man act. In the middle was Clete Roberts, a stubborn chap who's been around, giving as good as he received most of the way during cross-examination. At the close of last week's run of crossfire, Hugh Fulton was heard to remark, "I'm getting a little tired of this guy."

When Fulton did find an opening and take after Roberts he drew from him several admissions that tempered his withering appraisal of Richards as a man with fixed racial and political hatreds. Charges of anti-Semitism against Richards were hot and heavy while Roberts was under direct examination but later in the week Fulton exhibited a letter Roberts wrote to Richards nailing Roberts as an anti. While in Europe on assignment by ABC, Roberts wrote Richards a three-page, single-spaced "note," wherein he stated, "The Italians south of Rome aren't worth a tinker's dam." Fulton wanted to know if that didn't render him unfit to own stock in a radio station. Roberts didn't think so because, as he put it. "After they were fed and helped they were worth a tinker's dam."

Who Does It First?

Admission by Roberts that he injected his own personal philosophies into his commentaries drew a barrage from Fulton, who contended that there is little or no difference between a newscast and a commentary. Then he threw a Sunday punch: "Do you mean to say that you had the right to slant the news your way and your employer didn't?" Stubbornly through the trial Roberts has maintained that being a commentator he was justified in interpreting the news in his own way.

Considerable importance will be attached by the Richards defense to the removal of records by Roberts from KMPC files after he was discharged. Fulton insisted that any memoranda kept by Roberts while in the employ of KMPC belonged to his employer. It was necessary to subpoena some of the documents, which Roberts said were hidden beneath his daughter's bed. Roberts got his walking papers on a Friday and removed the papers from the station files the following Sunday. Fulton thought that was a little improper, holding that Roberts had no right to remove property that didn't rightfully belong to him.

Another high point in the trial is expected to stem from Roberts' testimony that he ignored Richards' instructions to "slant the news" when the owner was out of town. That together with only one letter from a listener expressing resentment over the alleged bias gave Fulton a tack to go on: very little of the so-called colored news ever got on the air. Roberts will have to jog his memory considerably to recall the dates Richards was out of town.

The issue of news slanting took a sudden turn the other way when a memo from Richards to Roberts read: "If you don't stop slanting the news I'm going to let someone go down there. I won't go for it at all."

Bordens

Continued from page 25

it's reasoned, will allow for pinpointing sales messages according to local conditions.

Policy also involves a change in agencies, with Young & Rubicam getting the bulk of the business, although Kenyon & Eckhardt retains the instant coffee account (Y&R has a competitive brand). Local agencies are also being used, with Cowan & Dengler handling Chicago, R. E. McCarthy servicing Florida and Tracey-Locke working in Texas.

Majority of the programs, spots and participations are still to be inked, but the N. Y. picture is already set. Company has bought "Let Yourself Go" cross-the-board on WNEW, with Roy Ross orch, vocalist Peggy Ann Ellis, emcee Allyn Edwards and Teddy Wilson as featured pianist. Also pacted are daily participations on Nancy Craig, WJZ; Bob Smith, WNBC; Martha Deane, WOR; Jack Sterling, WCBS; and spots on WMCA and WMGM.

In Chicago the dairy has picked up a 15-minute segment of Dave Garroway on WMAQ and is building its own show, "June Davis' Hostess House." Borden's will make June Davis a house name and is mulling syndication of WNEW's "Let Yourself Go."

Radio Reviews

Continued from page 37

especially on convictions. The name of the defendant, the style of crime on which he has been found guilty and the length of the sentence imposed is emphasized.

The windup warning of each program is "crime doesnt pay when the cell door closes upon you." This is accompanied by the loud clanging of an iron door and the turning of a key in a lock.

Stewart has a delivery similar to "The Shadow" and should drive fear into the hearts of juves with criminal notions if they are awake at this hour. Sahu.

SATURDAY SPORTS REVUE
With John Derr
15 Mins., Sat., 6:30 p.m.
Sustaining
CBS, from N. Y.

John Doerr, CBS' new associate sports director under Red Barber, has stepped into the latter's Saturday night spot to dish up the week's highlights in sports. Derr is a good gabber with a solid grasp of the field. He handles the material with sound judgment, avoiding any attempts at either scoops or rehashing the obvious while at the same time, keeping abreast of sporting developments.

On his opening show, Derr accented the baseball training scene with some apt comments on the new mechanical "umpire" which was tested at the Brooklyn camp last week. Derr minimized the possibility of the gadget replacing the men in blue while making a sharp dig at basketball referees for their inaccuracy. It was a complete roundup of news freshened with slight interpretative angles. Herm.

MR. AND MRS. BUDD HULICK SHOW
Producer: Paul Martin
30 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 4:30 p.m.
Participating
WKBW, Buffalo

This new Mr. & Mrs. show had its preem March 31. Budd Hulick will be remembered as co-partner of Col. Stoopnagle who also started in radio in Buffalo. This marks return of Hulick to same station where he began his career more than 20 years ago. Mrs. Hulick has pleasant, easy professional delivery and combo produces a very lively half-hour.

Format is directed to housewives with information on local women's activities. They also interview interesting personalities. Preem had winner of "Stop the Music" who collected big bundle day before. Mystery tune happened to be "Fond of Chewing Gum" which was Stoopnagle & Budd theme song years ago. Second show featured interesting interview with ZaSu Pitts. This Mr. & Mrs. stint gives local listeners a fine afternoon show which, with time, should get good listener attention.

Dallas — KRLD has moved its AM and FM studios from the Adolphus hotel where they have been since 1926 to the new KRLD Bldg. which houses KRLD-TV. This will give the outlet all operations under one roof.

WFIL's Binge

Continued from page 27

sustainers weekly. At present, only two of the 12 new programs remain unsold.

One of the locally produced items added to evening lineup is "Abbott's Teen Age Time," a live show which has become established as a Saturday AM feature. Now aired on Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m., 30-minute package of laughs and music is gaining new listeners under the continuing sponsorship of Abbott's Dairies.

Revamped program lineup has been contemplated for some time. Clipp said, and station moved to replace non-profitable sustainers when it became apparent that transcribed broadcasts would provide outlets for potential clients, as well as add to enjoyment of listeners.

"By obtaining these programs at comparatively low cost, WFIL has been able to show a profit on former no-sale time periods, while passing along consequent savings to the advertisers," Clipp pointed out. "Everybody gains, nobody loses—and that goes for the radio audience, also because the shows we have added to our program log add up to surefire entertainment."

CBS-NAB

Continued from page 25

lived its usefulness. However, he was quick to add that this NAB "term of usefulness" generally runs in five-year cycles; that perhaps a rejuvenated setup after the current blowup may resolve a lot of problems and provide needed answers.

More Convention Speakers

Washington, March 21.

NAB has lined up four more top speakers for its 28th annual convention next month in Chicago. Added to the agenda for the management sessions, April 17-19, are FCC Chairman Wayne Coy, U.S. Chamber of Commerce prexy Herman W. Steinkraus, ECA administrator Paul G. Hoffman, and H. E. Babcock, agricultural expert and author.

Carlos P. Romulo, president of the U.N. general assembly, will be principal speaker.

BAM

Continued from page 24

the kind of research to be undertaken.

Financial control would be in the broadcasters' hands, with the industry buying all the stock issued. BAM would also have to take over BMB's liabilities, which include a $75,000 loan from NAB and servicing of Study No. 2.

One of the key problems facing the new group will be that of getting support from individual stations. Four networks and their owned-and-operated stations subscribed to Study No. 1 and three backed the second report. However, there were only 600 subscribers to the latter study of a possible 2,000 AM stations.

Kansas City—WHB has a new announcer in Jack Layton who recently moved over from KTOP, Topeka. He replaces Lou Kemper, longtime K. C. announcer, who shifted to Ft. Worth and KCNC.

MARS BARS TO BURNETT; PUT AD BUDGET IN LIMBO

Chicago, March 21.

Ralph E. Ellis, Grant advertising account exec on Mars candy, moved with the account to the Leo Burnett agency yesterday (20). According to Vic Gies, Mars ad manager, Grant resigned the account several months ago, but agreed to remain at the reins until a new agency was appointed.

At present Mars has no radio, having recently dropped both "Dr. I.Q." and "Curtain Time." Allocation of the firm's ad budget, which in the past has topped $2,000,000, will not be made for several weeks. An agency spokesman said the candy manufacturer will get back into network radio, and will add heavily to its video schedule, which at present consists of a segment of "Howdy Doody."

This makes Leo Burnett's third major grab in recent months, the others being parts of Kellogg and Procter & Gamble billings. Latter account is still in the research stage.

Rivers

Continued from page 27

religious programs, exceeding representations he made to the commission).

Rivers charged the council is trying "to smear the reputation" of WEAS and himself. But the facts are, he said, that WEAS has made "gigantic strides" in improving racial relations, curbing Negro juvenile delinquency, and giving opportunity to Negro musical and athletic talent.

Rivers said the non-discrimination policy of WEAS is "far different" from many radio stations in Georgia. "The Savannah radio council," he said, "can be sure of one thing; when the new station authorized by the commission starts operation in Savannah, it will not dictate to E. D. Rivers, Jr., concerning the types of programs that he should or should not carry."

In a detailed analysis of programming of the five stations which compose the council, Rivers claimed that none have lived up to their representations to the commission. He noted that WSAV devoted almost 83%. of its evening hours in 1948 to commercial programs, that WFRP sells time for religious fund solicitation programs, that WDAR carried substantially more commercials than it represented to the FCC, and that WTOC and WCCP have done likewise.

Rivers also charged that after he filed his Savannah application he was approached indirectly by WDAR and WFRP with offers to sell to him.

Cleveland—Rena & Bob Ledyard who conduct "Breakfast Party" daily over WHK from homes of listeners had the table turned on them when 200 women gave Ledyards surprise party crowning them "king and queen of radio entertainment."

New Nielsens: CBS, 15—NBC, 3—ABC, 2

Current Rank	Previous Rank	Program	Current Rating Homes (000)	Current Rating Homes %	Points Change
1	2	Lux Radio Theatre (CBS)	10,017	25.5	0.0
2	1	Jack Benny (CBS)	8,603	21.9	—3.6
3	3	Godfrey's Talent Scouts (CBS)	8,328	21.2	—0.5
4	13	Fibber & Molly (NBC)	7,856	20.0	+3.0
5	5	Amos 'n' Andy (CBS)	7,463	19.0	—1.7
6	11	Walter Winchell (ABC)	7,267	18.5	+1.3
7	6	Edgar Bergen (CBS)	7,188	18.3	—2.4
8	4	My Friend Irma (CBS)	7,071	18.0	—2.8
9	7	Mystery Theatre (CBS)	6,874	17.5	—1.8
10	17	Mr. Chameleon (CBS)	6,756	17.2	+0.7
11	37	Bob Hope (NBC)	6,717	17.1	+2.5
12	10	FBI in Peace & War (CBS)	6,638	16.9	—0.8
13	9	Mr. Keen (CBS)	6,599	16.8	—1.3
14	19	You Bet Your Life (CBS)	6,599	16.8	+0.5
15	14	Dr. Christian (CBS)	6,560	16.7	—0.1
16	23	Mr. District Attorney (NBC)	6,521	16.6	+0.6
17	20	Inner Sanctum (CBS)	6,481	16.5	+0.2
18	8	Red Skelton (CBS)	6,285	16.0	—2.7
19	32	Fat Man (ABC)	6,089	15.5	+0.6
20	24	Gene Autry (CBS)	6,089	15.5	—0.3

famous firsts in T-V

In 1884 Paul Nipkow invented the television scanning disc and thus began the history of television.

★

Blair-TV Inc. was the first exclusive representative of television stations. The first company to recognize and act on the television stations' real need for hard hitting, single minded, exclusive representation.

BLAIR TV INC.

REPRESENTING
Birmingham .... WBRC-TV
Columbus .... WBNS-TV
Los Angeles .... KTSL
New Orleans .... WDSU-TV
Omaha .... WOW-TV
Richmond .... WTVR
Salt Lake City .... KDYL-TV
Seattle .... KING-TV

TV ADVERTISING FILM FOR LOW BUDGET ACCOUNTS
ONE MINUTE FILM WITH VOICE
ONLY $150
WRITE, CALL OR SEE
FILMACK
1333 SOUTH WABASH AVE.
CHICAGO
HA. 7-3395

Courtesy of M-G-M
'THE GREAT RUPERT'
For George Pal Prods.
THE CAMEL SHOW
Every Friday Nite, 9:30 E.S.T., NBC
Mgt.: LOU CLAYTON

New TV Value-Sensations of 1950

ZENITH

The Royalty of Television with the BLACK MAGIC of the Amazing Blaxide "Black" Tube and New "Super-Range" Chassis

Now—even if you live in an outlying location—you can enjoy television pictures at their finest! For Zenith's New "SUPER-RANGE" CHASSIS and BLAXIDE TUBE will bring into your home pictures of amazing new detail, clarity and steadiness ... free from eyestraining glare or blur even in daylight or fully lighted rooms! This is how medical authorities recommend viewing!

What's more, these and all the other great developments perfected by Zenith® are standard in all Zenith models—not in just a few at high prices!

That's what makes every one of the new Zeniths a truly sensational value for 1950 ... not built down to a price, but up to the high standards of the ROYALTY OF TELEVISION!

Remember—anyone can make claims. But your Zenith dealer invites you to prove in a demonstration the superiority of these Black Magic Zeniths. See for yourself how Zenith's famous engineering foresight keeps Zenith always ahead ... in quality and performance ... in top value for your television dollar!

Plus all these great features combined in no other television at any price

1 Built-in provision for the new ultra-high frequencies, expected to be introduced by the Federal Communications Commission. With a Zenith, you will not need to buy a new set to receive the coming ultra-highs on present standards, nor will you have to use an expensive external converter.

2 Built-in "Picturemagnet" aerial—in many locations—without outside antenna—just plug in and get pictures that come in beautifully clear! Every Zenith Television model offers this feature.

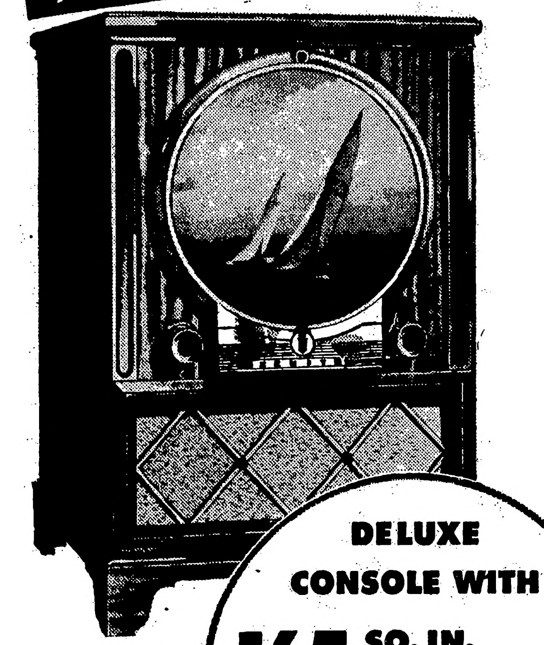
3 One-knob simplified automatic tuning—with the Zenith Turret Tuner. All the necessary adjustments are made automatically—does away with knob fiddling and fussing even when you switch from station to station!

4 Giant Circle Screen with picture control—gives you the LARGEST possible picture in relation to tube size, with a CHOICE of circular or rectangular shape pictures!

5 "Gated" automatic gain control—shuts out interference, maintains uniform picture quality and audio volume automatically.

6 Genuine Zenith-Armstrong FM sound—coupled with Zenith-built Alnico speaker, provides greater sensitivity, far greater rejection of interference noises, superior tone quality.

7 Master Crafted quality cabinets, offering a wide variety of sizes, styles and finishes. Every one is a furniture piece of enduring quality and beauty, whether you choose a table model, console or combination.



DE LUXE CONSOLE WITH

165 SQ. IN. Giant Circle Screen

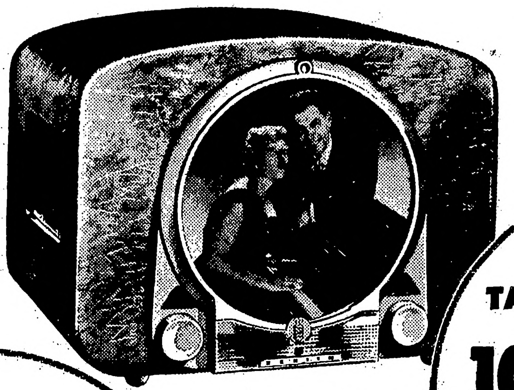
only

$359.95

Federal Excise Tax extra

New Zenith "Lincoln," de luxe television console. Traditional cabinet design that blends beautifully with America's most popular trends in interior decoration. Genuine Mahogany veneer cabinet with all exposed woods finished to a satiny lustre.

COMPARE the picture size!
COMPARE the clarity!
COMPARE the value!



New Zenith "Garfield," de luxe table model television. A distinguished receiver with all of Zenith's great new developments. Strikingly attractive design with smooth, trim lines. Smart, long-wearing luggage type finish in Walnut Brown.

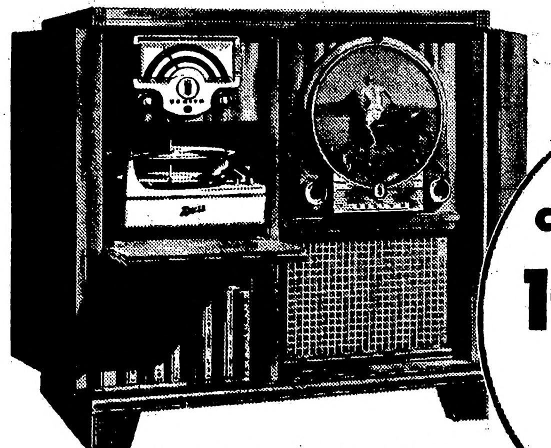
DE LUXE TABLE MODEL WITH

105 SQ. IN. Giant Circle Screen

only

$219.95

Federal Excise Tax extra



New Zenith "Madison," de luxe television-radio-phonograph. With sensational new 3-Speed Cobra® Automatic Record Changer. Simplest, easiest way to play records of all sizes and speeds! Plus new Super-Sensitive FM and Long-Distance AM radio. Genuine Mahogany veneer cabinet of graceful Contemporary styling.

DE LUXE COMBINATION WITH

105 SQ. IN. Giant Circle Screen

only

$449.95

Federal Excise Tax extra

See the new Zenith "PRESIDENTIAL" line of models with sizes for every home need. Priced from $219.95 to $625.

See Your Zenith Dealer for an Eye-Opening Demonstration — Now!

ZENITH RADIO CORPORATION, CHICAGO 39, ILLINOIS

Over 30 Years of "Know-How" in Radionics ® Exclusively
Also Makers of America's Finest Hearing Aids

ZENITH
LONG DISTANCE RADIO and TELEVISION
THE ROYALTY OF RADIO AND TELEVISION

RCA's 30,000,000 Annual 45s

In the general sales upbeat of slow-speed disks, RCA Victor's 45 rpm platters are currently being pressed at the rate of approximately 2,500,000 per month or over 30,000,000 annually. Current production rate, covering both the pop and longhair catalogs, was hit during February and January and will be increased before the end of the year in line with upped distribution of the 45 rpm player attachments.

Capitol Records, one of the diskeries which joined Victor's 45 rpm camp, has also felt the rising impact of that disk speed. Capitol execs report their monthly production of 45's is now around the 1,500,000 monthly mark.

IMPORTANCE OF DISK JOCKEYS ACCENTED

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

J. Fred Coots' letter anent what he calls the evils of today's songwriting-publishing business just about floored me. I say "just about" because I have known J. Fred for probably 11 years and have had association with him, both as a collaborator ("It's Too Late Now") and in a trade magazine publishing venture. Considering him a close and wonderful friend, I also know how he can soapbox it when his typewriter's had an oiling. It was well oiled the day he double-spaced your 2,000 words.

Freddie's biggest lament seems to be for the good old days. That's perfectly all right because those days were good to him. He certainly did come up with some great ones, too; "You Go to My Head," "Beautiful Lady in Blue," "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" and some 700 or 800 more. His beef seems to be that the competition is too tough these days for what he calls the "great and talented" songwriters of yesteryear. He mentions some wonderful names, good for a nostalgic night of reminiscing, but by the same cry, the past few years have produced some fairly fine writers, too. Of not dated vintage, for instance is one Frank Loesser and despite all the present-day evils of the disk jockeys. jukebox "syndicates," he has done admirably well.

My beloved cohort says that "the songwriting business used to belong to the songwriters and publishers who were imbued with respective talents for writing and picking song hits from the very moment such songs were conceived . ." and goes on to say all you need today is "cheap combination of words and music" and an "important disk jockey pal located in a strategic section of the country to give you a solid plug."

Belongs to the People

The songwriting business, like the air, should belong to the people who want to write songs. If they find the doors of Fred's beloved Tin Pan Alley closed to them and they want to hock their family jalopy to go out and make a record of one of their brainstorms with Joe Fritz's Home Town Band, God bless 'em, it's their jalopy. If a hinterlands disk jockey, tired of the brush from the major league publisher and big label manufacturer, wants to play his "Country Cousin's 10" production, made without benefit of Manie Sacks, Gordon Jenkins, Mitch Miller or a Whip—why shouldn't it be okay with any double AA Ascaper?

As for any tirade against the disk jockey, I'd like to say this. They don't accept everything that is thrown at them. Coots knows this, too, because he and I have pitched them a few things and they soon spotted the dogs (and they cooperated, as he knows, when the "performance" was there). Certainly the right of selection belongs to the d. j.

I've been in the publicity business, in various capacities, for a considerable while; I've represented knowns and unknowns, names and no-names, the talented and the untalented. I have contacted and worked with various persons and departments of all branches of the music business and the people who make it popular. I've also "romanced" my share of columnists, newspaper writers, and other outlets for publicity information and benefit. This much I can say for the jockey: he's inexpensive and he's fair-minded. While I read about payolas, I can name a number of No. 1 d. j.'s you can't pick up a coffee check for: Detroit's Ed McKenzie ("Jack the Bellboy"), Chicago's John McCormick, Hollywood's Gene Norman or Al Jarvis, Pittsburgh's Bill Brandt—and if space permitted, a pretty exhaustive list could be included.

Deejays' Merits

The disk jockey has given new talent a wonderful break. Numbers of today's top stars got their respective starts via the potency of a disk jockey push. Disk jockeys have also weeded out a lot of no-talent people. A navel-depth skin tight evening gown or a size 39 sweater might sell on the floor but it doesn't help a record.

One parting thought about the disk jockey. He has helped create employment by bringing to life dead names, who in turn were able to book engagements and employ persons associated. He has proved that sometimes the independent producer might not be a jerk simply because he didn't wear a Countess Mara tie or know all the "techniques" of voice-selling or musical principles. Besides — this competition has actually helped the major producers by making them more alert.

There is certainly nothing personal in this reply to one of my most talented—and closest personal—friends, because his name will live on via the many hits he has been able to signature. But, with all respect for his name and his talents—I think he's crying in the wrong beer. (I also think he knows it.)

But I fail to see anything sinister in the fact that the recording companies presently have the songwriting reins in their hands (they're putting up the money that makes a song) nor can I see the disk jockey as a sinister, evil and foreboding influence. Coots speaks about Haven Gillespie's recent song successes, "Lucky Old Sun" and "Master Painter." I think records had a lot to do with both songs and also a guy who would still be warming the park benches, as he did for some 10 years, if a record and a disk jockey (Al Jarvis) hadn't set the spark—Frankie Laine.

Tim Gayle.

Jones Rides 'Sky'

Eight months late, Spike Jones is finally getting around to waxing "Riders in the Sky" for RCA-Victor. While the number was hot last summer, Edwin H. Morris Music refused to give Jones permission to record the number since it was felt that any hashed-up version would hurt the copyright Currently, however, it's hoped that Jones' gagging will revive interest in the song.

On the reverse side of the "Sky" disk Jones is slicing "Mule Train" with a Chinese vocal.

FLANAGAN'S HOLDOUTS ON INITIAL BOOKING

Boston, March 21.

Ralph Flanagan's initial date at the King Philip ballroom, Wrentham, Mass., resulted in a total attendance of 7,800 in four days. Band, which started its engagement Wednesday (15), broke the Friday night record with 2,600 payees. On Saturday night (18), state police closed the doors after 2,800 were admitted. Admission was scaled at $1.25 and $1.50.

Flanagan opens at the Meadowbrook, Cedar Grove, N. J., tomorrow (Thurs.).

Sacks Heads Committee For Pa. Song Competition

Harrisburg, Pa., March 21.

Manie Sacks, RCA Victor director of artists relations, has been appointed chairman of the award committee in the competition for the official "Pennsylvania Week Song." Contest, which will wind up in October, is open to amateur or professional composers residing in Pennsylvania. Best entries will receive $1,500 in prizes.

Sacks appointed a judging committee which includes Joe Higgins, associate director of artist relations at Columbia; Harry Meyerson, M-G-M record exec; Lou Levy, Lester Sacks, Dick Volter, Henry Spitzer, Mac Goldman, Hal Werman and Paul Barry.

Constance Hope's RCA Post

Constance Hope, who recently exited her RCA Victor post of director of artists relations for the Red Seal label, has been retained by Victor as consultant in merchandising and promotion.

Jack Mills, whose firm publishes "There's a Lovely Lake in Loveland," named an honorary citizen of Loveland, Colo.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Bob Crosby—"If You Can't Get a Drum with a Boom-Boom-Boom"-"When My Sugar Walks Down the Street" (Coral). Crosby has come up with a solid novelty in "Drum," has initial waxing for Coral. Number has a catchy lyric that Crosby carries off neatly against a clever instrumental Dixie background dished out by the Bob Cats. Flipover is well-done standard executed in a straight two-beat-to-the bar groove with Crosby bouncing the chorus.

Don Cornell — "My Baby Is Blue"-"Come Back to Me" (Victor). "Baby" is fit for a big jock-and-juke ride. A smoothly rhythmic item, it gets a saleable cut by Cornell, who handles the vocal tastefully with fine pacing by a vocal quartet. Bob Eberly's version for Coral is equally good and should help the tune catch on. Reverse of the Victor disk has Cornell working over a fair lyric set to the popular Italian song, "Santa Lucia," no relation to "Spaghetti Rag."

Richard Hayes—"It Isn't Fair"-"Thunder in My Heart" (Mercury). Mercury is climbing aboard the "Fair" revival with a solid entry by Hayes, who may pull this disk on the strength of his "Old Master Painter" popularity. Backside has even a stronger potential with its pounding, dramatic quality and powerful rendition by Hayes. It's slightly out-of-the-way for a romantic ballad and could catch on big. Raymond Scott's orch gives firstrate support on both sides.

Cab Calloway — "Pero Que Jelengue"-"La Mucura" (London). There's no reason at all why the current dance rhythm upbeat also shouldn't cover those south-of-the-border sambas, rhumbas, etc. Calloway has cut a solid coupling of chile numbers that really jump. The vocals are served up with Calloway's usual driving tempo. Neither of these sides is likely for the hit lists but jocks could use them for a change of pace.

Dean Martin — "Muskrat Ramble"-"I'm Gonna Paper All My Walls with Your Love Letters" (Capitol). Two cute sides with that Dixie twist. "Muskrat Ramble" is not usually vocalled but Martin beats it out like it was meant to be with his easy-going Crosbyish style. Flipover is good without being standout in the pop novelty vein. Martin gives it a bouncing lilt, with Paul Weston's Dixie Eight backing up spiritedly.

Bill Darnell—"River of Smoke"-"I Had Trouble with You Before" (Coral). Coral worked fast to get "Smoke" out on the heels of Burl Ives' cut for Columbia. It's a good number with a western rhythm wrapped around a factory town lyric. It's doubtful, however, whether it will reach click status. Darnell, a stylist with a blues flair, does okay by "Smoke" but is more at home with the flipover, a solid tune with good juke potential. Gordon MacRae's version of "Smoke" for Capitol is marred by a slightly strained quality in the vocal.

Decca is pitching up some of its top recording names on a series of disks in its new "faith series" which jocks can play in specialized situations. Initial five platters have an authentic religioso air and restrained vocal interpretations. Series includes Bing Crosby, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus"-"He Leadeth Me"; Andrews Sisters, "In The Garden"-"Count Your Blessings"; Red Foley, "Just a Closer Walk With Thee"-"Steal Away"; Hamilton Quartet, "Now the Day Is Over"-"God Be With You"; Jack Owens, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord"?"My Jesus, I Love Thee." The disks are backgrounded with organ and choir accompaniment.

Mel Torme "I Hadn't Anyone Till You"-"Cross Your Heart" (Capitol). Torme gets a chance to show off his stylized pipes to the best advantage in "Till You," a firstrate ballad by Ray Noble. Torme gives it a palatable "personality" treatment under cover of a smooth beat and a fine assist from the Mel Tones and Harold Mooney's batoning. It's a saleable item as is Torme's workover of the reverse tune in a more rhythmic vein.

Johnny Desmond "Daddy's Little Girl"-"Dream a Little Longer" (M-G-M). Desmond's cut of "Daddy's Little Girl" could take a hefty slice of this tune's climbing acceptance. Disk opens with a highly pleasant though conventional vocal with Desmond neatly switching the lullaby tempo for the second chorus. It's among the better versions of this pop. Reverse is a flavorsome rendtion of "Dream," with Desmond giving a sweet approach to the ballad. Tasteful orch backing by Tony Mottola on both sides.

Platter Pointers

Margaret Whiting and Jimmy Wakeley sliced a neat duet on "Let's Go To Church Next Sunday Morning" for Capitol . . Discovery has waxed a bangup instrumental session with Georgie Auld's orch on "Mild and Mellow" and "Settin' the Pace," both solid jock items . . . Cliff Seward and the San Francisco Boys have a likely novelty in "Why Do They Always Say 'No'?" (Coral) . . . Also in the same category is "Little Peach from East Orange" cut by Ray Anthony orch and the Slyliners for Capitol . . Eddy Howard's version of "Daddy's Little Girl" for Mercury is okay but perhaps too late to mean much . . . Empey label has a good item in "I'm Disillusioned" with vocal by Charles Linton . . . "La Vie En Rose," the French cafe ballad, is getting some action with Macklin Marrow's fully orchestrated version for M-G-M and Paul Weston's for Capitol . . Tex Beneke turned out another of his slickly rhythmic jobs on "Sunshine Cake" and "Dream A Little Longer" for Victor . . . Jocks are getting a wide choice of versions on "God's Country" with the addition of Bill Farrell's good slice for M-G-M and Phil Harris' fair one for Victor . . . Coral has faced the Ames Bros.' "Sentimental Me" with another good item, "Blue Prelude" . . . Danny Kaye has a couple of good sides in "Confidentially" and "A Paper Full of Fish and Chips" (Decca) . . Aside from his new album, Stan Kenton has waxed some of his progressive music on a Capitol single under the titles of "Blues in Riff" and "Mardi Gras," both unusual and good . . Atomic label comes up with a good side in "Come Into My Arms" with vocal by Lynn Avalon.

Standout western, race, hillbilly, jazz, polka, etc.: Tex Ritter, "Boogie Woogie Cowboy" (Capitol) . . Peach Tree Logan, "Heap Sees and Few Knows" (M?G-M) . . Johnny Brown orch, "Red Pepper In My Pie" (Decca) . . Doye O'Dell, "Somebody's Stealing My Baby's Sugar" (Mercury) . . . Wingy Manone, "Japanese Sandman" (Kem) . . Eddie Condon, "That's A Plenty" (Signature) . The Pinetoppers, "Buffalo Gals" (Decca) . . Ernie Benedict Polkateers, "Dance With Me" (Victor).

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin-Machines

Week of Mar. 18

1. MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC (8) (Cromwell)	Teresa Brewer Eddie Miller	London Rainbow
2. CHATTANOOGIE SHOESHINE BOY (6) (Acuff-Rose)	Red Foley Bill Darnell	Decca Coral
3. RAG MOP (8) (Hill & Range)	Ames Bros Ralph Flanagan	Coral Victor
4. CRY OF THE WILD GOOSE (3) (American)	Frankie Laine	Mercury
5. I SAID MY PAJAMAS (9) (Leeds)	Martin-Warren	Victor
6. ENJOY YOURSELF (2) (Morris)	Guy Lombardo	Decca
7. DEARIE (2) (Laurel)	Merman-Bolger Stafford-MacRae	Decca Capitol
8. IF I KNEW YOU WERE COMING (1) (Robert)	Eileen Barton	Mercury
9. THERE'S NO TOMORROW (16) (Paxton)	Tony Martin Alan Dale	Victor Harmony
10. CRAZY HE CALLS ME (4) (Massey)	Billie Holiday	Decca

Second Group

IT ISN'T FAIR (Words-Music)	Sammy Kaye	Victor
MY FOOLISH HEART (Santly-Joy)	Gordon Jenkins	Decca
DEAR HEARTS, GENTLE PEOPLE (13) (Morris)	Dinah Shore Bing Crosby	Columbia Decca
OLD MASTER PAINTER (14) (Robbins)	Sinatra-Modernaires Snooky Lanson	Columbia London
DREAMER'S HOLIDAY (16) (Shapiro-B)	Perry Como E. Wilson-Jenkins	Victor Decca
C'EST SI BON (Leeds)	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M
SENTIMENTAL ME (Knickerbocker)	Ames Bros. Russ Morgan	Coral Decca
DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL (Beacon)	Dick Todd Mills Bros.	Rainbow Decca
SITTING BY THE WINDOW (Shapiro-B)	Vic Damone Billy Eckstine	Mercury M-G-M
BIBBIDI BOBBIDI BOO (Disney)	Perry Como Dinah Shore	Victor Columbia
QUICKSILVER (Morris)	Crosby-Andrews Doris Day	Decca Columbia
BROKEN DOWN MERRY-GO-ROUND (Vogue)	Whiting-Wakely	Capitol
HAVE I TOLD YOU LATELY (Duchess)	Crosby-Andrews	Decca
WE'LL BUILD A BUNGALOW (Algonquin)	Johnny Long	King
EYES WIDE OPEN I'M DREAMING (Crawford)	Patti Page	Mercury
THIRD MAN THEME (Chappell)	Anton Karas Guy Lombardo	London Decca

[Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10.]

VICTOR CUES HOT SALES BATTLE

Dept. of Labor Rules Pluggers Exempt From Wage-Hour Law in MPPA Hassle

Lengthy hassle between the Music Publishers' Protective Assn. and the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor, regarding the status of music contactment under the Wages and Hours Law, was settled last week when the N. Y. regional director of the division handed down the opinion that pluggers are "administrative employees" and thus exempt from the provisions of that law.

Controversy started in the summer of 1948, when a Wage and Hour Division investigator put in the claim that a pub's contact employees were covered by the act and that the publishers had to pay time and a half for overtime, keep regular records on such employees, etc. MPPA appealed the claim, matter going from the N. Y. regional director to Washington and finally back to the N. Y. office, whence last week's decision emanated.

Under the decision a plugger who receives $75 a week or more qualifies as an administrative employee and is therefore not subject to Wages and Hours regulations. Publishers have always claimed that their contactment are salesmen, and, as such, exempt from the wage provisions, but the N. Y. Labor Department office stated definitely that pluggers could not be so considered, their only grounds for exemption being under the administrative employee category.

Decision comes as a big relief to publishers who would have had not only to pay future time and a half, but also substantial sums in back payments. With the average contactmen working a 60-70-hour week, amount of past and future overtime would have run into seven figures for the whole industry.

ART LUND WINS PACT SUIT FROM MANAGER

Los Angeles, March 21.

Contract as business manager held by Fred Goodman with Art Lund, singer, was cancelled here last week by superior court Judge Clarence M. Hanson. Goodman's contract was voided because he held no license from the state of California as an artist's manager and judge ruled that he did not do any strict financial advising for the singer.

Goodman, who is Benny Goodman's brother, was collecting 20% of Lund's gross take. Lund sued to break the contract and to ask for return of some $9,000 he had paid to Goodman during the past two years. Judge Hanson took under advisement the matter of repayment of commissions and his decision is expected soon. Evidence showed that Goodman did not advise Lund on any investments, and that whatever services he rendered were those ordinarily performed by a licensed artist's manager.

Martin Allowed to Use Amateur Windjammers

Hollywood, March 21.

Amateur windjammers will be used, with full permission of Musicians Local 47, on Freddy Martin's 13-week television program over KTTV starting here in April. Martin will use college bands and college musicians in an amateur contest. Arthur Michaud, Martin's manager, got okay from Phil Fisher, the union's representative, because of the contest phases of the show.

Fischer forced a stipulation, however, that Martin will not reduce the number of union men in his crew. "Band of Tomorrow" is name of Martin's program. Contest will be conducted to fill each chair of a 13-piece orchestra, with audience and board of judges voting.

'Stag' Title Fought By Kay Starr in Cap Album

Hollywood, March 21.

Kay Starr is beefing at Capitol's plan to release an album under the tag "Songs for Stags by Kay Starr." She feels some people might construe "Stag" in association with the gathering of men to view a lewd performance.

Diskery had in mind "Stags" who form a line at college dances. Since Cap has already prepped the album for release, it hasn't yet heeded her demand for title change. All six sides in the book are oldies released as singles, including "Poor Papa," "Steady, Daddy," and "You've Gotta See Momma Every Night."

Agents Pitch Name Bands As Hotel Biz Hypo

Talent agencies are intensifying efforts to sell name bands in hotels and niteries. Percenters are telling bonifaces that inasmuch as a name that will mean anything at the boxoffice cannot be bought under $1,000, and since the cost of a local band must still be considered as part of the overall talent costs, it might be better to experiment with a band that's well known via recordings and could be gotten at a fair price.

The agencies are selling the point that under present business conditions, experimentation is necessary. A switch in format, they argue, may attract wider audiences and it's possible that results, budget and business-wise, may be better than those that have been obtained with the regulation type floorshow.

It's also being argued that, under present circumstances, a band plus a few surrounding acts may cost less than the usual type of display.

Trade is watching the results at the Statler hotel, Buffalo, which has set a series of name orchestras for the rest of the season. Other spots may follow if business picks up at that spot.

AUTRY INKED TO NEW 5-YEAR PACT BY COL.

Gene Autry, Columbia Records' top disk seller in the past 20 years, has been inked by the company to a new five-year term. Cowboy singer, whose "Peter Cottontail" is one of Columbia's current hits, has sold over 25,000,000 records since joining Columbia in 1930.

Autry will continue to turn out platters for both the kiddie and American folk music divisions.

RCA Maps Extensive Promotion on Tosci

RCA Victor has mapped an extensive longhair promotion for its Arturo Toscanini disks to coincide with the maestro's 83d birthday tomorrow (23). Company has entered into a number of merchandising tieups spotlighting the Toscanini albums.

As part of its own consumer record department promotion, Saturday Review of Literature is featuring three separate articles on Toscanini in the current issue, in addition to a cover-page photo. One of the articles covers a complete listing of the conductors' recorded works.

SEEKS TO 'COVER' RIVAL HIT DISKS

On the heels of its recent dance band push, RCA Victor is launching a large-scale expansion of its pop division with a pressing project that's slated to cue the hottest competitive battle within the disk industry in many years.

Plan, which goes into effect this week, calls for the coverage by Victor of virtually every hit disk or likely click waxed by rival diskeries. Word has come down from RCA's upper echelons to "top the other companies and don't spare the coin." New policy represents a sweeping reversal of Victor's conservative policy during the last nine months of limiting its releases to no more than three or four disks per week.

In taking the wraps off the releasing schedule, Joe Csida, head of Victor's artist and repertory division, has been greenlighted to bring the diskery's full stable of performing artists into play. Top vocalists will be coupled with top bands as a general procedure.

New policy is frankly aimed at cutting into the gravy Decca has earned over the past few years by its strategy of getting on every hit tune in double-quick time. While it's not likely that Victor will be able to duplicate Decca's operational speed, Victor execs are banking on the array of talent on each platter to compensate for any delay in getting to the market.

Since last summer, Victor has eased up its pressing program due to the fact that large inventories were piling up in their distribs' warehouses. As a result, company was concentrating on developing its own hits without much concern for other diskeries' output. Upbeat in record sales and the liquidation of distrib backlogs in the last couple of months however, has spurred Victor into the current expansion.

BMI RENEWS FOR 3 YEARS 1,000 HOTELS

Chicago, March 21.

Broadcast Music, Inc., has signed three-year license renewals with all 1,000 BMI-licensed hotels, Harry Sommerville, BMI hotel licensing head, announced last week. These do not include summer resort hotels.

Here for the Midwest Hotel Assn. convention, Sommerville also announced a new licensing rate policy for summer resorts, based upon the amount of entertainment used. If less than $5,000 worth of talent is used in a year by the resort, it is entitled to a $10 discount from its annual licensing fee of $40 for the following year.

Incidentally, the Cuban Village, local nitery, and BMI settled their dispute over licensing of BMI tunes.

Bistro signed a three-year pact with BMI last week.

$2,000,000 Suit Filed Vs. Continental Records

A $2,000,000 damage suit against Continental Records has been filed in N. Y. supreme court by Paul Feyer as assignee of Peter Kelen of Budapest. In 1940 Kelen assertedly made a one-year agreement with Continental and the latter's prez, Donald H. Gabor, whereby the American firm received western hemisphere rights to Patria Records of Hungary.

War intervened and the deal allegedly wasn't renewed. But despite the non-renewal, the suit claims, Continental continued to use the Patria platters without payment of royalties. Action came to light last week when the defendant withdrew a motion to dismiss Feyer's complaint.

Decca's $803,870 Net Heftiest In Recording Industry for Last Year

Decca racked up the heftiest profit in the disk industry during 1949 with a net take of $803,870 after taxes. Despite the general sharp dip in last year's revenue due primarily to the rpm confusion, Decca's earnings dropped off only about $50,000 from 1948's profit of $854,000, according to the company's annual report released last week.

Indications that Decca had succeeded in cutting overhead costs and streamlining operations during last year were seen in the fact that while 1949 net sales of $19,820,987 were approximately 17% less than the preceding year, the profit decline was only 6%. Sales and profit figures in the annual report also included returns for Decca's subsid, Coral Records, which was created in 1948 and began to hit the profit columns late last year.

Decca's fluid financial position was highlighted by the better than two-to-one ratio between the company's assets and liabilities. Total current assets totalled $9,483,000 at the end of the year as against $4,408,000 in liabilities. Decca's cash balance, moreover, equalled $5,477,000, or more than its total liabilities, including an outstanding six-year credit of $1,333,333 to the First National Bank of Boston.

Company's 1949 earnings represented $1.04 a share on the 776,650 shares of capital stock as against $1.10 the year before. Regular quarterly dividends, totalling 50c, were paid during 1949, marking 13 years of uninterrupted cash dividends declared by the company.

In his statement to stockholders, Milton R. Rackmil, Decca prez, nixed any possibility of an early entry by the company into the 45 rpm field. Rackmil stated, however, that Decca could enter the 45 arena speedily, if warranted, without additional capital investment or material change in recording equipment or techniques. Decca entered the 33 rpm field last September with release of several show albums and has since extended its long-play catalog.

RCA Repacts Berle In Two-Year Deal

Milton Berle, after a three-year recording layoff, has been repacted by RCA Victor to an exclusive two-year deal. Berle is slated to do a series of singles on both the kiddie and regular pop label, with his first to be one of his own tunes, "I'll Kill You a Million Times," taken from a line frequently used in his video routine.

Berle waxed a Rodgers and Hart album for Victor, with Betty Garrett and Vic Damone, in 1947, a year before he clicked on television.

Chi Court Rules For Defendant In Copyright Snag

Chicago, March 21.

The long-standing legal principle that publication and sale of a song prior to copyright constitutes an abandonment of rights to the tune was extended to include phonograph records by Judge Michael Igoe last week in Chi Federal district court.

Ruling for Miracle Record Co. of Chicago, defendants in a copyright infringement suit brought by Shapiro-Bernstein, Judge Igoe declared, "It seems to me that production and sale of phonograph records is just as much a publication as production and sale of sheet music. I can see no practical distinction between the two. If one constitutes abandonment, so does the other."

Suit centered around Miracle recording called "Long Gone," which S-B claimed was really "Yancey Special," copyrighted by Meade Lux Lewis in 1935 but recorded by him before that. S-B wanted triple damages amounting to $24,000.

Judge Igoe agreed with defense attorney Edward H. Norton's contention that recording of the tune prior to copyright constituted abandonment of rights by Lewis.

"I might add," he said, "that Lewis abandoned his rights, if any, by permitting his composition to be produced on phonograph records and sold some time before copyright."

Ruling for Miracle was also based on the tunes themselves. Both employ a certain type of boogie-woogie bass, supposedly originated by Jim Yancey. Judge Igoe ruled that the trebles were different, and set down new law when he declared that a bass is too common to be copyrighted. He classified this type of bass as "mechanics" rather than "creation," and ruled that copyright laws were designed to protect creation rather than mechanical application.

S-B reps here have not yet decided whether they will appeal.

Armstrong Cutting 32 Sides for Decca

Louis Armstrong's combo of jazzists is currently cutting a total of 32 sides for Decca on the Coast in sessions arranged by Dave Kapp, Decca vice-prexy now in Hollywood. Armstrong is disking a major portion of the repertory of standards played by his crew during its cross-country swing of one-nite concerts.

Satchmo's group comprises Jack Teagarden, trombone; Earl Hines, piano; Barnie Bigard, clarinet; Cozy Cole, drums; Arvell Shaw, bass, and Velma Middleton, vocalist.

BALLROOM OPERATORS AIDING BAND REVIVAL

Ballroom operators are following the lead of the disk companies in pushing the current dance band revival. In the past few weeks a number of dance promoters throughout the country have been hypoing the resurgence with showmanship and promotion techniques. In addition, some of the operators have gotten behind the platter outfits in their pitch for disk jockey concentration on dance band recordings.

Operators, who take time on local stations, have been angling their requests along the lines that the terp outfits are their bread and butter, and the playing of their platters would be a definite help in promoting a boost in b.o. receipts. In contrast, the promoters have noted that the spinning of vocal recordings does little in the way of helping business.

In line with the dance band push, a few New York booking offices have cited a considerably sharp upturn in one-night bookings for the spring months. According to one agency spokesman, spring dates this year are more numerous than they have been since 1946.

Victor Herbert Nominated To NYU Hall of Fame

Victor Herbert has been nominated for the Hall of Fame for Great Americans on the New York University campus. Nomination was made by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers via prexy Fred Ahlert.

Elections to the Hall of Fame will be made by a group of 118 electors, with results to be announced Nov. 1.

Full Text and Interpretation Of ASCAP Consent Decree

Because of the widespread interest in the new anti-trust consent decree governing future activities of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and its impact on all branches of entertainment, VARIETY publishes below the entire decree, except for introductory matter. Where questions are raised by particular provisions, expert legal and trade opinion on the operation of these clauses are also set forth. Even the experts, legal or otherwise, are not entirely clear on all the ultimate results of the decree and it may be that some of the opinions can prove wrong.

Decree itself will be supplemented by Articles of Association which the ASCAP board will prepare for Federal court and Government approval. These rules will have an important bearing on the internal workings of ASCAP and the rights and privileges of ASCAP members. It is expected that the articles will be completed within 60 days.

In the final analysis, some clarification by the court will undoubtedly result from test actions and disputes over license fees. Court's attitude on fees, for instance, must play an important part in determining whether ASCAP's annual income will maintain its present level. Skipping the preamble and definitions, ASCAP decree is as follows:

III

The provisions of this Judgment applicable to the defendant ASCAP shall apply to such defendant, its successors and assigns, and to each of their officers, directors, agents, employees, and to all other persons, including members, acting or claiming to act under, through or for such defendant. None of the injunctions or requirements herein imposed upon the defendants shall apply to the acquisition of or licensing of the right to perform musical compositions publicly for profit outside the United States of America, its territories or possessions, such acquisition or licensing being subject to the provisions of the Final Judgment entered this day in Civil Action No. 42-245.

(The opening clause is aimed at making this decree stick to any organization which may succeed to the rights and privileges of ASCAP. Paragraph also limits the decree to domestic licensing of music since a second consent decree covers foreign rights).

IV

Defendant ASCAP is hereby enjoined and restrained from:

(A) Holding, acquiring, licensing, enforcing, or negotiating concerning any rights in copyrighted musical compositions other than rights of public performance on a non-exclusive basis;

(B) Limiting, restricting, or interfering with the right of any member to issue to a user non-exclusive licenses for rights of public performance;

(C) Entering into, recognizing, enforcing or claiming any rights under any license for rights of public performance which discriminates in license fees or other terms and conditions between licensees similarly situated;

(This provision compels uniformity on ASCAP rates to users of music who are in the same classification so far as extent of use; type of operation, etc.)

(D) Hereafter granting any license for rights of public performance in excess of five years' duration, except for motion picture performance rights which are licensed pursuant to Section V (C) of this Judgment;

(Aimed at easing the resignation of an ASCAP member since ASCAP can no longer tie up members' rights for a prolonged period. It bars repetition of the current nine-year deal which ASCAP has with the radio networks.)

(E) Granting to, enforcing against, collecting any monies from, or negotiating with any motion picture theatre exhibitor concerning any motion picture performance rights.

(This important clause ends ASCAP's right to levy seat taxes on theatres for performance rights. ASCAP previously grossed some $1,400,000 yearly from this source. However, it has been barred from so doing in the past year because of a decision of Judge Vincent L. Leibell in N.Y. federal district court in a suit brought by over 160 exhibitors. Clause conforms to the decision.)

(F) Instituting or threatening to institute, or maintaining or continuing any suit or proceeding against (1) any motion picture theatre exhibitor for copyright infringement relating to motion picture performance rights or against (2) any user for copyright infringement of any musical composition not contained in the ASCAP repertory. After the preparation of the list required to be maintained by Section XIV herein, the repertory shall be deemed to consist of only those compositions appearing on such list.

(Paragraph ends all copyright suits against exhibitors.)

(G) Restricting the right of any member to withdraw from membership in ASCAP at the end of any fiscal year upon (1) giving three months' advance written notice to ASCAP, and (2) agreeing that his resignation shall be subject to any rights or obligations existing between ASCAP and its licensees under then existing licenses and to the rights of the withdrawing member accruing under such licenses.

(Government purpose in this provision is to encourage the withdrawal of groups from ASCAP to set up competing organizations and thereby further open, competitive conditions. However, the right of withdrawal is subject to important strings and complications. A member who resigns cannot upset existing deals that ASCAP has legitimately made on performance rights to the member's music in any showbiz field. He can then deal privately with any user of music on a non-exclusive basis who does not hold a contract with ASCAP on the member's music. For example, the member, after resigning, cannot make a deal with NBC because of the existing contract between ASCAP and NBC, which covers the entire ASCAP catalog, and, necessarily, the member's music. He may, however, sell to a film producer because there is no deal at the moment.)

(H) Asserting or exercising any right or power to restrict from public performance for profit by any licensee of ASCAP any composition in order to exact additional consideration for the performance thereof, or for the purpose of permitting the fixing or regulating of fees for the recording or transcribing of such composition. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent ASCAP, when so directed by the member in interest in respect of a musical composition, from restricting performances of a composition in order reasonably to protect the composition against indiscriminate performances, or the value of the public performance for profit rights therein, or the dramatic performing rights therein, or to prevent ASCAP from restricting performances of a composition so far as may be reasonably necessary in connection with any claim or litigation involving the performing rights in any such composition.

Defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to issue, upon request, licenses for rights of public performance of compositions in the ASCAP repertory as follows:

(A) To a radio broadcasting network, telecasting network or wired music service (as illustrated by the organization known as "Muzak"), on terms which authorize the simultaneous and so-called "delayed" performance by broadcasting or telecasting, or simultaneous performance by wired music service, as the case may be, of the ASCAP repertory by any, some or all of the stations in the United States affiliated with such radio network or television network or by all subscriber outlets in the United States affiliated with any wired music service and do not require a separate license for each station or subscriber for such performances.

(This opens the way for network licensing of television stations. It bars ASCAP from seeking separate licenses from each member station in a tele net. It also prevents separate rating charges for simultaneous and delayed—kinescope or otherwise—telecasts.)

(B) To a manufacturer, producer or distributor of a transcription or recordation of a composition in ASCAP's repertory which is or shall be recorded for performance on specified commercially sponsored radio programs or television programs, as the case may be, on an electrical transcription or on other specially prepared recordation intended for radio broadcasting or for television broadcasting purposes (or to any advertiser or advertising agency on whose behalf such transcription or recordation shall have been made) of the right to authorize the broadcasting, by radio or by television, as the case may be, of the recorded composition by means of such transcription or recordation by all radio stations or television stations in the United States enumerated by the licensee, without requiring separate licenses for such enumerated stations for such performance.

(This clause extends paragraph A to manufacturers and distributors of transcription programs.)

(C) To any person engaged in producing motion pictures (herein referred to as a "motion picture producer"), so long as ASCAP shall not have divested itself of such rights, a single license of motion picture performance rights covering the United States, its territories and possessions, without requiring further licenses. Such single license shall be issued in accordance with the following requirements and in accordance with all other provisions of this Judgment not inconsistent therewith:

(This provision works a complete change in dealings with the film industry. Heretofore, film producers did not deal with ASCAP since they obtained synchronization rights from the publishers directly. Performance rights were granted by ASCAP directly to exhibitors. Producers must now obtain their performance rights by negotiations with ASCAP or the individual member. These rights would then extend automatically to all theatres, having been paid for at the source. It also represents an increase in the cost of film production.)

(1) Such license shall be limited to pictures produced or in production not later than one year after the effective date of the license, and shall not make any charge for any performance occurring prior to the date of this Judgment;

(Provision was inserted at ASCAP's insistence. It is intended to prevent a producer from obtaining a license to a composition and then holding up production of a picture indefinitely.)

(2) Upon written request of any motion picture producer such licenses shall be issued on a "per film" basis for the compositions in such film which are in the ASCAP repertory;

(Provision restrains ASCAP from demanding payment on its complete catalog when a producer wants only one or more songs for a single film.)

(3) All licenses of motion picture performance rights under this Subsection (C) shall be negotiated with and issued to individual motion picture producers, and not on an "industry-wide" basis;

(To prevent a repetition of the deal ASCAP made with the radio industry. Government does not want a blanket amount fixed from films by ASCAP with the intention that it be split up among film producers.)

(4) Where within a period of nineteen (19) months prior to the entry of this Judgment a motion picture producer has obtained a license for motion picture performance rights directly from members of ASCAP and has paid a separately stated amount therefor, such licenses issued by ASCAP covering motion picture performance rights shall, at the request of such producer, include the rights conveyed by the previous license, in which event ASCAP shall allow the motion picture producer a credit against the amount otherwise payable, equal to the amount paid under the previous license.

(During the past 19 months, while ASCAP was under an injunction from Judge Leibell banning collection of seat taxes from theatres, producers have obtained performance rights directly from publishers on a when, as and if basis. Since the performance rights are still lodged in ASCAP under this decree, this paragraph prevents ASCAP from attacking these when-and-if licenses although, actually, the publishers never did get these rights. In short, it recognizes those deals and bars double payment.)

(5) No writer or publisher member of the Board of Directors of ASCAP shall participate in or vote on any question relating to the negotiation, execution, performance or enforcement of any such license where such member at the time, directly or indirectly, has any pecuniary interest in any motion picture producer, in any subsidiary or affiliate of any motion picture producer, or in any contractual relationship with any such producer.

(This is directed against publishing houses that are subsids of film companies. It is to prevent these studios from getting a better break on rates because of discriminatory action of their own companies.)

VI

Defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to grant to any user making written application therefor a non-exclusive license to perform all of the compositions in the ASCAP repertory. Defendant ASCAP shall not grant to any user a license to perform one or more specified compositions in the ASCAP repertory, unless both the user and member or members in interest shall have requested ASCAP in writing so to do, or unless ASCAP, at the written request of the prospective user shall have sent a written notice of the prospective user's request for a license to each such member at his last known address, and such member shall have failed to reply within thirty (30) days thereafter.

VII

Defendant ASCAP, in licensing rights for public performance for radio broadcasting and telecasting, is hereby:

(A) Enjoined and restrained from issuing any license, the fee for which

(1) in the case of commercial programs, is based upon a percentage of the income received by the licensee from programs which include no compositions in the ASCAP repertory, or

(2) in the case of sustaining programs, does not vary in proportion either (a) to the performance of compositions in the ASCAP repertory during the term of the license, or (b) to the number of programs on which such compositions or any of them are performed, unless the radio broadcaster or telecaster to whom such license shall be issued shall desire a license on either or both of such bases.

(Paragraph intends to halt the former ASCAP practice of demanding compensation on the program preceding or following that using ASCAP music. It has been ASCAP's contention that both these programs benefit from the listening audience that tunes in on the program using ASCAP music.

(B) Ordered and directed to issue to any unlicensed radio or television broadcaster, upon written request, per program licenses, the fee for which

(1) in the case of commercial programs, is, at the option of ASCAP, either (a) expressed in terms of dollars, requiring the payment of a specified amount for each program in which compositions in the ASCAP repertory shall be performed, or (b) based upon the payment of a percentage of the sum paid by the sponsor of such program for the use of the broadcasting or telecasting of facilities of such radio or television broadcasting,

(Restricts the rate basis on radio or television to now unlicensed broadcasters to either a flat payment or a percentage or the sum paid by the sponsor.)

(2) In the case of sustaining programs, is at the option of ASCAP, either (a) expressed in terms of dollars, requiring the payment of a specified amount for each program in which compositions in the ASCAP repertory shall be performed, or (b) based upon the payment of a percentage of the card rate which would have been applicable for the use of its broadcasting facilities in connection with such program if it had been commercial, and

(3) subject to the other provisions of Section VIII, takes into consideration the economic requirements and situation of those stations having relatively few commercial announcements and a relatively greater percentage of sustaining programs, with the objective that such stations shall have a genuine economic choice between per program and blanket licenses;

(C) Enjoined and restrained from requiring or influencing the prospective licensee to negotiate for a blanket license prior to negotiating for a per program license.

(Both this and the following

(Continued on page 43)

ASCAP Decree

Reprints of the ASCAP decree (abridged), with its trade analysis, along with other salient stories trade-interpreting its nuances, may be made available at 25c. It is anticipated there will be considerable demand for interpretative stories, as well as the decree segments, and these stories will be printed up on glossy stock within the next two or three weeks.

There are a number of contradictory phases about the decree, hence the extent of the reprint is problematic. The next week or two will further crystallize certain interpretations by Hollywood, radio-TV, music business and other industry legalites If the reprints become necessary, in light of future events within the next two weeks, they may be ordered from VARIETY, N. Y. City 19 while the supply lasts.

Foreign Rights Judgment Does Complete Switch

Terms of the foreign rights judgment against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, filed in New York Federal court last week, represent a complete reversal of the Society's former practices in regard to the licensing of foreign music in the U. S. Foreign section of the consent decree requires ASCAP to end all arrangements which gave it exclusive control of a foreign country's music here or which compelled foreign author-composer societies to deal only with it.

Basic points of the foreign rights judgment against ASCAP are:

(1) The Society cannot hold, acquire or license any rights in foreign music, other than performing rights on a non-exclusive basis.

(2) Every member of ASCAP has the unrestricted right, free of any regulation or requirement of ASCAP, to license non-exclusive performance rights outside the United States.

(3) No license from any foreign society can exceed 12 months' duration.

(4) ASCAP cannot refuse to license any foreign society.

(5) Every license from ASCAP to a foreign society must expire six months after the expiration of any license from the foreign society to ASCAP

(6) ASCAP cannot negotiate for a license to a foreign society while negotiating for a license from that society; it cannot prevent any foreign society from granting non-exclusive licenses to a performing rights society other than ASCAP, and it cannot offer a license to a foreign society in exchange for a license to it.

(7) ASCAP cannot have any interest in or relationship with any international group of performing rights societies if such an interest or relationship restricts a member's right to license non-members, limits membership in any designated territory, prevents any society in the U. S. from dealing with any foreign society, and allocates or restricts territories or eliminates competition among societies.

(8) ASCAP must now arrange to terminate all existing agreements with foreign societies.

ASCAP Decree Text

Continued from page 42

paragraph are intended to limit ASCAP's activities in seeking blanket licenses.)

VIII

Defendant ASCAP, in fixing its fees for the licensing of compositions in the ASCAP repertory, is hereby ordered and directed to use its best efforts to avoid any discrimination among the respective fees fixed for the various types of licenses which would deprive the licensees or prospective licensees of a genuine choice from among such various types of licenses.

IX

(A) Defendant ASCAP shall, upon receipt of a written application for a license for the right of public performance of any, some or all of the compositions in the ASCAP repertory, advise the applicant in writing of the fee which it deems reasonable for the license requested. If the parties are unable to agree upon a reasonable fee within sixty (60) days from the date when such application is received by ASCAP, the applicant therefor may forthwith apply to this Court for the determination of a reasonable fee and ASCAP shall, upon receipt of notice of the filing of such application, promptly give notice thereof to the Attorney General. In any such proceeding the burden of proof shall be on ASCAP to establish the reasonableness of the fee requested by it. Pending the completion of any such negotiations or proceedings, the applicant shall have the right to use any, some or all of the compositions in the ASCAP repertory to which its application pertains, without payment of any fee or other compensation, but subject to the provisions of subsection (B) hereof, and to the final order or judgment entered by this Court in such proceedings.

(This provision is unique. It takes from ASCAP the exclusive power to fix rates and gives the court the privilege to determine whether a rate is reasonable.. It may prove to be a strong factor in reducing ASCAP's revenues. Moreover, it places on ASCAP in any court proceeding the burden of proving the rate is reasonable.)

(B) When an applicant has the right to perform any compositions in the ASCAP repertory pending the completion of any negotiations or proceedings provided for in Subsection (A) hereof, either the applicant or ASCAP may apply to this Court to fix an interim fee pending final determination of what constitutes a reasonable fee. If the Court fixes such interim fee, ASCAP shall then issue and the applicant shall accept a license providing for the payment of a fee at such interim rate from the date of the filing of such application for an interim fee. If the applicant fails to accept such license or fails to pay the interim fee in accordance therewith, such failure shall be ground for the dismissal of his application. Where an interim license has been issued pursuant to this Subsection (B), the reasonable fee finally determined by this Court shall be retroactive to the date the applicant acquired the right to use any, some or all of the compositions in the ASCAP repertory pursuant to the provisions of this Section IX;

(C) When a reasonable fee has been finally determined by this Court, defendant ASCAP shall be required to offer a license at a comparable fee to all other applicants similarly situated who shall thereafter request a license of ASCAP, but any license agreement which has been executed without any Court intervention between ASCAP and another user similarly situated prior to such determination by the Court shall not be deemed to be in any way affected or altered by such determination for the term of such license agreement;

(D) Nothing in this Section IX shall prevent any applicant or licensee from attacking in the aforeside proceedings or in any other controversy the validity of the copyright of any of the compositions in the ASCAP repertory nor shall this Judgment be construed as importing any validity or value to any of said copyrights.

No officer or director of ASCAP, or any person acting on its behalf, shall participate in or vote on any question relating to any transaction or negotiation involving ASCAP and a licensee, or prospective licensee, where such officer, director, or other person has any pecuniary interest in such licensee or prospective licensee, or in any subsidiary or affiliate thereof, or in any contractual relationship with any such licensee or prospective licensee.

(This is a wider application of a previous paragraph which bars publishing houses affiliated with film producers from participating in negotiations with the studio in question. It is intended to prevent discriminatory rates.)

XI

Defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to distribute to its members the monies received by licensing rights of public performance on a basis which gives primary consideration to the performance of the compositions of the members as indicated by objective surveys of performances (excluding those licensed by the member directly) periodically made by or for ASCAP.

(This provision is a blow at the "prestige" and oldster composer members of ASCAP. It makes the number of performances of a composer's music in each year the primary gauge on allocation of royalties. How far ASCAP can go in including intangibles or imponderables such as prestige, length of membership, etc., is a moot question. Government has indicated it will oppose a classification system that gives substantial value to these imponderables, called seniority and availability in trade circles.)

XII

Defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed, within three months after the entry of this Judgment, to provide in its Articles of Association, effective as of the date of this Judgment, that ASCAP's members be prohibited from:

(A) At any time, while a member of ASCAP or thereafter, instituting, or threatening to institute, or maintaining or continuing any suit or proceeding for acts of copyright infringement relating to motion picture performance rights (1) alleged to have occurred prior to the date of this Judgment, or (2) where corresponding synchronization rights have been granted prior to the date of this Judgment.

(This provision puts an end to a device whereby ASCAP members acting individually sought to enforce seat taxes against theatres as a way of skirting the Federal court injunction against ASCAP itself seeking to collect. It supplements previous clauses in the decree ending ASCAP's power to levy against exhibs for performance rights.)

(B) While a member of ASCAP, granting a synchronization or recording right for any musical composition to any motion picture producer unless the member or members in interest or ASCAP grants corresponding motion picture performance rights in conformity with the provisions of this Judgment.

(This prevents the splitting of synch and performance rights so far as films are concerned. Both must be granted either by the ASCAP member or ASCAP itself. Splitting of these rights were branded illegal by Judge Leibell.)

XIII

In order to insure a democratic administration of the affairs of defendant ASCAP, and to assure its members an opportunity to protect their rights through fair and impartial hearings based on adequate information, defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to provide in its Articles of Association:

(A) That the members of the Board of Directors shall be elected by a membership vote in which all author, composer and publisher members shall have the right to vote for their respective representatives to serve on the Board of Directors. Due weight may be given to the classification of the member within ASCAP in determining the number of votes each member may cast for the election of directors. Elections for the entire membership of the Board of Directors shall take place annually or every two years. The Board of Directors shall, as far as practicable, give representation to writer-members and publisher-members with different participations in ASCAP's revenue distributions.

(Aimed to "democratize" ASCAP and end the Government claim that the board of directors is a self-perpetuating body. This paragraph does away with the previous arrangement whereby board members served for three-year terms, with eight directors elected to the 24-man board annually on a rotating basis.)

(B) That the general basis of member classification for voting and revenue distribution purposes shall be set forth in writing and shall be made available to any member upon request;

(To carry out the Government's avowed intention that all classifications be openly arrived at on an impartial basis.)

(C) That any member may appeal from the final determination of its classification by any ASCAP committee or board to an impartial arbiter or panel;

(This provision takes classification appeals out of the hands of ASCAP and puts them before an impartial body. It is directed at barring the ASCAP board from acting as prosecutor, judge and jury on classification matters.)

(D) That records be maintained by the officers, committees, or boards of ASCAP, and the impartial arbiters or panels referred to in Subsection (C) of this Section dealing with the classification of members and distribution of revenues, which will adequately apprise the respective members of the determinations made and actions taken by such officers, committees and boards of ASCAP, and arbiters or panels as to such members and the basis therefor.

XIV

Immediately following entry of this Judgment defendant ASCAP shall upon written request from any prospective user inform such user whether any compositions specified in such request are in the ASCAP repertory, and make available for public inspection such information as to the ASCAP repertory as it has. Defendant ASCAP is furthermore ordered and directed to prepare within two years, and to maintain and keep current and make available for inspection during regular office hours, a list of all musical compositions in the ASCAP repertory, which list will show the title, date or copyright and the author, composer and current publisher of each composition.

XV

Defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to admit to membership, non-participating or otherwise,

(A) Any composer or author of a copyrighted musical composition who shall have had at least one work of his composition or writing regularly published;

(B) Any person, firm, corporation or partnership actively engaged in the music publishing business, whose musical publications have been used or distributed on a commercial scale for at least one year, and who assumes the financial risk involved in the normal publication of musical works.

(Provision liberalizes membership eligibility requirements in response to a volume of complaints lodged with the Dept. of Justice.)

XVI

For the purpose of securing compliance with this Amended Final Judgment, duly authorized representatives of the Department of Justice shall, upon the written request of the Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General, and on reasonable notice to defendant, be permitted (a) reasonable access, during the office hours of said defendant, to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda, and other records and documents in the possession or under the control of said defendant, relating to any of the matters contained in this Amended Final Judgment; (b) subject to the reasonable convenience of said defendant and without restraint or interference from it, to interview officers or employees of said defendant, who may have counsel present, regarding any such matters; and said defendant, on such request, shall submit such reports in respect of any such matters as may from time to time be reasonably necessary for the proper enforcement of this Judgment, provided, however, that information received by the means permitted in this Section XVI shall not be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice, except in the course of legal proceedings in which the United States is a party or as otherwise required by law.

(Standard clause in consent decrees to give the Government power of surveillance and enforcement of the decree.)

XVII

Jurisdiction of this cause is retained for the purpose of enabling any of the parties to this Amended Final Judgment to make application to the Court for such further orders and directions as may be necessary or appropriate in relation to the construction of or carrying out of this Judgment, for the modification thereof, for the enforcement of compliance therewith and for the punishment of violations thereof.

It is expressly understood, in addition to the foregoing, that the plaintiff may, upon reasonable notice, at any time after five (5) years from the date of entry of this Amended Final Judgment apply to this Court for the vacation of said Judgment, or its modification in any respect, including the dissolution of ASCAP (and any time within two (2) years from said date apply to this Court for the vacation or modification of Section V (C) hereof). During the applicable periods specified above, defendant ASCAP is hereby ordered and directed to conduct its affairs, including the making of agreements to acquire or license the rights of public performance, so as not unreasonably to complicate or delay the enforcement of any such further relief requested by plaintiff and granted by this Court pursuant to the terms of this Section.

(Government preserves the right to seek dissolution of ASCAP after five years. Because operation of ASCAP so far as film production is concerned remains uncertain, a two-year clause on modifications of the decree is preserved on that division.)

XVIII

This Amended Final Judgment shall become effective from the date of entry hereof, except that the provisions of Sections IV (G), XIII and XV shall become effective three months after the date of entry hereof, and the provisions of Section XI shall become effective eight months after the date of entry hereof. This Amended Final Judgment supersedes the Civil Decree and Judgment entered herein on March 4, 1941, but shall not be construed to make proper or lawful or sanction any acts which occurred prior to the date hereof which were enjoined, restrained or prohibited by said Civil Decree and Judgment of March 4, 1941.

ASCAP Toppers West On Revised Writer Plan?

Fred E. Ahlert, American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers president, and John Tasker Howard, chairman of the ASCAP executive committee, left New York for Hollywood Thursday (16) to meet with Coast writer-membership next Monday (27). Herman Finkelstein, ASCAP attorney and legal mainspring for the Society in its Dept. of Justice dealings which resulted in last week's consent decree, departed for the Coast the following day to sit in on the meeting.

Coast confab is in conformity with ASCAP by-laws which call for such meetings 30 days prior to general membership conclaves in N. Y. Next week's discussion obviously will revolve around the decree and its provision for a revised writer plan which would place primary consideration on performance.

RCA UP PAIR

R. C. Dove and H. V. Somerville upped to positions of operating assistant and technical assistant, respectively, to Robert A. Seidel, vice-prexy over RCA-Victor distribution.

Tom Jones, formerly associated with orchestra leader Al Goodman, has joined Southern Music as repertoire director.

U.S. Admits Need For Single Body To License Music

In granting a consent decree to the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, the Government recognized the need for such an organization to simplify the sale of performance rights, Sigmund Timberg, head of the Dept. of Justice's judgment section, told the Federal district court in New York. Timberg made his statement in conjunction with handing up the decree last week for court approval. He was assisted by Harold Lasser and William D. Kilgore, Jr.

"This judgment is largely based on the hitherto unchallenged assumption that important users of ASCAP music must, as a practical matter, have a blanket license from ASCAP covering the entire ASCAP reportory," Timberg said. "That assumption has been advanced as the basic reason for ASCAP's continued assumption."

Timberg also detailed the new order in ASCAP so far as classification and other internal matters are concerned. These will be incorporated in the new articles of association. Understood that Robert P. Patterson, former U. S. Secretary of War who acted as chief counsel for ASCAP, has advised the Government that these articles will be completed and presented to the court within 60 days.

"Classification of ASCAP members and the basis for distribution of revenues among them is to be modified," Timberg said, "so as to provide objective standards and impartial procedure for reviewing ASCAP's determinations. Primary consideration is to be given to the number of performances of compositions of members, as reflected by objective surveys.

"Other provisions require that suitable records be kept and made available by ASCAP officers and committees, so that affected members may know how they arrived at their determinations; and that members may appeal their classifications and revenue distributions to an impartial arbiter or panel."

ASCAP Load

Continued from page 5

exhibs to recover seat-tax payments made by them to ASCAP in the past. However, copyright attorneys believe these suits would be beaten because of an old ruling which bars recovery of licenses paid on illegal patents or copyrights. It is the same sort of defense successfully used by distribs in exhib counterclaims on percentage-chiselling suits. In these cases, exhibs have vainly defended non-payment of rentals on the ground the film licenses were granted under monopoly conditions.

As a matter of fact, Federal Judge Vincent Leibell denied the Brandt plea for damages in the action now settled on those grounds, although the court ruled ASCAP a monopoly. Appeal from this decision was filed by Brandt but never pressed.

$1,400,000 From Theatres

While ASCAP grossed some $1,400,000 from flickeries, its cost of administration in licensing thousands of houses was far greater than it will be in dealing with a handful of film producers. Hence, the music group may be satisfied to get about $1,000,000 from Hollywood.

When ASCAP is ready to go on negotiations with producers, it will probably deal with these individually rather than as a group. Decree bans any industry-wide fixing of a total sum. Moreover, reps from smaller companies have indicated to VARIETY that they would rather deal with ASCAP on a lone basis rather than find themselves lumped with the big users of music.

Major difficulty in recovering the additional outlay facing producers is the fact that there is no easy way of pinning it on rentals. Any attempt to boost terms on pix would automatically bring on a full-scale battle with exhibs. A separate charge for performance of pix is not deemed feasible by those studying developments.

Top Record Talent and Tunes

AS POLLED VIA LEADING U. S. "REQUEST" DISK JOCKEYS

Weekly chart of the records on disk jockeys programs, as "most requested" by listeners. This compilation is based on information gathered from disk-spinners 'cross the nation and is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of 10 points for a No. 1 mention, 9 for a No. 2 and so on down to one point. Cities and jockeys will vary week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country.

WEEK ENDING MAR. 18

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	Pub.
1	1	7	Frankie Laine	Mercury	Cry of the Wild Goose	American BMI
2	2	8	Teresa Brewer	London	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP
3	3	11	Ames Bros	Coral	Rag Mop	Hill-Range BMI
4	7	6	Bing Crosby	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff-Rose BMI
5	5	8	Sammy Kaye	Victor	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music ASCAP
6	4	21	Tony Martin	Victor	There's No Tomorrow	Paxton ASCAP
7	9	3	Eileen Barton	Mercury	Knew You Were Coming	Robert ASCAP
8	8	8	T. Martin-F. Warren	Victor	I Said My Pajamas	Leeds ASCAP
9	9	11	Patti Page	Mercury	With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford ASCAP
10A	14	8	Ames Bros	Coral	Sentimental Me	Knick'bock'r ASCAP
10B	6	10	Red Foley	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff-Rose BMI
12	18	6	Ralph Flanagan	Victor	Rag Mop	Hill-Range BMI
13	11	3	Phil Harris	Victor	Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff-Rose BMI
14A	36	6	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M	C'est Si Bon	Leeds ASCAP
14B	13	6	Mindy Carson	Victor	Candy and Cake	Oxford ASCAP
16		1	Freddy Martin	Victor	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP
17	40	3	E. Merman-R. Bolger	Decca	Dearie	Laurel ASCAP
18	20	5	Mills Bros	Decca	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon BMI
19		4	Dinah Shore	Columbia	So Nice to Have a Man	Morris ASCAP
20	24	6	Gordon Jenkins	Decca	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy ASCAP
21		1	Anton Karas	London	3rd Man Theme	Chappell ASCAP
22		1	M. Martin-A. Godfrey	Columbia	Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep	Disney ASCAP
23A	46	7	Guy Lombardo	Decca	Enjoy Yourself	Morris ASCAP
23B	22	6	B. Crosby-Andrews Sis	Decca	Quicksilver	Morris ASCAP
25	14	8	Vaughn Monroe	Victor	Bamboo	Shapiro-B. ASCAP
26A	46	19	Dinah Shore	Columbia	Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris ASCAP
26B	36	2	Don Cornell	Victor	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music ASCAP
26C		10	Phil Harris	Victor	Old Master Painter	Robbins ASCAP
26D		1	Jimmy Wakely	Capitol	Peter Cottontail	Hill-Range BMI
30A	49	4	Richard Hayes	Mercury	Flying Dutchman	Oxford ASCAP
30B		2	Fran Warren	Victor	My Love Loves Me	Paramount ASCAP
30C	25	3	Guy Lombardo	Decca	3rd Man Theme	Chappell ASCAP
30D	40	2	Perry Como	Victor	Dream Is a Wish Heart Makes	Disney ASCAP
30E		1	Dick Jurgens	Columbia	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon BMI
30F		1	J. Marine-F. Waring	Decca	It Isn't Fair	Words-Music ASCAP
30G		1	Mervin Shiner	Decca	Peter Cottontail	Hill-Range BMI
30H		1	Al Trace	Columbia	Knew You Were Coming	Robert ASCAP
30I		1	Skitch Henderson	Capitol	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon BMI
39A		1	Hugo Winterhaulter	Columbia	3rd Man Theme	Chappell ASCAP
39B		1	Jack Fina	M-G-M	Spaghetti Rag	Shapiro-B ASCAP
39C		4	Jimmy Dorsey	Columbia	Rag Mop	Hill-Range BMI
39D		1	Ray Anthony	Capitol	Sentimental Me	Knick'bock'r ASCAP
43A	17	2	Carmen Cavallaro	Decca	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP
43B	28	10	Billy Eckstine	M-G-M	Sitting By the Window	Shapiro-B. ASCAP
45A	30	12	Dick Todd	Rainbow	Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon BMI
45B		3	E. Merman-R. Bolger	Decca	I Said My Pajamas	Leeds ASCAP
45C	28	2	Ames Bros	Coral	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP
45D	25	2	Fran Warren	Victor	Almost Lost My Mind	Hill-Range BMI
45E		1	Burl Ives	Columbia	River of Smoke	Morris ASCAP
50A	20	6	T. Martin-F. Warren	Victor	Have I Told You Lately	Duchess BMI
50B	18	30	Andrews Sis-G. Jenkins	Decca	I Can Dream, Can't I	Chappell ASCAP
52		11	Russ Morgan	Decca	Johnson Rag	Miller ASCAP

Pos. this wk.	N. Y. Jack Lacy—WINS	Chi. Bill Evans—WGN	L. A. Ira Cook—KECA	Boston Howard Malcolm—WCOP	Det. Bill Silbert—WXYZ	S. F. Les Malloy—KYA	D. C. Eddie Gallaher—WTOP	St. L. Pat Bradley—KXLW	San Ant. John Harper—KABC	Roch'ter Mort Nusbaum—WHAM	K. C. Wayne Stitt—KCKN	Port., Ore. Jack Moyes—KPOJ	Sp'g field Paul Monson—WMAS	Omaha Joe Kennedy—KOWH	Seattle Wally Nelskog—KRSC	Lawrence Dean J. Slack—WCCM	Denver Ray Perkins—KFEL	Alaska Hal Knutson—KENI	Baltimore Dick Coleman—WCBM	Cincy Bill Dawes—WCPO	Phoenix Dick Gilbert—KTYL	Pitt. Al Nobel—KQV	Ind. Bill Faulkner—WISH	Miami Hal Murray—WMIE	TOTAL POINTS
1	2			1		5		8	1		7	2	3		3	1	8	9	7	7	4	3		8	108
2			2	2	10		1	1	10						7	7				4		2	6	3	77
3	3				3	1		10			4	3	5			5						4		2	70
4					4	2	2		3		1		1				5					1			69
5	1		10				4	2			2				9	3			3			5		6	64
6		8				4	9					5	4	2	2		2							4	59
7	4		1		9		8	6											9	1		7	4	7	54
8	7					8	3		6	6		1	7		10	9						6			47
9			7		1			5		7	6		9						4		7				42
10A		9		10					7				6		1	2			1						41
10B								4				4				4	1							1	41
12									2					8			6	2		8					29
13														1	6			1							25
14A		1			8					3			8												24
14B		4												7				4					5		24
16						3								4			4								22
17	6		6		7			9								6									21
18							7				3			3											20
19	8						6	7		4															19
20			4																2			9			18
21	5																			10	3				15
22			8																		1				13
23A		6					5																	10	12
23B									9						5		10					8			12
25			5																		6				11
26A				6			10					8	10												10
26B										1															10
26C												6						6							10
26D																							1		10
30A		2																							9
30B					2																				9
30C										2															9
30D											10							3							9
30E													2												9
30F														6									7		9
30G																				2					9
30H																					2				9
30I																							2		9
39A			3																						8
39B								3																	8
39C																	3								8
39D																							3		8
43A											5										10				7
43B															4										7
45A				5																					6
45B														5											6
45C																		5							6
45D																				5					6
45E																					5				6
50A					6																				5
50B						9						10									9				5
52																		7							4

(Copyright Variety Inc. All Rights Reserved

This week's New Releases ... on RCA Victor

RELEASE 50-12

POPULAR

RALPH FLANAGAN
Spring Will Be a Little Late This Year
(From the Universal film, "Christmas Holiday".)
Joshua 20-3724—(47-3724)*

MINDY CARSON
Little Darlin', Little Angel
Be Mine 20-3725—(47-3725)*

LARRY GREEN
Bewitched
(From the musical production, "Pal Joey")
If I Had You On a Desert Island
20-3726—(47-3726)*

FRAN ALLISON
Peter Cottontail
Stars Are the Windows of Heaven
20-3727—(47-3727)*

PHIL HARRIS
Muskat Ramble
Walk With a Wiggle 20-3723—(47-3723)*

PHIL REGAN
Scattered Toys
On the Other Side of the Water
20-3729—(47-3729)*

COUNTRY

TEXAS JIM ROBERTSON
Rubber Knuckle Sam
Wedding Bells Will Never Ring Again
21-0304—(48-0304)*

ROSALIE ALLEN
Choc'late Ice Cream Cone
My Dolly Has a Broken Heart
21-0305—(48-0305)*

RHYTHM

JOHNNY MOORE'S THREE BLAZERS
Rock With It
Misery Blues 22-0073—(50-0073)*

POP SPECIALTY

ERNIE BENEDICT
Tic-Tock Polka
Broken-Down Merry-Go-Round
25-1153—(51-0060)*

*45 r.p.m. catalog numbers.

NOTE: All records in this panel are listed alphabetically by song title.

Going Strong...

$ . . . indicates records which, according to actual sales, are recognized hits. The trade is urged to keep ample stocks of these records on hand or to reorder promptly when current stocks begin to approach the "sold-out" stage.

7 . . . designates that record is one of RCA Victor's "Certain Seven"—among the leading numbers on the trade paper best selling retail sales charts. Obviously, sure things!

$ Bamboo 7
Vaughn Monroe .....20-3627—(47-3143)*

$ Candy and Cake 7
Mindy Carson......20-3681—(47-3204)*

$ Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy
Phil Harris ......20-3685—(47-3208)*

$ I Said My Pajamas 7
Tony Martin-Fran Warren ......20-3613—(47-3119)*

$ It Isn't Fair 7
Sammy Kaye ......20-3609—(47-3115)*

$ Marta
Tony Martin ......20-3598—(47-3104)*

$ Music, Music, Music
Freddy Martin ......20-3693—(47-3217)*

$ Rag Mop 7
Ralph Flanagan ......30-0025—(54-0020)*

$ Take Me in Your Arms and Hold Me 7
Eddy Arnold ......21-0146—(48-0150)*

$ There's No Tomorrow 7
Tony Martin ......20-3582—(47-3078)*

Coming Up...

★ . . indicates records which have enjoyed better than average initial consumer acceptance and stand an excellent chance of entering the top-selling hit category. The trade is advised to watch these records carefully in order to maintain stocks consistent with demand.

★ Dearie
Fran Warren & Lisa Kirk
20-3696—(47-3220)*
(Number four, Retail Picks March 18 Billboard.)
(Number twenty-two, Records Most Played by Disk Jockeys March 18 Billboard.)

★ Wanderin'
Sammy Kaye ....20-3680—(47-3203)*
(Number one, Disk Jockeys Pick March 18 Billboard.)
(Number nine, Juke Ops Pick March 18 Billboard.)
(Number ten, Retailers Pick March 18 Billboard—the first week on sale!)

★ I Almost Lost My Mind
Fran Warren ....20-3686—(47-3209)*
(Number five, Retailers Pick March 18 Billboard.)
(Number eight, Disk Jockeys Pick March 18 Billboard.)

★ Roulette
Tony Martin ....20-3695—(47-3219)*
(Number six, Disk Jockeys Pick March 18 Billboard.)
(Number eight, Retailers Pick March 18 Billboard.)

★ Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy
Bradford and Romano
20-3685—(47-3208)*
(Number eight, Records Most Played by Disk Jockeys March 18 Billboard.)

★ Quicksilver
Elton Britt and Rosalie Allen
21-0157—(48-0168)*
(Number four, Country and Western Most Played by Disk Jockeys Billboard March 18.)

The stars who make the hits are on RCA VICTOR Records

RCA VICTOR DIVISION RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA, CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY

JAN FEB MA The APRIL MAY JUNE Swing's to "45"

Bands at Hotel B.O.'s

Band	Hotel	Weeks Played	Covers Past Week	Total Covers On Date
Eddy Duchin*	Waldorf (400; $2)	2	2,400	4,570
Guy Lombardo	Roosevelt (450; $1.50-$2)	25	2,350	66,275
Jimmy Dorsey	Statler (450; $1.50-$2)	6	1,670	9,810
Tony Pastor*	New Yorker (400; $1-$1.50)	2	1,100	1,900

---

* New Yorker has Connie Haines; Waldorf, Dorothy Shay.

Chicago

Johnny Aladdin (Swiss Chalet, Bismarck, 250; $2 min.-80c. cover). Noble & King opened Wednesday (15), but biz still slow; 1,000 covers.

Dick LaSalle (Mayfair Room, Blackstone, 350; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Traffic down to mediocre 1,300 covers.

Frankie Masters (Boulevard Room, Stevens, 720; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Ice show fair with 3,340 tabs.

George Olsen (Marine Room, Edgewater, 700; $1.20). Moderate 1,500 diners.

Eddie O'Neal (Empire Room, Palmer House, 500; $2.50 min.-$1 cover). Victor Borge brings in trim 3,385 patrons.

Bill Snyder (College Inn, Sherman, 500; $3.50 min.). College Inn Story still strong; 2,000 napkins.

Los Angeles

Jan Garber (Ambassador, 900; $1.50). With Evelyn Knight, second week, okay 2,300 covers.

Paul Neighbors (Biltmore, 900; $1.50). So-so 2,000 covers.

Phil Ohman (Beverly Hills, 300; $4 min.). Mild 1,800 covers.

Location Jobs, Not in Hotels

(Chicago)

Cee Davidson (Chez Paree, 560; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Jimmy Durante closed Tuesday; Tony Martin opened Friday (17); Marie McDonald filled in two days. Traffic down to so-so 4,000 tabs.

Jimmy Featherstone (Trianon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Poor 5,000 dancers.

Sherman Hayes (Blackhawk, 500; $2.50 min.-80c. cover). Hayes opened Wednesday (15) after Eddy Howard closed Monday (13). Show remains. Fair 1,700 napkins.

Dick Jurgens (Aragon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Weak 6,000 dancers.

(Los Angeles)

Harry Owens-Nick Stuart (Aragon, Santa Monica). Good 7,200 admissions.

Claude Thornhill (Palladium B., Hollywood). Okay 11,650 admissions.

Tops of the Tops

Retail Disk Best Seller
"Music, Music, Music"
Retail Sheet Music Seller
"Music, Music, Music"
"Most Requested" Disk
"Cry of the Wild Goose"
Seller on Coin Machines
"Music, Music, Music"
Best British Seller
"Music, Music, Music"

'RH' Logging System

Richard Himber's new development in logging broadcast performances lists tunes in the survey, based on four major network schedules. They are compiled on the basis of 1 point for sustaining instrumental, 2 points for sustaining vocals, 3 for commercial instrumental, 4 for commercial vocal, respectively, in each of the 3 major territories, New York, Chicago and Coast. For example, a commercial vocal in all three territories counts 12. Added to these totals is the listener ratings of commercial shows. The first group consists of the top 30 songs.

Week of March 10th to 16th

First Group

Songs	Publishers
A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Blossoms On the Bough	Bourne
Candy and Cake	Oxford
Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff-Rose
Copper Canyon—†"Copper Canyon"	Famous
Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon
Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris
Did Anyone Ever Tell You Mrs. Murphy	Johnstone-M
Enjoy Yourself	Morris
Have I Told You Lately That I Love You?	Duchess
How Can You Buy Killarney	Leeds
If I Knew You Were Coming I'd've Baked a Cake	Robert
I Gotta Have My Baby Back	Peer
I Said My Pajamas	Leeds
Johnson Rag	Miller
Little Gray House—*"Lost In the Stars"	Chappell
Marta	Marks
Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday	Leeds
Music, Music, Music	Cromwell
My Foolish Heart—†"My Foolish Heart"	Santly
Peter Cottontail	Hill & Range
Quick Silver	Morris
Rag Mop	Hill & Range
Rain	Miller
Sitting By The Window	Shapiro-B
Sunshine Cake—†"Riding High"	Burke-VH
There's No Tomorrow	Paxton
With My Eyes Wide Open I'm Dreaming	Crawford
You Missed the Boat	Advanced

Second Group

Songs	Publishers
All the Bees Are Buzzin' Around My Honey	Santly
Big Movie Show In the Sky—*"Texas Li'l Darlin'"	Chappell
Bye Bye Baby—*"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"	J. J. Robbins
Charley My Boy	Bourne
Cinderella Work Song—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Dearie	Laurel
Don't Do Something To Someone Else	Fisher
Girl That I Marry—†"Annie Get Your Gun"	Berlin
God's Country	Robbins
I Can Dream Can't I	Chappell
It Isn't Fair	Words & Music
It's So Nice To Have a Man Around the House	Morris
Kiss Me	Jefferson
Rain Or Shine	Lombardo
Save a Little Sunbeam	Capitol
Sorry	Spitzer
Wedding Samba	Duchess
Wilhelmina—†"Wabash Avenue"	Feist
You're Always There	BVC
You're Wonderful—†"Paid In Full"	Paramount

---

† Filmusical. * Legit Musical.

VARIETY SONG CAVALCADE

(Musical-Historical Review: 1800-1950)

Compiled for VARIETY

By JULIUS MATTFELD

(Copyright, Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Prentice-Hall, Inc., will publish the complete VARIETY Musical-Historical Song Cavalcade later this year at around $4 a copy (price will be determined later). Orders may be placed now with VARIETY, New York City (19).

Attention is hereby called to the fact that this material is copyrighted and may not be reproduced either wholly or in part.

(1945—Continued)

Ezra Pound, American-born poet, indicted for treason for broadcasting pro-Axis propaganda from Italy during the war, was committed to a mental hospital in Washington.

Theodore Dreiser, noted American author, died in his home in Hollywood.

General MacArthur ordered the arrest and trial for war crimes of 59 high ranking Japanese leaders, including Prince Morimasa Nashimoto, Kiichiro Hiranuma, president of the privy council, and Koki Hirota, former foreign minister and premier.

Maurice Chevalier, the French actor, was acquitted in Paris of the charge of collaboration with the Nazis.

FBI reported it had rounded up 1,500 Axis spies in North and South America during the war.

Academy Awards for the year were: Best Film, "The Lost Weekend," Paramount; Best Actress, Joan Crawford in "Mildred Pierce"; Best Actor, Ray Milland in "The Lost Weekend"; Best Supporting Actress, Anne Revere in "National Velvet"; Best Supporting Actor, James Dunn in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

1946

All Through the Day (film: Centennial Summer). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d, m., Jerome Kern. Williamson Music Inc., cop. 1946.

Along With Me (Call Me Mister). w., m., Harold Rome. M. Witmark & Sons, cop. 1946.

Anniversary Song (film: The Jolson Story). w., m., Al Jolson and Saul Chaplin, based on J. Ivanovici's waltz "Donauwellen" (Danube Waves). Mood Music Co., cop. 1946.

Colas Breugnon. Overture for orch. m., Dmitri Kabalevsky. Leeds Music Corp., cop. 1946. (First performed in the United States, Apr. 11, 1943, by NBC Symphony Orchestra under Arturo Toscanini.)

Come Rain or Come Shine (St. Louis Woman). w., Johnny Mercer. m., Harold Arlen, A-M Music Corp., cop. 1946. (Selling agent, Crawford Music Corp.)

Do You Love Me (film: Do You Love Me). w., m., Harry Ruby. Bregman, Vocco & Conn, Inc., cop. 1946.

Doin' What Comes Natur'lly (Annie Get Your Gun). w., m., Irving Berlin. Irving Berlin Music Co., cop. 1946 by Irving Berlin.

Five Minutes More. w., Sammy Cahn. m., Jule Styne. Melrose Music Corp., cop. 1946.

For You, For Me, For Evermore (film: The Shocking Miss Pilgrim). w., Ira Gershwin, m., George Gershwin. Gershwin Pub. Co., cop. 1946.

Full Moon and Empty Arms. w., m., Buddy Kaye and Ted Mossman, based on Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2. Barton Music Corp., cop. 1946.

The Girl That I Marry (Annie Get Your Gun). w., m., Irving Berlin. Irving Berlin Music Co., cop. 1946 by Irving Berlin.

The Gypsy. w., m., Billy Reid. Leeds Music Co., cop. 1945 by Peter Maurice Music Co., Ltd., London; cop. 1945 by Peter Maurice, Inc., New York; cop. 1946 by Peter Maurice, Inc.

How Are Things in Glocca Morra (Finian's Rainbow). w., E. Y. Harburg. m., Burton Lane. Crawford Music Corp., cop. 1946 by The Players Music Corp.

I Got the Sun in the Morning (Annie Get Your Gun). w., m., Irving Berlin. Irving Berlin Music Co., cop. 1946 by Irving Berlin.

Cavalcade Into Book

There have been so many inquiries about VARIETY'S Musical-Historical Cavalcade being published in book form that such a volume will be brought out this fall by Prentice-Hall at $4.

It can be ordered in advance through VARIETY.

In Love in Vain (film: Centennial Summer). w., Leo Robin. m., Jerome Kern. T. B. Harms Co., cop. 1946.

Linda. w., m., Jack Lawrence. Edwin H. Morris & Co., Inc., cop. 1946.

Midnight Masquerade. w., m., Bernard Bierman, Arthur Bierman and Jack Manus. Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., cop. 1946; cop. 1947.

Old Devil Moon (Finian's Rainbow). w., E. Y. Harburg. m., Burton Lane. Crawford Music Corp., cop. 1946.

Rumba Rhapsody. Instrumental piece. m., Rafael Audinot and Alberto de Bru. Remick Music Corp., cop. 1946.

Shoofly Pie and Apple Pan Dowdy. w., Sammy Gallop. m., Guy Woods. Capitol Songs, Inc., cop. 1946.

Sonata. w., Ervin Drake and Jimmy Shirl. m., Alstone. Oxford Music Corp., cop. 1946.

South America, Take It Away (Call Me Mister). w., m., Harold Rome. M. Witmark & Sons, cop. 1946.

There's No Business Like Show Business (Annie Get Your Gun). w., m., Irving Berlin. Irving Berlin Music Co., cop. 1946 by Irving Berlin.

They Say It's Wonderful (Annie Get Your Gun). w., m., Irving Berlin. Irving Berlin Music Co., cop. 1946 by Irving Berlin.

To Each His Own. w., m., Jay Livingston and Ray Evans. Paramount Music Corp., cop. 1946.

The World is Singing My Song. w., Mann Curtis. m., Vic Mizzy. Robbins Music Corp., cop. 1946.

Zip-a-Dee-Do-Dah (film: Song of the South). w., Ray Gilbert. m., Allie Wrubel. Santly-Joy, Inc., cop. 1946.

The U. S. Navy unveiled its newest and largest flying work horse, the Lockheed Constitution, capable of carrying a pay load of 69,000 pounds, including 168 passengers, of landing or making a complete stop in 2,300 feet and taking off after a run of 2,350 feet, of speeds exceeding 300 miles per hour and operating up to 25,000 feet.

James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians was named in a criminal information filed by the Government on charges of having used force and coercion to compel WAAF, Chicago, to hire three additional record librarians and, after the rejection of his demands, to have called a strike and picketed the station.

State taxes amounted to $6,800,000 this year, an increase of 12.5% over 1945.

Total deaths due to automobile accidents in the country were 33,700, as against 28,076 the preceding year.

The first Atlantic crossing by a four-engined Douglas C-54 Skymaster of the U. S. Air Force was recorded. The plane was guided from its takeoff to its landing by pre-set electronic and mechanical controls. The flight, from Newfoundland to Brise Norton, 40 miles from London, took 10 hours and 15 minutes. The "mechanical brain" which guided it involves time sequences and radio beams and calculates all details about the flight as well as flying the plane itself.

At a rally in New York's Madison Square Garden sponsored by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky said that his country was ready to sign non-aggression pacts with all "bourgeois states" and also to agree to the destruction of "permanent armies."

The most disastrous hotel fire in America's history swept the 15-story Winecoff Hotel in Atlanta, taking a toll of 121 persons. Investigation showed the hotel had no fire escapes or other safety emergency measures.

(Continued Next Week)

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music sales, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 18

National Rating This wk.	National Rating Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York, MDS	Chicago, Carl Fisher	Los Angeles, Morse M. Preeman	Boston, H. N. Homeyer	Detroit, Grinnell Bros.	San Francisco, Pacific Coast Music	Philadelphia, Charles Dumont	St. Louis, St. L. Music Supply Co.	Seattle, Capitol Music	Rochester, Neisner Bros.	Indianapolis, Pearsons	Kansas City, Jenkins Music Co.	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	"Music, Music, Music" (Cromwell)	1	1	1	8	4	3	2	3	2	1	2	4	100
2	2	"Chattanoogie Boy" (Acuff-Rose)	4	2	4	3	1	1	7	1	1	8	8	1	91
3	5	"Dearie" (Laurel)	5	4	6	1	2	..	3	9	6	4	4	10	67
4	3	"I Said My Pajamas" (Leeds)	6	3	8	6	7	2	10	4	9	5	..	3	58
5	11	"Knew You Were Coming" (Rob't)	2	..	2	5	3	10	4	..	..	3	3	..	56
6	4	"Dear Hearts, People" (Morris)	..	9	7	7	8	7	5	2	7	..	..	2	45
7	9	"Daddy's Little Girl" (Beacon)	3	8	..	..	..	9	1	..	3	7	5	..	41
8	6	"There's No Tomorrow" (Paxton)	..	5	5	..	..	4	6	8	5	..	..	5	39
9	9	"Candy and Cake" (Oxford)	8	7	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	6	6	6	23
10A	..	"Peter Cottontail" (Hill-Range)	7	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	4	2	..	..	22
10B	12	"It Isn't Fair" (Words-Music)	9	..	..	2	..	..	..	10	..	..	1	..	22
11	9	"Enjoy Yourself" (Morris)	10	..	..	..	5	5	..	..	..	10	..	8	17
12	..	"Have I Told Lately" (Duchess)	..	6	..	4	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	13
13	..	"My Foolish Heart" (Santly-Joy)	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	12
14	6	"Rag Mop" (Hill-Range)	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	7					9

FLASH! A GREAT NAME A GREAT BAND

on RCA VICTOR Records

"The Golden Touch"

FRANKIE CARLE

his Piano and his Orchestra...

1st Release

"SPAGHETTI RAG"

and

"A LITTLE MORE TIME"

45 rpm
47-3719
78 rpm
20-3719

TO BE RELEASED NEXT MONTH

RCA VICTOR
DANCE BAND SERIES
Designed for Dancing
ONE OF A SERIES OF 15 ALBUMS
FRANKIE CARLE
plays
FRANK LOESSER
for dancing

Mercury Speeds Recording Output

Chicago, March 21.

Mercury Records musical directors, Harry Geller and Joe Carleton, in an effort to make up four weeks of inactivity following resignation of Mitch Miller as its musical head, have cut total of 46 sides since their appointment three weeks ago. Indications are they will continue recording at rapid pace, so as not to be left behind by other majors.

With the reshuffling has come testing of new talent aimed at Dixieland and dance band fans. Muggsy Spanier has been signed to cut four Dixie sides, with options. Singer Bette Chapell, featured on the Dave Garroway TV show, has been signed under similar conditions.

Company is planning a dance album by the augmented David Le Winter group, with sides also to be released as singles. Toppers have set another Frankie Laine session for April in New York, and Jan August will combine with the Harmonicats for more sides on basis of their success of "Bewitched." Louis Prima is set to cut four sides this week in New York.

All 46 sides, 32 of them cut in New York and the others here, are already in release.

Ray Anthony to Get Buildup by Capitol

In a move to build up a name band in line with the major disk companies, renewed accent on dance music, Capitol Records is launching a promotional buildup for the Ray Anthony orch simultaneously with a one-a-week releasing schedule of the musicrew's disks. Orch has been cutting heavily for Capitol over the past couple of weeks.

Anthony will open a six-week stand at the Statler hotel, N. Y., early in April, following the current Jimmy Dorsey engagement.

Coral Signs Ross

Coral Records has inked the Roy Ross band and has made Ross one of the diskery's musical directors.

Ross is also a musical director at WNEW, N. Y.

2 Great Songs!
SCARLET RIBBONS
(FOR HER HAIR)
THERE'S A LOVELY LAKE IN LOVELAND
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway. New York 19

GOD'S COUNTRY
recorded by
VIC DAMONE ....Mercury
BILL FARRELL ....M-G-M
PHIL HARRIS.........RCA Victor
AL JOLSON ....Decca
SNOOKY LANSON ....London
RALPH SIGWALD.......Magnolia
FRANK SINATRA.......Columbia
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION

THE EVER POPULAR STANDARD
DEED I DO
LAUREL MUSIC CORP.
1619 Broadway, N. Y. 19

'40th Anni' Concert In Carnegie Sellout For Romberg Troupe

Sigmund Romberg and his concert orchestra climaxed the composer's "40th anniversary in show business" tour with an appearance before a sellout house at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., last Friday night (17). The concert was the finale to a six-week jaunt that marked Romberg's 10th year of conducting his music and other light classical works in a series of more than 700 podium appearances. After a three-week rest the composer and his 50-piece group and soloists start another trek of five weeks of concert halls.

Romberg's concept of his program format ("jazz bands would call it highbrow, symphony orchestras would call it lowbrow, but I call it middlebrow") has broadened over the past decade to include an increasing number of compositions of greater musical stature. Each year the composer-conductor has injected a little more of the truly classical into his program selection, in place of the 100% operetta and light classical material that comprised his earliest concerts.

Friday night's performance was still mainly devoted to the lighter works which, after all, are Romberg's forte, both as a composer and a batoneer. But spotted through the program were selections such as Suppe's "Beautiful Galathea" overture, two Mascagni arias, "The Lord's Prayer," a Brahms medley, and the dream song from Massenet's opera "Manon." This type of programming is reflective of Romberg's belief that he can now bring to his mass-public audiences finer music in a way that they can understand and enjoy, after their musical indoctrination via his semi-symphonic offerings of more popular music during the past 10 years.

To mark Romberg's 40th show biz year more fully, the second half of his Carnegie concert was made up entirely of Romberg material. Composer's usual programming has been to confine his own works to the post-intermission section, but to throw other writers' compos into this half also. Array of Romberg numbers, however, was not on a par with the occasion. "Blossom Time" and "Student Prince" medleys, "One Alone" from "Desert Song," and "Stout-hearted Men" from "New Moon" were happy choices, but "Close As Pages in a Book" and "Carousel in the Park," both from "Up in Central Park," could easily have been replaced by stronger songs out of the composer's repertoire. Encores, however, took care of some of the real Romberg staples like "Maytime," "When I Grow to Old to Dream," etc.

Combination of well-rehearsed orchestra and Don Walker's superb scoring made for an evening of top listening, instrumental highlight of which was a brilliant arrangement of "South Pacific" music. With emphasis always on the melodic line as to both song selection and scoring of it, Romberg pitches to the aural enjoyment of the average listener, not to the technical appreciation of the Juilliard student.

Composer keeps his stick-work down to a minimum, his interpretation on piano of his own compos being effective and unostentatious. Latter quality surrounded the whole evening, with a complete air of amiable informality lending an added charm to Romberg's delineation of his own numbers. Composer's refusal to take himself and his works too seriously not only impresses but also points up even more strongly the quality and loveliness of the Romberg compositions.

Soloists were Gene Marvey, in his third season with Romberg; Kirsten Kenyon and Gail Manners, who have toured with the orch before, and Christina Carroll, newcomer to the group. Singers are uniformily good, gals in particular possessing fine vocal equipment as well as being blonde lookers.

Frank Cork takes over the baton when Romberg goes to the Steinway for his own tunes. Alexander Alexay is pianist and vocal coach, and orchestra manager is Edward C. Rubsam. Harry Squires handles the tour direction. Rich.

Regina Music Corp. chartered to conduct a music publishing business in New York. Capital stock is 1,000 shares, 100 "A" at no par value, and 900 "B" at $20 par value.

Best British Sheet Sellers

(Week ending March 11)
London, March 14.

Music, Music	Leeds
Dear Hearts	Morris
Jealous Heart	New World
Harry Lime Theme	Chappell
Down in the Glen	Wright
Hopscotch Polka	Leeds
Is It True About Dixie	Wood
Bunch of Coconuts	Box & Cox
Garden of Weeds	Box & Cox
I'll String Along	Feldman
Breaking My Heart	Sterling
Why Is It	Cinephonic

Second 12

Mule Train	Chappell
Song In Our Heart	20th-Cent.
Our Love Story	Carolin
Best of All	Connelly
Clear Blue Sky	Dreyer
Where Are You	Victoria
Forever and Ever	F.D. & H.
Is It Too Late	Yale
Scottish Samba	Sun
Heart Will Awake	Chappell
Don't Cry Joe	Feldman
Can-Can Polka	Connelly

BUDDY MORRIS IN CHECKUP IN LONDON

Hollywood, March 21.

E. H. (Buddy) Morris leaves for London April 7 on his annual checkup of Morris Music, Ltd., British pubbery he owns in partnership with Max Dreyfus. Teddy Holmes is his London rep.

Morris has added Sid Goldstein, recently in biz for himself, to staff of pluggers here.

Odd-Price Coins Pressed By Jukebox Industry

Washington, March 21.

Substantial portion of show business will be pushing for success of the 2½c and 7½c coin bill on which hearings open tomorrow (22) before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The measure to mint these odd-price coins has the strong backing of the nation's jukebox operators, who see an opportunity for 7½c instead of nickel jukeboxes. In addition, many of the picture exhibitors are actively interested. According to Edward J. Mehren, president of the American Institute for Intermediate Coinage, Gael Sullivan, executive director of Theatre Owners of America, is an active supporter and Ellis Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, has also endorsed the plan.

"Issuance of these intermediate coins will permit greater flexibility in pricing popcorn, candy bars, soft drinks, etc., which have become an important source of revenue to theatre operators, especially the smaller ones."

Mehren, a softdrink bottler in Southern California, has pushed the campaign for the "pop" business, which is the most interested of all in getting the odd coins.

'Talking' Instruments

Latest version of the "talking" musical instrument is the London record of "I Found My Mama," waxed by Floyd "Salty" Holmes. Disk features harmonica and voice, with the former "answering" questions in simulation of a child's tones.

Tune, which is published by Mills Music, is set to be waxed by Decca, Victor and Columbia thus far, with various instruments taking the Holmes harmonica part.

Holmes is one of the hillbilly performers on NBC's "National Barn Dance" in Chicago.

DINAH SHORE WAXING

Hollywood, March 21.

Mitch Miller, Columbia diskery waxing chief, left for Houston for a shellac session with Dinah Shore.

He will return to N. Y. from there.

Symph Drops Accused Red

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Pittsburgh symphony orchestra last week dropped Max Mandel, first violinist for last five years, when Local 60 of AFM dismissed musician for his alleged Communist leanings.

Mandel had been named by Matt Cvetic, FBI undercover man, as a Communist in Washington hearings before House Un-American Activities Committee.

Inside Orchestras—Music

A name bandleader had to nix a $6,500 television package show because of the large music rehearsal costs. Personnel of 30 would have required 20 hours of band rehearsals, at $7 per hour per man. This comes to $4,200. Actual broadcast cost is $18 per hour. Less commissions, advertising, etc., the net differential is relatively so slim that the maestro frankly told the sponsor he was unable to sign at its ceiling price for a regular series.

Harriet Parsons (subbing for her ailing ma, Louella) went overboard in her reporting of Frankie Carle's "nervous breakdown" on her Sunday (19) radio show. She had Carle out of commission for seven or eight months, and recounted that he had to be taken to his Hollywood home in a wheelchair.

Actually, the bandleader will be resting only for three or four weeks, and arrived at his Coast home very much under his own power. His office remarked that they "appreciated Miss Parsons' concern but hated to think of what a report like that would do to his booking schedule."

Metro Preps 3 Additions To Long Playing Catalog

M-G-M Records is prepping three additions to its Long-Playing catalog, with the top release in April slated to be a soundtrack set of Irving Berlin's songs from Metro's upcoming musical, "Annie Get Your Gun." Album will feature Betty Hutton, Howard Keel, Louis Calhern and Keenan Wynn. "Annie" will be the company's first album to be released simultaneously in both 78 and Long Playing versions.

Other two platters for LP release, taken from M-G-M's standard catalog, will be "Tschaikowsky's Melodies," played by Macklin Marrow orch, and "Strauss Waltzes," by Harry Horlick orch.

On the Upbeat

New York

Bernie Sherer named new professional manager of the Dorsey Bros. music firm . . . Sellman S. Schulz, Decca veepee in charge of midwest distribution, in N. Y. last week for homeoffice confabs . . . Elliot Lawrence orch cutting special disks for State Dept.'s "Voice of America" broadcasts this week.

Roy Eldridge, ex-Gene Krupa trumpeter, set to join Benny Goodman's new eight-piece unit for its European tour this spring . . . Charlie Spivak looking for a girl singer . . . Cliff Leeman left the drum slot in Bob Chester's band to freelance . . . Gene Krupa in New York for a week's vacation at his Westchester County home . . . Sonny Dunham returns to bandleading this week, beginning a southern tour with three days at the Naval Base, Norfolk, Va. . . . June Hansen and Bill Blackburn's Herdsmen signed by Esquire Records to wax a series of western songs.

Songstress Madeline Greene, signed to recording contract with Domino Records last week, waxed "I've Got a Right to Be Blue" and "Be Sure" for release around March 31 . . . Danny Scholl, currently appearing on Broadway in "Texas, Lil,' Darlin'," signed to a contract by National Records.

Chicago

Payson Re into Drake hotel for indefinite engagement starting April 8. . . Cab Calloway into Silhouette Club March 24 for 10 days. . . . Louis Armstrong to Horseshoe, Rock Island, Ill., May 18 for two weeks. . . . disk jockey Rosemary Wayne back on air again following operation on her nose. She's angling for tele date. . . . Jimmy McPartland to Play-Bowl, Calumet City, April 1 for two weeks. . . . Red Ingle to Tony's Venetian Room, Des Moines, March 24 for nine days, then to Sky Way Cafe, Cleveland, for three weeks starting April 14. . . . Hot Lips Page follows Count Basie sextet into Brass Rail here March 22. Basie reports that his unit has been booked into N. Y. Strand theatre next month. . . . Bernie Cummins to Edgewater Beach hotel for four weeks starting April 7. . . . Chick Kardale appointed contactman for Duchess Music. . . . Jan Garber into Trianon ballroom April 8 to May 21. . . . Ray McKinley to Roosevelt hotel, New Orleans from April 8 to 24. . . . Jimmy Palmer into Casino, Quincy, Ill., April 5 for two weeks, then to Hotel Claridge, Memphis, from April 21 to May 5. . . . George Towne to Trocadero Club, Henderson, April 28 for two weeks. . . . Lenny Tristano sextet combined with Errol Garner trio last week in concert at Orchestra Hall. . . . Eddy Meyer, former member of Eddy Howard band, joined flack Sam Honigberg as assistant. Howard is a Honigberg account.

PEER IN LONDON TO SCOUT FOR MUSIC

London, March 14.

Ralph Peer, head of Southern Music, arrived here this week and expects to stay in London for a month. Primary object of trip is to launch some of his American hits here, and also unearth British songs suitable for America.

Leaves London for Paris April 16 in time for his three-day music convention of his 10 European companies. Expects to fly back to New York April 26.

Bushkin Waxes Piano Album for Atlantic

Joe Bushkin, pianist, recently featured in the Garson Kanin legiter, "The Rat Race," has waxed a keyboard album of standards and some of his own compositions for the Atlantic label under the title of "I Love a Piano."

Bushkin's trio, which closed a 12-week run at the Little Club, N. Y., last weekend, opened a four-week stand at the Grandview Inn, Columbus, O., Monday (20).

Raid Chicago Diskery For 'Obscene' Records

Chicago, March 21.

Chicago police continued their drive on "obscene" phonograph records last week when they raided the plant of the Armour Plastic Molding Corp. and confiscated 425 labeled records and 52 masters, all of which they charged were obscene.

Officers arrested John J. Sheridan, owner of the plant, and Alois T. Daniels, plant manager. They face charges in Chi felony court.

The American Love Song
I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE, BABY
Music by . . .
JIMMY McHUGH
MILLS MUSIC

PETER COTTONTAIL
(The Rabbit of Distinction)
LIKES
FRANK LUTHER

It's Music By
JESSE GREER
Program Today Yesterday's
ON THE BEACH WITH YOU
(Words & Music, Inc.)

Spur To Music Biz

Continued from page 1

have not been written. In fact, the need for their revival has only accented the deficiencies that seem inherent with some of the present-day song output.

It isn't as if the writers are gone; they're still around, more or less professionally working their craft but seemingly lacking the spark that made their yesteryear output so distinguished that revivals of a quarter-of-a-century later click all over again.

It's been an open secret that a so-called "country-club set" within ASCAP thought more of picking winners, sitting in the sun on the third base line, taking it easy in Hollywood, indulging in intra-ASCAP politics, and the like, than their basic craft of songwriting. Just as important, if not more so, is the business of making a song into a hit. This calls for exploitation and working to further the popularization thereof.

The result has been that Broadcast Music, Inc., which perhaps may have started off more or less as a company union of music copyright owners, for particular benefit of the radio industry, none the less has been the dominant licensee of some of the most popular current songs in recent years.

Some of the provisions under the new decree are palpably a blow to seniority and availability with the increased accent on current performance. There is a group of charter members of ASCAP who told Government investigators that the wealth of older copyrights, along with the seniority and availability of these works, had special intrinsic value to set them apart from such current quick hits as "Nature Boy," "Rag Mop," "Third Man Theme," "Hair of Gold, Eyes of Blue," "You Call Everybody Darlin'," "Roomful of Roses," "You Can't Be True, Dear," and the like.

The Government decree, however, does not feel likewise. Apparently the currently popular faves, and the extent of their performances, are deemed as astute a measuring stick as anything. Certainly the degree does create an open-sesame for what has been a closed door to higher ASCAP classifications for new writer-members. It removes ASCAP from the pseudo-Hall of Fame it fancied itself to be, and reduces the organization to the fundamental of a collection agency for the usages of musical copyrights in public performance for profit.

As such it carries out the letter and spirit of the ASCAP pioneer, Victor Herbert, and ASCAP's founding attorney, Nathan Burkan. It will be recalled that the factor to inspire Herbert's ASCAP pioneering was Shanley's restaurant playing his "Mlle. Modiste" music as a gastronomic lure, but paying him—the composer—nothing. For the privilege of hearing his own works performed by a three-piece ensemble, semi-hidden behind some potted palms in those 1913-1914 days, it was costing him a fancier fee for his food. Burkan's test case, which paved the way for the organization and prosperity of ASCAP, is now history.

ASCAP has long been the envy of creative writers all over the world. So long as the melody lingers on, the income has likewise, apparently. Dramatists, writers for the screen, novelists and others have long wondered how they could create counterpart sources of continuing income, rather than have the economic fruits of their literary labors die with the peak sales or production of their works.

The new decree may achieve an incentive objective which the rich-and-gone-lazy, established songsmiths seem long to have lacked. In fact, many a Lindy's vet has wondered, "why does Berlin knock himself out that way year after year when he doesn't have to?" They can't understand the difference between replenishing performance versus stagnation—if you can call it "stagnation" at $20,000-per-year.

ASCAP can still remain a gold mine for double-A writers. As Billy Rose once expressed himself, "of all my worldly goods, the best thing I could leave Eleanor (his wife) is my AA rating in ASCAP." At an $18,000-$20,000 surefire annual dividend, that's like a $1,000,000 cash annuity at 2%, or if you figure on a generous yield of 4% it is compared to having $500,000 in gold bonds.

The decree puts a new measurement, possibly, on the manner of disbursing ASCAP's revenue. The one-hit songwriter will be enabled to collect quicker and better coin for his current popularity, without worrying about a prolonged waiting period and a reclassification upwards.

A Savvy Decree

In working out the expertly documented decree, the Government called in a number of outside interests, including major film company attorneys as well as legalites of Broadcast Music, Inc., to explore their views. Talks were either exploratory or for background briefing. Trade circles, however, credit them with considerable influence in the preparation of some of the peculiarly intricate, intra-trade music angles.

Despite some of the uncertainties over interpretation, the consent decree is replete with much savvy on the nuances pertaining to ASCAP.

MCA Sets Murphy

Hollywood, March 21.

Turk Murphy's jazz band is the latest Dixieland crew inked by MCA, which recently inked the Firehouse Five Plus Two. Murphy crew down from Frisco's Hangover House for deal, also signed a new scale-plus-royalties deal with Les Koenig's Goodtime Jazz Records. He received only scale before.

First sides under new pact, calling for minimum of 16 disks annually, will be "Curse Of An Aching Heart," "1919 Rag," "Waitin' for Robert E. Lee" and "Struttin' With Some Barbecue."

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 18

National Rating This wk.	National Rating Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(Davega Stores)	Chicago—(Hudson Ross)	Los Angeles—(Denel's Mus. Shop)	Boston—(Boston Music Co)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	San Francisco—(Sherman-Clay)	Philadelphia—(Walnut Mus. Shop)	St. Louis—(Ludwig Music)	San Antonio—(Central Radio Co.)	Indianapolis—(Pearsons)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music Co.)	Seattle—(Sherman-Clay)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	TERESA BREWER (London) "Music, Music, Music"—604	2	3	2	10	1	1	4	2		4	6	6	80
2	9	ANTON KARAS (London) "Third Man Theme"—536	1	1	3	4		2					5	10	51
3	2	TONY MARTIN (Victor) "There's No Tomorrow"—20-3582	8	8	1			7	2	4	10		3	1	45
4	5	SAMMY KAYE (Victor) "It Isn't Fair"—20-3609	10	9		1	6	10	6	8	1		4		44
5	6	EILEEN BARTON (Mercury) "Knew You Were Coming"—5392	7	2	6	2	2					5			42
6A	4	RED FOLEY (Decca) "Chattanoogie Shine Boy"—46205	4	7		8	7			1	8			2	40
6B	7	FRANKIE LAINE (Mercury) "Cry of the Wild Goose"—5363	6			6		3	8	9			2	3	40
7A	8	AMES BROS. (Coral) "Rag Mop"—60140	3	6				4	9					7	26
7B	3	T. MARTIN-F. WARREN (Victor) "I Said My Pajamas"—20-3616				7	5	9	1				7		26
8	13	E. MERMAN-R. BOLGER (Decca) "Dearie"—24873				5	4		10	3					22
9		BING CROSBY (Decca) "Chattanoogie Shine Boy"—24863						6	7				1		19
10A	13	BILLY ECKSTINE (M-G-M) "My Foolish Heart"—10623A		5		3	8								17
10B	19	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "Third Man Theme"—24839								7	3	6			17
11	16	M. MARTIN-A. GODFREY (Col) "Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep"—38744	9		9		9					1			16
12A	16	MERVIN SHINER (Decca) "Peter Cottontail"—46221	5									3			14
12B	14	DINAH SHORE (Columbia) "So Nice to Have a Man"—38689			7	9	10			6	9				14
12C	10	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "Enjoy Yourself"—24825						5				10		4	14
13		GEORGIA GIBBS (Coral) "Knew You Were Coming"—60169								5	5				12
14A		GORDON JENKINS (Decca) "My Foolish Heart"—24830			5							8			9
14B	18	DICK TODD (Rainbow) "Daddy's Little Girl"—80088							3	10					9
14C	17	RUSS MORGAN (Decca) "Sentimental Me"—24904									2				9
14D	15	ARTHUR GODFREY (Columbia) "Candy and Cake"—38721										2			9
15	18	VICTOR YOUNG (Decca) "La Vie En Rose"—24816					3								8
16A		JOHNNY DESMOND (M-G-M) "C'est Ci Bon"—10613		4											7
16B		JO STAFFORD (Capitol) "Diamonds Girls Best Friend"—824			4										7
16C		M. WHITING-F. DE VOL (Capitol) "I Said My Pajamas"—841									4				7

FIVE TOP ALBUMS	1	2	3	4	5
	SOUTH PACIFIC Broadway Cast Columbia	DIXIE BY DORSEY Jimmy Dorsey Columbia	SONGS BY BILLY ECKSTINE Billy Eckstine M-G-M	GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES Broadway Cast Columbia	TEXAS LI'L DARLIN' Broadway Cast Decca

Disk Best Sellers by Companies

(Based on Points Earned)

Label	No. of Records	Points	Label	No. of Records	Points
Decca	9	152	Coral	2	38
London	2	131	M-G-M	2	24
Victor	3	115	Capitol	2	14
Mercury	2	82	Rainbow	1	9
Columbia	3	39

OVER 100 SONGS

Composer needs arranger. Must have live contacts with successful publishers.

Write: O. H. N.
45-47, 172nd St., Flushing, N. Y.

SONG PLUGGER
MALE OR FEMALE
Experience and contacts desirable.
Plug songs for producing unit.
Commission basis.
Box V-3974, Variety
154 W. 46th St., New York 19, N. Y.

DECCA data

presenting the TOPS in POPS, STANDARDS
and
SACRED MUSIC

3 CURRENT FAVORITES

sung by the
MILLS BROTHERS

DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL
coupled with
IF I LIVE TO BE A HUNDRED
DECCA 24872

LAZY RIVER
coupled with
CIELITO LINDO
DECCA 25046

THE OLD RUGGED CROSS
coupled with
IN THE SWEET BY AND BY
DECCA 14503

Single Records
75c each (plus tax)

DECCA
RECORDS

Night Club Reviews

Le Ruban Bleu, N. Y.

Julius Monk, Larry J. Blake, Ronnie Graham, Estelle Loring, 3 Riffs, Norman Paris 3; $3.50 and $4 minimum.

Julius Monk has a good show lined up this semester which he emcees expertly. There is a nice balance of song, satire and comedy in which Estelle Loring (New Acts) is the sole distaff note.

Larry J. Blake, heralded as "back from the Coast," has a fine sense of delivery in his dialectic stuff. The gestures and accents are different and not done too broadly, and the sum total effect is socko. Ronnie Graham, pianologist with a Dwight Fiskean mien and manner, clicks with bright, self-written material about neuroses, benzedrene, psychoanalysts, "Hamlet" and the like.

The 3 Riffs are a personable vocal combo, doing straight vocalsthenics as well as hokum Ink Spots takeoffs. Norman Paris is a tiptop accomp at the piano with a socko trio. Biz good. Abel.

Ciro's, Hollywood

Hollywood, March 18.

Jerry Wayne, Dick Stabile Orch (7), Nappy Lamare & Dixieland Band (6); $1.50 cover, no minimum.

Sudden booking brought Jerry Wayne into Ciro's following Ella Logan. Nappy Lamare and his band are also new, following a one-night tryout. Latter were inked to offset the draw of the competition. Mocambo, whose Monday night Charleston seshes by the Firehouse Five Plus Two, composed of Walt Disney Studio technicians, has caused Ciro's boniface Herman Hover no small headache.

Lamare may be the answer, as evidenced by the fact that the film folk customers hove to heartily with the Black Bottom and Charleston, accompanied opening night by Dan Dailey on the drums and Jerry (Martin &) Lewis on trumpet, all extemporaneous. This off-the-cuff folderol is becoming quite the thing on the Sunset Strip, all good for biz, of course, especially with tourist season just around the corner.

New to the Coast, Wayne wins his audience easily. However, the youthful, cleancut crooner needs a sock windup. His "Warsaw Concerto," with new verbiage about unrequited love, is a sock number but hardly the best getaway routine in his songalog. Midway item, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," complete with cane-and-kelly soft shoe, is the re-routining that would turn the trick.

Wayne opens big with olio of "The Dickey Bird Song," "You Call Everybody Darlin'," "Roomful of Roses," "You Can't Be True, Dear" and "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon." Then a slow number, "September Song," with his own guitar accomp, and this really gets 'em off their hands; smartly projected "A Man Could Be a Wonderful Thing," "It's the Talk of the Town," "Silvery Moon" with tap, "Melancholy Baby" community sing, and "Concerto," to wind a thoroughly pleasant turn.

Backstopping and pre-show terping are provided by Dick Stabile and his orch, and good. The Lamare crew spells Stabile, replacing Felix Rale's rhumba rhythms, ousted by the Charleston craze. And a real Dixieland combo it is. Mike.

Club Carnival, Mpls.

Minneapolis, March 18.

Martha Raye (2), Ben Yost's "Guardsmen" (5), Carmen Garcia's Rhumba Band (3), Bob Locken's orchestra (12); $1-$1.50 cover.

This is a return engagement in this room for Martha Raye and she's back with the identical act that packed 'em in before. Even though not a piece of comedy business or a line of her patter is changed, the singing comedienne again scores solidly with her broad clowning, indelicate banter and lusty vocalizing. She once more works with the excellent Ben Yost singing group, the Guardsmen, for heavy laugh returns. Repetition apparently doesn't dull her songs, heard before, or her rowdy cutting-up.

Miss Raye is off to a noisy, lively start with "There's a Great Day, Manyanna" and then unlimbers herself with "His Feet's Too Big," "Stormy Weather," etc., roughing up things along the way with her occasional rough chatter and didoes. She's on later, after changing to hussar uniform, to clown with the Guardsmen.

If there is any better male singing group than the Yost "Guardsmen" it hasn't come this way. They put fire gusto and drama into their fine vocalizing and their interpretations of a "South Pacific" medley, the "Come and Get It Day" from "Finian's Rainbow," a grand opera travesty, "Old Man River" and "Flying Down to Rio" not only beguile the ear, but stir the emotions.

Starting the show, Bob Locken sings "Sunny Side of the Street" to his orchestra's accompaniment. Room well filled for dinner show Sunday. Rees.

NOW PLAYING
WEST COAST
4 MAXELLOS
2 WEEKS
BELLEVUE CASINO
MONTREAL, NOW
ALL PLACED BY
KALCHEIM & SMITH
R. K. O. Bldg., New York City
JUdson 6-3345

JACK PARKER
and DOLL

Held Over
NIXON CAFE
PITTSBURGH

Thank you,
JOE HILLER

LOEW'S
THE THEATRES
OF THE STARS
MARCUS
LOEW
BOOKING AGENCY
GENERAL EXECUTIVE OFFICES
LOEW BUILDING ANNEX
160 W. 46th St., N.Y.C. • JUdson 2-2000
J. H. LUBIN GENERAL MANAGER
SIDNEY H. PIERMONT BOOKING MANAGER

Chez Paree, Chi

Chicago, March 17.

Tony Martin, Joey Bishop, Betty & Jane Kean, Siccardi & Brenda, Al Wallis, Chez Adorables (16), Cee Davidson Orch (12), Chico Rhumba Band (5); minimum $3.50, cover $1.20.

After the boff run of Jimmy Durante, which set new records for this bistro, the Chez comes up with another slick layout topped by Tony Martin and sparked by Betty and Jane Kean for another solid session.

Show starts off with sister and brother team, Siccardi and Brenda, who work fast with their lifts and spins. Tawny near nude blonde makes an exotic appearance, and male partner, clad in gaucho attire, are a fiery team. Whip dance and sabre number register strong. Betty and Jane Kean, from the musicomedies, score solidly. Betty tees off with sharp impresh of Mae West and Margaret Truman haggling over Sidney Greenstreet. She brings on her sister, Jane, in a moth-eaten wrap, and duo toss off imaginary conversation with Darryl Zanuck for hefty yocks. After short tap session by Jane, pair recount hilarious story of their life, which includes satires on Bette Davis, Joan Davis and Judy Garland for hefty laughs. Then give out with more filmland swifties before going into their finale from "Call Me Mister," "South America, Take It Away" complete with banana munching and all. Gals had to beg-off.

Joey Bishop, wan-faced comic with the soft voice approach, also goes over effectively. Comic has gained polish since last around. His gravedigger bit gets a nifty mitt as do his barbs at some of Hollywood greats. After his Ted Lewis impression, which goes over well, he reprises his army days, and although Chez habituees have heard other service tales, he gets a big hand for the Sad Sack yarns.

Tony Martin, star of the show, punches all the way, doing more than 45 minutes opening night. However, though the voice still is one of the top in cafe bistro circles, former film star has garnered some affected mannerisms, similar to Harry Richman's approach. They should be discarded for former free and easy style. Starting with "Enjoy Yourself" he glides into his disclick. "There's No Tomorrow," which gets hefty applause.

He follows with "Toot, Toot Tootsie, Goodbye" for change of pace, and "Marta." Then injects a seasonal tune, "Easter Parade" and finishes his first set with "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" for sock applause. Encores with another fastie, "For Every Man There's a Woman" and winds with lush "Begin the Beguine."

After applause dies down, singer recalls the days at the Chez when he was band vocalist, opens his collar and invites the folks to dance while he sings three numbers, and packs the floor.

The Chez Adorables have been augmented with four additional girls, and present two entertaining numbers, "Black Lace" and "Lady in a Dream," both backed capably by Al Wallis, production baritone. Cee Davidson has rearranged orch with four clarinets and three fiddles for the Martin stay and does a smart job of show pacing. Chico does the rhumba chores for the fill-in sets neatly. Zabe.

Village Barn, N. Y.

Tex Fletcher and His Cowboys, Lilian Lee, David Blight, J. Kirk & Madeline, Bobby Meyers Orch (4); Saturday minimum, $2.50.

Meyer Horowitz's Greenwich Village landmark has another typically bucolic show which should please Barn regulars and favorably impress newcomers to the spot. Outstanding turn is David Blight, who opens the show with eccentric dancing in yokel costume and comes back in the closer for straight hoofing in a tuxedo. In a clever series of bits showing how various dances originated, in the inevitable impression of Ray Bolger, and in a straight routine that includes tabletop tapping, Blight indicates ability and class that fit him for any type of bistro. Lad has a definite and fresh talent.

Lilian Lee's hillbilly warbling in an evening gown suggests Dorothy Shay, but the similarity ends with Miss Lee's weak material and the nasality of its delivery. Gal also strives too much for humor in announcing and selling her stuff.

J. Kirk's hayseed character also suffers from lack of punchy material, but the comic's knockabout antics with his partner Madeline make up to some extent for the hoary gags of the first half of his

(Continued on page 52)

Midwest Vaude Dates

Chicago, March 21.

Ray Lyte has taken over the booking of Eddy's, Kansas City, and has set Johnny O'Brien there for two weeks starting March 31 . . . Jimmy Costello into the Trocadero, Evansville, Ind., March 31 . . . Lenny Colyer had his option picked up at the Venetian Room, Des Moines . . . Larry Nixon, Carlos & Linda join the Jackie Heller show at the Vine Gardens March 31 . . . Gil Lamb set for the Lake Club, Springfield, Ill., March 24; Sophie Tucker comes in April 8 . . . Bonnie Baker, Park & Clifford into the Main Theatre, Racine, Wisc., March 24 . . . Rex Raymer opens at the Brown hotel, Louisville, April 7.

Mimi Benzell set for the Radisson hotel, Minneapolis, March 24 . . . Vera Love terps at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, April 7 . . . Casino continues its comic shows with Mickey Sharp, Phil D'Rey, Lorraine Fortune and Nola Party all due in March 24 . . . Vic Brown of the Dave O'Malley agency is booking ABC's tele show, "Super Circus." . . . Duplicators pacted for Pastime Club, Des Moines, April 14, with Dell O'Dell following in April 28 . . . Jack Paiges off to Florida on honeymoon.

Hypoed Biz Delays New Format for Chi College Inn

Chicago, March 21.

Plans to convert the College Inn into the Ernie Byfield Room have been delayed temporarily due to hypoed business. Closing date for the Inn had been set for April 1, but has been pushed backed and "College Inn Story" has been revamped into almost a new revue. Since the closing notice went up patronage has doubled.

Since the passing of Byfield, several weeks ago, plans had been to change the format of the room to smart supper spot similar to the Pump Room in the Ambassador East hotel.

Senator, Pitt, Installing Vaude Policy April 8

Pittsburgh, March 21.

The Senator theatre, Pittsburgh, will install a vaude policy starting April 8. Anton Scibilla, of the Joe Hiller agency in Pitt, will book it. Initial layout will be a Hawaiian revue featuring Johnny Pineapple. "Grand Ole Opry," with Roy Acuff, goes in the following week.

House will operate on both a name and unit policy depending on what's available in the area. Bookers will attempt moderate priced layouts until stageshow policy is firmly established.

The Senator will be the first Pitt house to operate on a regular vaude basis since Warners' Stanley theatre there reverted to pix several years ago.

Dinah's Nitery Date

Hollywood, March 21.

Dinah Shore plays her first nitery date May 2, opening a four-week stand at the Cocoanut Grove of the Ambassador hotel. Benny Strong orch has been also set for same bill.

She follows Phil Spitalny's all-girl orch, which opens April 4 for four frames.

Gary, Ind., Raids Perils Name Cafes

Chicago, March 21.

First warning to operators of Indiana bistros operating after midnight, state closing hour, was given via a raid last week in Gary, Ind. Both city police and state excise agents raided 10 "after hour" clubs. Indiana has been relatively wide open with gambling casinos and late spots flourishing especially in the near Chicago locations and southern tip. If the raids continue several name spots in Evansville and Terre Haute may eliminate top acts until the heat blows over, as has been done in Illinois.

Raids are thought to be prompted by Governor Henry Schricker, who promised group of Gary clubwomen last year a clean-up campaign to abate the crime situation in that area.

Miller Out of Flamingo Deal, Preps N.J. Nitery

Bill Miller, operator of the Riviera, Ft. Lee, N. J., gave up attempts to buy the Flamingo hotel, Las Vegas. According to Miller, he had been informed that $3,000,000 could buy the inn, but was later informed that amount would buy only a 50% interest. He subsequently lost interest.

Miller has already lined up 17 parties for May at his Riviera. He'll run three days, prior to the formal opening on April 25 with sold out prevue houses. The opening headliner isn't set as yet. He had been dickering with Sam Levenson and with the unit current at the Clover Club, Miami, comprising the Vagabonds, Jan Murray and Rose Marie.

PATRICE JAN
HELENE and HOWARD
Currently
LATIN QUARTER
BOSTON

COMEDY MATERIAL
For all branches of theatricals
FUN-MASTER
"The ORIGINAL Show-Biz Gag file"
● Nos. 1 thru 35 @ $1.00 ea. ●
(Order in Sequence Only)
SPECIAL: First 13 files for $10
All 35 files for $30
● 3 Bks. PARODIES, per book $10 ●
● MINSTREL BUDGET $25 ●
● HUMOR-DOR FOR EMCEES $25 ●
● 4 BLACKOUT BKS., ea. bk. $25 ●
—or all 4 diff. Vols. for $85—
● "HOW TO MASTER THE CEREMONIES" (re-issue)
— $2.00 per copy —
NO C.O.D.'s
PAULA SMITH
200 W. 54th St. Dept. V
NEW YORK 19

REX RAMER
Has Just Concluded a Very Successful 8 Weeks at
THE EMPIRE ROOM
PALMER HOUSE, CHICAGO
and a Very Successful 2 Weeks at the
CHICAGO THEATRE
Thanks to Miss MERRIEL ABBOTT and Mr. N. M. PLATT
Also
A Word of Thanks to MAURICE SEYMOUR, for Taking Some Wonderful Pictures
Rep.: EDDIE ELKORT
LEW & LESLIE GRADE, INC.
250 WEST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK 19, N. Y.
Britain:
BILLY MARSH
Bernard Delfont
LONDON

Ringling Circus Imports Detained At Ellis Island in AGVA Hassle

Approximately 60 performers representing 25 acts, most of whom are slated to join the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, are being detained on Ellis Island, according to Henry Dunn, AGVA's national administrator. Most of these acts are being held, Dunn says, for contract and security checks plus the fact that Immigration dept. regulations stipulate that artists being brought into this country must be outstanding in their field.

Dunn claims the closer check is a result of AGVA's attempt to restrict the number of foreign performers playing U. S. stands to 40% of the bill.

Union is currently battling it out with the Ringling show in an effort to unionize the show. AGVA's outdoor head, Vic Connors, and organizer Emil Lowe are currently in Florida in an attempt to get a union agreement. According to Dunn, organization is proceeding satisfactorily, although there are many kinks to be ironed out.

Dunn declares that if no agreement is reached by the time circus opens at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., on April 5, the Garden will be picketed and action will be taken to put the house on the unfair list. If that occurs, performers in all the Associated Actors and Artistes affiliates will be forbidden to work the Garden and it may mean the end of big shows and benefits there for the time being.

Morgan by Remote

Singer-pianist Al Morgan will miss the first show opening night (27) at Lookout House, Covington, Ky., because of his Chi-originated television show. However, Morgan will be seen in the nitery during the missed performance via a 16-foot TV screen.

Lookout band is being rehearsed on numbers being used on TV program and will play them in club simultaneously with video show. Morgan will plane in for the second show.

AGVA Dissidents Suit Vs. 4A's Ordered to Trial

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. supreme court last week denied the petition of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America to dismiss the suit brought against the organization by a dissident group of American Guild of Variety Artists members. Suit is attempting to invalidate recent conventions and elections by AGVA.

Case is expected to go to trial in the fall.

Expect Vaude Back Into Loew's State

Loew's State, N. Y., which eliminated stageshows several years ago, may restore vaudeville to its stage. Several Loew executives feel that the house on a straight film policy isn't able to compete with vaude theatres in the area, and added incentive must be given if grosses are to be resuscitated.

Feeling that vaude should be brought back to this house came to several in the organization after the poor showing made by the Clark Gable-Loretta starrer "Key to the City," which has been doing well out of town, but failed to hold up at this house.

It's felt that the house isn't getting sufficient big pictures such as "Jolson Sings Again" and "Easter Parade" that rack up terrific grosses. Pictures that they've been getting would do considerably better if a vaude layout were shown along with them. It's reported that some in the Metro sales dept. also would like to see stage shows return here to give added prestige to Metro product. Metro could

(Continued on page 53)

Jack Lynch Takes Over Zodiac Room, Philly

Philadelphia, March 21.

Jack Lynch, who resigned last week as manager of the Latin Casino, is taking over a new spot—the Zodiac Room of the Hotel Warburton. It comprises an upstairs cocktail lounge and a downstairs room which seats 300.

Tentative plans are to convert the downstairs club into an intimate entertainment spot, patterned after the Blue Angel or Le Ruban Bleu, in New York, a type of club operation which hasn't been tried locally.

Chi's Boulevard Room Grossed $3,000,000 In 2 Yrs. Run of Icers

Chicago, March 21.

Sunday (26) marks the second anniversary of the most successful bistro operation here. Boulevard Room of the Stevens hotel has packed in about 500,000 customers in that time, with average tab about $6 racking in $3,000,000. Room has been averaging well over 4,000 tabs each week. Most of the trade comes from conventioneers who jam both dinner and supper shows to see the ice revue, which has been running, with successive editions, for two years. At present, this is the longest run for such a show in any hotel.

The ice rink is the largest in any hotel. Frankie Masters orchestra has been there since the beginning of the blade displays.

BERGEN SET TO PREEM NEW LAS VEGAS NITERY

Edgar Bergen has been signed for the opening show of the Desert Inn, Las Vegas, starting April 24. Bergen is in for a week. Subsequent headliner is still to be lined up. Frank Sennes, Cleveland booker, who is pacting talent for the spot, had originally planned to get Jack Benny for the opening, but deal failed to jell.

The Charlivels, currently at Copa City, Miami, are also set for the opening show.

Sauter Vice Lastfogel as Prez of VHCS, Will Launch Fund Drive to Carry On

Abe Lastfogel resigned last week as president of Veterans Hospital Camp Shows to become chairman of the board of that organization. James Sauter, head of Air Features, Inc., and wartime head of the United Theatrical War Activities Committee, succeeds to the presidency.

Sauter will launch VHCS activities in the fall with a $1,265,000 campaign, sparked by a two-hour television show on major video networks. It'll be an all-star affair emanating from New York and Hollywood. It was originally planned to have this show on VE Day, but time couldn't be cleared on several nets.

VHCS will close for the summer early May, when all entertainment units wind up the tour of Army, Navy and Veterans Administration hospitals. Organization will reactivate in the fall. Just how many units will be sent out will depend on the success of the fund-raising campaign.

Lastfogel, general manager of the William Morris Agency, gave up the VHCS post because much of the work in setting up the new VHCS structure will have to be done in New York. Inasmuch as Lastfogel must spend a great deal of time on the Coast, he relinquished this position after a nine-year tenure. He started as president of USO-Camp Shows in 1941, and succeeded to the same post when VHCS took over Camp Shows' functions.

Sauter has been a director of VHCS since its inception. He has also functioned as head of the Mayor's Entertainment Committee, which framed the legit ticket code, and is a deputy commissioner of the N. Y. City Dept. of Commerce.

VHCS is aiming to make the organization a show business project. Toppers hope to get all segments of the industry interested now that the entertainment industry is left on its own to collect sufficient funds to carry on the project.

Crisis in the VHCS started Jan. 1, with the dissolution of United Service Organizations, parent group of VHCS. Monies that were left in the USO treasury were allotted to VHCS. It was sufficient to last until the units now on the road wind up the tour.

Kilby Exits GAC After 10 Years

Harry Kilby, General Artists Corp. veepee in charge of the cafe dept., has resigned that post effective July 1. He's been with GAC since 1940 having organized the nitery dept. of that agency.

Kilby expects to move to Florida and go into semi-retirement. There's the possibility that he'll rep GAC there, but that's not set yet. He's currently dickering for a bathing suit manufacturing plant to keep him occupied.

Kilby booked bands as well as acts, having sewed up the Jules Epstein chain of hotels some years ago. Latter controls the Hollenden, Cleveland; Deshler-Wallick, Columbus, as well as others which are important band and act buyers.

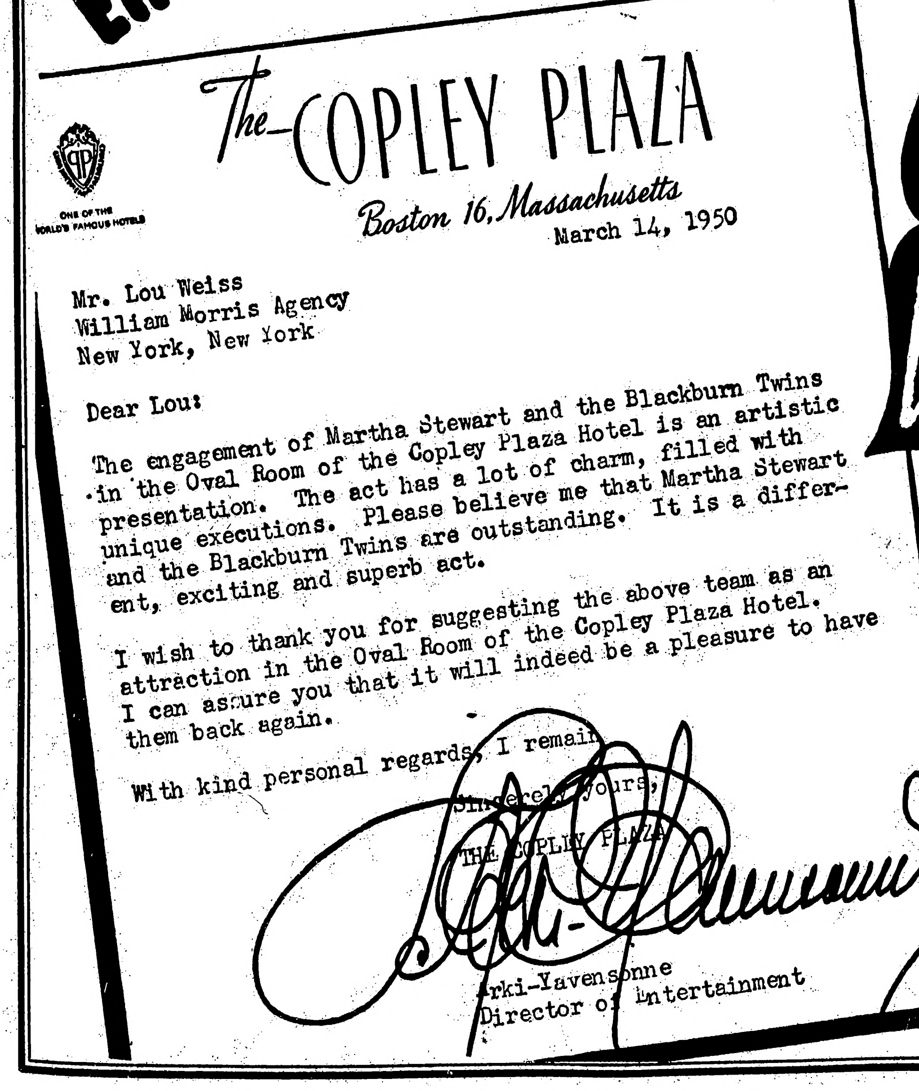
Successor to Kilby hasn't been selected as yet, although Buddy Howe is likely to get most of the cafe accounts covered by Kilby.

Gardella Benefit's 4G

Benefit for the family of the late Tess Gardella (Aunt Jemima) held Sunday (19) at the Latin Quarter, N. Y., grossed around $4,000 with attendance of 400.

Milton Berle emceed and others that appeared included Frank Sina-Kaye, Leonard Sues and others.
tra, Maxie Rosenbloom, Georgie

Mabel Scott, vocalist current at Birdland, N. Y., signed with the Gale agency.



ENTIRELY DIFFERENT and REFRESHING—

The COPLEY PLAZA
ONE OF THE WORLD'S FAMOUS HOTELS
Boston 16, Massachusetts

March 14, 1950

Mr. Lou Weiss
William Morris Agency
New York, New York

Dear Lou:

The engagement of Martha Stewart and the Blackburn Twins in the Oval Room of the Copley Plaza Hotel is an artistic presentation. The act has a lot of charm, filled with unique executions. Please believe me that Martha Stewart and the Blackburn Twins are outstanding. It is a different, exciting and superb act.

I wish to thank you for suggesting the above team as an attraction in the Oval Room of the Copley Plaza Hotel. I can assure you that it will indeed be a pleasure to have them back again.

With kind personal regards, I remain

Sincerely yours,
THE COPLEY PLAZA

Arki-Yavensonne
Director of Entertainment

MARTHA STEWART and the BLACKBURN TWINS

Opening March 29
LATIN CASINO
PHILADELPHIA

Soon to Appear
ROXY THEATRE
NEW YORK

Miss Stewart's gowns styled by CEIL CHAPMAN

Direction:
WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Personal Management
PEGGY LOEB and DANNY WINKLER

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 50

Village Barn, N. Y.

routine. Burlesque waltz indicates that Kirk's forte is acro dancing, and he might do well to accent it more and the cornball jokes less.

Tex Fletcher is a standard western combination of guitar (Fletcher), accordion and bass. Mountain instrumentals and vocals receive typical treatment, with the one sock number coming from the accordionist on, oddly enough, a Hungarian czardas. Squeeze-boxer displays a surprisingly excellent technique and command of his instrument.

Fletcher trio alternates with Bobby Meyers' four-piece combo on the stand, former naturally accompanying the customer square-dance sessions. Meyers' piano-drums-trumpet-sax setup supplies above-average dansapation for a crew of its size and format, exhibiting in particular a fine dance beat. Orch also plays a good show. Rich.

Bop City, N. Y.

Artie Shaw Orch (14) with Dodie O'Neil, Oscar Peterson; admission, 98c.; minimum, $1.50.

Artie Shaw's current repeat appearance here is a far cry from the musical flamboyance of his Bop City stint last year. Gone are the outsized orchestra and the musical esoterics which surrounded that performance, and in their place are a standard 14-piece crew and a flock of show-tune arrangements that are the closest to the Shaw of a dozen years ago that he has come in a long time. The reversion to type is very much for the better.

Present Shaw instrumentation is six brass, four rhythm and four reed, in addition to the leader's clarinet. The setup and the uncluttered arrangements that it plays are still another indication of the attempt to bring back the sort of straight dance-band music that hit its peak 10 years ago with Miller, the Dorseys, James — and Shaw himself. The orch Shaw has now may not have the fresh and driving rhythmic quality and fine dansability that were the hallmarks of his band when he first hit the heights, but the present crew has enough rhythmically and instrumentally to compare favorably with any outfit around today.

The Shaw books once again contain items like "I Surrender, Dear," "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," and (as Shaw puts it) "Begin the Everlovin' Beguine," all arranged with the accent on melody and a strong dance beat. In the case of tunes like "Dancing in the Dark" and "Stardust," which Shaw featured before the war when he added strings to his instrumentation, the same arrangements are utilized now as then, with the present reed section taking over the fiddle passages.

Shaw's return to his old style is pointed up even more via the fact that when caught he allowed his jump group, the Gramercy Five, only one number per set. Combo (Shaw, Lee Castle on trumpet, and four rhythm) sounded particularly good on the old Shaw favorite, "Summit Ridge Drive."

Only other Bop City attraction for the current show is Oscar Peterson, Canadian pianist making his U. S. debut. Negro artist plays excellent piano and scores heavily with extremely imaginative arrangements of a repertoire that ranges from blues to slow ballads like "I'll Remember April," taking in such jump items as "Get Happy" along the way. It's one of the best keyboard performances heard in this spot since it opened. Rich.

Circus Room, Boston
(HOTEL BRADFORD)

Boston, March 16.

Jack E. Leonard, Penny Caldwell, Four Skating Macks. Moe Solomon Orch (5); no cover, no minimum.

Ralph E. Snider is back at the helm of the Hotel Bradford and apparently intends to attempt to bring the hotel back into its former prominence in nitery circuits. He has abandoned the local talent in the Circus Room in favor of names.

Teeing off the new policy is Jack E. Leonard, hefty comic, who opened here several days after he scored so heavily on "Toast of the Town" teleshow, an appearance that was evidently seen by most of the ringsides. Comic follows no particular format, just rambles along letting the gags fall where they may, a very successful stunt the way he does it, and surefire with the audience. He is tops quelling a heckler and his ribbing of everybody from owner Snider to the band boys gets yocks. Guy does about 40 minutes with stint, including a vocalizing and terping, but his forte is the zany line of chatter done in offhand delivery.

Also on the bill is Penny Caldwell, an attractive femme thrush, and the Four Skating Macks, a fast roller skating group with some neat tricks that serve nicely as openers. Moe Solomon orch handles backgrounding and customer terping. Biz fair. Elie.

Raleigh Room, N. Y.
(HOTEL WARWICK)

Johnny Thompson, Airlane Trio, Fred Fassler Trio. $1.50 cover.

While the Raleigh Room's current layout has little marquee value, it nevertheless comprises sufficient basic entertainment essentials to provide a diverting evening.

Johnny Thompson, from the cast of "Miss Liberty," capably holds down the vocal chores. He has an infectious baritone which he uses to advantage on such varied numbers as "Hands Across the Table" and "Little Bit of Heaven."

Airlane Trio is a versatile combo. Composed of guitar, organ and accordion, the group runs the gamut from Straus to Dixieland. Acoustics of this softly-lit room help accent the small crew's arrangements and harmonies. A holdover is Fred Fassler's trio. Accompanied by piano and accordion, violinist Fassler injects a continental flavor by soloing from table to table. Gilb.

Copa City, Miami

Miami Beach, March 19.

Joe E. Lewis with Austin Mack, Les Charlivels (3), Lind Bros. (3), Carol King, Arden-Fletcher line (12), Herb George, David Tyler Orch; minimums, $3.50, $5. Barry Gray in Flamingo Lounge; minimum $1.50.

This display is probably the last show of the season for this plushery and the return of Joe E. Lewis, who opened the original spot after the war, seems fitting. For the puckish laughmaker is as potent as ever and fits surprisingly well into the huge room.

As usual, he returns with a fresh batch of song lampoons and parodies, outstanders being "Will There Be a Race Track in the Sky?," and "When Oysters 'R' in Bloom." There's the interweaving of ad libs and gags and the howls provoked keep the values mounting throughout his 50-minute stint. Had to beg off.

The Charlivels, French imports, follow some sock novelty acts that have appeared here (the Asia Boys, et al.) but top them with ease. Their mixture of instrumental, vocal bits and acroantics, plus the solo spots each essays, is parlayed into a show-stopping canto.

Lind Bros. also add impact to the show. It's a return date for them and they've come back with several new arrangements, but it is when they apply their vocalistic magic to "Eili, Eili" and "Ave Maria" that they wrap up.

Teeoff spot is capably handled by ballerina routines of Carol King. The production numbers staged by Arden and Fletcher are colorful and imaginative to frame the proceedings nicely, with Herb George solid on the songs. Dave Tyler's orch is tops on backgrounding, and of course, Austin Mack is invaluable to Lewis in his stint, with piano accomps. Lary.

Macombo, N. Y.

Baer & Rosenbloom, Roy Sedley, Boylan & King, Gordon Andrews; $3 minimum.

The Macombo's boniface, Joey Kaufman, is apparently attempting to revive the hectic atmosphere prevalent in the old Club 18, which is to be remembered as a unique institution. The combination of Max Baer and Maxie Rosenbloom, together with Roy Sedley, does a great deal to recreate that feeling. The general looseness of the proceedings suggests that this show would have fitted the late 52d street spot extremely well. Sedley, of course, was a regular at the old 18, and it seems that it's the only way he knows how to work.

Baer and Rosenbloom are making their first N. Y. date since their recent reunion. The Macombo is too small a room to support an act in the B&R price class. Consequently, they're in on a percentage deal.

The former pugs haven't changed their modus-operandi since their last appearance here. That is, they haven't improved or deteriorated. The duo make the same mistakes in performance and mental lapses in executing their lines, but they're a funny pair and the audience laughs with them and at them. There's a naturalness about these would-be comics that serves them better than well-written material and polished delivery.

Sedley is the same rapid-fire comic. The old Club 18 influence is still with him. He gets laughs throughout his own turn and contributes bits with his co-workers.

Other turn on the bill is Boylan singing pair. Their harmonics and choice of numbers is good. Gordon Andrews at the piano backstops the acts capably. Jose.

Cafe Society, N. Y.

Thelma Carpenter, Mervyn Nelson, Tony Scott Quartet; $3.50 minimum.

Thelma Carpenter, headlining at this intime Greenwich Village spot, pleases with a quintet of torchy and bluesy numbers. She has a strong and at times husky voice that puts over "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home," "Sweetie Pie," "Lonesomest Gal in Town" and similar tunes. A looker, and attractively gowned, colored songstress registers with intensity. However, her eyes-closed stance, while conveying the romantic mood, tends to cut off her rapport with the clientele, and some less familiar selections don't click as solidly as those with ready-made appeal.

Comedy assignment is handled by Mervyn Nelson, who holds forth for some 25 minutes. Nelson's approach is satiric, but his jibes are directed for the most part at already well-peppered targets, the Gallic vocalist, the folksy balladeer, nitery emcees and the mad psychiatrist. Nelson's material is uneven, with his takeoffs of a swing club emcee and a Latino conferencier going over, while his impersonation of the interlocutor in a chichi joint is heavily reminiscent of Kraft-Ebing. Tariff-payers, however, gave the turn a good mitting. Nelson has an easy comic flair, but needs sharper scripting. And some lines bordering on the blue (even though delivered in French) should be edited out.

Tony Scott Quartet, which backed Nelson expertly, handles variations in the progressive jazz idiom neatly. Comprising bass, drums, piano and clarinet, group opens with "I've Got You Under My Skin," follows with "How High the Moon" and winds up with "Yesterdays." Instrumentalists, most of whom have been with larger orchs in the past, have a good beat and an engaging style distinguished by Scott's muted clarinet, backed by fast-moving rhythms on the other pieces. Bril.

Oval Room, Boston
(COPLEY PLAZA HOTEL)

Boston, March 17.

Frankie Laine (3), Harry Marshard Orch (11), Tony Peters Trio; cover, $2.50-$3.

Hub's swank Oval Room has taken on a slightly different tinge this stanza with Frankie Laine dishing out a brand of vocalizing unique to these surroundings. His appearance is pulling solid biz, but mostly with the younger set not usually associated with this room.

Making the most of a solid rhythmic feel and an energetic approach, the guy succeeds in selling himself to almost any type of audience. On for almost an hour, he gives out with everything he has from "River Saint Marie" his opener, through such numbers associated with him as "Lucky Old Sun," "Mule Train," "That's My Desire," and a neat ballad of own composition, "We'll Be Together Again," to his record-breaking platter "Wild Goose." At show caught, ringsiders demanded the latter so loudly he was forced to stop the introduction of a number to quiet them. When he finally wound with "Wild Goose" palm pounding reached its peak forcing him to encore with "Shine" before begging off.

Laine does a neat job of introducing his numbers, displaying a solid sense of showmanship and timing and an earthy sense of humor. Carl Fisher and Morey Field, his pianist and drummer, aided by Harry Marshard's orch, back him solidly. Also on hand is the Tony Peters Trio. Biz solid. Elie.

Swiss Chalet, Chi
(BISMARCK HOTEL)

Chicago, March 16.

Harry Noble & Frances King, Harry Rodcay, Johnny Aladdin Orch (5); minimum $2.00, cover 80c.

Show tunes go over well in this small room, and neat delivery by Harry Noble and Frances King bring hefty response. Their arrangements are unusual, and comedy bits interpolated into songs are refreshing. Team sings with spirit and finesse, and King's piano accomp adds zest to the act.

Team runs into trouble on ballads, though. While striving for unusual harmonic effects, they tend to lose track of the basic melodic structure and rhythmic feeling of the song. "So in Love" and "September Song" renditions suffer from this fault. Keeping closer to melody or possibly getting rhythm accompaniment from orch would help.

But they are excellent on "Great Come and Get It Day," "You Make Me Feel So Young," and "If This Isn't Love." Latter, the closer, is sprinkled with extra comedy lines which enhance the version greatly. But outstanding number is "Show Business," into which they have inserted samples of old vaudeville songs and dialog in a fresh and lively manner.

Chalet has a new yodeler, Harry Rodcay (New Acts), who handles stint capably. Johnny Aladdin orch doesn't have too much to do during Noble & King stint, but does fine backing job for Rodcay and fills floor with smooth dance sets. Chan.

Shelburne Lounge, N. Y.
(SHELBURNE HOTEL)

Monica Boyar, Phil Leeds, Eddy Manson with Margery Welles, Paul Villard, Cy Coleman Trio, Norman Wallace; $3.50 minimum.

Current bill is comprised of standard acts for the intimeries, and the playoff is good for a payoff.

Monica Boyar, with her mixture of calypso and Latin numbers, clicks, though inclined to be overly dramatic in that finale "One for the Road." The latter is undeniably an intelligent choice as a pace-changer from her usual rhythmics, but she should simplify it considerably; the lyric itself can do much more to dramatize the song than anything any singer can give to it. The audience liked her.

Phil Leeds is one of those underplaying comics who is a relief from the hard-punching funnymen. He has a lot of what seems to be new material. And some of it, while rewrites, is done as if it were new, but that's because of his effective style.

Eddy Manson, harmonica-ist, with wife Margery Welles at the piano, does okay but he must build the personality element more.

Paul Villard, described by comedian Leeds as the "Kinsey of the accordion," has a lot of s.a. for the gals with his sea chanties, self-accomped on the accordion and garbed according to type. However, he should relegate that opening "Foggy Foggy Dew," a folk ballad that has nothing to do with the sea, unless, maybe, Villard feels it gets foggy at sea, too. Since Villard is essentially a reciter-chanter of the sea, it would be best to establish his identity from the start with a sea tune.

Cy Coleman's trio of himself at the 88s, plus guitar and bass, is a click aggregation for an intimate spot. Norman Wallace handles the introductions simply and neatly. Kahn.

Minn. Terrace, Mpls.
(HOTEL NICOLLET)

Minneapolis, March 15.

Bert Wheeler, Slate Bros. (2) with Linda Bishop, Cecil Golly Orch (12) with Mildred Stanley; $1-$1-50 cover; $2.50 minimum.

Comicalities by such expert funsters as Bert Wheeler and the

(Continued on page 55)

NEW! NEW! NEW!
PIANISSIMO SINGER

CHRISTINE
GARDONI
"SINGS WITH HER HEART"
●
STARRED NEW YORK RADIO PROGRAM WEEKLY FOR 2 YEARS
Appeared
CARNEGIE HALL POP CONCERTS
CAROUSEL—MONTREAL
ST. REGIS—TORONTO
Currently at
CORONET—QUEBEC
Held Over
●
DELL-SPEAKER
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
Suite 301-3 Plaza 7-3195

JUDY CANOVA
COMEDIENNE

PERSONAL APPEARANCES
WM. H. KING
2025 N. Argyle Ave.
Hollywood 28, Calif.

YOU MUST VISIT
RAILWAY LOST PROPERTY
when in LONDON for Bargains in Furs, Fur Coats, Luggage, Travel and Sports Goods:—Call at 1 Portman Street (corner of Oxford Street), Marble Arch, London, W.1.

THE FOUR D'LOVELIES
"SWEETHEARTS OF HARMONY"
PALACE, New York
MARCH 16-22
Personal Manager:
F. DERR SWISHER
155 E. 52nd Street, New York City — EL 5-7600

HARRISON CARROLL AND ROSS
Currently
ORPHEUM, OAKLAND
Management:
MARCUS GLASER
CHAS. HOGAN OFFICE
203 N. Wabash Chicago
Thanx to
All Concerned on the West Coast
for Our Club Dates

Fate of A.C.'s Million $ Pier Uncertain, May Become Public Park Project

Atlantic City, March 21.

Fate of the big Million Dollar Pier, top attraction from the time it was built until after the first World War, hangs in the balance.

Both the Atlantic City Hotel Assn. and the Chamber of Commerce, powerful groups, came out with demands last week (18) that the pier, partly razed by fire last September, be acquired by the resort and operated as a part of the public park system.

The groups in joint letters to Mayor Joseph Altman and city commissioners, expressed "grave concern" over the future operation of the pier and the type of amusement which might be offered there.

Their letters followed the operation of the pier last year by Charles Costello, Long Island promoter. Costello lost his three-year lease following a court fight when he was accused of violating its terms.

Meanwhile Clarence K. Crossan, president of Allied Realties, of Philadelphia, owners of the pier, refuses to comment on the situation. Reports are circulating that Crossan is about to or has concluded a 10-year lease with another lessee which will operate the pier in the coming season.

M. B. Markland, resort construction company owner, has had men busy cleaning up fire debis. The four towers of the pier, long a landmark, are being torn down. Workmen are also demolishing all superstructure of the pier to deck level in the section charred by the fire.

The two civic bodies want the pier taken over by the city to prevent further use of "this property for amusement purposes detrimental to the tone of the Boardwalk and comfort and convenience of the visitors to Atlantic City."

The pier previous to the fire had a huge dance floor and another building used as a roller skating rink and later a bingo parlor in the front. Behind the dance hall was a vaudfilm theatre. Another theatre was located near end of pier, which had a stadium where water sports were held and for years a top attraction.

Should the city take over the pier, it would be the second such structure it has acquired. The Garden pier, uptown amusement center with its big dance hall and legitimate theatre, is now being transformed into a public park after having been foreclosed by the city for delinquent taxes.

Shutdown of Stork Club Cues Lesser Omaha Spots To Install Floorshows

Omaha, March 21.

Closing of deluxe Stork Club has encouraged lesser local non-gambling clubs to splurge more liberally on talent. Result has been that the Cave (Hill Hotel) has been using a band, a couple of acts and featured singer. Frolics too has put in regular attractions, also the Seven Seas.

Stork Club, where there was a casino operating, is hopeful that it will be able to open again but general impression is against it. About a half dozen downtown lesser spots of larger tavern type are putting in entertainers with the result that there is more talent here now than in many months.

N.Y. Copa Sets Support Show for Sinatra

Booking of the Copacabana, N.Y., show opening tomorrow (Thurs.) was completed early this week. With the exception of headliner Frank Sinatra, who was set some time ago, Copa operators had been shopping around for a surrounding bill. Layout will include Larry Storch, who will double for six days out of the Paramount, N. Y.; Fred and Sledge, who'll bicycle from "Kiss Me, Kate;" Russ Emory and Lorna Lynn.

Ted Lewis winds up at the Copa tonight (Wed.).

Expect Vaude

Continued from page 51

play off some of their lesser product in one or two week runs, and bigger films could continue at the Loew-operated Capitol and nearby Radio City Music Hall.

As it is, Loew sold two films to the nearby vauder the RKO-Palace. "Sidestreet" starts at that house tomorrow (Thurs.) and "Challenge to Lassie" April 6. It's felt that these are the type pictures that could very well be shown at the State in conjunction with a stage bill.

At the same time, RKO execs are expected to study the results of the Metro pictures at the Palace. There is some feeling that if they could guarantee runs longer than one week, they could increase grosses and thus book two-week bills to overcome the scarcity of suitable acts. However, most RKO toppers feel that the house is doing okay, despite some recent reverses. The pull at that theatre is based almost entirely on its flesh shows, and they're unwilling to change the situation unless business tumbles severely.

★THE LANGS★

"TOPS" in DAZZLING THRILL-A-BATICS!

Currently

Sportsman Show

TORONTO, CAN.

MARCH 17-25

Direction:

MILES INGALLS

Hotel Astor, New York

WANTED

One week's work at the Palace Theatre, New York. Having played all the leading theatres in the country, including the Keith's, Boston; Golden Gate T., S. F.; Orpheum, L. A.; Paramount, New York; Roxy, Earl, Phila.; Capitol, Wash.; Olympia, Miami.

WHITEY ROBERTS

See or call c/o Kalcheim and Smith R.K.O. Bldg., N. Y.

Trenet: Blue Angel, N. Y.

Charles Trenet will play his first U. S. date in two years at the Blue Angel, N. Y., starting April 13. Nancy Andrews, recently in the legiter "Touch and Go," will be on the same bill.

Previously, Trenet's N. Y. nitery stands were at the Embassy and Persian Room. It's the first time that he'll play an intime N. Y. spot. Portia Nelson will remain on the show, and piano team of Eadie and Rack will move into the main room, as well as doubling in the lounge.

Hildegarde Sets U.S. Concert Tour; Europe in April

Hildegarde and her personal manager, Anna Sosenko, sail from New York April 12 on the S.S. America to fill some dates at Les Ambassadeurs, Paris, the Kursaal in Knock, Belgian watering place, and Rome. They will be abroad until the end of June and plan to pick up a new wardrobe, some new European songs and the like.

Having trailblazed some out-of-the-way towns in Florida, in Springfield, Ill., and the like, Miss Sosenko feels that there is a broad new market potential for Hildegarde in the lesser keys where there is plenty of money but where people can't get away to New York, Chicago or San Francisco too frequently. Coppicus & Schang have Hildegarde set for a five-week concert tour, starting Oct. 23, at around $3,000 a night against percentage. She returns to Marblehead and Dennis, Mass., and other strawhats for one-woman shows this summer. This is in addition to return bookings in late 1950 and 1951 at the Olympic, Seattle; Mark Hopkins, San Francisco; Cocoanut Grove, L A.; the Thunderbird, Las Vegas; the Copley Plaza, Boston, etc.

A deal had been pending for Hildegarde to open at and convert the Tapestry Room of the Park Lane hotel, N. Y., into a nitery spot. There is the likelihood also she may return to the Hotel Plaza's Persian Room, although Miss Sosenko insists on some radical rebuilding and renovations. Hildegarde has been seven seasons, sometimes twice-a-year, at the Plaza, and before that four years at the Savoy-Plaza, across 5th avenue. Their idea is for a change of pace. Between her Decca record buildup, television, etc., the idea of exploring new horizons and getting away from the same "route" of Hilton, Statler, Schine and kindred hotels is the present thinking.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, N. Y., March 21.

Daisy Nolan from N. Y. C. to help her son, Johnny (IATSE) Nolan, celebrate his top medical report.

Birthday greetings are in order to Jack Wasserman, RKO staffer, and Frank Walters, publicity manager from Atlantic City, at the Variety Clubs hospital and doing O.K.

Tom Lamb in from Chicago to bedside and chat with Jenny Foley, who has been upped for meals and film shows.

Joe Fallon, deckhand from Houston, celebrated his birthday via a bedside party.

Jeannette Binkley shot in from Lancaster, Pa., for a skiing vacation. She visited the lodge and Forrest "Slim" Glenn.

Wilton H. Birdsong and Sam LaBalbo flashing good clinic reports.

Princess Alda Benedict, former Rogerite, now at the Raybrook, N. Y., sanatorium, anticipates an all-clear soon.

Delphin (RKO) Streder ended observation period with a top clinic report which ups him for meals and picture shows.

After mastering the Munoldi operation with a longtime bed routine, Ed (IATSE) Gaiser drew his first real good clinic report.

Write to those who are ill.

Sarah Vaughan for Bop City

Sarah Vaughan is scheduled to headline the first anni show at Bop City, N. Y., beginning April 12.

Songstress is slated for a three-week stand there following a 10-day date at Ciro's, San Francisco, beginning March 30.

Gypola May Disk-Jock N.Y. Horseshoe; Personalities Getting the Plum Spots

Cafe disk-jockeying is fast becoming a haven for personalities without radio backgrounds. The nitery lounge spielers coming from radio are getting to be in the minority. Indicative of the new trend is the fact that Gypsy Rose Lee is being considered for the platter-pilot role at the Diamond Horseshoe, N. Y. If deal is made, she'll join the ranks of N. Y. Post columnist Earl Wilson (Monte's), pressagent Ed Wiener (Hickory House), singer Bea Kalmus (Huttons) and Jack Eig (Copacabana). Latter came from radio.

A deal is on for Dave Elman, who at one-time headed the radio show, "Hobby Lobby," with the Latin Casino, Philadelphia. Harry Steinman, Latin Casino boniface, turned to Elman after inability to come through with a deal for Barry Gray. Latter asked for a $1,250 weekly guarantee plus 35% of the commercial coin. Terms were considered too steep.

The Diamond Horseshoe deal for Gypola is still up in the air. Negotiations are expected to resume in two weeks when Diamond Horseshoe boniface Billy Rose returns from a Nassau vacation.

Barbara Ann Scott Icer Hits Big $17,000 For 7 Shows in Troy, N.Y.

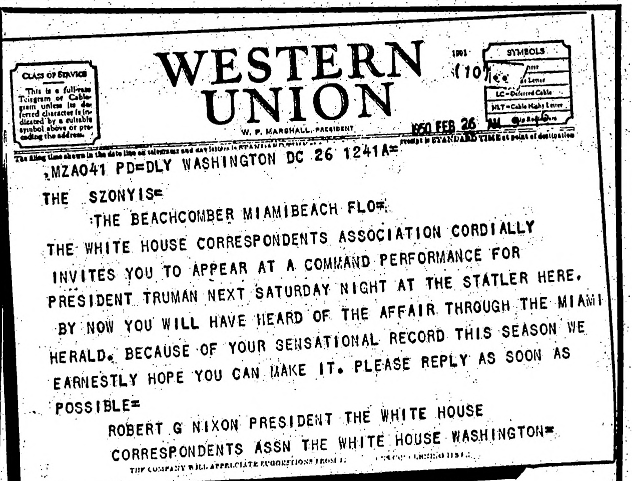
Troy, March 21.

"Skating Sensations of 1950," in its first American engagement at Renselaer Polytechnic Institute Field House, grossed $17,000 in five days (seven performances) at $3 top. Frank Gorman, son of owner Tommy Gorman, Ottawa hockey-baseball promoter, expressed satisfaction with the patronage attracted by Barbara Ann Scott troupe, in view of remoteness of location—House is four long blocks from a bus line—and fact it was the first ice show to play Troy.

Scott show, touring Canadian cities and towns since October, has played to more than 700,000 people. Only other American date scheduled was three days (20-22) at Hamilton College Field House in Clinton, N. Y. Troupe has no portable freezing equipment. Well received here by critics and the public, "Sensations" will finish run end of April.

Connee Boswell has signed with the William Morris Agency following a term with Music Corp. of America.

Jean Sablon is slated for an appearance at the Etoile theatre, Paris, April 14, following current tour of the Moss Empire theatres, England.



CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable symbol above or preceding the address.

WESTERN UNION

W. P. MARSHALL, PRESIDENT

SYMBOLS

LC=Deferred Cable

NLT=Cable Night Letter

1950 FEB 26 AM

,MZA041 PD=DLY WASHINGTON DC 26 1241A=

THE SZONYIS=

:THE BEACHCOMBER MIAMIBEACH FLO=

THE WHITE HOUSE CORRESPONDENTS ASSOCIATION CORDIALLY

INVITES YOU TO APPEAR AT A COMMAND PERFORMANCE FOR PRESIDENT TRUMAN NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE STATLER HERE.

BY NOW YOU WILL HAVE HEARD OF THE AFFAIR THROUGH THE MIAMI

HERALD. BECAUSE OF YOUR SENSATIONAL RECORD THIS SEASON WE

EARNESTLY HOPE YOU CAN MAKE IT. PLEASE REPLY AS SOON AS POSSIBLE=

ROBERT G NIXON PRESIDENT THE WHITE HOUSE

CORRESPONDENTS ASSN THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON=

THE COMPANY WILL APPRECIATE SUGGESTIONS FROM ITS PATRONS CONCERNING ITS SERVICE

THE SZONYS

Our sincerest thanks to President Truman for selecting us to appear at the White House Correspondents Ball.

We are indeed sorry not to have been able to appear but previous engagements did not permit.

- CURRENTLY, BEACHCOMBER, MIAMI—Held Over 4 Weeks
- April 1, 8, 15 and 22, ON THE NATIONALLY SPOTLIGHTED 'SATURDAY NIGHT REVUE'—NBC-TV
- Opening April 23, LATIN QUARTER, New York

Personal Management:

ALBERT and ESSRIG ASSOCIATES

1619 Broadway, New York — JUdson 6-1568

Direction:

MUSIC CORPORATION OF AMERICA

on the American label

"I'VE GOT NO USE FOR THE WOMEN"

BOB MORRIS

Currently:

THE PADDOCK

ST. LOUIS

Management

PHIL EDWARDS

548 Fifth Avenue

MUrray Hill 7-6865

New York 17

Paramount, N. Y.

Nat "King" Cole and his Trio, Ray McKinley Orch (14) with Dale Nunley; Larry Storch, Johnny Coy; "Francis" (U-I), reviewed in VARIETY, Dec. 14, '49.

Current Paramount show is sharp, brisk entertainment with an accent on comedy that blends well with the zaniness of U-I's "talking" mule in the screen half of the bill. With Nat "King" Cole and the Ray McKinley orch lending good marquee strength to back up the much-publicized "Francis," business should register better than the house average after the record-smashing Bob Hope-Jane Russell previous show.

Cole works with more variety and humor than when last caught here. In addition to his soft-voiced vocals from the piano bench on items like "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "I Almost Lost My Mind" and a medley of his past disk hits, he does a keyboard bit that's a showmanly combination of pianistic virtuosity and subtle humor, plus a calypso vocal away from the piano which he sells with maximum appreciation of the number's clever wordage. Piano and bongo drums instrumental is another deviation from the heretofore rather straight Cole routine of multiple ballads. Bongo drummer, newest addition to the trio (which actually makes it a foursome), gets a well deserved palm for his superb hand-beating on the hides.

McKinley is one of the few name leaders who realize that a theatre engagement is different than a dance date and that a frontman has to sell himself as well as his music. Genial and personable, McKinley distinctly sparks a stageshow with his dry and drawling emceeing. Leader does only a brief stint behind the drums on the "That's Aplenty" opener but has several vocal spots, pairing with Dale Nunley for "Go to Sleep." Band chirper on her own is only so-so with "I Get a Kick Out of You." Orch performance is rounded out with a Rodgers-Hart medley McKinley album-recorded for Victor's "Here Comes the Dance Bands" series.

Larry Storch's impressions stress British characterizations a bit too heavily, but are generally expert and humorous. Best bits are an English announcer broadcasting the fights, and a femme drunk with a crying jag at a bar. Impression of a TV set with bad tubes, although brief, is also a standout.

A Par veteran, Johnny Coy improves with each repeat at this house. His tapping is imaginative and technically superior, highlight of his current act being a tapster's nightmare wherein he tries to stamp out the tap echoes that haunt him. Coy's informal style of handling his announcements is also an assist.

McKinley band does a solid job of backing the acts through a better-than-average 60-minute bill.

Rich.

Radio City, Mpls.

Minneapolis, March 18.

Horace Heidt Variety Revue with Musical Knights (12), Heidt Steppers (12), Russ Budd, Shepard Bros. (2), Rudy & Lee, Pepperettes (3), Jessie Owens, Jean Harvey, Jackie & Connie Barrie, Camerotas (3), Don McElvey, Al Hitz, Jerry Singer, Tommy Check, Pierce Knox, Ralph Sigwald; "Free for All" (U).

Playing its first vaudfilm theatre engagement in more than a year and a half after devoting itself to radio and to one-nighters, this Horace Heidt revue stacks up as socko boxoffice and a big money's worth of entertainment. It's different from the show which Heidt brought here a few years ago when he was starting his parades of youthful talent discoveries.

Heidt's initial offering made no production pretensions and was a simple unveiling of radio and other contest winners. Now, however, he brings a well-staged, elaborately produced, integrated revue with real form, some class and more of a professional aid.

The mixture of song, dance, music and comedy is served in front of the Heidt 12-piece Musical Knights, comprising four each of rhythms, brass and saxes. The routining is effective and the pacing fast, with each of the numerous acts necessarily limited in running time, permitting snappiness and diversity. The only weakness is in the comedy end, some of the funmaking being infantile, crude, stale or in bad taste, but despite this deficit the show also holds plenty of laughs.

A pretty girl appears before the curtain to tell the customers in verse what impends. Then Heidt takes over and there's seldom a dull moment during the hour and a half performance. The Heidt Steppers, comprising 12 young people equally divided as to sex, are a boff hoofing group with snappy routines to give the show a speedy tempo that's maintained throughout. They're niftily costumed.

Russ Budd, a 15-year-old lad, does slick hoofing. Bell ringing by the two Shepard Bros. is tuneful and listenable. Rudy & Lee are a topnotch harmonica playing duo. There's a comedy interlude by the "10 Modernaires," who present a ballet burlesque with the men masquerading as gals. It's familiar from other Heidt shows.

The Pepperettes, a femme singing trio, score with "I Didn't Know the Gun Was Loaded" and "Chattanooga Shoe Shine," given some production trimmings.

"The Glory Road" gets effective treatment from Jessie Owens, a fine Negro singer. The line of dancers comes on again to introduce "The Minneapolis Wiggle," and there's some first-class solo hoofing by Jean Harvey and others. Tiny five-year-old Ernie Camerota, with his parents providing the musical accompaniment on accordion and banjo, brings down the house as he warbles two numbers from atop a chair.

Comedy again pokes itself to the fore as Don McElvey ably travesties various radio commercials. Al Hitz, from the band, contribs neat solo trumpeting. Heidt takes a fling at vocalizing and then his troupe parade with signs signifying they want another boss. They're only kidding, however, for they wind up telling how they love him.

Jerry Singer, ex-Marine, is a knockout with his one-legged dancing and acrobatics. The production number, "Country Style," provides more lively rustic stepping and paves the way for the show's biggest laughs as the dancers go into the audience and bring partners onto the stage, including plants, to do dance with them.

The drums get a terrific workout from 12-year-old Tommy Check, who handles his sticks with the aplomb and skill of an experienced veteran. Blind Pierce Knox wins a big hand with his xylophone playing, but the greatest applause of all is reserved for Ralph Sigwald, robust baritone, whose excellent voice makes "A Son of God's Country" a standout number. With his rendition of "The Lord's Prayer" the foundation, a stirring, moving production number enlisting most of the cast is socko—a smash finale before Heidt's reintroductions of the performers.

It's a lot of show, but apparently not too much, judging by the customers' sustained interest and applause. Larger lower floor well populated for first of four performances opening day.

Rees.

Capitol, Wash.

Washington, March 19.

Blair & Dean, Dave Barry, Jaywalkers (3), Kay De Witt, Lynn Allison, Sam Jack Kaufman House Orch; "Key to City" (M-G).

Accent in current Capitol lineup is on nostalgia and corn, a combo which has obvious appeal for house regulars. Headliner is Sam Jack Kaufman, Capitol maestro, who is celebrating his 10th anniversary with the big Loew house, and around whom show is built. Payees rally to the sentimental motif, and go all out for the home talent.

Staff chantoosey, Kay De Witt, and her predecessor, Lynn Allison, now a Washington housefrau, are interwoven with other acts, each gal being spotlighted in her own right and then joining forces in a duet. Miss De Witt, a local discovery, has long been a fave with Capitol audiences. She has a strong, versatile voice and a flare for style which has won her bigtime attention. She recently nixed a Rodgers & Hammerstein offer to stick close to home, to delight of her local fans. Miss Allison still registers with a sweet, though conventional, soprano. Both gals chose sentimental tunes for the occasion. The De Witt medley of songs about Paris is especially appealing.

Dave Barry, the "Mr. Ripple" of the Jimmy Durante airer, fills the comic slot ably and with greater success than his predecessors of recent weeks. Material is fresh and funny. Best is his takeoff on Arthur Godfrey, a hometown lad. Mixes imitations with nonsense and his "Ripple" gargling of a tune, all to nice reception.

Blair & Dean impress as a terp team with a future. Couple strive for novelty, rounding out their routine with some patter to give it form and a narrative quality. They're young and exuberant, and caught on nicely at show seen.

Jay Walkers have a formless type of acro-clowning act, bound together to a convincing entity via a "theme" line dance. They work hard for laughs with creditable results, but need something more solid, perhaps some additional acro stunts, to add zest to the routine. At that, they get plenty of laughs and mitt action.

Lowe.

Music Hall, N. Y.

"Going Places," musical revue with Lucienne & Ashour, Jessica Haist, Roy Raymond, Earl William, Ted & Flo Vallett, Adriana & Charly, Myrna Galle, Alpheus Koon, Corps de Ballet, Rockettes, Choral Ensemble & Music Hall Symphony Orch; produced by Leon Leonidoff; setting, Bruno Maine; lighting, Eugene Braun; choreography, Florence Rogge; costumes, James Stewart Morcom; "A Woman of Distinction" (Col), reviewed in VARIETY March 8, '50.

Traditional know-how and polish embellish the current Music Hall bill-of-fare, a skip-and-hop through the European scene with a lengthy stopover in Dublin in deference to St. Pat's Day. Vaude turns are nicely worked in to harmonize with the travelog motif. Both the Rockettes and Corps de Ballet are at their colorful best. Upshot is a revue with zingy pace and enough mixture for broad appeal.

Labeled "Going Places," layout opens in a London fog, giving the authentic feel of auto traffic picking its way through the murk. Fast switch is effected to a brightly lit stage in which the Rockettes, pouring deceptively out of a diminutive Crosley, knock out a rapid routine. Their precision formations and smartly synced terping are par for the course.

Paris transition is handled via a giant spinning record accompanying the canned singing of "La Vie en Rose" by Edith Piaf. The Piaf rendition, a now-classic demonstration of torchy prowess, firmly sets the atmosphere. Lucienne and Ashour then swing into their knockabout and acrobatic Apache dance. Routine is spectacular but there is too much rough stuff to suit the bland and tasteful format of Music Hall shows. Brutal, if cleverly faked, display of a male performer beating and kicking a tattoo on his femme partner is nitery format curiously off base for the family following of this premier showcase.

Piece-de-resistance comes on in a toast to the Irish patron saint in a group of nicely-melodic Gaelic tunes by vocalists Jessica Haist, Roy Raymond and Earl William. Ordinarily, some of these songs would be trite with repetition but the season makes them right. Standout is Raymond's manly chirping of "The Meadows of Heaven." Glee club's support puts the rich touches to the solo work.

Irish format also sees the sensational baton twirling and even more spectacular juggling of the sticks by Ted and Flo Vallett. This team is good and the patrons went all-out for the display. Commodious Music Hall stage lent itself well to the act, which includes some towering tosses of the batons. Turn has a sock finish in which the duo embroider intricate juggling with a fast-hoofing Irish jig.

Neatly dovetailed is a trampoline stint by Adriana and Charly. In keeping with the Irish decor, canvas comes on in the guise of a haywagon hauled by an ox team. Act is crisply delivered in a solid combo of the comic and acrobatic. Body flips and leaps off the canvas are fairly routine but nice timing for the laughs in some slow-motion gymnastics deserve and cop a solid hand.

Bill is smartly conceived to close on its strongest note, a dazzling exhibition of virtuosity by the teamed Rockettes and Corp de Ballet. Girls use white-feathered fans to work out some attractive floral effects. Routine is not new but the surprise combinations still rock the house. This goes double when costuming and lighting effects are as expertly handled as is the Music Hall custom.

Wit.

Chicago, Chi

Chicago, March 17.

Martin Bros. (2), Lina Romay, Dean Murphy, Ink Spots (4), Louis Basil House Orch; "Young Man With a Horn" (WB).

While new bill here is heavy on vocalizing, there is enough action by performers to mold show into a well balanced layout. Show is well-paced and runs smoothly.

Martin Bros. open with two marionettes doing Spanish-American dances. A sort of drag dance by two skeletons brings good response. A recalcitrant doll is amusing. Closer is a pair of puppets giving out on "Darktown Strutter's Ball."

Lina Romay turns on the charm for a swingy version of "Tico Tico." Medley of "Not For Me" and "A Good Man Nowadays Is Hard to Find" brings hefty applause. Her standard, "Chui, Chui" registers well. Closer is a novel version of "Music, Music, Music," in which she dances off with a flicker spot giving the effect of the old nickelodeon theatre music. Number gets terrific hand.

Dean Murphy, impressionist, goes through a brace of Hollywood stars, does a yocking version of Hildegarde, and closes with impressions of personalities in the news. Final impression, a recitation of one of the late President Roosevelt's speeches, is enthusiastically received.

Four Ink Spots walk away with the show. Standard device of falsetto and bass choruses still goes strong, and notes of exaggeration and humor give songs extra punch. Quartet opens with effective straight rendition of "No Orchids for My Lady," then swing into slick version of "Maybe," enhanced by some jitterbugging by two of the lads. "With My Eyes Wide Open" is neatly done. Close with "If I Didn't Care" for solid returns.

Louis Basil house orch backs acts in superb style.

Chan.

Fox, St. Louis

St. Louis, March 18.

Frank Marlowe, Cedric Algy, Elton Britt, Peggy Taylor Trio, Renard & Arden, Joe Page, Joe Schirmer, Frank Panus Orch; "Man on the Eiffel Tower" (RKO).

Continuing in the high gear of last week Frank Marlowe, held over, is still copping guffaws with his zany stuff in addition to emceeing the current layout which is maintaining the high entertainment value of the preceding session. He repeats his prattfalls, dives into the aisles from stage and adds some swell stuff in kidding the customers and dishing out some nifty chatter.

But Marlowe must share top honors with Cedric and Algy, a pair of English balancers who in striped trousers, cutaway coats and buttonaires wham over one of the slickest acts of its type. And not far behind are Renard and Arden, a pair of comic dancers; the gal a looker and shapely, and the male a dead pan, goofy looking guy. His slow motion stuff to the gal's fast pace gets merited applause.

Peggy Taylor Trio, two males and another looker, present a swell adagio routine with the gal being tossed through the air and doing some sock twists while enroute. Garner hefty returns.

Joe Page, balancer and juggler, performs on a miniature teeter board atop a table. Outstanding stunts are balancing himself on his head while keeping the board in action and later working his way through a steel hoop while atop the board. Customers liked him.

Elton Britt, a yodeling horse opera film star, scores with his guitar as he warbles "The Yodel Blues," "Maybe I'll Cry," "Someday," "Chime Bells," in the yodeling style and "Lorelei" with an echo effect. Frank Panus and his tooters cop a neat hand for an interp of "American Sketches" in addition to a fine backing of acts. Joe Schirmer clicks in his interp of "Guitar Boogie" on that instrument. Biz fair.

Sahu.

Palomar, Seattle

Seattle, March 16.

Melita & Arnow, Michael Foster, Townsmen Trio, Paddy Wing, Sarah Vaughan, Ray Watkins Orch (10), "Roseanna McCoy" (RKO).

Current show at the Palomar is right up to standard, with the slick and unusual vocalizing of Sarah Vaughan riding high. Ray Watkins' augmented house orchestra, on stage for this session, adds to overall impact.

Melita and Arnow open with a torrid dance and carry on in a modified Flamenco and a flirtation dance with a flash ending that's okay.

Michael Foster emcees show ably and also scores in own spot with a swell bit of pantomiming on a drunk trying to unlock his car door. The band showcases a medley of Jolson tunes for a nice interlude, followed by the Townsmen Trio, three lads who give out some good rhythm on piano, bass and guitar on "Fly Right," "Rain" and "My Wife Has Left Me." They wind up pantomiming to records of "Timptashun" and "Cigarettes, Whiskey and Wild, Wild Women" for hefty applause.

Paddy Wing does a nice job with taps and ballet taps, selling ably.

Miss Vaughan comes on to open with "Once in a While," showing a surprising range and slick control for socko results. She follows up with "I Cried for You," "Body and Soul" and then segues into "Mean to Me" in faster tempo. She displays excellent phrasing plus the ability to sing in a minor key against the band that make for a haunting effect. She follows with a medley of "It's Magic," "I Cover the Waterfront" and "Don't Blame Me." Called back she begs off with "While You're Gone." Reed.

Roxy, N. Y.

China Doll Revue with Ming & Ling, Toy & Wing, Kanazawa Trio, Florence Ahn, Long Tack Sam; Line (9); "Under My Skin" (20th), reviewed in VARIETY March 15, '50.

The transfer of a nitery show into a vauder generally works out very well for both the cafe and the theatre. The theatre gets a show that's already integrated and previously shown for playing values while the cafe benefits by the splurge of publicity and the extra dividends from the house.

In the case of the Roxy's purchase of the nearby China Doll show, the benefits are self-evident. The cafe has a fairly slight display, but the Roxy's production makes it look like a big deal. The sets and the orchestral backing give the show more authority and better playing values than it has in the cafe. The collection of Oriental acts performs pleasantly for a good all-around effect.

The theatre makes excellent use of the cafe's line. The nine Orientals perform some fetching numbers on their own as well as provide atmosphere for the rest of the talent. The costumes are highly colorful.

The Roxy show brings back Long Tack Sam for his first date in this country in many years. This venerable Chinese, who at one time headed one of the top flash acts, shows only a small portion of his tricks. He has two small spots of his own in which he does a few bits of magic. He hasn't lost his old skill. And he emcees capably.

Comedy is by Ming and Ling, who show their familiar line of hillbilly numbers and vocal impressions for good returns. The Kanazawa trio get their usual quota of applause with their risley work, while Toy and Wing do excellently with their familiar line of ballroomology. Latter make an especially good impression in an exposition of oldie terps.

The act lineup is completed with Florence Ahn, a slight gal who has a big voice. General effect is fine, even though there's little fluidity in her pipes during such ambitious numbers like "Granada" and "My Hero."

Jose.

Olympia, Miami

Miami, March 19.

Basil Rathbone, Sammy Walsh, Lois Lee, Norman Brown, Larry & Lynn, Les Rhode House Orch; "Blue Grass of Kentucky" (Mono).

There isn't much sparkle to the lineup current here, which at best adds up to fair, aside from Lois Lee's thrushing and the waggery of Sammy Walsh.

Topliner Basil Rathbone is purveying the type of act that might be okay for a video series. But for vaude it just isn't there. Comprised of a series of readings, the material of the legit and radio star is built around the classics from Browning and Shelley to Shakespeare. It's a bit over the average vaude fan's head, despite excellent projection.

Miss Lee is a comely songstress with a solid delivery which embraces musicomedy and operetta standards with equal facility to cop top honors.

Walsh, who sometimes looks and sounds like a carbon of Joe E. Lewis, gets over nicely with songs and gags. He also emcees in affable manner.

Unicycle and bicycle work of Larry and Lynn is standard stuff, and fits well into the lineup, while Norman Brown adds pace to the proceedings with his dancing-drummer routine. Les Rhode and house orch are okay on the backgroundings.

Lary.

Empire, London

London, March 6.

Empire Girls (24), Empire Ballet (20), Choral Ensemble (12), Reg Redcliffe, The Craddocks (3), George Melachrino & his Orch; "Battleground" (M-G).

Although not seen until the last five minutes of this hour show, the Empire Girls once again won biggest ovation. Their precision work and routines continue on a high level, especially the ballet.

New Nat Karson production is titled "Magazine Follies." "Lovely to Look At," expertly played by the George Melachrino orch is an attractive opening to an all around good bill. Reg Redcliffe, fast moving, hard working and imaginative rhumba xylophonist gets over with a sock. The Craddocks are a trio of continental knock-abouts whose nonchalant antics get laughs.

As in previous Empire vaudfilm shows, the finale proves to be the highspot with the entire company participating. Nifty costumes, attractive western setting and new routines make for a zingy getaway.

Myro.

Palace, N. Y.

Winton & Diane, Tu-Tones (2), Clem Bellings & Co. (2), Cookie Bowers, 4 D'Lovelies, Ross Wyse, Jr. & Peggy Womack, Gus Van, Brick Bros. & Gloria; "Davy Crockett, Indian Scout" (UA), reviewed in VARIETY Jan. 11, '50.

The Palace presentation this week has a good overall character despite a couple of lapses. There's a great deal of strength in the latter portion of the show, where it really counts, and generally impression is good.

The return date by Gus Van, who's in the next-to-closing slot, gives a considerable lift to the show. Van is one of the better showmen who ingratiates himself with his delivery. His oldies find favor with the assemblage and he takes some solid bows.

The bill really starts perking with Ross Wyse, Jr. and Peggy Womack. Mixed duo, in fifth position, warm the house up all over again with comedy and acro work. It's a smooth, laugh-laden turn that goes over with top effect.

Show's openers are Winton and Diane in a pleasant assortment of taps. Clem Billings, in the trey, has a good dog turn, but his own approaches at humor are rather heavy. Cookie Bowers' caricatures of various types also bring a good return.

New Acts are Tu-Tones, Four D'Lovelies and the Brick Bros. (2) and Gloria.

Don Albert's orch does its usual proficient job of backing the show.

Jose.

Casino, Toronto

Toronto, March 17.

Mel Torme, Joe de Rita & Waunita Bates, Larry Foster, King Bros. (2), Jimmie Cameron, Irene Cooke, Charles Gregory Girls (18), Arch Stone house orch; "Arson Inc." (Astral).

Mel Torme is the headliner of current layout and rates the squeals of the downfront teenagers but it's Larry Foster and the King Bros. who share the general applause honors. Foster is held over for his fine song impressions of screen and radio toppers; the King Bros. sock over on their gracefully-timed acrobatics that are perfection in slow-motion balancing.

Torme, with that sophomoric routine that sends the youngsters, gets over nicely with his varied styles on "Somebody Loves Me," "Blue Moon," "You're Driving Me Crazy" and "Old Black Magic;" but he could dispense with much of the in-between chatter.

Joe de Rita and Waunita Bates score with their knockabout mayhem; and the line girls point up St. Patrick celebrations with an Irish policemen's ball motif; plus jigs, and a nice song chore by Jimmie Cameron and Irene Cooke. Production finale by the line is one of those Nile numbers.

McStay.

Orpheum, L. A.

Los Angeles, March 15.

The Cycleonians (3), Mort Herold, Burn's Birds, Knight & Day, Benito "Pat" Moreno, Rochelle & Beebe, West & Lorenzo, The Novellos (2), Rene Williams House Orch (9); "The Blonde Bandit" (Rep).

This week's offering is standard vaude all the way with nothing socko but all acts delivering competently to please the fans. Two muscle acts, a bird turn, a dance team, instrumentalist, and song and patter make up the bill.

At show caught, the Novellos, combo trapeze and ladder-balancing turn, are out first. Femme does the muscle work on bar, while male teeters around stage on the ladder. Act climaxes with trained pooch joining master on top of ladder. Two-spot is held by Mort Herold, young accordionist who pleases with four numbers on the squeeze box. His personality lacks punch but the tunes come over cleverly and that's what he sells.

Burn's Birds is the best feathered turn kicking around the vaude stage these days. He uses 12 parakeets and a fast line of patter to earn good returns. Birds dash through fire, ride trains, perform acrobatics and other stunts that have been well organized. Knight & Day are two femmes who freshen up their pantomimes to records with variations on routines, arting fair results. The Cycleonians (3) flash on stage with unicycles and two younger members of trio do most of the wheel-turning. Third member clowns on trick cycles.

Cream of the bill is Rochelle & Beebe with their takeoffs on ballroomology, and West & Lorenzo long a standard song and patter act of the old school. Femme of the R&B act is a natural clown who catches audience fancy and the burlesquing of ballroom terping comes over strongly. The tall West and the short Lorenzo amuse with 16 minutes of song interspersed with gags.

Benito "Pat" Moreno completes the bill and his midway stint holds attention. He works easily, using an operatic tenor to get onstage with "There's No Tomorrow," in Italian, slides neatly into vocal imitations of pop singers and gets off strongly with straight delivery of "Granada."

Brog.

Paramount, L.A.

Los Angeles, March 16.

Gil Lamb, Herb Jeffries, Bedell & Mattson, Rosalie & Alvo, Ronnie Gibson, Fanchonettes (20), Rube Wolf & Orch (14); "Singing Guns" (Rep).

The downtown sector took what it hopes will be a new lease on life with the Fanchon & Marco decision to return flesh to the Paramount stage. It gives downtown two regular stage presentations, the other being the Orpheum's vaude policy, plus the intermittent stand of name talent at the Million Dollar.

By the best show biz standards, the offering is not a good one, but considering the hurry-up decision to bring it in today (16), a decision reached only Sunday (12), the offering stands up surprisingly well as entertainment. Another surprise element is the trimming, rather than upping, of admissions. There's the bargain rate of 40c until 1 p.m., then 50c to 6 p.m. and a straight 80c thereafter. Kids under 12 get in free if accompanied by parents.

Formula for the flesh layout sees just about the same stage setup used by F&M in the past for its presentation shows. Attractive costumes on comely girls who feature precision production numbers, a singer and a comic with familiar names, a couple of fillin turns, and, of course, Rube Wolf batoning a 14-piece orch, tossing in asides and generally running off the show.

The Fanchonette line of 20 seems likely to become a mainstay attraction of future presentations. Lineup was a bit ragged at first show with the initial number, "Park Avenue Fantasy," but the finale offering of "Scottish Precision" brought down a good curtain and time will smooth out the kinks and make them a real precision line.

Gil Lamb scores best with his impression of a bebop fan at the movies. Otherwise he tosses in some eccentric dancing, a takeoff on radio commercials and a nursery tune during a long 21 minutes on stage. Herb Jeffries gives his vocal style to five tunes at the first show but reception was not strong. Numbers are all slow tempo and he needs to mix in a change of pace to pep up his stint. Included are "Basin Street Blues" and "Flamingo," latter a tune he did with Duke Ellington on the Paramount stage not long before it went dark in 1941.

Bedell & Mattson are record pantominists who have nothing that is unusual. They clown to Carmen Miranda, Crosby-Martin and Spike Jones tunes for okay results. Rosalie & Alvo are a dance duo with good rhythmic sense that comes across in two numbers. Ronnie Gibson is the orch chirp and rates the spotlight on two numbers that get over nicely, "It's a Great Day" and "That Man of Mine."

Carlos Romero, assisted by Patty Kinney, produced the show. As a quickie, the sight values are okay. Costuming is fresh, stage hangings good, and lighting indicated that as soon as cues are established there will be an all-round neat physical flash to the presentation.

Brog.

Windmill, London

London, March 14.

Arthur English, Harry Locke, Johnny McGregor, Jackie Joe, Goldwyn Duo, Bruce & Forsyth, Keith Lester, Penny Calvert, Ronnie Hudson, Renee Baxter & Windmill Girls.

There is a set formula for the vaude shows at this intimate West End house which pays off handsomely. Producer Vivian Van Damm stages a slick 90-minute stanza which has a predominant male appeal. A resident company of dancers, vocalists and comedians are supported by guest artists.

Central feature of current show is the Windmill Girls, with their scanty costumes and a wide variety of routines. One of the newcomers on the bill is Harry Locke, whose impressions win nice round of applause.

Arthur Enlish, resident comic, is a high powered cockney with an easy flair for getting laughs. Apart from the song and dance scenes there is a neat acrobatic act by the Goldwyn Duo, a pair of attractive femmes who perform atop pedestal.

Myro.

Apollo, N. Y.

Illinois Jacquet Band (14), Ella Fitzgerald, Timmie Rogers, Berry Bros. (3), The Juvelys (2); "I Cheated the Law" (20th).

Current Apollo show is geared at a fast pace, registering top audience reaction all the way. House should rack up good returns, since most of the acts on the bill are faves here.

Comprised of six brasses, five reeds and three rhythm, Illinois Jacquet band opens session with a snappy "Mr. Jazz," followed by a vocaling of "Since We Said Goodbye." The Juvelys, ofay acro team, win salvos with some neat head-to-head balancing.

Three Berry Bros., a sock act, bring down the house with their slick hoofery and fancy cane twirling. Timmie Rogers, in the comedy spot, starts off slowly, but soon had the payees in his corner in response to a number of yock-compelling bits.

Ella Fitzgerald's song styling goes over big, with nifty versions of "East of the Moon," "Don't Cry Joe" combined with "Happiness Is a Thing Called Joe," "How High the Moon," "Fellow Tone" and "Basin Street Blues" hitting applause jackpot. The Jacquet orch is melted down to a nine-man combo aggregation in the closing stint. Composed of three horns, three sax and three rhythm, group contribs solid session on "Black Velvet," "Blow Illinois Blow" and "Flying Home." Miss Fitzgerald joins in on latter number for solid getaway.

Rome Club

Continued from page 2

the evening there is supper dancing to the tunes of a Danish fave on the continent, Sven Admussen and his orch. Mary Raye & Naldi, American dance team, are an added attraction.

Not just any old tourist is welcome, however, and that's what has some Americans here burned when they realize the club was built with dollars provided by the world's greatest democracy. To get in, the tourist must be recommended by one of the club's members (they include the Infanta of Spain and a good many of the old native favorites of the Mussolini-era) or by a top official of one of the embassies here.

If one belongs to "a good club" at home, showing of proper credentials will also get him in. Fee for visitors is 2.000 lire ($3.20) for a 10-day card. To be a charter member costs 50,000 lire (85), while a year's membership is 10.000 lire ($15).

Since anyone has 10,000 lire, explains Madame Valensano, who with her husband runs the establishment, the money factor means nothing. Therefore, she says, admittance is limited to those who are leaders in their field or who get the open sesame from their embassies or from the ECA.

"It is not necessary to have blue blood to join this club," Madame Valensano states. "Naturally, we have many names in the Roman nobility and we hope to keep our club with a good name by having only the better classes from American, France and Spain, etc., here."

One floor of the building is occupied by the Fiametta film theatre. This 220-seater features "foreign films" in the original version and is handsomely decorated. The Valensanos expect also to book concerts when not playing films. They have been trying recently to get Yehudi Menuhin.

Cardinal Spellman

Continued from page 1

changes will be made to win church approval, since cooperation would be needed for location shooting, among other things. It is understood that efforts are being made by Leon Shimkin, of S&S, to set up a company, the Cardinal Corp., which would make the pic and in which Field, de Rochemont and Robinson would be partnered.

Alan Collins of the Curtis Brown agency, which was originally handling the property, is not involved in the de Rochemont deal, but would get his commission in any case. Shimkin has been negotiating the setup. In the event it falls through, property will revert to Collins for peddling.

"Cardinal" and John Hersey's "The Wall" are expected to be the biggest books of the year. Negotiations by an indie are said to be in progress on "The Wall."

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 52

Minn. Terrace, Mpls.

Slate Bros., with some first-rate hoofing tossed in for good measure, make this show pleasing entertainment and an appetizing laugh dish for this plush room's patrons. It's a return engagement at this spot for Wheeler, a local favorite.

Wheeler still has his top hat, cane and sandwich, but otherwise his comedy business and patter are new here for the most part. In his informal, intimate manner, he confidentially gives the customers the lowdown on the Slate Bros., a familiar laugh device; relates his own ups and downs amusingly, uncorks some good gags and yarns, and then combines fun forces with the Slates. They land yaks with a bit of comedy business that has one of the Slates whispering into Wheeler's ears the lyrics of a song, "I Took Her Home in a Taxicab," which, in some of its stages, probably goes beyond the bounds of propriety for this room, but which stirs up plenty laughs. Junoesque Miss Bishop, towering over Wheeler like a lighthouse, contributes to the merriment with vocalizing clowning in which all join. For a finale Wheeler does some hoofing with the Slates.

The Slates in their own act engage in inanities that hit a peak of zaniness. Their "satirical impressions" of chorus boys, John L. Lewis, a Russian spy, soap operas and a man phoning his wife he's bringing a friend home to dinner are all in the broadest vein. They utilize various freakish apparel and makeup devices, too, in their assaults on the risibilities. Their soft shoe and precision tap routines stamp them as excellent dancers.

Attractive vocalist Mildred Stanley and Cecil Golly and his orchestra and glee club open the show with a snappy Conga song. As usual, the boys play the show and for customer dancing with usual efficiency. Business off for supper show Saturday night with extreme cold an adverse factor.

Rees.

Click, Philly

Philadelphia, March 17.

Louis Prima Orch., with Keely Smith, Jimmy Vincent; Diablito's Rhumba Band, Danny Marshall & Fronkie, Joan Terry; no cover, no minimum.

This town never seems to get enough of Louis Prima, who was in at the Earle for a week's vaude run early in January, and now is back at the Click for two-week stand—his fifth trip to the Click, incidentally. Prima draws them in, getting good enough business during the week and sock returns on the weekend. Bandsman is in on a percentage deal, which will show both him and house profit.

Prima band is supplemented by a floor show which leader emcees. There's a couple of outside acts, but mostly show is the trumpeting and boisterous comedy of the leader. Louis paces band through innumerable number of choruses with his horn on a blast rendition of "Chinatown, My Chinatown." Keely Smith, the band's attractive warbler, is right in there with that Prima standard "Charley, My Boy," and doubles with the maestro on "Enjoy Yourself," with some special amusing Prima lyrics added.

Jimmy Vincent, band's flashy drummer, takes off on a solo flight with Prima spurring him on and calling off the different beats. It's a bit too long, but skin-beater works hard and sustains interest by sheer volume of sound. The band is on the brassy side, and ignores the soft pedal except when Prima wants the lyrics to be heard.

Diablito, who leads the alternating rhumba unit, goes on with some Latin terping and Arnaz-type vocalizing to kick off the revue. He is followed by Danny Marshall and Fronkie, mixed comedy duo. They try to win laughs with a series of impersonations (that are not intended to come off) but both the material and the technique are shop-worn. Joan Terry, an okay terper, offers nice routines.

Gagh.

The Flame, Phoenix

Phoenix, March 10.

Joe De Salvo Orch (5), with Mickey Hunter; no cover, no minimum.

Joe De Salvo has integrated his year-old combo into one of the best bands heard in these parts. Lyle and Jimmy Oreck, operators of the Flame, plushiest nitery in town, did themselves a good turn in transporting the De Salvo aggregation from the Oreck's Duluth, Minn., boite (the Flame) as a magnet for the Phoenix trade. They've been packing 'em in since opening day and shape up as a solid draw.

With the De Salvo sidemen doubling in brass, woodwinds, and rhythm instruments, the combo gives out more like a full band than a five-piece outfit. Instrumental breakdown includes Hammond organ, celesta, piano, accordion, sax, clarinet, drums, violin, and flute. Combo is potent right down the line and runs through Latunes and American standards with equal facility and drive, placing heavy emphasis in the rhumba and samba divisions.

Distaff vocalist Mickey Hunter, a Central America alumna, delivers with authenticity and impact, and is especially potent in numbers of the "El Tumbaito" and "Brazil" genre. De Salvo holds down the male vocal end and turns in a commendable job, giving out in full measure on "Little Augie" and other race tunes.

When caught, band ran the gamut from the sock score of "Oklahoma!" to "Twelfth Street Rag," "Red River Valley," "Brazil," "My Happiness" and "You Are My Sunshine." Solid all the way.

Jona.

Blue Room, N. O.

(HOTEL ROOSEVELT)

New Orleans, March 14.

Skinnay Ennis Orch (15), with Patti Page, Rita & Allen Farrell, Eddie Garr, C. Ray Smith; $2.50 minimum.

Skinnay Ennis and his orch and a quartet of top-drawer acts make up the smartly-packaged bill now being presented in this swank room. Bill is one with appeal for a variety of tastes and hits for hefty returns.

Ennis, playing initial engagement here as maestro, has a large, versatile band that puts plenty of zest in its numbers. Ennis' showmanly touches, singing and bits of business add lustre. Crew starts off with a stirring "Cubana," which spotlights pianist Fred Otis, and warbling of Bill Jacobs. Latter also contributes a laugh-provoking version of "Ballerina."

Topping the acts is lovely Patti Page, a vivacious personality and deep-throated songstress who registers neatly. She captivates them with tunes such as "That Old Feelin'," "When I'm with My Baby," "With My Eyes Wide Open" and others. Called back for numerous encores, she charms additionally with "Money, Marbles and Chalk," in which the customers join in.

Rita and Allen Farrell came here with little fanfare, but clinched a niche for themselves on their initial performance. At the end of the opening stanza the young performers were "in solid." Effectively garbed, the handsome duo tee off with impact in an imaginative and delightful routine. They net plenty of palm-pounding from then on with several effective show pieces, especially an "Old Fashioned Medley," in which dances of the past are reprised.

The laugh department is in the capable hands of the veteran Eddie Garr, who contributes a socko stanza. Losing no time in getting his rib-tickling attack started, Garr offers a succession of gags, imitations of celebrities, a song or two and a pantomimic drunk bit. Latter has tableholders howling. He encores with dramatic bit, "The Refugee," which leaves ringsiders misty-eyed.

C. Ray Smith trots out a flock of fascinating puppets, all of which are deftly manipulated. Both adults and moppets at dinner show liked the act.

Ennis does capable job of emceeing and adds some of his own songs during the dance sessions. Band keeps the floor crowded.

Capacity biz when caught.

Liuz.

Cleve. Booker Sets Acts

Frank Sennes, Cleveland booker who was in New York last week to ogle talent, has set Ted Lewis for the Beverly Hills Country Club, Newport, Ky., May 14. Others set for same spot include the Minsky unit from the Colonial Inn, Hallandale, Fla., for some time in April, and Lowe, Hite and Stanley, for March 24.

Frank Libuse and Arthur Lee Simpkins are heading the current show at that spot.

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 22

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show whether full or split week

Letter in parentheses indicates circuit (FM Fanchon Marco; (I) Independent; (L) Loew; (M) Moss; (P) Paramount; (R) RKO; (S) Stall; (W) Warner; (WR) Walter Reade

NEW YORK CITY
Capitol (L) 25
George Paxton Orc
Meribeth Old
Tony Arden
Artie Dann
Music Hall (I) 23
Earl William
Roy Raymond
Adriana & Charly
T & F Vallett
Lucienne & Ashour
Myrna Galle
Alpheus Koon
Rockettes
Corps de Ballet
Palace (R) 23
Karl & King
Chambers & Blair
Lester Cole & Debs
Herzogs
Ken Whittmer
3 to fill
Paramount (P) 22
King Cole 3
Larry Storch
Johnny Coy
Ray McKinley Orc
Roxy (I) 24
China Doll Rev
Ming & Ling
Lee Mortimer's China Dolls
Long Tack Sam
Toy & Wing
Kanazawa 3
Florence Ahn
Strand (W) 24
Count Basie Orc
Billie Holiday
3 Chocolateers
Will Mastin 3
Alhambra (R) 22
Son & Sonny
3 Riffs
Appletons
Harris & Radcliffe
Morris & North
Valaida Snow
Yacopi Tr
Willy Bryant
Andy Kirk Orc
BALTIMORE
Royal (I) 24
Lucky Millinder Orc
T-Bone Walker
Rastus Murray & Bootsie Swan
Congaroos
Lockjaw Jackson
State (I) 23-25
Mark & Lucille
Nana
George Jones
Alexander & Santos Co
26-29
B & E Coll
Don Mullen
E Lambert Co
Cathalas 3
CAMDEN
Towers (I) 24-25
St Clairs
Palermos Dogs
Frank Keenan
Hank Sieman
3 Rays
CHICAGO
Chicago (P) 24
Ink Spots
Dean Murphy
Lina Romay
Martin Bros
Oriental (I) 24
Margaret O'Brien
Buddy Rogers
Georgie Kay
Artino & Consuelo
Bob Deu
Carl Sands Orc

DAYTONA
Empire (P) 26 Only
Johnny Long Orc
HARTFORD
State (I) 26-27
Lionel Hampton O
Kitty Murray
Curley Hammer
LOS ANGELES
Orpheum (I) 22
Dick & Dinah
Jimmy Ray
Julie Ballew
Bud Hughes & Pal
Olivette Miller
Bredice & Olsen
Bob Hopkins
4 Moroccans
MIAMI
Olympia (P) 22
T & D Peters
Prof Maligny
Bingo the Chimp
Shirley Martin
Rudy Vallee
Clyde Zulch
PHILADELPHIA
Carman (I) 22
Lewis & Van
Wallace & Michel
Barney Grant
Bobby Whaling & Y
POUGHKEEPSIE
Bardavon (P) 23-24
Duffys
Rose Thurston
El Cleve & M
Johnny Morgan
Eric Thorsen
ROCKFORD
Palace (I) 23-25
B & I Shaw
Dave Powell
Movieland Seals
Neal Stanley
Coco, Steve & Eddy
ST LOUIS
Fox (FM) 25
Elton Britt
Frank Marlowe
Cedric & Algy
Peggy Taylor 3
Renard & Arden
Joe Page
Olive White
Leni Lynn
SPRINGFIELD
Court Sq (I) 23-26
Hal Sands Girls
Gonzales Sis
Olive White
Freda Wing
Nora Coomey Co
TOLEDO
Paramount (R) 23-26
Roulettes
D & D Workman
Virginia Lee
Think-Drink Hoffman
Rex Weber
Viera & Monkeys
Alan Carney
Salici Puppets
WASHINGTON
Capitol (L) 23
Ames Bros
Herky Styles
Duke Art Jr
Andrews Twins
YOUNGSTOWN
Palace (R) 27-29
Roulettes
D & D Workman
Virginia Lee
Think-Drink Hoffman
Rex Weber
Viera & Monkeys
Alan Carney
Salici Puppets

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome (I) 21
Oscar Pummie
Patch Novelty
Amazing Chevalier
High School Horse
Kayes' Lions
Liberty Horses
Paddie the Mule
Spuds Co
Ranleighs
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome (M) 21
Cilla's Dogs
Anne Shelton
Les Ritchie & W
Jimmy James Co
Morecambe & Wise
Dorothy Ward
Hurricanes
Eddie Gray
Leslie Sarony
BOSCOMBE
Hippodrome (I) 21
S & M Harrison
Freddie Mirfield Co
Bob Grey
Andre Sis & Sandra
Susan & Pat
M & A Dey
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome (M) 21
Alfred Marks
Paddy O'Neill
Freddie Frinton
Finlay Bros
Chevalier Bros
Bentley Sis
Willie Carlisle
CHATHAM
New (S) 21
Hal Monty
Johnny Denis
Rosemary Andree Co
EDINBURGH
Empire (M) 21
Cheerful Charlie Chester
Ken Morris
Fred Ferrari
Arthur Hayes
Edwina Carol
Len Marten
Grip 4
Mariotti & Wenman
5 Brahms
Gene Anderson
Harry Richards
12 Tiller Girls
FINSBURY PARK
Empire (M) 21
Sandow Sis
Lee Lawrence
3 O'Doyle Bros
Jon Pertwee
Adrienne & Leslie
Max Wall
Sheridan Bros
Wilson Keppel & Betty
C Warren & Jean
GLASGOW
Alhambra (M) 21
John Levant
Peter Haddon
Hannah Watt
Bettina Hayes
Brenda Gay
Empire (M) 21
Jack Beattie 3
Suzette Tarri
Beryl Orde
Erikson
Alexanders
Falcons
Albert Whelan
Billy Cotton Bd
GRIMSBY
Palace (I) 21
Ray Ellington 4
Bartlett & Massey
Les Raynor & Betty
HACKNEY
Empire (S) 21
Frank Randle
Hal Swain
Swing Sis
Rita Shearer
Jon Boden
Mandalay Singers
Kay Sothern
Gus Aubrey
Hal Mack
Dancing Demons
A J Powell
Stan Stafford
Jimmy Clitheroe
A Wazzan Tp
LEEDS
Empire (M) 21
Leo Fuld
Hamilton & Vassi
Al Burnett
Martell Sis
Winifred Atwell
Revel & Fields
Kovacs
George Williams
LEICESTER
Palace (S) 21
Phyllis Dixey Co
Ernest Arnley & Gloria
Billy Russell
2 Playboys
Howard de Courcy
MANCHESTER
Hippodrome (S) 21
C Courtneidge Co
Hal Norman & Ladd
Sandy Lane
Tommy Goffrey
Yale & Diane
Peter Raynor
Curzon 3
NEWCASTLE
Empire (M) 21
Frankie Howerd
Linda & Lana
Lowry & Richardson
Bemand's Pigeons
Charlie Clapham
3 Robertis
Jose Moreno
Jackley & Jee
NORWICH
Hippodrome (I) 21
M & J Mangean
Denny Dennis
Frazer Haze 4
Potter & Carole
Bosio
Hal Blue
Susan Hanel Co
Moretone & Plant
Hal Yass
Clownettes

NOTTINGHAM
Empire (M) 21
Les Valettos
Monte Rey
Frances Duncan
Robb Wilton
Donald B Stuart
Caryll & Mundy
Olsen & Sea Lion
Jack Watson
Manley & Austin
PORTSMOUTH
Royal (M) 21
G H Elliott
Gertie Gitana
Ella Shields
Billy Danvers
Randolph Sutton
SCUNTHORPE
Savoy (I) 21
Gordon & Cloville
Anna Mac
Patricia & Colin
Gwynne Evans 4
8 Sherman Fisher Girls
SHEFFIELD
Empire (M) 21
Jean Sablon
Suma Lamonte
Myrons
MacDonald & Graham
J Lockwood
Hackford & Doyle
Slim Rhyder
Bobbie Kimber
SHEPHERDS BUSH
Empire (S) 21
Reid & Squires
Arnaut Bros
Gene Crowley
Johnson Clark
Alan Clive
3 Hallos
Ryan & Young
Martyn & Cooke
SUNDERLAND
Empire (M) 21
Derek Roy
Nino Realtor
Charles Cole
7 Volants
Sandy Sanford
Rona Ricardo Co
WOLVERHAMPTON
Hippodrome (I) 21
5 Smith Bros
Kizma & Karen
Duo Marno
Tattersall & Terry
Rudy Grahl
Margo Bennett
Joe Black
Rex Roper
WOOD GREEN
Empire (S) 21
Gladys Hay
Desmond & Marks
Musical Derrick & Tony
Malette Co
YORK
Empire (I) 21
Rhodes & Lane
Dorothi Neal
Paul Newington
Avril & Grant
Tommy Dee
Bon Soir Mesdames

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Birdland
B Darnell
Les Young Orc
Miles Davis Orc
Blue Angel
Garland Wilson
Stuart Ross
Eadie & Rack
Mickey Deams
Imogene Coca
H Chittison 3
Portia Nelson
Bop City
Doc Sausage Orc
Ravens
Amos Milburn
Cafe Society
Mervyn Nelson
Thelma Carpenter
Cliff Jackson
Copacabana
Frank Sinatra
Larry Storch
Gordon Gaines
Patricia Adair
Toni Carroll
M Durso Orc
Alvares Orc
Diamond Horseshoe
Walter Dare Wahl
Gloria Leroy
W. C. Handy
Billy Banks
Noble Sissle Orc
Chic Morrison Orc
Rigoletto Bros
Jack Spoons
Frank Evans
Tommy King
Harry Meehan
Billy Banks
Harry Armstrong
El Chico
Rosita Rios
Los Gitanos
Pilarin Tavira
Sarita Herrera
D'Alonso Orc
Havana-Madrid
Trini Reyes
San Juan 3
Gayner & Ross
Clavel & Farrar
Fausto Orc
Pupi Campo Orc
Hotel Ambassador
Jules Lande Orc
Hotel Biltmore
Harold Nagel Orc
Hotel Edison
Henry Jerome Orc
Hotel New Yorker
Tony Pastor Orc
Connie Haines
Adele Castle
Peter Kent Orc
Hotel Pierre
Jimmy Carroll
Talbots
Stanley Melba Orc
Ralph Lane Orc
Ralph Teferteller
Hotel Plaza
Lisa Kirk
Nancy Donovan
Eric Victor
Bob Grant Orc
Mark Monte Orc
Payson Re Orc
Nicolas Matthey
Hotel Roosevelt
Guy Lombardo
Hotel St. Moritz
Roberta Welch
Leo Pleskow
Erwin Kent
Ramoni Orc
Hotel St Regis
Julie Wilson
Laszlo & Pepito
Milt Shaw Orc
Hotel Shelbourne
Monica Boyar

Phil Leeds
Eddy Manson
Marjorie Welles
Paul Villard
Cy Coleman
Hotel Statler
Jimmy Dorsey Orc
Hotel Taft
Lopez Orc
Hotel Warwick
J. Thompson
Airline Trio
Latin Quarter
Will Mahoney
Vikings
Linda Lombard
Francis & Grey
Ernestine Mercer
Landre & Verna
Art Waner Orc
Le Coq Rouge
Oscar Calvet Orc
Jack Towne Orc
Leon & Eddie's
Eddie Davis
Rosette Shaw
Bella Smaro
Johnny Crawford
Macombo
Baer & Rosenbloom
Roy Sedley
Boylan & King
Gordon Andrews
Monte Carlo
Dick Gaspare Orc
La Playa 6
No 1 Fifth Ave
Walling & McHugh
Downey & Fonville
Hazel Webster
Old Knick
Billy Bryant
Paul Killiam
Janie Stevens
Frank Wayne
Charlotte Ray
Bob Gallagher
Al Cooper Orc
Old Roumanian
Sadie Banks
Steve Murray
Gerri Gale
Joanne Florio
Joe LaPorte Orc
D'Aquila Orc
Park Ave
Betty Reilly
Rufe Davis
Glenn Abbott
Penthouse
John Conte
Dorothy Ann
Noreen Ttate
Ruban Bleu
Kirkwood & Goodman
Larry Blake
Estelle Loring
3 Riffs
Ronnie Graham
Julius Monk
Norman Paris 3
Versailles
Kay Thompson
Lee Scott
Buzz Miller
George Martin
Emile Petti Orc
Panchito Orc
Village Barn
Homer & Jethro
Fletcher 3
David Blight
Bobby Myers
Village Vanguard
Weavers
Clarence Williams
Waldorf-Astoria
Dorothy Shay
Eddy Duchin Orc
Mischa Borr Orc

CHICAGO

Blackhawk
Jack Tygett
Janet Campbell
Deon Sherman
Joyce Harley
Jean Stanley
Sammy Shore
Sherman Hayes Orc
Blackstone Hotel
Dunninger
Dick LaSalle Orc
Chez Paree
Tony Martin
Joey Bishop
Betty & Jane Kean
Siccardi & Brenda
Al Wallis
Adorables (12)
Cee Davidson Orc
Chico Bd
Helsings
Ralph Lewis
Chet Roble
Mary F Kincaid
Billy Chandler Orc

Hotel Bismarck
Noble & King
Joe Isbell
Johnny Alladin Orc
H Edgewater Beach
Mr Ballantine
Charles Sheldon
Betty Norman
D Hild Dcrs (11)
George Olsen Orc
Hotel Stevens
Joan Hyldoft
Arnold Shoda
Morgan 3
Douglas Duffy
Harper Flaherty
Bob Fitzgerald
Skating Blvdears
Jack Raffloer
Buddy Rust
Jerry Mapes
Frank Masters Orc
Palmer House
Victor Borge
Gracie Barrie
A & B Lund
M Abbott Dcrs
Eddie O'Neil Orc
Silver Frolics
Nov-Elites (3)
Stone & Shine
Ginger Kinney
Kay Kenton
Bud Prentiss Orc
Don Pedro Bd
Sherman Hotel
"College Inn Story"
Phyllis Gehrig
Don Weismuller
Christine Nelson

Carmen Albino
Norman Fields
Frank Wagner
Ward Garner
Kenneth Remo
Eileen Green
Cliff Norton
Carolyn Gilbert
Les Weinrott
Vera Gahan
Bill Snyder Orc
Vine Gardens
Adeline Neice
Lew Saxon
Adams Bros
Mel Cole Orc
Pancho Orc

Oscar Awards

Continued from page 2

ground"), 76; Arthur Kennedy ("Champion"), 43; John Ireland ("All King's Men"), 15.

Best director: Joseph L. Mankiewicz ("Letter Three Wives"), 117; Robert Rossen ("All King's Men"), 70; Carol Reed ("Fallen Idol"), 67; William Wyler ("Heiress"), 60; William Wellman ("Battleground"), 41.

Best song: "Baby, It's Cold Outside," from "Neptune's Daughter," 206; "My Foolish Heart," from "My Foolish Heart," 57; "Lavendar Blue," from "So Dear to My Heart," 24; "Through a Long and Sleepless Night," from "Come to the Stable," 19; "It's a Great Feeling," from "It's a Great Feeling," 13.

Best screenplay: "Letter to Three Wives," Joseph L. Mankiewicz, 180; "All King's Men," Robert Rossen, 55 "Champion," Carol Foreman, 44; "Fallen Idol," Graham Green, 33; "Bicycle Thief," Caesare Zavattini, 27.

Best original story: "Stratton Story," Douglas Morrow, 164; "Come to Stable," Clarge Boothe Luce, 57; "Sands of Iwo Jima," Harry Brown, 40; "White Heat," Virginia Kellogg, 38; "Happens Every Spring," Shirley W. Smith, Valentine Davies, 29.

Voters seemed less swayed by sentiment than heretofore although many said Susan Hayward, John Wayne, Gregory Peck and Ethel Waters and others should win because they hadn't won before. That this is a strong influence in balloting is indicated by fact that recent award-winners, Loretta Young and Celeste Holm, are at the botton of respective categories. Some voters were disguested at placing Miss Holm and Ralph Richardson in supporting categories, contending they belong in the top classification since Miss Holm co-starred with Miss Young in "Stable" and Richardson shared billing with Miss DeHaviland in "Heiress." Studios, however, were responsible in these cases through billing decisions.

COMPO's Confab

Continued from page 5

COMPO as approved by the constituent groups at the December meeting in Washington. TOA wants its activities and budget held to a minimum.

Some of the industry's enthusiasm has worn off with the passage of time since the idea for COMPO was originally presented in Chicago last August. TOA's restrictive approval has also cooled the ardor of some of the other groups for the plan.

Feeling is that COMPO should have been operative at the moment, when it is sorely needed as a result of attacks on the industry by Senator Edwin C. Johnson.

Organizing session on COMPO was originally to have been held in early March in Hollywood or Washington. Date hinged on how soon approvals were in from member-organizations. Place was to have been decided later from the standpoint of convenience and public relations values.

RKO Trustees

Continued from page 5

Trustee is to use his best efforts to end the joint holdings through sale, division of theatres or dissolution of the chains. RKO, for its part, may sell the certificates to any interest other than Warner Bros., Metro, Paramount or 20th-Fox. It may also acquire outside stock interests in the circuits subject to the terms of its consent decree.

Presentation of the plan follows fruitless efforts of RKO to unload its Metropolitan holdings, estimated to be worth $1,000,000. Company is a 20% stockholder with United Artists circuit and Skouras chain as majority interests. RKO has been unable to reach a deal with these pards despite protracted talks.

New Acts

LEONARDO & ANITA
Ventriloquists
12 Mins.; Full
Colonial, Albany

Venezuelans, who, in Spanish, have played vaudeville, nightclubs, radio and concert on the American and European continents, now speak English. Their turn carries novelty and entertainment, which should make it a favorite with northern audiences when Leonardo more completely masters the Yanqui language and its nuances of timing and emphasis. The laughs will be louder when he sharpens the delivery in spots.

Couple, who sculpt and paint their own figures, use eight or nine for the present act, but have done more. Anita engages in brief crossfire with "Pancho" and then is decorative until the fullstage finale, when she assists with the voice throwing for five dummies. They pop up from a counter-cabinet, the manipulation being highly skilled and the illusion very vivid. One character, chanting "Tea For Two," is most amusing.

Leonardo also presents a hiccoughing drunk and a bubblegum chewing girl, both nicely projected. Pancho, who carries on a feud with a mythical male patron, tops his "performance" by smoking. Leonardo comes down into one to talk and sing from a hat, alternately covered and uncovered with sheet music. Dressed in evening clothes, he possesses a poised, gracious stage personality and good lip control. Wife is attired in a tight-fitting tearose gown. Act has several Kinsey-tinged quips. Duo took three bows in No. 3 slot.

Jaco.

THE BUNK HOUSE BOYS
Instrumental Trio
40 Mins.
The Spigot, Philly

The Bunk House Boys, breaking in a new combo at the Spigot Bar, are a trio specializing in western and hillbilly fare, with vintage ballads and even a rhumba or so if there's a call for them. The trio includes Pee Wee Miller, bass; Roy Brannen, guitar, and Rusty Keefer, banjo.

The Boys were featured for several years on "Hayloft Hoedown," a network barn-dance show which went out over ABC from the web's local outlet WFIL. The act appears in chaps, neckerchiefs and sombreros, and offers a wide assortment of stuff, opening with "Rag Mop" and winding up with "Jack, Jack, Jack." They were on 50 minutes at the show caught.

Brannen handles most of the vocals, with the other boys backing him up, although Miller is featured for the comedy bits. Keefer's electrically-hypoed banjo carries the melody, the instrument having a wide range running almost from mandolin to organ effects. While no one stands out individually, the Bunk House Trio is effective as a unit and lays down a danceable beat as well as vocal and rhythm entertainment. Gagh.

HARVEY GRANT
Songs
18 Mins.
Five O'Clock Club, Miami Beach

Here's a goodlooking songster, young but adept at his trade, who left the biz two seasons ago and is making a return with this engagement.

The lad possesses all the qualities necessary to bring him to top ranks. At the moment there is a bit of nervousness, evident though only in his usage of hands. That particular fault should quickly be remedied with more work. As is, delivery is easy and fluid. Vocally, he has a full-ranging pair of pipes that embrace such pops as "You're Breaking My Heart," "Chattanoogie Shoe Shine" or "Lucky 'Ol Sun" for full effect. Also, shows adeptness at shading.

Appearance and vocal equipment mark him solid bet for the smarter cafes and presentation houses. Lary.

DOROTHY ANN
Songs
16 Mins.
Penthouse Club, N. Y.

Dorothy Ann is a surprise click in this intimate spot. She sings stock blues tunes, but has a neat feel for the lyric and enough voice with which to win the customers.

Miss Ann has a self-effacing personality, failing to resort to any of the mannerisms of the bigger-name personalities. But she sings with a bluesy style that sort of creeps upon you by her third or fourth number, and by the time she's ready to walk off, the customers are reluctant to let her go.

Strictly for the intimate spots, of course—but she can play any of them. Kahn.

JOHN CONTE
Songs
14 Mins.
Penthouse Club, N. Y.

John Conte, of Broadway musicomedy, is an interesting singing personality with a generally pleasing voice and pleasant looks. He's especially clicko for the distaff side. However, here he has no particular act beyond singing musicomedy hits with stock arrangements.

Conte, currently featured on Broadway in "Arms and the Girl" for the Theatre Guild, should get a more intime type of routine for a small-capacity spot such as the Penthouse Club, since the sing-out style that he uses in musicomedy is not appropriate. Nor are the arms-wide gestures that he employs for the show-type tunes. He goes through the gamut of songs, including Rodgers-Hart, Rodgers-Hammerstein, Cole Porter and the like.

While he has the manner, personality and enough singing voice to click in the cafes, what is one of the notable items about Conte is that he doesn't try to woo the femmes with the stock pashy type of crooning attempted by too many song stylists. It's a relief that he doesn't. Kahn.

FOUR D'LOVELIES
Songs
8 Mins.; One
Palace, N. Y.

The D'Lovelies, femme singing quartet, are proficient chirpers, showing good harmonic quality and okay arrangements. They're still to project sufficiently for the big-time.

They would do well to add some distinctive touches, either in the character of their songs or in some personality bits. There's little excitement in their tune selection. Some major overhauling and added stage presence would aid considerably since they have an essentially good vocal foundation.

Jose.

ESTELLE LORING
Songs
10 Mins.
Le Ruban Bleu, N. Y.

Announced as a "video vedette" by emcee Julius Monk, Estelle Loring is from the Radio City belt via "Stop the Music." A nice looking gal, she sings pops and standards like "She Didn't Say Yes," "When the Wind Was Green," "Nice to Have Man Around House" and "Lorelei" in okay albeit undistinguished style.

For niteries she needs more zing and a more definite attack in her delineations. Otherwise she may as well telephone her act over.

Abel.

BRICK BROS. & GLORIA
Trampoline
7 Mins.; Full
Palace, N. Y.

Brick Bros. and Gloria are good for vaude and video providing the spots have the necessary height. Trampoline team shows a good assortment of tricks and comedy balance. The girl also contributes to the good all-around effect by active participation on the springs.

There are a few rough edges which can be ironed out with further playing time. Jose.

TU-TONES
Instrumental, comedy
8 Mins.; One
Palace, N. Y.

Tu-Tones, two accordionists who sing, won't rise above family time with this act. Their work at the belly-Baldwins *isn't spectacular, the major fault being that, except for volume, it might as well be one instrument playing.

The tall boy in the act does some falsetto comedy singing in a femme wig. In its present state, it's not for the major outlets. Jose.

HARRY RODCAY
Yodeler
7 Mins.
Swiss Chalet, Chi

Young yodeler should go as far as any yodeling act can. Harry Rodcay has a pleasant voice with just a hint of a western twang. Despite obvious nervousness and lack of poise, he should develop.

While nitery opportunities are limited, boy seems a natural for occasional television. Chan.

NEW ICER FOR DALLAS

Dallas, March 21.

"Touring the Tropics" is the title of Dorothy Franey's new ice show, due to open at the Century Room of the Adolphus Hotel on April 6.

Joyce Brownell will join the skating group.

Heiman Holds Firm on D.C. National; Won't Indicate Switching to Legit

Prospects of opening a second legit theatre in Washington in the near future apparently rest with Marcus Heiman. With the Gayety now operating on a non-discrimination basis for stock productions and touring shows, Heiman is reportedly refusing to give any indication of his intentions regarding the National, which he has on a long-term lease. Pending clarification of the National's status, there is a question of leasing the Strand and spending the money required for suitable renovations.

Plans are in abeyance for members of the Committee of Theatrical Producers, acting independently, to underwrite the lease and renovation of the Strand and arranging to book their shows there, also on a racial-equality basis. Headed by Gilbert Miller, members had informally pledged approximately $65,000 for such an investment. However, the possibility that, after commitments had been made for the Strand, the National might revert to legit scared off the CTP members.

A factor in the situation is the realization by CTP members that, if the National is reopened for legit, it will presumably be booked by the United Booking Office, of which Heiman is president. That would make it tough to get attractions for the Strand, even though CTP members might favor the house for their own productions.

The American National Theatre & Academy, which has been working to arouse local public support for a legit house in Washington ever since the National switched to a film policy rather than bow to an Actors Equity edict against audience discrimination based on racial grounds, has gone ahead and negotiated a lease for the Strand, even though the CTP withdrew its promised support. However, the ANTA board voted Monday (20) to take no further action on the mat-

(Continued on page 60)

Philly Brokers Fight State Theatre Ticket Resale Regulations

Philadelphia, March 21.

Ticket brokers here have ganged up in a court action to challenge the State of Pennsylvania's right to regulate the profit on theatre tickets offered for resale.

C. Brewster Rhoads, counsel for the brokers, told Judge L. Stauffer Oliver that the law which prohibits a profit of more than $1 was unconstitutional. Assistant City Solicitor Abraham Wernick told the court he believed the act is legal because it was passed to "prevent an evil in the ticket brokerage industry."

The suit has been brought by Louis Brody, trading as Philadelphia Ticket office, and Charles Brunetti, trading as Capital Theatre Office. Rhoads said, however, the action was taken on behalf of all the brokers in the city. Rhoads contended the act was a violation of both Federal and State constitutions since it restricts trade in a business "not affected with the public interest."

According to Wernick, the basic question is whether the State can control "an industry when there is an evil in that industry and where the public is being gouged." Judge Oliver took the case under advisement with the comment: "Some people feel that when tickets are being sold at outrageous prices, it certainly would be a matter of public interest."

Clevelander's 1st Play In Home Town Debut

Cleveland, March 21.

"Long Moment," first play written by Jo Sinclair, Cleveland novelist, is being produced by Frederic McConnell at the Cleveland Play House in early April.

Miss Sinclair, whose real name is Ruth Seid, won the 1946 Harpers prize of $10,000 for her novel, "Wasteland." Whittlesey House will publish another novel, as yet untitled, in the autumn.

Her first stage work is said to be a topical drama with a Cleveland background.

Stevens Co-Producer On 'Pan'; Brings in 30G

Roger Stevens, producer of "12th Night" on Broadway last fall, will be co-presenter with Peter Lawrence of the forthcoming revival of "Peter Pan," in which Jean Arthur and Boris Karloff will costar. Show will have special background music composed by Leonard Bernstein.

Although he may not take program billing as co-producer of the Barrie play, Stevens brought in the final $30,000 of the $100,000 venture, and reportedly has equal say on production matters. Besides presenting "12th Night" earlier this season, he has been associated in the summer theatre at Ann Arbor for the last few seasons and is active in theatrical real estate.

Wm. Fields Quits ATPAM Group In Policy Tussle

Because of differences over policy, William Fields has resigned from the committee of the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers to work out a national public relations program for the legitimate theatre. The committee, which was originally appointed to negotiate with the League of N. Y. Theatres on the proposition, includes Wolfe Kaufman, chairman, and Leo Freedman, Ben Boyar, Robert Milford, Helen Hoerle and Carlton Miles.

Fields' reason for quitting the group was his feeling that it is not qualified for the assignment of working out a comprehensive national public relations plan. After the committee had fulfilled its original function of conferring with the League and getting the latter's authorization for the ATPAM to work out a plan, Fields argued that it should resign, so a better qualified group might be formed to carry out the actual drafting of a proposed program.

According to Fields, neither he nor the other members of the committee are the best ones available for the latter task. However, his suggestion was voted down by the committee and by a meeting of the pressagent chapter of the union.

The ATPAM program, which the union has agreed to submit without remuneration, is intended to supersede the plan outlined in the Edward L. Bernays report of last fall, which reportedly cost the League about $6,000. Besides criticizing the Bernays report, the ATPAM is strongly opposed to hiring an outside public relations firm to study the situation when the union presumably "has members better qualified for the assignment." As a consequence, ATPAM is now in a position of having to come up with a genuinely constructive and far-reaching program.

Mary Morris to Star In London 'Firewood'

"Firewood," drama by Nicholas Bela, will be presented March 28 at the Q theatre, London, by Jack De Leon, with Mary Morris in the leading part. Under the title "No Road Home," the play was optioned by Margaret Webster in 1945, but she dropped it when the rewriting didn't satisfy her.

Another of the same author's plays, "The Zenger Case," won a National Theatre Conference prize last year.

Haring's Option

"Top Secret," comedy by newsreel scripter Carl Leo, has been optioned by Forrest C. Haring for Broadway presentation next fall. It's a three-character single-setter.

Play may be tried out by Haring this summer at his strawhat at East Hampton, L. I.

Webster Troupe for Pitt With Shakespeare Rep.

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Francis Mayville, who heads International Repertory Co here, is bringing Margaret Webster's Shakespearean troupe to Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Music Hall for a two-night stand next month.

"Julius Caesar" is to be presented April 17, and "Taming of the Shrew" the 18th. Following night, troupe will do "Caesar" at Cathedral Auditorium in New Castle, Pa., also under Mayville's management. He introduced the Webster organization to this city last season.

Shuberts Victors In Chi Trust Suit

Chicago, March 21.

Triple damage suit for $1,650,000 brought by Jules Pfeiffer and Danny Goldberg against the Shuberts and the United Booking Office was dismissed by Judge Philip Sullivan today (Tues.) in Chicago Federal district court. The court ruled that it lacks jurisdiction, as all of the defendants named in the action do not "transact business" in Illinois. Defendants include Select Theatres Operators, Inc., and Select Theatres Corp., both Shubert-owned, and the UBO, in which the Shuberts are half-owners.

Judge Sullivan ruled that although UBO acted as booking agent for Select Lake City Theatre Operating Co., an Illinois corporation, it had no power to bind or contract for the defendant outfit and that contracts for shows had to be signed by New York officers of the Lake City firm, which is a subsid of Select Theatres. Elias Weinstock, who books in New York for Chi Theatres, signs contracts and otherwise works with Sam Gerson, Chicago manager of the company.

The correspondence between Weinstock and Gerson does not indicate that UBO "managed" Select Lake City, according to the jurist, who noted that UBO books many houses besides those of Select Theatres. Testimony, according to the records, indicates that Weinstock has no power to make decisions for Gerson or Lake City officers. When Weinstock seems to be instructing Gerson he is merely passing along instructions from Select Lake City officials in New York, it was ruled.

Sullivan's opinion stated that Select Theatres is not doing business in Illinois and is not licensed to do so. Although Select Theatres owns all the stock of the Lake City organization, the separation is a real one, the court said, both in fact and legal theory. Lake City performs no service for its parent firm, keeps separate books and files its own taxes and corporate returns.

In respect to the plaintiffs' contention that letters written by Messrs. Whittaker, Mallam and Rosenfeld on Select Theatres stationery prove that they are the real operators of the Chicago houses, the judge declared that although the men did minor business with Select Lake City they have no authority to contract for the latter. Sullivan noted that John T. Waters, treasurer of Lake City, wrote letters to Gerson on stationery of Select Operators Co., but said that the latter concern didn't do business in this state.

The jurist also observed that although Waters is an officer of both companies, correspondence on such matters on different stationery was not "transacting business." Such

(Continued on page 60)

OLSEN-JOHNSON PREP REVUE ON THE COAST

Hollywood, March 21.

Stanley Seiden, Olsen and Johnson rep, planed in for huddles with the William Morris Agency and IATSE on preparations for the next O.-J. show, "Tsk Tsk Tsk Paree," slated to open late next month at the Biltmore here.

Show will put comics on a Los Angeles stage for the first time in 28 years. It's a prelude to a legiter they hope to open on Broadway in September and tagged "Olsen and Johnson in the original Folies Bergere," which will be brought intact from Paris.

Equity Sifts Actors' Beefs That Ducat Irregularities Forced 'Dance' Closing

Request by Actors Equity for an investigation of alleged ticket irregularities in connection with the recent Broadway engagement of "Dance Me a Song" has precipitated a hassle with the League of N. Y. Theatres. Charges that prospective patrons were informed that the revue was sold out when there were actually many available seats are understood to have brought an irate reply from Lee Shubert, owner of the Royale theatre, which housed the show.

A number of members of the cast of the Dwight Deere Wiman production wrote letters of protest to Equity about the matter. They claimed that they or their friends were unable to buy seats at the boxoffice and that phone inquiries were answered with the statement that the house was sold out. In reality, it is said, there was slim attendance at the performances involved.

The matter was referred by Equity to the League, which is partnered with the union in the ticket code covering Broadway theatres. James F. Reilly, executive director of the League, reportedly submitted the matter to the late Brock Pemberton, League president, who promised an investigation. However, Pemberton died before the hearing could be held.

Meanwhile, Reilly is said to have written to Shubert, outlining the situation and asking him to attend a meeting on the matter. Shubert reportedly replied that he had "never been so insulted," adding that kids from the chorus were not qualified to make such accusations. He and Wiman concurred in the denial, he said, and would "have nothing to do with" any investigation of the subject.

Since Pemberton's death, Paul Dullzell and Alfred Harding, Equity's representatives on the ticket code committee, have asked that someone be appointed to take the late producer's place in heading an investigation. They have also requested that the entire League board of governors be in-

(Continued on page 60)

Savo's 1-Man Show In Strawhat 'Concerts'

Jimmy Savo will do his one-man show, "Mum's the Word," for a series of strawhat dates this summer. It will be done concert style, with a femme vocalist and instrumental trio completing the bill. Besides the regular program every evening, the comedian will present a special Saturday matinee for kids. He'll open the season in mid-June at the Ivoryton (Conn.) playhouse, with subsequent bookings being set.

Comedian tried the idea over a weekend at Woodstock, N. Y., three years ago.

Strawhats Seen Resisting 'Born,' 'Harvey' Terms

Demands for increased royalties for the stock rights on "Harvey" and "Born Yesterday" will probably be resisted by strawhat managers. Royalty of 12½%, with a guarantee of $800 or so, will be asked for "Harvey." Somewhat similar rates, subject to the size of the theatre, will be sought for "Born Yesterday."

Several cowbarn operators said yesterday (Tues.) they would not consider such high royalties for the two recent Broadway comedy hits. Arguing that there isn't enough operating margin in most strawhats to cover a larger slice for the author, they said they would decline to book either one rather than try to absorb the demanded increase. It might establish a costly precedent to pay the upped royalty, they added.

When "Born Yesterday" was presented last year by Anne Lee and Richard Charlton at their winter stock in Phoenix, they were able to pay a flat royalty of $1,500, since they had William Bendix signed as star at a nominal salary. Somewhat similar setup applied when the Garson Kanin comedy played a pre-release engagement recently at East Hartford, Conn.

Although "Harvey" has not yet been actually released for stock, it will probably be available in a few weeks, when the current edition of the comedy, starring James Dunn, ends its tour. The Mary Coyle Chase play is being handled by the author's agent, Brandt & Brandt. "Born Yesterday" is being handled by Ben Boyar, manager for Max Gordon, who produced it originally on Broadway.

Minimum stock royalties recommended by the Dramatists Guild for most recent plays are 4% for theatres averaging up to $9,000 gross, 5% for spots averaging over $9,000 and up to $15,000, and 6% for spots averaging over $15,000. However, in practice, the above royalty rate is generally figured on the actual gross for each week, rather than on a seasonal average.

Frances Bavier Set For Aussie 'Harvey'

Frances Bavier will play the femme lead in the Australian production of "Harvey," which J. C. Williamson Theatres will present May 27 at the Comedy, Melbourne. Also going from Broadway to appear in the same company is Warren Harr. Both have been set by Dorothy Stewart, Williamson representative in New York.

"Streetcar Named Desire," currently playing Melbourne with U. S. leads, will play major cities in Australia under Williamson sponsorship.

N.Y. State Theatre Out

Albany, March 21.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee killed the Shupler bill, which sought a state theatre for New York City, under jurisdiction of the State Education Dept.

Appropriation asked for was $1,500,000.

'Menagerie' Sock Finale Of Season at Phoenix; Production May Tour

Phoenix, March 21.

Sombrero Playhouse here closed the curtain Sunday (19) on 10-week run of winter legit, winding up season with turnaway biz on "The Glass Menagerie," starring Robert Walker, Joanne Dru, John Ireland and Margaret Wycherly.

Local success of Tennessee Williams play has keyed plans of co-producers Ann Lee and Dick Charlton to hit the road with production in April, although definite commitments have not been made as yet. Brief road tour would include San Francisco, Houston, and perhaps one or two other cities, but green light on venture hinges on availability of film stars to make the junket.

Miss Lee and Charlton will open a Coast office next month in the Hollywood Athletic Club, from which point they'll line up talent for next year's Sombrero productions and for coming strawhat season at Santa Fe, where Miss Lee operates El Teatro.

Already set for the summer stand are "Petticoat Fever," with John Carroll, and "The Glass Menagerie," with Una Merkel. Nine-week season at El Teatro is scheduled to get under way July 1.

'BLONDES' PAYOFF PROBABLE BY MAY

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," for which it required frenzied efforts to obtain backing, will probably have earned back its $200,000 investment by mid-May. At its uninterrupted capacity pace of over $48,200, the Herman Levin-Oliver Smith presentation is netting approximately/$9,000. It breaks even at around $31,000.

Show is at the Ziegfeld, N. Y.

Joshua Logan Enterprises, Inc., chartered to conduct a business in theatrical productions and radio broadcasting, with offices in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value.

5-Day Rehearsal Plus Pay Boost Part of New Strawhat Regulations

Two principal changes in Actors Equity's new regulations covering summer stock involve an increase in rehearsal pay and a rule requiring players to be available for at least five days' rehearsal for each strawhat guest appearance. Other revisions stipulate that touring package shows must be covered by a single contract for the whole summer, and that the tryout rather than the regular stock terms apply.

Rehearsal pay will be boosted from $20 to $30 a week, in line with figures showing that living costs at most strawhat stands average about the latter amount. The increase is expected to provoke protests from strawhat operators, who were aware that such a move was in the works. They argue that with the shrinking margin of profit in summer stock operation in the last few seasons, the upped rehearsal rate will be a further limitation on strawhat activity.

The rule providing that actors be available for five days of rehearsals for each engagement is aimed specifically at guest stars, and is believed to have the backing of most barnyard managers. Latter, as well as resident actors and strawhat audiences, have been increasingly critical in recent seasons because of inadequately rehearsed summer theatre productions. Complaint has been that stars, with engagements booked solidly through the summer, would generally arrive at each spot the Sunday before opening, allowing only a day for rehearsal with the resident troupe. Sloppy performances have frequently resulted.

Managers, faced with the alternative of allowing the practice or doing without stars, have generally not attempted to enforce the contractual clause calling for a week's rehearsal by the star. Apparently no single strawhatter cared to make an issue of the matter. However, with Equity requiring the full rehearsal period as part of its regular stock rules, stars will have to conform, and all operators will thus be on an equal basis.

Under the new setup, stars will be able to take only alternate-week bookings, having to be available for rehearsals the open weeks. Some managers reportedly fear that the new ruling will result in demands for higher fees and percentages, since stars will be limited to only half the old number of engagements. It's figured that one effect of the new requirement may be an increase in the number of package shows, since they involve a complete company and thus do not require rehearsals by the star for each engagement.

New rule calling for a single contract for the entire tour of a package show is designed to simplify the enforcement of Equity's regulations. Under the old setup, each booking for a package show involved a separate contract with a local management, so it required continued checking by the Equity staff and numerous difficulties to police conditions.

Under the new arrangement, a single management (most likely one of the larger talent agents, or possibly the star himself) will have to sign a contract covering the entire tour. This management will be responsible for the observance of Equity conditions, and will sign individual contracts with local operators for each engagement.

Package shows will henceforth be classified as tryout productions, for the purposes of summer stock operation. That will involve higher minimum salaries, but will make possible cuts and other modifications in case a show is operating at a loss. It's expected that the revisions covering package shows may arouse opposition from agents and possibly a few stars.

But most strawhat managements are believed to be unconcerned, as they're inclined to shun package show bookings. Latter involve added cost because of the necessity of paying salaries for idle resident actors, and are also regarded as tending to lower the prestige and morale of the resident troupe.

Although some of the leading strawhat managers were consulted in advance by the Equity stock committee, their approval was not sought by the union. The Equity council merely acted upon the recommendations of its stock committee in adopting the new regulations, which will be binding on all Equity-bonded spots.

Eye O'Casey's 'Shadow' For Coast Tour, B'way

Hollywood, March 21.

West coast production of Sean O'Casey's "The Shadow of a Gunman," produced by Mitchell Lewis and directed by Clancy Cooper at the Masquers theatre, was such a pronounced success that pair decided to play it up and down the Coast and then take it to Broadway.

Hitch so far is that Manhattan agent of O'Casey demands $500 advance, 10% of the gross and final say on whether the Hollywood cast is okay, in his opinion, for Broadway. No percentage of the picture rights would go with the production either. Coast cast included Fred Clark, Francis McDonald, Peggy Webber, Raymond Roe, Marjorie Bennett, Frank Cady, Doris Kemper, Tom Dillon and Gil Herman as well as Lewis and Cooper.

'Touch,' 'Break' Close in the Red

Closings Saturday night (18) were "Touch and Go," at the Broadway, N. Y., and "All You Need Is One Good Break," at the Mansfield, N. Y. The Theatre Guild's touring "Silver Whistle," starring Lloyd Nolan, also shuttered in Philadelphia, but it is being taken over by Russell Lewis & Howard Young, who will reopen it March 31 at the Lobero, Santa Barbara, for a Coast tour.

"Touch," revue by Jean and Walter Kerr, with music by Jay Gorney, was presented by George Abbott last Oct. 13 at the Broadhurst, N. Y. It received mixed notices, but played to hefty grosses for a time, with numerous theatre parties an apparent factor. Business sagged during the pre-Christmas slump, however, and failed to recover. A recent move to the larger-capacity Broadway, at a reduced b.o. scale, didn't help.

Production was financed at $100,000, with Abbott himself putting up at least half ($21,000 of it under his own name). Show has reportedly repaid $55,000 and has additional assets of approximately $30,000 in cash (Abbott is one of the producers not required to post an Equity Bond).

"Break," a melodrama by Arnold Manoff, was presented Feb. 9 by Monte Proser and Joseph Kipness, in association with Jack Small. It received brutal notices and closed Feb. 11. The play, originally done on the Coast as a one-acter, was produced here for around $85,000, or about $10,000 over the budget.

After the closing, a group headed by adman Milton Blackstone raised about $20,000 additional financing, took over the show and reopened it, with a simplified physical production and everyone concerned on reduced salary and royalties. Despite an intensive ad campaign, the play failed to catch on, and is figured to have involved an aggregate loss of approximately $95,000.

Some of the investment may be recouped if plans go through to present a tabloid version in film houses, along the lines of the recent bookings of "Respectful Prostitute" and "Ladies Night" in Brandt theatres in New York. Phil Carter, of the cast, is making a condensation of the script. There's also, reportedly, some interest in the film rights to the play.

"Silver Whistle," which made a substantial profit on Broadway last season with Jose Ferrer starred, had a spotty record for the Guild this season. Sent out again at a cost of around $16,000, it had two passable weeks in Philadelphia, but failed to approach its approximate $15,000 operating cost in its other stands, and is figured to have had a deficit of more than $10,000. Deal for Lewis & Young to take over the production reportedly calls for a straight percentage of the gross, without a down payment or guarantee.

Legit Bits

Paulette Goddard is being considered by Aldrich & Myers to co-star with Cedric Hardwicke in "Caesar and Cleopatra" on tour next season. She would succeed Lilli Palmer, who quits the part when the Shaw revival closes June 3 for the summer. Casting of Miss Goddard as Cleopatra would mean the production would go on the road in the fall without a Broadway reopening and tuneup, as the film star is unwilling to appear on the New York stage. Miss Palmer, incidentally, is set to star next fall in Irene M. Selznick's production of John van Druten's "Bell, Book and Candle," under the author's direction . . . Warren Munsell, former business manager of the Theatre Guild, is in charge of the Convention Theatre Ticket Service opened Monday (20) in New York under the joint sponsorship of the Committee of Theatrical Producers and the League of N. Y. Theatres.

Vera Bryner sings the leading role of Magda Sorel on Monday evening and Wednesday matinees of "The Consul." The part is sung regularly by Patricia Neway . . . Cavada Humprey, who regularly plays a minor part in the Aldrich & Myers production of "Devil's Disciple," takes over the role of Mrs. Dudgeon, Maurice Evan's mother, tomorrow night (Thurs.) and continues through Saturday night (25), subbing for Hilda Vaughn, who is on leave to appear in The Studio Production edition of Frederico Garcia Lorca's "The House of Bernarda Alba," at the Weidman studio, N. Y. . . . Hume Cronyn, stager of "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," sailed Saturday (18) for a two-week vacation in Nassau, before returning to the Coast. He has no immediate legit or film plans . . Mary Martin plays her 400th performance tonight (Wed.) in "South Pacific," never having been out of the cast.

Martin Ritt has succeeded Leonora Corbett as director of the Don Medford-James Colligan production of "The Cry of the Peacock" . . Kermit Bloomgarden has taken an option on Henry Misrock's novel, "God Had Seven Days," which the author is dramatizing. It was originally written as a play, but Misrock adapted it into novel form when there were no takers of the legit script (incidentally, it was never submitted to Bloomgarden in its original form). Misrock turned down a Paramount offer of $20,000, plus a percentage of the book royalties, for the film rights . . . Coast producers Lewis & Young have taken over the Theatre Guild's touring of "Silver Whistle" production, starring Lloyd Nolan.

The fourth annual presentation of the Antoinette Perry Awards will be held April 9 at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, N. Y., by the American Theatre Wing . . Pamela Gordon, actress-daughter of Gertrude Lawrence, planning a solo exhibition of her paintings . . John Chapman, critic of the N. Y. Daily News, last week paid the American National Theatre & Academy the listed price of $200 for his reviewer's seat for the last "ANTA Album." All the critics' tix had been given free . . Because he has been assigned to two upcoming pictures at RKO, producer John Houseman has had to withdraw as director-producer of a Coast edition of the "ANTA Album" for this spring . . Peter Cookson Productions will be associated with H. M. Tennent (Hugh Beaumont) in the London edition of "The Innocents" this spring, with Peter Glenville repeating his staging assignment.

Joshua Logan's royalty as stager of "South Pacific" is 2½% of the gross, not 3% as reported last week. At the musical's consistent gross of $50,600, that gives him a return of $1,265 per week for the directorial assignment, plus his share of the profits, amounting to about $1,111 a week . . Rouben Mamoulian, who directed "Lost in the Stars" and co-authored and directed "Arms and the Girl," will stage "Huckleberry Finn," which Maxwell Anderson and Kurt Weill are readying for presentation by the Playwrights' Co. next season . . . Backers of "Member of the Wedding" last week received the $45,000 balance on their $75,000 investment. The show also has about $20,000 in cash reserve and bonds, and has an advance sale of more than $120,000.

Drama Lab, off-Broadway operation, will present August Strindberg's "Comrades" at the Nola Studio, N. Y., beginning March 29 . . John Becker will direct "Dreamboat," musical version of Victor Wolfson's drama "Excursion," scheduled for production by the Princeton Community Players at the McCarter theatre, Princeton, N. J., for two performances, March 31 and April 1 . . . David Lipsky and Philip Bloom, head of National Publicity Associates, N. Y., drumbeating outfit, have made a deal with King Kennedy and Associates, coast flackery, to represent each other's clients on their respective coasts.

Doreen Wilson goes to Australia to star in "Song of Norway," opening in July, for J. C. Williamson Theatres. Robert Bernard leaves tomorrow (Thurs.) for the Coast on his way to replace Hal Gary in the Australian company of "Oklahoma," also under Williamson management . . . Lewis Funke, drama editor of the N. Y. Times, back from Catskills vacation . . . the Richard Aldriches (Gertrude Lawrence) spending a week at Dennis, Mass., where they regularly summer . . Kaye Ballard set for one of the leads in Bernard Delfont's forthcoming London production of "Touch and Go" . . . Milton Baron will continue as manager and Joe Flynn will have the pressagent assignment when "Miss Liberty" goes on tour . . Anthony Nelle set as choreographer for St. Louis Municipal Opera Co. which tees off June 6 with "Brigadoon." He formerly held similar post with Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera Co.

Mory Efron is company manager, Maurice Turet pressagent and Joe Leon stage manager of the Irving Kaye Davis production of Elsa Shelley's "With a Silk Thread" . . . Richard Skinner, company manager of "Devil's Disciple," goes to Washington over the weekend to start preparations for the summer at his Olney (Md.) strawhat . . . Lyricist Sammy Cahn arrived east to huddle with librettist Dick Flourney on their proposed "Casey Jones" musical . . . Composer Kurt Weill in Flower Hospital, N. Y., after a heart attack last Sunday (19) . . . Leslie Banks will probably take a month's vacation from "Lost in the Stars" this summer to return to London.

Producer Gilbert Miller due back this week from Nassau . . . Henry Stephenson taking a four-week leave from Katharine Cornell's touring "That Lady" because of illness . . . Director-producer Margaret Webster returns from Florida vacation to join her Shakespeare repertory troupe and make before-curtain speeches during the Indianapolis engagement April 7-8. Anthony Buttitta has interrupted work on a novel to pressagent the company's one-week Detroit stand . . . Sylvia Siegler due back from Miami Beach next week to begin preparations for the Broadway production of Benjamin Britten's London hit, "Let's Make An Opera," next fall

Inside Stuff—Legit

Over a recent period of six weeks, during which 16 shows opened on Broadway, the critics of the eight New York dailies used the first-person pronoun a total of 302 times. John Chapman, of the News, topped the list with 98. Robert Garland, of the Journal-American, was next with 76, followed by Richard Watts, Jr., of the Post, with 64. Robert Coleman, of the Mirror, used journalistic plural pronoun 54 times. William Hawkins, of the World-Telegram, used the singular pronoun eight times.

Brooks Atkinson, of the Times, and Howard Barnes, of the Herald Tribune, used an indirect first-person once each. In the former's case, he qualified a statement "in the opinion of one reluctantly churlish theatregoer." In the latter's, he used the words "one suspects that" to preface an opinion. Arthur Pollock, of the Compass, failed to use any first-person pronoun or phrase in any review during the six-week period.

Matter of the relative frequency of the critics' use of the personal pronoun arose recently during a discussion among several Broadway producers. Upshot was that reviews for the 16 recent shows were checked.

"The Consul, Gian-Carlo Menotti opera which opened Wednesday night (15) at the Ethel Barrymore, N. Y., is the second show of the Broadway season to get solid rave reviews. Only other production to get all favorable boxoffice notices was "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which got enthusiastic nods from all the critics except Richard Watts, Jr., of the Post, who panned it but indicated it would pay off.

Three other shows this season each received all but one favorable notice. They were "I Know My Love" (panned by Brooks Atkinson of the Times), "Member of the Wedding" (rapped by Howard Barnes of the Herald Tribune) and "Happy Times" (socked by Watts and given several subsequent sour mentions by him).

In the case of "The Consul," music critic Olin Downes reviewed it for the Times, but Atkinson is slated to devote his column to it in the drama section next Sunday (26).

Thalhimers department store, Richmond, Va., entering its 109th year, operates a theatre ticket office on a gratis basis for its customers. Besides maintaining the service, the establishment backs it by publicity and ads in the local dailies, thus providing extra exploitation for current legit, concert, film and similar attractions. Office is in the Customer Service Center of the store.

Company figures that the ticket office is an indirect business asset, since the Customer Service is credited with a substantial share in the $26,000,000 gross sales last year (not including the Sosnik-Thalhimer branch in Winston-Salem, N. C.).

Frequency with which the New York drama critics use the first-person pronoun in their reviews varies strikingly. Some of the critics use the first-person singular several times in almost every notice, while others hardly ever do so, and one habitually uses the traditional journalistic "we." Matter seems to be primarily a matter of individual style, although it also appears to stem from the paper's policy in some cases.

Rex Harrison Has Lotsa Bids

Rex Harrison possibly rates as the most-propositioned actor of the 1949-50 season. At the moment, the star is reportedly considering three legit offers, and has two film deals in the works. There'll probably be other possibilities reported before his scheduled sailing March 30 for England.

Foremost on Harrison's list of prospects is apparently the male lead in the proposed Rodgers-Hammerstein musical edition of "Anna and the King of Siam," being written for Broadway production next spring. Gertrude Lawrence is figured the likely co-star and Joshua Logan is slated to direct. Meanwhile, the actor is reportedly being sought by Henry Sherek for the lead in the London company of T. S. Eliot's "Cocktail Party," the part originated by Alec Guinness in the Broadway presentation. Harrison could presumably fill that engagement before returning to the U. S. for "Anna."

Also believed to be still a possibility for the actor is a new, untitled play on which Terence Rattigan is putting the finishing touches, intended expressly for Harrison. That is planned for production on Broadway next fall, probably by the Theatre Guild and John C. Wilson, in association with H. M. Tennent & Co. (Hugh Beaumont). His latest possibility is a stage adaptation of Michael Sayers' "The Walking Stick," in which he appeared Monday night (20) on television and expressed interest in as a legit vehicle.

Definitely off Harrison's slate is "Accolade," which Emlyn Williams wrote for him, but will now star in and direct in London this spring, under the Tennent management, with a subsequent Broadway presentation in association with Leland Hayward. Harrison's two film prospects include a British production in which he is to co-star this summer with his wife, Lilli Palmer. The other is a proposed picture to be made in Italy.

New Indiana Strawhat

Culver, Ind., March 21.

A summer stock theatre will open on Lake Maxinkuckee near here this June, announced S. Paul Rutledge and D. Martin Tahse, managers of the Maxinkuckee Players.

Total Legit Grosses

The following are the comparative figures based on VARIETY'S boxoffice estimates for last week (the 42d week of the season) and the corresponding week of last season:

	This Season	Last Season
BROADWAY
Number of shows current	28	25
Total weeks played so far by all shows	896	961
Total gross for all current shows last week	$890,117	$593,500
Total season's gross so far by all shows	$22,606,017	$22,959,500
Number of new productions so far	47	58
ROAD (Excluding Stock)
Number of current touring shows reported	17	25
Total weeks played so far by all shows	812	953
Total road gross reported last week	$341,900	$592,200
Season's total road gross so far	$16,615,500	$19,682,200

'Madwoman' Good $19,100 in Chi, 'Kate' Healthy $29,300, Paris Ballet 30G

Chicago, March 21.

With the help of the Theatre Guild's "Madwoman of Chaillot" and second and final week of Ballet des Paris, Chi legit grosses took an upward turn again. However, Lent continued to hamper the general picture, with only three shows in last week and two openings this week, a repeat of Tallulah Bankhead's "Private Lives" at the Harris and the bi-lingual "Borscht-Capades" at the Blackstone. "Kiss Me, Kate" still suffered from lack of conventioneers.

In the offing is the arrival next week of "Lend an Ear" at the Great Northern and "Oklahoma!" in about six weeks at the Erlanger. Also a possible visit of "Miss Liberty" this spring.

Estimates for Last Week

Ballets des Paris, Blackstone (2d week) (1,358; $4.40). Final week solid $30,000.

"Kiss Me, Kate," Shubert (26th week) (2,100; $6.18). Did healthy $29,300.

"Madwoman of Chaillot," Erlanger (1,334; $4.33). Guild auspices gave this good $19,100.

"Private Lives," Harris (1,000; $4.33). Tallulah Bankhead starrer opened last night (Mon.).

'ROBERTS' SRO $30,933 FOR BOSTON RECORD

Boston, March 21.

Hub's legit season, one of the spottiest in many years, struggled along last week with only one house lighted. This was the Colonial, with the sock "Mister Roberts" in for a run, and it went clean for its second sesh, too. House, with a $4.20 top, took a smash SRO $30,933 for a straight-play house record and will undoubtedly stay in this bracket well into the late spring.

Only addition to the limping rialto this week is Cornelia Otis Skinner, in for one week at the Wilbur. Edward Everett Horton turns up in "The Country Wife" in Cambridge, April 5, and "Tickets, Please" is set for the 10th. Other than that, the Hub seems closed for the season.

'Salesman' Sizzling $27,300 in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, March 21.

"Death of a Salesman" soared to sizzling $27,300 in its second and final week at the Nixon, about $5,000 more than it did in opening stanza to give hit drama close to $51,000 on the engagement. Unlike first session, closing one started at virtual capacity and kept building all the way, with SRO the general rule final few performances.

"Salesman" sold for $3.90 top (including city and federal taxes) with special reduced rates being offered to ATS-Theatre Guild subscribers although attraction wasn't presented under their auspices.

Nixon is currently dark again, relighting Monday (27) with the Paris Ballet, which comes in for a week.

Blackstone 13G, Det.

Detroit, March 21.

With a $2 maximum, the 2,000-seat Shubert did an all right $13,000 in a seven-day presentation of Blackstone. The magico originally was scheduled for 10 days, but the last three were lopped off to permit him to accept an engagement in Grand Rapids.

Shubert is dark until Friday (24), when it presents "Streetcar Named Desire," in for nine days.

The Cass opened Monday (20), after a week's darkness, for Les Ballets de Paris, a six-day attraction.

Tallulah-'Lives' NSG $11,500 in Toronto

Toronto, March 21.

"Private Lives," with Tallulah Bankhead and Donald Cook, did a disappointing $11,500 at the Royal Alexandra, with 1,525-seater scaled at $4.20 top. Fact that play opened here with the Bankhead-Cook duo in the summer of '46, when it ran for two capacity weeks at $3 top, undoubtedly militated against last week's engagement, plus that $4.20 top.

Current season at the Royal Alexandra is biggest in that theatre's 43-year history, with "Private Lives" the unexpected and only slipup.

'DIAMOND LIL'-WEST NEAT $28,000, ST. L.

St. Louis, March 21.

The unexpected closing of "The Silver Whistle," scheduled for a one-week stand at the American theatre during the current week and the continued run of "Kiss Me, Kate" in Chicago, has resulted in this house being darkened for the next three weeks. Sudden closing of "Whistle" prevented manager Paul Beisman from bringing in another piece. House will relight in April for a one-week engagement of "Oklahoma!," the fifth time the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical has visited this burg.

Crix were harsh in their treatment of "Diamond Lil," Mae West's revival, but the natives paid no heed and the piece wound up its one week at the American Saturday (18) with a neat $28,000. The 1,700-seat house was scaled to $4.27 for the eight performances.

'Dinner' Hefty $24,500 On NW 3-Date Split

Seattle, March 21.

"Man Who Came to Dinner," with Monty Woolley, racked up hefty $24,500 in three stands last week. Show took in $3,700 at the Civic Aud., San Jose, Sunday (12); $12,500 at Mayfair, Portland, Tuesday-Thursday (14-16), and $8,300 at the Metropolitan here, Friday-Saturday (17-18).

Play is splitting current week between Metropolitan here and Temple, Tacoma.

'Lend Ear' Drops To $16,700 in Split Week

Rochester, N. Y., March 21.

"Lend An Ear," hit by heavy snow and sleet, fell off to a poor $16,700 in two engagements last week. Show drew $9,500 in four performances at the Court Square, Springfield, Mass., Monday-Wednesday (13-15), and $7,200 in the same number of performances at the Auditorium here, Thursday-Saturday (16-18).

Previous week's take at the Shubert, Boston, was $27,500.

'Okla.!' $23,500 in Split

Lake Charles, La., March 21.

"Oklahoma!" drew a healthy $23,500 in six performances split between the Auditorium, Galveston and the McNesse Jr. High School here last week. Musical played former stand Monday-Tuesday (13-14), coming here Wednesday (15) and playing through Saturday (18).

Show is at the Poche, New Orleans, this week.

'Sky' $4,500, Atlanta; Romero 7G, Jacksonville

Atlanta, March 21.

Moss Hart's "Light Up the Sky," starring Audrey Christie, grossed $4,500 at Penthouse theatre, atop Hotel Ansley, last week. Miss Christie replaced Diana Barrymore in cast after the latter was injured in an automobile crash. Robert Wilcox, Miss Barrymore's leading man, who shaken up in the accident, but was able to play the lead male role opposite Miss Christie. Barrymore-Wilcox team played Penthouse in same play earlier this season.

Penthouse No. 2, second Greek-type theatre under wing of Atlanta group, bowed last week in ballroom of Roosevelt hotel, Jacksonville, Fla., and grossed a neat $7,000, with Cesar Romero starring in "Strictly Dishonorable." Miss Christie and Wilcox opened in Jacksonville showcase in "Light Up" Monday (20) evening. Jacksonville spot has 490 seats as against 450 in local Penthouse. Top price there is $3.60, including tax, while scale here is a flat $3, including tax.

Mady Christians opened to full house in Penthouse here Monday (20) evening in "The Vinegar Tree." Heading supporting cast is Gerald Savory, British actor-author-playright, who directs Penthouse productions.

Atlanta Penthouse will close its season with April 8 performance, marking 29 consecutive weeks of name stock.

Hayes-'Trees' Hot $28,500 in Philly

Philadelphia, March 21.

Although legit business has been continuously satisfactory and last week was exceptionally good, Philly has now entered upon what looks to be an extended drought of stage shows. Currently there is only one legiter open—the Shubert, where Helen Hayes is playing her second and final week in the tryout of "The Wisteria Trees." After that the Shubert will be dark until April 10, when Molly Picon comes in for a single week in the Yiddish musical, "Abi Gezunt."

Next Monday, "The Cry of the Peacock," another tryout, plays a single week at the Locust. The Forrest—supposedly the banner house of the Shuberts' local quartet—hasn't a show mentioned until April 24, when the musical, "The Liar," is booked. Only other legit attraction listed is "House on the Cliff," with Ernest Truex and Fay Bainter, skedded for April 17, probably at the Locust. It looks like another very early closing, comparable to or even worse than last year's. All this in the face of three excellent grosses by last week's trio of offerings.

Estimates for Last Week

"The Wisteria Trees," Shubert (1st week) (1,877; $4.55). Local crix reversed those of New Haven, where Helen Hayes vehicle opened. At least two rave notices here. These plus star's name resulted in a banner $28,500 for the week, and that figure will be surpassed this week when show will have no opposish.

"The Silver Whistle," Walnut (2d week) (1,340; $3.90). Theatre Guild offering, last ATS subscription show of season picked up a bit to get $14,000 in final stanza. House has nothing in sight.

"What a Day," Forrest (3d week) (1,766; $4.55). This musical, never really able to get going on high gear here, dropped to a fair $22,000 in final stanza. House has nothing booked as yet until April 24.

23½G for 'Brigadoon'

Baltimore, March 21.

"Brigadoon" made a return visit to Ford's here last week and got a modest $23,500.

Nothing else on the immediate horizon until April 17, when Katharine Cornell in "That Lady" is scheduled for a week.

New Haven Resumes

New Haven, March 21.

Shubert resumes legit with another breakin this week. It's the American preem of "Cry of the Peacock," due Thurs.-Sat. (23-25).

Opening of the Hartmans revue, "Tickets, Please," has been shifted from March 30 to April 6-8 weekend. Tryout here of "The Liar," tentatively set for April 13-15, now is on the doubtful side. Spring bookings are in the fadeout stage as of right now.

B'way Still Shaky, But Up a Bit; 'Consul' SRO $19,600 for First 5, 'Disciple' $24,000, Marches $16,000

Sparked by a spurt Friday night and Saturday (17-18), attendance on Broadway was generally a trifle better last week. Conditions were spotty, so not all shows shared the improvement, but the prevailing pace was up.

Receipts early in the week were down, but the sudden upturn by Friday night was evident at both performances Saturday. The combined gross for all 28 current shows was 70.4% of capacity, a rise of 1.62% over the previous week. Indications are that this week's business will continue the slightly better tone.

Last week's two closings were "All You Need Is One Good Break" and "Touch and Go." No closings are scheduled for this week, but "Miss Liberty" is slated to shutter April 8 to go on tour, while "Howdy, Mr. Ice of 1950" will fold April 15.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical) O (Operetta).

Other parenthetic figures refer, respectively, to top price, number of seats and capacity gross. Price includes 20% amusement tax, but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of tax.

"All You Need Is One Good Break," Mansfield (5th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,041; $26,000). Novel exploitation failed to kindle business after the production was refinanced and reopened; folded Saturday night (18) after a total of 35 performances; around $2,500.

"Arms and the Girl," 46th St. (7th wk) (M-$6; 1,319; $39,000). Heavy theatre party bookings are a factor in the grosses for this Theatre Guild-Anthony B. Farrell presentation; $38,100.

"As You Like It," Cort (8th wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,064; $27,000). Going along at a profitable rate; over $25,800.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," National (13th wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,172; $30,000). Attendance climbed a bit for this Shaw revival; topped $20,000.

"Clutterbuck," Biltmore (15th wk) (C-$4.80; 920; $22,600). London import has been overquoted recently; having tough going; $6,000.

"Cocktail Party," Miller (9th wk) (C-$4.80; 940; $21,600). Continues to go clean at all times; nearly $21,600.

"Come Back, Little Sheba," Booth (5th wk) (D-$4.80; 712; $20,000). Despite raves for the performances, the sombre theme of this entry is apparently limiting its draw; about $12,000.

"Death of a Salesman," Morosco (58th wk) (D-$4.80; 914; $23,800). Getting an ample profit; up slightly to nearly $18,800.

"Detective Story," Hudson (52d wk) (D-$4.80; 1,016; $23,675). Ralph Bellamy starrer eased a trifle to $16,100.

"Devil's Disciple," Royale (4th wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,035; $27,500). Production gained nearly $2,000 to reach $24,000.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Ziegfeld (15th wk) (M-$6; 1,628; $48,244). Still getting capacity; over $48,200.

"Happy Time," Plymouth (8th wk) (C-$4.80; 1,063; $29,019). About the same $28,000.

"Howdy, Mr. Ice of 1950," Center (43d wk) (R-$2.88-$3; 2,964; $58,000). Closing notice was rescinded and the skating show is now slated to continue to April 15, as previously planned; up nearly $1,000 to top $18,000.

"I Know My Love," Shubert (20th wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,391; $33,000). Also improved to $24,500.

"Kiss Me, Kate," Century (63d wk) (M-$6; 1,645; $46,650). Holdover smash got nearly $43,300.

"Lost in the Stars," Music Box (20th wk) (M-$5.40; 1,012; $26,600). Ebbed a trifle to $23,300.

"Member of the Wedding," Empire (11th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,082; $24,000). Had some theatre parties, which cut the capacity-plus trade to $24,000.

"Miss Liberty," Imperial (36th wk) (M-$6.60; 1,400; $44,500). Will close April 8 to go on tour; almost $22,000.

"Mister Roberts," Alvin (109th wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,360; $34,276). Longrun leader eased a bit to $27,400.

"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," Broadhurst (3d wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,160; $29,500). Fredric March-Florence Eldridge starrer is benefiting from extensive followup comment, but is handicapped by a stiff operating nut and the lack of cash reserve; if it can survive Holy Week it may have a moderate run; did $16,000 last week, which isn't breaking even.

"South Pacific," Majestic (50th wk) (M-$6; 1,659; $50,186). Same old story; $50,600.

"Texas, L'il Darlin," Hellinger (17th wk) (M-$6; 1,543; $42,000). Continues to make a modest operating profit; $24,200.

"The Consul," Barrymore (1st wk) (M-$4.80-$6; 1,066; $30,000). Gian-Carlo Menotti opera got raves from all eight dailies and started fast; first five performances topped capacity at $19,000.

"The Innocents," Playhouse (6th wk) (D-$4.80; 819; $18,740). Eased slightly, but has about $35,000 advance and should spurt this week; $12,000.

"The Man," Fulton (9th wk) (D-$4.80; 966; $23,000). Inched up a little to $7,700.

"Touch and Go," Broadway (23d wk) (R-$4.80; 1,900; $46,300). Business skidded fast after the end of theatre parties, and the move to another theatre and boxoffice reduction failed to help, so the George Abbott production folded Saturday (18) after 176 performances; final week was again in the red at $16,000.

"Velvet Glove," Golden (12th wk) (CD-$4.80; 769; $18,127). Has been hanging on at about the breakeven figure; climbed slightly to nearly $7,000.

"Where's Charley?", St. James (74th wk) (M-$6; 1,509; $37,800). Musical run leader is holding its healthy advance sale and going along with ample power; $30,000.

Opening

"Great to Be Alive," Winter Garden (M-$6; 1,510; $42,000). Musical comedy with book by Walter Bullock and Sylvia Regan; lyrics by Bullock; music by Abraham Ellstein; presented by Vinton Freedley, in association with Anderson Lawler and Russell Markert; production was financed at $175,000, was brought in for $165,000 (including bonds) and can break even at around $26,000.

Future Dates

"Wisteria Trees," March 29 at Martin Beck; "Cry of the Peacock," April 6 at Mansfield; "With a Silk Thread," April 12 at Lyceum; "Peter Pan," April 23 at Imperial; "Tickets, Please," April 24 at Coronet.

PETERS-'BARRETTS' SOLID 17G IN D.C.

Washington, March 21.

Interest in "Barretts of Wimpole Street," the Susan Peters starrer at the Gayety, continued steady through the second semester with a solid $17,000. Fortnight's take for the 1,500-seat house, which was scaled at a straight $3 including tax, reached an imposing $36,000.

Faye Emerson and Sam Wanamaker in "Goodbye, My Fancy," opened at the Gayety tonight (21) to a fair advance for a fortnight's stay.

"Streetcar Named Desire," starring Judith Evelyn, is booked in for three weeks beginning April 3.

'Streetcar' Disappoints In 4 Stands at $15,000

Des Moines, March 21.

"A Streetcar Named Desire," with Judith Evelyn and Ralph Meeker, grossed a disappointing $15,000 with eight performances in four engagements last week.

Show drew $1,000 in a matinee at the Lyceum, Minneapolis, Sunday (12); $3,000 at the Palace, Rockford, Ill., Tuesday (14); $6,000 at the Iowa, Cedar Rapids, Wednesday-Thursday (15-16), and $5,000 at the KRNT theatre here, Friday-Saturday (17-18).

Current week is being split three ways.

Shows in Rehearsal

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical), O (Operetta).

"House on the Cliff" (C)—Peggy Wood, Joseph Moon and Roger Stearns; Leo Mittler, director.

"Peter Pan" (D) — Peter Lawrence; John Burrell, director.

"Tickets, Please" (R) — Arthur Klein; Mervyn Nelson, director.

"With a Silk Thread" (D)—Irving Kaye Davis; Elsa Shelley, director.

Play on Broadway

The Consul

Chandler Cowles & Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., presentation of musical drama in three acts (six scenes), by Gian-Carlo Menotti. Features Marie Powers, Patricia Neway. Staged by Menotti; orchestra directed by Lehman Engel; dream choreography, John Butler; musical coordination, Thomas Schippers; settings, Horace Armistead; lighting, Jean Rosenthal; costumes, Grace Houston. At Ethel Barrymore, N. Y., March 15, '50; at $4.80 top weeknights, $6 weekends ($9.60 opening).

John Sorel	Cornell MacNeil
Magda Sorel	Patricia Neway
Mother	Marie Powers
Chief Police Agent	Leon Lishner
First Police Agent	Chester Watson
Second Police Agent	Donald Blackey
Secretary	Gloria Lane
Mr. Kofner	George Jongeyans
Foreign Woman	Maria Marlo
Anna Gomez	Maria Andreassi
Vera Boronell	Lydia Summers
Nika Magadoff	Andrew McKinley
Assan	Francis Monachino
Recorded Voice	Mabel Mercer

Gian-Carlo Menotti, whose "The Medium" (and "The Telephone") was an event of the 1947-48 season, has brought Broadway another impressive opera in "The Consul." This three-act tragedy, also presented by Chandler Cowles and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., brought an ovation from first-nighters, but because of its sombre theme and the heavily dramatic quality of its music it may have limited popular appeal and is therefore a dubious bet to pay off.

From a creative standpoint the show is unquestionably a hit. Menotti's story of the plight of freedom loving people trapped in totalitarian countries is agonizingly contemporary and his score adds enormous emotional power. It is a heart-rending work that reaches a shattering climax in the second act and has an overpowering finale. But it is not "entertainment" in the popular sense and may not have staying qualities when hot weather wilts the boxoffice.

Action of the piece alternates between the grubby apartment of a fugitive from the secret police in an unidentified European nation and what appears to be the U. S. consulate in the same city. The consul is never actually on stage, although his silhouette is seen once through his office door. Between repeated trips to the consulate, where she waits endlessly for a visa that will enable her and her family to escape to freedom, the fugitive's wife is harried at home by visits from the secret police, as she despairingly watches her baby and then her mother-in-law die. Her suicide ends the opera.

The opening scene, in which the fugitive stumbles into his home to hide, with the police following a few minutes later, provides an exciting start. There are two notable scenes in the second act, the first as Marie Powers sings a touching lullaby to the dying infant and the second as Patricia Neway sings a magnificent aria denouncing the callous consulate secretary. Latter number received one of the most vociferous ovations of any Broadway premiere in memory.

Although "The Consul" has more terrifying impact and possibly more depth than "The Medium," it lacks the compactness and consistent drive of the latter one-acter. And although its music is technically brilliant, its unmelodic character limits its exploitable potential and mass appeal. Moreover, its morbid theme is unlikely to attract diversion-minded playgoers, so it will have to be sold on its straight artistic merits, which may not be easy as the season wanes.

Miss Neway is spectacularly impressive, both vocally and dramatically. Her voice is excellent, her enunciation is generally clear, her playing is persuasive and her features are admirably suited for tragic roles. Miss Powers, who scored a personal click in "The Medium," has a less showy role as the mother, but she is also effective vocally and as an actress.

Other notable performances are given by Cornell MacNeil as the fugitive, Gloria Lane as the bored consular secretary, Leon Lishner as the secret police agent, Andrew McKinley as a magician whose tricks disrupt consulate decorum as he waits for a visa, and George Jongeyans, Maria Marlo, Maria Andreassi, Lydia Summers and Francis Monachino in lesser parts.

The composer-author has staged the work expressively, except that he has not succeeded in having the singers make all the lyrics intelligible, and although Lehman Engel's batoning seems generally expert, he occasionally permits the orchestra to overpower the voices. Horace Armistead's two settings contribute helpful atmosphere, Jean Rosenthal's lighting adds to the mood, and the two dream sequences arranged by John Butler provide dramatic highlights.

Hobe.

INSURANCE
D. DAVIDSON CO.
INCORPORATED
100 WILLIAM ST.
NEW YORK 7, N. Y.
Bowling Green 9-4420

SAMUEL FRENCH
SINCE 1830
Play, Brokers and Authors' Representatives
25 West 45th Street, New York
7623 Sunset Blvd. Hollywood 46 Cal

Plays Out of Town

The Golden Porcupine

Dallas, March 15.

Theatre '50 production of historical drama by Muriel Roy Bolton. Directed by Margo Jones; lighting, Marshall Yokelson; costumes, Dhu Wray. At Theatre '50 Playhouse, Dallas; $2.50.

King Louis XI	Louis Veda Quince
Oliver Le Diam	Edwin Whitner
Duchess of Orleans	Mary Finney
Anne of France	Virginia Robinson
Louis of Orleans	John Dennel
Charles VIII	Charles Procter
Count Dunois	Joe Sullivan
Geo. D'Ambroise, Archbishop	Ben Yaffee
Gournay	Charles Braswell
Ann of Brittany	Peggy McCay
Guard	David Healy
Lady-in-Waiting	Margaret O'Neill

"The Golden Porcupine" is written around and about the 1470-1498 period of French history and derives its name from the House of Orleans and the legendary toughness of the porcupine. Authoress Muriel Roy Bolton of California has penned a lavish and fast-moving play, though it is overloaded for the small theatre-in-the-round.

Virginia Robinson as the shrewd Anne of France, does a neat acting job. Louis Veda Quince, as the old king, does a fine and interesting bit of stage-stalking. Charles Procter, as the sniveling and weak Charles VIII, is in good style and gives his part a certain stimulant that his lines lacked. Mary Finney displays her usual impressive talents in her brief scene as the Duchess of Orleans. John Denny, as Louis of Orleans, handles his lengthy lines effectively. Edwin Whitner, as Oliver Le Diam, again proves himself as one of the company's most flexible performers. The rest of the cast is worth good "supporting" mention.

Margo Jones has done an impressive directing job.

Berg.

Aaron Burr

Baltimore, March 13.

Vagabond Players production of drama in two acts by Holmes Alexander. Directed by G. H. Pouder; settings, Walter Preston. At Vagabond theatre, Baltimore, March 13, '50.

Mrs. Norton	Mary Reynolds
Theodosia Burr	Mary Stewart
Aaron Burr	Walter Pearthree
Washington Irving	Pinkney McLean
Joseph Alston	Carter Wallace
Alexander Hamilton	F. Winsor Bryan
Betsy Hamilton	Julie Wood
Jeremy	Frederick Dorton
Margurita Fernandez	Doris Litty
The Judge	Jack Owen

Holmes Alexander, Washington columnist and author, has gone back to the clash of personalities and political philosophies of the early days of the Republic to point up some ideologies still in conflict. Unlike "The Patriots," which utilized many of the founding fathers and a very broad vista of the Revolutionary era to punch across its message of freedom and democracy, this piece depends solely upon the contrasting characters of Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton to review the old battle of the classes vs. the masses and the leaders chosen to direct their political destinies.

In this play Aaron Burr is an ambitious, cynical and ruthless Bourbon, and Hamilton, while also a Bourbon, is unselfish and conscientious in his regard for the essential rights of his fellowman. Burr wins his duel and kills his man but it is Alexander Hamilton who emerges the actual victor in the long run and one of the saviors of the nation. It's all nicely told and pleasingly characterized but there is not enough sustained drive or actual drama in its present state to make it count for more ambitious presentation.

As projected by the Vagabond Players now in its 34th season and one of the oldest little theatre groups in the country, the play is very well presented, with neat settings by Walter Preston and direction by G. H. Pouder exceptionally smooth and skillfully paced. Walter Pearthree is strong as Burr, and F. Winsor Bryan assured as Hamilton. A standout performance is registered by Mary Stewart, as Theodosia Burr, and Doris Litty, as Margurita Fernandez, an intimate of both great men.

Burm.

Equity Sifts

Continued from page 57

formed of the situation. So far, no answer has been received. If action isn't forthcoming, the matter will probably be referred to the Equity council.

Questioned on the situation yesterday (Tues.), Reilly declined to discuss it, refusing either to deny or affirm that any such matter had been raised. Wiman could not be reached for comment, and an Equity representative would not talk about it, beyond confirming that the issue had been raised. Several members of the League board said they had heard of the matter indirectly in the trade, but had not been informed of it by the League.

It is recalled that at the time "Dance Me a Song" was playing the Royale, the theatre was offered to Aldrich & Myers for the revival of "Devil's Disciple," which they were taking over from the N. Y. City Center. Wiman had sought to continue the revue at the Royale, but poor attendance brought the gross below the house's stop limit, so Shubert required it to leave. "Disciple" has since occupied the theatre.

Current Road Shows

(March 19-April 1)

Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo—Music Hall, Cleve. (19); Bushnell Aud., Hartford (21-22); Aud., Worcester, Mass. (23); Klein Aud., Bridgeport (24); Municipal Aud., Providence (25); His Majesty's, Montreal (27-1).

Ballet Theatre—Lanier H. S. Aud., Montgomery, Ala. (20); Tower, Atlanta (21); College Field House, Clemson, S. C. (22); Page Aud., Durham, N. C. (23); Academy of Music, Phila. (24); Rajah, Reading (25); Playhouse, Wilmington (27); Constitution Hall, Washington (29-30).

Ballets de Paris—Cass, Detroit (20-25); Nixon, Pitt. (27-1).

"Borschtcapades" — Blackstone, Chi. (20-1).

"Brigadoon" — Playhouse, Wilmington (20-22); Community, Hershey, Pa. (23-25); Victory, Dayton (27-29); Hartman, Columbus (30-1).

Cornelia Otis Skinner—Wilbur, Bost. (20-25).

"Cry of the Peacock"—Shubert, N.H. (23-25); Locust, Phila. (27-1).

"Death of a Salesman"—Hanna, Cleve. (20-1).

"Diamond Lil" — Music Hall, K. C. (20-25); Orpheum, K. C. (26); Stuart, Lincoln, Neb. (27-28); KRNT Radio theatre, Des Moines (30-31); Aud., St. Paul (1).

"Goodbye, My Fancy"—Gayety, Wash. (20-1).

"Harvey"—Memorial Hall, Joplin, Mo. (20); Shrine Mosque, Springfield, Mo. (21); Aud., Memphis (23-25); Robinson Aud., Little Rock (27); Municipal Aud., Shreveport, La. (28-29); Majestic, Ft. Worth (30); Melba, Dallas (31-1).

"Kiss Me, Kate"—Shubert, Chi. (20-1).

"Lend An Ear"—Empire, Syracuse (20-21); Erlanger, Buffalo (22-25); Great Northern, Chi. (27-1).

"Madwoman of Chaillot"—Erlanger, Chi. (20-1).

"Man Who Came to Dinner—Metropolitan, Seattle (20-22); Temple, Tacoma, Wash. (23-24); Jr. High School Aud., New Westminster, B. C. (27); International Cinema, Vancouver (28-1).

"Mister Roberts"—Colonial, Bost. (20-1).

"Oklahoma!"—Poche, New Orleans (19-26); Tower, Atlanta (28-1).

"Philadelphia Story"—Biltmore, L. A. (20-1).

"Private Lives" — Harris, Chi. (20-1).

San Carlo Opera Co.—Erlanger, Buffalo (30-1).

"Silver Whistle"—Lobero, Santa Barbara (31-1).

"Streetcar Named Desire"—Orpheum, Davenport (20-21); Palace, South Bend (22-23); Shubert, Detroit (24-1).

"That Lady"—Municipal Aud., Topeka (20); Convention Hall, Tulsa (21); Home, Oklahoma City (22); Melba, Dallas (23); Worth, Ft. Worth (24-25); Texas, San Antonio (27); Metropolitan, Houston (28-29); Poche, New Orleans (31-1).

Webster-Shakespeare — Fraser, Lawrence, Kan. (20-21); Technical H. S. Aud., Omaha (23); H. S. Aud., Spencer, Ia. (24); H. S. Aud., Ames, Ia. (25); H. S. Aud., Mendota, Ill. (27); Ill. School for Deaf, Jacksonville (28); Southern Ill. U., Carbondale (29); Hughes Aud., Wilmore, Ky. (30); Purdue Hall of Music, Lafayette, Ind. (31).

Plays Abroad

Der Tod Des Handlungsreisenden

(Death of a Salesman)

Vienna, March 7.

Ernst Lothar presentation of drama by Arthur Miller in two acts, translated by Ferdinand Bruckner. Directed by Lothar. Scenery by Otto Niedermoser; music by Alex North. At Theatre in der Josefstadt, Vienna.

Willy Loman	Anton Edthofer
Linda	Adrienne Gessner
Biff	Kurt Heintel
Happy	Hans Holt
Ben	Hans Jungbauer
Karl	Hermann Erhardt
Bernhard	Franz Boheim
Howard	Leopold Rudolf
Kellner	Heinrich Ortmayr
Das Weib	Nadja Tiller
Fraulein Forsythe	Erna Mangold
Letta	Eva Kerbler
Jenny	Erne Seder

It's unlikely that "Salesman" will come through as a German-language success in anything like its original stature. Principal drawbacks of the Vienna production, from an American viewer's standpoint, are a botched job of casting and direction which never brings the poignancy of Willy Loman's predicament either into sharp focus or the consciousness of hearers. Types are so essentially continental, especially Teutonic, that the Loman family and surrounding figures never give the impression of American "little people" at all. Most of all Anton Edthofer, in the stellar role, and Ernst Lothar, whose direction might have been more authentic after his U.S. years, have seen the Loman tragedy in an entirely different light from that of New York and London producers. Their salesman is a beaten-down, wishy-washy old fool from the first curtain. Much of the audience reacted with relief rather than pity to his death. Single believable exception to the inaccurate casting is Adrienne Gessner (Mrs. Lothar) in the role of Mrs. Loman.

Even discounting the U.S. viewpoint and taking for granted that most of the German language audience have no clear picture of what life in a small Brooklyn salesman's house is really like, net effect is that of confusing and puzzling the audience.

Apparently abashed by "Salesman's" world rep the local critics hesitated to slam the Josefstadt production. Instead, it unanimously set off philosophical essays on the meaning of the play and its protagonists. These screeds were so deeply colored by politics of the individual writers and their papers as to obscure any real opinion of the show.

Lothar and the Josefstadt, with Ferdinand Bruckner's help, have done "Salesman" for the record and made it a part of European stage history. But it isn't likely to go beyond the 40 to 50 showings of the average Vienna mediocrity.

Isra.

Emperor Jones

Paris, March 5.

Point 50 presentation of Argonates' production of drama in three acts by Eugene O'Neill. Staging by Sylvain D'Homme; sets, Jaques Noel; translation, M. Bourgeois. Stars Habib Benglia; features Paul Chevalier, African Segg Troupe. At La Maison De Pensee, Paris.

An off-the-main-stem group has come up with an exciting night of theatre. The Argonates, a young theatre group, are presenting O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" in French. The language, physical handicaps of the makeshift stage, and the uncomfortable seating are soon dispelled by the brilliant theatrics. Workable, suggestive decor is supplied by Jaques Noel, and the Segg African Troupe supplies an eerie, ear-shattering tom-tom crescendo to counterpoint the proceedings.

Standout is the African actor Habib Benglia, as Emperor Jones. His electrifying performance has the audience breaking into uneasy applause from time to time. His expressive face, calculated movements and tremendous presence portray all the mannerisms of Jones from his arrogance and disdain at the beginning to the finally broken primitive hulk.

Paul Chevalier does a good job as the scheming hunter Smithers, who sees Jones before the latter's flight to his hidden food and canoe to escape the aroused natives. The rest of the play is a series of scenes in the jungle as Jones loses his way, and slowly falls prey to the tom-toms and his own primitive fears. He begins to go through a series of hallucinations of his troubled past and wipes them out by a shot from his revolver. Finally his bullets run out, and the medicine man in a fine primitive ballet breaks his spirit and brings death to the Emperor. There is a wild ritual dance about his dead body.

Production deserves a good theatre backing. Sylvain D'Homme gives a good pacing to the expressionistic drama.

Mosk.

Heiman

Continued from page 57

ter pending clarification of Heiman's plans.

The terms negotiated by ANTA for the lease of the Strand reportedly call for a rental of $22,500 for the first five years, $25,000 for the next five years, with an option to renew at $27,500 for a third period of five years. Despite rumors that renovating costs would be excessive, ANTA has received a bid of $75,000 for the job, plus $25,000-$50,000 for the installation of an air-conditioning system, the exact amount depending on whether the existing air ducts could be used or new ones were required.

Dewart's Denial

Reports that the Jim Crow policy at the National was not actually determined by Heiman but by the Munsey estate, which owns the property were unequivocally denied Monday by Thomas E. Dewart, executor of the estate. Dewart, who was publisher of the N.Y. Sun until its recent sale to the World-Telegram, asserted that "the matter is entirely up to Heiman."

Noting that he had met Heiman only once several years ago and that he hasn't either talked to him or communicated with him since then, Dewart said, "We merely rent the space to Heiman, and have no control over the property and nothing to do with its policy. Under the terms of our lease, Heiman could make it a Chinese theatre if he wanted to, or could limit attendance in any way he wishes." The lease has "about two years to go," he indicated.

Possibility that Heiman might change his mind and reopen the National as a legit house, with a non-discriminating policy, was expressed recently by Max Gordon at a CPT meeting. The producer told CTP members confidentially that Heiman had shown signs of reversing his previous refusal to consider such an idea. Before that, Gilbert Miller had informed members that Heiman would never modify his stand.

When the question of abandoning his discriminatory policy and reopening the National for legit was broached to Heiman last week, he reportedly refused to make any commitment one way or the other regarding his plans. However, he indicated that he does not feel that the opening of the Gayety on a non-discrimination basis is proof of public support for such a move.

In any case, he is understood to have said he will never submit to "dictation" by a union, such as Equity, on matters of management policy. Therefore, until Equity rescinds its anti-discrimination rule, he will not consider shifting back to legit. Chances of an Equity backdown on the matter are figured to be nil.

Shuberts Win

Continued from page 57

usage of stationery, according to Sullivan, is insufficient evidence that Select Operating does business in Illinois. Henry S. Blum, attorney for the plaintiffs, said he intends carrying the case to the Chicago Federal appeals court.

In his original suit, filed Jan. 28, 1949, Pfeiffer claimed that he lost over $300,000 by his failure to get bookings for the Great Northern theatre here, which he had under contract. He also charged that he was unable to obtain theatre bookings for his "Maid of the Ozarks" production because of the Shuberts' alleged control of 100 houses in 28 principal legit cities. In addition, he claimed that when he tried to rebook "Maid" into Chicago after its tour, no local theatre was available.

ATTORNEY
Thoroughly experienced in all phases of the entertainment field; real estate —formerly associated with top firm in business; seeks legal or commercial association.
Write: BOX V-2119, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 19

Available for Summer Stock
Beautiful air-conditioned theatre within easy reach of North Shore and large suburban communities North of Boston. Good stage, parking space, 700 DeLuxe Seats. Reply Variety, Box V-2652, 154 W. 46th St., New York 19, N. Y.

Literati

Morehouse's Autobiog

Ward Morehouse, author of "Matinee Tomorrow," a 50-year chronicle of the New York theatre, has signed with Whittlesey for a book of personal recollections and reminiscences, going back to the days of his youth in Georgia. It's for 1951 publication. Morehouse, formerly dramatic critic of the New York Sun, is now columnist-critic of the merged New York World-Telegram and Sun.

Atlanta Dailies Merge

Two Atlanta, Ga., papers—the Constitution and the Journal—announced last weekend they had reached an agreement to merge because of "economic reasons." Similar statements in each paper said that editorial policies will remain independent and would continue under the respective ownerships of Clark Howell (Constitution) and James M. Cox (Journal), although the latter will head up the combined operation. It's believed no money changed hands, but that stock was exchanged.

One effect of the merger, the publishers stated, will be a consolidation of the two Sunday publications into "one of the largest and most outstanding newspapers in the country." Journal has a circulation of 235,000 daily and 307,000 Sunday, while the Constitution's is 181,000 daily and 217,000 Sunday.

British Stage Tome

"The Stage Year Book and Guide for 1950" (Carson & Comerford, London; $2.25 cloth-bound, $1.80 paper-bound) is a handy reference book about the British theatre, vaude and concert-opera-ballet. Issued by The Stage, English theatrical trade paper, it contains 265 pages of text including casts and credits of all plays produced in Great Britain during 1949, credits of all plays produced in the U. S., titles of American plays produced in England and vice-versa, elaborate data about theatres in London and the provinces, lists of dramatists and composers whose works were presented during the year, lists of agents, pressagents, professional clubs, etc., a directory of permanent and traveling repertory companies and theatrical organizations of all kinds, texts of various standard contracts, special articles on the London stage, repertory, vaude, concert, ballet, opera and U. S. legit.

Nothing quite like it exists in the U. S. Both the annual "Burns Mantle Best Plays" series and "Theatre World" appeal more to general readers, but not even the "Theatre, Arena & Auditorium Guide" issued by the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers contains as much trade information about American legit as "The Stage Year Book" carries about the British theatre. For those interested in the English stage, the book should be enormously useful.

Hobe.

Bubbles Hornblow's OK Book

An unusually well-written novel of the Hollywood love and gossip genre has been turned out by Leonora (Bubbles Schinasi) Hornblow, wife of Metro producer Arthur Hornblow, Jr. It is titled "Memory and Desire" (Random House; $3).

Mrs. Hornblow may be putting ammunition in the hands of Senator Johnson and others who have recently found fault with film colony morals, but her revelations on free-wheeling sex and divorce habits in Hollywood are skillfully and entertainingly done. She obviously knows her prototypes and she shows a good deal of affection for most of them.

Particularly amusing is her ear for "girl talk"— the biting and ofttimes feline comment of Hollywood's femmes when their menfolk aren't around. This is Mrs. Hornblow's second novel, but her first to be published. She's working on another at the moment.

Herb.

Arg. Magazines Flourish

Despite difficulties due to shortage of newsprint and of graphic materials of all kinds, inflation has put magazine publishers of Argentina in an exceptionally flourishing position. However, those which have been unable to secure their own printing plants are continually subject to control by a big financial group which is the only one able to sell them paper, and generally take care of all the technicalities of publication. In this way, Radiolandia, a radio magazine, which has what is probably the biggest circulation of any magazine in the country, has never been able to achieve an entirely independent position.

Great progress has been made in the space of only a few months by a new magazine, Vea y Lea, which has a copyright tieup with the U.S. Look. This magazine is put out by Nissa (Nueva Impresora Sud Americana) headed by Emilio Ramirez, a veteran in the local newspaper world, and onetime police photographer.

Another magazine with a U. S. tieup is Pebete, which is affiliated with Coronet, and has already reached an unusually high circulation of 160,000, which is steadily mounting.

The field for magazines in Argentina is one of tremendous scope, as the appearance of some new type of mag only seems to encourage Argentine readers to buy more and more magazines. In general the price of weekly magazines is set at about 10c, but is expected to increase shortly, as a result of the newsprint and other importing gimmicks.

Time is still banned in Argentina, and any attempt by passengers from Uruguay to smuggle it into the neighboring Argentine territory are severely frowned upon by customs officials.

Bantam vs. Pared Reprints

Bantam Books, Inc. has run an unusual ad in Publishers' Weekly because of some reprint houses abridging tomes in 25-cent editions. Bantam feels that the pared versions are unfair to authors and original publishers as well as having an adverse effect on readers' attitudes toward the paperbound volumes.

Manufacturing costs are declining, Bantam reports, and it is consequently offering larger books at 25c. However, because some books are too long to be marketed at that price, it will launch in June a series of Bantam Giants selling for 35c.

National Book Award Dinner

First annual National Book Award presentation dinner, at the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y., Thursday (16), added up to a smart promotion for the industry. Some 126 top writers and celebrities were among the 1,100 guests invited by the American Book Publishers Council, American Booksellers Assn. and Book Manufacturers' Institute. Press and newsreels covered the event, while ABC aired a satiric version of "Author Meets the Critics" with a Shakespeare-Cyrano de Bergerac angle. Entertainment included Tex and Jinx McCrary, Abe Burrows, Helen Howe and Diosa Costello, with Eleanor Roosevelt, Sen. Paul Douglas and Frederick Lewis Allen speaking.

Awards went to Nelson Algren (fiction) for "The Man With the Golden Arm," Dr. Ralph L. Rusk (non-fiction) for "The Life of Ralph Waldo Emerson," and Dr. William Carlos Williams (poetry) for "Paterson: Book III" and "Selected Poems."

Rogers Upped at N. Y. News

John Rogers, who has been assistant financial editor of N. Y. Daily News, has been upped to financial editor, with Gertrude M. McCarthy, formerly of N. Y. Sun, named his assistant.

Rogers was promoted following the sudden death of Cecilia Russell, who had been editor since Todd Wright resigned several years ago to freelance.

Parlons Cinema's New B. R.

Marc Thibeault, former VARIETY mugg in Montreal, will interrupt publication of his French-Canadian monthly newspaper, Parlons Cinema, after the April issue. Tabloid has published 19 monthly issues at 12 pages or more.

With new capital of $10,000 in return for a 30% interest, Thibeault will relaunch his Parlons Cinema on a weekly basis next September, according to present plans.

CHATTER

Sam Levenson to meet Reader's Digest editors Monday (27).

Evelyn R. Young was appointed motion picture editor of Western Publications.

Ted Patrick in Hollywood to round up fiction writers as editor-in-chief of Holiday mag.

Dr. Paul Popenoe's latest book, "Marriage Is What You Make It," hits the bookstalls April 25.

John Houseman, producer at RKO, has authored a two-part article, "Hollywood Faces the Fifties," for Harper's.

Selznick Releasing Organization closed a deal with Viking Press for a Bantam Book issue of Graham Greene's "The Third Man."

Nelson Algren, winner of the American book industry award for the best novel of 1949, will teach summer classes at the University of Chicago.

A 2c balance due on his income tax has Ken Giniger, Prentice-Hall editor-in-chief, wondering how much it will cost the Government to process the deficiency remittance.

Will Davidson, cafe critic for the Chicago Tribune for the past decade resigns to join Whittiker and Chambers, public relations firm. As yet, no replacement has been named.

Newspaper Guild of N. Y. holds its annual "Miss Page One Contest" at the Tavern-on-the-Green next Monday (27). Winner will be crowned at the Hotel Astor, N. Y. April 14.

Lucius Beebe has resigned from the N. Y. Herald Tribune drama staff to make his permanent home in Colorado. He will contribute occasional pieces to the paper on a freelance basis.

Walter S. Campbell, director of professional writing at the U. of Oklahoma, gives sentence-by-sentence analyses of stories and articles in "Writing: Advice and Devices," which Doubleday publishes today (Wed.).

James O'Neill, 20th-Fox flack, has sold a yarn to Argosy on Dr. Vincent Nardiello, a former pug who's now medico for Madison Square Garden and the New York State Boxing Commission. It's labeled "The Robin Hood of Madison Square."

"The Lady's Not For Burning," London play by Christopher Fry, is being published April 20 by Oxford in the acting version as presented by John Gielgud. Fry's "A Phoenix Too Frequent" will be published this summer and an American edition of "Venus Observed" in early fall.

Three short stories of Bill Ornstein, Metro publicist, will be cited in the distinctive group listed in the 1950 "American Best Short Stories" to be published by Houghton-Mifflin in June. Trio of yarns are "Shadow Lingers On" from Decade of Short Stories; "Roses in Your Cheeks" from Wildfire;—and "A Dawn Come to Life" from Southern Jewish Outlook. In 1948, Ornstein's "Ma and Mrs. Robinson" was kudosed by Houghton-Mifflin.

Price Slash

Continued from page 1

homes in the U. S., the people have had a chance to be exposed to the medium. As a result, where they once considered owning a set as something in the remote future, they now realize that they can now afford to buy one.

With demand for receivers still far exceeding supply and with most major manufacturers still forced to allocate their sets to distributors, a number of lower-priced, off-brand receivers have made their way into the market. While they have been selling as fast as the brand sets, they've made no dents in sales of the latter. Indicating the demand is the fact that an RCA 12½-inch set, which RCA thought would move slowly because it's priced higher than similar models, is selling as fast as it lower-priced competitors. While the RCA model lists at $229.95, for example, Philco has a similar model at $199.95.

As predicted earlier in the year, the 16-inch screen has become by far the largest seller. Ten-inch sets, which did most to create the market, represent now almost a negligible factor, with the 12 or 12½-inch sets taking over as the smaller screens. Most manufacturers have pushed production facilities for the 16-inchers and are now able to turn out more than they ever did with the 10-inch sets. Even with the emphasis on larger tubes, the new price cuts will be made possible by reductions in the size of cabinets and the number of component parts. Also responsible is the development of multiple-purpose tubes.

Manufacturers see no slump because of the TV freeze, which will enable only eight more stations to open until it is lifted. Freeze, in fact, has had somewhat an advantageous effect in that it has enabled the industry to cover the existing markets more intensively. Advertising, instead of being spread throughout the country, is heavily concentrated and so pays off more in the long run. Freeze, however, has held up the extension of networking facilities and it is to that that manufacturers look as the bad results.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Madhatters Junction, March 18.

The letter S covers a field day in psychiatry and psychoanalysis. From schizophrenia to the subconscious, you could spend a whole semester.

Screwballs run all over the place. This is where a psychiatrist first said he didn't know what sanity was, because he never dealt with sane people. When asked, "Suppose a normally sane person came to you, what would you do?" he replied, "Even though he were normal when he came to me at the beginning of the analysis, the psychoanalytic procedure would create a neurosis at the end."

Of course, such talk makes this particular psychiatrist sound pretty sure of himself, but if you move among these characters and catch them when not on stage, you'll find them an indecisive and bewildered lot. They can give you fine psychoanalytic studies of da Vinci, Lincoln, Napoleon and Nietzsche and tell you what they really felt and thought, but they, like the rest of us, are bossed around by their own teenage daughters like so many sheepdogs.

Dr. Lucile Pooley once analyzed just about every big shot who ever lived. In her list, however, not one Hollywood celebrity appeared. The reason for this was that she suffered from scopophobia, which you will find explained in Scully's Psychiatric Word Book of Hollywood:

S

S Factor: Though in Hollywood the "s" is believed to be a code letter for "sex," actually it stands for "specific factor," a psychoneural element which determines ability and tells whether you're going to be a good juggler or a bad dancer. Helpful also in picking chorines who will eventually end as car-hops.

Saccharin (C6 H4 SO2 CONH): A sweet derivative of coal tar starring Shirley Temple.

Sacramedia: Swear word used by directors from Mittel Europa when a tack punctures their sacral artery.

Sadism: The wish to cause pain to a sexual object. Also called "active algolagana." Stops at kicking old mothers confined to wheel chairs down a flight of steps. After that the Breen office gets out its own horsewhip.

Sadness: An emotional attitude expressing itself in diminished tone of the voluntary muscles. Acting history from Buster Keaton to Alan Ladd.

Satire: A word that brings on all the worst psychotic symptoms on Hollywood producers. Sustained sarcasm. At least it is sustained until Saturday night, when George S. Kaufman says it always closes.

Scavenger Cells: (1) Neuragliar lymph cells aiding in the absorption of effete matter. (2) English actors imported for drawing room scenes.

Schnauzkrampf: A cramped protrusion and pursing of lips which producers affect when trying not to be too impressed by a script on which a price has not been as yet agreed.

Schotomization: Laforgue's term for those who punish themselves because they hate someone. Common to those with compulsion neuroses, schizophrenics and producers of Bette Davis pictures.

Schotophobia: Psycho-neurotic dread of darkness, or what theatre managers have been blaming poor grosses on.

Schott's Treatment: A treatment using warm salines, effervescent baths and systematic gymnastics to bring life into a dying script.

Secretogog: A substance having the property of stimulating a gland to increased activity. Put into drinking water of bosses by secretaries who figure they'll both get fired unless he wakes up and does some work.

Sensation: In psychiatry all it means is an impulse conveyed to the brain by a sensory nerve. In Hollywood all it means is a picture that was made three times and managed to escape the shelf.

Shaman: Originally a Siberian who claimed he could produce magic and when run out of the country became a medicine man in a barn at Hollywood and Sunset.

Shellshock: Not to be confused with shock therapy. A form of psychoneurosis characterized by special sense orders which were just as common in training camps as on the field of battle. Subsequently called war neurosis and suffered by actors who had been through every picture from "Wake Island" to "Battleground."

Shin: The anterior edge of the tibia. Good for making dice, too.

Short Circuit Theory: Wertheimer's hypothesis, which in Hollywood was translated into "cut to the chase."

Sibling: One of a family of children by the same parents. Rare in Hollywood, where one child usually has several sets of parents instead of one set of parents having several children.

Sitophobia: Psychoneurotic aversion to taking food. Complicated in Hollywood studios by the fact that if you lunch with a producer sure as fate afterward you'll have to sit through a double-feature of his pictures in a projection room.

Snow Blindness: A temporary abnormality of the color sense which causes all objects to be tinged with red. Explains Senator Tenney, ex-Congressman Thomas, Sen. McCarthy and other unpsychoanalyzed characters.

Soma: The body as distinguished from the psyche—i.e. Marie MacDonald as distinguished from Albert Einstein.

Somnambulism: Act of talking in one's sleep or in a hypnotic trance. Also walking in your sleep with your mind in a fugue. In the Palm Springs weekend syndrome. If it persists, doctors suggest Las Vegas and a $2 marriage license.

Souque's Phenomenon: Also called Gordon's Sign, though Max has not been in Hollywood for years.

Spasms Nutans: Disturbance of the sternamastoid muscles, which causes a nodding of the head. In adults the origin is psychogenic. In brief, yes-men.

Stanford Revision: A revised form of the Binet-Simon intelligence test so as to help get Stanford quarterbacks into studios as assistant directors.

Stereognosis: Ability to recognize familiar objects by touch. Common to producers who can recognize their secretaries in the dark of projection rooms.

Stereotypy: Repetition of words or motions, common in (a) catatonic partial stupors and (b) studio conferences where everybody is still repeating his original arguments after six hours of Scotch and sodas.

Sublimation: One of the old pets of psychoanalysis, it deals with the process of switching the libido from human objects to others of a non-sexual or social nature. Observed among old character actresses whose younger follies have ruled them out as mothers and so make every effort to play up to dogs in pictures.

Suggestability: Willingness to accept opinions which change or modify an idea. Obsolete in Hollywood.

Surrogate: A representation which conceals in a dream the identity of persons known to the dreamer. Thus in dreams mothers may be represented by Queen Mary and fathers of Alan Ladd.

Sycophants: Though in Hollywood the word is usually associated with shrewd manipulators who butter up a well-heeled moron into believing he's a superman, in psychiatry it refers to adults who have never matured intellectually.

Symbiosis: Small piracies which become part of the personality and add to a paranoiac's delusions of grandeur, thus further gratifying his narcissusism. Common to actors who begin their careers as female impersonators and end as associate producers of musicals.

Symbolism: Theory that swords, ships and just about everything in our dreams is either a male or female sex symbol. In Hollywood pictures the theory has been sublimated and simplified. When a heroine dreams of Knight in shining armor he turns out to be Bing Crosby sitting right there on her bed, smoking a pipe and weaving a Homburg to hide his toupee.

Broadway

Arnold Moss planed to the Coast Monday (20) for a role in Metro's "Kim."

Barney Balaban, Paramount prez, back at his desk after a short vacation at Palm Beach.

Bill Snyder, tradepaper reporter, quitting to open his own film distribution office, handling foreign pix.

Arthur Kennedy planes to Bermuda Sunday (26) for a week's vacation from "Death of a Salesman."

Jose Ferrer flies in from the Coast next weekend (25); he'll emcee the NBC-TV Saturday night revue April 1.

Mrs. Sydney M. (Muriel) Kaye out of Harkness Pavilion following molar operation. She's the wife of the CBS-BMI attorney.

Mischa Elman sails tomorrow (Thursday) on the Queen Mary for London where he opens a European tour at Albert Hall April 6.

William F. Rodgers, Metro distribution veepee, slated to return from the Coast this week after a month's visit to the Culver City lot.

Bill Danziger, recently in charge of national special promotion for the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, back in town after five weeks in Haiti.

"Remember, there's no cigaret hangover when you smoke Philip Morris" is a footnote "must" on all mail from guess what cigaret mfg. company.

Milton Forman joined Charles Schlaifer's ad agency Monday (20) as production manager, replacing Louis Friedman, who resigned to become a vocalist.

Jewish Theatrical Guild holding memorial services for the late Barney Bernard, of "Potash and Perlmutter" fame, at the Guild Chapel, N. Y., next Tuesday (28).

Joan Fontaine comes in from the Coast Sunday (2) with her daughter, Deborah Dozier. She'll do "Seventh Heaven" on "Theatre Guild of the Air" April 9.

Lynn Farnol has opened his new publicity office in the RKO bldg., Radio City, coincidentally right across the corridor from his former office with Samuel Goldwyn.

Metro producer Mervyn LeRoy arrives from the Coast Wednesday (29) and then sails for London two days later en route to Rome to begin production of "Quo Vadis."

Janet Blair starts rehearsals in two weeks for the Mary Martin role in the national company of "South Pacific." Meanwhile, she's in New York doing radio and TV guest shots.

Ballet and film performer Belita planed into New York this week from Canada to talk a possible pic with reps of J. Arthur Rank. Film would star her as a dancer under the Ealing studio banner.

Ketti Frings, Hollywood screenwriter and wife of agent Kurt Frings, on the mend in Medical Arts Center hospital. She was operated on Thursday (16), same day the Fringses were supposed to return to the Coast.

Paul A. Stewart, former travel and society editor of the N. Y. Sun, appointed publicity director of the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y. He succeeds Ted Saucier, who resigned to open his own public relations agency.

The Parent Teachers and Alumni Associations of the Professional Children's School will hold their annual ball and show at the Park Sheraton hotel, N. Y., April 21. Peter Donald will emcee the entertainment.

Sportscaster Norman L. Sper's son, who prefers to use Norman Winter as a professional name, graduates from U. of No. Carolina this June and plans to resume thesping. He's the son of actress Winona Winter and grandson of Banks Winter. Sper, Jr., was national diving champ, had his own radio shows and has appeared in stock.

Rome

By Helen McGill Tubbs

June Richmond at Rupe Tarpea Club.

George Canty of MPAA here for confabs.

Revue at the Adriano features Nicholas Bros.

Alan Curtis coming back from Cairo this week.

Edouardo and Titina at the Eliseo in "Napoli Milionaria."

Sven Asmussen orch here from Denmark to play at new private Open Door Club.

Yehudi Menuhin at Fiametta theatre in one night concert, accompanied by Marcelle Gazelle.

New Fiamette cinema opened March 9 with "Madame Bovary" and Raye and Naldi on stage.

Kirsten Flagstad and "Die Walkure" at LaScala Opera, with Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting.

Italian comedian Toto is starred in film "Toto, Cerca Moglie," now current in 15 theatres of Italy.

Paris

By Maxime de Beix
(33 Blvd. Montparnasse)

Elen Dosia to London for a week.

Lou Wilson over from London to scout circus acts.

Pierre Louis-Guerin to Brussels to ready his shows there.

Murray Silverstone here for a brief visit from London.

Bette Kaye, producer for the Army in Germany, visiting Paris.

The Gerry Mayers apartment hunting again and currently at the LaPerouse.

Honey Johnson opening new boite on left bank where she holds jazz sessions.

French talent prepping their "Artists Circus Night" yearly charity benefit.

Ballets des Champs Elysees scouting for minor parts before leaving for U. S.

Alicia Parker over for short time after a mountain vacation, then returns to London.

Peter sisters and other acts revamping the Folies Bergere revue with Josephine Baker out.

Nadia Markulescu hostess at Walter Pidgeon cocktail party before he takes flying trip to Italy.

Oscar Strauss, 80, working on "First Waltz" to preem in Munich March 24, and on a picture score.

Gene Van Dee to U. S. for a couple weeks and wife Erika with her parents on the Riviera while he is away.

Cleveland

Jose Melis orch checked into Hollenden Vogue Room for month.

Stan Kenton orch drew around 2,300 in 3,000-capacity Public Music Hall last week.

Floor show dropped by Borsellino's Club which adopted policy of intimate entertainment.

Dark two weeks, the legit Hanna reopened Monday (20) with "Death of Salesman" headed by Thomas Mitchell.

Dr. Benno Frank, appointed director of Cain Park's straw-hat company, preparing four musicals, each to run two weeks.

Max Wittman, former Vienna character actor, playing first American role in Play House edition of "Hope Is Thing With Feathers."

Shirley Fishman, indie press agent formerly with RKO Palace here, joined Horace Heidt's publicity offices with headquarters in New York.

Lisbon

By Lewis Garyo

"Duel in Sun" on third week at the Tivoli.

"Third Man" in its fourth week at the Eden.

Legit actor Joao Villaret back from Brazil and will join the company at the Apollo Theatre.

Orson Welles at the Palace hotel, Estoril beach, for a short holiday. He goes back to Italy to continue film production work.

Maria Sampaio, legit star, after twelve years in Brazil, back here to star in a new pic directed by Antonio Lopes Ribeiro.

Viennese revue company, with Kaps and Johan, will be at the Teatro Bandeira, Oporto, in April and at Teatro Avenida, Lisbon, in May.

The new Saint George Cinema has "The Blue Lagoon." It is a 2,000-seater, three shows daily requiring frequent change of program.

Las Vegas

Last Frontier has Whirlwinds, two Zephyrs and Collette Lyons.

Buster Shaver and Co. followed the Charioteers into the Flamingo.

Delta Rhythm Boys followed Zero Mostel into El Rancho Vegas.

Clark Dennis back at Hotel Thunderbird for second appearance in six months, with Jean Carroll and Peiro Bros.

"Room Service" in rehearsal at Little theatre with Howard Wentworth, formerly of Washington, D. C., strawhats, producing.

Jane Wyatt coming to town for filming of television sequences for CBS, with Gene Lester handling camera. Story revolves around the Flamingo.

Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn, due for April opening, hired Bill Willard, former Las Vegas Little Theatre impresario and radio programmer, as production director for its floor shows.

London

Alice Lloyd left about $48,000, her daughter and grandchildren being beneficiaries.

Noel Howlett took over Maurice Denham's role in "Fallen Angels" at Ambassador theatre.

Bernard Gordon succeeds the late William Conway as general manager of H. M. Tennents.

London Philharmonic Orchestra booked for four-day concert date in Holland and Belgium, May 8.

Anthony Kimmins planed to Australia to search for 12-year-old boy to play starring role in "Smiley."

Councillor Harry P. E. Mears, newly elected CEA vice prexy, planning trip to New York and Los Angeles.

Pinero revival, "The Schoolmistress," folds at the Saville March 25, with "The Pertinent Sex" opening March 30.

Ava Gardner here to play in Albert Lewin's "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman" in which she'll co-star with James Mason.

Leslie Macdonnel, exec of Foster's agency, to Rome, where he will complete deal for Katherine Dunham to star in a film there.

Gracie Fields flies to Capri next week on personal business, returning here to complete some radio programs arranged by Harry Alan Towers.

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway

Satira opens at the Paddock Club March 23.

"Holiday On Ice" at Coral Gables Coliseum.

Video producers Bill Todman and Martin Stone at Lord Tarleton.

Variety Tent here opened its Variety Children's Hospital last Sunday (19).

The Lauritz Melchior's at the Roney Plaza, while he fills local engagement.

Sonja Henie and husband in town, and house guesting with Jennie Grossinger, the hotel operator.

Wometco ready to break ground for new 2,400-seater on swank Lincoln Road. House will be named the Carib.

Clubs due to close in next two weeks include Copa City (March 25), followed by Beachcomber and Alan Gale's.

San Franciso

By Ted Friend

Vincent Price in for Red Cross Drive.

Burl Ives in for Opera House stint; ditto Leonard Bernstein.

Arthur H. Hayes, KCBS exec, to Palo Alto hospital for surgery.

Town's newest late spot, Caribbean Room, under aegis of Jo Mori.

Bobe Hope and Andrews Sisters to head yearly Newspaper Frolic April 1 at Auditorium.

Local Academy of TV Arts and Sciences to hold award dinner at Fairmont hotel March 24.

John Barrymore, Jr., snatching plenty local newspaper space during two-day p.a. at Paramount with opening of "Sundowners."

Atlantic City

By Joe W. Walker

City preparing to reward Palm Sunday, April 2, visitors with usual gifts of corsages to 20 women wearing what judges deem outstanding hats.

John Burke, president of the Boardwalk Assn. and manager of beachfront Ambassador, leaving early in April to manage Blackstone hotel in Chicago. Ambassador recently purchased for more than $2,000,000 by John McShain, Philadelphia contractor. Burke here since Kirbeky interests bought Ambassador in 1946.

Chicago

Leonard Newman flacking "Madwoman of Chaillot."

Morris B. Rotman made president of William Harshe Associates.

Fortune Gallo brings his San Carlo Opera company here for 39th season this week.

Harry Davies here in advance of "Lend an Ear," which opens March 27 at Great Northern.

Isaac Van Grove, composer and conductor, named musical director of 1950 Chicago Lake Front Fair.

Frank Mekimken, manager of recent World Hobby Exposition, appointed special events director of Lake Front Fair.

A new roofed pavilion seating 3,000 is being constructed for Ravinia Music Festival to be completed about June 15.

John M. Rodger, former McGraw-Hill veepee, appointed special assistant to Crosby M. Kelly, Chicago Lake Front Fair director.

Martha Rountree, Washington radio commentator, was key speaker at joint luncheon of Chicago Business and Professional Women and Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

In for world preem of "Golden Gloves Story" at Oriental March 22 are ex-champs Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey and Tony Zale; Tony Martin, Margaret O'Brien and Buddy Rogers; and stars of film.

Australia

By Eric Gorrick

Icerink biz away to a good start in Sydney.

Dick Altschuler, Republic's foreign topper, here.

Wirth's Circus started off well in Sydney on pre-Lenten run.

Government will curb its film section in move to cut expenditures.

Dave Martin is setting his big ice show for Melbourne via Williamson-Tait deal in His Majesty's theatre.

Natan Schenwald is making a bid with European pix in Auckland, New Zealand. First in will be "Paisan." Not much coin around in Aussie for the foreign fare.

Roy Rene, Hal Ashwood and Al Thomas will be the three local comics booked for the Sydney run of Harry Wren's "Hellzapoppin'," bowing into the Empire, Sydney, around Lent.

Ken Warner replaced Robert Grieves as male lead in "Oklahoma!" at Royal, Sydney, for Williamson-Tait. Other changes include Fred Murray for William Redd Knight and Betty Sparks for Louise Barnhardt. Grieves, Knight and Bernhard have returned to the U. S.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Nancy Walker headed weekend show at the Carman, nabe vauder.

Artur Rubinstein will guest star at Robin Hood Dell's 21st anni dinner in the Bellevue-Stratford, April 5.

Eddie Newman resigned from his WPEN late night show; place taken by Kal Ross, formerly of WPWA, Chester, Pa.

Gertrude Berg headed the list of guest stars at the kickoff of the 1950 Allied Jewish Appeal, Sunday night (19) at Academy of Music.

This city has been taken off Jack Benny's 60-date tour this summer, but the Golden Slipper Square Club still is trying to bring in radio comic for its annual show, June 6.

Vienna

By Emil W. Maass

Robert Stolz back from London.

Franz Groebner, 47, publisher, died after tooth extraction.

Kaethe Sold of Burg theatre broke her arm in accident.

Hans Hotter of State Opera inked for N. Y. Met in October.

Bruno Hoetsch elected president of Film Producers Assn. (educationals).

Hans Hass, producer of underwater shorts, off to Red Sea for additional films.

Paula Wessely Film Co. to do Carl Zuckmayer's play "Barbara Blomberg," with screen version by the author.

Honolulu

By Mabel Thomas

The Joe Pasternaks here following completion of Metro's "Toast of New Orleans," which he directed.

"Damien," an Hawaiian-made film about the Molokai leprosarium, preems at the Kuhio theatre April 7.

Mario Lanza due in on the Lurline for a local concert. His wife, and business manager Sam Weiler, accompanying him.

Esther Williams and husband, Ben Gage, in for Metro's "Pagan Love Song." Most of the film to be lensed on the island of Kauai, some 85 miles north of here.

Berlin

By William H. Conlan

"Heimweh nach Berlin" the town's top song hit.

Dave Stein, MCA's Paris chief, mulling a trip here to o.o. the situation.

Gerhard Eisler running the Russian Zone's Radio Berlin aside from holding his chair at Leipzig University.

Jannine Charrot, who did the choreography for "Abraxas," came in from Paris to appear in the piece for three performances.

Russians offering top performers and writers "write-your-own-ticket" agreements. When it comes to entertainment in Germany, the Soviets won't hesitate to offer any price if it means acquiring prestige.

Hollywood

Joe E. Brown leaves for Australia April 16.

Jason Lindsey laid up with laryngitis.

Bing Crosby recovering from appendectomy.

Bill Peirce, Jr., opened his own publicity office.

Robert Young aired in from Washington, D. C.

Louis K. Sidneys celebrated their 37th wedding anni.

Dinah Shore and George Montgomery to Houston.

John Barrymore, Jr., left for a p.a. tour of northwest.

Dana Andrews on yachting vacation in Mexican waters.

Joe Nadel laid up after auto accident near Redlands.

Darryl F. Zanuck returned from his Sun Valley vacation.

Jus Addiss in from N. Y. to join Robert Stillman Productions.

Clark Clifford appointed Washington counsel for Howard Hughes.

Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz called off their proposed Cuban vaudeville tour.

Jeanette MacDonald lining up 20 cities for her next concert tour, starting April 8.

Alfred Hitchcock drew free luncheon from Hollywood Foreign Correspondents Assn.

Vincent Price addressed California Institute of Technology on responsibilities of an actor.

Larry Law collapsed with heart attack while acting with James Stewart in "Winchester 73."

Tom Tully received the Army Award of Merit for his work on airshow, "So Proudly We Hail."

Dr. Renato Gualino in from Rome to gander Hollywood as prexy of Italian Film Producers Assn.

Steve Cochran sustained severe cuts during a night chase sequence for "Two Million Dollar Bank Robbery."

Washington

By Florence S. Lowe

First drive-in of season, a Sidney Lust ozoner, unshuttered over weekend.

New Catholic U musical, "Try Your Luck," written by Leo Brady, preeming on campus April 23.

Sam Galanty, Columbia Pictures topper in this area, out of hospital and on mend after a tussle with virus infection.

CBS prexy Frank Stanton, and company v.p. Joseph Ream, being feted along with their wives next Friday by Earl Gammons, local veepee for web, and Mrs. Gammons.

Emil Coleman orch in initial stanza of four-week run at Hotel Statler's Embassy Room, with comic Georgie Gobel and chantoosey Maureen Cannon doing floor show honors.

Gloria Swanson p.a.'d before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee past week in a pitch for funds to combat heart disease, appearing along with Mrs. Arthur "Bugs" Baer, widow of the columnist.

Pittsburgh

By Hal Cohen

Phil Laufer in town drum-beating "Third Man," which Penn gets April 15.

Copa has Al Morgan booked for return date of five nights starting April 11.

Bobby Breen goes to London for engagement at Colony opening April 24.

Alexander Bros., and Pierre D'Angelo and Ana make up new show at Terrace Room.

Sam Fineberg, critically injured in Missouri crack-up while en route to Phoenix to visit his family, out of danger now.

Bobby Jarvis, who staged books for summer operas last season, set this year to direct Lambertville, N. J., Music Circus.

Jean McBride replaced Carol Gustafson in cast of national company of "Death of a Salesman" in Pittsburgh couple of weeks ahead of schedule. Miss Gustafson, on account of impending maternity, was originally scheduled to remain with show for the Pitt engagement.

Ireland

By Maxwell Sweeney

Odeon cinema in Longford burned March 13.

Tenor Frank Ryan to England for concert series.

Comedian Cecil Sheridan to England for vaude tour.

Hilton Edwards and Michael MacLiammoir in from Italy after more work on Orson Welles' "Othello."

Alice Delgarno and Babs de Monte, ballet mistress and designer for Dublin Theatre Royal's troupe, bow out for Parisian engagement this summer.

OBITUARIES

PROF. LAMBERTI

Professor (Michael) Lamberti, 8, comedian, died March 13 in ollywood after a long illness. fter a career on the stage and in ight clubs, Lamberti shifted to lms, in which one of his outstand-g roles was with Rita Hayworth n "Tonight and Every Night" in 945. His last picture was with arie Wilson in "Linda Be Good."

Lamberti's best known act was laying the xylophone, while a hapely gal did a striptease back f him and he was apparently unware of the goings on. This proided the delusion that successive ncores on the semi-classic tunes uch as "Listen to the Mocking ird" was prompted by audience's usic appreciation, rather than the umps and grinds of the peeler. owl finish had the comic get ep and seltzer squirt gal off stage. he act was a surefire bit in vaudeille for many years and was a eature of Mike Todd's "Star and arter" revue in 1942. He also id the bit in the film, "Tonight nd Every Night," with Rita Hayorth, star, as the strip-gal.

At first a serious student of the ylophone, Lamberti played for a me with the Cleveland Symphony rchestra. He tried "serious mu-c" in vaudeville, decided there as no money in it, and turned to e slapstick routine.

Jack Kapp

HARRY ELMER

Harry Elmer, 86, reputed dean theatrical managers, died March 8 at St. Barnaba's Home for hronic Diseases in New York.

Elmer, born in Springfield, ass., in his early youth went to n Francisco, where he met avid Belasco, who got him a job call-boy and later gave him mall parts in the plays he diected. He later joined the late illiam A. Brady, who made him company manager. In such caacity, he managed for Brady, Over Night," "After Dark," Bobby Taylor." "The Bottom of e Sea" and other popular plays.

Later on, Brady sent Elmer to ondon to manage some of his verseas productions.

In his declining years, Elmer ok up residence in the South France, but made frequent isits to the U. S.

At the beginning of World ar I, he was fortunate in securg passage on the last German ner sailing this way, and, from en on, he made his home at The ambs, N. Y., until he was run ver by an omnibus, and it became ecessary to place him in the St. arnaba's Home.

He was a member of The Lambs, life member of the Actors' Fund, nd one of the founders of "The ot Air Club," a group of theatrial men.

Survived by a son.

JACK KAPP

March 25, 1949

A Token of Everlasting Memory

Always in the Hearts of Irene and Sam Lutz

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Edgar Rice Burroughs, 74, novelt and creator of the "Tarzan" gas, died at his home in Encino, alif., March 19 of a lingering eart ailment.

His first "Tarzan" novel was ritten in 1915. Dozens since then ave been translated into 56 lanuages. First of the series was lmed in 1918 by National Film o. Sol Lesser recently finished Tarzan and Slave Girl," the 27th the series.

In 32 years, six thesps played e role in the "Tarzan" pix series, including Elmo Lincoln, Frank Werner, Buster Crabbe, Johnny Weismuller, Herman Brix and Les Barker.

Burroughs had invested heavily in California real estate and helped develop the western end of San Fernando Valley, with the town of Tarzana named in his honor. He was twice married and divorced.

Survived by two sons and a daughter.

RAYMOND WILSON PECK

Raymond Wilson Peck, 73, playwright and former Shepherd of The Lambs, died in East Islip, L. I., March 15, where for the last 10 years he had been managing director of the Percy Williams Home for Actors.

Peck, best known for his librettos and lyrics of musicomedies, had authored several Broadway hits in the early 1900s. Among them were "Castles in the Air" (1926), "The Right Girl" (1928), "The Rose Maid" (1910) and "The Vanderbilt Cup," Elsie Janis starrer. All four had long and profitable runs.

Peck was elected Shepherd of The Lambs in 1945 and held that office until 1947, when he was succeeded by Bert Lytell. In 1940, he became manager of the Percy Williams Home.

Survived by a nephew.

EDDIE MILNE

In loving memory of my dear husband who is never forgotten.

MONA MILNE

CHARLES RUSSELL

Charles Russell, 70, former acrobat, died in New York, March 16. He appeared with the Six Glinserettis, an acro turn, in Prof. Herman's Trans-Atlantic show in 1898 and with the Barnum & Bailey circus in 1899. He toured the Keith and Orpheum circuits with the act until 1911, when he became a member of the Three Escardos. Trio played vaude houses for seven years.

In 1919 he appeared in vaude bills as member of the team of Russell and Hayes.

ELSIE APRIL

Elsie April, 65, pianist, who reputedly coached Noel Coward to his first successes as a musical comedy composer, died in Leavesden Green, England, March 18.

She met Coward when he was a young composer in the 1920s and worked with him on the arrangements of "Çavalcade." She also had a hand in his later successes, "Bitter Sweet," "Conversation Piece" and "Operette." Coward dedicated the score of "Bitter Sweet" to her.

WILLIAM K. ROEDER

William Kelly Roeder, 67, playwright and lecturer, died March 15 in Evanston, Ill. He wrote about 50 plays with Catholic themes, most of them performed by Catholic high schools.

Some of his plays were performed in the early 20s at the old Powers theatre, Chicago. Among these were "In the Service of the Queen," "Thunder in Heaven" and "Driftwood."

Survived by a sister.

FRANK NORMAN HEARN, JR.

MARCH 26th, 1932

My Darling Boy: As the years go by I miss you more and more.

Mother,

JULIA KNOX HEARN

MRS. GEORGE ARLISS

Mrs. Florence Arliss, widow of actor George Arliss, died in London, March 11. She had appeared in several productions with Arliss, including the screen version of his stage success, "Disraeli."

Arliss died in 1946 at the age of 77.

A. JOSEPH JORDAN

A. Joseph Jordan, for many years orchestra director of Loew's Theatres, died in New York March 18.

Jordan directed the orchestra in the vaudeville days at Loew's Jersey City theatre, Loew's Pitkin theatre and Loew's State theatre in New York. At the time of his death he was in charge of the orchestra at Loew's Orpheum theatre, N. Y.

GRACE NILES

Grace Niles, former manager of Loew's theatres, died in New York March 20.

Until a few months ago, when she retired, Miss Niles was manager of Loew's 86th street theatre, N. Y. She previously was manager of the Astor theatre on Broadway, Loew's Lexington theatre, N. Y., and Loew's Plaza theatre, Corona, L. I.

JAMES ROBERT CHANDLER

James Robert Chandler, 90, an actor who for 20 years lived at the Percy Williams Home, East Islip, L. I., died March 17.

Chandler's first role was in 1880 in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He later appeared in productions of Lotta Crabtree, Lawrence Barrett, Helena Modjeska, Kyrle Bellew and Walter Hampden. He also appeared in early silent films. Surviving are two sisters.

ALFRED A. KERKHAN

Alfred A. Kerkhan, 61, purchasing agent for the Harris Amusement Co., died March 13 at his home in Pittsburgh from a heart attack. He had been in the theatre business for 46 years, starting out with the old Harry Davis Enterprises and joining the Harris outfit in 1926.

He leaves wife and a married daughter.

HANS MUELLER-EINIGEN

Hans Mueller - Einigen, 68, author-playwright, died in Einigen, near Thoune, Switzerland, March 9.

Austrian author, whose works include numerous novels, plays ("The Flame"), librettos and film scenarios, was one of the co-writers of the "White Horse Inn" operetta. He had lived in Switzerland since 1930.

HENRY B. PHILLIPS

Henry Bettesworth Phillips, 82, owner of the internationally known Carl Rosa Opera Co., died March 18 in London.

Phillips, who joined the company in 1918 as artistic director, bought it five years later and had participated actively in operatic affairs until two years ago.

CLAIRE B. SHERMAN

Claire B. Sherman, Jr., 23, staff announcer at WJTN, Jamestown, N. Y., died in that city March 13.

Sherman had been associated with station since 1942, when he entered the announcing field as a summer replacement. He joined the permanent staff in 1948 following graduation from college.

STANLEY E. BALDWIN

Stanley E. Baldwin, 68, founder and first manager of WTAM, Cleveland, died March 19 in Cleveland.

In 1920 Baldwin joined the Willard Battery Co. which owned the radio station, and organized its operations with S. E. Leonard, currently WTAM's chief engineer.

JACQUINOT JULES

Mrs. James C. Landree, 64, known professionally as Jacquinot Jules, and an organist at KMOX and KFUO, died at her home in St. Louis March 14.

She began her radio career at KMOX when the station was founded 25 years ago. For the past 10 years she has been broadcasting over KFUO.

Father of Jack Murphy, assistant film director, and Maurice Murphy, television producer, died March 11 in Hollywood.

Mother of Mrs. Andy W. Smith, Jr., wife of the 20th-Fox veepee and general sales manager, died March 14 in Greenwich, Conn.

Father of Russ Grant, Loew's publicity dept., died March 17 in Hartford, Conn., after a long illness.

Mother, 74, of James T. Vaughn, studio production manager, died March 15 in Hollywood.

Circuses Star

Continued from page 1

battle of the Big Tops is the Cole-Barnes engagement at Yankee Stadium, N. Y., for four days starting June 14. This booking indicates that the Cole-Barnes outfit really means to tie up New York in the future. This stand is expected to familiarize circus fans with C-B, and a hefty gross, of course, would make impact on Garden officials.

Since the Garden deal is on a percentage basis, Garden officials are expected to pay marked attention to the Yankee Stadium stand. If Cole-Barnes fails to get the Garden, it may set up an annual stand at the Stadium at $3 top. With 77,000 seats, one week's gross there will probably equal, if not exceed, the Garden take. Earnings also could be higher because of the shorter load of performers' salaries, advertising, etc.

Another factor in the Garden battle is the fact that Arthur M. Wirtz, operator of arenas and producer of ice shows with Sonja Henie, together with Jim Norris, who together own the Cole-Barnes outfit, are important stockholders in the Garden. Wirtz-Norris and Boyd are owners of the Cole-Barnes outfit. Each share is estimated to be worth $150,000. Boyd put up no money.

It's conceded by many that the Ringling show has the edge by virtue of its longer tradition in the field. Ringling's Howdy Doody deal came last week when the R-B&B felt it needed a strong TV attraction to counter Hopalong Cassidy. Deal was made by Martin Stone, indie package producer and part owner of the Howdy Doody show on NBC. Booking was an outcome of the puppet's tremendous draw as a "personal appearance" in department stores. John Ringling North, circus head and general manager Arthur Consello negotiated with Stone. Deal calls for replica of the famous dummy to appear in the circus "walk-through" in New York and Boston where the voice of Bob Smith, the show's emcee will be recorded in conjunction with the puppet offering. As is usual in the Garden and at the Boston stand, there will be no admission charge in these cities, but on the road where sideshows are given, admission will be charged.

In Boston and New York and any town where the circus is playing for the first time this year, Howdy will head "When Dreams Come True" spec via a midget dressed as the puppet. Clarabelle, clown, on the video show, will be one of the regular clowns in the circus. Dave Murphy, onetime press rep for the Beatty circus who worked for Stone on "Author Meets the Critics," will be barker, flack and general rep for the Stone organization on the road. They'll sell special Howdy Doody merchandise at the side show with Miller Bros. which has the concession, and the Garden.

Deal calls for Stone to get a percentage of the sideshow take throughout the tour. This, naturally, cuts in NBC and Bob Smith who own pieces of the puppet show. Another part of the deal calls for one act from the circus to appear each day on the Howdy Doody television show during the Garden engagement. Another stipulation calls for Stone to set up a replica of a television set in the sideshows, at which kinescopes of the Howdy shows will be run. This is designed to help introduce the character to kids in non-teevee areas, as well as to prepare the locale for Howdy Doody merchandise. It's also stipulated that the puppet will be spotlighted in newspaper ads and billboards.

DeMille Getting Set

Producer Cecil B. DeMille and a staff of technicians are heading for Sarasota, Fla., to join the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus at its winter training grounds. DeMille will spend two weeks at Sarasota wrestling with technical problems on his forthcoming pic on the circus.

Filmmaker then accompanies the circus to Madison Square Garden, New York, where the three-ringer opens for a month's run, April 5. He will take test shots at the Garden for composition, lighting and scope.

MARRIAGES

Nancy Olson to Allan Jay Lerner, Los Angeles, March 19. Bride is a screen actress; he's a playright.

Dorothy Cooper to Paul R. Cerf, Las Vegas, March 11. Bride is a screen writer at Metro.

Lois Barker to Duke Shumow, Chicago, March 12. Bride is secretary to Ashton Stevens, Chi Herald-American drama critic; he's a Chi theatre owner and son of Jack Shumow, Warner Bros. Chi branch manager.

Dorothea McGough to Richard Carr, Pasadena, March 17. Bride is an actress; he's a radio scripter.

Joan Leslie to Dr. William Caldwell, Santa Barbara, March 17. Bride is a film actress.

Alice Talton to George M. Cahan, Westwood, Calif., March 18. Bride is a screen actress; he's a television producer.

Dr. Eleanor Bernert to James Sheldon, Tarrytown, N. Y., March 19. He's producer of NBC's radio and television simulcast of "We The People."

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shayne, daughter, Burbank, Calif., March 11. Father is a screen actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wrench, daughter, Los Angeles, March 10. Father is a film editor at Metro.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFerrin, son, New York, March 11. Mother is a concert singer, known professionally as Sara Cooper; father is with "Lost in the Stars" (Music Box, N. Y.)

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rockwell, son, Santa Monica, March 12. Father is a screen actor.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Spencer, son, Hollywood, March 11. Father is Hollywood chief of radio-television for Foote, Cone & Belding ad agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mills, son, Creston, Ia., Feb. 17. Father is music director and production manager of station KSIB in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kirby, daughter, Hollywood, March 16. Father is Sonja Henie's skating partner.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Penzell, daughter, Brooklyn, N. Y., March 13. Father is a flack with the Muriel Francis office.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Mendelsohn, son, New York, March 18. Father is eastern radio contact for Universal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Roberts, daughter, Philadelphia, March 18. Mother is a TV director and producer; father is Muzak's national sales promotion and publicity director.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lenny, son, March 17, New York. Father is talent agent; mother is Betty Jane Smith, dancer.

Coaxial Cable

Continued from page 1

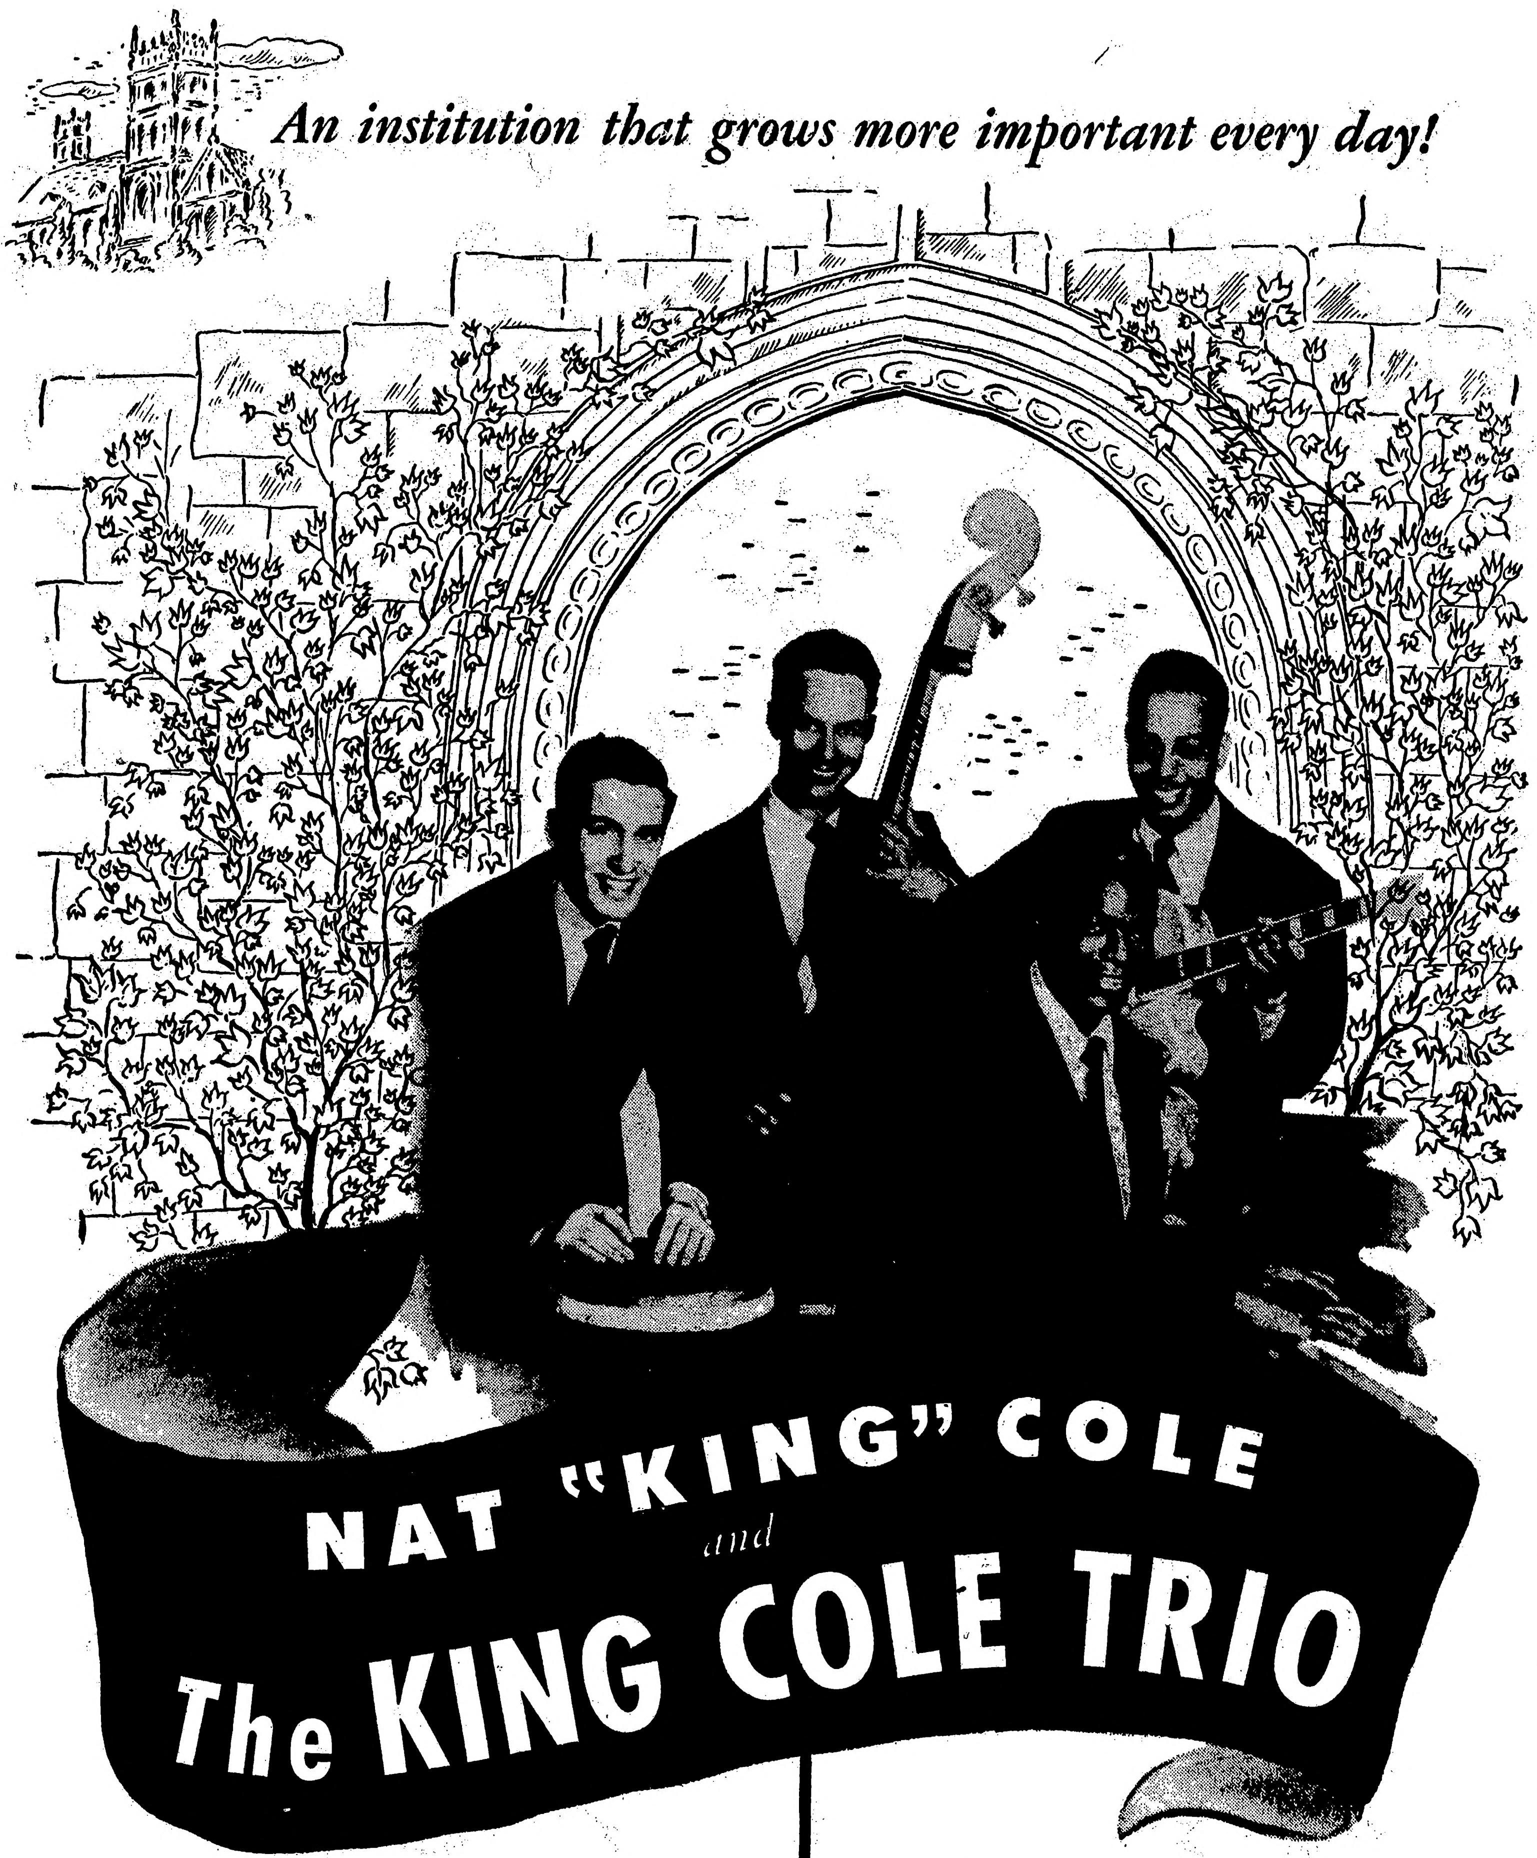
but that it would have to wait until microwave relays from Washington to Birmingham (via Richmond, Charlotte, Jacksonville, and Atlanta) are completed late this year.

The east-west TV hookup, Cowan indicated, might come about sooner through establishment of radio (microwave) relays straight across the country, such relays are now under construction between Chicago and Omaha (via Davenport and Des Moines), with branch lines to connect Minneapolis and Kansas City. These links are to be completed by October. In the meantime, preliminary engineering work is under way looking toward construction of additional relays from Omaha to San Francisco. But this is a big job involving great distances and difficult terrain.

Television network service now extends to 51 stations in 26 cities, with Boston the farthest point east and St. Louis the most westerly point. Sixteen more cities will be added to the eastern network before the year ends. On the west coast, radio relays between Los Angeles and Frisco are scheduled for completion in September.

A.T.&T.'s present facilities will carry color transmissions using the CBS and Color Television, Inc., systems to its existing network but can carry RCA color only to 19 cities, which are connected by radio relay, Cowan testified. This is because RCA color will not go over the coaxial. Cowan estimated it would take two years for A.T.&T. to modify its coaxial to carry RCA color over its entire network.

Cost of carrying color over the network, Commissioner Frieda Hennock observed, is a "vital issue" in the color television proceedings.



An institution that grows more important every day!

NAT "KING" COLE
and
The KING COLE TRIO

Personal Manager CARLOS GASTEL
Press Relations GENE HOWARD
MILTON KARLE

Direction—
GAC
GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION
THOMAS G. ROCKWELL, President
NEW YORK • CHICAGO • HOLLYWOOD • CINCINNATI • LONDON

Recently Acclaimed
by Capacity Audiences

FAIRMOUNT HOTEL
San Francisco

THUNDERBIRD HOTEL
Las Vegas

Currently at
PARAMOUNT THEATRE
New York

FILMS RADIO VIDEO MUSIC STAGE

VARIETY

108

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 19, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $10. Single copies, 25 cents
Entered as second class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879

COPYRIGHT, 1950, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

VOL. 178 No. 3 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1950 PRICE 25 CENTS

CBS GRAB FOR TV COMIC CONTROL

Hope's $1,000,000-a-Yr. NBC Deal

Hollywood, March 28.

A contract committing Bob Hope exclusively to NBC for both radio and television at the highest figure ever paid an air performer, was expected to be signed today (28). Understood long term deal calls for $1,000,000 annually.

Negotiators moved into the office of Martin Gang, Hope's attorney, where terms were discussed and contracts reported drawn. It explains the presence of prexy Joseph H. McConnell and board chairman Niles Trammell here from the east.

Comic is still under contract to Lever Bros. for radio, with the next option due mid-June. The sponsor hasn't indicated whether he will renew, although Hope has sought release to sign with either Chesterfield or General Motors, among others who want him.

Met's Most Drastic Revamp in History Has Longhairs Tearing Out Their Locks

By ARTHUR BRONSON

The most drastic revamp in the history of the 65-year-old N. Y. Metropolitan Opera looms for next season. This applies to repertory and artists' roster, as well as to management and business setup, with results likely to be startling if not explosive. Changes thus far contemplated have caused consternation or bewilderment in the concert world, with a modicum of amusement.

On the business side, the Met management is reported surprised at the number of cancellations from subscribers because of the re-hiring of Kirsten Flagstad, who quit the Met in 1941 to join her Quisling husband. On the other hand, subscription requests are also reported rolling in for next season, some expressly due to the return of Mme. Flagstad, who is acknowledged the world's greatest Wagnerian soprano, but others mainly due to the fact that the Met is almost fully subscribed annually, and early birds want to get in their bids.

Change in artists' roster will be pronounced, with some top names

(Continued on page 73)

Cuffo Guest Shots on N.Y. TV-Radio Scare Pix Names

Hollywood, March 28.

Getting so that Hollywood names, whether radio or pix, dread visiting New York, especially if the quickie trips are for vacation or seeing-the-shows purpose. One pix-radio name figured up there are 23 different radio and television programs—all cuffo—which are alerted to his advent, either via his own press dept, or the sundry "celebrity" services which spotlight arrivals, hotels, etc., for niteries, luxury stores, florists, motor livery services—and pressagents.

The plenitude of disk jockey shows in the New York sector is still another problem, particularly if the Hollywood personality has wax affiliations. The theory of the deejays' value for phonograph recording plugs places a burden on sensitivity and rivalry. One comedian frankly stalled all winter and is only being lured east by the opening of the baseball season.

Ed Noble Buys Back His Thousand Islands Club

ABC board chairman Ed Noble has bought back the palatial Thousand Islands Club on Wellesley Island from the Canadian Steamship Lines, to whom he had sold it in 1944. Property, which includes a 50-room club and an 18-hole golf course, is valued at more than $500,000.

Noble said the club will continue under its present management.

Col. Artists Mgt. Probed as Trust By Rep. Celler

Washington, March 28.

An alleged monopoly in the booking of concert artists is quietly being checked into by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), chairman of the special congressional committee on study of monopoly power.

Celler disclosed that he has received many complaints by concert

(Continued on page 20)

Jessel Working On Govt. Theatre Plan

George Jessel, who flew in to emcee the 5th annual George Gershwin Memorial Concert at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., Sunday night (26), thought he would get the okay from Key West, to visit the President's Florida "white house" on a show business project the showman has in mind. Instead, he flew back to the Coast that night.

Jessel informally discussed it before with President Truman but now more concretely has plans in shape for his proposed National Theatre, with Government subsidy, in Washington. It would be a legit venture along the lines of London's Royal Academy. Further details are q.t. until he can personally detail them to the President.

EXCLUSIVE DEALS WITH TOP NAMES

CBS has initiated a drive to corner the comic market for video. Over the past few weeks the web has negotiated an unprecedented number of deals designed to give its video programming operation a comedic facade second to none.

With Ed Wynn already entrenched with his Coast-kinescoped commercial show and the Alan Young kine program teeing off next week for Esso, Columbia has bolstered its comedy lineup with exclusive deals involving Bert Lahr, Ben Blue, Jack Paar, Garry Moore and Joey Faye.

On the premise that "a network is as good as its comedy lineup," the CBS programming braintrusters are still shopping around to enhance the roster and create a backlog of comedy shows for strategic showcasing to bolster weak segments, and as major rounds of ammunition in agency-client solicitation.

CBS is making allowance for inevitable percentage of casualties, but feels that if the longterm contract and audition splurges pay off by projecting only a few into the TV comedy bigtime, the web will have been rewarded.

The web is cognizant, too, of auxiliary compensations, for behind the repacting of Abe Burrows to another year's contract is an awareness that while his own Wednesday night video show has drawn a blank, nonetheless the Burrows spontaneity as a TV panelist on other web shows and his "desk" contributions as an idea man make him one of Columbia's top video assets.

The Bert Lahr comedy - revue show comes up for auditioning in 10 days. Ben Blue's TV entrant will be "cut" next week. Garry Moore, inked to a seven-year CBS exclusive, comes east in another month for huddles on his TV plans, with possibility that his show will originate from N. Y. The Jack Paar show is now in the blueprint stage and Joey Faye, already involved in CBS' "54th Street Revue," is getting a format facelift to put additional accent on TV comedic talents.

Cantor 'Fires' Sponsor; To Concentrate on Video

Eddie Cantor pulled the unusual of firing his sponsor, telling the Biow agency he doesn't want to renew with Eversharp-Schick for the fall, although achieving the unusual of getting the show a "rating."

Cantor's main reason is his desire not to be tied down to any weekly program. Instead, he gave Niles Trammel, NBC board chairman, reassurance that in late '50 or by 1951 he will do a series of television guest shots—but, again, sans any regular commitment. The comedian prefers to remain footloose to do his sundry one-man shows—"my 40 years in show business," as reviewed in this issue.

'Mickey Finn' Death Probe Clamps Lid On Vice in N. O.'s French Quarter

New Orleans, March 28.

The Latin Quarter Club in the city's historic Vieux Carre, was padlocked Friday (24) by the Federal government.

The action came as Police Supt. Joseph L. Scheuering promised to "make it tough for pandering taxi drivers, B-girls and prowling party girls in the city's nightclub belt before another wealthy tourist gets a lethal Mickey Finn."

The police official was urged on against the "racketeers, macers, bums, thieves, prostitutes and procurers" of the Vieux Carre's dimly-lit bars, striptease emporiums and dives by two New Orleans newspapers, the militant New Orleans Item and The New Orleans States.

They were aroused by the discovery that the brain of Robert E. Dunn, Jr., 42, a wealthy Nashville, Tenn., contractor who died in the Latin Quarter Club at 5 a.m. New Year's Day, was sogged with chloral hydrate—the chemical that makes a highball a Mickey Finn.

The body of Dunn, considered at first by Coroner C. Grenes Cole of Orleans Parish to have been the victim of a heart attack, was exhumed. Louisiana chemist

(Continued on page 73)

Too Much TV Cheesecake, IQ 'Girls' Mask Their S.A.

NBC feels it's okay for "Leave It to the Girls," the Sunday night video package to sell Regent cigarets glamorously, but too much s.a. may be n.s.g. for the Sabbath eve b.o.

The glam board, usually comprising femcee Maggi McNellis, Eloise McElhone, Florence Pritchett, Robin Chandler, Lois Andrews, Betty Furness and Dorothy Kilgallen, invariably are as s.a. as their IQ, but they have been on an off-the-shoulder sartorial kick. Of all people, the shading of Miss Kilgallen's gown recently gave it a strange Gypsyroselee look—a new look that bothered the network and sponsors after they got bluenose type letters. So the gals are doing a cover-up.

4A's Snafus Par's Chi-to-N.Y. Vaude Via Big-Screen TV

First attempt to transmit a stage show via theatre television from one city to another was snafued yesterday (Tues.), when the Associated Actors and Artistes of America demanded a full two-weeks salary for all performers in the show. Four A's reportedly invoked the long-standing two-week pay clause to forestall setting a precedent, but theatre TV execs pessimistically view the union's action as portending considerable difficulties for the development of the medium.

Paramount planned to televise 30 minutes of the stageshow from its

(Continued on page 20)

Magico's Magic Couldn't Hocus-Pocus Trunk Lock

Bellefontaine, O., March 28.

Robert Miller, magician, wished he had taken lessons from Houdini when he was locked out of a performance.

He arrived at Belle Center high school gymnasium, went back stage and began to prepare for his show, but he couldn't open his trunk of paraphernalia. No act of magic could force the trunk open, and the audience was dismissed. Contents had shifted in such a way that the lid was stuck. He is to return later for a performance—when he figures out how to pry open the prop trunk.

HOTEL AMBASSADOR
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.
WORLD FAMOUS COCOANUT GROVE
— Presents —
The Hour of Charm
All Girl Orchestra and Choir
Under the Direction of
PHIL SPITALNY
•GRAND OPENING•
Next TUESDAY NIGHT—April 4th

This Is Where Show Biz Came In 25 Years Ago—With Radio

With show biz appraising television versus the b.o., VARIETY'S files of a quarter-of-a-century ago disclose a direct parallel to radio at its inception. Following are some examples from VARIETY, summarized and in chronological order, of "history repeats itself."

March 8, 1923

Radio Service at $2 Monthly

Wired radio receivers, a compact device perfected by C. W. Hough, president of Wired Radio, Inc., will be available for rental at a $2 monthly charge. If sold outright price would be $35-50.

March 15, 1923

Radio Craze No Opposition to Theatre

S. L. Rothafel, film exhibitor, noted that radio is proving to be helpful in hypoing b.o. receipts rather than detrimental. Metropolitan Opera House found the broadcasting of some of its programs whetted the appetites of music lovers causing an increase in the usually abnormal demand for tickets to certain performances.

June 21, 1923

Radio's Right to Copyright Music

Witmark & Sons preparing a friendly suit against WOR, marking first legal test of radio's right to broadcast copyright music without a license.

July 14, 1923

Radio Careless in Choice of Artists

Radio's carelessness in choosing artists cited as cause for poor shows which keeping good many people away from their sets.

March 5, 1924

Radio B.O. Danger

Radio is a boxoffice danger, assuming more and more the proportions of genuine opposition to all show business to the extent that it is actually giving show people some concern. A Peekskill, N. Y., film house played to empty seats the night President Calvin Coolidge broadcast his first address to Congress.

ASCAP urging American Federation of Musicians to demand that no musician perform for radio on premise radio entertainment automatically makes possible the elimination of paid music and musicians elsewhere.

Radio fans reportedly asserted

(Continued on page 22)

ISLES OF 'STROMBOLI,' 'VOLCANO' YEN TOURISM

Rome, March 28.

Two volcanic islands off the coast of Sicily, site of RKO's "Stromboli" and "Volcano," the Anna Magnani starrer to be released by Motion Picture Sales Corp., are trying to cash in on the publicity by touting the islands as a tourists' paradise.

Natives of the isles, part of the Lipari group, feel that if they were good enough to lure top film producers from Hollywood, then they're even better for the tourist trade. As a result, they are plugging the mild climate, beautiful scenery and top fishing. Islands, once known as the Aeolians, were used by political exiles during Mussolini's fascist regime in Italy.

CROONERS TAKING OVER BRITISH GOLFING MEET

St. Andrews, Scot., March 21.

Donald Peers, British radio singer whose teenage swoon following resembles Frank Sinatra's, is emulating Bing Crosby as an entrant for the British Amateur Golf Championship here in May.

"Who knows," said Peers, "Bing and I might even burst into a few duets—just to keep in practice."

Several Months' Delay On Hemingway's Film Deal for Latest Novel

Sale of the film rights to his latest novel, "Across the River and Into the Trees," likely won't be consummated for at least two or three months, Ernest Hemingway revealed upon arriving in New York Monday (27) on the Ile de France after several months in Europe. The novelist said that negotiations with Hollywood haven't even started, although all majors are expressing keen interest in the volume.

Meanwhile, Al Horwits, Universal-International studio publicity chief, who is repping Hemingway in prospective "River" film deals, has come in from the Coast to confer with the author during the latter's four-day New York stay. Novelist then goes to Havana, where he will revise page proofs on the tome. Scribner's is publishing around the middle of August.

Hemingway said that he expects the book to be completed from his standpoint in July. Meantime, Cosmopolitan mag is running an abridged version in serial form. First installment appeared in the February issue, and the final piece will run in June. Novelist also disclosed that he expects to have a book of short stories ready for publication some time in 1952, and a long novel in 1953 or '54. He has already written some 186,000 words on the latter work.

MCA Pacts Takeover Of London's Linnet & Dunfee

London, March 21.

Music Corp. of America's deal with Linnit & Dunfee to acquire latter's agency has been closed by Jules Stein, who arrived a few days ago to settle the deal.

This involves nearly $1,000,000 and calls for MCA to take over the entire L. & D. film and legit agency activities, comprising several big English and American film and legit names.

Contract will permit L. & D. to carry on their play producing activities as heretofore, and will also permit them to produce pictures in England which they have seriously been developing.

Understood Lew Wasserman, MCA's prexy, is expected here end of March to settle company's future operations. Laurence Evans, London general manager of MCA, is expected to stay in that capacity when company shortly takes over L. & D.'s activities.

3/29

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $
Please send VARIETY for One Year / Two Years

To ....
(Please Print Name)

Street ....

City.... Zone. State.

Regular Subscription Rates
One Year—$10.00 Two Years—$18.00
Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional per Year

VARIETY Inc.
154 West 46th Street New York 19, N. Y.

WILL MAHONEY
THE INIMITABLE
Lee Mortimer (N. Y. Daily Mirror) says—"Everybody loves Will Mahoney."
Booked By
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.

Cantor's 1-Man Carnegie Show Sock Milestone

By ABEL GREEN

Eddie Cantor gave a one-man showmanship demonstration at New York's Carnegie Hall last Tuesday night (21), grossing $8,900 at $3.60 top, which is (1) a self-written script for "The Cantor Story," when his biopic is filmed, and (2) a milestone in show business. It can set a pattern for similar cavalcades by any of the contemporary greats of now and yesteryear, blending nostalgia and the present into a socko evening's entertainment.

The fact that Cantor henceforth favors working to students at 75c top, such as the University of Arizona and at William & Mary's College, rather than the fancy scales up to $3.60, is beside the point. It opens up a new type of concert attraction for people of the Jolson-Jessel-Berle school—some not as seasoned, obviously, but all capable of blending their cavalcades into a running script which combines song and story.

Backed only by two Steinways, and working from notes on an easel in quite the Carnegie man-

(Continued on page 75)

John Hersey's Unique Privilege—OK on DOS' Pic Version of His Book

David O. Selznick has purchased screen rights to "The Wall," recently published John Hersey novel. Price is reported at $100,000 plus a percentage of the picture's income and the property reverts to Hersey after 25 years.

Most unusual angle, however, is that Selznick under terms of the contract gives Hersey the right to pass on the choice of screenwriter, cast and director. This is a unique concession, particularly from Selznick, who has always been extremely jealous of his own right to final approval of any picture in which he is involved.

Hersey, however, stuck to his guns on the approval angle, claiming more important to him than the money involved was assurance that the film about Jews in the Warsaw ghetto during the war be made in keeping with his conception. Selznick agreed, asserting that he saw in the book the biggest property since his "Gone With the Wind."

Attempts may be made to shoot

(Continued on page 20)

Seek Crosby, Walcott For Tour of Germany

Berlin, March 21.

Bing Crosby and "Jersey Joe" Walcott would appear here May 28 under a plan being mulled by the U. S. occupation authorities.

In the event Crosby and Walcott decided to make the junket, the Army would provide a special plane to and from the west sector of Berlin.

Broadway, Incorporated

By JOE LAURIE, JR.

CAST: BROADWAY, SR.—A guy who has played everything from one o' cat to the Palace.

BROADWAY, JR.—A youngster in show biz who is being weaned on the Borscht Circuit and small time nite clubs.

TIME: Now.

PLACE: Times Square.

Junior: Where have you been oldtimer? Haven't seen you around for some time.

Senior: I've been laid up with that algebra virus—X—unknown quantity—you see I do remember some of the stuff I learned in school. Maybe I've been hiding from the guy with the Scythe whose been around the past few weeks cutting down a lot of my old friends, like Sid Grauman, Lew Lehr, Bill McKenna, Ray Peck, Brock Pomberton, Arthur Hopkins and a lot or others. I rolled up in the sheets and maybe he figured I was a bundle of laundry and passed me by.

Jr.: Of course I didn't know those fellows but I did know they were swell showfolks.

Sr.: You know, just as many went Upstairs years ago, but we were younger then, and didn't know the big guys that were passing, the same as you today. What gets me is those obits. Take for instance my old friend Sid Grauman, the papers said he discovered Al Jolson and Sophie Tucker. Why did they have to say that? It isn't true. He did a lot of stuff for show biz, he didn't have to be built up. Sophie Tucker was pretty well set playing at the German Village, Pastors, burley and vaudeville before she ever reached the Coast. And so was Jolson who played with Jolson, Palmer & Jolson, Lew Dockstader show and vaudeville before he met Grauman. Sid didn't need a build up with those two great artists; he did so much for the picture business that he could lay against his record. A great guy and a great showman. And with all these great newspaper guys around, not one mentioned that Arthur Hopkins was the guy that sent in the scoop of the assassination of McKinley when he was a newspaperman.

Jr.: I wonder how they muffed that one?

Sr.: Well they stressed him being a producer. And kid, he was a great producer, a guy that loved the theatre, produced great plays and discovered great artists. Did you know he wrote and produced acts for vaudeville? Well he did.

Jr.: That's all B.M.T.—Before my time.

Sr.: Listen kid, I'm not picking on you for not knowing all these great guys, I just feel sorry for you that you didn't live in an age when those greats of show biz were in their prime, building a foundation for the business you are now making a living in.

Jr.: I notice you like to take a sneak punch at us young guys once in a while, oldtimer.

Sr.: Maybe I do, kid, but I do it with an open glove. But you young kids make me shake my head like it was on ball bearings.

Jr.: What now?

Sr.: While I was sick I had a great chance to listen to radio—and I wanna tell you it's a shame.

Jr.: What's a shame? That you ain't in it? A lot of guys are making plenty of moolah.

Sr.: That ain't new, kid. Top guys with talent always made moolah; that goes for every business. But what I'm getting at is some of these new kids—and some of the older ones in show biz. They make appearances on disk jockey shows, which are a pretty big thing today—if you stay up. And there's lots of guys that stay up. And these disk jockeys introduce their guests as wonderful, most wonderful, greatest, the wittiest, the tops. Gee when you listen to these introductions they sound like 16-sheets for the circus. They have forgotten the word good, fine, able, which isn't bad for a comic. And after this great buildup, which I realize the jockey must give because it's F.F. (for free) and he has to pay off the guy, even if it's with a hundred boosting words, which is fair enough in show biz, but after the big buildup, the comic comes on. He either uses parts of his routine, or he talks about something he knows nothing about. Then to make it worse a couple of comics get together and start ad-libbing—adlibs with stock stuff—the answers are always the same.

Jr.: Well, what's a guy gonna do? You gotta be seen, you gotta be heard, you gotta be in the public eye and the disk jockeys today are a big thing.

Sr.: That's fine. But the comics especially, should get hep to themselves and have a routine prepared, have some guy write some special stuff for interviews so they could be heard to advantage, so they don't have to use parts of their act to get laughs, and kill their act. Don't let them hog the mike. Don't let them go from place to place like a route, and do the same routines. The disk jockeys must know that the guy just did the same routine on another show maybe 20 minutes ago, unless they're very naive, but it certainly isn't fair to the comic. The listeners figure the guy is a one-way guy; knows just a few things and keeps repeating them.

Jr.: Well, you can't blame these kids; they may have a new recording coming out, and have to boost it, or they may be laying off and some guy hears 'em and books 'em. And they naturally want a plug.

Sr.: Say Junior, you're not trying to tell me the gimmicks, are you? I know all of 'em. I don't say they are wrong trying to plug a show, a new recording, or a book, or to plug themselves. Although I wanna tell you kid, and this is strictly confidential, and I don't mean my pals Jack Lait and Lee Mortimer's new book, but did you ever hear of a hit in anything that needed a plug?

Jr.: Well, no, but it don't hurt any.

Sr.: Certainly not, and the guy that sed I don't care if they knock me as long as they mention my name. Well, kid, in my book he was as wrong as a guy in the YWCA pool.

Jr.: So you think that comics should have routines for different appearances?

Sr.: Not exactly routines, but try to do something different or talk about something they know. Not to adlib because, brother, they keep repeating themselves, and very few of our present day comics can adlib. I don't mean the regular stock and file answers; why some of those guys even ask their own questions to get the comeback in. I'm sorry kid you don't remember guys like Willie Collier, Johnny Stanley, Wilson Meizner, Frank Burt, Grant Clarke, Joe Frisco, Julius Tannen and a half dozen others. They were wits and fast on the adlib; they used their beans, not their files. Now listen, I don't mean to say that some of these new kids aren't gonna be good, but until they are they should get writers to fix their answers. I always told you, Junior, that it's the woids that count.

Jr.: Go on, tell me some more.

Sr.: Sorry, Junior, but this virus thing's got me down. I feel weaker than the second bow at Youngstown. Be seeing you again when I get as strong as Jolson's receptions in the Winter Garden.

Byram's European O.O.

John Byram, Paramount's play editor, sails for Europe on the Ile de France April 15. He will visit London and the Continent to view the current crop of legiters as prospects for filming by Par.

Byram will be accompanied by his wife, Marian, legit press agent. They'll be away about five weeks.

Eleanora Duse Biopic

Film attorney William S. Roach planed to the Coast from New York over the weekend for a week of confabs regarding sale of screen rights to the d'Annunzio yarn based on the blog of Eleanora Duse, "Flame of Life."

Property is owned by Roach's client, Robert Goelet, Jr., heir to the New York real estate fortune.

REVAMP PIX SALES TO NIP SUITS

Total Revolving Debts of 5 Majors Down to $23,500,000, Lowest Since '47

Prolonged drive by major film companies to reduce their bank loans to a minimum in face of divorcement requirements and an uncertain b.o. future has sliced the total of outstanding obligations to the lowest point in three years. The five majors that borrowed varying sums in 1947 to bankroll production requirements have now cut these loans by $13,500,000 to bring total obligations on revolving funds to a low of $23,500,000. Reduction in these loans, carrying restrictions on the amount of ready assets which the companies must maintain, is regarded as one of the bright spots in the current film picture.

Besides these sharp slashes put through by Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Columbia and Universal, both Metro and Warner Bros. have reduced their funded long-term debts substantially. Neither Warners nor Metro negotiated revolving credits at the time that the other companies found them necessary.

As a result of the concerted action by the majors, the companies remain in a highly liquid position that gives them a free hand on cash requirements should the need arise in the future. The comparatively insignificant total of obligations as compared with total assets of the majors is credited with the favorable reaction of Wall street brokerage outfits towards the companies lately. A good number of reports have issued from the street recommending one or another major as an investment possibility despite anti-trust divorcement.

Biggest cut was pushed through by Paramount, which now has no bank obligations whatsoever. Sev-

(Continued on page 26)

FINANCIAL DOPESTERS HYPO WB ON EXCHANGE

Insistent reports in New York financial circles that Warner Bros. and the Dept. of Justice were nearing agreement on a consent decree to end the present anti-trust suit sent the company's stock into a wave of activity during the past week. More than 150,000 shares have been traded during the past six market days in transactions involving about $2,250,000.

Heavy buying sent the price up to a high of $15 a share during the week. That represents an advance of $2.25 from the year's low of 12¾. Rapid rises of ¾ of a point last Wednesday (22), ⅞ last Thursday and ½, Friday, led to profit-taking Saturday and Monday and a slight recession.

Price picked up again yesterday (Tues.) advancing 25c. to 14¾. Volume fell off, however, to 6,800 shares traded.

Continued heavy activity in the shares is expected on the basis of insiders' doping of profit possibilities should the consent decree be signed shortly and divorcement take place. The analysts see quite a few dollars rise merited beyond the $15 high registered during the present flurry.

Reports are that assets of the theatre end of WB are worth about

(Continued on page 18)

Sen. Long Sez 'Men' Not the Story of Huey

New Orleans, March 28.

U. S. Senator Russell Long agrees with the author of "All the King's Men" that the story is not that of his father, the late Huey P. Long. The senator, in Louisiana for a survey of the flood situation, said he has seen the film and can see no real resemblance to his father's life.

"If the picture was accurate," he said, "I'd have been a whale of a football player. Actually I played only in grammar school—and even then I was on the sixth grade's second team."

"Maybe," he suggested, "the picture was billed that way because the name Huey Long will still drag 'em in."

Loew's European Hop

Arthur M. Loew, Metro veepee in charge of the foreign dept., is heading for a prolonged stay on the Continent to oversee the shooting of "Teresa," Loew's personal production enterprise. Loew planes to Italy April 8 with Fred Zinneman, director of the pic, after the two wind up their casting chores in New York.

Metroite will remain in Italy until all camera work there is completed. He will return to his h.o. late in May or early in June.

20th Files For 90-Day Decree Stay; WB Soon

Twentieth-Fox yesterday (Tues.) filed an application for a 90-day stay of the anti-trust decree's divorcement and divestiture requirements in preparation for a formal appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Warner Bros. will follow some time this week with a similar motion, it is reliably reported. Application by 20th will be heard by the N.Y. Federal district court Friday (31).

Both 20th and Warner's moves are directed towards protecting their legal rights to an appeal should the settlement talks with the Government fail to produce agreement. Their deadline for taking a formal appeal, as well as Metro's, expires April 8.

Dept. of Justice will not oppose the motion for a stay although it will not specifically consent to it either. Metro recently obtained a similar suspension of the decree's workings but has yet to file its formal appeal. Actually, 20th's application is similar to Metro's in that it asks an immediate 60-day

(Continued on page 22)

NO ANGLO-U.S. TALKS BEFORE MIDDLE OF MAY

Meetings by the American industry with the British government on renewal of the Anglo-U.S. agreement will not be held prior to the second week in May, it has been learned. It is anticipated that Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade and chief negotiator for his government, will not be ready to receive the Yank delegation before that time. Americans are thus making plans accordingly.

Current two-year pact expires June 13. Negotiations to extend it were originally slated for March, following the elections in Britain. Labor government, however, has such a shaky majority that Wilson has had his hands full on cabinet matters, precluding his taking the necessary time to bargain with the Americans.

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, and Ellis G. Arnall, prexy of the Society of Independent Producers, are slated to head the U.S. delegation. While it was originally indicated they were to go to London only on an exploratory mission, it is expected now that they will be accompanied by a staff of experts prepared to negotiate a deal.

Par Eyes Durante For Normand-Sennett Pic

Hollywood, March 28.

Paramount is understood anxious to get Jimmy Durante for "Keystone Girl," Betty Hutton-Paul Douglas starrer based on the careers of Mable Normand and Mack Sennett. It's due for a mid-May start.

Durante reports next week to UI to costar in "Milkman" with Donald O'Connor.

LAWYERS URGE DRASTIC CHANGE

Industry lawyers are pressing for a revolutionary change in film selling as the only way of halting the still rising toll of treble-damage, anti-trust actions. Concerned over the possible impact of these suits on the financial structures of the majors, particularly with divorcement nearing, legalites are urging company toppers to completely revamp the distribution of pix. As an added argument, attorneys are contending that film rentals can only be boosted by a hard-and-fast rule against all circuit selling.

As the only way out of what an influential wing of the legal end of the business considers is a disastrous course, these attorneys are calling for an end to such practices as automatic product-splitting and the recognition that a particular circuit is entitled to first crack at product in an area dominated by the chain. Instead, company heads are being urged to order theatre-by-theatre sale of films without regard where the chips may fall.

Unless the entire system for distributing product is recast, several companies have been informed by their legal advisers that there can be no assurance of a letup in damaging exhib suits in the future. These actions have doubled in total

(Continued on page 18)

Build Art House In Carnegie Hall

City Investing Co., realty concern operating a number of theatres including the Astor and Victoria on Times Sq., is reported negotiating with Carnegie Hall on a proposal to construct an art cinema in the basement of that concert center. Space is now used by concert artists and others for practice purposes. Robert E. Simon, Jr., realtor who heads the corporation which owns Carnegie, has been on the lookout for a prospect for some time.

Should a deal be closed with City Investing, it is likely that the firm will turn over the artie when construted to Lopert Films. Latter is a distrib of foreign pix that also operates eight sureseaters in five

(Continued on page 22)

COMPO May Convene in D.C. Just As Sen. Johnson Starts Hearings

Next session of the Council of Motion Picture Organizations will likely be held in Washington during the third week in April. That will be at about the same time as Senate committee hearings on the Johnson bill proposing Federal licensing of individual workers and corporations in the industry.

COMPO session will bring to Washington an array of execs in every category of filmmaking, distribution and exhibition. They will be available to give testimony before the Commerce Committee headed by Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, who introduced the licensing bill after a strong attack on Hollywood morals in Congress a couple of weeks ago.

Session of the 10 industry groups comprising COMPO may also serve to elect a single spokesman to represent all facets of the industry at the hearings. Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, has generally headed the industry's representation in such situations. In addition to the fact that he reps only one aspect of the industry, however, he himself has been subject to considerable vituperation by the Colorado solon. Thus he is seen as in a

(Continued on page 16)

L. B. Mayer Easting

Louis B. Mayer, Metro's production chief, entrains for New York over the weekend, accompanied by Howard Strickling, studio publicity topper. Mayer is scheduled as one of the principal speakers at the "Brand Names" dinner, Waldorf-Astoria, next Wednesday (5).

Length of Mayer's stay in the east is indefinite.

No 'Czar' Slated For New Foreign Importing Group

New organization of foreign film importers, which met initially in New York two weeks ago, will have no "czar" and no censorship code, it was determined at subcommittee sessions last week. It will, however, have a self-regulatory code to cover trade and advertising practices and will employ a public relations man to promote interest in foreign films in the U. S.

Budget is still in the formulatory stage, as is the organization itself, but may run as high as $50,000 a year. Plans are now afoot for raising the coin, perhaps by a series of special showings in art houses throughout the country.

Next meeting of the organization, which is nameless as yet, will be held next Wednesday (5) at the Hotel Astor, N. Y. More than 50 importers, distributors and exhibitors of foreign product attended the initial session and at least that number are expected next week. Inquiries concerning

(Continued on page 24)

Texas Exhib Seeks Post of Lieut. Gov.

Lubbock, Texas, March 28.

Preston Smith, wellknown theatre owner, has announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor of Texas.

Smith is currently a Representative in the Legislature.

MPAA BD. BACKS BREEN ON 'BICYCLE THIEF' NIX

Motion Picture Assn. of America's board of directors upheld Production Code Administrator Joseph I. Breen yesterday (Tues.) in reviewing Breen's refusal to grant a seal to "The Bicycle Thief," Oscar-winning Italian pic distributed by Joseph Burstyn. Big turnout of the board viewed a screening of the film and then took action after hearing Breen and Burstyn. Latter must yank two scenes which Breen objected to before he can get a seal.

Burstyn will meet again with Breen today. They will re-screen the picture and view it in a Moviola. The Code Administrator main-

(Continued on page 24)

National Boxoffice Survey

Key Cities Continue to Lag; 'Francis' Again Champ With 'Cinderella' Big 2d; 'Horn,' 'Rio' Next

Usual pre-Easter slump, unfavorable weather and mild product, all are contributing to current downbeat in key cities covered by VARIETY this stanza. Along Atlantic seaboard, rain and touch of spring will clip grosses, while in middlewest storms hurt.

"Francis" (U) which pushed up to top position last week, is boxoffice champ again, although closely pressed by "Cinderella" (RKO), which was handicapped by having so many extended-run dates. Walt Disney picture, with Easter Week expected to bring a flood of bookings, is pacing L.A. and is so terrific at a small Philly theatre it may hit a new record. "Francis" held up in remarkable style at N.Y. Paramount in second week, and standout in Minneapolis, where opened this round.

Third best is "Man With Horn" (WB), with uniformly nice trade. "Nancy Goes to Rio" (M-G) is finishing fourth with promise of future spurt. Fifth money goes to "Key to City" (M-G) while "Three Came Home" (20th) is sixth.

"12 O'Clock High" (20th) is landing seventh position, with "Perfect Strangers" (WB), very spotty, showing enough strength to take over eighth spot. "Third Man" (SRO) is ninth and "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th), 10th.

In runner-up category are "East Side" (M-G), "King's Men" (Col) and "Red Shoes" (EL) in that order.

"Samson and Delilah" (Par) is tops in Louisville with giant total but is not current in many first-run keys covered by VARIETY. "Black Hand" (M-G is not making much of an impression this round with one good playdate and another okay the best of some five.

Several new pictures braved present sluggish trend, but few are doing much. "Conspirator" (M-G) hints some future possibilities, with one strong session. "Barricade" (WB) is checking in with three disappointing dates. In contrast, "Kid From Texas" (U) looms okay in L.A. "Yellow Cab Man" (M-G) is no great shakes on N.Y. preem. Others are showing little, although "Great Rupert" (EL) is okay in Buffalo.

"Johnny Holiday" (UA) looks strong in Buff and nice in Cincy. "Alias the Champ" (Rep) is big in Toronto. Academy Award is giving "Bicycle Thief" (Indie) three solid weeks in as many cities, all small arty spots. "Outside Wall" (U) is nice in Baltimore.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

VARIETY
Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED BY SIME SILVERMAN
Published Weekly by VARIETY, Inc
Sid Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 19, N. Y
Hollywood 28
6311 Yucca Street
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building
Chicago 1
360 No. Michigan Ave.
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq.

SUBSCRIPTION
Annual $10 Foreign $11
Single Copies 25 Cents

Vol. 178 No. 3

INDEX

Bills 65
Chatter 74
Film Reviews 11
House Reviews 66
Inside Legit 68
Inside Pictures 16
Inside Radio 42
Inside Television 46
International 13
Joe Laurie, Jr. 2
Legitimate 67
Literati 73
Music 50
New Acts 65
Night Club Reviews 60
Obituaries 75
Pictures 3
Radio 29
Radio Reviews 36
Records 50
Frank Scully 73
Television 33
Television Reviews 37
Vaudeville 59

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a Year—$20 Foreign

Music Hall Shifting Ad Accent To Stage Shows as Offset to TV

Radio City Music Hall, N. Y., the nation's largest and most successful theatre operation, has been in the same slump that has hit its smaller and less important brethren throughout the country since the end of January. As one means of combating the downtrend, managing director Russell V. Downing disclosed this week, the Music Hall is revising its advertising to put more stress on the live portions of its show.

Downing believes that is the best method readily available for meeting the threat of television. He sees TV as being responsible only in the most minor way for the present b.o. situation, but feels that the change in emphasis in the ads is a worthwhile effort to attract whatever patrons are being lost to the new medium.

"Television may be able to offer its viewers films or vaudeville or many other kinds of entertainment," Downing explained, "but there's one thing we have that it can't offer them. That's live performers. Actors, singers, dancers and comics in the flesh will always have a draw. So its logical for us to put more emphasis on that portion of our entertainment."

Music Hall topper is of the opinion that producers and distributors are not doing enough pre-selling of their pictures to meet present-day conditions. He holds that as one of the reasons that the Rockefeller 6,000-seater has run through four pictures since Jan. 25 in a series of two-week bookings.

Where Pre-Selling Lacked

Downing feels that had the tune, "My Foolish Heart," been as adequately plugged before the RKO-Goldwyn pic of that title opened at the Hall as it has since, the film would have had much greater pulling power. Likewise, he opines, Warner Bros.' "Young Man With a Horn" needed considerable more pre-opening selling.

"With that unusual title," he explained, "we found that people didn't know whether it was about 'Little Boy Blue' or what. If potential patrons had known what it meant, I'm sure there would have been more of them."

Other pix which the house has played during the eight-week period are "Stage Fright" (WB) and "Woman of Distinction" (Col). It opens its Easter show with War-

(Continued on page 16)

ADMISH TAXES DOWN $11,696,845 FOR 8 MOS.

Washington, March 28.

The story of how show biz is being socked and rocked by a poor gate and why it needs tax relief shows up in black and white in the latest Internal Revenue Bureau report.

For the first eight months of the Federal fiscal year—from July 1, 1949, to Feb. 28 last—U. S. admission tax receipts were down $11,696,845 from the preceding year. That means admissions for all amusements subject to the 20% bite declined by nearly $58,500,000 during the eight-month period.

Relatively, the dive for niteries subject to a 20% tax on tabs was considerably sharper. The tax take for eight months was $6,259,226. That reflected a business decline of nearly $31,300,000—and the nitery business grosses only about 10% to 11% as much as the amusements subject to the regular 20% tax.

January was a particularly sour month. The February tax collections, generally representing January business, were unusually bad around the nation.

Tax on general admissions brought in only $21,431,143, far behind the $27,909,000 of the previous month and the $26,907,000 of the same month a year earlier.

The nitery tax totaled $2,968,397, which trailed the poor $3,182,578 of the previous month and the $4,125,027 of the same month a year before.

New York's 3rd Internal Revenue District, which includes the Broadway Main Stem, reported admissions taxes of only a thin $2,339,902, much behind the $5,632,696 of the preceding month. Broadway's nightclubs, however, paid $352,434, which was a shade above the $350,524 of the previous month.

Par Skeds 5, Wallis 1 For April-May Lensing

Hollywood, March 28.

Henry Ginsberg announced six pictures, including one by Hal Wallis, as April and May starters on the Paramount lot. In addition, the Alan Ladd starrer, "Branded," will continue through April and into May.

Paramount starters will be "The Lemon Drop Kid," "The Keystone Girl," "Mr. and Miss Anonymous," "A Relative Stranger" and "Beyond the Sunset." The Wallis production will be "Dark City," starring Burt Lancaster.

Warns Against Passing Music Load to Exhibs

Production must fight to keep down the cost of music and not try to pass the tab to exhibition, Herman M. Levy, general counsel for the Theatre Owners of America, warned this week. In an analysis of the recent consent decree governing the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, Levy sees the theatre operator's "only concern that the producer does not pass the license fee to him." TOAer noted that production must now pay for both synchronization and performance rights.

Little chance is seen by Levy of an exhib recovering fees paid for seat taxes in past years. TOA attorney points out that the decision of Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell denied Harry Brandt and his group damages although he found ASCAP is a monopoly. Exhib would be in a favorable position to sue, he said, if he could (1), prove injury to himself arising out of ASCAP's illegal course of conduct; and (2), could present to the court a measure of damages other than sums paid on license fees to ASCAP.

Study of the decree points out that Judge Leibell felt that since cost of performance rights, if paid for by production, would undoubtedly have been passed on to exhibs, there was no damage. Court also felt, Levy said, that exhib "got

(Continued on page 26)

GOLDWYN ADDRESSES SIMPP ON FOREIGN

Samuel Goldwyn yesterday (Tues.) addressed a special meeting of the distribution committee of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers in New York. Session was called primarily for a discussion of foreign matters, including import licenses for indie producers in Japan and Germany. British situation was also mulled.

This was the first time that Goldwyn had attended a distribution committee meeting. He also recently addressed a meeting of SIMPP producer-members on the Coast for the first time. He spoke in general terms of matters affecting the future of indie production.

SIMPP prexy Ellis G. Arnall presided at yesterday's stanza.

Canada Lee's Brit. Pic

Canada Lee, who recently went to England to confab with Zoltan Korda on a role in "Cry, the Beloved Country," has been handed the part in the picture. He'll return to London early in June for the start of filming on interiors and then go to South Africa for location shooting.

Adaptation of the Alan Paton novel is being produced and directed by Zoltan Korda under the banner of his brother, Sir Alexander Korda. Two other Negro actors who made screen tests with Lee in New York are still under consideration for roles.

Weltner Back From S.A.

George Weltner, Paramount's foreign chief, has returned to his h. o. after a six-week trip through the Latin American countries.

Weltner touched every Latino territory in his flying trek. Paramounter also huddled with Stanton Griffis, U. S. ambassador to Argentina, who still holds a spot on Par's board of directors.

LOPERT'S RANK REISSUES BUT SANS TV

J. Arthur Rank has suspended the possible television showings of a sizeable block of his top pix in a deal for their sale to Lopert Films. While Lopert is expected to ink a pact with the Britisher within a few days, the transaction has been revamped to include an absolute restriction against Lopert booking any of these films on video. The sale, as originally planned, would have given the foreign pic distrib tele rights along with theatrical 35m and 16m privileges in the entire Western Hemisphere with the exception of Canada.

Reason given for the revised sale terms is that Rank found it difficult to clear television rights with the original distribs of these pix. In the main, distribs that handled release of the pix originally are Universal and United Artists. Nate Blumberg, U's prexy, has always opposed any videocasting of Rank pix, it has been reported previously. It is believed that UA also cast its vote against the move because of feared reprisals by resentful American exhibs.

Another revision in the deal cuts the number of films which Lopert buys from 30 to a current 20 total. Regardless of the reduction in total, Lopert will take rights to the most important of Rank's releases in the U.S. during the postwar era. Transaction includes "In Which We Serve," "Colonel Blimp," "Blithe Spirit" and "Caesar and Cleopatra," all UA releases; and "Seventh Veil," "Brief Encounter," "Stairway to Heaven" and "Great Expectations," handled initially by U.

Peculiar arrangement has been hit on for "Henry V," Rank's filmization of the Shakespeare drama which UA is currently releasing. Lopert will become producer's rep for this pic and take Rank's share of the proceeds until April, 1951. At that time, UA's rights to the pic expire. Major had refused to surrender any portion of its five-year deal. Lopert has the right to pass on UA bookings.

Lopert expects to shelve all the Rank pix (with the exception of "Henry V") for six months to one year before reissuing them. Payment is being made in an undisclosed amount of frozen pounds.

Fox Maintains Tie With Indonesian Govt.

Washington, March 28.

Matty Fox, member of the board of Universal Pictures, will continue to have important business relations with the United States of Indonesia despite the "annulment of the so-called Matthew Fox contract," according to a statement just issued by the Indonesian Government.

Fox originally had an exclusive trade contract with Indonesia, and the new statement asserts that, "Both parties knew there would be a final arrangement on a non-exclusive basis between Mr. Fox and the U. S. I. The two parties are still negotiating at the present time. It should be stated that Mr. Fox has been a staunch and genuine friend of the Indonesian people."

EL Will Reissue 4 Ed Small Features

Hollywood, March 28.

Edward Small turned over reissue rights to Eagle Lion on four old features originally released through United Artists under a five-year agreement. The five years are up.

Quartet consists of "Twin Beds," "Up in Mabel's Room," "Abroad With Two Yanks" and "Getting Gertie's Garter."

Majors Casual About TV Trailers

While most exhibitors in television market areas are pleading for the major studios to turn out special TV trailers, a roundup of the Big 5 discloses that Paramount, Warners and RKO have been experimenting with such trailers for some time. General reaction is that, while they're not expensive to produce, it is still too early to tell whether they lure customers into the theatres.

Of the other majors, Twentieth-Fox sales veepee A. W. Smith, Jr., promised at the company's New York showmanship meet last week that 20th would have video trailers available starting in September, teeing off with "Black Rose." Metro, however, indicated it is not interested. Questioned on when M-G might start producing trailers for tele, a top homeoffice spokesman declared: "No plans, no reasons, no comment."

Three companies producing the special films for TV generally make them available without charge through their field exploitation staffers to any exhib who asks for them. All the exhib has to do, consequently, is buy time on his local video outlet for their programming. Warners, in addition, has worked several co-op deals with theatre operators, sharing the time charges on certain select situations. Another method of TV advertising, incidentally, has been launched by indie producer Lester Cowan on "Love Happy," Marx Bros.' film being released by United Artists. He has made tieins with several regular sponsors, such as Guild Wine, Sunsweet Prune Juice, Curtis Candy, etc., in which they plug the film via specially-produced commercial spots on TV stations throughout the country.

RKO has made TV trailers occasionally on such pictures as "Mighty Joe Young" and "Joan of Arc," according to advertising chief S. Barret McCormick. He contended that advertising on video is no different than advertising in newspapers, on radio, etc., thereby minimizing the claims of some industryites that TV advertising plays to a mass "captive" audience. RKO, he said, chooses the films on which it turns out the vid trailers depending on the copy and pictorial elements available.

Paramount ad-pub chief Max Youngstein said Par has been utilizing the trailers since he took over his present position. Par lenses special footage for the trailers, he said, but even so their average cost is about $500. WB ad-pub veepee Mort Blumenstock said his company selects its TV trailer footage from the picture itself, same as with regular trailers, but is careful to select footage especially applicable to TV, such as that without long-shots, etc.

Scully in 4G Settlement On Olcott Biography

Los Angeles, March 28.

Author-columnist Frank Scully accepted a cash settlement of $4,000 from the estate of the late Chauncey Olcott as ghost-writer of the Olcott biography, "Song in His Heart," for the singer's widow, who died last year. Charles Rogers bought the book from Mrs. Olcott and sold it to Warners after clearing all music rights. Film was produced under the title of "My Wild Irish Rose," starring Dennis Morgan.

Warners was not affected in the suit because the studio bought the book "in good faith" from Rogers. In addition to the cash settlement, Scully obtained rights to 50% of all subsequent contracts, including television.

ARNALL SEEKS ACTION ON SQUEEZE VS. INDIES

Washington, March 28.

Ellis Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, was in Washington last week seeking action on what he believes will be the next Government development in the motion picture anti-trust field—the squeeze put on independent producers by some theatre chains and buying combines. Arnall said he wanted the Justice Department to get actively on the job of probing complaints which have been filed by SIMPP.

In addition, Arnall was interested in getting additional information on the prospective Arnall-Eric Johnston trip to Britain to work out preliminaries of a new Anglo-U.S. motion picture accord.

N.Y. to L.A.

Brian Aherne
Niven Busch
Nat Cohen
Cy Feuer
Leon Goldberg
Mark Goodson
Jerry Gray
Curtis Grotter
George Jessel
David Lipton
Ted Mack
Ernest H. Martin
Nicholas Nayfack
William S. Roach
Milton Sperling
Bill Todman
Bill Treadwell
Teresa Wright

Europe to N.Y.

Tom Arnold
Valerie Cardew
Peggy Cummins
Garry Davis
Marquis de Cuevas
Dean Dixon
F. S. Gentle
Paulette Goddard
Van Johnson
Mrs. Lewis Milestone
John Schmitz

Banker Favors Added $ From 16m, Reissues; Nix TV

Tom Walker, special rep for Bank of America in New York, said this week that the bank does not favor the sale to television of rights to unliquidated films in which it has an interest. It prefers to preserve the rights for reissue and 16m, both of which are more profitable outlets for oldies than TV at the present, Walker said.

Formerly associated in financial capacities with Hal Roach and Edward Small, Walker was recently employed by Bank of America to help distribs expedite liquidation of indie pix in which the institution has investments. A number of these have been slow in repaying the bank, and it is exercising its rights under the first lien it holds on every film in finances.

Walker has been principally engaged in working with the distribs on foreign deals for the pix. Sales of rights in various countries can be arranged for dollars in the U. S., and the bank has derived considerable coin from this process recently.

TV rights to average feature films are said to be bringing from $8,000 to $12,000 now. Rights for 16m distribution can earn a producer from $15,000 to $30,000, while

(Continued on page 66)

L.A. to N.Y.

Gaby Andre
Nan Blake
Joseph I. Breen
Sarah Churchill
Alexander J. Cohen
Wolfe Cohen
Gary Cooper
Bing Crosby
James A. Doolittle
Marius Erickson
James R. Grainger
Signe Hasso
Karl Herzog
Al Horwits
Lou Levy
Jeannette MacDonald
Louis B. Mayer
Sol Schwartz
Norman Siegel
Howard Strickling

N.Y. to Europe

Lewis Ciannelli
Irene Dunne
Kathleen Ferrier
Sylvia Fine
Rex Harrison
Danny Kaye
Tilly Losch
Benno Moiseiwitch
Michele Morgan
Jorge Negrete
Dr. Sidney Northcote
Ron Randell
N. Peter Rathvon
Leonard Sillman
Zadel Skolovsky

CAN NO LONGER OSTRICH-IZE TV

Specialized Theatres for TV

Oklahoma City, March 28.

Novel idea of a specialized group of theatre television art houses was broached to the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma here today (Tues.) by Nathan L. Halpern, theatre TV consultant to Fabian Theatres, American Theatres Corp., Century Circuit and Theatre Owners of America. Noting the number of operas, concerts, ballet and other dance performances during a year, Halpern pointed out:

"It may be that opera, dance and concert music will fit better into specialized, rather than general, motion picture theatres, just as some film theatres have become specialists for certain types of films. It may be, therefore, that the future will see hundreds of art houses specializing in opera, dance and music theatre TV. Large segments of the population, which are not regular theatregoers today, might attend such theatres regularly."

According to Halpern, the Metropolitan Opera, N. Y., "plagued by annual financial deficits, may find in theatre TV the additional revenues which will enable it to flourish." He noted that Edward Johnson, upon retiring as general manager of the Met recently, declared: "You'll see opera in theatres throughout the land . . . when the Met gets equipped for television." Halpern added, "Surely there are enough opera lovers or would-be opera lovers that could be developed through proper exploitation across the country, who would be interested in attending Metropolitan performances at local motion picture theatres."

Theatre Tele Has Enough Programs On Tap for Daily Operation—Halpern

Oklahoma City, March 28.

—Theatre television, able to draw on sports, Broadway legit, stageshows from de luxe vaudfilm houses, public events and numerous other sources, will have enough program material available to sustain it on a daily basis throughout the year. That idea was propounded to the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma here today (Tues.) by Nathan L. Halpern, theatre TV consultant, who averred that exhibs taking advantage of large-screen video can push their profits to new peaks.

Citing the value of better pictures, more vigorous showmanship, TV trailers and other techniques being advanced to lure more payees into the nation's theatres, Halpern said the industry needs still more —"a big concept, a big idea, like sound was 20 years ago, to capture the imagination and fire the enthusiasm of the public." Theatre TV, he said, "is the only big idea of such youthful potentiality and size and scope that is on the film industry's horizon today." Since large-screen video first loomed on that horizon, exhibitors, manufacturers, the Federal Communications Commission and other interested parties, have questioned what program material would be available to the medium. Halpern's

(Continued on page 18)

Goldwyn, Like DeMille, Sez, 'If You Can't Fight 'Em Join 'Em'—TV, Of Course

Prime fear of exhibs—that top Hollywood producers will soon turn their talents to making films for television—was fed afresh this week by Samuel Goldwyn. Goldwyn followed Cecil B. DeMille and other indie producers in suggesting that Coast studios must join forces with TV and turn out product for it.

While most theatre operators take the realistic view that there will inevitably be at least some Hollywood production of importanctance for tele, they've been trying hard to push off the day as long as possible. Exhib associations have consistently suggested to their members that they take punitive action against producers who sell even oldies to TV by not buying their new product.

Theatre ops fearing added Hollywood interest in TV picture making could find small comfort in Goldwyn's thinking, as expressed in a by-lined piece in the N. Y.

(Continued on page 16)

Sears Vampin' Till Ready

Grad Sears, United Artists prexy, who was taken ill in Palm Beach recently, returned to his office in New York briefly last week.

He's resting at home this week on advice of his doctor and expects to be back at his desk regularly starting next Monday (3).

New Threat

Chicago, March 28.

A new threat to theatre attendance came from an unexpected quarter here.

It was announced that Idle Motors, Inc., a new auto agency opening April 22, would show films in its lounge from 9 to 4 daily.

20th's Strong Sales Edge In Rank Theatres

Close collaboration between 20th-Fox prexy Spyros Skouras and J. Arthur Rank is apparently paying off for the American company. 20th has reportedly landed bookings for 16 films on the Rank-controlled Odeon and Gaumont-British circuits for the current year.

That will give 20th almost 25% of the available playing time after allowances for the British quota pictures Rank must play. Forced to share the remaining 75% of the time will be Paramount, Columbia, United Artists, RKO, Universal, Republic, Eagle Lion and Selznick Releasing Organization—in fact, every U. S. distrib except Metro and Warner Bros., which play the Associated British Circuit.

Each of the two Rank circuits uses a picture a week. The combo thus requires 104 films a year. Of these, about 36 must be British-made to fill quota requirements. That leaves 68 weeks of playing time, of which Skouras has sewed up 16.

In addition to the 16 which 20th will sell as first-features, it will offer Rank a number of other films

(Continued on page 24)

FAIRBANKS' INT'L FIRM TO MAKE PIC PACKAGES

Holllywood, March 28.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is organizing an international film production company to make pictures through package deals here and abroad. He declines to name his associates, except for Gene Markey, but says he has plenty of financial backing, not only in the U. S., but in Europe.

Fairbanks recently returned from England where the starred in "State Secret" for Alexander Korda. He will go back there next month to make "The Golden Age" for Markey, meanwhile huddling with bankrollers about the new project.

EXHIBS MULL BEST TIES WITH VIDEO

Past month, in the opinion of trade observers, marked a historic dividing line in the film industry's attitude on television. After being shrugged off for a number of years by most picture people, TV suddenly appeared to burst upon their consciousness as having "arrived."

The showmanship meetings sponsored by 20th-Fox in 37 cities since March 8, although not designed for that purpose, have been the prime factor in bringing TV realistically into the open as a major boxoffice threat.

Considerable thought that has enveloped the industry on the subject during the past month is also reflected in the mail that continues to pour into VARIETY on its editorial, "Nothing to Fear but Fear." It spoke of industry attitudes on the new medium and suggested that fear be abandoned for a more forceful approach.

At the 20th sessions there was for the first time open public discussion of the TV threat and what to do about it. Video at last seemed to come out of the closet in which exhibs, particularly, have tried to hide it.

Attitude of the theatre men at the 20th meetings appeared to be confused and uncertain. Most of them were willing to accept the exhortations of their leaders that tele was just another competitor along the lines of radio and night baseball and that it could be met by more forceful merchandising of their product.

However, with business down considerably from a year ago, there was also readiness to admit at the meetings that better selling was no complete answer to the TV problem. What the whole answer is—if any—most exhibs readily agreed they didn't know.

They listened to speeches, such as industry attorney Louis Nizer's at the New York session Thursday (23), with a desire to believe, but not complete conviction.

"The business is troubled by an anxiety neurosis for which there is

(Continued on page 18)

Skouras and RKO Make Peace in N.Y.

Long-standing feud of circuit operator George Skouras with RKO, his partner in a number of theatre ventures, ended this week when the sparring duo reached an agreement on the breakup of their joint interests in four metropolitan New York houses. To fete the peace treaty, Skouras will call off his $9,000,000 anti-trust action against the major pending in the N. Y. federal district court. Stipulation to that effect will be filed this week.

As a consequence, Skouras will drop charges that RKO violated the anti-trust laws by allegedly seeking to continue a monopoly with the acquisition of the four houses in question. His suit also contended that RKO forced the 50-50 partnership years back. Bone-of-contention was a clause in the partnership agreement which compelled a partner to sell out at book value. RKO balked at this requirement and the fight then erupted.

Terms of the settlement have not yet been disclosed. Reportedly, a division of the four houses is in the works. Involved in the action are two Springio circuit theatres in the Bronx; Midway, in Forest Hills, and RKO Proctor, Newark.

While Skouras and RKO have reached a deal on these theatres, no solution of their joint holdings in Metropolitan Playhouses has been reached. RKO has filed a plan with the Federal court to trustee their minority stock interest in Metropolitan and no suit is expected on the question.

Hearing on the RKO plan is

(Continued on page 18)

Biz Off in Hawaii Also and There's No Television There—Bill Rodgers

Curbstone opinion of William F. Rodgers, Metro's distribution veepee, is that television is not making serious inroads into boxoffice revenues at the present time. Rodgers gives that view as his "honest, personal opinion without any surveys as yet but from conversations with many people." Recently returned for the Coast, the Metro exec said his company's domestic grosses are just about even with last year.

Rodgers has made no urvey of the tele situation and its impact on films because he wants to wait until video is on a broad national basis. As for tele trailers to boost film attendance, Metroite said: "We've thought and thought about it but have done nothing yet nor do we have any plans for the immediate future."

Many exhibs are crying over the so-called effects of tele, Rodgers said, but actually there is no way of putting your finger on the b.o. damage, if any. Because business may be bad in some locales does not prove that video is the cause. As illustration, Rodgers said he spoke to a Hawaiian exhib while on the Coast who told him that returns are way off in the islands. "You can't blame television for that," Rodgers noted, "because there is no television in Honolulu."

Rodgers does not see television trailers as the answer to the problem posed by TV. "They may be a good form of advertising but, in a sense, they're limited," he said. "For one thing, there is no way of showing up color on the video screen. For us, that is a pretty important limitation. For another, there are still certain restrictions on the use of music."

Fighting for Rentals

Metro, he conceded, is currently driving to raise the level of rentals in some situations including New York where the company believes it is not getting a fair shake on terms. "In a sense, we too are fighting for our lives," he declared. "No matter who it is and where the theatre is located, we intend to get what we consider the right price for a picture. After all, if you don't feel you are getting the proper terms, you must take whatever steps are necessary to get them." (Metro is currently selling away from the Century and Skouras chains in some situations

(Continued on page 26)

'1st Runs' on TV

Minneapolis, March 28.

North Central Allied, in its current bulletin, deplores that first-run film product is now being shown on television here. Start was Sunday, March 5, when "Nicholas Nickleby" went out over WTCN's TV. Bulletin points out that 12 more J. Arthur Rank productions, many of them first-run for this territory, will follow on Sundays.

"What do you think you should tell Nate Blumberg's man to do with his product the next time he calls on you?" the bulletin asks. "What should you tell the salesman of any company who thinks so little of his regular customers that he sells non-theatrical outlets on this scale? You take it from here."

Metro Minority Rages Vs. High Pix Exec Wages

One of the longest stockholder battles in film history was waged last week by minority interests in Metro despite a demonstration by the management of M-G's brightening earning prospects. Disregarding a report by J. Robert Rubin, veepee and general counsel who presided at the meet, that Metro's net for the first half of 1950 will better the $4,117,117 of '49, dissident stockholders prolonged the morning meet well into the afternoon. Given pretty much of a free hand by Rubin, who refused to limit debate, dissidents attacked the level of film industry pay generally, and that of Metro specifically.

Rubin chaired the meet suavely, refusing to rise to the bait of a running attack. At his suggestion, stockholders were paraded to the Metro commissary for an on-the-house lunch, which interrupted the stormy course of the conclave. When a show of hands was called on new pacts for Louis B. Mayer, production chief, and Rubin, minority stockholders were decisively beaten and the new tickets won official okay.

Official count was 3,436,255 for the Mayer pact and 278,427 against. Rubin won by 3,436,255 to 284,752. In answer to a direct question, Rubin conceded that the vote against the contracts was the highest on record in the company's history.

As in the past, big gripe was aimed at what minority interests charged are the "disproportionate" salaries paid execs in comparison with other industries. One stockholder read a list of wage checks paid to toppers in a railroad company with approximately the same yearly profits. Subject also to attack were the Mayer and

(Continued on page 20)

BALABAN PLANES TO N.Y. FOR PAR BOARD QUORUM

Second interruption of Barney Balaban's Florida vacation last week was caused by Paramount's difficulties in getting a quorum for its board meets. Balaban, Par's prez, came north to sit in on a regular semi-monthly board conclave because of the absence from New York of a number of directors. He will plane back to Palm Beach shortly for a few more days.

One member of Par's board, Stanton Griffis, is permanently absent because he is U. S. Ambassador to Argentina. Adolph Zukor, board chairman, is in Arizona on a month's vacation. Several board members, such as Y. Frank Freeman and Henry Ginsberg, are stationed at the studio.

SAG Launches Drive To Weed Out Casuals, Keep Regulars Busy

Hollywood, March 28.

Jobs for experienced thesps, instead of casual strangers, is the aim of a drive instituted by the Screen Actors Guild to increase employment of its membership. Since the enactment of the Taft-Hartley law, SAG declares, an average of more than 80 newcomers per month have been hired by the studios, usually for one or two days. These outsiders generally disappear after one or two shots and go back to their accustomed jobs, meanwhile keeping professional actors off the studio payrolls.

SAG has concluded a series of discussions with studio chiefs and their casting directors in a campaign to alleviate unemployment among professional players. One of the aims is to cut down "type casting," in which untalented

(Continued on page 22)

Perce Pearce to Coast

Perce Pearce, producer of Walt Disney's "Treasure Island," left for the Coast Saturday (25), following his arrival in New York last week from Britain, where the film was made.

Pearce revealed that the Disney organization plans to make another live action picture in Britain within the next 12 months. Story is now in preparation, he said.

Harry Brandt Carries the Ball at N.Y. 20th-Fox Meet for Intra-Trade Amity

Major step towards eliminating the constant bickerings between exhibitors and distributors, as well as between indie and affiliated exhibs, is now seen as a major byproduct of 20th-Fox's showmanship drive. Initial rumblings of such a move were reported at 20th regional meetings throughout the country last week, where it was pointed out that better intra-industry relations are just as important in luring the public back to the theatres as the revival of exploitation and ballyhoo.

Noting the industry's needs for setting its own house in order to promote better relations with the public, indie circuit operator Harry Brandt, who sparked the 20th meet in New York Thursday (24), pledged his Independent Theatre Owners Assn. to accept a system of arbitration and its cooperation in setting up a single nationwide exhib organization to eliminate current squabblings. Both suggestions were immediately praised by 20th sales veepee Andy W. Smith, Jr., who echoed Brandt's contention of their value.

Theme of the N. Y. meet, as well as those held in 35 other 20th exchange areas last week, was voiced by Mayor William O'Dwyer, who said that "the time has come when the industry must consolidate its position and take stock of its gains so that it can meet every challenge in the next half-century as well as, or better than, it has met them in the past." O'Dwyer praised the industry for its "wholehearted support" of Government-sponsored and charity drives, and compared the function of nabe theatres to that of churches and schools. "Today the tired ones, looking for escape," he said, "have within a few short blocks of their homes a concentration of entertainment for less than the cost of $1."

N. Y. meet, like those in all other cities, was patterned after the original Chicago conclave March 8-9, with the 20th homeoffice ad-publicity department detailing the company's "Guide to Better Business" and then turning the meet over to an open exhib forum. Brandt, reiterating his contention that there is no crisis confronting the industry today, declared the meets were held to give the industry a "chance to put its best foot forward." He averred the phrase, "I Was in Chicago," would become a new industry landmark.

Frank Freeman and TV

While praising 20th's showmanship drive and the crop of new pictures coming up, which he had seen during a recent visit to the Coast, Brandt also found a number of faults with the producers-distributors. He criticized the recent action of Paramount production executive Y. Frank Freeman in publicizing a list of pictures that failed to recoup their negative costs. "Did Freeman do this to get higher film rentals or to attack an industry which is paying him such a good salary?" Brandt asked. He also attacked the studios' casting of "aging stars" as lovers. Without mentioning names, he suggested permitting such stars to appear on television and then running trailers on new pictures against them. "We would have people running to the theatres for their best entertainment," he said.

Brandt drew from Smith the promise that 20th would formulate plans to eliminate the "dead time" lag between nabe first runs and subsequent runs and the policy of forcing the subsequents to book the same double bills as the first runs play. N. Y. meet was chairmanned by division manager Martin Moskowitz and branch manager Sam Diamond. Twentieth prez Spyros P. Skouras and Smith outlined many of the points they had previously made public in Chi.

300 Turn Out in Cincy

Cincinnati, March 28.

Twentieth-Fox's biz-building campaign for the industry was enthusiastically accepted by a surprisingly large turnout of more than 300 exhibitors at the regional meet here in the Alms hotel Thursday (23).

Morning and afternoon sessions were opened by Ray Moon, division manager, and Joe Rosen, Cincy branch chief. Other 20th staffers who had a hand in unfolding the "Movies Are Better Than Ever" exploitation package were Eddie Sullivan, midwest publicity director, and Bob McNabb, Roy White, Dick Breslin and Jack Hoffman, salesmen.

Mike Chakeres, Springfield, O., was moderator for the exhibitors' forum, general interest in which clearly indicated that a goodly percentage of theatre operators are going along with 20th's pattern for revitalized showmanship. Circuits represented included RKO Theatres, Loew's, Warners, Shine's and Northio, and numerous small indie groups in southern Ohio, northern and eastern Kentucky and western West Virginia.

Wobber Sounds Off

San Francisco, March 28.

Directing his fire at rumors that Hollywood producers were planning to sell their new products to television, Herman Wobber, western sales manager of 20th-Fox, denied that any Hollywood producers had entered any agreements

(Continued on page 22)

Par's 9 Awards Top Oscaring

By MIKE KAPLAN

Hollywood, March 28.

Having reached its majority a year earlier, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science's Oscar celebrated its 22nd birthday last Thursday night (23) by putting on long pants and swaggering down to the fabled corner of Hollywood and Vine for the first time. As is customary on Oscar's birthday, other people got all the presents.

As proof of the Golden Boy's maturity, the birthday party was handled on an efficient, adult level. The mob that crowded the RKO Pantages theatre for the ceremony went home convinced that the affair was the best ever. It went off like clockwork from start to finish, the broadcast of the entire proceedings taking exactly no more and no less than the 100 minutes allotted to the Academy by ABC, which carried it coast-to-coast.

Some of the edge was taken off the excitement by DAILY VARIETY's pre-awards poll, which was 100% correct, but many filmites turned it into a new game, checking off each winner to see how the poll had fared.

There were ermines inside the Pantages and earmuffs outside where faithful fans gathered 10 hours ahead of time to wait patiently for a slice of glamor. The earmuffs weren't really necessary, although it got a trifle chilly along Hollywood Boulevard, but

(Continued on page 20)

Par-Interstate Splitup Negotiations Continue

Dallas, March 28.

Talks leading to the breakup of partnership interests in the giant Interstate circuit were initiated here last week. Leonard Goldenson, United Paramount's prez, huddled with Karl Hoblitzelle, head of the chain, in a hurried trip to this city. Goldenson returned to New York at the end of the week after several confabs.

Biggest hurdle in the way of a final deal is the formula set up in the partnership papers for the purchase of one pard's slice in the circuit by the others. It sets the price at a comparatively low figure. Goldenson is balking at this provision since it would give Hoblitzelle, Robert J. O'Donnell and other pards an edge on the deal.

Discussions are still in a preliminary stage. It is expected that they will be renewed shortly. UP has two more years under its consent decree before the deadline sets in on the breakup of all its partnership holdings of which Interstate is the most important remaining.

Atlanta Suburban House Blaze

Atlanta, March 28.

Two-alarm predawn fire extensively damaged the Temple, suburban house owned by Solomon Miller. Blaze started in basement of theatre.

B&K's Sales Drive

Chicago, March 28.

Balaban & Katz will start a 13-week sales drive April 2. Meeting of 90 B&K, Great States and Ohio-Indiana theatre managers was held today (28) at the Drake hotel here to lay out plans.

Move is a reflection of the enthusiasm the 20th-Fox showmanship meet here three weeks ago has fired up in the area. Alliance theatres of Illinois and Indiana has started a series of regional manager meetings in connection with its showmanship drive. Manza-Rose circuit had 20th officials down to address its managers' meeting last week.

So. Cal. Exhibs Eye Single Bills To Aid B.O. Sag

Hollywood, March 28.

A three-pronged attack on problems besetting exhibition was staged here last week when representative theatremen, large and small, sat down to seek a way out for falling boxoffice and how to best television.

At every session the emphasis was on the formula expounded at the national Chicago meeting of March 8-9 held by 20th-Fox, but the approach was right at the theatre's front door, rather than on the top-level, overall theme that featured the national meeting.

TV-b.o. blues angle was first kicked off by the northern and southern California divisions of Fox-West Coast on Monday (20) in an all-day session of some 300 theatre and district managers, circuit executives and ad-publicity representatives. The following day (21), 20th-Fox brought its Chicago huddle down to the local level with a Southern California regional meeting attended by more than 300 southland theatremen. Climaxing the week was the all-day huddle of Southern California Theatre Owners Assn. Friday (24), a meeting open to both its members and all other exhibs in this territory. Over 300 attended.

Highlights of the three meetings boiled down to: Increasing opposition to the double bill, termed a money-waster and a patronage dissipator. A growing belief that unless theatres use television via trailers and other means, exhibs are fighting a lost cause to revive their business. Price-cutting will

(Continued on page 26)

Trial Technicality Hints At High Court Attitude On Lawson, Trumbo

Washington, March 28.

The Supreme Court hinted yesterday (27) what its attitude may be on one of the major issues in the appeals of John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo.

It ruled in another case—The contempt-of-Congress conviction of Eugene Dennis, secretary of the American Communist party—that presence of Federal employees on the jury did not prevent him from receiving a fair trial. Vote was 5 to 2. One of the issues in the contempt-of-Congress action against Hollywood's "unfriendly 10" was whether presence of Federal employees on the jury prevented them from receiving a fair trial.

Lawson and Trumbo were both convicted of contempt-of-Congress because of their refusal to answer questions before the House-Un-American Activities Committee. The convictions were upheld by the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

High court has not yet indicated whether it will hear an appeal from the U. S. Appeals Court. Both sides have agreed that the other eight "unfriendly witnesses" will accept the ruling given for Lawson and Trumbo.

With the Dennis case out of the way, it is now regarded likely that the Supreme Court will soon announce whether it will accept the Lawson-Trumbo cases on appeal. If it should reject them, the convictions of the two screenwriters would stand. In addition, the same conviction and sentences would apply to the other eight.

Hearstian Vitamin

Threatened blast at the Hearst newspaper syndicate by indie circuit operator Harry Brandt last week at 20th-Fox's New York regional showmanship meet was averted when Hearst sent Bob Considine, one of its top feature writers, to pen a sympathetic story about the 20th-sponsored industry drive for revitalized showmanship.

Brandt was reportedly extremely irate because of a column by Dorothy Kilgallen, also a Hearst writer, which broke Wednesday (22) in the N. Y. Journal-American. Miss Kilgallen, columning about the 20th meets, likened the statements of attending exhibs to "screaming like a stuck pig." According to her, "big shots like Spyros Skouras and Harry ('Boxoffice Poison') Brandt" met in Chicago two weeks ago where, "in an atmosphere of misery-loves-company, they took the industry's temperature, pulse and metabolism, listened to heartbeats and tried to figure out what miracle drug might get the invalid back on its feet."

Brandt was reported all set to lambast the columnist and the Hearst press, until he was advised of Considine's presence at the N. Y. meet. As a result, he brushed off the Kilgallen column in his speech, instead praising the Hearst papers for the long years of cooperation with the industry in the past and terming the column a "pin-prick by comparison." Journal carried Considine's story Friday (24), in which the writer penned a straight account of the meet, including Mayor William O'Dwyer's praise of the industry. Considine concluded with the note that "both Brandt and 20th veepee Andy W. Smith, Jr., lauded the cooperation of Hearst papers."

Betty Garrett Ankles M-G for Family Indie

Hollywood, March 28.

Betty Garrett arranged a cancellation of her contract with Metro, which had four years to run, and will co-star with her husband, Larry Parks, in an indie production, "Stakeout."

During her stay on the Metro lot Miss Garrett made five films: "Big City," "Neptune's Daughter," "Words and Music," "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and "On the town." Meanwhile Parks must make one picture for Columbia before he can start work in "Stakeout," which will be financed by himself, his wife and Louis Mandel, the Parks' attorney.

Congress May O.O. COMPO Tax Drive

Washington, March 28.

There is a possibility that the House investigation of lobbying, which opened yesterday (27), may look into COMPO's intensive drive for the reduction of the 20% excise on amusements.

Rep. Frank Buchanan (D. Pa.) committee chairman, explained that his committee will give considerable study to organizations which operate away from Washington, stirring up the public to demand action on certain legislation. This apparently fits the pattern of COMPO's petition-signing movement and also its encouragement to theatregoers to write to their legislators about the excise.

Buchanan said his committee has broken types of industries into 27 groups. He said the committee would have time to look into about six of them. He did not indicate whether motion pictures would be one of the six.

COMPO is properly registered under the Federal lobby registration law. Abram F. Myers, chairman of COMPO's committee on taxation and legislation, is registered as the official lobbyist, as well as lobbyist for the Allied States Assn. Gael Sullivan is list-

(Continued on page 22)

ILL. ALLIED'S BALLY FOR ALL TYPES PIX

Chicago, March 28.

Citywide cooperative ballyhoo campaigh to promote more film attendance has been suggested by Allied Theatres of Illinois, tyeing in with 20th-Fox's "Movies Are Better Than Ever" drive. Allied would stress the slogan, "Go to Your Favorite Theatre — and Relax" in all possible media, including billboards, radio, television, newspapers, trailers, signs in streetcars, busses, hotels, etc.

Proposed campaign will not slug any specific picture, theatre or distributor. Instead it will be designed to reawaken the filmgoing habit among the general public. Allied has called a special committee meet Thursday (30), to be attended by ad-publicity chiefs of the major circuits here, to discuss the plan. If it is generally accepted, ATI prez Jack Kirsch will call a city-wide exhibs' meeting to launch the drive. Allied committee reportedly has been studying the plan for several months.

Towne, Mwkee., Asks Divestiture Of 7 Key Houses

Chicago, March 28.

Towne theatre of Milwaukee has asked divestiture of seven key affiliated nabes and drastic limitations on running and clearance time in Milwaukee in its proposed equity decree filed Monday (27) in Chi Federal district court by attorney Thomas C. McConnell. Towne was awarded $1,295,878 in triple damages early last month by Judge John P. Barnes, when he ruled that major distribs and Warner and Fox theatres had combined to create monopoly in violation of Sherman and Clayton antitrust acts in Milwaukee.

Hearings on proposed decree, originally set for Monday, were postponed to April 10, while court heard arguments on attorney's fees.

McConnell asked divestiture of the Oriental, Granada and Tower theatres, Warner houses; Modjeska and Garfield, controlled by Fox-Milwaukee Corp., and the Uptown and Paradise, Fox-City Corp. houses. He also asked that the defendants be enjoined from getting control over an eighth independent house, the Avalon.

These "deluxe" nabes had been used, according to McConnell, as threats through which defendants kept pictures out of the Towne. Circuits warned distribs that if a certain picture was shown in the Towne, McConnell said, they would not permit it to be shown in these key neighborhood houses, thereby upsetting the entire subsequent run of the pic. McConnell proposed no divestiture action on the three Fox and three Warner downtown houses, explaining that other provisions of the decree would restore competition to the downtown, first-run area.

Decree resembles Jackson Park decree in many ways. It provides that no film be allowed to run longer than two weeks in any of the defendants' theatres. It prohibits creation of clearance or dead time between first and subsequent runs when first-run was in defendant theatre. However, if first-run is not more than one week, decree would allow 10 days' clearance. It further prohibits licensing of a moveover of first-run from one defendant house to another when the effect would be to extend playing time of pic.

Playing or licensing of double features with the intent of preventing the Towne from getting first-runs is prohibited. Fixing of admission price, directly or indirectly, by distributor as a condition toward licensing a picture is also enjoined.

Defendants are: Loew's, Inc.; Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Warner Bros. Distributing Corp., Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp., Warner Bros. Theatres Corp., James E. Coston, midwest Warner circuit manager, and Columbia Pictures.

TOA TAKES LEAD IN ARBITRATION

Upped Production Extends Studios' Scope for More Published Stories

With increased production putting pressure on all the studios to unearth more story material, there were indications during the past week of a swing back to wider use of published yarns. Economy during the past few years had dictated fewer purchases of books, plays and magazine stories and greater utilization of originals.

Hint that the pendulum is heading back toward increased buying of published material is seen in the number of copyrighted yarns registered during the past week with Motion Picture Assn. of America's title bureau. There were seven such stories registered, the largest number in any seven-day period for several years.

Properties included "The Big Sky," best-selling novel of several years back by Alfred Bertram Guthrie, Jr., to which RKO staked claim; "Tasker Martin," forthcoming novel by Diana Gaines (actually Diana G. Jaffe and Jerry Horwin), also bought by RKO; "Excuse My Dust," by Bellamy Partridge, acquired by Metro; "So Early in the Morning," by George Loveridge, also a Metro buy; "Sugarfoot," by Clarence Buddington Kelland, and "Rear Guard," by James Warner Bellah, both Warner Bros.; and "Anbody Can Do Anything," by Betty MacDonald, Columbia.

While studios have never promulgated any rule that their producers should show preference for originals over published stories, pressure for economy has worked

(Continued on page 22)

Interstate Commerce Key to NLRB's Ruling On Nabe House Control

Washington, March 28.

National Labor Relations Board moved another step last week toward asserting its control over labor practices in every branch of show business.

In a case involving an independent neighborhood film theatre in Philadelphia, the NLRB examiner found that the house—the Royal, operated by Morris Wax—was in interstate commerce and that therefore its labor negotiations were properly under the jurisdiction of the Board. This was so, according to the examiner's findings, on the ground that the Royal rented films from exchanges which operate in interstate commerce, even though they are located in Philadelphia, just as is the theatre. Therefore, the examiner declared:

"It can scarcely be denied that a labor dispute involving the employees of the Royal theatre would have the necessary intent or effect of burdening or obstructing interstate commerce. Neither the volume of business nor the relative position of the particular employer in respect to the entire industry is controlling insofar as the power of the Board to assert jurisdiction is concerned."

After throwing the Board's weight around, however, the examiner decided that, as a matter of expedience, there was no advantage in getting involved in the Royal theatre's dispute with IATSE.

"I am of the opinion," said the examiner in a report, "'operations

(Continued on page 20)

LIPTON LINGERS EAST ON U PUB-AD MEETS

David Lipton, Universal's ad-pub chief, has postponed his return to the Coast for the balance of the week. Lipton is staying on for huddles on U's "The Sleeping City," film shot completely in Gotham.

Ad-pubber is meeting with Al Horwits, U's studio publicity head, who arrived in N. Y. over the weekend along with Charles Simonelli, exploitation chief; Phil Gerard, eastern publicity topper, and Hank Linet, ad director.

Sobering Influence

Hollywood, March 28.

Bill Pine and Bill Thomas are going dry, not only in their current production, "Tripoli," but in all future pictures. Grog was guzzled freely by the Leathernecks back in 1805, the date of "Tripoli," but no elbow bending will be permitted in the film.

P and T declare there is too much alcoholic dunking on the screen.

Rathvon Accents Indie's Problems In Current Market

For an indie production to have any chance of racking up a profit in today's tough market the producer, director and cast must go along on participation deals, N. Peter Rathvon, former RKO prez, who heads up Motion Picture Capital Corp., declared this week. Rathvon asserts that indie pix must be made "at bargain prices so that you get $2 on the screen for every dollar spent."

After backing six films in the past year, Rathvon sees one advantage accruing to the indie with all the other factors against him. The indie filmmaker has it over the majors because "he doesn't have to carry that terrific overhead." "He can make a film for cash at a modest cost," Rathvon said. Any attempt to do it otherwise pushes the pic below the profit point, he believes.

Rathvon's formula is to avoid big studio charges by paying cash for both the lot and lab facilities. So far as participation is concerned, the indie backer "must require the producer and others to risk their time" by taking a slice of the potential profits instead of 100% pay. Besides this, he said, there must be careful preparation and constant personal supervision of every budget item. "By using more energetic supervision we are now

(Continued on page 24)

EL'S 'MORALS' DEFENSE IN TRENET'S 85G SUIT

In an effort to kayo an $85,000 suit brought against it by French chanteur Charles Trenet, Eagle Lion is attempting to invoke a moral turpitude clause contained in a four-year-old agreement made by the two parties. Film company's maneuver came to light in N. Y. supreme court this week when it sought to quiz the singer before trial as to his moral conduct. Justice Morris Eder Monday (27) reserved decision on the firm's motion.

Trenet bases his action on the claim that EL owes him 85G when it allegedly failed to star him in two pictures under agreements made in 1946 and 1947. Company contends that the moral turpitude clause automatically erases its obligation under the pacts. Warbler, who recently returned to the U. S., is scheduled to open the end of the week at the Blue Angel, N. Y.

Benny's Carnegie Stint

Following the sellout at New York's Carnegie Hall by Eddie Cantor last week (21), Jack Benny will do a concert June 4 for benefit of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund. Cantor's stand at $3.60 top grossed $8,300, including tax, which embraced the take from nearly 200 seats on stage.

Other stars are considering similar one-man-shows. Danny Kaye and Milton Berle are interested, but no deals have been set.

ASKS CO. PREXIES TO SET CONFAB

Direct appeal to all major company prexies to take immediate action on an all-industry arbitration system is being made by the Theatre Owners of America this week, it has been learned. Letter addressed to company toppers are now in the mail asking them to take the initiative in view of the authorization for a voluntary system made by the Federal district court in its decision in the anti-trust case. Court knocked out a compulsory setup but opened the door for voluntary arbitration.

Prexies are requested to call a conference to clear up two points. First, whether the industry desires an arbitration system and secondly, whether a sufficient area of agreement on what the system should cover can be obtained.

Action is being taken by TOA because the org is concerned with the mounting number of anti-trust actions brought by aggrieved exhibs. It is felt by TOA biggies that the costs of defending these suits and the uncertainty in which they have plunged distribution is taking its toll on exhibition. Hence, fast action from the prexies is being sought.

Letters inform company presidents that if a conclave results in affirmative answers on both points, TOA and other exhib outfits would join the majors in asking Dept. of Justice approval to an industry arbitration plan. Industry would then seek a modification of the anti-trust decree from the Federal court by incorporating the arbitration plan.

In the event company toppers indicate that they are not yet ready to call an industry conference because of current settlement negotiations in the Government suit and other factors, TOA requests

(Continued on page 26)

Goldsmith Says Majors Should Learn Economy From Indie Producers

Hollywood, March 28.

I. G. Goldsmith, independent producer, took issue with Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount veepee, on his recent pessimistic statements about the outlook of the motion picture industry. Freeman, according to Goldsmith, spoke only for the major studios, which produce about two-fifths of the annual film features, and not for the indies, which produce the other three-fifths.

Major companies, Goldsmith declared, would be in a better economic position if they reduced the overhead in conformity with that prevailing among indie producers.

Par's Clark and Weaver In Serious Auto Crash

Oklahoma City, March 28.

Duke Clark, Paramount south central division chief, and Buck Weaver, head of Par's exchange here, were seriously hurt Sunday (26) night in an automobile crash. They were rushed to the Westley hospital in this city and are now reported out of danger. Collision occurred as the two Paramounters were driving to the airport to meet Henry Wilcoxon, film actor who is ballying "Samson and Delilah."

Clark suffered a broken hand, broken nose and a general bruising. Weaver had three ribs broken besides a punctured lung. Neither will be discharged for some time.

JOHNSTON GUEST SPEAKER

Hollywood, March 28.

Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Assn. of America prez, will be a guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Hollywood AFL Film Council Thursday (30). He will discuss what the Council terms "Runaway Foreign" production.

Ellis Arnall will be asked to make a similar talk when he arrives next month.

Both Allied and TOA in Pitch To Annex Drive-In Exhibitors

Hot race is under way to organize the drive-in operators. This is expected to break into the open before the spring is over. In the face of maneuvers by both National Allied and the Theatre Owners of America to corral the new exhib interest, National Assn. of Drive-In Theatres, only outfit confined strictly to ozoners, is stepping up its campaign for members with the argument that both oldtime exhib units represent conflicting interests.

Ozoner org, headed by interim prez Guy Meek of California, invades Boston next week in an attempt to line up all drive-in ops in the Hub city. Delegation from its Philadelphia headquarters canvassed Pittsburgh last week. It is claimed that the Pitt local ozoner unit will affiliate with the national org in April. National convention will be held this year, its spokesman said, to elect permanent officers.

Allied is pushing its own campaign with a meet planned for Kansas City May 9-10. Allied's ball is being carried by its Kansas and Missouri regional unit. Speakers will be headed by Trueman T. Rembusch, Allied prexy; Col. H. A. Cole, Allied's Texas leader; Lewis E. Wilson, Los Angeles architect; and George M. Petersen, billed as already having built 150 drive-ins throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Meanwhile, Theatre Owners of

(Continued on page 28)

50G Trust Fine?

Washington, March 28.

The proposed law to up the fine for violating the Sherman anti-trust law from the present $5,000 to $50,000 took its first step toward accomplishment last week.

Measure was okayed by the House Judiciary Committee and will go before the House for action this spring.

Gov't Leniency Again Evidenced In Par Amendment

Government's lenient view of the restrictions imposed by the Paramount and RKO consent decrees was again illustrated last week when United Paramount circuit won a favorable modification of its decree. Dept. of Justice has consented to the removal of voting trust restrictions on all holdings of 500 shares or less. Amendment removes over 70% of UP's stock from the decree's restrictions.

Decree originally called for the sale by a stockholder of either his production-distribution or theatre stock. To enforce this rule, it provided that all UP common be held by a trustee until a stockholder unloaded his holdings in one or the other company. While in the hands of the trustee, a stockholder was limited to collecting 50% of any dividends declared by UP.

Change in the decree now restores the common to stockholders with 500 shares or less regardless of whether these holders have sold their production-distribution shares. It also removes the ban on full dividend payments. Provision was originally intended to further the split between the two branches of the company by preventing common ownership of stock.

With the modification, only slightly more than 500 of the UP's 40,000 stockholders are still subject to the decree's limitations. These are holders of more than 500 shares apiece.

SETTLEMENT TRY ON GOLDMAN'S SUIT

Philadelphia, March 28.

All-day efforts today (28) between William A. Goldman's attorney and legalites repping the eight majors for a settlement of the Philly circuit operator's $8,400,000 anti-trust suit ended in a Mexican standoff. At the end of the day, attorneys announced that talks proved fruitless and the case would go to bat tomorrow (Wed.). It starts before Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick and a jury.

Judge Kirkpatrick is the same jurist who heard the previous Goldman case. Court found for the defendants, but the circuit court reversed his ruling and sent the case back to fix damages. Goldman won $375,000 in triple-damages, plus an allowance of $75,000 for counsel fees.

Trial, started after prolonged settlement negotiations were called off by Goldman several weeks ago. Involved in the deal would have been the sale of a number of Warner Bros. theatres to the big Philly indie.

Both suits involve the Erlanger theatre, a Goldman house, which the indie claims was "starved out" of first-run product. Only difference in this suit and the previous one is that they refer to different years.

B&K's State-Lake Gets Indef 'Samson' Run In Chi Bidding Win

Chicago, March 28.

"Samson and Delilah" will open here at the State-Lake theatre for an indefinite run on April 13 at advanced admissions. Announcement that the Balaban & Katz house had won the bidding followed the granting March 8 of indefinite run and intervening time of three weeks between first and subsequent runs by Chi Federal district judge Michael Igoe.

State-Lake seats 2,700, an important factor in the bidding. Under Jackson Park decree, there are only two first-run houses in the city of comparable size which could have run pic for more than two weeks without special court sanction. These are the independent Oriental, seating 3,400, and the RKO Palace, seating 2,500. The Palace could have run pic for more than two weeks providing sister first-run house, the Grand, changed films every week; the Oriental maintains a vaude policy which would have made Paramount's 70% rental terms difficult to meet.

With extension granted by Igoe, field was left open for B&K, with its State-Lake and flagship house, the Chicago, which seats 3,900. Chicago, however, also has a vaude policy, which left it out of the running.

Paramount had originally pleaded for pre-release engagement,

(Continued on page 18)

FOUR SALESMEN BACK TO SELZNICK FOLD

Last of a quartet of Selznick Releasing Organization sales execs who resigned last year to join Motion Picture Sales Corp. returned to the SRO fold this week. Newest returnee is Sam Horowitz, who will serve as special sales rep in the midwest with headquarters in Chicago.

Previous SRO execs who left to join the Neil Agnew-Charles Casanave outfit and since have gone back with SRO are Alfred Delcambre, southwestern division manager; Henry Krumm, southern division manager; and Ed Fontaine, middle Atlantic division manager. Horowitz will supplement Tommy Thompson and Harry Mandell, present sales reps in Kansas City and Chicago respectively, according to sales v.p. Sidney G. Deneau.

New Pix Up Sagging L.A.; 'Cinderella' Great $54,000; 'To Rio' Pleasing 26G, 'Texas' OK 33G, 'River'-Vaude 22G

Los Angeles, March 28.

New, stronger product is boosting overall total here this session although biz still is on spotty side. Brightest of newcomers is "Cinderella," which is zooming to smash $54,000 at Pantages and the Hillstreet, far ahead of anything at these two houses in a long time.

Also okay, on basis of strong weekend trade, is "Kid From Texas" with $33,000 in five theatres. "Nancy Goes To Rio" is sighting a pleasing $26,000 in two spots but "Barricade" is very mild $25,000 or less in three sites.

"Four Days Leave" paired with "Guilty Bystander" is way off at $23,000 in five situations while "Great Rupert" is dull $16,000 in five locations. "House By River" with stage bills in both Paramount houses looks slim $22,000.

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Hawaii, Forum Music Halls (Prin-Cor) (902; 512; 834; 1,106; 2,100; 55-$1) — "Great Rupert" (EL) and "Killer Shark" (Mono). Scant $16,000 or near. Last week, "Love Happy" (UA) and "Tyrant of Sea" (Col) (2d wk-9 days), $22,000.

Los Angeles, Chinese, Uptown, Loyola, Wilshire (FWC) (2,097; 2,048; 1,719; 1,248; 2,296; 60-$1) — "Four Day Leave" (FC) and "Guilty Bystander" (FC). Slight $23,000. Last week, "Red Shoes" (EL), fine $44,500.

Hollywood, Downtown, Wiltern (WB) (2,756; 1,757; 2,344; 60-$1)—"Barricade" (WB). Very mild $25,000. Last week, "Perfect Strangers" (WB), $24,000.

Loew's State, Egyptian (UA) (2,404; 1,538; 60-$1)—"Nancy To Rio" (M-G). Pleasing $26,000. Last week, "Key To City" (M-G) (8 days), $33,000.

Hillstreet, Pantages (RKO) (2,890; 2,812; 50-$1) — "Cinderella" (RKO). Great $54,000. Last week, "Guilty of Treason" (EL) and "Beauty on Parade" (Col), small $12,000.

Los Angeles, Hollywood Paramounts (F&M) (3,398; 1,451; 40-$1) —"House By River" (Rep) with Dick Wesson, Gil Lamb onstage at L. A.; Herb Jeffries, Bedell & Mattson at Hollywood. Slim $22,000. Last week, "Singing Guns" (Rep), with Gil Lamb, Herb Jeffries onstage at L.A., $28,000.

United Artists, Ritz, Vogue, Studio City, Culver (UA-FWC) (2,100; 1,370; 885; 880; 1,145; 60-$1) — "Kid From Texas" (U) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Lip). Okay $33,000. Last week, "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) and "Palooka Meets Humphrey" (Mono) (9 days), $20,500.

Orpheum (D'town) (2,210; 50-95) —"Brother Jonathan" (Mono) with eight acts vaude. Slow $13,000. Last week, "Blonde Bandit" (Rep) (2d run) plus vaude, $14,600.

Four Star (UA) (900; 60-$1)—"Vicious Years" (FC) (3d wk). Only $1,300. Last week, $2,400.

Fine Arts (FWC) (679; 85-$1.25) —"Il Trovatore" (Indie) (2d wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, good $4,800.

'HOLIDAY' BRIGHT 14G, BUFF; 'STRANGERS' 11G

Buffalo, March 28.

There is little to cheer about on boxoffice front here this frame. Making outstanding showing is "Johnny Holiday," with strong take at the Lafayette. "Perfect Strangers" looks to finish first week at the Center with nice total.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew's) (3,500; 40-70)—"Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th). Modest $12,000 or less. Last week, "Black Hand" (M-G) and "Kidnapped" (Mono), $13,000.

Paramount (Par) (3,000; 40-70)—"Davy Crockett" (UA) and "Guilty Bystander" (FC). Light $11,000. Last week, "Under My Skin" (20th) and "Sarumba" (EL), same.

Center (Par) (2,100; 40-70) — "Perfect Strangers" (WB). Nice $11,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) (2d wk), neat $10,500.

Lafayette (Basil's) (3,000; 40-70) —"Johnny Holiday" (UA) and "Mark of Gorilla" (Col). Strong $14,000 or near. Last week, "Kid From Texas" (U) and "Mary Ryan, Detective" (Col), $12,500.

Century (20th Cent) (3,000; 40-70)—"Great Rupert" (EL) and "Kill or Be Killed" (EL). Okay $11,000. Last week, "Singing Guns" (Rep) and "Tarnished" (Rep), only $8,000.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $437,100
(Based on 18 theatres.)
Last Year $506,500
(Based on 16 theatres.)

'Conspirator' Oke $10,500 in Balto

Baltimore, March 28.

Pre-holiday shopping is providing additional resistance to downtown trade here and biz is continuance of recent doldrums. Of current crop "Conspirator" at Loew's Century and "Outside the Wall" at Mayfair, look standout, but neither are big.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Loew's-UA) (3,000; 20-60)—"Conspirator" (M-G). Fine $10,500. Last week, "Nancy To Rio" (M-G), $12,200.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,240; 20-80) — "Cinderella" (RKO) plus vaude (4th wk). Still holding up at $13,000 after bright third round at $15,300.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,460; 20-60) — "Guilty Bystander" (F C). Opened today (Tues.). Last week, "Love Happy" (UA) (2d wk), nice $7,000 after solid $9,900 opener.

Mayfair (Hicks) (980: 20-65) — "Outside Wall" (U). Nice $5,000. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th), same.

New (Mechanic) (1,800; 20-60)—"Three Came Home" (20th) (3d wk). Simmering down to $6,500 after steady second round at $9,200.

Stanley (WB) (3,280; 25-75) — "Perfect Strangers" (WB). Thin $8,500. Last week, "Barricade" (WB), $9,200.

Town (Rappaport) (1,500; 35-65) —"Sundowners" (EL). Light $6,500. Last week, "Guilty of Treason" (EL), $6,000.

'General' Socko $23,000, Mont'l; 'Key' Brisk 16G

Montreal, March 28.

With new entries in all except one of the deluxers, returns are lusty. "Inspector General," sock at Loew's, will pace field. "Key To City" shapes stout at Palace.

Estimates for This Week

Loew's (C.T.) (2,855; 40-65) — "Inspector General" (WB). Big $23,000. Last week, "Samson" (Par) (4th wk), sock $22,000.

Capitol (C.T.) (2,412; 34-60) — "King's Men" (Col) (2d wk). Holding at $15,000 after sock opener at $19,500.

Palace (C.T.) (2,625; 34-60) — "Key To City" (M-G). Stout $16,000. Last week, "Foolish Heart" (RKO) (2d wk), okay $11,000.

Imperial (C.T.) (1,839; 26-45)—"South Sea Sinner" (U) and "Black Midnight" (Mono). Fine $9,000. Last week, "Challenge To Lassie" (M-G) and "Beware Blondie" (M-G), $6,500.

Princess (C.T.) (2,131; 34-60)—"Black Hand" (M-G). Oke $8,000. Last week, "Montana" (WB), $6,000.

'HOME' BEST PITT BET, STOUT 12G; 'RIO' 14G

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Full impact of Lent is being felt this week and everything is taking a dive. Only entry successfully withstanding the plunge seems to be "Three Came Home" at Fulton, and may be able to hang around for a time. "Nancy To Rio" is only fair at Penn. "Perfect Strangers" is getting nowhere at Stanley.

Estimates for This Week

Barry (Skirball) (1,100; 45-80)—"Pirates Capri" (FC). Got away fairly well first couple of days but then sloughed off with only $4,000 on week. Last week, "Sundowners" (EL) (2d wk-4 days), very weak $1,500, with pic doing just over $7,000 on run.

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 45-80) — "Three Came Home" (20th). Rave notices for this one, and looks better than $12,000, solid. May stay until April 8 when "Wabash Avenue" (20th) comes in. Last week, "Francis" (U) (2d wk), nice $8,000.

Harris (Harris) (2,200; 45-80)—"Baby Makes Three" (Col). Rather dismal and will be yanked tomorrow (Wed.) after just 5 days with about $4,500. Last week, "Outside Wall" (U), $7,500.

Penn (Loew's) (3,300; 45-80) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G). About average at $14,000, not enough to hold but gets 3 extra days anyway. Last week, "East Side" (M-G), $14,500.

Stanley (WB) (3,800; 45-80) — "Perfect Strangers" (WB). Crix gave this one the heavo-ho, very dreary $10,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par), $11,500.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 45-80) — "Guilty Bystander" (FC) and "Four Days Leave" (FC). Slow $6,000. Last week, "Eiffel Tower" (RKO), oke $8,000.

'King's Men' Fat $19,000 In K.C. on Oscar Award; 'Strangers' Steady 11G

Kansas City, March 28.

Bit of sound booking puts the Midland out in front this week with "All the King's Men" opening Saturday following Academy Award announcements. Good week looms with likely holdover. "Perfect Strangers" is other principal new pic, getting good play at Paramount. Fox Midwest houses have holdovers in "Twelve O'Clock High" and "Francis," both doing handsome biz. Lent is having a dampening effect here on biz.

Estimates for This Week

Esquire (Fox Midwest) (820; 45-65)—"Francis" (U) (m.o.) (2d wk). Fourth week downtown, fancy $3,500. Last week, big $4,500.

Kimo (Dickinson) (550; 55-75)—"Carnegie Hall" (UA) (reissue). Fairish $1,600. Last week, "Hamlet" (U) (2d wk), at $1.20 top, nice $2,400.

Midland (Loew's (3,500; 45-65)—"King's Men" (Col) and "Girls' School" (Col). Timely date, and looks big $19,000. Last week, "Black Hand" (M-G) and "Palomino" (Col), only $11,000, average.

Missouri (RKO) (2,650; 45-65)—"Tarzan and Slave Girl" (RKO) and "Savage Splendor" (RKO). So-so $8,500. Last week, "Love Happy" (UA) and "Killer Shark" (Mono), good $11,000.

Paramount (Par) (1,900; 45-65)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB . Looks neat $11,000 and could stay. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB), in 10 days, $13,000.

Tower - Uptown - Fairway (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 2,043; 700; 45-65) —"12 O'Clock High" (20th) (2d wk). Still high at $14,000 and likely moveover. Last week, rousing $22,000.

Jack Carson Unit Ups 'Mother' Okay $35,000 in Det.; 'Key' Smooth $26,000

Detroit, March 28.

Jack Carson stageshow at Fox is boosting "Mother Didn't Tell Me" to $35,000, creditable in view of Chrysler strike situation. "Key to City" is shaping fine at Michigan. Others range from fair to poor.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Mich) (5,000; 85-$1)—"Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) plus Jack Carson show onstage. Okay $35,000. Last week, "Eiffel Tower" (RKO) and "Masked Raiders" (RKO) (2d wk), $22,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,000; 70-95)—"Key to City" (M-G). Swell $26,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Indian Scout" (Col) (2d wk), $15,000.

Palms (UD) (2,000; 70-85)—"Black Hand" (M-G) (2d wk). Fair $12,000. Last week, $17,000.

United Artists (UD) (2,000; 70-95) —"Perfect Strangers" (WB) and "Federal Agent" (Rep). So-so $14,000. Last week, "Paid in Full" (Par) and "Palomino" (Col), $16,000.

Madison (UD) (1,800; 70-95)—"Great Rupert" (EL) and "Fighting Redhead" (Mono). Poor $7,000. Last week, "Samson & Delilah" (Par) (9th wk), steady $9,000.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 70-95)—"East Side" (M-G) and "Leave to Henry" (Mono) (2d wk). Okay $8,000. Last week, $10,500.

Downtown (Balaban) (2,900; 70-95)—"Conspirator" (M-G) and "Joe Palooka Meets Humphrey" (Mono). Slim $7,000. Last week, "Red Shoes" (EL) (m.o.), oke $8,000 in fourth week downtown.

'Francis' Forte $21,000 in Fair Hub; 'Winslow' 11G, 'Horn' NSH 23G in 10

Boston, March 28.

Just about average activity reported around town this stanza with newcomers not especially strong. "Francis" at Memorial and "East Side" at State and Orpheum shape as leaders. "Three Came Home" at Paramount and Fenway holding okay in second stanza. "Winslow Boy" shapes steady at Astor.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (Jaycox) (1,200; 50-95) — "Winslow Boy" (EL). Building to oke $11,000. Last week, "Foolish Heart" (RKO) (7th wk), nice $4,200.

Beacon Hill (Beacon Hill, Inc.) (780; 40-95) — "Bicycle Thief" (Indie) (6th wk). Award announcement hypoing biz to $6,000. Fifth week was off to $5,300.

Boston (RKO) (3,200; 40-85) — "Tarzan and Slave Girl" (RKO) and "Appointment with Crime" (Indie). Fair $16,000. Last week, "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) and "Sarumba" (EL), $15,500.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 40-85) — "Three Came Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Indie) (2d wk). Oke $6,000. Last week, $8,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,500; 40-85) — "Francis" (U) and "Black Shadows" (EL). Good $21,000. Last week, "Cinderella" (RKO) (5th wk) nice $15,000.

Metropolitan (NET) (3,500; 40-85)—"Paid in Full" (Par) and "Federal Agent" (Rep). Opened fair Saturday (25). Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tarnished" (Rep), $22,500 for 10 days.

Orpheum (Loew) (3,000; 40-85)—"East Side" (M-G) and "Girls' School" (Col). Fairly good $21,000. Last week, "King's Men" (Col) and "Chinatown Midnight" (Col) (2d wk), $21,000.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 40-85) "Three Came Home" (20th) and "Western Pacific Agent" (Indie) (2d wk). Neat $14,500. Last week, $18,500.

State (Loew) (3,500; 40-85)—"East Side" (M-G) and "Girls' School" (Col). Fair $13,000. Last week, "King's Men" (Col) and "Chinatown Midnight" (Col) (2d 85)—"Paid In Full" (Par) and wk), $13,500.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,294,000
(Based on 23 cities, 206 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,840,000
(Based on 25 cities and 201 theatres.)

'East Side' Loud $20,000 in Frisco

San Francisco, March 28.

Rain is dampening biz here this round but nice bally will boost "East Side" to big session at Warfield. "Guilty Bystander" is barely fair at Fox but "Perfect Strangers" is doing okay at Paramount. "Conspirator" also is shaping up for strong stanza at St. Francis.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 60-85) — "Eiffel Tower" (RKO) and "Sarumba" (EL). Only $11,000. Last week, "Tattooed Stranger" (RKO) plus vaude headed by Dick Contino, big $27,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; 60-95) — "Guilty Bystander" (FC) and "Four Days Leave" (FC). Fair $16,500. Last week, "Baron of Arizona" (Lip) and "Whirlpool" (20th), 5 days, $16,000.

Warfield (Loew's) (2,656; 60-85) —"East Side" (M-G). Big $20,000. Last week, "Key To City" (M-G) (2d wk-10 days), fine $19,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 60-85)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB) and "Marauders" (UA). Nice $16,000 or near. Last week, "Sundowners" (EL) and "Palooka Meets Humphrey." (Mono), $15,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 60-85)—"Conspirator" (M-G). Strong $18,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) (3d wk), $8,000.

Orpheum (No. Coast) (2,448; 55-85) — "Borderline" (U) and "Girl San Lorenzo" (UA). Modest $12,000. Last week, "Palomino" (Col) and "Tyrant Of Sea" (Col), $8,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 55-85)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (4th wk). Down to $5,500. Last week, big $7,500.

Stagedoor (Ackerman - Rosener) (370; 85-$1) — "Pygmalion" (Indie) (reissue) (4th wk). Good $5,000. Last week, $4,000.

Esquire (No. Coast) (955; 55-85) —"Francis" (U) and "Bodyhold" (Col) (m.o.). Steady $6,500 for fifth week downtown. Last week, big $7,500.

Geary (Indie) (1,550; 60-$1.80)—"Bicycle Thief" (Indie) (2d wk). Climbing to solid $8,000, on Academy Award. Last week, $6,000.

'Rio' Sturdy at $12,000, Indpls.; 'Affair' Dim 7G

Indianapolis, March 28.

Grosses are light in first-run spots here this stanza, with Lent and heavy pre-Easter buying spree held responsible. "Nancy Goes To Rio" is tops with sturdy week at Loew's. "Young Daniel Boone," with assist from "Grand Old Opry" on Lyric stage, is fair.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Gamble-Dolle) (2,800; 44-65)—"Holiday Affair" (RKO) and "Federal Agent" (Indie). Thin $7,000. Last week, "Sword in Desert" (U) and "Woman in Hiding" (U), so-so $9,000.

Indiana (G-D) (3,300; 44-65)—"Chain Lightning" (WB) and "Palooka Meets Humphrey" (Mono). Slow $10,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and "Radar Secret Service" (Rep), oke $11,500.

Keith's (G-D) (1,300; 44-65) — "Foolish Heart" (RKO). Good $8,500, and not bad for this house. Last week, "Johnny Holiday" (UA) (3d wk), nice $5,500, making great $25,000 for run.

Loew's (Loew's) (2,427; 44-65)—"Nancy Goes To Rio" (M-G) and "Bodyhold" (Col). Sturdy $12,000. Last week, "Father Is Bachelor" (Col) and "Nevadan" (Col), $11,200.

Lyric (G-D) (1,600; 50-85) — "Young Daniel Boone" (Mono) with "Grand Old Opry" onstage. Fair $11,000. Last week, "12 O'Clock High" (20th) (m.o.), good $6,000 at 44c-65c scale.

'Outlaw'-Vaude Smash $20,000 in Dim St. Loo; 'Francis' Lusty 12G, 2d

St. Louis, March 28.

Arrival of spring-like weather is putting a damper on first-run biz here this session, only "The Outlay" really successfully combating the downbeat. Jane Russell starrer was shown here three years ago but is going great guns at the Fox with vaude. "Conspirator" shapes only fair at Loew's. "Francis" still is socko in first holdover round at the St. Louis.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (F&M) (3,000; 50-75) — "Singing Guns" (Rep) and "12 O'Clock High" (20th) (2d wk). Off to $9,500 after fancy $13,000 first session.

Fox (F&M) (5,000; 50-75)—"The Outlaw" (RKO) and stageshow. Big $20,000. Last week, "Eiffel Tower" (RKO) and vaude, $14,000.

Loew's (Loew) (3,172; 50-75)—"Conspirator" (M-G) and "Kazan" (Col). Fair $14,500. Last week, "Black Hand" (M-G) and "Dalton Gang" (Lip), $14,000.

Missouri (F&M) (3,500; 50-75)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB) and "Live by Night" (RKO). Fair $11,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tattooed Stranger" (RKO), $13,000.

St. Louis (F&M) (4,000; 50-75)—"Francis" (U) and "Blondie's Hero" (Col) (2d wk). Holding well at $12,000 after sock $18,000 opener.

'Crockett' Tall $10,000, Seattle; 'Outlaw' 11G, 2d

Seattle, March 28.

Too many holdovers will slow pace here this week. Lone newcomer to show strength is "Davy Crockett," big at Liberty. "Francis" is continuing in smash style in third Orpheum stanza. "The Outlaw" shapes great on first holdover week at Paramount.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (800; 59-84)—"Act of Murder" (U) and "Outside Wall" (U) (2d wk). Good $3,000. Last week, big $3,900.

Coliseum (Evergreen) (1,877; 59-84)—"Nevadan" (Col) and "Mark Gorilla" (Col) (2d wk). Good $6,000 after fine $10,300 in opener.

Fifth Avenue (Evergreen) (2,349; 59-84)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (3d wk).

(Continued on page 28)

Chi Sluggish But H.O.s Fight Trend; 'Wall' $8,000, 'Gloves'-Stage Fair 40G, 'Paid' Light 9G, '12 O'Clock' 17G, 4th

Chicago, March 28.

Biz this week is sluggish, with four long-run holdovers the only films doing better-than-fair biz. "Third Man," in sixth week at Selwyn, is continuing upward curve with $12,500 expected as compared to $12,100 last session.

"Cinderella," in fifth and final week at Palace, is drawing sock $18,000. "Bicycle Thief," still rolling along, and with Academy Award should pull smash $5,000 in sixth World week. "12 O'Clock High" looks handsome $17,000 in fourth week at Woods.

Newcomers are slow. Grand has "Outside the Wall," with slim $8,000. "Golden Gloves Story," with Margaret O'Brien and Buddy Rogers onstage at Oriental, looks moderate $40,000, despite world preem ballyhoo. "Paid in Full" at United Artists, is light $9,000.

Estimates for This Week

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 50-98)—"Man With Horn" (WB) and Ink Spots in person (2d wk). So-so $40,000. Last week, $51,000.

Garrick (B&K) (900; 50-98)—"Blossoms in Dust" (M-G) and "Johnny Eager" (M-G) (reissues) (2d wk). Dull $3,500. Last week, $4,500.

Grand (RKO) (1,500; 98)—"Outside Wall" (U). Light $8,000. Last week, "Buccaneer's Girl" (U) (2d wk), $8,000.

Oriental (Booth) (3,400; 50-98)—"Golden Gloves Story" (EL) with Margaret O'Brien and Buddy Rogers on stage. Looks mild $40,000. Last week, "Nancy to Rio" (M-G) with "Sugar Chile" Robinson onstage (2d wk), $32,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 98)—"Cinderella" (RKO) (5th wk). Hefty $18,000. Last week, $20,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,500; 50-98)—"Wake Island" (Par) and "So Proudly Hail" (Par) (reissues). Moderate $10,000. Last week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Blue Grass Kentucky" (Mono) (2d wk), $7,500.

Selwyn (Shubert) (1,000; 98-$1.20)—"Third Man" (SRO) (6th wk). Continues climb with $12,500 probable. Last week, big $12,100.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,700; 50-98)—"Black Hand" (M-G) (2d wk). Tame $10,000. Last week, $17,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 50-98)—"Paid in Full" (Par) and "Unmasked" (Rep). Slim $9,000. Last week, "Kev to City" (M-G) (2d wk), good $10,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,073; 50-98)—"12 O'Clock High" (20th) (4th wk). Sock $17,000. Last week, $20,000.

World (Indie) (587; 80)—"Bicycle Thief" (Indie) (6th wk). Handsome $5,000. Last week, $5,500.

Cincy Slower But 'Horn' Hep $12,000; 'Cinderella' Great 14G, 2d, 'Mother' 10G

Cincinnati, March 28.

Downtown trade is back to normal, after last week's spurt. Holdover "Cinderella" maintains leadership this round, a couple of steps ahead of "Young Man With Horn," best of four new bills. It is sturdy. "Mother Didn't Tell Me" holds edge on other newcomers.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 55-75) — "Cinderella" (RKO) (2d wk). Great $14,000 trailing smash $21,000 preem, warranting rare holdover privilege at this RKO flagship here.

Capitol (Mid-States) (2,000; 55-75) — "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th). All right $10,000 or near. Last week, "12 O'Clock Night" (20th) (3d wk), good $7,000.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 55-75) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G) (2d wk). Pleasing $8,000 after bright $13,000 bow.

Keith's (Mid-States) — "Guilty Bystander" (FC). Fairish $5,500. Last week, "Capt. China" (Par), $6,500.

Lyric (RKO) (1,400; 55-75) — "Johnny Holiday" (UA) (m.o.). Nice $4,500. Last week, "Beau Geste" (Par) and "Lives Bengal Lancer" (Par) (reissues), solid $4,500.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 55-75) — "Man With Horn" (WB). Nice $12,000. Last week, "Johnny Holiday" (UA), sturdy $12,000.

Shubert (Mid-States) (2,100; 55-75) — "Dakota Lil" (20th). Oke $6,000. Last week, "Here Come Co-Eds" (Indie) and "Can't Cheat Honest Man" (Indie) (reissues), tame $4,000.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net, i.e., without the 20% tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'Island' Tight 10G Tops New D.C. Pix

Washington, March 28.

Both extremes of boxoffice scale are current in town's showcases. "Third Man," at Playhouse, is way out front with second record-breaking stanza, topping even amazing takes of "All King's Men." "Tight Little Island," daydating at Little and Dupont, is doing land-office biz at both small seating arters, making it a perfect score for Lopert chain. "Red Shoes," in third week on pop prices at Trans-Lux, continues strong. "Cinderella" is still hefty in its fifth week at RKO Keith's. In contrast, "Paid In Full" is scraping bottom of barrel at Warner.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol (Loew's) (2,434; 44-85)—"Key to City" (M-G) (2d wk) plus vaude. Nice $16,000 after husky $28,000 last week.

Dupont (Lopert) (50-85)—"Tight Little Island" (U). Smash $6,000, day-date with Little. Last week, "Scarlet Empress" (Par) and "Bedtime Story" (Indie) (reissues), $3,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,939; 44-80)—"Cinderella" (RKO) (5th wk). Stout $14,000 after better than expected $15,000 last week. Holds to cash school holiday biz.

Little (Lopert) (285; 50-85)—"Tight Little Island" (U). Big $4,000 for this little house. Last week, "Amazing Mr. Beecham" (EL) (2d wk), $2,500.

Metropolitan (Warner) (1,163; 44-74)—"Father Is Bachelor" (Col) and "Palomino" (Col). Okay $5,000, but better hoped for after crix praise. Last week, one-day runs of Academy nominees, $5,000.

Palace (Loew's) (2,370; 44-74)—"Three Came Home" (20th). Shapes good $18,000. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th), died mid-week to lowest first run here for months, $12,000.

Playhouse (Lopert) (485; 55-90)—"Third Man" (SRO) (2d wk). Terrific $12,000 after record-breaking $14,000 opener. Holds indefinitely.

Warner (WB) (2,164; 44-74)—"Paid In Full" (Par). Sad $11,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par), way below estimate and lowest in over a year at $10,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (654; 44-80)—"Red Shoes" (EL) (3d wk). Great $9,000, topping last week's $8,000, which sild because of rain.

'Mother' Smart $12,500, Omaha; 'Blue Grass' 9G

Omaha, March 28.

Dorothy McGuire, local girl and Community Playhouse graduate, is one of main reasons for nice session that "Mother Didn't Tell Me" is doing at Paramount currently. Orpheum gave "Blue Grass of Kentucky" a smash campaign but it looks light. "The Big Wheel" at the Omaha shapes nice.

Estimates for This Week

Paramount (Tristates) (2,800; 16-65) — "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th). Fast $12,500. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par), fair $10,800.

Orpheum (Tristates) (3,000; 16-65) — "Blue Grass of Kentucky" (Mono) and "Girl In Heart" (Mono). Light $9,000. Last Week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) and "Federal Agent" (Rep), $10,000.

Brandeis (RKO) (1,500; 16-65)—"Nevadan" (Col) and "Blondie's Hero" (Col). Okay $7,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Mark Gorilla" (Col), started fine but slipped to $6,200, fair.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,100; 16-65)—"Big Wheel" (UA) and "Forgotten Women" (Mono). Nice $9,000. Last week, "Dakota Lil" (20th) and "Shamrock Hill" (EL), $8,000.

'Hasty' Hefty $11,000, Toronto; 'Champ' 13½G

Toronto, March 28.

With business not spectacular but satisfactory, "Chain Lightning" and "Hasty Heart" are leading the newcomers here. "Francis," in for second week, shapes fine at Uptown. "Alias the Champ," with Gorgeous George as draw, is lusty at four houses, paired with "Backfire."

Estimates for This Week

Downtown, Glendale, Scarboro, State (20th) (1,059; 955; 698; 694; 35-60) — "Backfire" (WB) and "Alias Champ" (Rep.) Big $13,500, with latter the draw. Last week, "Baby Makes Three" (Col) and "Kazan" (Col), nice $10,500.

Eglinton, Victoria (FP) (1,080; 1,140; 40-70)—"Hasty Heart" (WB). Fine $11,000. Last week, "Heiress" (Par) (4th wk), okay $8,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,373; 40-70) — "Chain Lightning" (WB). Lusty $12,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par), $13,500.

Loew's (Loew) (2,096; 40-70) — "Key To City" (M-G). Nice $9,500. Last week, "Malaya" (W-G) (2d wk), dull $6,500.

Nortown, University (FP) (959; 1,556; 40-70)—"Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) (2d wk). Healthy $8,500 after last week's fine $12,000.

Shea's (FP) (2,386; 40-70) — "Paid in Full" (Par). Fair $8,500. Last week, "Willie Comes Home" (20th) (2d wk), okay $7,500.

Uptown (Loew) (2,743; 40-70)—"Francis" (U) (2d wk). Fine 9,000 after last week's sock $12,000.

'Samson' Terrif $20,000, L'ville

Louisville, March 28.

"Samson and Delilah" is bulging the walls at Rialto currently, with turnaway biz on opening day. Upped prices will boost this to terrific total. Loew's State with "Nancy Goes to Rio" is shaping fairish. "Perfect Strangers" at Mary Anderson looks lukewarm.

Estimates for This Week

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,200; 45-65)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB). Fairish $7,000. Last week, "Backfire" (WB), $6,500.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; 75-99) — "Samson and Delilah" (Par). Upped prices look justified this week, with house jam packed for DeMille opus. With any sustaining of pace, should hit terrific $20,000 easily. Last week, "12 O'Clock High" (20th), strong $14,000 and m.o.

State (Loew's) (3,000; 45-65)—"Nancy to Rio" (M-G) and "Reckless Moment" (Col). Medium $11,000. Last week, "Malaya" (M-G) and "Daring Caballero" (Col), modest $9,000.

Strand (FA) (1,200; 45-65)—"Outside Wall" (U) and "An Act of Murder" (U). Puny $3,500 in offing. Last week, "Red Light" (Mono) and "Masked Raiders" (Mono), okay $5,000.

Lent Sloughs Prov. But 'Nancy' Nice at $18,000; 'Francis' Stout 10G, 2d

Providence, March 28.

Moderate biz at all houses with the Lenten season here this week. Steadiest is State's "Nancy Goes to Rio." Majestic's "Three Came Home," in second week, still good. RKO Albee did very well with "Francis" in second round.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 44-65) — "Outside the Wall" (U). Opened Tuesday (28). Last week, "Francis" (U) and "Black Shadows" (EL) (2d wk-6 days), stout $10,000.

Fay's (Fay) (1,400; 44-65) — "Whole Town's Talking" (Col) (reissue) and vaude onstage. Fair $6,000. Last week, "Twilight in Sierras" (Rep) and vaude, good $7,000.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 44-65) — "Three Came Home" (20th) (2d wk). Good $10,000. Last week, steady $15,000.

Metropolitan (Snider) (3,100; 44-65)—"G.I. Joe" (EL) and "Change of Heart" (Rep) (reissues). So-so $6,200. Last week, "Beau Geste" (Par) and "Lives Bengal Lancer" (Par) (reissues), oke $7,500.

State (Loew) (3,200; 44-65) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G) and "Girl San Lorenzo" (Col). Holding for nine-day run, and good $18,000 looms. Last week, "Key To City" (M-G), $16,500.

Strand (Silverman) (2,200; 44-65)—"Father Is Bachelor" (Col) and "Palomino" (Col). Light $9,000. Last week, "Paid in Full" (Par), $10,000.

B'way Dull; 'Barricade'-Basie-Holiday Mild $38,000; 'Cab Man'-Paxton Slow 40G, 'Francis'-Stageshow Big 62G, 2d

Business at nearly all Broadway first-run theatres continues in the doldrums this session. Three new bills are proving small help, and the combination of several rainy days and the spring-like weekend took a further cut at the boxoffice. Warm temperatures yesterday (Tues.) also hurt. A clear-cut idea of the slow state of business is best shown currently by two new bills which ordinarily would be big to sock.

One is "Yelow Cab Man" with George Paxton band, Artie Dann and others, onstage at the Capitol. New Red Skelton comedy likely won't top $40,000, way below par for house and this comedian's latest. The other is "Barricade" with Count Basie band and Billie Holiday, which looks only about $38,000 for first week at the Strand. While better than this house has been doing in recent sessions it is out of line with Basie-Holiday draw in N. Y. "Buccaneer's Girl" also is suffering from the downbeat with only $12,000 or less at the Criterion.

Bulk of strong trade is coming from holdovers and longruns. Outstanding of these is "Francis," with King Cole Trio, Ray McKinley band and Larry Storch heading stageshow, in second week at Paramount. One of real draw bills over the weekend, it will give the Par flagship a fancy $62,000 and enough to cinch a third round excepting for prior commitments.

"Cinderella" and "Third Man" remain pacemakers of extended-run pictures. Former at the Mayfair still is big with $27,000 or close for fifth round. "Third Man" shapes to finish up its eighth week at the Victoria with smash $25,000 or thereabouts.

"Woman of Distinction" with stageshow is very mild $95,000 in second Music Hall week. Other houses, excepting some of the small arty theatres, are unbelievably dull. Outstanding exception is "Without Pity," still big at $10,000 for second stanza at bandbox Rialto.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 60-$1.50) "Three Came Home" (20th) (6th wk). Not so good $13,000 fifth week ended Monday (27) after $15,000 for fourth. Stays until April 8 when "Golden Twenties" (RKO) opens.

Bijou (City Inv.) (589; $1.20-$2.40) — "Red Shoes" (EL) (75th wk). Holding okay at $8,000 after $8,500 last week.

Capitol (Loew's) (4,820; 55-$1.50)—"Yellow Cab Man" (M-G) with George Paxton orch, Artie Dann, others, onstage. On disappointing side, $40,000 or less:. In ahead, "Black Hand" (M-G) with Art Mooney, Pied Pipers heading stage bill (2d wk), $35,000.

Criterion (Moss) (1,700; 50-$1.75)—"Buccaneer's Girl" (U). House continues in low gear, light $12,000 or under likely week ending next Friday (31). In ahead, "Outside Wall" (U) (11 days), $17,000, also slow.

Globe (Brandt) (1,500; 50-$1.20) — "Outlaw" (RKO) (6th wk). Slipped to $9,000 after $12,500 last week. Holds until April 7 when "City Lights" (UA) (reissue) opens.

Mayfair (Brandt) (1,736; 50-$1.20)—"Cinderella" (RKO) (6th wk). Still very much in chips with $27,000 for fifth round ended last night (Tues.). Fourth week was big $32,000. "Guilty of Treason" (EL) opens April 9.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; 55-$1.20)—"Side Street" (M-G) and vaude. Nice $19,000, with Saturday being biggest here in sometime. Last week, "Davy Crockett" (UA) with vaude, $16,000.

Paramount (Par) (3,664; 55-$1.50)—"Captain Carey, U.S.A." (Par) with Mel Torme, Ella Fitzgerald, Sam Donahue orch, Johnny Morgan onstage. Opens today (Wed.). Last week, "Francis" (U) and King Cole Trio, Ray McKinley orch topping stageshow (2d wk), held to fine $62,000 after big $72,000 opener. Might have held a third except for prior bookings.

Park Avenue (U) (583; 90-$1.50)—"Astonished Heart" (U) (7th wk). Sixth stanza ended Monday (27) held to $4,200 after nice $4,300 last week. Continues until about April 7 when "Run For Your Money" (U) is set to open.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (5,945; 80-$2.40)—"Woman of Distinction" (Col) and stageshow (2d-final wk). Down to about $95,000 after light $106,000 for first. Easter holiday show with "Glory of Easter" and "Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" (WB) opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Rialto (Mage) (594; 44-98) — "Without Pity" (Indie) (3d wk). Second week ended last night (Tues.) held in great style with $10,000, best second round here in some time. First was socko $12,500.

Rivoli (UAT-Par) (2,092; 90-$1.80)—"Samson and Delilah" (Par) (14th wk). Down to $12,500 but all right for this stage of run after $14,500 last week. "Comanche Territory" (U) opens April 7.

Roxy (20th) (5,886; 80-$1.75) — "Under My Skin" (20th) and China Doll Revue onstage (2d-final wk). Off to $42,000 after dull $50,000 initial round. "Cheaper By Dozen" (20th) with Fran Warren, Jerry Murad's Harmonicats, topping stage bill opens Friday (31).

State (Loew's) (3,450; 55-$1.50)—"Outriders" (M-G) (4th wk). Starts today (Wed.). Third frame down to $9,000 after light $12,000 second week. "Nancy Goes To Rio" (M-G) set as Easter picture.

Strand (WB) (2,756; 55-$2) — "Barricade" (WB) with Count Basie orch, Billie Holiday, The Chocolaters onstage. Mild $38,000 looks about all, but holds. Last week, "Perfect Strangers" (WB) with Tito Guizar heading stageshow (2d wk), $18,000.

Sutton (R & B) (561; 90-$1.50)—"Fallen Idol" (SRO) (20th wk). The 19th frame ended Monday (27) held up at $6,400 after fine $6,700 for 18th week. Stays on, with opening of "Winslow Boy" (EL) held back.

Trans-Lux (60th St.) (453; 74-$1.50) — "Tight Little Island" (U) (14th wk). Thirteenth stanza ended last Saturday (25) an improvement at $5,500 after trim $5,000 last week. Stays on.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 95-$1.50)—"Third Man" (SRO) (8th wk). Continues in sensational style with near $25,000 after $28,200 last week. Remains on indefinitely.

'Cinderella' New Philly High, 16G

Philadelphia, March 28.

"Cinderella" is the lone bright spot here this week which was deadened by almost continuous rain and the pre-Easter slump. Disney opus is setting all-time record at the 500-seat Trans-Lux.

Rash of new product drew only mild customer attention. Especially slow new pix are "Never Fear," at Aldine; "Strangers," at Mastbaum, and "Barricade," at Stanton.

Estimates for This Week

Aldine (WB) (1,303; 50-99) — "Never Fear" (EL). Dull $7,000. Last week, "Guilty of Treason" (EL) (2d wk), $7,500.

Boyd (WB) (2,360; 50-99) — "Nancy To Rio" (M-G) (2d wk). Nice $18,000 after okay $25,000 initial stanza.

Earle (WB) (2,700; 70-$1.25) — "Samson and Delilah" (Par) (8th wk). Mild $12,000 for wind-up session after $14,000 last week.

Fox (20th) (2,250; 50-99)—"Three Came Home" (20th) (2d wk). Off to $16,000. Last week, neat $25,000 but not as big as expected.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; 50-99) — "Conspirator" (M-G). Fair $14,000. Last week, "Mrs. Mike" (UA), $13,000.

Karlton (Goldman) (1,000; 50-99)—"Black Hand" (M-G). Good $10,000. Last week, "Love Happy" (M-G) (3d wk), nice $6,000.

Mastbaum (WB) (4,360; 50-99)—"Perfect Strangers" (WB). Mild $18,000. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB) (3d wk), drab $13,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 50-99) — "Foolish Heart" (RKO) (2d wk). Fine $15,000 after neat $19,000 opener.

Stanley (WB) (2,950; 50-99) — "Buccaneer's Girl" (U). Thin $13,000. Last week "Sundowners" (EL), $14,000.

Stanton (WB) (1,475; 50-99) — "Barricade" (WB). Poor $8,000. Last week, "Outlaw" (RKO) (3d wk), nice $7,500.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 50-99) — "Cinderella" (RKO). Colossal $16,000, new high for house. Last week, reissue.

THE ADVANCE [illegible] BIG [illegible] ABOUT

THE BIG LIFT

"Caught a sneak preview of William Perlberg's and George Seaton's 'THE BIG LIFT' and it's great! It's going to be 'The Big Lift' for moviegoers."
—Sidney Skolsky

"THE BIG LIFT" COMES WITH MONTGOMERY CLIFT AND PAUL DOUGLAS

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A PICTURE LIKE IT!

movies are BETTER than ever!

Everywhere... every way the Campaign is giving the industry the Big Lift

There's No Business Like 20th CENTURY-FOX Business!

The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady

(SONGS-COLOR)

Hollywood, March 25.

Warners release of William Jacobs production. Stars June Haver, Gordon MacRae; features James Barton, Debbie Reynolds, Cuddles Sakall, Gene Nelson. Directed by David Butler. Screenplay, Jack Rose, Melville Shavelson, Peter Milne; from a story by Rose and Shavelson; camera (Technicolor), Wilfrid M. Cline; editor, Irene Morra; original music and lyrics, M. K. Jerome, Jack Scholl; dance numbers, LeRoy Prinz. Tradeshown March 21, '50. Running time, 104 MINS.

Patricia O'Grady	June Haver
Tony Pastor	Gordon MacRae
Dennis O'Grady	James Barton
Maureen O'Grady	Debby Reynolds
Miklos Teretzky	Cuddles Sakall
Doug Martin	Gene Nelson
James Moore	Sean McClory
Katie O'Grady	Marsha Jones
Mrs. Murphy	Jane Darwell

"The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" is another of those familiarly patterned musicals with a backstage plot. It has charm, some wit, nice music and good pace to fulfill all demands of the general market.

Thirteen songs and eight dances are lightly tossed off during the 104 minutes of running time. They are displayed in fancy Technicolor and period costumes of early New York, when Tony Pastor's was a budding, five-a-day vaude house and the Irish had the city's policing and transportation under control.

June Haver is one of three Irish colleen daughters of horsecar driver James Barton, a widower. A former vaudevillian, Barton hates the stage, but Miss Haver has inherited her mother's love for footlights. It's only a question of time before she meets Gordon MacRae, playing Pastor, leaves home for a song-dance career, has some romantic mixups and reconciles with dad at the finale.

Some of the dance numbers are expressive of the old school of vaude, in keeping with story's period, and there are several good tunes ably delivered by MacRae and Miss Haver. Latter and Barton team on "My Own True Love and I," written by M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl. Another that comes across is MacRae's piping of "As We Are Today," cleffed by Ernesto Lecuona and Charles Tobias. MacRae, Miss Haver and Gene Nelson sharpen up their terp work, particularly Nelson, in the production numbers staged by LeRoy Prinz. In addition, there are two comedy knockabout dance routines by the Lees.

David Butler's helming of the elegantly mounted William Jacobs production generates a good pace to see it through the long running time. Music and plot are nicely meshed, adding charm to the familiar story line used by scripters Jack Rose, Melville Shavelson and Peter Milne. They have provided an occasional sparkle of wit in the dialog and situations. Also, Barton is given one strong dramatic scene that he plays to the hilt. He's drunk and feeling sorry for the loss of his daughter and the death of his wife. Audiences will cotton to it. The drunk bit is a throwback to one of Barton's famous vaude standbys.

Outside of the principals, cast rings in Debbie Reynolds as Barton's youngest daughter, a cute little brat, and Marsha Jones (Marcia Mae Jones), as his oldest, secretly married to an Irish cop. S. Z. (Cuddles) Sakall wins a load of laughs as a family friend.

Technical contributions put a lot of glitter on the colorful period depicted. Wilfrid Cline's lensing beautifully displays the players, costumes and sets. Ray Heindorf's musical direction, the music adaptation by David Buttolph and the orchestrations by Frank Perkins help in treating the ear.

Brog.

Miniature Reviews

"Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" (Songs—Color) (WB). Light melange of songs and dances with backstage plot.

"Cheaper By the Dozen" (Color) (20th). Clifton Webb, Jeanne Crain, Myrna Loy, others for marquees and strong biz.

"Ma and Pa Kettle Go to Town" (U). Another good comedy in the "Kettle" series; solid nabe b.o.

"House by the River" (Rep). Fair mystery with Louis Hayward.

"Boy From Indiana" (EL). Lon McCallister in mild racehorse meller.

"The Silver Bandit" (Friedgen). Feeble oatuner with Spade Cooley; negligible b.o.

"Guilt Is My Shadow" (ABPC). Slow British thriller.

Cheaper by the Dozen

(COLOR)

Hollywood, March 25.

Twentieth-Fox release of Lamar Trotti production. Stars Clifton Webb, Jeanne Crain, Myrna Loy; features Betty Lynn, Edgar Buchanan, Barbara Bates, Mildred Natwick, Sara Allgood. Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay, Trotti; based on the novel by Frank B. Gilbreth, Jr., and Ernestine Gilbreth Carey; camera (Technicolor), Leon Shamroy; music, Cyril Mockridge; editor, J. Watson Webb, Jr. Tradeshown March 24, '50. Running time, 85 MINS.

Frank Bunker	Clifton Webb
Ann Gilbreth	Jeanne Crain
Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth	Myrna Loy
Libby Lancaster	Betty Lynn
Dr. Burton	Edgar Buchanan
Ernestine	Barbara Bates
Mrs. Mebane	Mildred Natwick
Mrs. Monahan	Sara Allgood
Fred Gilbreth	Anthony Sydes
Jack Gilbreth	Roddy McCaskill
Frank Bunker Gilbreth	Clifton Webb
Lillie Gilbreth	Carole Nugent
William Gilbreth	Jimmy Hunt
Dan Gilbreth	Teddy Driver
Mary Gilbreth	Betty Barker
School Principal	Evelyn Varden
Higgins	Frank Orth
Tom Black	Craig Hill
Mrs. Benson	Virginia Brissac
Jim Bracken	Walter Baldwin
Joe Scales	Bennie Bartlett
Plumber	Syd Saylor
Mailman	Ken Christy
Music Teacher	Mary Field

If "Cheaper By the Dozen" is an example of what's to come, then 20th-Fox's slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever" means just what it says. "Cheaper," taken from the Gilbreth family novel of the same title, is a lot of fun, is loaded with word-of-mouth and a large grossing potential.

Episodes in the life of the Gilbreths zip across the screen to resounding laughter, and conclude with a tear after a very fast 85 minutes of entertainment. Life with Papa Gilbreth may not always have been a happy one but it certainly was never dull. There hasn't been much of an attempt to make a smoothly connected story out of the novel's large lot of material. Instead, Lamar Trotti's script hits the high spots, bringing episode after episode to gleeful life as the brood of 12 kids, mama and papa go about their business of getting the most from their lot.

There's some "Belvedere" in Clifton Webb's portrayal of papa, but no one will quarrel with this injection of the "Sitting Pretty" prim funster into "Cheaper." It fits perfectly. Emphasis is on papa, so the rest of the cast are only around as straights, roles which they fill splendidly, including Jeanne Crain, the oldest of the family offspring.

Spots that shine through in the footage have two toppers. One is papa's firm decision to chaperone Miss Crain on her first date at the highschool prom. He becomes the lion of the evening, with the period's equivalent of today's bobby-soxer, under the sponsorship of Betty Lynn, one of the teenager charmers. Miss Lynn has only this sequence, but it's a honey.

The other is papa's death. It is a scene that doesn't show in the footage and is all the more effective because of that. It puts a moving climax on the picture, coming as papa was ready for his greatest personal triumph (outside of fathering an even dozen).

Remembered will be the sight of the family proudly on the highway in the high-wheeled, side-bursting Pierce-Arrow touring car; the family council which papa always dominated; the mass whoopingcough, tonsilectomy session with papa a willing patient to study a surgeon's waste motions.

Myrna Loy charms as mother, the willing assistant of papa's paternal ambitions and balance-wheel for the brood. Miss Crain aptly portrays the suffering of a highschooler held back in dowdy styles by a stern father. Edgar Buchanan, the family doctor; Barbara Bates, second daughter; Mildred Natwick, a birth-control advocate; and the sundry other Gilbreths, Anthony Sydes, Roddy McCaskill, Norman Ollestad, Carole Nugent, Jimmy Hunt, Teddy Driver, Betty Barker, plus Evelyn Varden's school principal scene, are among the many good performances.

Walter Lang's direction milks every episode of all the humor inherent in the familiar famliy antics. His pacing carries the film along at a speed that never lets down, keyed to hit hard and constantly at the risibilities. In fact, much of the dialog is lost in audience reaction.

Trotti's production steers this one on a payoff course at the boxoffice. It has all the popular ingredients of this type yarn, warmth, a lot of humor, and just enough clutching at the heart to please any audience. Dressing the period settings and costumes is tasty color lensing by Leon Shamroy. A tight editing job, and not an easy one, by J. Watson Webb, Jr., and a music score by Cyril Mockridge are among the other good technical contributions.

Brog.

Director's Top Billing

Hollywood, March 28.

I. G. Goldsmith's forthcoming production, "The Dungeon," will bill its director, E. A. Dupont, above the title and the cast, both in screen credits and advertising.

Ma and Pa Kettle Go to Town

Universal release of Leonard Goldstein production. Stars Marjorie Main, Percy Kilbride. Directed by Charles Lamont. Screenplay, Martin Ragaway, Leonard Stern; camera, Charles Van Enger; editor, Russell Schoengarth. Tradeshown N. Y., March 15, '50. Running time, 79 MINS.

Ma Kettle	Marjorie Main
Pa Kettle	Percy Kilbride
Tom Kettle	Richard Long
Kim Kettle	Meg Randall
Louie	Gregg Martell
"Shotgun" Mike Munger	Charles McGraw
Mrs. Masterson	Kathryn Givney
Little Joe	Jim Backus
Boxer	Elliott Lewis
Harold Masterson	Paul McVey
Dutch	Bert Freed
Eskow	Hal March

Latest episode in the "Ma and Pa Kettle" saga is a neat comedy that pars the entertainment values of previous pix in this series. Following a basic story formula and familiar characterizations, pic manages to sock across plenty of laughs via good timing of its comedy situations. Production values are good and the b.o. payoff will be solid, particularly in nabe situations.

Yarn takes the Kettles out of the backwoods for a whirl around New York City after Pa Kettle (Percy Kilbride) wins another jingle contest. Complications are supplied by having a gangster on the lam take care of the Kettle brood while the rural characters agree to deliver a luggageful of stolen coin to the mobster's pals in the big city.

In N. Y., the Kettles make the most of the usual sight-seeing gags. Kilbride, meantime, loses the coin and becomes the center of attention for the mobsters, who think he is plying his own angles. Both the cops and robbers are parodied in the windup capture of the criminals at a swank evening party. Yarn also has an O. Henry twist in its causing the tough lammister in the backwoods gladly surrendering to the police after being tortured by the dozen Kettle kids.

Performances are standard, with Kilbride and Marjorie Main registering in another effective comedy teamup. Richard Long and Meg Randall, as the younger married Kettles, are okay in brief roles, while Charles McGraw and Gregg Martell score strongly as the gangsters. Rest of the cast contribute competently.

Camera work is crisp, with first-rate lensing of the N. Y. backgrounds. Smooth editing and light musical score add to the pic's impact.

Herm.

A Run for Your Money

"A Run For Your Money" (Rank), which opens today (Wed.) at the Park Avenue theatre, N. Y., was reviewed in VARIETY from London, Dec. 7, 1949. Pic, from the same stable that bred "Passport to Pimlico" and "Tight Little Island," according to reviewer Clem, "is a light-hearted comedy that should provide good local entertainment, but, like its predecessors, its specialized dialog and atmosphere may limit its appeal abroad." Story depicts the adventures of two Welsh miners who get separated while spending a day in London after having won a nationwide contest for the greatest output of coal.

Film, being released in the U. S. by Universal, stars Donald Houston, Moira Lister and Alec Guinness. Latter is currently starring on Broadway in T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party."

House by the River

Republic release of Fidelity Pictures (Howard Welsch) production. Stars Louis Hayward; features Lee Bowman, Jane Wyatt. Directed by Fritz Lang. Screenplay, Mel Dinelli, from novel by A. P. Herbert; camera, Edward Cronjager; editor, Arthur D. Hilton; music, George Antheil. Tradeshown N. Y., March 23, '50. Running time, 88 MINS.

Stephen Byrne	Louis Hayward
John Byrne	Lee Bowman
Marjorie Byrne	Jane Wyatt
Emily Gaunt	Dorothy Patrick
Mrs. Ambrose	Ann Shoemaker
Flora Bantam	Jody Gilbert
Coroner	Peter Brocco
District Attorney	Howland Chamberlin
Mrs. Whittaker	Margaret Seddon
Mrs. Beach	Sarah Padden
Effie Ferguson	Kathleen Freeman
Inspector Sarten	Will Wright
Mr. Gaunt	Leslie Kimmell
Mrs. Gaunt	Effie Laird

"House by the River" is a fair mystery which lacks sufficient plot twists and suspense to project it into a solid boxoffice category. Story builds slowly and few filmgoers will have difficulty in anticipating the finale. Entry isn't strong enough to solo. However, it should do moderately well in the secondary situations.

As screenplayed by Mel Dinelli from an A. P. Herbert novel, the film departs from the conventional whodunit in that the audience knows the identity of the murderer from the opening reel. Subsequent footage is chiefly a character study of the three principals. Moreover, the audience is aware that the killer must eventually pay for crime. Steps leading up to this account for most of the suspense.

In fact, Dinelli's treatment of the script is modeled more along the lines of stage techniques rather than in the cinematic medium. Bulk of the action takes place in a gloomy mansion and a courtroom. Dialog also is particularly wordy in establishing the peculiarities of the top players. One gets the impression that the screenplay was tailored to the sets rather than vice versa.

Yarn revolves around a hack writer who strangles the maid when she rebuffs his advances. His brother, an accountant, realizes murder has been committed, but somehow lets his kin persuade him to assist in disposing of the body. Retribution ultimately asserts itself in the best tradition of the Production Code.

Role of the writer represents a meaty part for Louis Hayward who essays it with such gusto that he frequently overplays. Lee Bowman is believable as the accomplice-brother while Jane Wyatt is appealing as Hayward's trusting wife. Dorothy Patrick, naturally has little to do as the victim. Ann Shoemaker and Jody Gilbert stand out among the long supporting cast.

Fritz Lang's direction is good as is the camerawork of Edward Cronjager. Producer Howard Welsch obviously exercised care with the film's physical production. George Antheil's score is another asset. For dual bookings, however, the 88 minutes running time is overlong. Trimming 10 or 15 minutes in the right places would speed the picture's action and mood.

Gilb.

Boy from Indiana

Eagle Lion release of Ventura Pictures production. Stars Lon McCallister; features Lois Butler; Billie Burke, George Cleveland. Directed by John Rawlins. Screenplay, Otto Englander; camera, Jack Mackenzie; editor, Merrill White. Tradeshown N. Y., March 23, '50. Running time, 66 MINS.

Lon Decker	Lon McCallister
Betty Richards	Lois Butler
Zelda Bagley	Billie Burke
Mac Dougall	George Cleveland
Wilkinson	Rol Laughner
Thorne	Victor Cox
Burke	Jerry Ambler
Corbett	Allen Church
Pretty Girl	Jeanne Patterson
Dandy	"Texas Dandy"

On paper, this yarn about matching a leading western quarter-horse with a thoroughbred racing bangtail apparently was a firstrate meller of minimum thrills. On the screen, it turns out a strange assortment of jerky continuity, blah acting and hokum melodramatics. Lon McCallister is not enough for such a lightweight vehicle. For the lower twinners.

Plot introduces Texas Dandy, known for his racing ability in quarter-mile fair races in the western country. Scripters spot him as a rat-tailed stallion being carted around the country and winning numerous match races, after its owner, George Cleveland, dopes his hoss.

From this unsavory beginning, the tale wanders over the landside, relating the contest to grab a broken down ranch from Cleveland, and McAllister's romance with Lois Butler. It's a sure-thing forecast that McAllister will become the jockey for "Dandy" and ultimately win the crucial race and the gal. That transpires, but not until the poor mount has been gored by a bull, nearly misses the race because of the injury, etc.

McCallister plays himself as the wandering lad from Indiana who becomes a jockey. He is weighted down with more tiresome dialog than usual. Cleveland is okay as the oldster, who connives to win races through doping his steed. Billie Burke gives a fair representation of a flighty woman of means.

"Texas Dandy" is about the best thespian in the film, as the story turns out—possibly because the hoss can't talk. Otto Englander's screenplay is one of those pat affairs that suffers from childish dialog. John Rawlins directs with a heavy hand. Jack Mackenzie does a trim job of cameraing.

Wear.

The Silver Bandit

(SONGS)

Raymond Friedgen release of J. R. Camomile production. Stars Spade Cooley; features Bob Gilbert, Virginia Jackson, Richard Elliot, Billy Dix. Directed by Elmer Clifton. At New York theatre, N. Y., dual. Running time, 49 MINS.

While Spade Cooley is one of the top western bandleaders, his participation in this feeble oatuner reflects no credit on him. Sound and photography are unbelievably bad.

Camerawork of an anonymous lensman is so blurry that often it's difficult to distinguish the features of the principals. Soundtrack is equally deficient. Voices aren't clear and the score is fuzzy. Print used at Brandt's New York theatre, N. Y. also was below par and broke midway through the performance.

Routine story has Cooley, a dude, capture the "silver bandit" after a series of tenderfoot bunglings. Yarn is padded out with a couple of musical sequences which are far better than the rusty plot. Cooley and his fellow players show no thespic aptitude especially under the inept direction of Elmer Clifton.

Gilb.

Guilt Is My Shadow

(BRITISH)

London, March 22.

Associated British-Pathe release of ABPC production. Stars Elizabeth Sellars, Patrick Holt; features Lana Morris, Peter Reynolds. Directed by Roy Kellino. Screenplay by Kellino, Ivan Foxwell; camera, William McLeod; editor, George Clark; music, Hans May. At Plaza, London, March 22, '50. Running time, 84 MINS.

Linda	Elizabeth Sellars
Kit	Patrick Holt
Jamie	Peter Reynolds
Betty	Lana Morris
Tom	Laurence O'Madden
Peggy	Esme Cannon
Tillingham	Wensley Pithey
Eva	Avice Landone
Doctor	Aubrey Woods
Detective	Willoughby Gray

This is a slow, meandering story of little appeal for the U. S. market. It will only prove a moderate quota offering for British exhibitors.

Much good talent is wasted on inadequate material. The story of a young wife who accidentally kills her ne'er-do-well husband, hides his body and subsequently confesses after a bout of hysteria, has the basis of good drama. But loose scripting and unimaginative treatment make it a dull offering.

Leading roles are adequately played by Patrick Holt, Elizabeth Sellars, Peter Reynolds and Lana Morris, although the latter is wasted in what is little more than a bit. Story is shot almost entirely against a country setting and some rural scenes are among the best thing in the picture.

Myro.

Anna of Rhodes

(GREEK)

Gloria Films Distributing Co. release of Anzervos Studios production. Stars Katy Panou, Lambros Constantaros. Directed by Michael Gaziades and John Filippou. Screenplay, G. Assimakopoulos, V. Spyropoulos and P. Papaloukas; music, Nick Giakovlef and Jack Jacovides. At Avenue Playhouse, N. Y., March 22, '50. Running time, 78 MINS.

Anna Roditi	Katy Panou
Aris	Lambros Constantaras
Panaghis Roditis	Yannis Prineas
Yannis	Nicos Matheos
Pantelis	Leles Jacovides
Hariclea	Persa Vlahou
Giovani Rejilli	Dimos Starenios
Aliki	Aliki Alpha

One of the first postwar Greek pix filmed, "Anna of Rhodes" is strictly limited to Greek-speaking audiences in art houses. Latter will find it of appeal because of the patriotic nature of its story, plus the comic interludes in dialog and situation, and will overlook flaws in screenplay and performance.

Pic was filmed on the island of Rhodes (and processed in Athens). It deals with the occupation of the island by the Italians during the recent war, and the workings of the Greek underground. More specifically, it concerns a young Greek soldier who masquerades as a Fascist, and the dangers involving him and his girl, until the island is freed.

Story is very static and slow, and performances and direction rather stilted and amateurish. What interest there is for the non-Greek is mainly in the attractive scenery of Rhodes, with its gardens, walks and homes.

Bron.

The Walls of Malapaga

(ITALIAN)

Films International release of Alfredo Guarini production. Stars Jean Gabin and Isa Miranda; features Vera Talchi. Directed by Rene Clement. Story, S. Cecc D'Amico, Guarini and Cesare Zavattini; screen adaptation, Jean Aurenche and Pierre Bost; music, Roman Vlad; camera, Louis Page. At Paris, N. Y., March 26, '50. Running time, 91 MINS.

Marta	Isa Miran
Pierre	Jean Gabin
Joseph	Andrea Checchi
Cecchina	Vera Talc
Bosco	Robert Dalban
Maria	Ave Ninchi

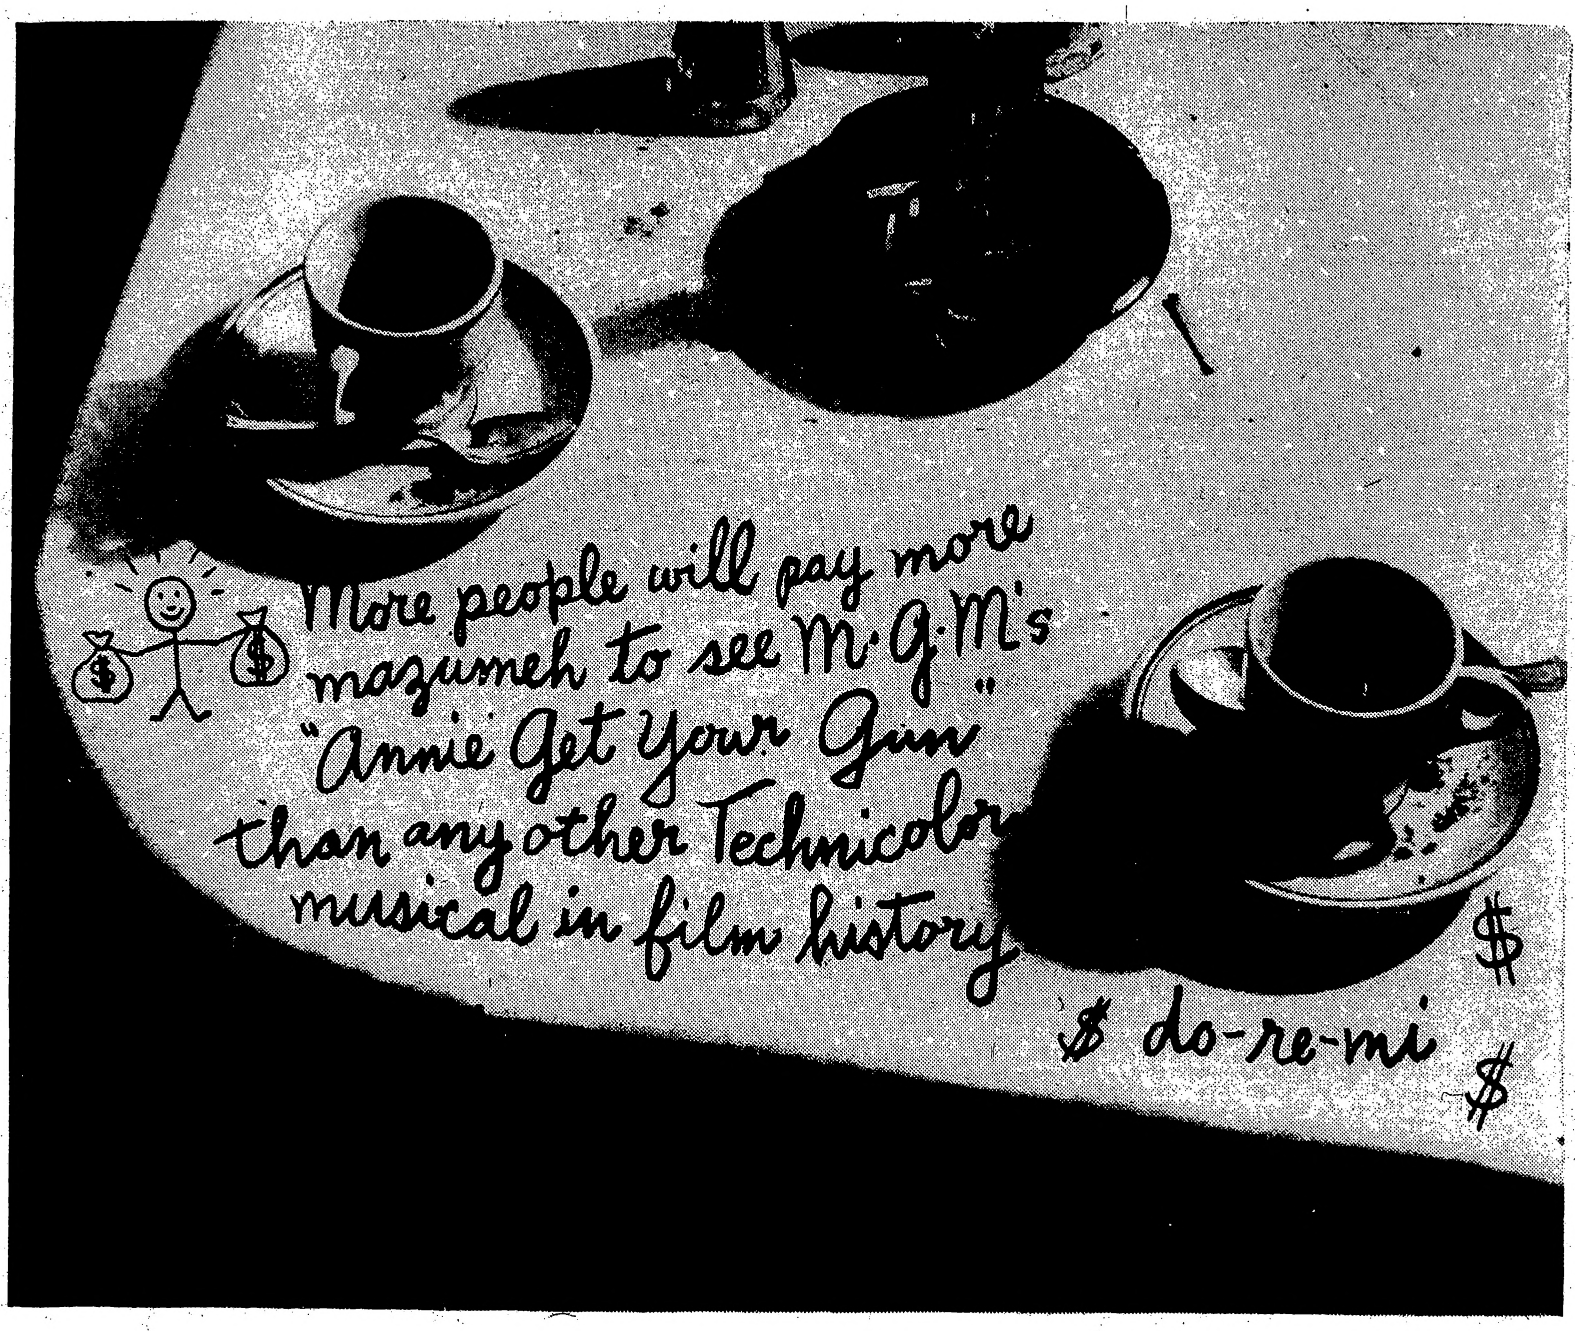
(French and Italian; English Titles)

An exciting fusion of Italian and Gallic talents has gone into the making of "The Walls of Malapaga," an earthy, raw tale of teeming humanity of the Genoa backwash. With Jean Gabin, a Frenchman, and Isa Miranda, an Italian, as the stars, "Malapaga" is a pulsating drama of frustration that is in the typical idiom of Italian pix that have come to these shores in the last several years. It is a strong boxoffice bet for the arty theatres.

With its dialog in both French and Italian, though predominantly the former, "Malapaga" is backed by strong acting performances from the stars down to the supporting players. It has excellent directing, a fine script and imaginative photography.

Story deals with a Frenchman

(Continued on page 24)



More people will pay more mazumeh to see M-G-M's "Annie Get Your Gun" than any other Technicolor musical in film history
$ do-re-mi
$
$
$
$

ON THE TABLE-CLOTH AT THE ASTOR!

And Everywhere!

Don't Relax
Until We Axe
The Movie Tax!

Arg. Pix Flourish at B.O. While Exhibs, Distribs Await D.C. Outcome

Buenos Aires, March 21.

Theatre owners here and U. S. film distributors are awaiting the outcome of the Inter-American economic talks in Washington in hopes that the Argentine delegation, headed by Treasury Minister Dr. Ramon Cereijo, will make some deal that will bring about a renewal of import licenses to American pix. Permits to U.S. films haven't been granted in over a year.

At any rate, while the future of film imports still hangs in the balance, local production continues coining plentiful dough as the preem of one local production succeeds another week by week. The fact, which has proved astounding to all observers, is that boxoffice receipts have held up to previous high levels, despite the succession of releases of third-rate and outdated pictures from the U.S., reissues of old comebacks, and absorption of all the firstrun screens by the local material.

Fourteen weeks at the Ambassador in firstrun have grossed well over $60,000 (U.S.) for Argentina Sono Film's "Almafuerte," which holdover caused a postponement of the preem of Emelco's "La Barca Sin Pescador."

Top records have been broken by "Nacha Regules" at the Gran Rex and in the cities of Cordoba and Rosario in the interior. The picture is already in its fourth week, and will continue for several more.

Twenty-six weeks of Interamericana's comedy, "Avivato," gave a gross of $152,825 (U.S.) and the producers are hoping for at least equivalent results for "Piantadino," just released at the Ocean.

Finns, Swedes Nix One U.S. Pic Each; American Films Continue to Lead Abroad

Helsinki, March 21.

Universal's "Abbott & Costello Meet the Killers" was the only film banned here during the last two months.

With a total of 356 films exhibited here last year, Finland topped the other Scandinavian countries in the number of pictures shown during that period. Norway hit the 293 mark; Sweden was close with 292. Of the 356 pix distributed here, 230 were American-made, 30 Russian, 28 British, 20 Swedish, 19 French, 15 Finnish, eight German and two Mexican. The remaining four were from Canada, Hungary, Italy and Norway.

Swede's Metro Nix

Stockholm, March 21.

Metro's "Border Incident" was the only film nixed by the Swedish censorship board last month. During February, 29 pix were shown at first run houses here. Of those 15 were American-made, one British and four Swedish. The remainder came from Italy, Germany, Denmark and France.

Among those that did good at the b.o. were UA's "The Man on the Eiffel Tower," Paramount's "The Great Gatsby," and "The Heiress," 20th-Fox's "Twelve O'Clock High" and RKO's "Winterset." Last-named was recently given the green light after having been banned in 1937.

Aussie Bans British

Sydney, March 21.

Only one film was rejected outright by the Aussie censor in 1949, according to official report just published.

Pic was the Associated British "No Room at the Inn."

'Foxes' on Mex Stage

Mexico City, March 21.

Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," presented in English by the Mexico City Players, is doing well at the National Theatre here at a $1.15 top.

Leads are played by Gunther Gerszo, who also handled stage settings; Caroline Bourchier, Hedley Quick, Vic Morrow, Abel Franco and Ed Torrance. Earl Sennett, who came here with the American Theatre three years, directed. Presentation, Players' fifth annual production, represents the U. S. theatre in the international drama festival.

Maschwitz Preps Two New Plays with Music

Glasgow, March 21.

Eric Maschwitz, who authored book and lyrics for "Carissima," musical which opened British tour here tonight (21), is prepping two new plays with music.

One is musical version of the Eden Philpotts play, "The Farmer's Wife." Under title of "Widdicombe Fair," it will have world preem in either Glasgow or Manchester. Bill Johnson, of London's "Annie Get Your Gun," is mentioned for lead.

Second show, authored during war years, is "Heart of Gold," about life of a star of the Edwardian music hall. Film rights were bought by Metro for $30,000.

Stage production is held up momentarily because of difficulty of getting the right star.

Jap Web Fetes Its 25th Anni

Tokyo, March 21.

Broadcasting Corp. of Japan, nation's monopoly network, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this week. Web first went on the air March 22, 1925, and now includes 83 stations serving an estimated 8,500,000 receivers in Nippon. BCJ starts its second quarter century on the verge of meeting its first competition in the form of commercial broadcasting, slated to begin here May 2, providing the long-delayed legislation authorizing the new stations is passed. Web officials are optimistic, however, and are placing in operation this month 11 new stations in the No. 2 network, which has grown from three to 37 stations since the end of the war.

Net's 25th anni is being observed by a solid week of commemorative programs and special shows by top radio artists.

BCJ is a private corporation operating under government franchise. It carries no advertising, and supports itself by collecting listener fees from registered owners of radio receivers. Tab is 35 yen (less than 10c) a month per owner. Under forthcoming legislation, BCJ will become a public service corporation, operating under government auspices, without the stockholders it now has. Listener fees will still be collected.

FOREIGN STARS BOOKED FOR ITALIAN TOURS

Genoa, March 21.

Following the record grosses pulled in by the Louis Armstrong combo and other foreign acts on recent Italian tours, local bookers have rushed to sign more foreign stars of Italian tournees. The Katherine Dunham dance troupe completed a repeat tour of this country for Milan's Errepi Productions, which has also sponsored a series of one-nighters for Maurice Chevalier. Errepi will import other stars in the near future.

Josephine Baker is slated for a month of dates in April, as is Duke Ellington and orch, with French star Edwige Feuillere touring in "La Dame aux Camelias" in May.

Arnold, Gentle to Seek Large-Scale Shows in U.S.

London, March 21.

Tom Arnold and F. S. Gentle sail on the Queen Mary for America March 31. The Greyhound Racing Assn., of which Gentle is head, also is owner of the massive Harringay arena, with capacity of over 9,000, where Arnold runs an annual Christmas circus. Object of trip is to seek novelty shows to be staged at Harringay during the 1951 Festival of Britain.

Understood they are particularly interested in bringing over a rodeo show, if a suitable one is available. They expect to make extensive tour of the big cities and will be away about six weeks. Arnold will also settle on his Broadway pantomime project with Hyman Zahl while in America.

'Angels,' 'Girls' for Remake In Spanish in Mexico

Mexico City, March 14.

Spanish-Mexican rights to the German pic, "The Blue Angel," have been acquired by Rudolph Loewenthal, European producer, who has made several pix in Mexico.

Besides "Angel," Lowenthal intends to produce in Spanish in Mexico this year "Girls in Uniform" and an unnamed musical.

Rome Cafes Seek Top Talent For Holy Year Trade

Rome, March 21.

With an estimated 20,000 pilgrims coming to Rome each week, it has been necessary for the night club impresarios here to find some talent for their clubs, which usually cannot support such entertainment. This is only the beginning and agents are looking for international names which will fit into the picture for this year.

Pops and Louie and June Richmond are at the Rupe Tarpea Club. The Nicholas Bros. are sticking with the Wanda Osiris Revue at the Adriano. They like this because they are doing their own ballet, called "An American in Paris," with the George Gershwin music, and one show a night. Next year they plan a concert tour to South America, and this is a chance to try out other than standard theatre material. William Morris handles them through the Italian booker, Sacchi, in Milan.

Charlie Beal, pianist, is still pulling them in at the Keyboard Club, an after 10 spot featuring music by candlelight — mostly Americans at this one.

Raye and Naldi are featured at the newly-opened private spot, Open Gate Club, and double in the little 220 seater, Fiametta Cinema. The little cinema has three performances per day, at 5, 7:30 and 9:30. The act appears at only the 9:30 show, for which the prices are upped from 500 to 800 lire (80c, to $1.35). Sven Asmussen and his orcestra, an importation from Denmark, are proving a good drawing card. They are well-known to most Europeans and Britons.

Hoyts (20th) Takeover Of Snider-Dean Aussie Film Loop Warm Again

Sydney, March 21.

Understood here that deal for takeover by Hoyts of the Snider-Dean cinema loop has warmed up again after a lull. Belief is held that Sypros and Charles Skouras have now agreed to terms laid down by Sam Snider for the deal. It's said that prior terms were nixed by the 20th-Fox National Theatres chiefs, but that at present the parties are interested in same.

Snider was formerly connected with Hoyts as g.m. before forming own loop may years ago with partner George Dean. Dean bowed out of the loop some time ago. His death occurred a month or so back. Snider is interested in politics at present and is generally regarded as a rich man. Loop mostly operates in the nabes and stix.

20th-Fox-National holds the major stock in Hoyts, which is headed by Ernest Turnbull. Herschell Stuart, who was stricken with a stroke two years ago, and is now back in the U. S., was the 20th rep on the Hoyts board of directors for many years. He originally came here when the Hoyts management setup was reconstituted by William Powers at the conclusion of the Charles Munro regime.

The deal betweeen S-D and Hoyts and takeover has been running hot and cold for a long time.

New Tel-Aviv Cinema Opens

Tel-Aviv, March 14.

The newly completed Tamar cinema opened here March 6 to an invited audience. The house seats 670.

First picture was "Third Man."

Other Foreign News
On Page 15

Britain Steps Up Play for Tourists; Sees $75,000,000 From U.S. Trade

London, March 21.

A record income of $75,000,000 is expected in Britain this year from the American tourist trade. Latest advance estimates show that 170,000 U. S. visitors are likely to come over during the year, which in itself represents a new all-time high.

Altogether, and from all sources, British tourist trade, the biggest invisible export in the country, expects to earn over $182,000,000 in foreign currency from more than 500,000 overseas visitors.

With the blessing of the government, the tourist industry is stepping out to make London particularly, and the country generally, a gay and attractive holiday centre. Having learned the hard way that too much austerity drives pleasure-seeking tourists away from London to bright spots like Paris, Brussels and Rome, everything is being done to insure that the dollar-bringing visitors actually spend their coin in Britain.

All the main niteries are expecting a boom season. Top attractions are being booked by the clubs and other late-night spots, which are taking advantage of the new 2:30 a.m. licensing law. As this late-night extension was enacted in the fall of last year, this will be its first positive tryout as a lure for visitors from abroad.

Apart from the recognized sporting fixtures and major trade fairs, there is once again a wide variety of out-of-town attractions which are expected to have particular appeal to Yank tourists. High on the list are the Edinburgh Festival, which opens in the Scottish capital late August, and the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford-on-Avon, which this year is having a record season, having begun early in March and being extended through to the fall.

Among the more cultural attractions are the Aldeburgh Festival in June, in which the Earl of Harewood is interested; the annual Cheltenham Music Festival, the Three Choirs Festival and the famous Bath Assembly, at which this year there will once again be an international film program.

'Continental' Producer Doing 13 Pix for U.S. TV

London, March 21.

Program of 13 films for American TV are being made by producer Henry Caldwell of "Cafe Continental," one of Britain's top vaudeo features. Each film is skedded to run 11½ minutes, allowing ample time for the normal commercial plug in a 15-minute program.

Series is being handled in America by John Nash Productions, and it is understood here that in the first stage they will be shown over eight stations, but subsequently there will be a coast-to-coast coverage.

"Cafe Continental" was started by Caldwell as an entertainment for troops in Egypt during the war, and is now in its third year on the Alexandra Palace program. Deal is personal one by Caldwell, but he has been given BBC blessing.

Two Top Mex Pic Studios Merge

Mexico City, March 21.

Merger at long last of the two top pic studios here, Churubusco and Azteca, is hailed by the film trade as a big forward step toward streamlining the trade for more efficient, profitable operation. Wedding is said to be a development of the National Pic Producers Assn.'s decision last year that studio consolidation means improved pix, from artistic and coin viewpoints.

Merger was fronted by Emilio Azcarraga, top exhibitor-radio station operator and headman at Churubusco, and Cesar Santos Galindo, chief stockholder of Azteca. While details of the deal aren't yet revealed, it's understood that Churubusco, established in November, 1945, by RKO, and Azcarraga and associates, who later took over entirely, will head the merger, with Azteca, started in 1938 and lacking modern equipment, will be largely an auxiliary.

Understood that the transaction completely covered the important labor angle. But whether or not there will be any firings hasn't been disclosed. Azteca was hit hard by a $600,000 fire two years ago. Higher costs, due to the peso devaluation and everything having to be imported, prevented much replenishment. Churubusco is in top working order.

DUTCH SEE $1,200,000 IN '50 TO PAY FOR U.S. PIX

The Hague, March 21.

The Netherlands Motion Picture Assn. reports that nearly $1,200,000 of foreign exchange will be available during 1950 for the payment of earnings of American pictures. It is figured this would cover 70 to 75% of the imports. Remainder of earnings will have to be spent within the country.

Association has decided that non-U. S. pix must be shown in each theatre for at least 12 weeks during the year. This is an easing off from the past year, when 14 weeks of non-Hollywood product was required.

95 Italo Pix Made in '49; 2 New Laws Aid Industry

Rome, March 21.

Italian film industry produced 95 features last year, compared with 50 in 1948.

Two important laws to stimulate and protect the home industry were passed in the country. One requires importers of foreign films to purchase dubbing certificates. The dubbing fees may be offset through credits received for producing pictures in Italy.

The other law increases and extends government subsidies and contributions to producers and exhibitors of motion pictures of "Italian nationality." Such a picture, "must be conceived, produced and processed, for a major part, in Italy, and the majority of directors, major technicians, artists, actors and workmen must be Italian.

Even Red Stagehands Want Coin in Vienna; U.S. Plays in Good Runs

Vienna, March 21.

"Boy Meets Girl," by Samuel and Bella Spewack, is enjoying a good run here in one of Vienna's "Off-Broadway" theatres called The Experiment. It is rubbing elbows with Strindberg, Sartre, Vienna's avant gardists and other authors whose works could be called "experimental," and is billed as a "grotesque comedy."

Elmer Rice's "The Adding Machine" has just completed a good run in another "off-Broadway" theatre, the Studio in the Kolingasse. For the last two weeks "Machine" was played on a free admish, pay what you wish basis. Results were almost as good as tix sales.

Vienna's Communist theatre, the New Theatre in the Scala, was embarrassed this week when the press played up a leak that the theatre's stagehands had threatened to strike.

The Scala is run on a collective basis, and the stagehands are supposed to receive a 20% share of the income. This month, when the management said there was "no money," the stagehands delivered a 48-hour strike ultimatum. The management paid the money before the deadline.

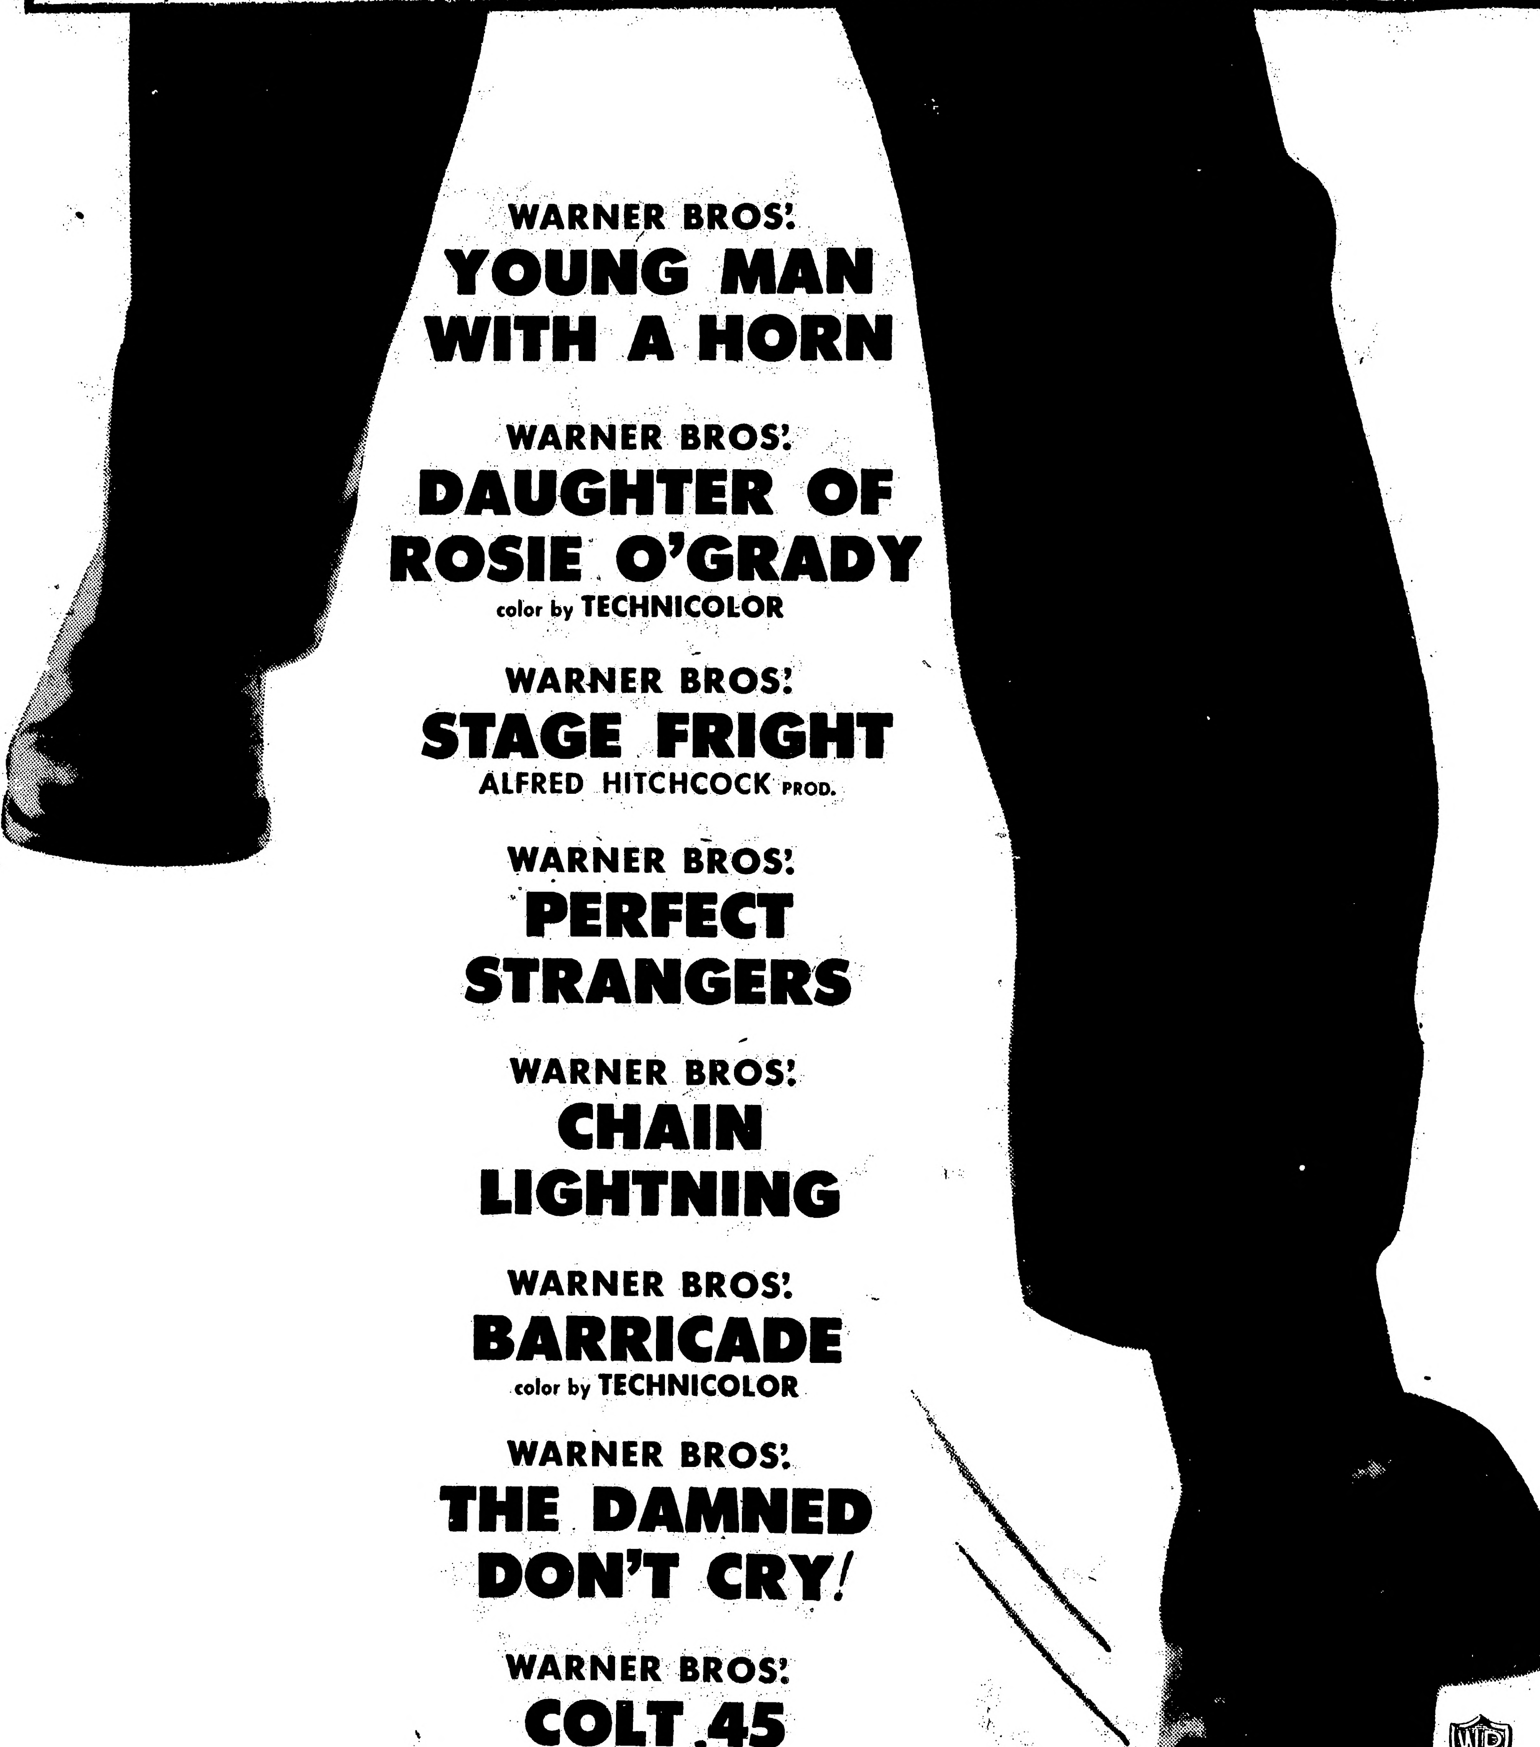
Coletti Seeks U.S. Distrib For Italo Anti-Red Pic

Sonio Coletti, producer of the Italian-made "It's High Time" ("Vogliamoci Bene"), has arrived in New York to work out a U. S. distribution deal for the picture. With an anti-Communist theme, the film was directed by Paul Tamburella and stars Patrizia Mangano.

While in New York, Coletti is looking around for American talent to appear in his next production, "Pony Columbus." It's to be made as a bi-lingual pic in Italy. Meanwhile, "High Time" is slated to have its first U. S. screening April 4 at the Museum of Modern Art, N. Y.

HERE WE GO!

We're stepping out as never before!



WARNER BROS.'
YOUNG MAN WITH A HORN

WARNER BROS.'
DAUGHTER OF ROSIE O'GRADY
color by TECHNICOLOR

WARNER BROS.'
STAGE FRIGHT
ALFRED HITCHCOCK PROD.

WARNER BROS.'
PERFECT STRANGERS

WARNER BROS.'
CHAIN LIGHTNING

WARNER BROS.'
BARRICADE
color by TECHNICOLOR

WARNER BROS.'
THE DAMNED DON'T CRY!

WARNER BROS.'
COLT .45
color by TECHNICOLOR

European Powers Overlap Each Other As Result of Copenhagen Radio Meet

Paris, March 21.

Following the recent Copenhagen conference of European powers to readjust radio wavelengths, results are now beginning to be apparent. New bands were put in operation March 16. All Western European countries participated, but Radio Luxembourg, as well as Radio Andorra, two French speaking indies, both commercial, refused to abide by decisions of the conference. Egypt, Sweden, Syria and Turkey also proved adamant, with Austria still wavering. Also the American Zone in Germany backed out.

The agreement only covers long and medium wavelengths, while shortwave radio is not affected.

Net results so far: In Germany, the American High Commission had to reject the decisions of the conference and order broadcasting on frequencies assigned Russia and other countries, because Soviet broadcasts, especially from the powerful Leipzig transmitter, were getting the best of it in Western Germany. Radio Stuttgart and AFN (Armed Forces Network) are somewhat overlapping Soviet stations.

In France, national web of Radio Diffusion Francaise appears jammed by a yet unidentified station. In Germany, Paris and Leipzig are now interfering with each other. Also another transmitter from Western Germany is bucking Radio Andorra. French programs are better heard than before in Great Britain. Provincial programs are heard better in Paris, too.

Jap Radio Reps to Italy

Tokyo, March 21.

The Japanese government will send three representatives to the International High Frequency Radio Conference skedded to open at Florence, Italy, April 1. Trio will be the first Nipponese to attend an international conference of any kind since the end of the war in an official capacity. Up to now, Japanese have attended conferences only as non-participating observers.

Group will include Yoshio Nomura and Taro Nishizaki of the Tele-Communications Ministry, and Isao Abe of the Foreign Ministry.

Arg. Legit Mgrs. Seeking Two-Shows-a-Day Sked

Buenos Aires, March 21.

Argentine managers have not given up hope of persuading the Entertainment Board to allow them to resume two performances a day in Buenos Aires legit theatres. The Actors' Union had got these reduced to only one night performance several months ago, thus allowing themselves plenty of time for radio and film chores. For the producers, however, it means some difficulty in covering expenses. An appeal has now been made to the Cultural Secretariat of the Municipality, pointing out that the reduction in the number of weekly performances also means a heavy cut in the taxes retained by the municipal authorities on all entertainment grosses.

The average price for legit entertainment in Buenos Aires is $1 for stalls, 75c for the first five rows of gallery seats, and 50 for rest of gallery seats.

Belgian Pix Producers Mull Govt. Aid Report

Brussels, March 21.

Small group of Belgian producers are studying a still secret report dealing with the need for special government aid to the industry. Report is understood to claim that even a limited amount of help to the newsreels and production, plus minimum dubbing requirements on imports, would increase employment in the industry from 1,300 to 2,000 persons.

Another matter under consideration would be a sharp limitation on imports and a ceiling on the number of motion picture theatres in the country.

A technical staff of the British Broadcasting Corp., London, under the supervision of Kenneth Wright, chairman of the Artists' Committee, is making recordings in Basle for BBC's own use of the Cedric Dumont orchestra, official dance band of the Swiss network.

B.A. Theatre Operator Jailed on Fraud Charge

Buenos Aires, March 21.

Francisco Gallo, who operates the Astral, Smart, Ateneo, Grand Splendid and Comico theatres, as well as the Odeon in Mar del Plata, has been arrested and jailed in Villa Devoto prison over the weekend, on charges of embezzlement and fraud, in connection with actors' pension funds.

Gallo is considered the top impresario in Argentina's entertainment industry and a man of high integrity, and news of his jailing came as a bombshell. It's felt that his arrest must have political implications.

Gallo's arrest and imprisonment have not affected the operation of his theatres, which are continuing business as usual, and are profiting by the legit boom.

Limited Legal Action Seen Taken Vs. British Pix Quota Defaulters

London, March 21.

What action to take in regard to pix quota defaulters is one of the problems now being considered by the Board of Trade. The first year of the 45% quota left behind it a trail of more than 1,400 defaulting exhibs, and each case must be considered on its merits.

In view of the exceptionally large number of defaulters, it must be assumed that prosecutions will only follow in the more flagrant cases. Probably the final outcome will prove that legal action can only be taken in a small percentage of cases, and it's dubious whether many more than 100 defaulting exhibs will be brought before the courts.

The 1948 Films Act has a number of escape clauses which protect the exhibitor, and by far the majority who fall short of their commitment would have little difficulty in proving that lack of available product was the prime cause.

One of the sub-committees of the Films Council is now considering the problem of the defaulters and will be meeting again in mid-April to resume its examination. At the same time, another sub-committee, the quota relief committee, is already at work trying to evolve a suitable formula for exhibitor reliefs on the 30% quota which becomes operative Oct. 1. There is no blanket relief or exemption for theatre owners who have previously been granted this concession, and new applications must be in at the Board of Trade before the end of June.

It isn't anticipated that there will be any major change in regard to quota exemptions, but there will inevitably be a readjustment of reliefs in view of the lowering of the quota.

Pabst Back to Vienna On Two Film Deal Sked

G. W. Pabst, Austrian film director, planed to Vienna last week after a short stay in New York to arrange for production of two films. He hopes to ink American stars for the ventures.

One of the pictures would be a celluloid version of Homer's "Odyssey," while the other is called "The Last 10 Days." It's a story of the air raid shelters of Berlin at the close of the war. Pabst expects to return to the U. S. in about four to six weeks.

London Film Notes

London, March 21.

Paul Soskin, as soon as he finishes his current epic, "Waterfront," goes into production with a new one, titled "Escape To Death," story about stolen atom secrets. Production is skedded for early May . . . Anthony Havelock-Allan, having finished "The Eagle and the Lamb," has signed Hans May to do the music . . . George Hallering has signed Clement McCallin, just returned from Australia. Miles Malleson and several old Vic members to star in his latest pic, "Murder in the Cathedral," which starts shooting soon with most of the location at Eley Cathedral, Cambridge.

Baker on Swiss Tour

Basle, March 21.

French star Josephine Baker is touring Switzerland this month in a revue, the production of her husband Jo Bouillon, with Louis van Burg, Pierra Mingand and Pierre Spiers, pianist and conductor. It opened in Basle to a good house, with show suffering chiefly from overdone publicity and bad timing. La Baker's lavish robes by French couturier Marcel Rochas were a conspicuous asset.

Tour, ending March 26 in Switzerland, continues afterwards to Italy, Germany and probably England.

Par Stakes 280G For 'Trio' Rights

London, March 21.

Paramount's first excursion into frozen coin production in Britain under a 50-50 arrangement with the J. Arthur Rank Organization is now nearing completion, and a print will be flown to America in July. The film in which they have the joint partnership is "Trio," based on three of Somerset Maugham's short stories and which is being boosted as the picture with the best trailer in the world—"Quartet."

For the western hemisphere rights to the pic, Paramount has staked out around $280,000. It boasts a star-studded, all-British cast topped by Jean Simmons, who stars in "Sanitarium."

The three Maugham stories which comprise "Trio" are, apart from "Sanitarium," "The Verger" and "Mr. Know-All." Roland Culver, Michael Rennie and Finlay Currie are in the Jean Simmons sequence. James Hayter, Kathleen Harrison, Lana Morris and Felix Aylmer have the top parts in "The Verger," and Nigel Patrick and Anne Crawford were recently signed for "Mr. Know-All."

Harold French is directing "Sanitarium," which will represent the longest of the three, and the other two are being megged by Ken Annakin. Anthony Darnborough is producing at Pinewood.

Fees for U.S. Vauders In British Bills Unchanged

London, March 14.

Decision of the American Guild of Variety Artists to impose a $10 fee on members of the Variety Artists Federation working in America, will not affect the rates paid by American artists who come to Britain. Entrance fee for the time being will remain at $2.80, with a contribution of $2.10 to cover first three months' membership. Thereafter the normal contribution fee of 15c per week will be operative.

The AGVA recommendation that the VAF notify all agents and bookers of the arrangement is to be operated in reverse. The VAF is asking its American counterpart to adopt a similar arrangement.

Current London Shows

(Figures show weeks of run)

London, March 28.

"Annie Get Gun," Col's'm (147).
"Beau Strategem," Lyric (48).
"Black Chiffon," West'ster (48).
"Bonaventure," Vaude (16).
"Brigadoon," Majesty's (20).
"Castle Air," Adelphi (16).
"Det. Story," Princes (1).
"Eliz. Slept Here," Strand (22).
"Fallen Angels," Ambass. (16).
"Flowers," Duchess (5).
"Folies Bergere," Hipp (25).
"Harvey," Prince of Wales (65).
"Heiress," Haymarket (61).
"Home at Seven," W'ham's (3).
"King Rhapsody," Palace (28).
"Knights Madness," Vic. Pal. (2).
"Lady Mislaid," St. Mart (9).
"Larger Than Life," York (7).
"Latin Qt. 1950," Casino (2).
"Mr. Gillie," Garrick (3).
"Murder at Vic," Playhouse (15).
"Oklahoma!" Drury Lane (147).
Old Vic Rep. News (24).
"On Mon. Next," Comedy (43).
"Ring Round Moon," Globe (9).
"Schoolmistress," Seville (8).
"Streetcar," Aldwych (25).
"Traveller's Joy," Criterion (94).
"Treasure Hunt," Apollo (28).
"Venus Obs'ved," St. James (10).
"Way Things Go," Phoenix (4).
"Worm's View," Whitchall (153).
"Young Wives Tale," Savoy (37).

Brit. Govt. in Agreement on Present Handling of U.S. Pix Talent in England

Swedes OK 'Gun,' 'Harvey', 'Salesman' Sock in Zurich

Stockholm, March 21.

"Harvey," currently in its third month at the Vasa here, is still doing strong business, with Max Hansen in the leading role.

"Annie Get Your Gun," however, nearing the sixmonth mark at the Oscar's, is still the town's top legit attraction.

Schauspielhaus Has Hit

Zurich, March 21.

German version of Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman," by Ferdinand Bruckner, premiered at the Schauspielhaus, Zurich, Saturday (18).

Drama, with Joseph Millo-Pacovsky, from Tel-Aviv directing, and Leonard Steckel and Therese Giese in the leading roles, was acclaimed by critics, who called it one of the few pure tragedies of modern times.

Market for Argentine Films Is Seen in U.S. As Well as Latin America

Buenos Aires, March 21.

Regardless of the fact that last year's Argentine pix did not do any too well in other Latin-American countries, Argentina's star comedian, Luis Sandrini, stated on his return from a flying trip to New York that there was a big market for local pix in Latin American, and that the U. S. could use from 10 to 15 Argentine pictures a year. As a result of a special agreement for film interchange with Mexico, some Argentine pix have just been released in Mexico City, but with not very encouraging results.

The Martin Argentine Film Corp. has now become an accomplished fact in New York and has inked deals with 10 Argentine studios to distribute their material in the U. S.

During February of this year there were only 11 pix released in Buenos Aires, by comparison with 31 in 1949 and 32 in 1948. Of these, four were North American pix and three Argentines. In 1949 the proportion was 23 North American to three Argentine.

Brit. Equity Fights Cuts; Sets $28 Legit Minimum

London, March 21.

Opposition to wage cuts which would bring the weekly salary of any artist working in the West End theatre below a minimum of $28, is being launched by British Actors Equity.

Equity members earning $28 weekly are not permitted to accept any reduction and the union reaffirms its determination to maintain the $28 minimum. Equity members are also ordered to refer to their head office any wage cuts applications, and will see that no improper pressure is exercised on artists, and also that any cuts proposed apply also to rent, royalties and other expenses.

Equity is also proposing an alternative to the present daily rate contracts offered in studios as part of the current economy drive and is suggesting that the remedy is to insist on a guaranteed sum as a cover against extended first calls.

'Wind' Finally for France

Paris, March 21.

Metro is announcing here the early release of "Gone With the Wind," which has never played France.

Up to recently, admission ceiling precluded Metro getting an okay for increasing the price to three times that charged normally. So they held back the picture. Now that the ceiling has been abolished, it will be possible for them to charge an admission price commensurate with the picture, hence the decision.

Zuckmayer's New Play

Basle, March 10.

Austrian playwright Carl Zuckmayer finished a new drama, "Song from the Furnace."

No performances fixed yet.

London, March 21.

Controversy over the employment of top Hollywood stars, producers and directors to work in American-financed British pictures has been taken to the House of Commons, and the statement of government policy by Labor Minister George Isaacs was a complete vindication of the action that has been taken by U. S. companies.

The Minister emphasized that a governing factor in the government's policy was the 1948 Anglo-American films agreement which stipulated that all reasonable facilities and cooperation should be extended to American companies to enable them to spend their sterling balances.

On that basis, he explained, permits were granted freely in respect to artists of international reputation who were required for starring roles. The same facilities might also be granted in some cases for artists wanted for featured roles.

Policy in regard to permits for producers and directors was also covered by the Wilson-Johnston agreement, but where British companies wanted to import a Hollywood producer or director, the position was protected by an agreement between the British Film Producers Assn. and the Assn. of Cinematograph and Allied Technicians. This pact permits a ceiling of 10 top foreign technicians.

Because the 1948 monetary pact has the saving clause referred to by Isaacs, ACT decided earlier this month to ask Board of Trade prexy, Harold Wilson, to negotiate an alternative in his forthcoming talks with Eric Johnson, which will either stipulate that preference should be given to British personnel, or alternatively, that there should be some measure of reciprocity.

The foreign importations issue has been brought into the limelight by British Actors Equity as well as ACT, and the two unions are getting together to plan joint cooperative action with a big-scale publicity campaign in favor of employing British personnel in British films.

Four Mex Radio Stations Fined for Liquor Plugs

Mexico City, March 21.

Strict enforcement of the recent federal sanitary code amendment that strictly bans from radio throughout Mexico any direct or indirect mention of hard liquor, particularly direct ads and plugs for this and that brand, is announced by the ministry of public health and welfare.

Dr. Gustavo Argil, subsecretary of health, announced that four stations, names and locations of which he didn't reveal, were fined $580 each for violating the booze ban. Law provides jail for frequent offenders and suspension of the stations' franchises.

Soviets Woo Germany With New Color Film

Moscow, March 21.

"Neues Deutschland" (New Germany) documentary film in color, has been produced here. Director is Sadkowitsch, and the film stresses link between the Soviet and the new East-German Democratic Republic.

The play "Bogdan Shmeljnizkij," by Kornejtshuk, has been rewritten as an opera, with music by Danjkewitsh. Story deals with the friendly relations between the Russian and Ukrainian people. Preem is planned in several Russian cities, such as Kiev and Odessa, among others.

London Legit Bits

London, March 21.

Lee Ephraim's next big West End musical will be based on life of Offenbach, with Guy Bolton writing the book and Hans May adapting the music. Show is expected to be done in the fall.

Old Vic Co., at request of the British Ambassador in Rome, is to present "Twelfth Night" on three-week tour in Italy. Opens in Florence as attraction for the Arts Festival season June 12, with Rome, Milan and Turin to follow. Celia Johnson will star.

While Sen. Johnson Puts Heat on Pix, Sen. Benton Plugs 'Em for Cold War

Washington, March 28.

The Senate is currently crooning one of those "can't live with you; can't live without you" tunes at Hollywood.

While Colorado's Senator Edwin C. Johnson has been seeking to beat the industry's brains out, Senator William Benton, of Connecticut, and nine other Senators made clear last week that the nation needs the film industry to help win the cold war.

Johnson's office announced he had gotten about 3,000 letters and telegrams on his bill for licensing films and actors to protect the nation's morals. Ninety percent of the comment, Johnson claimed, was favorable to his views.

Then Benton got off his maiden Senate speech—a major effort on the subject of foreign policy, in which he declared that motion pictures and radio were needed to win the propaganda war against Russia. Next day he lunched with Eric Johnston, prez of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, expressing the opinion that Hollywood could best produce a series of documentaries on the democratic way of life for world-wide distribution. Benton argued that Hollywood had the know-how to do the job and also the best distribution channels to get the widest audience.

The resolution by Benton and the other Senators called for "a Marshall Plan in the field of ideas." It urged a greatly expanded program of information and propaganda to combat the Russian drive. Resolution called in part for:

"Preparation and execution of a comprehensive world-wide program to exhibit documentary and educational motion pictures designed to explain the democratic principles and ideals which underlie our foreign policy.

"Creation of a world broadcasting network capable of broadcasting on long wave, short wave, or medium wave, with an ultimate goal of reaching virtually every radio set in the world."

Benton is a former Assistant Secretary of State in charge of the foreign information program. He told the Senate in his speech:

"We are not yet using the motion picture and the radio and the printing press in the international field. For all practical purposes, it may be said we are not using them at all. Their impact today, in our interests, is that of a midget.

"I make an exception of the Hollywood motion picture, with its varying types of impact. They do have the potential strength of a giant, and my plea today is that we give them a chance. Nothing equals the motion picture in its capacity for gripping and holding masses of people and communicating information and attitudes in vivid, remarkable form.

"We need to get the pictures. We do not have them now. We need to show them. Their impact can, indeed, change the face of history.

"Broadcasting is also a unique medium. It is instantaneous. It is cheap. It can overleap censorship at boundaries. The technical talent of the U. S. should be devoted to that problem."

Goldwyn on TV

Continued from page 5

Times Magazine Sunday (26). "Hollywood has the largest reservoir of experienced visual entertainment talent in the world. . . . For live shows or for programs on film, television must turn to Hollywood's talent and 'visual know-how' to achieve a consistent level of good entertainment," he wrote.

Producer also took the position, however, that Hollywood can benetional outlet for its experienced talent, while gaining a new source of fresh talent for itself." He also sees television containing within itself "elements of exploitation which can be used by theatres to increase boxoffice receipts."

As for theatre TV, Goldwyn thinks it can only supplement, not replace, feature films. It will be an "added attraction," he states, but theatres will have to concentrate on exclusive TV programs—programs not available in the home.

ANTI-RED FILMS NOT VERY IN THE B.O. BLACK

Despite the prolonged hullabaloo raised by Congressional investigations and the general furore in newspapers and mags, anti-Communist pix are still failing to pay off big at the boxoffice. Latest in the cycle, "Guilty of Treason," based on the life of Cardinal Mindszenty, has also missed the gravy train so far as better-than-average revenues are concerned. As a consequence, Eagle Lion, distrib, is switching emphasis away from the propaganda content of the film. New ads have been drafted building up the girl-meets-boy angle.

"Treason" is the last in a cycle of anti-Commie pix which kicked off with 20th-Fox's ""The Iron Curtain." Big fuss was raised by leftwingers when "Curtain" hit the theatres, but the resultant publicity did not show up in dollars-and-cents at the b.o. Poor to middling revenues were also garnered by Republic on its "The Red Menace"; by Metro on "The Red Danube"; and by RKO on "I Married a Communist." Latter's label was later changed to "The Woman on Pier 13."

Surprisingly, while "Treason" received all-out support from Catholic orgs, film has not shown outstanding results in towns heavily populated by Catholics. Pic's grosses have been uneven, best returns so far coming from the smaller towns.

Wobbly showing of the anti-Red entries is no test of propaganda pix generally, industryites note. First few pix covering the Negro question turned up substantial profits for their distribs. Law of diminishing returns worked in this case since "Intruder in the Dust," last of the series, has corralled disappointing grosses for Metro.

COMPO

Continued from page 3

rather bridled position to serve as spokesman for the industry.

Ned E. Depinet, as chairman of COMPO, has also been suggested for the principal appearance before the committee. He also is in a somewhat embarrassing position, however, as president of RKO. Company is distributing "Stromboli" and "The Outlaw," which were subject of Johnson's wrath in the Senate.

Since all appearances before the committee are voluntary—no subpoenas as in a Congressional investigation—the industry has wide choice of action in its approach. Some of the reps at the COMPO session thus would be enabled to make an appearance and testify.

The industry's case will be forcefully and effectively presented without glamour, circussing or undue attention. No serious thought has been given to the suggestion of disregarding the hearings altogether. One of the suggestions heard in New York for an approach at the hearings has been to take the ball by admitting that some of the Coloradoan's charges may be true, and by agreeing with him that the situations of which he complains are at times deplorable.

"However," the argument would go on from there, "your bill smacks of a fascist approach, and we don't think it is the way to solve the problem. As a matter of fact, we have given that problem much attention and we honestly don't know of any way to solve it any more than Congress has found a way to keep the electorate from occasionally voting a scoundrel or grafter to the House or Senate."

COMPO meet in Washington in April is a logical development. Stanza was originally slated for March, but postponed by delays in the meetings of the constituent organizations to ratify last December's plans for setting up the projected all-industry public relations organ. Washington session would be for the purpose of officially formulating COMPO, although its aims and activities might be greatly restricted from the original concept. That would be necessitated by reservations made by the constituent groups in okaying plan for COMPO.

Some Are A's But Legion Gives 'Em All B-Ratings

National Legion of Decency reviewed seven films this week and affixed its "B" label on the entire batch. Eagle Lion's British import, "Kind Hearts and Coronets," drew an objection because it "tends to condone immoral actions" as did Paramount's "No Man of Her Own" for the same reason.

"Wabash Avenue" (20th) was rapped for its "suggestive costuming, singing and dancing" while U-I's "One Way Street" "tends to condone illicit actions and presents in part a fatalistic concept of life." Remaining "B's" are "Barricade" (WB), "Blonde Dynamite" (Mono) and "Il Trovatore" (Globe).

SEN. JOHNSON DOESN'T LIKE ROSSELLINI

Washington, March 28.

The American film industry "has a blind spot on the morals question," Senator Edwin C. Johnson charged yesterday (27) in a Senate speech blasting Roberto Rossellini as a narcotics addict, Nazi collaborator and black market operator. The speech claimed also that "RKO had full knowledge of all these things when they took Roberto Rossellini on as a partner in 'Stromboli.' RKO employs shrewd and able attorneys and business executives."

"Rossellini," said the chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, "sold them on the idea that he would produce just what they were looking for, a red hot sexy film, lurid and devastating. When the guy is 'hopped up' he is a pretty good salesman, and he had RKO in eager anticipation over the prospective boxoffice of his supercreation.

"I regret to say," he added, "that the American motion picture industry, which contributed so much so quickly to the war effort, and which rallies so whole-heartedly to every good cause, has a blind spot on the morals question. To think that so patriotic an industry would engage the services of a notorious Nazi collaborator, pay him a million dollars, and then rally to his defense as a fit person to produce pictures for the American public in the sacred name of freedom and liberty is beyond me.

"Rossellini admitted his drug addiction in a court of record openly and without shame a few months ago when he sought the annulment of his marriage to his last wife in Austria. He pleaded that the marriage was invalid because he was under the influence of drugs when it was solemnized."

GPE Net Halved Though Gross Almost Equal to '48

General Precision Equipment Corp. (Formerly General Theatre Equipment) net income for 1949 amounted to $456,485, after provision for Federal taxes and depreciation, as compared with $936,679 in 1948. This is equal to 76c per share on outstanding common stock as against $1.56 per common share a year ago. Actual net sales totalled $26,711,926 or only about $300,000 less than the $27,008,450 reported for 1948.

Increased labor and material costs plus greater expenses for research, engineering and development of new and improved products were held responsible for the dip in earnings. Outstanding among new products for which the sales outlook is rated favorable are projection type television set, equipment for TV broadcasting studios, new type sound projection for 16m film (especialy suited for television studio use and theatres) and a low-priced magnetic tape recorder.

Profit and loss statement reveals that GPE lost $9,886 on the sale of 2,400 shares of 20th-Fox common stock during the past year. No mention is made of how many shares of 20th-Fox currently are held by the company, but it still remains a substantial stake. Pointing up this is the fact that the corporation received $110,800 in dividends from its investment of 20th-Fox common shares.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

"The Scandals of Clochemerle," French-lingualer imported by Siritzky International, which preemed at the Ambassador, N. Y., Monday (27), had the distinction of getting "no stars" as its rating in the New York News yesterday (Tuesday). It was reviewed by Kate Cameron. Bosley Crowther, of the N. Y. Times, likewise found the picture "a feeble attempt to be witty at the cost of considerable bad taste."

Extensive mayhem—and with considerable reason in the view of most reviewers—was apparently committed on the film by the New York State censors. So much so that Crowther found it difficult to understand what it was all about. VARIETY, which caught a less expurgated projection room screening a few weeks ago, found no difficulty in comprehending that version. Review pointed out that it was "more like a French postcard than a French picture" and that it was extremely anti-clerical. New York state version runs 86 minutes, eight less than that seen by VARIETY.

Current bulletin of North Central Allied gives Monogram a big pat on the back for utilizing a new sales technique on a 15-month-old action film, "Incident." It points out that Mono is offering every independent exhibitor in the Minneapolis territory the chance to buy and book the picture "without any pre-agreement on price." "You contract for it, play it," the bulletin states, "and then send in a check for whatever you think it was worth to you. Actually, you will be under no obligation to pay anything at all, but Monogram knows you will be fair." NCA members are urged to give the offer a trial as it "may encourage other producers to follow an excellent example."

At Mono's New York homeoffice eastern sales manager L. E. Goldhammer said that the "Incident" sales plan was evolved "to get exhibitors interested in a playable picture." Marketing technique, he revealed, is being used nationwide on the film and response since the plan's launching two weeks ago has been "good."

When March of Time was given an Oscar last week for one of the outstanding short subjects of 1949, it was the first time it had been honored for a specific subject. Award was made to "A Chance To Live," a regular M. of T. release, this one dealing with an orphans' community in Italy modeled after Boys Town. March of Time was Oscared in 1936 as an organization that revolutionized the newsreel business.

Thus far, "Chance To Live" has not had a first-run Broadway booking but it may go into the Astor, N. Y., when March of Time's feature, "Golden Twenties," opens there April 8. Booking of this feature was set over the weekend, and will follow "Three Came Home" into the Astor. RKO is distributing "Twenties."

The controversy over the Production Code Authority's withholding of a seal from "Bicycle Thief" generated some open name-calling among the usually polite New York daily critics who differed on the subject. Archer Winsten, N. Y. Post critic, was particularly piqued by the stand taken by Eileen Creelman, World-Telegram and Sun, in support of the PCA. She called the pic "disgusting" and Winsten retorted by name, saying "Such an intolerable attitude should be its own punishment," adding that Miss Creelman was in need "of a more wholesome attitude."

Columbia wasted no time in cashing in on Broderick Crawford's Academy Award by rushing out "Cargo to Capetown" which opens at the Palace, N. Y., tomorrow (Thursday). Top roles in this action pic are held by Crawford and John Ireland. Meanwhile, the distrib has also brought back its prize-winning pic, "All the King's Men," for a run at the Gotham, N. Y. Crawford is starred in this, while Mercedes McCambridge's part in the film won her the Academy accolade as "best supporting actress."

Larry Fagan, veteran city editor of the Pittsburgh Press, Scripps-Howard daily, is going to see himself as a character in films pretty soon. Metro has just bought a New Yorker short story called "Overlooked Lady" by John McNulty, Fagan's dramatic editor in the early '30s and in which the c.e. figures as the central character. McNulty covered shows and pix for the Press a couple of years and was succeeded by Kap Monahan, who holds down job now.

Hottest bet on Broadway for a pic contract currently is 20-year-old Grace Kelly, who made her debut this season in "The Father." Metro, Warner Bros. and 20th-Fox have shown interest. She is the niece of playwright George Kelly and the late Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge" of vaude. Her father is Jack Kelly, former chief of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania and prominent Philadelphia bricklaying contractor.

When Columbia retitled its "The Palomino" as "Hills of the Brave" for the British market, Stanley Kramer squawked because he felt the new tag was too close to his "Home of the Brave." What action Columbia will take could not be learned this week. "Palomino" is a Technicolor western featuring Jerome Courtland, Beverly Tyler and Joseph Calleia.

"Jackie Robinson Story" (EL) opens at the Astor, N. Y., in May. Maurice Maurer plans opening it when the Brooklyn Dodgers are playing an important series at Ebbets Field. Present intention to come in with it is possibly May 16 when the Dodgers are scheduled to meet the St. Louis Cards.

Music Hall Shifting Ads

Continued from page 4

ners' "Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" tomorrow (Thursday).

To meet the need for greater pre-selling of attractions, Downing said, the M.H. will step up its own publicity and exploitation efforts. In this connection, he remarked that "the present boxoffice slump throughout the nation may have a silver lining for the industry because it has awakened everyone to the new conditions that exist. You can't just open the doors anymore and expect the customers to pour in. You've got to give them something special and you've got to sell them what you're giving them."

Downing spent the entire day last Thursday (23) at the 20th-Fox showmanship meeting in New York. He said he was greatly impressed with the enthusiasm shown by all exhibitors there for adopting a new course and really selling their attractions to the public.

Better product is another requisite to improve business, the veteran of 17 years at the Music Hall declared. "Product is much better now than it was a year ago." he explained, "but we've got to impress on Hollywood that it has to be extra special. Theatres throughout the country not only have new conditions to face, but they've got to overcome the lethargy created by a long run of poor pictures sold at high admission prices."

Downing does not find particularly disturbing the fact that a recent opening week's biz at the Hall dropped to only slightly over $100,000. "Three months ago we couldn't get enough cops to hold back the crowd," he said. "We broke a 17-year-old record. We expect to be doing the same kind of business at Easter."

Rather than economizing, Downing declared, the Music Hall will put even greater effort into improving its stage shows. If there is any cutting needed, he said, it won't be in any facet of the house visible to the public.

PARAMOUNT

This Year's Winner of More
Academy Awards
Than Any Other Company,
Is Proud That

WILLIAM WYLER'S

"The Heiress"

Won More Academy Awards
Than Any Other Picture

In behalf of the entire Paramount organization and the exhibitors who have played, will play or will set repeat engagements for this distinguished picture, we thank the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. And we congratulate

OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
for the best performance by an actress

JOHN MEEHAN and HARRY HORNER for the best art direction (black and white)

EMILE KURI
for the best set direction (black and white)

EDITH HEAD and GILE STEELE for the best costume design (black and white)

AARON COPLAND
for the best musical scoring of a dramatic picture

Theatre Tele Programs

Continued from page 5

speech here today is believed the first point-by-point answer to that query.

There may be 60 or more sports events during the year which, if available to theatres exclusively, would hypo their boxoffice, he said. About half of these are national sports events, such as the World Series, top football games, championship fights, auto-races, air races, bigtime tennis, golf, basketball and the major horseraces. In addition, theatres will find another 20 or so events in their immediate localities of particular regional interest. Too, the number of events staged yearly at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., will include some of value to theatres throughout the country. Promoters of all such events, Halpern said, see theatre TV as the most profitable means yet devised of expanding their own gates, as well as the theatres' b.o.

Theatre video might also be the means of bringing Broadway legit to "Main Street," either on opening nights or during the run of a play. "How many theatres," Halpern asked, "think they would not do great business if they could exhibit the Broadway performance of 'South Pacific' or 'Kiss Me, Kate' or 'Mr. Roberts' by turning on a television switch in their theatres?" People everywhere, he said, would pay gladly to enter their hometown theatres to "share the unique and wonderful emotions of first nights." Most important, he said, theatre TV programming of Broadway legiters would be one of the best means of attracting that over-31 age group, which apparently has lost the film-going habit.

Stage Shows Via Video

Another ready-made programming source, Halpern pointed out, are stageshows presented in key city deluxers. He noted that the boxoffice record set at the Broadway Paramount earlier this month by Bob Hope was "limited unfortunately to a single theatre." Theatre TV, he asserted, "would have provided simultaneous exhibition in thousands of theatres of the original Bob Hope show from the Paramount and revitalized boxoffices in thousands of theatres at the same time." In Manhattan alone, he pointed out, Radio City Music Hall, the Roxy, Paramount, Strand and others produced 128 different shows during 1949, most of which might have been used for theatre TV. Halpern also listed ice revues, circuses, rodeos, etc., as other possible programming sources.

Such shows, however, are only the beginning for theatre TV, Halpern said. "Beyond them," he pointed out, "is a limitless field for the creative development of special entertainment." Because of the tremendous income from a simultaneous theatre TV showing in thousands of theatres, "the greatest spontaneous variety shows and musical extravaganzas ever staged anywhere will become regular features." Such regular variety shows, he said, could conceivably feature "such great performers as Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly, Betty Grable and Danny Kaye, all together on a single super show, well-written, prepared and rehearsed." Halpern added:

"The economics are encouraging. If, for example, 2,000 theatres of about 1,200 seats each on the average carried such a show at an average admission price of 75c., capacity gross for a single showing would be $1,800,000. Making due allowances for theatre operating costs, promotion, advertising, coaxial or relay interconnection costs, overhead and depreciation allocations, other miscellaneous expenses and a fair margin of profit for each theatre, the sum available for production of the star-studded show might exceed $500,000. And if the show is repeated successfully several times, the amount available for programming and theatre profit would increase at a progressive rate."

Summing up, Halpern said, "There is enough material of first-rate quality and possibility in the programming of theatre TV to assure a flying start and long run for this new medium. Opinions may differ on which TV shows may fit best any particular theatre, just as opinions differ on film selections. But the point is that there is a vast source of programs which will afford program choice. Surely the challenge of programming and promoting theatre TV will be met successfully by the greatest showmen in the country—the motion picture people themselves."

Halpern reiterated that theatre TV is not meant to replace films but to supplement them. Noting that the real profits won't be made in the medium until large-screen equipment is installed in enough theatres, he urged the theatre men to start it off. "Although some would prefer to wait until everything is ready," he said, "television cannot wait complacently for a pretty blue ribbon before proceeding. If the motion picture industry continues to wait it out, then television, the already-scarce radio frequencies required for TV distribution, the desirable TV talent and creative people and, above all, the public, will belong not to theatre TV but to somebody else."

Revamp Sales

Continued from page 3

in the past year, although the Government decree has been in operation during that period. Total suits pending vary from 85 to 95 depending on the company with damages aggregating well over $200,000,000.

Prohibitive Paper Work

Attorneys admit that a change in selling, requiring complete revamping of clearances and runs, will bring on substantially increased costs of administration. For instance, if every theatre in New York was sold separately, regardless of their operators, the details in selling would be mountainous. At the same time, attorneys maintain that only this drastic course would halt the suits now piling up in the metropolitan New York area.

Argument is raised by the legalites that only through the treatment of each house separately can the distribs wind up on the winning side in their current battle to hoist rentals. If all distribs took this course, it is argued, selling each house on its own without reference to the operational label, the circuits would be seriously crippled in their resistance to better terms. As things now stand, if Metro, for instance, refuses to sell the Century or Skouras circuits, those chains can buy product wholesale from the other distribs.

N. Y. a Prime Problem

New York area, incidentally, is pointed up by attorneys as a prime sector for drastic changes. Because Loew's and RKO circuits are recognized by all distribs as entitled to first-run in the nabe areas, number of actions have been brought by peeved exhibs. When this happens, all distribs face the music regardless of whether they have anything to gain by the present metropolitan setup.

In effect, what the attorneys are now seeking is a complete reexamination of every city in the country. So-called reforms would consist of a study of each neighborhood without regard to how theatres were previously bracketed. If an indie house in Queens (N.Y.) warrants consideration against a competing Loew's or RKO theatre, previous customs would be scrapped and the indie flickery would be invited to deal with the major for first-run product.

Skouras-RKO

Continued from page 5

slated before the Federal court April 17. The Government may then step in and oppose the RKO proposal but that is not considered likely. Skouras would have no standing in the hearing. Court is expected to name one of four banks listed in the plan as trustee of the stock. That bank would then attempt to sell the RKO interest or end the partnership through any legal means.

While RKO has now solved its hassle with Skouras, company appears no closer to a deal with Walter Reade, major's sole remaining big co-venturer. Talks have not brought a hint of agreement. RKO is currently plaintiff in an action brought in New Jersey where the 14 houses of the Trenton-New Brunswick chain are located to win a dissolution of the corporation.

Technicolorful Easter

Twentieth-Fox, in line with the major distributors' new policy of grouping top product around the holidays, is sending out two Technicolor features at the same time for the Easter season — "Wabash Avenue" and "Cheaper By the Dozen." This is believed to mark the first simultaneous release of two expensive Techni productions.

Twentieth has already lined up a peak number of bookings for the two films. Over 250 have been locked in for "Wabash" during the 10-day period starting April 5, with another 200 for "Cheaper." Easter Sunday occurs April 9 this year.

CORWIN SETS JULY TEST FOR COAST THEATRE TV

Los Angeles, March 28.

First large-screen theatre tele equipment in this territory will be installed in the Orpheum, operated by Sherrill Corwin, in about four months at a cost of $25,500. As veepee of Theatre Owners of America, Corwin told 400 exhibitors the equipment would be ready for tests in July, followed by regular video programming. The exhibs had gathered at the invitation of 20th-Fox to discuss means of bracing the sagging grosses.

Al Lichtman cautioned the theatre operators not to be stampeded by Phonevision, which, some opponents contend, will ruin the film houses. It will take a minimum of five years, and probably seven, he declared, before there will be enough Phonevision sets in the home to induce a film company to turn over first-run product for exclusive use. He added: "Television or any other gadget can't put us out of business if we get back to work and give the public the best."

Salberg WB French Mgr.; Other European Switches

Paris, March 28.

Following the resignation of Theophile Bellini as Warner's general manager in France, Jacques Salberg has been appointed to replace him. Salberg previously had been supervisor for Warners in France, Belgium, Switzerland and North Africa.

Joseph S. Hummel, WB European general manager, in disclosing the switch, also revealed shuffles in several other continental posts. Assistant to Salberg will be Bernard Kopel, who had been district manager in Belgium, Switzerland and North Africa.

Meanwhile, Hummel is temporarily supervising Belgium and Switzerland directly, and the North African area will be handled by Salberg and Kopel. Present makeup of district maagers in France has Joseph Rojko supervising Paris and Nantes; Joseph Florentin, Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles, and Maurice Sasson, Lille, Strasbourg and Toulouse.

'Samson' Run

Continued from page 7

with indefinite run, unspecified clearance time, and first and subsequent-run situation after clearance. They had put producer Cecil B. DeMille, actor Henry Wilcoxen and central division manager James Donohue on stand during hearings. Judge Igoe's ruling had put them in a situation where they could entertain bids for long run from all first-run houses.

State-Lake bid to charge 74c. up to 1 p.m., 90c. in the afternoon and $1.20 evenings, as opposed to its normal 50c.-98c. scale. These will be minimum prices, as stated in the bid. B&K may decide to charge more.

Announcement brought a charge by Tom McConnell, Jackson Park theatre attorney, who opposed extension in court, of violation of both Jackson Park decree and Supreme Court decision on price-fixing. McConnell declared that having exhibitor state what his admission price would be enabled Paramount to pick theatre with highest price, thereby actually controlling price film would play at. He has not yet decided whether to take any action. His appeal on Judge Igoe's granting of exceptions to Jackson Park decree is tentatively set for May 1 in Chi court of appeals.

Can't Ostrich-Ize TV

Continued from page 5

no basis," Nizer declared. "There was a similar neurosis in the early days of radio. We have since learned there was no basis for the fears that existed then. It will be the same with television.

"We must be honest and cannot evade the inroads that television may make, but we can use TV to our own advantage. Theatre television can be a new form of stage show and provide a new stimulus to the boxoffice."

While industry toppers who spoke at the sessions, including 20th prexy Spyros Skouras, took the "if-you-can't-lick-'em-join-em" view that theatre tele might prove a boon, lesser exhibs were wondering how they could get into that act. Aside from the great expense of the equipment, they didn't see that small theatres could either get large-screen shows that would prove a draw or that they could afford to pay for them if they did.

Viewed as somewhat more realistic for the immediate future of theatre biz was the promise of sales chief Andy Smith, Jr., that TV trailers would be provided by 20th for all its major product starting with "Black Rose" in September. Pitches at the tele audience will be available even before that time, Smith said, if the company's plans can be perfected sooner.

Robot Theatres?

VARIETY's editorial continues to draw mail, indicating the widespread thinking that the day of reckoning is at hand for the industry. Two typical letters are printed herewith. They represent the two prevailing differences between the correspondents on point of view. Both come to the same optimistic conclusion that films are here to stay, but they get there by different routes. One is highly critical of the industry and sees the need for change to accomplish survival, while the other adopts the attitude that nothing is going to displace the nation's theatres.

J. D. Trop, co-originator of "Hopalong Cassidy" series and now a New York producer of TV, 16m and other pictures, writes:

"The movie theatre used to be a place of magic, a place where you could relax, a place where the management kept faith with you by always trying to put on the best show that he could get together. Above all, the movie house of the past had warmth. The whole family felt the humanity and the friendliness of this place where you could go to escape from the harshness of the workaday world.

"Out my way, in Forest Hills, the theatres are typical. They differ in many respects, but one thing they have in common. They are all cold. In 10 years I have never seen a manager in the lobby. Everyone of them might as well be operated by robots. And really they are. You can't go in as of old and relax with a feeling that somebody cares about how the entertertainment is arranged. You have to be on your guard. First, you must call up and find out what kind of a stinker the second feature is. Then you have to figure out how to arrive so as to miss it. There are enough of us doing this and resenting it (my own Hooper tells me) to have built up a sizable collective grouch against the movies. I think that double features are the biggest single bone in the industry's throat.

"We hear a lot about getting out and selling . . . merchandising . . . and I agree that the most important selling job is to restore the feeling of friendship for the movie theatre. The exhibitor can do it by throwing out double features, putting in managers instead of errand boys, evaluating his attraction, and forcefully and in a truly showmanlike way telling his public about it.

"Producers can use a shot in the arm, too. Of course. Not necessarily to make pictures with daring themes. But to stop backing down to everybody. To censorship, for example. Neither radio nor television are thus shackled. George Jessel recently pointed out that some wonderful stage properties like 'South Pacific' and 'Born Yesterday' would have to be emasculated before they could be presented on the screen. They are okay on the stage. Nobody is contaminated. But on the screen they are banned. We need a legion of men with backbone enough to fight for the right to be their own arbiters of good taste. I would not read 'Forever Amber' and would not walk across the street to see the movie, but, no matter how complacently censorship is eccepted, it is a slow and powerful crusher, and it is helping to squeeze the life blood out of this business.

"Sure, television is a competitor, but as long as the motion picture business sells entertainment and does an intelligent job of it . . . and television's basic job is to huck merchandise, with entertainment only as a means to this end . . . the theatres will have the ultimate advantage.

"We at home like many things on television, but tonight as my wife walks in she expresses the feelings of millions of women when she says, 'It sure feels good to be stepping out. Is there a good picture around . . . ?' "

L. J. Miller, Minneapolis branch manager for Universal, states:

"The alarmists over television's impact on the boxoffice should seclude themselves and calmly consider the facts. Alone with just their own thoughts they will come to a rational realization that TV is not the knockout punch they first suspected.

"As they sit alone with their thoughts let them try to visualize their town, of any town, being absolutely devoid of motion picture theatres. In this 'thought world' let them try to picture wandering down the main stem at night with only such entertainment places open as night clubs, bars and sports arenas. Alas, not a movie has its glowing signs displayed. No one in their right mind would ever venture that such a thing could come to pass.

"There'll always be theatres and there'll always be a motion picture industry. Men with little vision will be shuttled to the sidelines and finally out of the exit doors. But those who think calmly will settle down and tackle the newness of the TV problem with the same fortitude that has always been characteristic of the leaders in our industry.

"Nothing supplants the thrill of a crowd, the contagion of emotions that it engenders, the alive-feeling of moving about where the bright lights are.

"Yes, TV is here to stay and finally settle into adding to the pleasure of a night at home, but it will never fill the place of the motion picture theatre in the hearts of the American Public—God bless 'em."

WB Stock

Continued from page 2

$11 a share and that the three Warner brothers will get about that when they sell in accordance with the decree. That means that at the present price of the stock the production-distribution assets are valued at only $4 a share.

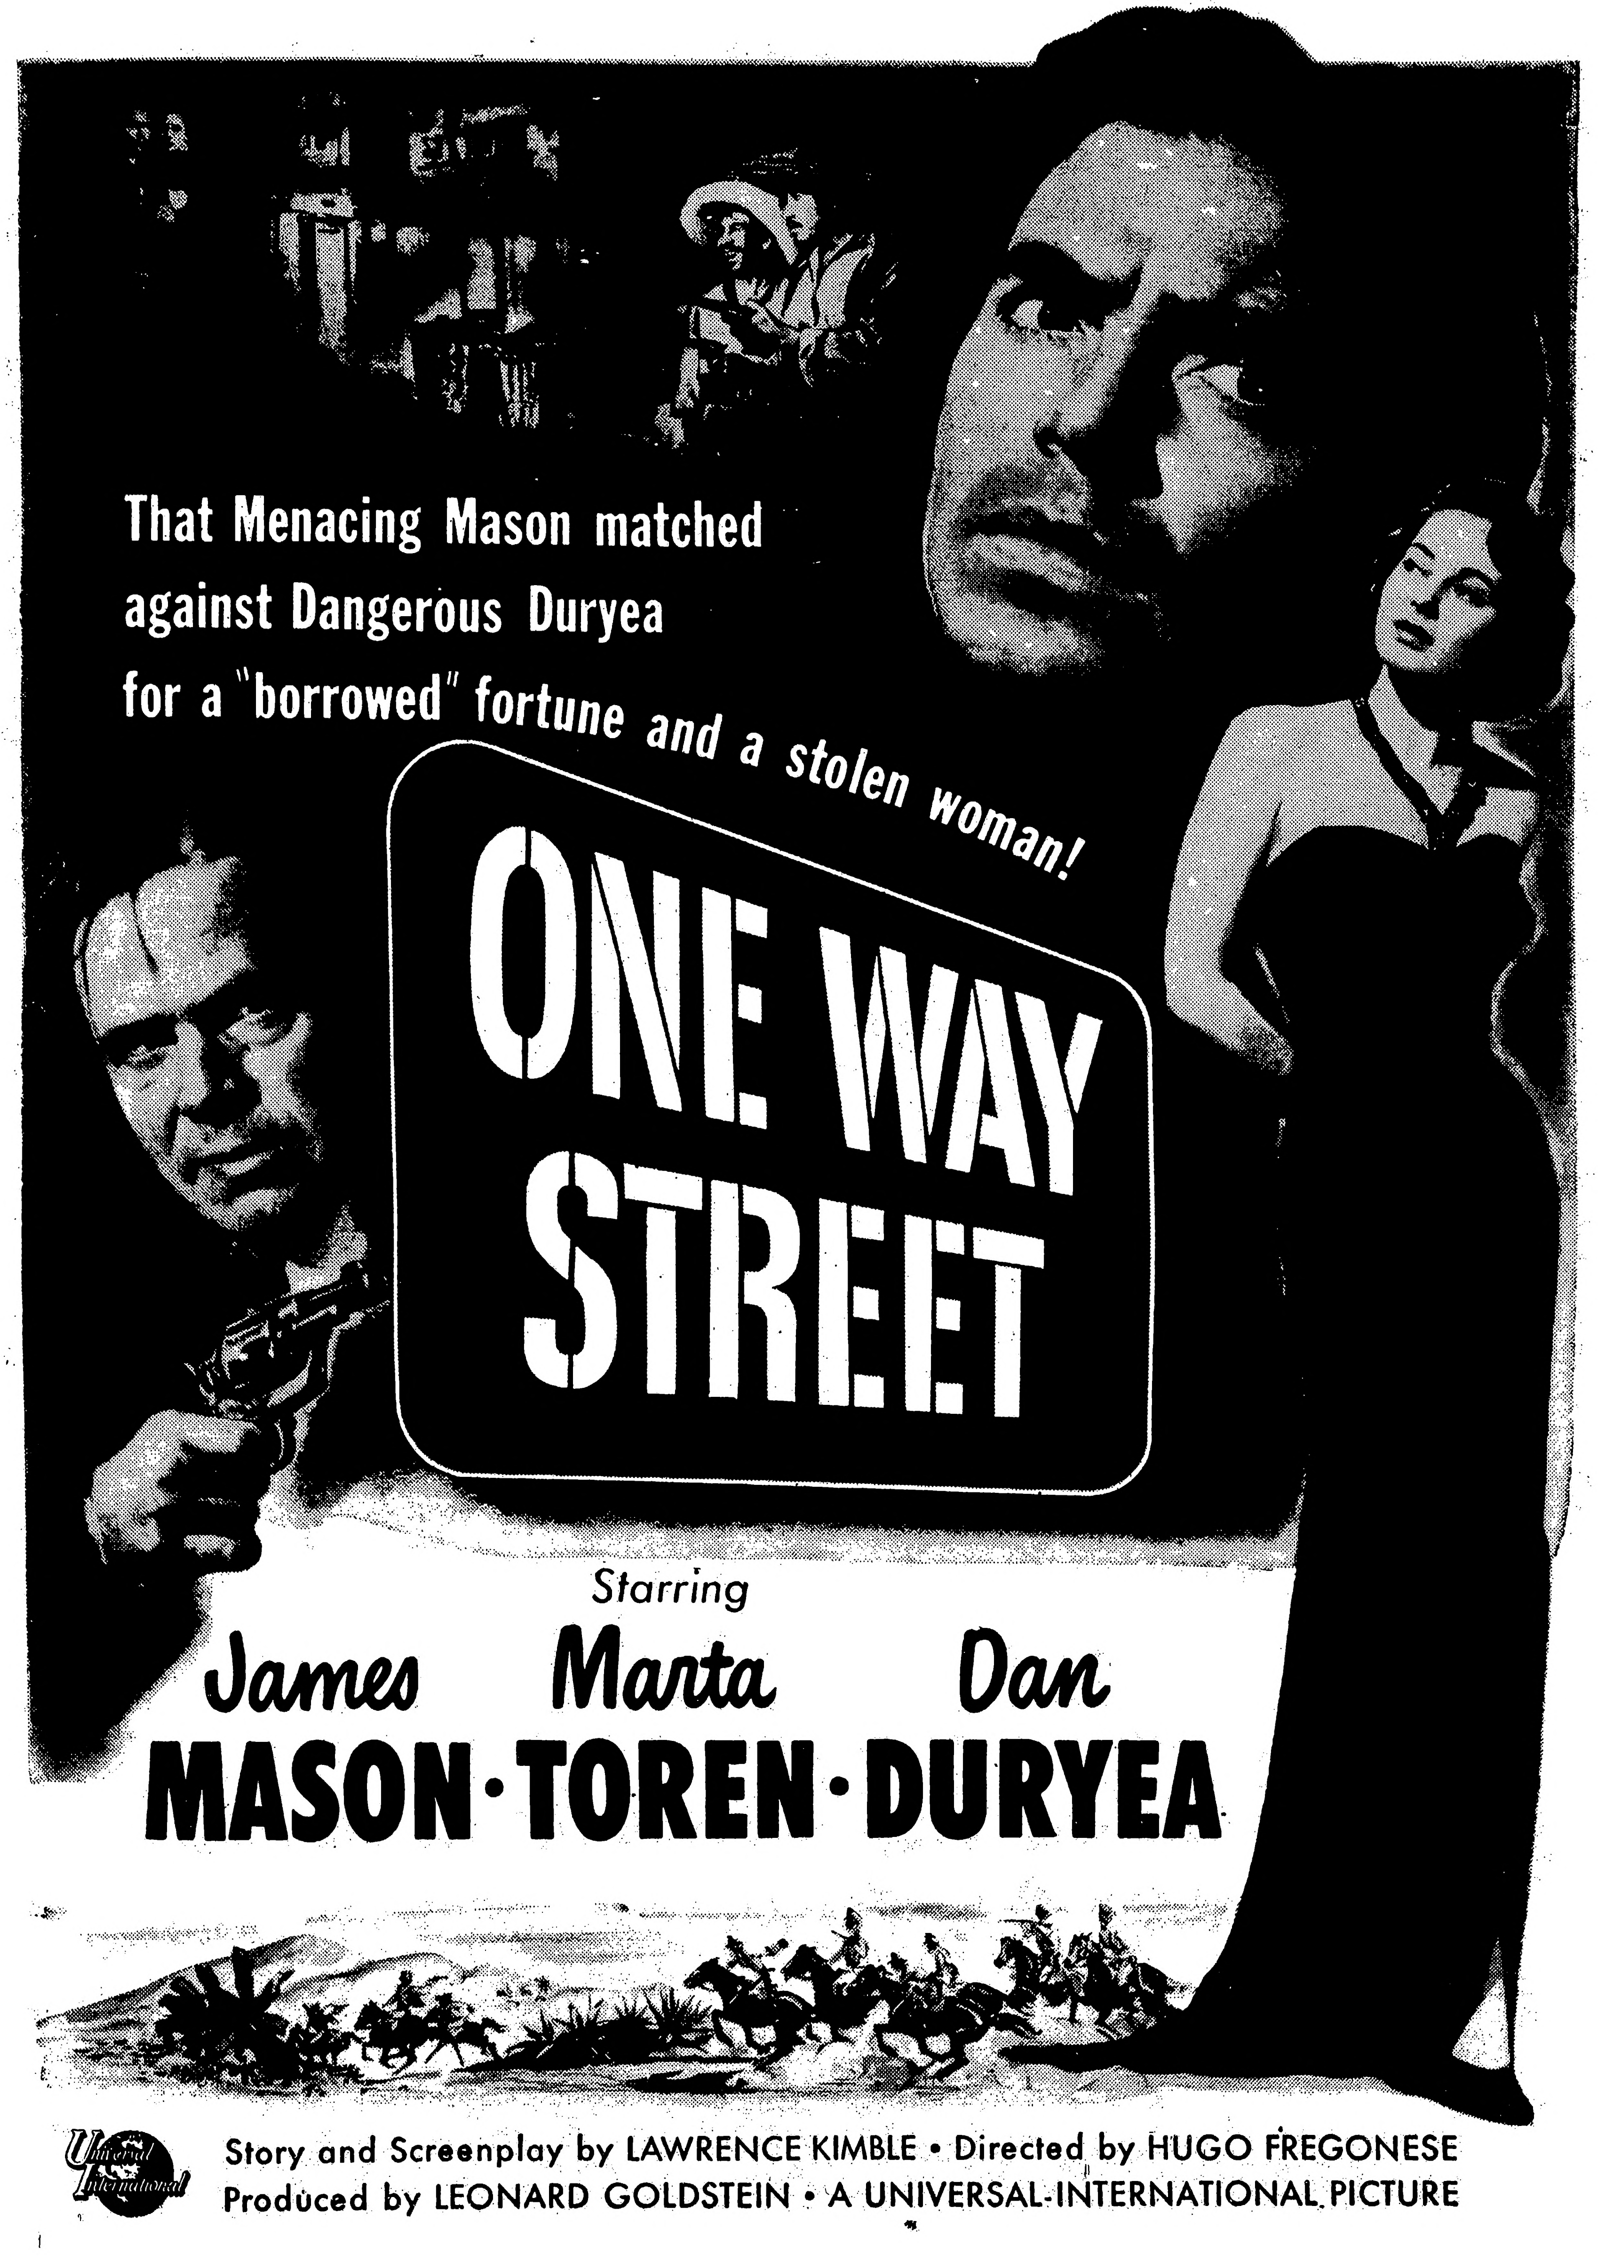
Since these assets include cash, the company's vast residual in pictures, its present inventory of films and its studio, homeoffice and exchange facilities, plus an important interest in the Associated British Circuit in England, they are said to be worth quite a few times the present $4 a share rating. The production-distribution company stock is expected to rise to a level more commensurate with its true value when divorcement is accomplished. That is what has triggered the present activity in the shares.

For each share owned in the present combined company, stockholders will get one share in the new production-distribution company and one in the theatre company, according to reports. That would be similar to the setup in the Paramount and RKO decrees.

There are presently 7,295,000 shares outstanding. On the basis of $11 a share as the value of the theatre holdings, pricetag on the circuit of 441 houses would be about $80,000,000. At $4 a share, production-distribution end of the business would be valued at about $30,000,000.

Much of the buying that has taken place during the past week is said by brokers to have been by insiders. Public entered in only when the huge volume attracted attention and the continued increase in price created interest.

Sales totalled 28,800 shares Wednesday, 39,700 Thursday, 50,400 Friday, 14,600 Saturday and 12,200 Monday.



That Menacing Mason matched against Dangerous Duryea for a "borrowed" fortune and a stolen woman!

ONE WAY STREET

Starring

James Marta Dan

MASON · TOREN · DURYEA

Story and Screenplay by LAWRENCE KIMBLE • Directed by HUGO FREGONESE Produced by LEONARD GOLDSTEIN • A UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL PICTURE

Metro Minority Squawks

Continued from page 5

Rubin clauses which permit them a share in the profits. Mayer's deal, which calls for a cut in the returns from all pix made under his regime, was singled out for particular lambasting.

Television

Television again moved to the center of the stage as a prime concern of stockholders. Stilling fears of video competition, Rubin saw the new medium as an opportunity for Hollywood "when the time is ripe." "We believe," he said, "that television cannot continue without films and that live entertainment will prove insufficient. When the time comes, we will turn to large-screen television and the people will flock to the theatres because the best television shows will be obtainable only there."

Metro is laying off video "because up until now, the only money being made in that field is by the set-makers," Rubin said. Company has joined in the application with the Federal Communications Commission for special theatre channels so that special shows can ultimately be piped to theatres, he said. Metro will be able to enter TV immediately at the right time because of its past experience with films and radio.

No B.O. Killer

Rubin expressed himself as convinced that television will not prove a b.o. killer. He said he is counting on the fact that good pix will always be the best entertainment and that tele cannot equal films on this score. Gregarious instinct of Americans, which cause them to flock to public places, would count heavily for theatres, Rubin added.

In the course of the meet, management disclosed that Metro had lost $1,000,000 in fiscal '49 from production-distribution. Since company's profits totalled $6,744,761 during the year, exhibition plus other activities such as its record company, radio station, etc., brought in close to $8,000,000.

Breakdown of Metro's pension plan, aired at the meet, showed that the company contributed a total of $20,600,000 in the six years since the plan was established. During that period, M-G paid out $1,600,000 in death and liability claims. Nine top execs contributed $6,200,000 in the form of reduced compensation. Savings from Mayer alone, it was said, amounted to $2,300,000 in view of his agreement to accept a lower ceiling on his earnings.

Lower Costs

In covering the production future, Rubin said: "We are making more pictures than the year before at lower average cost. We hope that the larger number will be produced at nearly the same total cost as that of the previous year without sacrifice of quality. If this is accomplished, as it gives promise of being, our profits should be increased."

Meet also disclosed that the 10,000 shares of common stock which Nicholas M. Schenck, Metro prez, sold to the company have been given to Vincent J. McFaul, Buffalo exhib, as purchase price of McFaul's 13% interest in Buffalo Theatres which Metro now owns outright. Schenck surrendered the stock for $13.33 per share as part of the settlement of a stockholder action.

New contracts for Mayer and Rubin run five years from Aug. 31, 1949. Ceiling of $300,000 is placed on Mayer's annual earnings and one of $200,000 for Rubin. Mayer's maximum was previously $500,000.

Board, unanimously reelected at the meet, convened immediately afterwards to name the same officers for the company, headed by Schenck.

M-G's 26-Year Earnings

Metro's tremendous earnings for its stockholders in the 26 years of the company's operations and the big growth of the concern during that stretch were detailed by J. Robert Rubin, company's veepee and general counsel, in the course of its annual stockholder meet. M-G's book value, Rubin said, has climbed to $138,782,000, or $26.99 per share from a starter of $29,242,000, or $7.45, giving effect to the intervening stock splitup.

In the 26 years, Metro has also paid dividends of $132,500,000. By conservative estimates, he added, M-G has earned $231,800,000 after taxes during this period.

Col. Artists

Continued from page 1

musicians that they have been forced to book through the Columbia Artists Mgt., Concert Booking Bureau, if they wished to make tours about the country. The letters claim, according to Celler, that the average concert artist who does not book through the Columbia bureau does not get the choice engagements.

Celler, already investigating the alleged Shubert monopoly in the legitimate theatre field, hinted that he might schedule hearings in New York within the next couple of months to develop information about the legitimate and concert situations.

While the Dept. of Justice anti-trust division has moved against the Shuberts in the legit theatre monopoly field, it has not gotten into still another charge levied indirectly by the congressman. He had asked for an investigation of whether scalping taxes were being collected on hit show tickets sold far above their face value. Celler said he understands that the Bureau of Internal Revenue is currently checking into this matter, although there is no indication of the findings.

Hersey's Privilege

Continued from page 2

part of the film, or at least backgrounds, in the actual Warsaw locale. No efforts for permission have been made yet. Otherwise, Selznick plans to shoot it in Italy or Israel, or both, his New York office said yesterday (Tues.) He hopes to start production in the fall.

Because of the grimness of the subject matter there was only sporadic interest by film companies in the property, despite the book's phenomenal sale since published by Knopf four weeks ago. Rumors of Selznick's negotiations, however, created considerable interest during the past week. Hersey and Selznick did all the preliminary negotiations themselves in New York. Details were handled for Hersey by agent Annie Laurie Williams, who also sold DOS "Gone With the Wind" for author Margaret Mitchell. Attorney Lewis Stone handled deal for DOS.

"Wall" concerns a varied group of Polish Jews trapped in the Warsaw ghetto. They see friends and relatives disappear before their eyes. Yarn is panoramic in scope. It's March Book-of-the-Month Club choice.

Nabe Control

Continued from page 7

concerning the Royal theatre are essentially local in nature and, while the operations are not unrelated to commerce, I believe that to assert jurisdiction in this case would not effectuate the policies of the Act." Thus NLRB got out from under. Nevertheless, it has made clear that any time it wishes to, it can properly step into labor disputes in a small, independent neighborhood theatre on the ground that such theatre is involved in interstate commerce.

This case goes a step further than the recent one involving labor negotiations at the Princess theatre, a Balaban & Katz nabe house in Dayton, O. There the Board did step in and conduct a bargaining election. It found the Princess engaged in interstate commerce not only because it bought films from an exchange but also because it was part of an interstate chain.

Some months ago, in a California case, NLRB found that a racetrack was in interstate commerce. However, there, too, it declined to get into the labor negotiations. Nevertheless, it has gotten to the point of claiming that any time it wants to, it can find a loophole which will permit it to interfere in a labor dispute involving any segment of the entertatinment world.

Mayer the Head Man

J. Robert Rubin, Metro veepee and general counsel, left no doubts among stockholders at the company's annual meet that Louis B. Mayer, M-G's first veepee, still runs the show at the Culver City lot. In answer to attacks on Mayer's new pact by minority stockholders on the ground that he is no longer needed because of Dore Schary's presence at the studio, Rubin flatly declared: "Mr. Mayer is the last word at the studio. No decision can be made there without his approval."

Supplementing this, Rubin added that it is Schary's duty to select the stories and supervise production, but only subject to Mayer's overall control.

Par's Awards

Continued from page 6

even the glares of Chamber of Commerce spies couldn't get the warmers off the few bobbysoxers who wore them. There were fans there from as far off as India, basking under the high-voltage smiles of film names who recognized the crowd as a highly-vocal segment of that magic thing called boxoffice.

As usual, the people outside knew what to expect in the way of awards and they showed it by their greetings to the winning nominees as the latter arrived. Olivia DeHavilland's entrance was delayed several minutes by a traffic snarl a few blocks from the theatre, and as the 8 o'clock deadline approached, the crowds began to chant "Livvy, Livvy—we want Livvy." She arrived a few minutes after the actual ceremonies had gotten underway.

First of the top nominees to put in an appearance was Broderick Crawford, whose bleacher cohorts enthusiastically assured him that it was "in the bag."

Paramount topped the awards by grabbing off nine awards, including a couple of technicals and a special to Cecil B. DeMille for "37 triumphant years in the industry." Metro was second with eight and 20th-Fox showed with five.

No Thalberg Award

Special awards, voted the previous evening at a meeting of the Academy's Board of Governors, provided the biggest thrill of the evening. In addition to the statuette awarded DeMille, there were Oscars to Bobby Driscoll, as the outstanding juve of the year; to Jean Hersholt, as one of Hollywood's finest citizens who has rendered distinguished service to the industry; to "The Bicycle Thief," as the outstanding foreign film, and to Fred Astaire, for his work in lifting musicals to their present high standards. Astaire voiced his thanks over a special radio hookup from New York.

No Thalberg award was voted this year but the decision was not without wrangling. Previous discord had brought a rule that the award would be made only if there was a two-thirds majority of the vote for any candidate. At the Wednesday night nomination meeting, only 19 members were present, and the battle started almost immediately. On the final balloting, Darryl F. Zanuck had 11 votes, Dore Schary four and Stanley Kramer three. One ballot was blank. Zanuck thus was one short of the necessary two-thirds and lost the award. As a result, there were immediate rumblings for a rule change to give the coveted award to the nominee with the most votes.

UA Uses Former Cops To Publicize Crime Pic

United Artists has called in the cops to help publicize its release of Harry M. Popkin's "D.O.A." A number of retired detectives have been employed to visit key cities in conjunction with pic's initial showing and plug film via radio and television appearances, and newspaper interviews. Yarn is a crime meller.

Deal for the detective publicists was set up by Howard LeSieur, UA's ad-pub director, who's working in conjunction with Bernard M. Kamber, Popkin's eastern ad-pub director.

The Oscars for 1950

Outstanding Production, "All the King's Men" (Col).

Best Performance By an Actor, Broderick Crawford, "All the King's Men."

Best Performance By an Actress, Olivia de Havilland, "The Heiress" (Par).

Best Performance By a Supporting Actor, Dean Jagger, "Twelve O'Clock High" (20th).

Best Performance By a Supporting Actress, Mercedes McCambridge, "All the King's Men."

Best Direction, Joseph L. Mankiewicz, "A Letter to Three Wives" (20th).

Best Original Film Story, "The Stratton Story" (M-G) Douglas Morrow.

Best Written Screenplay, "A Letter To Three Wives," Joseph L. Mankiewicz.

Best Story and Screenplay, "Battleground" (M-G), Robert Pirosh.

Cinematography (Black and White), "Battleground," Paul C. Vogel.

Cinematography (Color), "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" (Argosy-RKO), Winton Hoch.

Best Original Song, "Baby, It's Cold Outside," from "Neptune's Daughter" (M-G). Music and lyrics by Frank Loesser.

Best Musical Score of a Dramatic or Comedy Picture, "The Heiress" (Par), Aaron Copland.

Best Scoring of a Musical Picture, "On the Town" (M-G). Roger Edens, Lennie Hayton.

Art Direction (Black and White), "The Heiress," Harry Horner, John Meehan.

Art Direction (Color), "Little Women" (M-G). Cedric Gibbons, Paul Groesse.

Set Decorations (Black and White), "The Heiress." Emile Kuri.

Set Decorations (Color), "Little Women." Edwin B. Willis, Jack D. Moore.

Costume Designing (Black and White), "The Heiress." Edith Head, Gile Steele.

Costume Designing (Color), "Adventures of Don Juan" (WB). Leah Rhodes.

Special Effects, "Mighty Joe Young," (ARKO Production-RKO). Willis O'Brien.

Sound Recording, "Twelve O'Clock High."

Film Editing, "Champion" (Screen Plays-UA). Harry Gerstad.

Short Subjects (One-Reel), "Aquatic House Party" (Par). Produced by Jack Eaton.

Short Subjects (Two-Reel), "Van Gogh," Cinema Distributors. Produced by Gaston Diehl, Robert Haessens.

Short Subjects (Cartoon), "For Scent-imental Reasons" (WB). Produced by Edward Selzer.

Documentaries (Feature), "Daybreak In Udi," British Information Services. Produced by Crown Film Unit.

Documentaries (Short), "A Chance to Live," March of Time-20th. Produced by Richard de Rochemont; "So Much For So Little" (WB). Produced by Edward Selzer. (Pictures tied in dead heat.)

Special Awards, Cecil B. De Mille, for his 35 years of industry leadership; Bobby Driscoll, outstanding juvenile actor of 1949; Fred Astaire, for his work in lifting level of musicals to present high standards; Jean Hersholt, for being one of Hollywood's finest citizens, his work as prexy of Motion Picture Relief Fund for past 12 years and other distinguished service in film industry; "The Bicycle Thief," outstanding foreign motion picture of the year.

TECHNICAL AWARDS

Eastman Kodak Co., for the development and introduction of an improved Safety Base Motion Picture Film.

Loren L. Ryder, Bruce H. Denney, Robert Carr and the Paramount Sound Department, for the development and application of the Supersonic Playback and Public Address System.

M. B. Paul, for the first successful large-area Seamless Translucent backgrounds.

Herbert E. Britt, for the development and application of formulas and equipment producing artificial snow and ice for dressing motion picture sets.

Andre Coutant and Jacques Mathot, for the design of the Eclair Camerette.

Charles R. Daily, Steve Csillag and the Paramount Engineering, Editorial and Music Departments, for a new precision method of computing variable tempo click tracks.

International Projector Corp., for a simplified and self-adjusting take-up device for projection machines.

Alexander Velcoff, for the application to production of the Infrared Photographic Evaluator.

4A's Snafus Par's Vaude

Continued from page 1

Chicago theatre in Chi, transmit it via coaxial cable to the Broadway Paramount and then, through its film storage method of large-screen video, throw it on the Par's regular screen. Show was to have been part of a special demonstration for a group of 40 European radio execs and technicians, invited to the U.S. by the State Dept. to study American TV operations. When confronted with the 4A's demands, Par offered a token payment. Artists' union turned this down so Par gave up on the idea.

Two-week pay ruling has been on the 4A's books for some time and has often been invoked in the past to prohibit any filming of a stageshow or Broadway legit production in the theatre. Ruling was bypassed in the case of CBS-TV's recent "Tonight on Broadway" series, which featured excerpts of current Broadway legiters directly from their theatres. In that series, however, all talent and labor unions cooperated since the shows were to pay off in extra publicity and ballyhoo for all of legit.

[Kibosh put on Paramount's plan to transmit a stageshow from Chicago to New York via theatre television by the Associated Actors and Artistes of America could seriously hamper the ambitious plans of such large-screen video boosters as 20th-Fox prez Spyros P. Skouras and theatre TV consultant Nathan L. Halpern, it is believed.

[Because of the tremendous grossing potentialities of a number of theatres linked in a theatre TV network, Skouras has suggested that the interconnected houses could talk business with the top Broadway hits, such as "South Pacific." Halpern, speaking yesterday (Tues.) before the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma, held out the big-screen video lure of four or five top-name stars appearing on a super stageshow. (See story on page 5.) Neither idea would be possible if the 4A's nix sticks.]

Instead of televising the Chi stageshow, Par substituted a closed-circuit demonstration in N. Y. European execs were televised in the Par's music room and, by the time they filed into seats in the theatre loge, Par had the theatre TV films of them ready for the screen. Par's film storage method involves filming the TV images directly off the face of the tube and, in a matter of seconds, processing the film and feeding it into the regular booth projectors.

Jack Kirsch Reelected

Chicago, March 28.

Jack Kirsch, prez of Allied Theatres of Illinois, holds his post for another three years following election of officers and directors last week at the organization's 20th annual meeting.

Van Nomikos was named veepee, while Benjamin Banowitz was voted secretary-treasurer. Both were elected for one-year terms, as were some 15 directors.

THE BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR WINS THE ACADEMY AWARD!

—and top honors in every important poll!

BEST PICTURE

ROBERT ROSSEN'S
PRODUCTION OF "ALL THE KING'S MEN"

BEST ACTOR

BRODERICK
CRAWFORD
("ALL THE KING'S MEN")

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS

MERCEDES
McCAMBRIDGE
("ALL THE KING'S MEN")

New York Film Critics Circle, Best picture. Best actor — Broderick Crawford • Associated Press, Best picture. Best actor — Broderick Crawford • Hollywood Foreign Correspondents, Best picture. Best direction—Robert Rossen. Best actor—Broderick Crawford. Best supporting actress — Mercedes McCambridge. Best feminine newcomer — Mercedes McCambridge • Screen Writers Guild, Best written American drama — Robert Rossen • Robert Meltzer Award (Screen Writers Guild), Robert Rossen • San Francisco Critics Forum, Best picture • Look Magazine, Best actor — Broderick Crawford. Year's best writing — Robert Rossen. Special award to newcomer — Mercedes McCambridge • New York Newspaper Guild, Best picture • New York Foreign Language Press, Best picture. Best actor—Broderick Crawford. Best direction—Robert Rossen. Best writing — Robert Rossen • And selected as Best Picture of the Year by leading newspapers from coast to coast, including N.Y. Daily News, Chicago Tribune, Washington Post, Washington Star and many others.

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents
ROBERT ROSSEN'S PRODUCTION of

ALL THE KING'S MEN

Based upon the Pulitzer Prize Novel "All The King's Men" by Robert Penn Warren
with
Broderick CRAWFORD • Joanne DRU • John IRELAND
John DEREK • Mercedes McCAMBRIDGE
Written for the Screen and Directed by ROBERT ROSSEN

COLUMBIA PICTURES

Harry Brandt Carries Ball

Continued from page 6

to sell any of their new films to video. Moreover, Wobber declared, "they will not do so as long as exhibitors exert showmanship in handling and selling their product to the public."

Occasion for the Wobber statement was the 20th-Fox showmanship conclave held at the Sir Francis Drake hote., attended by 467 Northern California theatre owners and managers. The session was a replica of similar meetings sponsored by 20th, and directed to stimulate its "movies are better than ever" campaign.

The Frisco meeting was addressed by Wood Soanes, critic of the Oakland Tribune and president of the San Francisco Critics' Council. Other speakers included H. V. Harvey, Joe Blumenfeld, Ray Cooper, Spense Levey and Eddie Yarbrough.

Dallas Confab

Dallas, March 28.

Over 250 Texas theatreowners and operators met in Dallas last week to discuss plans and promotions for the "attendance" problems and plan their rejuvenation campaign.

Execs of 20th-Fox hosted the group at the Baker hotel. The day-long meeting featured speeches by Fox execs and leading exhibitors, and a roundtable discussion was held on the many problems facing the large and small houses.

24-Sheet Push That 'Movies Better Than Ever'

Minneapolis, March 28.

Out of the 20th-Fox "Showmanship" drive meeting here, attended by 250 of the territory's circuit heads, independent exhibitors and house managers, came a theatreowner's suggestion which M. A. Levy, local Fox branch manager, who presided, said he'll ask his company to have incorporated in the campaign. It's the proposal of George Gould, Glencoe, Minn., exhibitor, to have the drive slogan "Movies Are Better Than Ever" put on 24 sheets and posted by General Outdoors Advertising on billboards throughout the country.

Levy will suggest to his homeoffice that all distributors contribute to a pool to provide the finances for "plastering the country with the slogan." He points out that "this should benefit everybody," so all the film companies should share the cost.

Harry B. French, Minnesota Amus. Co. president; Bennie Berger, North Central Allied president and circuit owner, and other exhibitor leaders sat in on the two sessions, praised Fox for getting the campaign launched, declared it was one of the most constructive moves in the industry's history and expressed confidence it will accomplish its purpose of increasing theatre attendance substantially and that television and increasing night sports' competition "will be licked."

Exhibitors and house managers present pledged themselves to return to "old-fashioned showmanship," to follow suggestions and adopt ideas set forth in the Fox brochures and to leave no stones unturned to let everybody in their communities know that "movies are better than ever." It was revealed that, following the Chicago meeting which launched the campaign, some exhibitors already have obtained their newspapers' cooperation for the drive.

A mild furore was created during the open forum session when Jerry Silver, Cannon Falls, Minn., theatreowner, taking the platform, assailed Will Jones, Morning Tribune columnist and film critic, who had accepted the invitation of M. A. Levy, branch manager, to be one of the two morning speakers.

Without naming Jones, who wasn't present at the time, Silver, charging that a "hostile" press and radio were harming the boxoffice, impliedly criticized Fox for having Jones as a speaker. The only outside speaker and lone critic to address the meeting, Jones in his widely read columns has aroused much resentment among exhibitors because of his frequently sarcastic and caustic comments on films.

"You had on this platform a self-appointed critic who has done more harm to pictures and theatres than any other one person in the state," declared Silver. Silver charged that Jones made it a habit to "rap" and "pick on" good boxoffice pictures "that the masses like" and that his comments keep many people away from the theatre. The kind of pictures that Jones lauds "aren't worth a dime" in towns like Cannon Falls, he asserted. He said the Morning Tribune has a big circulation in his town and he suggested that a delegation of Twin City exhibitors should call on the Tribune editor to tell him "what harm bad critics are doing to their business."

In introducing Jones, Levy pointed out how the Tribune columnist "beats the drums" for what he, Jones, considers good pictures and that "he might be one of our best friends."

FOX'S ANNUAL MEET TO GET DECREE TERMS

Date for 20th-Fox's annual meet has been set for May 16, giving the company plenty of room to come in at the conclave with a settlement of the Government's anti-trust decree. If a deal should be made before then, plan would be presented to the stockholders for their approval. On the other hand, if dickering collapses, Spyros Skouras, 20th's prexy, will report on the company's proposed appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court at the meet.

No other important business is up for consideration at the meeting. Stockholders of record, April 10, are eligible to vote for the new board.

Upped Prod.

Continued from page 7

in that direction. Most originals, inasmuch as they were written expressly for the screen, have been on subjects that lent themselves to less costly types of pix than generally have books, plays and short stories.

Also a factor, of course, is that studios have shied away somewhat from the high prices placed on many published works. Prices have come down considerably in recent years, however, on everything but yarns in which there is real competitive interest. That may also explain why more published stories are starting to appear on studio schedules.

Prime reason is believed to be, however, merely that the studios need more stories because they're making more pictures. They've used up much of the stuff they've had on their shelves and they're forced to go out into the market and acquire additional material.

Purchased during the past week, but not yet registered with the MPAA, was "The Second Oldest Profession," a novel about newspapering, by Robert Sylvester, amusement editor of the New York News. It was bought by 20th-Fox. Gregory Peck will be starred in it.

Film Classics last week staked claim to the title, "Fire Island, N. Y.," with the MPAA. Hakim Productions previously had registered "Fire Island" with the title bureau, but as yet hasn't put its yarn before the cameras. Also in the Fire Island sweepstakes is indie producer William L. Taub, who plans to make "Dry River" on the sandy resort off Long Island.

Art House

Continued from page 3

cities. City Investing has a 25% stock interest in Lopert.

Carnegie house would be the second leased by CI to Lopert. Bijou theatre, an off-Broadway house, will be taken over by Lopert when the current run of "The Red Shoes" winds up. Lopert is also closing a lease in Chicago for the Studio theatre. Company will probably move into the flickery in September on a 15-year deal.

CI has an understanding with Lopert that it will use its influence in real estate deals and also scout likely art house sites for the chain. Company played a part in the Studio deal.

Lopert now runs three houses in Washington; two in New York and one apiece in Detroit, Chicago and Louisville.

Wall St. House Sees Par Bldg. and DuMont Swelling Par Divvys

Possibility of Paramount dividing a special melon of $5-$6 per common share among stockholders when the company sells the Paramount building, its Times Sq. headquarters, and its holdings in DuMont Television stock is seen by White, Weld & Co., Wall street brokerage house, in a brochure which the outfit is currently circulating among investors. At its present market price, brokerage firm tags Par's common stock as "an attractive longterm speculation."

If Par does make this distribution after realizing approximately $20,000,000 on the two deals, it would mean the present stock purchaser would be getting the stock for $13-$14 per share, brochure points out. Another possibility weighed in the report is that Par will devote this extra coin to retiring part of its outstanding common stock. "This might mean a reduction of one-quarter to one-third of the present common shares, thereby greatly increasing the earnings and dividends per share on the remaining stock," brokerage house declares.

Report sees Par earning $1.75 per share yearly or approximately $5,000,000. As for those stockholders who now own both Par and United Paramount shares because of the splitup, report suggests that present restrictions on UP dividends can be avoided by the sale and immediate repurchase of Par common. Consent decree bars retention of original shares of both companies in blocks exceeding 500 shares.

White, Weld sees Par's current policy of buying its own stock on the open market "as an important price support for these shares in the period of market unsettlement following the recent establishment of the two new companies." "It is believed," report says, "that many investors are selling the Paramount common in order to avoid the dividend restrictions that will otherwise exist on shares of the new theatre company. This appears a major reason why Paramount common is behind not only the general market but leading movie stocks as well."

20th Appeals

Continued from page 3

stay and another 30 days when and if an appeal is taken.

Stay would be directed against two decree provisions. One provides for filing a divorcement plan within six months of the date that the decree was entered and another clause which orders a plan of divestiture within one year. Delay is sought because such plans require tremendous work and would impede with the preparation of an appeal.

Warners is currently carrying on talks in Washington with the D of J. Twentieth is expected to enter discussions in the near future.

Harry, Jack Warner in N. Y.

Despite insistent reports on Wall street and within the industry that Warner Bros. was on the verge this week of inking a decree to end the present anti-trust suit, no confirmation could be obtained from any source in New York.

Pointed to by insiders as the most significant tipoff that a deal is nearing the signing stage is the presence in the east of both Harry and Jack Warner. Major Albert Warner, third brother in the triumvirate, normally makes his home in New York.

Reports have had it that the WB decree offers a considerably better deal for the stockholders than did the RKO or Paramount consent judgments, but no details have been forthcoming.

D. of J. Denies Deal

Washington, March 28.

Dept. of Justice is throwing cold water on reports circulating in the film industry that Warner Bros. has finally reached agreement on a consent decree with the Government. A top figure in the D of J and one active in the negotiations declared here today (Tuesday) that no settlement has been reached. He conceded that there might be a deal later in the week but left the impression that it would still depend on the unpredictable results of talks slated for continuation on Thursday (30) or Friday.

Where Show Biz Came In

Continued from page 2

getting as much thrill from radio description of fight as from sitting in $2 or $3 seat at distance from ring.

Some producing managers still maintain radio bringing money into boxoffice.

Music business hardest hit by radio, which no longer a fad, but growing in popularity.

March 12, 1924

Kreisler on Radio Causes 1½G Refund

Following announcement Fritz Kreisler's Boston concert would be broadcast, over $1,500 advance sale was returned. Concert had in excess of $3,000 advance when radio stunt was announced, and wholesale cancellations followed. Incident is regarded by showmen as indication of fallacy of trying to sell something and at same time give it away.

March 19, 1924

Tex Rickard Bans Radio

Tex Rickard is first big fight promoter to ban radio on account its effect on gate at big fights. Rickard refused broadcast recent Jack Delaney-Paul Berlenbach bout at Madison Square Garden figuring an announcement that bout would be broadcast would affect the gate, particularly the cheaper seats. As result, bout pulled over $50,000 with an admission scale of $1-$7, one of largest grosses at those prices ever accumulated at the Garden. All of championship bouts promoted by Rickard last year were broadcast, and nothing thought of it although several times the cheaper seats failed to attract capacity crowds. This was brought to the attention of the promoter and resulted in decision not to broadcast any more bouts, particularly those held indoors.

March 26, 1924

Keith Tabus Acts on Radio

Keith circuit has extended its radio ban to all Keith acts playing benefits. No Keith act shall broadcast when appearing at places where entertainment is radioed. Radio announcer is to announce that the next, a Keith act, will not broadcast. Keith first vaudeville circuit in country to incorporate a non-radio clause in its contracts.

April 16, 1924

Lopez Forced to Exit Radio

Following protest from Keith circuit to Vincent Lopez anent broadcasting from Hotel Pennsylvania, N. Y., while playing Keith houses, musician has agreed stop broadcasting in two weeks, when his present contract expires. A checkup, according to Keith officials, showed Lopez had fallen off considerably as a draw in vaudeville houses. Specific instances of seat cancellations occurred at Alhambra and one other Keith house. Patrons protested they heard Lopez so often via the ether they would remain away that week.

April 16, 1924

Radio Piped Into Theatres

First theatre to adopt radio as an entertainment feature is the Empire, Brooklyn, N. Y. (Columbia Wheel house), which is to install set this week. Empire plans entertain early arrivals before matinee and night shows with radio selections, given prior to overture. Empire is located in heart of family residential district in Brooklyn, where almost everyone owns a radio. Empire's idea appears to be to offset competition if possible by fighting it with its own weapon.

May 20, 1924

Concert Managers Blast Radio

Aftermath of questionnaires sent out by Mrs. Katie Wilson-Greene, president of the National Concert Managers Assn., with headquarters in Washington, D. C., is a general indication, as gleaned from 48 of 51 concert bureaus, to "absolutely and strenuously" oppose the booking of concert vocalists who broadcast for radio, with the majority irrevocably refusing to consider such talent. The broadcasters, in encouraging concert talent to render services gratis for radio up to now, have held forth as the most salient argument that radio increased public interest in the soloist's work and has its material returns in forthcoming concert bookings through wide interest thus awakened. This premise was refuted once in Providence when Fritz Kreisler, after drawing a $3,000 advance sale, found that half of it was cancelled when it was announced his entire concert program would be broadcast.

July 16, 1924

Monotonous Programming

Sameness of programming and commercials on "advertising" stations causing a loss of interest in radio. Broadcasters have failed to inject any of the touches of professialism so necessary to impress the audience.

August 6, 1924

No Opera Next Season on Radio

To hear the opera next season music lovers will have to go and pay. With this decision is another—that local broadcasting of opera be discontinued for all time. Last season, during which the opera was freely broadcast, it became evident that the cheaper seats remained unfilled.

House Probe

Continued from page 6

ed as a lobbyist for TOA, but not for COMPO.

COMPO's Warning

Washington, March 28.

Nearing a decisive test of the Federal admission tax on the floor of Congress, legislation committee of the Council of Motion Picture Organizations has warned exhibs against slackening their drive for full repeal of the 20% bite. COMPO, in a report to its members, pointed out that the industry must not only have enough pledged votes to pass a satisfactory bill but must also have enough to override a Presidential veto.

With the likelihood that Congress may adjourn for the Easter vacation, COMPO is urging exhibs to visit their local representative to nail home the need for tax repeal. Full instructions on how to continue waging the campaign has been detailed in a new circular to the heads of the industry's tax committee in each areas.

Patterned after regular pressbook ideas, the circular recommends letter-writing contests for patrons, with free tickets as prizes, the formation of permanent tax fan clubs to combat local moves to impose taxes, highschool essay contests and the liberal use of radio spot announcements. COMPO also suggests a switch in the letter-writing technique to Congressmen. Instead of requesting support for total repeal, COMPO is now asking for active intervention by the legislators in the Congressional hearings and debates in behalf of the industry's program.

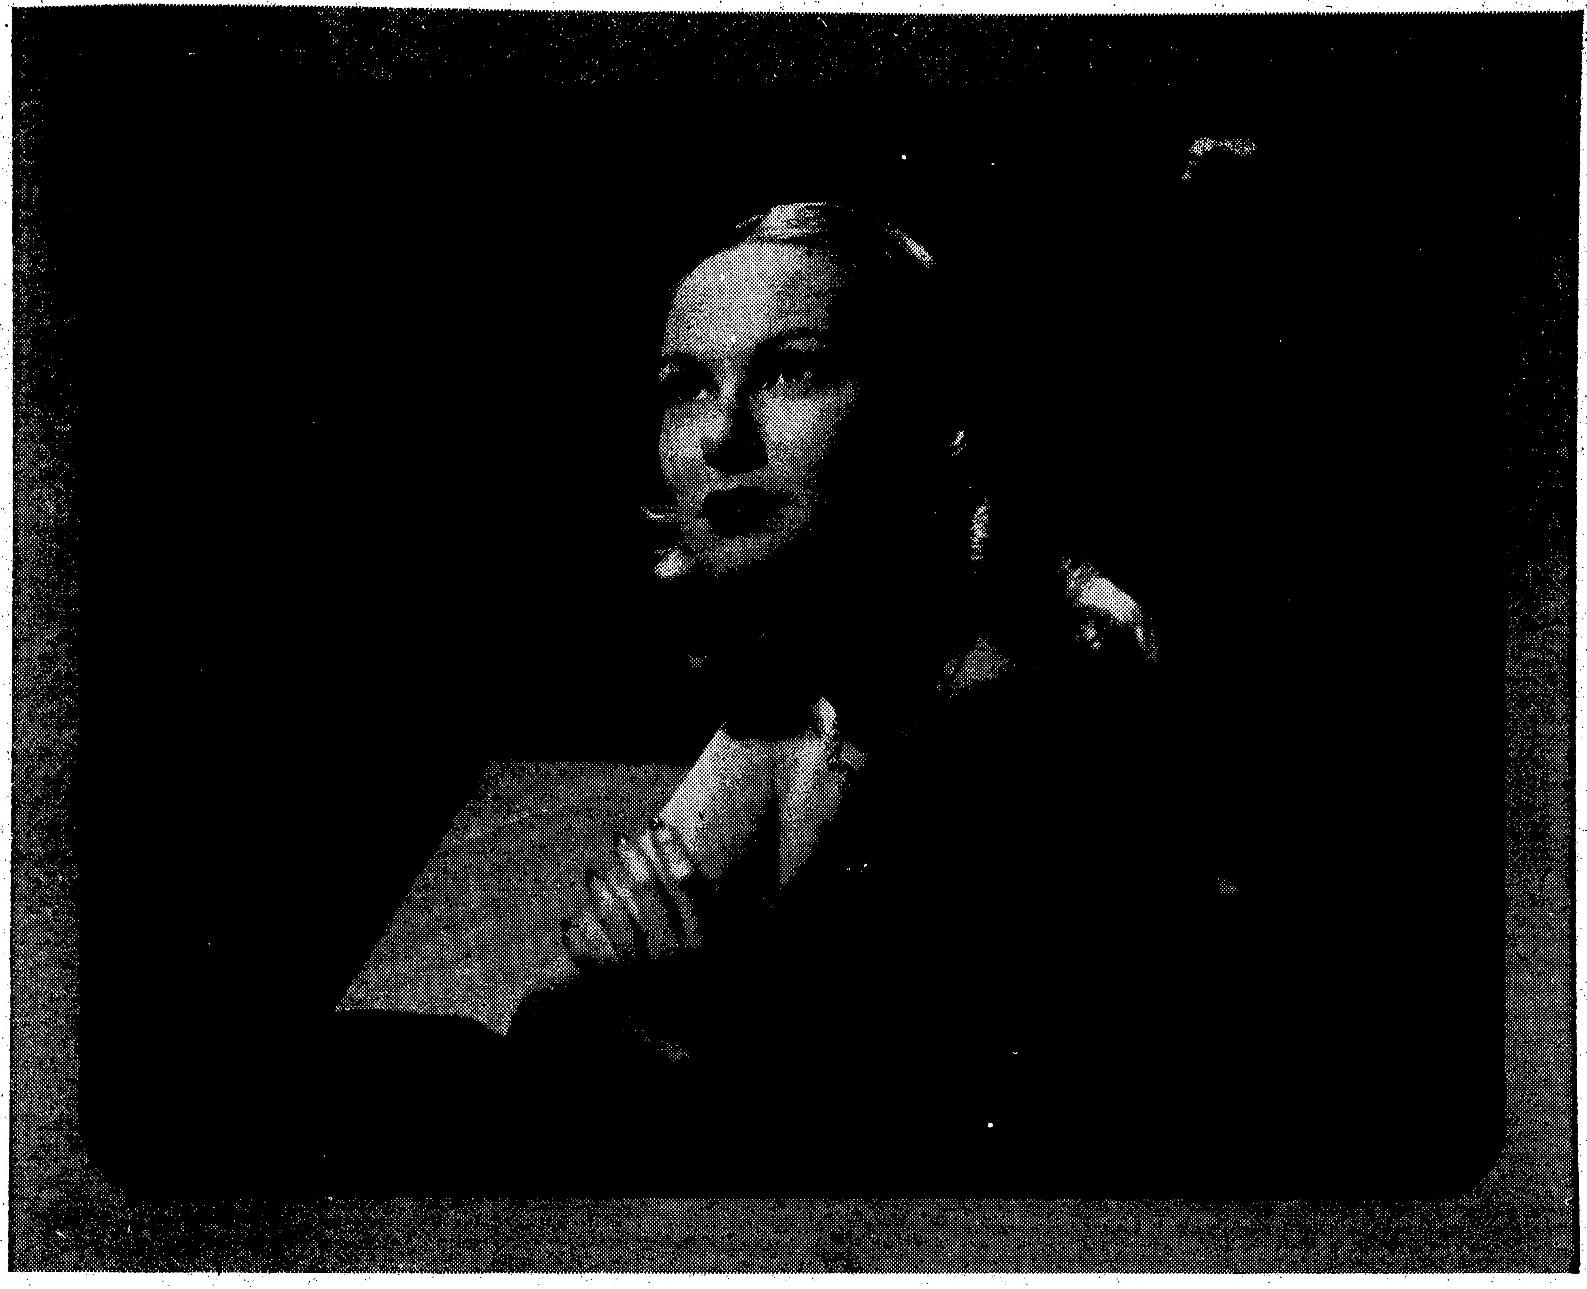
SAG Drive

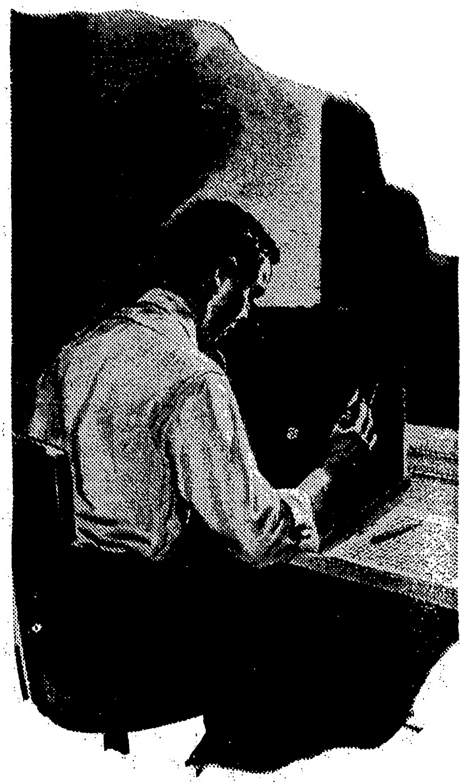
Continued from page 5

strangers are hired because they look like a character the casting director has in mind. In a letter to studio executives, SAG says in part:

"We are not suggesting that producers, directors or casting directors cease their legitimate search for new talent. We recognize that new blood is essential to our business. This must be distinguished however, from the casual new faces in minor roles. It may well be true that the public tires of the same face perpetually cast in the same type of role, but a little more imagination could lead to a conscious effort to cast these people in other roles. In other words, the answer to type casting is not a new face.

"If attempts were made, wherever possible, to obtain an experienced motion picture actor whose life is devoted to this industry, it would materially aid our members, and could lead to discoveries of broader talent in an actor who is always cast as a cop, a waiter, a bartender or a reporter. Such faces have made the role, not the role the face. The same talents can well be used in other roles."





He makes the most of moonlit moments . . .

IT'S mighty important to star . . . director . . . movie-goer . . . to have this moonlit moment come alive upon the screen.

And when it does—in all its subtlety of mood in light and shadow—the credit's due in no small measure to the important contribution of the laboratory control engineer.

For his knowledge of photochemistry, his "eye" for photographic quality his vigilant control of printing density and contrast . . . do much to make moonlight footage look like moonlight, and help to bring out the best in every frame of film.

Quality of film contributes, too; and this important assistance the laboratory control engineer is sure of when he works with the famous Eastman family of motion-picture films.

V

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER 4, N. Y.

J. E. BRULATOUR, INC., DISTRIBUTORS
FORT LEE • CHICAGO • HOLLYWOOD

Film Reviews

Continued from page 11

Walls of Malapaga

who has killed his much-younger sweetheart because she spurned him for a younger man. The film's opening finds him in flight from the police. He has taken refuge on a ship that anchors in Genoa, and it is there that he meets a waitress who becomes his benefactor, then his mistress. The complications that ensue derive from her 13-year old daughter, a brutal husband from whom the woman is estranged, and the gradual closing-in of the Italian police on the fugitive.

Gabin plays the fugitive with his usual understatement; it is an excellent performance. Isa Miranda, as the waitress, is likewise fine in a characterization that requires—and gets—superb shading and projection. In this role Miss Miranda has sacrificed glamour for realism as she expertly projects the futility of a mother torn between love for her child and the new-found friend who has helped her to find her first happiness. In Vera Talchi, making her film debut, the Italian cinema has a superlative young talent. As the daughter, the youngster envelops the film with the stark symbol of adolescent frustration.

Rene Clement's direction has captured the pervading feeling of expectation and futility in building the film to an emotional pitch. The adaptation by Jean Aurenche and Pierre Bost (who did "Symphonie Pastorale" and "Devil in the Flesh") represents tight, splendid characterization. Kahn.

Cantiga Da Rua
(Song of the Street)
(PORTUGUESE)

Lisbon, March 7.

Lisbon Filmes release of Filmes Albuquerque production. Directed by Henrique Campos, from a story by Amadeu do Valle. Musical score by Jaime Mendes and Fernando de Carvalho; camera, Aquilino Mendes; sound, Henrique Domingues; editor, Antonio Ferrao. Stars Alberto Ribeiro; features Deolinda Rodrigues, Eunice Munoz, Maria Olguim, Luiza Durao, Costinha, Augusto Fraga, Manuel Santos Carvalho. At Teatro Trindade, Lisbon. Running time, 140 MINS.

Director Henriques Campos has scored another winner with his new film. This time it is Lisbon, with its typical streets and life, that is the real "star" of the pic. Surrounding is ideal for the introduction of young tenor Alberto Ribeiro, who from next August will be under contract to Sol Hurok, who will present him in England and America.

The story is just an excuse to give an opportunity to Ribeiro, Deolinda Rodrigues and other folk-singers to sing many melodious songs, but it moves quickly and holds interest to the end. Comic sketches are provided by Costinha and Santos Carvalho. Journalist Augusto Fraga, of Universal offices in Lisbon, is making a promising bow as a young lead. Pic is already assured good booking in the provinces and in Brazil. Camera work on location is excellent and sound track better than usual. Garr.

Nous Irons a Paris
(We Shall Go to Paris)
(FRENCH-SONGS)

Paris, March 2.

Corona release of Hoche production. Directed by Jean Boyer. Screenplay by Franz Tanzler; dialog, Serge Veber; music, Paul Miraski; lyrics, Andre Hornez; camera, Charles Suin; editor, Fanchette Mazin. Stars Ray Ventura and orch, with Peters Sisters, Henri Salvador, George Raft, Martine Carol; features Pasquali, Philippe Lemaire, Francoise Arnoul. At Marigan and Marivaux, Paris. Running time, 104 MINS.

Jacques	Philippe Lemaire
Micheline	Francoise Arnoul
Paul	Christian Duvaleix
Julien	Henri Genes
M. Grosbois	Pasquali
Maman Terrine	Maryse Martin
Honorin	Max Elloy
Radio producer	Georges Lannes
Radio secretary	Jean Hebey
The suitor	Destain
Gaine Lotus	Marcel Charvey
Gendarme	Vilbert
Singing gendarme	Amato
Auguste	Baconet

Also Martine Carol, Monsieur Champagne, Les Peter Sisters, George Raft, Henri Salvador.

This Ray Ventura picture is a sure grosser here and likely to do well in foreign circuit. For the U. S., if suitably adapted, it looks like one of the best remake bets ever. The theme permits introduction of stage, screen and radio stars at comparatively small cost, and lends itself to many effective gags, some of which have been ably introduced.

The story razzes the French Radio Administration, which fires a young singer. Latter, who is in love with the daughter of a corset manufacturer, leaves Paris with another couple of friends to produce clandestine radio broadcasts, and is eventually joined by the girl. The gang's broadcasts draw considerable attention from the authorities who try and locate them. They are finally arrested when pretending to be the crew of a barge, but are then hired by the Administration and boy gets gal.

Throughout the film, Ventura and his orch supply plenty music. Incidentally, since Ventura is also a publisher, he collects rights for his firm's songs. On rights alone the 62,000,000 franc picture ($160,000) should get hefty returns for the publisher-producer, apart from valuable publicity. How much French and how much American music a remake would have to get, depends on what deal would be made.

The marquee value trick is obtained by getting the gang to meet wellknown show people on their travels. George Raft is met when motoring. Martine Carol is brought in when the gang meets in a village inn. Mr. Champagne is the local Radio Quizzer, and is met when discoursing to school children on a rural visit.

As is, the picture is highly entertaining. The girl is a new face, Francoise Arnoul, and she acquits herself well. Pasquali does his usual antics as the corset manufacturer and the whole cast is satisfactory. Ventura is a good actor besides leading his music combo well. Direction by Jean Boyer is effective though suitably unobtrusive. Maxi.

Miss Italia
(ITALIAN)

Genoa, March 16.

Lux film release of ATA production. Stars Gina Lollobrigida, Richard Ney, Constance Dowling; features Luigi Almirante, Luisa Rossi; Carlo Campanini, Umberto Melnati. Directed by Duilio Coletti. Story and screenplay, Fulvio Palmieri, Nino Novarese; camera, Mario Bava; music, Felice Montagnini. At Lux, Genoa. Running time, 95 MINS.

Starting out with a basically sound idea—that of showing the behind-the-scenes aspects of Italy's No. 1 beauty pageant (for the election of a Miss Italy) the authors, in an attempt to cover as many different angles of the contestants' private lives, have overloaded their script with various bits, pieces, and cliches which too often lack conviction and depth.

The hunt for a jewel thief who becomes involved with one of the contestants takes up the bulk of the pic's second half, but lacks punch in proportion to the footage consumed. Consequence is that the beauty contest itself, which with its imaginable attributes might have helped it considerably, boxoffice-wise, is pushed into the background and gets very little play.

Pic's values essentially boil down to a locally strong title and the names in the cast. Richard Ney, here starring in his first Italian film, will please the ladies as the writer in search of a story who digs into the beauties' private lives. Constance Dowling almost convinces in the improbable role of a prostitute whose last hope in life is to become Miss Italy.

Gina Lollobrigida, a comer, is slighted by script and camera as the Cinderella-type seamstress who wins the beauty title. Luigi Almirante as her father stands out in an able supporting cast. Duilio Coletti directed within limits of his material, and film is technically sound. Hawk.

L'Auberge Du Peche
(The Inn of Sin)
(FRENCH)

Paris, March 7.

Pathe-Consortium release of Simoun Film production. Directed by Jean de Marguenat. Written by Andre Cuel, adaptation, Charles De Grenier. Stars Ginette Leclerc, J. P. Kerien, Jean Paredes; features Delmont, Andre Valmy, Colette Georges, Christiane Barry. Camera, Maurice Bonin; music, Henri Verdun; editor, Charlie Buner. At Olympia, Paris. Running time, 110 MINS.

Laura	Ginette Leclerc
Briquet	J. P. Kerien
Notary	Jean Paredes
Pierre	Andre Valmy
Innkeeper	Delmont

Overlong whodunit makes up in local color what it lacks in suspense. A good pruning of the story deadwood could give the pic some movement and pace. This cohesion would make it an ingratiating film for second-run spots. On the spot lensing in the south of France gives pic a good background, and colorful characters make it seem a down-to-earth murder yarn.

Story concerns a robust barmaid who has millions of francs dumped in her lap by a wounded gunman. He tells her it is hers if he does not return in 10 days. He is found dead before the inn next day, and complications ensue. A vacationing police inspector and a local nitwit notary solve the crime, to the annoyance of the local constabulary.

Ginette Leclerc gives another earthy performance here. J. P. Kerien is pleasant as the nosy inspector, and Paredes garners some laughs as the fumbling would-be detective. A host of minor roles add body to the slow-paced suspense. Delmont is particularly persuasive as the old innkeeper infatuated by the charms of the barmaid. Lensing is slick and editing slow but smooth. Director Jean de Marguenat falls in between a chase and character film, and succeeds in neither one. Though cheaply made, pic manages to give the aura of good production value. Mosk.

Bond Street

"Bond Street," British-made, which opens at the Normandie theatre, N. Y., today (Wed.), was reviewed in VARIETY from London, June 2, 1948. Film was tabbed by reviewer Cane as having a "slim future" in the U. S. According to review, yarn is made up of "four episodes linked by slender framework." Three of the stories were credited with being "old-fashioned and in novel form," while the fourth was labeled "adult and amusing."

Film, which stars Roland Young and Jean Kent, is being released in the U. S. by Stratford Pictures.

L'Imperatore di Capri
(The Emperor of Capri)
(ITALIAN)

Genoa, March 4.

Lux Film release of Carlo Ponti production. Stars Toto, Yvonne Sanson, Marisa Merlini, Alda Mangini, Laura Gore; features Mario Castellani, Nerio Bernardi, Galeazzo Benti. Directed by Luigi Comencini. Screenplay, Metz, Marchesi, Comencini, from story by Teresa Bartolini, Gino De Santis; camera, Giuseppe Caracciolo; music, Felice Montagnini; editor, Otello Colangeli. At Lux, Genoa. Running time, 84 MINS.

Latest of a long string of successful comedies starring Toto, "The Emperor of Capri" shouldn't be far behind its predecessors, boxoffice wise, and may easily top them on local runs. Script, though weak in spots, provides enough backing for Toto's bizarre improvizations, and especially in scenes satirizing Capri high life, is a sure-fire provider of laughs. With the exception of some slapstick, however, the Italian slant of the comedy won't let this item stray too far from Italo language areas.

Script essentially follows musicomedy-revue patterns loosely tied together by a mistaken-identity twist in which Toto is thought to be an Indian prince on a visit to Capri. Yvonne Sanson, as a slavic temptress, and Marisa Merlini, as an eccentric baroness, provide decorative backing in a supporting cast which includes Mario Castellani as a broken-down actor and Galeazzo Benti as an island dilettante. It's Toto's pic all the way, however.

Location-filmed Capri scenes and camera work by Giuseppe Caracciolo are among Carlo Ponti's production assets. Hawk.

Svenske Ryttaren
(Swedish Horseman)
(SWEDISH)

Stockholm, March 1.

Kungsfilm production and release. Stars Elisabeth Soderstrom, Ake Soderblom; features Ingemar Pallin, Gull Natrop, Carl-Henrik Fant, Gunnel Brostrom, Harry Ahlin, Magnus Kesster, Sture Ericsson, Barbro Nordin. Directed by Gustaf Edgren. Screenplay, Adolf Schutz, Paul Bauditsch; camera, Ake Dahlquist; music, Bertil Bokstedt. At Skandia, Stockholm. Running time, 88 MINS.

This new historical romance, about love and sharp revenge, is a rarity, as Sweden sees few costume pix. Film should do very well in Scandinavia, with good prospects abroad.

Elisabeth Soderstrom, as the girl, is a newcomer and very promising in her debut. Ake Soderblom, as the adventurer, gives an outstanding performance. Direction by vet Gustaf Edgren is fine. Winq.

'Bicycle Thief'

Continued from page 3

tains that the desired cuts can be made without injuring the continuity of the scenes. Unless Burstyn is convinced that that can be done, he will not make the cuts.

Distrib indicated to VARIETY last night that he'd listen to Breen's suggestions, but that he thought it unlikely the deletions could be made to his satisfaction. Should he decide to fight, he said he would file suit against Warner Bros. if it continues to refuse to show the pic at the Princess, in Philly, where it pulled the date earlier this month because of "Thief's" lack of a seal. Burstyn maintains he has a contract with WB that does not mention the requirement of MPAA code approval.

In order to bring the film in conformity with "standards of morals and good tastes of the production code," the board ordered elimination of one sequence showing the boy about to relieve himself, and of another which lenses the inside of a brothel. Burstyn can re-submit the revised film at any time.

Breen came east especially to attend the hearing. Wide publicity has been given Burstyn's battle over the code demands. He and other foreign distribs maintain that the rigid PCA standards should not be applied to imported pix.

Fifteen members of the board were on hand at the meeting presided over by Francis S. Harmon, MPAA veepee, in Columbia's boardroom. Attending were Barney Balaban, Nate J. Blumberg, Theodore Black, William Clark, Jack Cohn, Earle W. Hammons, Joseph H. Hazen, Austin C. Keough, W. C. Michel, John J. O'Connor, J. Robert Rubin, Norton V. Ritchey, Abe Schneider, Samuel Schneider and Paul Terry. Sidney Schreiber, MPAA attorney, acted as secretary.

No 'Czar' Slated

Continued from page 3

the outfit have come in from Europe and the Coast.

Report will be heard and voted on next week from an organizational committee of 12 members. Group divided into three subcommittees which met together last Thursday (23). Sub-groups were (1) planning and scope; (2) public relations, and (3) membership and budget.

The organization will get away from the concept of the Motion Picture Assn. of America or the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and other trade organizations which have a highly-paid exec head. It will be run instead by a board of governors.

As for anything resembling the MPAA's Production Code Administration, the new group plans to stay as far away as possible from it. The aim is to preserve foreign pix from any type of bluenosing that might rob them of their unique or creative quality.

When set up, as a matter of fact, organization will probably take up cudgels against scissoring of any members' picture. Had the group been fully organized, it is said, it would have been represented at yesterday's (Tuesday) appeal to the MPAA board on Joseph Burstyn's Italian import, "Bicycle Thief." MPAA ordered cuts to which Burstyn objected.

Principal expenditure by the group will go into the publicity campaign, which will be carried on a nationwide scale. Participating will be British producers as well as makers and distributors of lingualers. Morris Helprin, American v.p. of London Films Productions, Sir Alexander Korda's outfit, is temporary chairman.

20th's Edge

Continued from page 5

as second-features. Latter come under a separate quota category.

Heavy bookings of 20th product on the Rank chains is seen as possibly being tied up with Skouras' hurried visit to London several weeks ago. He got there three days before Rank was slated to sail for New York and had several conversations with the British exec. Circuit bookings were actually set before that time, however.

Skouras has cooperated more closely with Rank than any other company topper with the possible exception of Nate Blumberg of Universal, in which Rank is an important stockholder. 20th is the only U. S. distrib to abandon the "unit system" of booking in England, which has badly hurt Rank. It provides that no Hollywood film can be dated as a second-feature to an English pic, so that Rank can't use Yank product to help sell his own.

20th is a shareholder in the Gaumont-British circuit and it is partly to protect this investment that Skouras has played along closely with Rank. However, his cooperative attitude has also won 20th other concessions, such as the present high proportion of bookings.

400 at NBR's 41st Conv. Hear Taxes, Prod., Pix Problems Discussed

National Board of Review, at its 41st Anniversary Conference held at the Hotel McAlpin, N. Y., last week, urged elimination of the wartime admission tax and expressed unqualified opposition to legal censorship of films in any form. Conclave was attended by some 400 delegates, who represented the NBR's affiliated nationwide organizations.

Board's stand on the Federal admish bite was hailed by Metro sales promotion manager H. M. Richey, one of nine industryites to address the meet. Maurice Bergman, Universal public relations chief, in analyzing the effect of film advertising, pointed out that no ad formula yet has been devised to make the public attend a poor picture.

Arthur H. DeBra, Community Relations Director for the Motion Picture Assn. of America, also thumped for tax reduction and sharply attacked Senator Edwin C. Johnson's (D-Colo.) proposed Federal licensing bill for policing the film industry. He particularly lashed out at persons "who wilfully undertake to confuse the morality of an actress or actor with the moral soundness or artistic merit that are inherent in films."

All-day session clarified the behind-the-scenes industry techniques to the delegates. Nuances of story selection were explained by 20th-Fox story editor Bertram Bloch. Indie filmmaker Niven Busch discussed production; George Sidney, direction; Joseph Lerner, of Laurel Films, film truth, and Teresa Wright, acting. Unable to read his address on distribution, because a subpoena called him out of town, George J. Schaefer had his speech read by his son, G. J. Schaefer, Jr.

MAY 1 HEARING ON JAX PARK CHALLENGE

Chicago, March 28.

Appeal by Jackson Park theatre challenging Chi Federal District Judge Michael Igoe's power to grant exceptions to Jackson Park decree has been set tentatively for hearing May 1 before Chi circuit court of appeals.

Action stems specifically from Judge Igoe's granting of extended run to "Come to the Stable" a year ago. Decree, filed in November, 1947, limits first-runs to two weeks for defendant distributors and exhibitors. Since promulgation of decree, Judge Igoe has granted 12 exceptions, latest of which is extended-run and three weeks clearance for "Samson and Delilah."

Judge Igoe has granted exceptions on basis of changing conditions since filing of decree, and individual circumstances in each case. Relief for "Samson," for example, was given because of pic's high cost and acclaim by religious leaders.

Thomas McConnell, Jackson Park attorney, has argued that continual exceptions are destroying effect of the decree. McConnell must appear in court for each hearing to represent Jackson Park theatre, since each petition for exception is action under Bigelow et al. vs. RKO et al., original suit.

Rathvon Accents

Continued from page 7

able to squeeze the extravagance out of a film," he added.

"We're really in a tough field these days," Rathvon continued. "I don't think independents can possibly compete in this market unless every element of safety and cost control is observed. No sort of carelessness can be risked without it showing up in the final results."

His company, formed to put up the risk money for indie production, will finance about 10 films during a 12-month period, he said. Besides six pix already completed, Rathvon will bankroll Marcel Hellman's "Happy Go Lovely," to be directed in England by Bruce Humberstone. Rathvon has several new deals cooking with Eagle Lion but these have yet to be inked.

He sails for Europe today (Wed.) aboard the Ile de France with his wife and two daughters. While on the Continent, Rathvon will study the possibilities of backing some pix ventures overseas. Producer plans to spend seven weeks on the Continent.

The Paramount News-of-the-Week In Variety's Picture Section:

Keep Your Campaign Going Strong To Kill The Movie Tax!

Bing Crosby's

Best Picture in Years

Frank Capra's

Riding High

WORLD PREMIERES SAT., APR. 1, FRONT ROYAL, VA.— SPEARHEADING MORE THAN 300 DAY-AND-DATE EASTER WEEK ENGAGEMENTS...

This typical American town and its neighbors for miles around, will celebrate Bing Crosby Day in a great big way and Bing'll be there in person. A gala event fanning out to national promotion for you as coast to coast news and radio coverage headlines it across the land...

Now turn to VARIETY'S RADIO SECTION and read how every facet of show business is helping to sell "Riding High"...

Frank Capra's "RIDING HIGH" starring BING CROSBY · Coleen Gray · Charles Bickford · Frances Gifford with William Demarest Raymond Walburn · James Gleason · Ward Bond · Clarence Muse · Percy Kilbride · Harry Davenport · Produced and directed by Frank Capra · Screenplay by Robert Riskin · Additional Dialogue by Melville Shavelson and Jack Rose · Based on a Story by Mark Hellinger · New Songs: Lyrics by Johnny Burke · Music by James Van Heusen

Eye Single Bills to Aid B.O.

Continued from page 6

be just as deadly to the b.o. as continued ignorance of the possibilities of TV.

What to do about it? General reaction points to a wholesale adoption of 20th-Fox's institutional ad campaign, with special adaptations on the local level to fit particular operations. There was a continued cry for film companies to furnish TV trailers of pictures hitting theatre screens. In this respect, 20th-Fox has let a contract to National Screen Service to make video ballyhoo reels for its product but it will be up to the exhib to buy the TV time to get them used.

Showmanship

A revival of good, old-fashioned showmanship, right down to the neighborhood theatre, as a business stimulant, plus a revival of customer awareness and courtesy to those who pass their change through the ticket window.

SCTOA's Friday meeting went further than the others in exploring financing possibilities to back the institutional ad barrage which is calculated to lure old customers back to the theatre and win new ones. Principal coin source suggested was the re-channeling of the old ASCAP tax money into the campaign. It was proposed by an exhib with only one small house, who was willing to continue paying out to a general fund, but this time one that could be good for his business instead of just being a levy that profited no exhibitor's boxoffice. Another was a percentage tap on merchandising profits.

With those two possibilities as added resource, SCTOA members will launch their campaign with a fund derived from a levy according to run and seating capacity. Emphasis will be on getting the set-watcher out of the home and into the theatre, be it neighborhood or first-run, through a campaign stressing "Let's Go Out to the Movies TONIGHT."

Film Festival

To highlight the unified industry drive of better pictures and revived showmanship, SCTOA proposes a gigantic film festival that could be made an annual event, with production and distribution joining in to sell the best in what's coming up and not just what was great the past year. It has been suggested that the annual film festival be tied in with the annual conclave of Theatre Owners of America so that national importance of the event would take on additional meaning.

Large-screen theatre television comes to Los Angeles this fall. That was the top local piece of news to come out of 20th-Fox's regional meeting. Sherrill Corwin, local circuit operator and a vice prexy of TOA, announced equipment had been ordered from RCA. Installation in the Orpheum, vaud-film house in the downtown area, is expected in about four months. Until definite video programs are lined up, the equipment will be available to all exhibs in this territory for actual workshop experience in how this new medium can be adapted to the theatre boxoffice.

Price-cutting also took a beating during the week. While no names were mentioned, it was easy to trace some of the concern to the substantial slice made by the two Fanchon & Marco-operated first-run Paramounts here. Exhibs generally cried out against what they termed futile efforts to revive b.o. by bargain admission price. Their arguments would seem to be borne out to a certain degree by the failure of the two Paramount theatres to rally strongly despite price-slashing and stage shows.

UA Unleashes 'Storm'

Los Angeles, March 28.

United Artists, in an out-of-court settlement agreed to turn back "Summer Storm" to Joseph Lucachevitch, one of the bankrollers of the film, produced some years ago by Seymour Nebenzal.

Picture starred Linda Darnell and George Sanders.

"For all-over Lux Loveliness I use this new BATH SIZE!"
says Rosalind Russell
SCREEN STARS ARE RIGHT—THIS BIG BATH SIZE IS WONDERFUL!
LUX TOILET SOAP Bath Size
Rosalind Russell
Star of Columbia Pictures' "A WOMAN OF DISTINCTION"
Now Showing Locally

"My Lux Soap beauty bath is so refreshing!" says Rosalind Russell. "The new bath size makes it more luxurious than ever. The rich creamy lather just seems to float away fatigue, leaves skin softer, smoother. Perfumed with a delightful fragrance that clings!"

Take a tip from Hollywood's lovely stars! Try this longer-lasting bath size Lux Toilet Soap. You'll find a Lux Soap beauty bath a wonderful way to make daintiness sure.

Another fine product of Lever Brothers Company

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

Schary's 'Next Voice' For April Release

Hollywood, March 28.

Due to minimum of cutting following a Pomona sneak, Metro's "Next Voice You Hear . . ." will be ready for mid-April release. Speed of sendout follows production trend, James Whitmore-Nancy Davis starrer having wound up March 9 after 14 lensing days.

Homeoffice execs have already started discussions for special handling of the Dore Schary production due to unusual theme. Understood one of terms currently under discussion is clause demanding single billing in all first-run situations. Although no booking definite, preem is being earmarked for either the Capitol or Music Hall in N. Y.

Ray Stark Quits Levee To Join FA as Partner

Hollywood, March 28.

Ray Stark, partnered in the former Levee-Stark talent agency, ankled organization to join Famous Artists as a veepee and full partner. He had been with Levee-Stark four years.

Outfit recently joined with Goldstone-Wilner and Victor Orsatti agencies to form Artists Agency Corp. Mike Levee remains president of AAC.

TOA Takes Lead

Continued from page 7

them to announce publicly the readiness of their companies to submit to arbitration on individual disputes. Such an announcement would encourage exhibs to request arbitration rather than sue. It would serve as a stopgap.

Understood behind the TOA move are Gael Sullivan, exec director, and Herman M. Levy, general counsel. Levy would neither confirm nor deny the step. He did say that any action along these lines would be "to cut down on unnecessary litigation in the industry."

"A substantial portion of this litigation," Levy said, "is brought because an exhibitor does not have a speedy and effective tribunal in which to have heard minor disagreements. Wherever we have gone (Sullivan and Levy) to speak at regional meetings, we find the desire of arbitration is almost unanimous. It is generally at the top of the agenda at these meetings."

Revolving Debts

Continued from page

eral years back, Par owed $10,000,000 to three banks. Company whittled this sum to $4,500,000 by pre-payments. Final $4,500,000 was wiped off when United Paramount circuit took over this obligation and $13,000,000 more under the divorcement plan. Latter sum went to the production-distribution company as added capital.

More Open Credits

RKO has now cut its revolving fund debt to $6,500,000 from an original total of $9,000,000. Universal's indebtedness to the banks is at $6,000,000. Company owed $9,000,000 but has been steadily paying off the loan in the face of net losses for the past two years.

Open credit of $25,000,000 is still available to 20th-Fox from the banks. However, 20th borrowed an original $5,000,000 on this credit and has not increased that sum. Columbia obtained a credit of $10,000,000 but recently lopped its obligation to $6,000,000 by paying a $1,200,000 installment.

Warners' funded debt is at the lowest point in many years. Company is indebted for the sum of $12,728,000 on a loan which totaled close to $30,000,000 immediately after the war. Warners has been pre-paying its installments. Within the next year it will have reduced the debt by another $3,182,000.

Metro has also been steadily retiring its longterm obligations. Company owes $55,656,912 on bonds which its circuit secures. That figure was well over $60,000,000 at the war's end.

Mpls. Suburban 900-Seater

Minneapolis.

William Levy, owner of Heights, Columbia Heights, Minneapolis suburg, announced plans for another 900-seat theatre to cost $200,000.

SULLIVAN STUMPING ALL OVER THE MAP

Raft of regional meets by affiliates of the Theatre Owners of America crowd the calendar until the end of June. Gael Sullivan, TOA exec director, and Herman M. Levy, general counsel, will speak at the annual convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners and Operators of Georgia, May 21-23. Meet has been postponed from original May 14-16 date.

Sullivan took the platform Monday (27) in Oklahoma City at a conclave of the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma. He then spoke yesterday (Tues.) before the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Assn.

Other annual meets include that of the Virginia Motion Picture Theatre Assn. at Old Point Comfort, Va., June 19; New Mexico Theatre Assn. in Albuquerque, last half of June; and Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas, Little Rock, May 23-25. Motion Picture Exhibitors of Florida and Kentucky Assn. of Theatre Owners will also meet within the next couple of months.

Spring Valley, N.Y., Indie In Trust Suit vs. Majors

Anti-trust action against RKO, Paramount, 20th-Fox, Warner Bros., Universal and the Spring Valley Theatre Corp. has been filed in N. Y. federal district court by Betty Freeman, operator of the Parkway theatre, Spring Valley. Treble damages of $450,000 is demanded in the action which charges the defendants with conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Plaintiff contends that she built the theatre in 1945 and was forced to shutter it in August, '46. In line with the alleged conspiracy, complaint contends that the distribs granted the Spring Valley Theatre outfit first-run and relegated her house to a 90-day clearance restriction.

Additionally, suit claims that block-booking was forced on her house as well as minimum admission charges.

Music Load

Continued from page 4

something of value and received what he paid for."

Exhibs need have no concern over individual suits by copyright holders to collect on the use of music played in theatres for the past couple of years without a performance license. Prohibition in the consent decree against ASCAP collecting any fees for this period also applies to ASCAP's members, Levy declared.

"It is the duty of production," Levy report said, "to keep the performance fees that it will pay to ASCAP at such a minimal level that it will not be necessary for it, nor will it be tempted, to exact these charges from exhibition. The consent decree requires that the fées be reasonable. Further, it provides an opportunity for the producer to go to court to have the court determine what is a "reasonable fee". if the parties cannot agree within a 60 days' period of negotiation. Exhibition will expect production to take advantage of that privilege, rather than to accede to any unreasonable demands by ASCAP."

Bill Rodgers

Continued from page 5

as well as some other circuits scattered through the country.)

Company is releasing 37 pix during the present fiscal year which ends Aug. 31. It may up its volume by a few films next year but no large-scale increase is planned, Metroite disclosed. In the past few years, Metro has gradually raised its sights "because shorter runs meant the market could absorb more films."

Rodgers declared himself "very optimistic over the future of films." "We reach about the same number of people each year," he said. "I think that television is just another form of competition."

Situations where Metro is selling its product by competitive bids is still growing, he said. Generally, company is selling by that method when exhibs want it and the situation warrants the method. Metro is bid selling in several hundred situations at the present time.

CONGRATULATIONS EDDIE

26—WED., Mar. 22, 1950 ★★★ New York Journal-American

Eddie Cantor's '40 Years . . .'

One Man Show One Of the Season's Best

By ROBERT GARLAND

Last evening, Carnegie Hall was replete from stage to ceiling with enraptured Cantorians assembled for their Eddie's one-man show. For all of two hours, with never an intermission, he gave them exactly what they came for. From a quarter to nine to a quarter of eleven, he exposed his very personal cavalcade of song, anecdote and controlled nostalgia.

At the close of the exposure, Mr. Cantor was decorated with a couple of, I'm certain, well-earned citations. With the one came a James H. Sheldon from the Boston University. The professor's was the One World Award and the single showman was as pleased as punch to get it. With the other came Mary Margaret McBride from the National Broadcasting Co.

These collegiate and airwayward activities were still in progress as we several members of the metropolitan working press departed to report, as I am doing, on Mr. Cantor's "My Forty Years in Show Business." This particular report, as you shall see, is by way of being high, wide and handsomely pro-Cantor.

* * *

Looker-Backer

Accompanied sort of on-and-offishly by George Tibbles, Arthur Siegel and a pair of grand enough pianos, the one-man showman began his one-man show just where a one-man show should properly begin. With the one-man showman who, at Carnegie Hall, was Eddie Cantor. He, plus his invisible fellow showmen during four decades of American good showmanship.

Now, in his new role of looker-backer, Mr. Cantor remains a showman first, last and always. Yesterday's self-styled "personal cavalcade of songs and anecdotes" was no casual concoction of ballads and wheezes assembled carelessly for the assembler's own amazement. Instead, it was a carefully prepared, rehearsed and projected evening's entertainment.

* * *

Glad to Be There

People, from Florenz Ziegfeld through Winston Churchill to FDR, were coming to his mind. He told about them, concisely. Songs, from "If You Knew Susie" to "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody" and back and forth again, were being talked about. Then sung. Shows, from "The Midnight Revue" through the better "Ziegfeld 'Follies'" to "Whoopee," were vividly relighted.

As a matter of report, Eddie Cantor has improved as a showman. It was, indeed, a lesson in perfect showmanship to sit in Carnegie Hall and watch Mr. Cantor hold it and its contents by the magic of his craftsmanship. All evening he had the members of his congregation where we wanted them to be. They, in turn, wanted happily to be there. Me too . . .

"My Forty Years in Show Business," all by, all with and all about Eddie Cantor, turned out to be one of the very best shows of the 1949-1950 season.

CANTOR LOOKS BACK AT 40 STAGE YEARS

One-Man Show by Comedian At Carnegie Hall Serves as Review of His Career

By LEWIS FUNKE

Up at Carnegie Hall—several blocks north of the stages on which he scored his great successes—Eddie Cantor presented his program labeled, "My Forty Years in Show Business," last night under the auspices of the One World Award Committee.

For almost two hours, without a break, the little fellow with the rolling eyes and bouncing legs held a capacity audience in a pleasant, nostalgic glow as he presented a cavalcade of anecdotes, personal experiences and, best of all, the songs with which his name has become inextricably involved.

The program, as designed by Mr. Cantor and presented on tour, is geared to entertain those who remember him from his earliest days down to the present, as well as those who only know him by hearsay.

Yet, the evening is so shrewdly put together that even if you didn't see Mr. Cantor in "Kid Boots" or "Whoopee," his style of putting over a song is winning. There is the familiar legwork, the expressive leap into the air, the expressive hands and, over all, the deep warmth and sincerity which characterize his work.

In taking his audience through the years, Mr. Cantor pays tribute to the great stars, past and present, with whom he worked, Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Gus Edwards, Marilyn Miller, Al Jolson and the rest. He tells stories, laudatory and funny, about them, kids Jolson and Jessel, as he has been doing for some time, and, at intervals as he traces his progress, he breaks into one of the celebrated tunes such as "Mandy," "Margie" and "If You Knew Suzie." In fact, what it all amounts to is an outline for a book of memoirs should Mr. Cantor ever decide to do one.

At the conclusion of the program last night, Mr. Cantor received the One World Award Citation in recognition of his efforts in behalf of peace. Prof. James H. Sheldon of Boston University, chairman, introduced Mary Margaret McBride, who made the presentation. In addition, he received the La Guardia Citation from the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League for his humanitarian work. The latter was presented by the Honorable Herman Hoffman, chairman of the board of directors of the organization.

A portion of the receipts from the evening's entertainment was earmarked by the sponsors for the Eddie Cantor Camp Committee, which helps support the camp at Cold Spring, N.Y., where 2,000 underprivileged city children go each year.

New York Times

CURTAIN CUES

By Vernon Rice

Cantor Brings Glory to the Old Days

If there is a person who can make the good old days in show business live up to their reputation, it's Eddie Cantor. Eddie, filled with nostalgia and reminiscences, brought glory, dignity and sentimentality to the theatre of the past last night in his one-man show, "My 40 Years in Show Business," to a packed house at Carnegie Hall which carried over onto the stage. There was room up there for the little clown and his two pianists, George Tibboth and Arthur Siegel, who brought along their concert grands, but that was all. The rest of the space was taken by those who couldn't get into the auditorium.

There were other reasons for the former Ziegfeld star to play the shows besides the one to trace his history from Henry St. to his forthcoming career in television. First, Cantor was giving a benefit for his Surprise Lake Camp for children at Cold Springs, N. Y., and second, it offered him a chance to receive citations for his charitable deeds from the One World Award Committee and the Anti-Nazi League. Mary Margaret McBride, Prof. James H. Sheldon of Boston University and other notables were there to see that he got them with proper praise.

It was a night, however, dedicated to the business about which Irving Berlin wrote a song. Eddie used the number to open and close his performance and in between there paraded Jessel, Jolson, W. C. Fields, Will Rogers, Ziegfeld, Fannie Brice, Gus Edwards, Marilyn Miller, Bert Williams, the Marx Brothers, Sophie Tucker and all the great of the days we now call "the good old," as seen through Cantor's rolling and popping eyes.

Between stories he sang songs and you can bet there were such tunes as "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee," "Mandy," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "My Best Girl," "Ma, He's Makin' Eyes at Me," "Yes Sir That's My Baby," "Dinah," "Making Whoopie," "Ida," "Margie" and "If You Knew Susie."

You can bet that he did his funny little prancing steps, clapped his hands, rolled his eyes and had a wonderful time. The wonderful time was shared by the audience.

New York Post

Theatre Week In Review

By WARD MOREHOUSE

Cantor's Great Show

Now, on the credit side, Broadway's week gave us Eddie Cantor in his own one-man show, and a rather wonderful show it is. I might even be inclined to vote for it as the best play of the season.

Cantor, performing before a huge audience at Carnegie Hall, with the overflow customers almost surrounding him on the stage, went all the way back to the days of his youth at Catherine and Henry streets and came on through the years as he offered his very special bill, "Forty Years in Show Business." He brought forth laughter and applause, contented sighs and chuckles. He turned back the clock and sang the old songs and talked of the great moments and the great people of his theatrical career.

He pranced and he danced; he wiggled and squirmed; he jumped up and down, swung his arms, spread his fingers, rolled his eyes—and delighted a multitude. He paid his tributes to some of the theatre's stars of today and yesterday—to Al Jolson and George Jessel, to Irving Berlin and Ted Lewis, and to Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Marilyn Miller, Bert Williams, Gus Kahn and Walter Donaldson, George M. Cohan and the great Ziegfeld.

A Broadway Run?

Of Marilyn Miller he said: "She never danced; she just floated in." Of Bert Williams: "To stand in the wings and watch him was to go to a dramatic school." Of Al Jolson: "Unquestionably, the most God-given voice."

Eddie Cantor's show is expertly organized; he is in command all the way. I wish he would bring it into a Broadway playhouse for a limited engagement. He would sell out.

World Telegram and Sun.

WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Clips from Film Row

NEW YORK

Jerome Baker, manager RKO Coliseum, N. Y., and Goodwin Sable, manager Keith's in Dayton, copped the February RKO Showmanship Awards. Both were handed certificate plus $25.

Columbia Pictures will hold its annual sales convention in two sections this year with Abe Montague presiding at both meetings. First conclave is slated for Drake hotel, Chicago, May 1-4. Second is scheduled for Atlantic City, May 15-18.

Century circuit opens its newest theatre, the Shore, Huntington, L. I., April 8. New house is a 1,500-seater.

Emanuel Youngerman named to handle all Eagle Lion's domestic sales of overseas product. Youngerman, who replaces Fred Stein, previously served with EL in company's Pittsburgh and Buffalo exchanges.

Philip Miles has resigned from the staff of the Sam Goldwyn flackery in New York to join the new Lynn Farnol publicity outfit. Miles worked for Farnol when latter headed Goldwyn publicity-advertising. Paul Perez, former tradepaper writer and Eagle Lion exploiteer, is replacing Miles in handling road assignments for Goldwyn.

PITTSBURGH

Jerry Marks is Eagle Lion's new city salesman; replaces John Zomnir, upped to manager of the exchange.

Mark Sanders succeeded L. Hayes Garbarino as manager of Bradford Playhouse, Inc., operators of Dipson's Bradford, Pa., theatre. Garbarino resigned to join his father in running the Firestone store in Clarion, Pa.

Arthur E. Frosio, former city manager for Fabian theatres at Pompton Lakes, N. J., succeeded Ward B. Kreag as city manager for the chain in Altoona, Pa. Kreag transferred to circuit's city post at Allentown, Pa., supervising the Colonial, Rialto and State. Allentown spot vacated recently by death of Charles Bierbauer.

Louis Lutz named general manager of Penn and Victor theatres in New Castle, Pa., and James G. Bell, his predecessor, stays on with new operating corporation as assistant to Lutz.

David Fineman, who managed McKee theatre for five years, resigned; house now being operated by its owner, Mrs. Archie Fineman. Fineman continues in exhibition at nearby Rankin.

MINNEAPOLIS

Minnesota state supreme court has under advisement arguments in appeal taken by owners of Albert Lea, Minn., theatres from lower court decision holding their theatre bank nights a lottery and illegal. Counsel for the amusement company contended bank night wasn't a lottery because winners didn't have to buy ticket or be present to qualify for cash prizes.

St. Paul East Side Youth conducting a drive to bring better children's films to that area's theatres.

Agenda for North Central Allied's annual convention set forward here to May 3-4, includes discussion of film buying, forced percentage, Legion of Decency, tax fight and other legislative problems and television.

Bert Langley, manager of Park theatre, Duluth, Minn., awarded $1,050 verdict against two policemen for false arrest on charge of operating theatre without license. License application was pending and city had cashed check covering it. Ray Lumsden, theatre's owner, had been acquitted of same charge and charges against Langley had been dropped.

CHICAGO

Jack Kirsch reelected to three-year term as president of Allied Theatres of Illinois.

Jack Maluk took over operation of Park Manor theatre from Jack Stern.

Bill Hollander, Balaban & Katz publicity chief, vacationing in Palm Springs with Harriet Stone in charge of the office.

Harris Silverberg, National Screen Service manager here, hospitalized after heart attack last week.

Essaness circuit last week surrendered operation of 400 theatre, north side house here. While still retaining lease on theatre, chain licensed Johnny and Aaron Jones, operators of McVickers and other houses here, to run it.

INDIANAPOLIS

Ted Mendelssohn, Universal manager here, resigning to devote full time to drive-in interests at Terre Haute, New Castle and Princeton. Also will set up buying and booking service for drive-ins.

O. F. Sullivan, Wichita, Kans., will speak at first meeting of Indiana drive-in operators April 5 at Indianapolis Athletic Club. Session is sponsored by recently activated drive-in committee of Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana.

About 250 exhibitors from Indiana-Kentucky area attended 20th-Fox showmanship meeting under chairmanship Tommy McCleaster, Indianapolis branch manager, at Antlers hotel. Marc Wolf was moderator.

John Cook, Crawfordsville, sold Ritz there to Bert D. Rayburn, his former partner.

H. J. Ochs, Cleveland, took over operation of Wayne Auto Theatre, Fort Wayne, from Horace E. Schock.

Party of 35 friends will celebrate Carl Niesse's 35 years in show business March 31. Niesse is owner of Vogue.

Max Page, formerly of Greenfield, now managing Hollywood theatre here.

KANSAS CITY

Heads of National Theatres divisions and publicity chiefs met at Fox Midwest offices here last Monday and Tuesday (27-28) to work out details of annual drive beginning Easter week and also on a plan of following up the interest generated by 20th-Fox in its showmanship meetings.

Turn-out of nearly 300 exhibs for the 10th-Fox showmanship meeting at Continental hotel last Wednesday (22), judged biggest gathering of industry folks here in about 30 years.

"Broken Arrow" set by 20th-Fox for a saturation campaign in this area for three weeks.

ST. LOUIS

Bill Slater won an "Oscar" for "Francis" from St. Louis University Theatre Society as part of bally for this film.

Carter Smalley took over management of Ritz, Van Buren, Mo., formerly operated by Walter T. Ballinger.

The Sikeston, Mo., drive-in sold its alfresco house near Skieston, Mo., to O. W. McCutcheon Circuit, Blytheville, Ark.

Commonwealth Theatres, Inc., Kansas City plans drive-ins for Fulton and Clinton, Mo.

B. J. McCarthy, formerly with Republic, replaced M. J. Steinberg on Eagle Lion sales staff. Latter resigned to manage the Ritz, Alton, Ill., in which he bought an interest.

Dave Kramer, formerly with Warners, succeeded Jack Hynes on RKO sales staff. Hynes resigned to join an ad agency.

William Williams, Union, Mo., exhibitor convalescing after appendectomy operation here.

DALLAS

Shamrock hotel, Houston, will be the site for four-day national convention of the Theatre Owners of America starting Oct. 30. R. J. O'Donnell, of Interstate Theatres Circuit, named general convention chairman.

Mark Sheridan, Jr., promoted to manager of local 20th-Fox exchange, coming here from New Orleans; replaces Phil Longdon who has requested a new assignment due to illness. Bille Bryant named manager in New Orleans.

TORONTO

Joseph H. McPherson becomes Toronto branch manager of Eagle Lion Films of Canada, Ltd., April 1. Formerly branch manager in Winnipeg, McPherson succeeds Harold Kay, who resigned because of long illness. McPherson was with RKO before joining Eagle Lion. Phil Geller takes over McPherson's old post.

City council here unanimously voted to ban all marquees and overhanging illuminated signs along southerly four-mile stretch of Yonge St., Toronto's main stem. All must be removed by Dec. 31. Understood the Motion Picture Theatres Assn., with 111 member owners or operators involved, will not retreat from their fight, not only from standpoint that such signs direct attention to their theatres but also that existing marquees and standards represent a big investment.

PHILADELPHIA

William Goldman's Karlton Theatre will shut down in May. Structure will be torn down and house will be rebuilt as a modern deluxer.

A. Laurence Mackay, manager of mid-town Arcadia, resigned, effective April 8. Mackay, who started with Stanley-Warner chain in Germantown, has been managing the house since present ownership took over in November, 1929.

Warner Theatre, Atlantic City, will play stageshows again this season. "Brigadoon" has been booked in, starting June 18.

Al Davis and Harry Penneys head Salvation Army's appeal for the exhibs this year. John Turner, UA branch manager, will head trade participation among distribs.

WASHINGTON

The Plaza, latest addition to town's growing art circuit, set for April preem with "Salt to the Devil," the J. Arthur Rank film, starring Sam Wanamaker. Theatre owner Sam Roth hosted press luncheon in honor of Wanamaker currently here in legiter, "Goodbye, My Fancy." The 250-seater will be first downtown house in Roth chain.

OMAHA

More than 200 exhibitors from Nebraska, Iowa and some spots in South Dakota responded to 20th-Fox rally clinic on pictures last week. Exhibitors at Blackstone hotel with Branch Manager Joe Scott presiding. Bob Livingstone of Lincoln, Neb., director of Theatre Owners Assn., tried to allay fears on sliding business and television.

COLUMBUS

Walter Kessler, manager of Loew's Ohio, back after six months' absence caused by auto accident in Arkansas in which he and his wife were seriously injured. Carl Rogers, who was manager during Kessler's absence, returns to his post as Loew's Broad manager.

LOUISVILLE

Louisville Theatre Owners Assn. adopted resolutions calling for repeal of state's 10% admission tax on amusements. Group also urged that Gov. Earle C. Clements appoint a commission to revise the tax program. Action followed speech by Guthrie F. Crowe, head of Kentucky Assn. of Theatre owners.

TOLEDO

Theatre Leasehold Corp., former leaseholder of land where 3,400-seat Paramount stands, and Carl H. Selwyn Theatres, Bowling Green, O., which operated the house since 1948, merged into new Schwyn Theatre Leasehold Corp. Jack Armstrong continues as general manager of Schwyn theatre interests, which also operate the State here and several smaller houses and a drive-in in northwestern Ohio.

OUTDOOR REFRESHMENT CONCESSIONAIRES
FROM COAST TO COAST OVER 1/4 CENTURY
NOW SPECIALIZING IN REFRESHMENT SERVICE FOR DRIVE-IN THEATRES
SPORTSERVICE Corp. JACOBS BROS.
703 MAIN ST. BUFFALO, N. Y. WA. 2506

New York Theatres

JOHN GARFIELD MICHELINE PRELLE
in Ernest Hemingway's
"UNDER MY SKIN".
A 20th Century-Fox Picture
On Stage—THE CHINA DOLL REVUE
ROXY 7th Ave. & 50th St.

ALAN LADD
"CAPTAIN CAREY U.S.A."
co-starring WANDA HENDRIX
a MITCHELL LEISEN Production
A Paramount Picture
IN PERSON MEL TORME ELLA FITZGERALD SAM DONAHUE and His Orchestra JOHNNY MORGAN
PARAMOUNT
Midnight Feature Nightly

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center
"THE DAUGHTER OF ROSIE O'GRADY"
starring June Haver - Gordon MacRae
Color by TECHNICOLOR
A Warner Bros. Picture
Plus
The Music Hall's Great Easter Stage Show

Picture Grosses

Seattle

(Continued from page 8)

Strong $6,500 after big $8,300 last week.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,650; 59-84) — "Davy Crockett," (UA) and "Federal Agent" (Rep). Big $10,000. Last week, "Nancy To Rio" (M-G) (2d wk), oke $6,800.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; 59-84)—"Eiffel Tower" (RKO). Fairly good $4,500. Last week, "Guilty Bystander" (FC) blah $1,600 in 6 days.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; 59-84) — "Malaya" (M-G). (2d wk). Okay $6,500 after big $11,700 last stanza.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; 59-84)—"Francis" (U) and "Molly X" (U). (3d wk). Still socko $10,000 after $11,300 last week.

Palomar (Sterling) (1,350; 50-$1) — "Big Wheel" (UA) plus stage show headed by Elton Britt. Good $7,000. Last week, "Dear Wife" (Par) and stage bill topped by Louis Armstrong orch, terrific $13,300.

Paramount (Evergreen) (3,039; 59-84)—"Outlaw" (RKO) (2d wk). Still great $11,000 after $17,000 last week.

'12 O'Clock' Soaring To Wow $20,000 in Mpls.; 'Francis' Terrif $16,500

Minneapolis, March 28.

Current boxoffice best seller is "12 O'Clock High, big at Radio City. But "Francis" looms nearly as smash at RKO-Orpheum. "Hasty Heart" also is doing surprisingly well at the State.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Par) (1,600; 50-70) — "Whirlpool" (20th). Fair $5,000. Last week, "Guilty of Treason' (EL), $4,500.

Lyceum (Nederlander) (1,900; $1.20)—"Henry V" (U) (3d run). Third time for this picture here and again at roadshow prices; but this time no reserved seats. Opened Monday night for six nights only, having to make room for Mae West in legiter "Diamond Lil" next Sunday. Okay $5,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 50-70) — "Dakota Lil" (20th). Moderate $4,500. Last week, "Montana" (WB) (2d wk), $4,000.

Radio City (Par) (4,000; 50-70)—"12 O'Clock High" (20th). Soaring to huge $20,000. Last week, "Free for All" (U) and Horace Heidt show onstage (50-85), good $26,500, but under estimate.

RKO-Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 50-70)—"Francis" (U). Terrific at $16,500. Last week, "Man With Horn" (WB), good $12,500.

RKO-Pan (RKO) (1,600; 50-70)—"Man With Horn" (WB) (m.o.). Good $7,500. Last week, "Outside Wall" (U), fair $7,000.

State (Par) (2,300; 50-70) — "Hasty Heart" (WB). Mild $9,000. Last week, "Capt. China" (Par), $8,500.

World (Mann) (400; 50-85) — "Tight Little Island" (U) (2d wk) Helped by crix' praises and word-of-mouth. Fancy $3,500 after big $4,000 first week. Goes third round.

'Horn' Average $18,500, Denver; 'Hand' Light 10G

Denver, March 28.

Boxoffice is generally slow at first-runs this stanza. "Young Man With Horn" will take in the most coin but only average in four spots. "Black Hand" looks light at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Wolfberg) (1,500; 35-74)—"Ambush" (M-G) (2d wk). Nice $7,500. Last week, $12,000.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,750; 35-70) —"Dear Wife" (Par) (2d wk). Fair $9,000. Last week, big $14,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,525; 35-74) — "Man With Horn" (WB), day-date with Tabor, Esquire, Webber. Fairish $13,000. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) and "Unmasked" (Rep), $15,000.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 35-74) — "Man With Horn" (WB), also Denver, Tabor, Webber. Fair $2,000. Last week, "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th) and "Unmasked" (Rep), $3,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,200; 35-74)—"Black Hand" (M-G) and "Daring Caballero" (UA). Light $10,000. Last week, "Malaya" (M-G) and "Man of Evil" (UA) (2d wk), $8,000.

Paramount (Fox) (2,200; 35-74)—"Backfire" (WB) and "Blue Grass Kentucky" (Mono). Mild $7,000. Last week, "South Sea Sinner" (U) and "Rugged O'Riordans" (U), fair $7,000.

Tabor (Fox) (1,967; 35-74) — "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tarnished" (Rep), also Denver, Esquire, Webber. Fair $2,000. Last week, "Flying Saucer" (FC) and "Pirates Capri" (FC), good $5,000.

Vogue (Wolfberg) (600; 60-74)—"Stone Flower" (Indie) and "Palace Scandal" (Indie). Modest $2,000. Last week, "Major Barbara" (Indie), $2,500.

Webber (Fox) (750; 35-74) — "Man With Horn" (WB) and "Tarnished" (Rep), also Denver, Esquire, Tabor. Mild $1,500. Last week, "South Sea Sinner" (U) and "Rugged O'Riordans" (U), good $2,500.

8 Pennsy Ozoners Seek Better Pix or Earlier Dates of All Distribs

Philadelphia.

Mel Fox, indie chain operator acting as booker and buyer for eight drive-ins in this area, has sent letters to all exchanges here asking for day-and-date runs with indoor houses in the area or the privilege of bidding on product.

Fox has an interest in four of the eight ozoners, although he holds a controlling interest in none of them. All the outdoor theatres, however, are members of the recently formed National Assn. of Drive-In Theatres. Fox's attorney, Harry Kalish, is also counsel for the association.

The action was taken by Fox to clear muddled booking, buying and clearance situation for the ozoners. Court action is planned if distribs fail to come through on the written demands, Kalish said. Attorney has suit ready for filing in District Court for the Starlight theatre, Gloucester, N. J., drive-in, which is seeking damages from the majors and the Varbalow Circuit in Jersey.

Starlight wants second-runs, and has already been given them by Metro. Park-In Theatres, which operates the Gloucester ozoner, is seeking damages for its two years of operation, claiming the distribs refused to sell them product until after the Varbalow chain had turned the pics down.

Another of the ozoners, the Delsea Drive-in in Bridgeton, N. J., is asking for first-runs and has already gotten them from RKO and Metro, according to Kalish.

Ill. Drive-Ins Organize

Chicago.

New association of drive-in theatres is being formed in Chicago area for purpose of "promoting good-will and creating new patrons." This unit, the Illinois Metropolitan Drive-in Theatre Assn., is headed by Louis F. Jelinek, owner of Skyhi Drive-in, Elmhurst, Ill. Organization will operate chiefly as a promotion unit.

Allied-TOA

Continued from page 7

America has already instructed its regionals to direct organizational efforts towards owners of the open-air flickeries. Gael Sullivan, TOA exec director, currently trekking through the country to drum up memberships, is pitching particularly for the big unorganized drive-in field.

Straddlers

Both Allied and TOA have a number of members that own both conventional houses and drive-ins. Philly outfit, for its part, is using as a hook the current battle being waged by ozoners for better runs against standard houses. Org is banding together all drive-in ops who are now in the courts with demands that they have the right to bid for first-run product.

Philly group, initiated last September, now has some 100 members in 22 states. Membership fee is set at $50 yearly for each drive-in operated by an exhib. Harry Kalish, Philly lawyer, is acting as counsel for the outfit.

Aside from its current battle for a better break on clearance and run, drive-in unit contends that ops must organize to take on a number of other problems including zoning regulations and insurance rates. Fire insurance, for instance, is more than double the rate of standard houses, it is said. High tab on insurance has been set because the companies have had no experience on drive-ins, a relatively late development in exhibition.

NBC'S WANT AD: 'CREATIVE V.P.'

Four-Network Biz Boxscore

FEBRUARY

(Estimated Gross Time Sales)

	1950	1949
CBS	$5,597,240	$5,314,300	+5.3
NBC	5,210,600	5,279,800	—1.4
ABC	3,169,100	3,845,600	—17.8
Mutual	1,407,200	1,670,250	—16.5

CBS' 5.3% Feb. Billings Leadership; ABC's 17.8 Nosedive; MBS 16.5 Under

CBS continued to hold its lead over the other webs on the year's gross time sales based on January-February billings returns. Web, for the second consecutive month, registered a plus (5.3%) compared with billings for February in 1949, while the other three networks wound up with minus figures.

"Startling" aspects of the two-months billings figures are the ABC and Mutual scorecards, with the former down 17.8 for February compared with the same month in '49, with Mutual nosediving 16.5 on comparative figures for the month. (Last week's revelation that the Mutual network was carrying a "for sale" shingle with a $1,200,000 price tag, has brought in its wake a new report that the web actually can be had for the amount to which MBS is on the hook to the stockholders—$500,000).

For the month of January, Mutual was down 10.5, while ABC was 13.0 under the previous January.

Sterling Drug To Close Up 'Album'?

Sterling Drug looks set to drop the NBC Sunday night "Album of Familiar Music" program at the end of the season. Show has been one of radio's hardy perennials.

Axing of the longtime musical would tie in with the current Sterling radio reshuffle, the drug company only last week negotiating with ABC for a five-times-a-week pickup of "My True Story," representing $900,000 in gross billings. Sterling also sponsors the cross-the-board "Bride and Groom" on ABC, but whether the latter show would come under reconsideration hasn't been determined.

Dancer, Fitzgerald & Sample is the agency.

Emerson Drops 'Sanctum,' Buys 'H'wood Playhouse'

Emerson Drug, via BBD&O agency, is dropping Hi Brown's "Inner Sanctum" package, but is retaining the Monday night 8-8:30 CBS segment.

Emerson, instead, is buying an MCA package, "Hollywood Star Playhouse effective April 17." Although "Playhouse" will have a Coast origination, Norman Brokenshire will stay as announcer, being cut in from N. Y. for the commercial spiels. "Sanctum" was sponsored by Emerson for the past four years.

Vanda, Pryor Now V.P.'s

Philadelphia, March 28.

Donald W. Thornburgh, prexy of the WCAU stations, was named to the board of directors at the latter's annual meeting here Monday (27). Charles Vanda, director of television, was upped to TV veepee, and Robert N. Pryor, promotion-publicity director, also won veepee stripes.

Thornburgh took over presidency of the Evening Bulletin station last August, after serving as veepee of CBS's western division. Vanda, who was exec producer for the CBS Coast operation, came to WCAU in September, and became TV director in January. Pryor has been in the public relations post since 1944.

Beau Campeau

Detroit, March 28.

J. E. (Ted) Campeau, president of CKLW, has been named one of Canada's 10 best-dressed men.

He was described as an "immaculate exponent" of good grooming in the radio world.

Coast Preem For Hooper's 'Rating While You Wait'

Hollywood, March 28.

C. E. Hooper has approached local AM-TV stations with plans for a new type program rating survey which he plans to test here before entering other markets. Understood he will keep present call service in operation.

New service consists of mechanical unit inserted in television, radio receivers, connected to telephone service. Hooper staff merely dials telephone number, promptly gets channel to which teleset or frequency to which radio set is tuned. One call will register as many as five radio or video sets in one home. Hooper plans to insert 400 units in local homes with phone calls to be made every 15 minutes. It's planned to rotate homes periodically to get true rating service.

Hooper says new method will permit any station to know on following morning the rating of any program. Regular phone call service will be published once in two months, but the new survey will be published monthly. Rates will be counted during the first two weeks of month, published end of the same month. Hooper has been testing in Philadelphia for some time, keeping it a closely cloaked secret. No price range has yet been set up. He hasn't revealed cost of installing units in 400 telephone homes.

Pitch Up Dorothy Shay As Coca-Cola's Summer Refresher Vice Bergen

Although the summer hiatus situation won't clarify itself at least for another month or so, Coca-Cola has already served notice on CBS that it's going to hold on to the 8 to 8:30 Sunday night time during the 13-week period that Edgar Bergen vacations.

Summer replacement show hasn't been set, but Music Corp. of America in the meantime is pitching up a Dorothy Shay package to D'Arcy, agency on the Coke account.

Coca-Cola stayed out of radio last summer, cancelling its Spike Jones show (picking up Bergen in the fall). Miss Shay, incidentally, was featured on last season's Jones musical program.

SEEMAN EXITS 'TUNE-O'

Seeman Bros. is dropping "Tune-o" on WMCA, N. Y., effective Friday (31).

Quizzer is aired in 100 other markets, backed by a variety of sponsors.

MC CRAY TO COAST IN PROGRAM SHIFT

Within two weeks after setting up a "paper reorganization" of its programming department, NBC has decided to start all over again. Tom McCray, who has been directing the AM program operations without benefit of veepee echelons since Ken Dyke exited about a year ago, is being switched to the Coast. Meanwhile, the network is on the prowl for a creative programming operator who will be brought in with title of v.p.

Although McCray ostensibly is transferring to the Coast to fill a gap on AM program operations, immediate conjecture was whether the shift was the prelude to the exiting of Sid Strotz, with McCray moving into web's No. 1 Hollywood spot.

Timetable on the shift of McCray to the Coast hinges on how soon NBC succeeds in finding a successor. The web has already started to "audition" for the key program spot, top qualification apparently being someone within show biz-agency-network circles with a creative flair who can vest the depleted NBC program roster with elements of freshness and commercial savvy.

While McCray's administrative knowhow has long been recognized by the web echelon, the fact that he's stepping out of the pivotal program spot in N. Y. doesn't come as a particular surprise to NBC colleagues.

In reappraising the NBC vs. CBS scorecard, it's generally conceded even within NBC circles that the network has failed to date in counter-maneuvering the Columbia program ascendancy (in the wake of the inheritance of Jack Benny, Amos 'n' Andy, Edgar Bergen, Red Skelton, Bing Crosby, Groucho Marx, et al.). While the program-sales department liaison has been clicking in terms of half-hour program sales, chief squawk is directed at the fact that NBC is still minus that "creative touch."

NBC president Joseph H. McConnell and board chairman Niles Trammell have just returned to N. Y. from a quickie looksee at the Coast operations—presumably setting the groundwork for the McCray move-in. McCray, too, is Coast-bound, but strictly on a pleasure jaunt. He returns, in charge of national programing, until a successor is found.

Meanwhile, Hal Bock, manager of NBC's tele station KNBH in Hollywood since it took to the air, has resigned and will be succeeded by Tom McFadden, manager of NBC's radio and television station in N.Y.

Bock resigned when Strotz indicated to him that such a move was in the making. Bock recently switched to tele from NBC publicity, which he headed. Recently he suffered a light heart attack. It's understood he may remain with the network in another capacity.

NBC May Be Left Holding Sustaining Bag in Looming Sunday Night Shifts

The "iffy" structure of Sunday night on NBC as it pertains to the upcoming '50-'51 season is causing no little anxiety among the web's upper-strata execs. In contrast to the present impressive lineup of the Rexall, Wildroot, U.S. Steel, Sterling, and Eversharp commercial auspices that blankets 7:30 to 10:30 with incoming coin, there's a strong likelihood that, on the basis of cancellation prospects, NBC may be left holding the Sabbath sustaining bag.

Rexall is dropping the 7:30 Phil Harris-Alice Faye show, and while Harris has negotiated a contract with NBC whereby he captures the time period, the network has yet to wrap up a new client for him.

Major Sunday casualty looming is "Theatre Guild on the Air," with U.S. Steel's five-year contract terminating at end of the season. It's considered unlikely that Steel will negotiate a new "Guild" pickup, even though it should decide to remain in radio, which is also conjectural at this point. Cancellation would throw open the 8:30 to 9:30 Sunday night segments. "Album of Familiar Music," which follows "Theatre Guild," may be axed by Sterling Drug, according to present plans. And continuance of the 10 o'clock Eversharp show, "Take It or Leave It," is dependent on a successor to Eddie Cantor.

Elsewhere along the line, NBC has felt the brunt of some cancellations, notably the brace of daytime shows exited by Sealtest and Kraft; Anacin's relinquishing of "Hollywood Theatre," Mars' dropping of "Curtain Time" and Camel's serving notice that it is giving up "Screen Guild Players," plus the time period.

As Allen Sees It

Fred Allen has it all figured out. He sees a bigger-than-ever future for radio.

With educators already complaining that 15% of the educational impact is lost on the kids because of TV viewing, Allen estimates that the situation will get increasingly worse; in fact, portending a whole new generation of morons.

It's obvious then, says Allen, that radio will bounce back, with everybody flocking to quiz shows.

Belding Prexy Of F-C-B Vice Foote; Smoke Out Lucky?

One of the major agency realignments of the year took place this week when Don Belding, Coast head and partner of Foote, Cone & Belding, stepped into the presidency of the agency, following announcement that Emerson Foote has taken a year's leave of absence. (Latter is presently in Bermuda). General trade consensus, however, is that the Foote leave is the prelude to his permanent exit, with Belding, a strong man on the Coast with valuable contacts in the east, taking over the New York operation. Foote, Belding and Fairfax Cone, head of the Chicago operation, are equal partners in the agency and it's considered likely that the latter two will buy out Foote's interest.

Immediate conjecture was whether the agency, sans Foote, would be in a position to jockey the American Tobacco (Lucky Strike) billings back into the FC&B fold. Since the agency lost the $10,-

(Continued on page 48)

OFFICE SHIFT ENDS CBS PROGRAM 'COMMUTING'

CBS last weekend went through the throes of an office as well as administrative integration to close the gap on a four-floor AM-TV "commuting" job.

The web's creative program setup, for years established on the 18th floor at 485 Madison ave., N.Y. (veepee Hubbell Robinson, Robert Heller, Irving Mansfield, Lester Gottlieb, Gerald Maulsby, etc.), has moved down to the 14th floor with the TV program boys.

Network's Operations Dept. takes over the 18th floor.

'Round No. 2' On Tap for CBS?

There's an air of anticipation around CBS over a hush-hush maneuver or succession of moves reportedly on tap for next season. Already it's being referred to as "Round No. 2" in Bill Paley's spectacular bid for radio supremacy ("Round No. 1," of course, resolving itself into last season's acquisition of Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Groucho Marx, Red Skelton, Edgar Bergen, et al.).

Speculation centers principally on the possibility of another wholesale shift of programming CBS-ward, now that the network has clinched sponsor acceptance and has moved into the No. 1 billings spot on the basis of January-February figures this year.

This speculation embraces reported overtures initiated by Columbia to win over the U. S. Steel business from NBC, plus a "come on in" invitation to Wildroot to return "Sam Spade" to CBS. Both "Spade" and U. S. Steel's "Theatre Guild on the Air" are current NBC Sunday attractions. Outcome of the romancing of Steel will hinge on whether the company returns to radio in the fall. (It's a cinch, too, of course, that NBC will be in there pitching to retain the billings.)

Factor in CBS' favor is the reported change in attitude existing between Ben Duffy, prexy of BBD&O, agency on the Steel and Wildroot accounts, and Paley. Whereas a year ago the trade was cognizant of a rift between the agency boss and the web's board chairman (with Duffy throwing in his lot with NBC during crucial program switches), a more friendly relationship now pervades the atmosphere.

'Consequences' Bearish, If True

Hollywood, March 28.

Prospect of Ralph Edwards winding up the season with loss of sponsors on both his NBC shows, "Truth or Consequences" (Procter & Gamble) and "This Is Your Life" (Philip Morris), was seen here as adding to the casualty confusion attending the '49-'50 radio season.

"T or C" has been one of the longtime Saturday night stalwarts on NBC, but P & G, it's known, is questioning the wisdom of continuing with the show, on the premise that it has outlived its audience impact. (Show celebrates its 10th anni on April 1.)

Edwards' other airer, also carried on NBC, is a more recent entrant, but Philip Morris is reported somewhat apprehensive over the show's rating pull.

Meanwhile, "T or C" has been kine-auditioned for TV.

DAMM FOLDING HIS BRACE OF FM OUTLETS

Milwaukee, March 28.

WTMJ-FM, first FM station to go on the air west of the Alleghenies, and sister station, WSAU-FM, Wausau, both owned and operated by the Milwaukee Journal Co., will be permanently shut down April 2, Walter J. Damm, veepee and general manager of radio, announced Monday (27). Lack of FM audience in the area was given as the reason for the shut down.

WTMJ-FM went on the air as W9XAO in February, 1940, and the Wausau outlet was added in 1948. The Journal company did not sell time on either station. "Since it derives no financial revenue from either station the only justification for underwriting the cost of continued FM service would be a body of listeners far larger than the very limited one which our research has shown to be in existence at the present time and which shows no signs of material growth," Damm said.

U.S. Senate 'Barrage' for Richards Is Cue That L.A. Hearings Have Hurt

Washington, March 28.

Are the FCC hearings in Los Angeles hurting G. A. Richards, owner of KMPC and two other 50 kw stations—WJR, Detroit, and WGAR, Cleveland?

Evidently, they must be. For the heat is being turned on the Commission from a powerful forum—the U. S. Senate. Two Senators have already gone to bat in behalf of the Michigan broadcaster (now a Californian). They've indicated the matter has been brought to their attention. It won't be surprising if others of Richards' political alignment join in.

Having failed in his efforts to prevent the hearings (even ex-Sen. Burton Wheeler, who was employed as counsel for that purpose, couldn't do the trick) Richards is now trying to make a cause celebre of the FCC investigation. While his counsel was still trying to ward off the hearing, the case was being fought on legal issues involving FCC's authority on various questions. Due process, the Bill of Rights and other constitutional guarantees were brought up as arguments.

But now the pitch is different. Suddenly, it's become an Administration plot against a Republican. Sen. Styles Bridges (R, N.H.), asked for a Congressional investigation last Friday (24) to look into possible political motivations of the FCC. Bridges said he had been told that Richards is a former New Dealer whose views were never questioned until he broke with the Democrats in 1940. "It would be outrageously un-American," he added, "if any radio station were denied an extension of its license merely because the management of that station did not subscribe to the political opinions of the present administration."

Cagey on Issues

Senators going off on the Richards tack are being careful to hedge their remarks on the subject, involving as it does anti-Semitism and other issues packed with political dynamite. Bridges took pains to say that he was not accusing FCC Chairman Wayne Coy or any other Commissioners of using their authority for political ends. He conceded it would be "a serious charge" if Richards were found to have distorted news. However, he

(Continued on page 48)

Diana Bourbon Retires To the Quiet Life After 16 Yrs. With Wheelock

Hollywood, March 28.

Diana Bourbon, whose name has been synonymous with the Ward Wheelock agency for most of radio's adult years, will take one last look at the teletype in early summer and turn over the office keys to Carroll Carroll. She is retiring after 16 years as Wheelock's radio director and closing out an active career that started 31 years ago.

It was little known to the trade that Miss Bourbon was a stage actress before she turned to newspaper work and for a time headed up the feature end of the N. Y. Times Paris bureau. During the last war she was stationed in England with psychological warfare (propaganda) division.

Hollywood best remembers her as Bill Bacher's right hand on the old "Hollywood Hotel" broadcasts for Campbell Soup. She could write a book about that experience and probably will in the luxurious leisure of her Pasadena residence. As her valedictory to radio, she said: "I've worked and I've saved, now I'm going to live and enjoy it." After 16 years in radio she hasn't an ulcer to show for it, so some of the agency boys may question her success.

Art Bailey, veepee of the Wheelock agency, came in from Philly but ostensibly to see Bob Crosby take off again on "Club 15." While here he may interview candidates for the job or may not even go out of the office for a successor. Carroll Carroll has been script supervisor for the shop's two strips ("Club 15," "Double Or Nothing") and has a thorough knowledge of radio and the Wheelock approach. There's also Ace Ochs on deck, another highly competent journeymen.

N.Y. RACETRACKS IN RADIO, TV TIME BUYS

Racetracks in the New York City area are showing greater interest in radio and teevee, with the result that Gotham stations are benefiting from their intensive short-term campaigns. Jamaica track, which opens April 1, started its monthlong drive this week with time signals on WINS, WMCA, WMGM and WFAS and 20-second animated cartoons on all video outlets in the area (except WNBT, which had no cream adjacencies available). Ed Friendly, Al Paul Lefton AM-TV director, is handling the account.

Friendly is also working on the new Yonkers raceway (formerly Empire City) and Belmont. Yonkers, which opens April 24 with trotting events on 61 evenings in three meetings, will use a one-minute jingle on 15 stations in Greater N. Y. Belmont will use morning participations on the four network keys and station break slides on WPIX to plug its season, which starts May 5.

Also using radio heavily will be the Roosevelt raceway, which begins its trotting events at the end of May and competes with Yonkers directly for two weeks in August. Roosevelt, which places its business through BBD&O, has used spots extensively for the past few years and built up attendance through its broadcast advertising.

New Spotlite On Richards' Polit. Slant at L.A. Meet

Washington, March 28.

Keep hearings examiner J. Fred Johnson on the probe of the Richards stations until all evidence is presented, FCC was requested today (Tues.) by its general counsel, Benedict Cottone. Johnson had said last week he planned adjourning hearings on Friday (31) because of other proceedings requiring his presence.

Cottone told the FCC that there is urgent need for hearings to go on without interruption and a decision reached. He added that the commission is under severe limitations with respect to finances and that postponement would involve great expense.

Hollywood, March 28.

New facts of G. A. Richards' political views came to light as the FCC hearings on application for renewal of KMPC's license entered its third week. Chief witness, Chester G. Renier, program director at the station for more than two years, told of some 15 to 20 staff meetings held during that period. Lasting four or five hours, the meetings were devoted to Richards' long anti-Democratic, anti-Administration lectures, with Renier, station manager Robert Reynolds, sales manager Herb Wix-

(Continued on page 49)

HARRY SALTER
MUSICAL DIRECTOR
Stop the Music—ABC

Competish Can't Rule Out Any New Station, Sez FCC

Washington, March 28.

Even if one radio station drives another out of business, that is no reason why a second outlet should not be allowed to establish itself in a community, the FCC ruled yesterday (27) in denying a petition to set aside a construction permit for a one kw. daytimer in Cullman, Ala. Station WKUL, a 250-watt fulltime outlet in Cullman, had claimed the new station would not serve the public interest, for the reason that there are insufficient advertising revenues available in Cullman to support both operations.

In rejecting WKUL's claim, the Commission said the public interest "strongly favors competition in the broadcast industry. The whole scheme of regulation . . . is based upon the proposition that the Governmental policies appropriate to the areas of free competition rather than those applicable in the public utility and common carrier fields will achieve the most satis-

(Continued on page 48)

Godfrey Vs. Garroway In CBS Vs. NBC Battle For Morning Listeners

Chicago, March 28.

A major duel for morning Nielson ratings is taking shape between CBS' Arthur Godfrey and NBC's Dave Garroway. After nibbling at Godfrey's a. m. spread with a 15-minute network show cross-the-board Monday through Friday, Garroway gets an additional 30 minutes on web across-the-board against the CBS star, starting April 3. New series will have 9:30-10 a. m. time slot.

Sustainer will have same title, "Next Dave Garroway," and will use same format and talent as current show aired from 10:15-10:30 a. m. Talent includes Connie Russell and Jack Haskell, Art Van Damme Quintet and pianist Caesar Giovannini. Show, directed by Parker Gibbs, will be broadcast before a studio audience.

RADIO BINGO BANNED IN CANADA ON PAY ANGLE

Toronto, March 28.

Effective May 1, all radio bingo games, lotteries and giveaway programs are banned in Canada when a contestant pays to participate in the program, it was ruled yesterday (27) by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., which holds regulatory restriction powers over all independent stations in this country.

Decision follows a series of meetings with the CBC in which church groups branded bingo as a breeding spot for gambling, with civic authorities and chapters of international service clubs countering that such proceeds went to local hospital and other community welfare projects. Claim of the CBC Board of Governors was that such broadcasting of games is "not a proper use of public air channels."

The ban will not apply where cash or other prizes are awarded to contestants who send in box tops where this is a qualification in answering quizzes or identifying a song title.

Cuban Overload Of Stations Still Snarled; U.S. Quits

Washington, March 28.

After seven weeks of unsuccessful negotiations to work out differences between the U.S. and Cuba in formulating a new North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement (NARBA), the American delegation returned yesterday (27) from Havana. A full conference of the signatory countries is to be reconvened probably about Aug. 1 in the U.S., the location to be determined later. It is expected that Mexico, which sent an observer to earlier sessions in Montreal, will appear officially at the U.S. meetings. The neighbor country has indicated an intention to participate in drawing up a new agreement.

Return of the U.S. delegation from Havana, headed by FCC Commissioner Rosel Hyde, it was learned, followed a conclusion that nothing could be gained by further negotiation. The U.S. position respecting allocation of channels—clears, regionals and locals, it was felt, was made as clear as possible. What happens when the conference reconvenes will depend on the attitude of the participants.

Difficulty in reaching an agreement in Havana, it developed, followed publication of unfounded reports of "secret" conferences among the U.S. delegates. All conferences were public, it was learned, but the reports "did not conduce to the effectiveness of the U.S. effort to reach an agreement."

Meanwhile, in view of the pending conference in the U.S., all the signatories, except Cuba, are re-

(Continued on page 48)

AM-TV Fight for Daytime Audiences Sharpens; Both Cite Upped Billings

The fight between radio and video for daytime audiences is sharpening, at the same time that both media are reporting advances in before-dark billings.

In New York City, C. E. Hooper reports, TV's share of the 12 noon-6 p.m. audience was 23.4% in January-February, '50, compared with 9.6% for the same period in '49. Additionally, tele is likely to cut still further into radio's share not only by the growth in TV set circulation, but also by extension of the video day.

Next week, WJZ-TV will start airing 90 minutes earlier daily, at 12:30 p.m. instead of 2 p.m. The ABC outlet is launching a two-hour series with hillbilly Zeke Manners and has picked up "Mr. Magic" from WPIX. Daily News-owned indie, which owns the kid-talented show with Vinlaw, Inc., released it to ABC so it can networked.

WNBT in May will incept morning service. The fact that Kathi Norris, whom it lured from WABD, is getting an annual guarantee of $100,000, points up the big payoff of daytime video. Wilbur Stark-Jerry Layton outfit, which packages the Norris show, feels that daytime TV has a great pull because the housewife, home alone during those hours, is more responsive than evening audience, which may be distracted by family talk.

However, AM stations claim that the daytime picture is also improving for them. WOR, Mutual's N. Y. outlet key, states that it has waiting lists for its paricipating shows, such as John Gambling's "Musical Clock," "Breakfast With Dorothy and Dick," Martha Deane, Barbara Welles, etc. Sales veepee Pete Maddux say that many sponsors are not only moving into daytime radio, but trying to gain dominance. The result is the growth of a saturation theory, hitting home the sales message to regular listeners and gaining new customers through audience turnover. Products involved are chiefly foods and soaps, but drugs, appliances, beer and bread are also coming in strongly.

Networkwise, at least a half-dozen major spenders are mulling daytime radio for products purchased by the housewife. Cigaret firms have been upping daytime budgets, based on the fact that women make 65% of cigaret purchases and that the majority of femmes buy their smokes at grocers.

Bankrollers stressing daytime cite the Charles Luckman fracas at Lever. While Lever is relatively weak in daytime radio, Procter & Gamble has 3½ hours before dark every day. Not only are the soaps bought by women, it's pointed out, but shows are cheaper and rates less expensive.

Added reason for the trek to daytime AM is the desire to get a franchise on time against the time when teevee makes even greater inroads into nighttime radio's audience.

No Menace to Aircraft, Sez WOR in Bid For Higher Jersey Tower

Washington, March 28.

In a strong bid for sanction to go ahead with plans for higher towers at its transmitter site in Carteret, N. J., WOR of New York told the FCC last week there is "no substantial evidence" the project will menace air navigation, but that at most it would impose "an economic burden of uncertain degree" upon aircraft approaching Newark from the southwest.

Through its Washington counsel, Hogan & Hartson, the station asserted in a 44-page summation of findings on its application to construct a new directional antenna system requiring two 638-foot towers:

1. That the improvement will increase WOR's nighttime fading-free service by as much as 10,000 square miles and, population-wise, by anywhere from 1,344,000 to 4,500,000 persons.

2. That it will substantially reduce interference which the 50 kw KIRO in Seattle (also on 710 kc) now receives from WOR, permit-

(Continued on page 48)

If It Isn't Lux It's Benny, and Vice Versa

(New Nielsens—Week Feb. 12-18)

Current Rank	Previous Rank	Program	Current Rating Homes (000)	Current Rating Homes %	Points Change
1	1	Lux Radio Theatre (CBS)	10,881	27.7	+2.2
2	2	Jack Benny (CBS)	8,917	22.7	+0.8
3	3	Talent Scouts (CBS)	8,563	21.8	+0.6
4	8	My Friend Irma (CBS)	7,974	20.3	+2.3
5	14	Groucho Marx (CBS)	7,581	19.3	+2.5
6	5	Amos 'n' Andy (CBS)	7,463	19.0	0.0
7	4	Fibber & Molly (NBC)	7,424	18.9	—1.1
8	15	Dr. Christian (CBS)	7,071	18.0	+1.3
9	22	Bing Crosby (CBS)	7,071	18.0	+2.9
10	6	Walter Winchell (ABC)	7,031	17.9	—0.6
11	10	Mr. Chameleon (CBS)	6,913	17.6	+0.4
12	27	Crime Photographer (CBS)	6,678	17.0	+2.2
13	26	People Are Funny (NBC)	6,638	16.9	+2.1
14	7	Edgar Bergen (CBS)	6,599	16.8	—1.5
15	9	Mystery Theatre (CBS)	6,599	16.8	—0.7
16	24	Fanny Brice (NBC)	6,442	16.4	+1.5
17	18	Red Skelton (CBS)	6,442	16.4	+0.4
18	33	Dennis Day (NBC)	6,442	16.4	+2.3
19	20	Gene Autry (CBS)	6,442	16.4	+0.9
20	11	Bob Hope (NBC)	6,403	16.3	—0.8

BASEBALL SPONSORS CRY 'FOUL'

Sports Only Bright Spot in Italo Radio; U.S. Hits Oust Native Music

By TED HUDES

Rome, March 21.

Whereas the French government-owned and controlled radio is making an attempt to improve its level and is eagerly seeking for new ideas in broadcasting, the Italians seem to be perfectly happy with its old formula of presenting radio to its audience.

RAI (Radio Associada Italiana), is, on paper, at least, a privately-owned enterprise, but it is safe to assume that the government has a considerable hold on its operations. Giuseppe Spataro, president of RAI, was recently promoted to Postmaster General. The programming of RAI is poor and without imagination. Its commercials are monotonous plugging of products.

American hits are very popular and you hear them on all transmitters the day long. Very seldom do you near real Italian music. Bert Lind and I wanted to record some popular Italian tunes. In Rome, Florence, Siena, Genoa, Milan and Torino, we were wandering from one spot to another and the orchestras of mandolinieros and guitaristas were especially eager to play for us the most recent hits of Bing Crosby and Dinah Shore. This goes for the whole entertainment world in Italy, which takes its cue from New York.

The bright spot in Italian radio is the excellent sports reporting. The soccer games and the bicycle competitions have the only commentators on the air, to whom people listen in the squares and streets of any city on the peninsula.

The jobless hero of "Bicycle Thief," Lamberto Maggiorani, will appear in a new Italian soap-opera,

(Continued on page 48)

May 'Trial' Set For Giveaways

Washington, March 28.

Court arguments in New York on the legality of FCC's giveaway ban are likely to be held during the first week of May, VARIETY learned today. A target date for around May 1 is being discussed among the parties. Although, a definite day has not yet been pinned down, there's every indication the case will be heard at the beginning of the month.

A three-judge tribunal of the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York will hear the case. Whether the judges who sat (Simon Rifkind, Vincent Leibell and Charles Clark) when a stay order was granted last September will hear the arguments has not

(Continued on page 48)

NBC Loops on To Chi Staff in Revamp

Chicago, March 28.

The practically weekly communique on NBC staff changes came last week with the announcement by Irving Showerman, Chi NBC veepee, of a flurry of readjustments apparently designed to establish definite authority in a variety of departments. Latest moves are believed to be a followup to orders from New York to eliminate bugs in operations of NBC owned and operated affiliates.

John F. Whalley, controller, has been made responsible for accounting, financial, personnel, office services and labor relations. Leonard Anderson, who has been personnel manager, was named manager of integrated services, with responsibility for music, program traffic and continuity departments.

Howard C. Luttgens has been named engineer-in-charge of all radio and TV engineering. William Ray was put in charge of news, press and public affairs.

Uncle, Dear Uncle

Robert Hall Clothes store in Tulsa, Okla., received the following letter last month from a young boy in Jane, Mo.:

"I heard your announcement for your store over the radio this morning and was wondering if you could be the Robert Hall who is my uncle who I haven't heard from in so long and have wondered so often where he could be. . . . I would like to know if you are my uncle. Please write me."

Tulsa store forwarded the letter to the Sawdon agency, which handles the clothing chain's account.

Bristol-Myers Faces Poser In Wed. Nite Brace

With the Bing Crosby-Groucho Marx comedy parlay chalking up Wednesday night as the newest CBS conquest, it's now a question of what Bristol-Myers intends to do about its 60-minute brace of shows in the competing time segments on NBC.

The Marx comedy-quizzer is in the No. 5 spot in the new Nielsens just released, making it one of the most valuable properties in radio today. Crosby is not far behind, in ninth position. That's a far cry from the year-in-year-out Wednesday NBC supremacy, when Bristol-Myers' back-to-backing of Mr. District Attorney" and "Duffy's Tavern" stole the midweek show. With "Duffy's" now selling Blatz Beer, Bristol-Myers has "Break the Bank" doing the Wednesday duty, but the payoff isn't the same.

It's recalled that at last season's end, Bristol-Myers was considering a flock of maneuvers before finally renegotiating for the Wednesday NBC time. That somewhere along the 9 to 10 Wednesday line something and someone have got to give, is considered a certainty.

Sherman Ellis Fed Up With Retirement, Joins B&B on Plans Board

Sherman K. Ellis has come out of a two-year retirement to join Benton & Bowles as a veepee and member of the Plans Board. Oddly enough, it reunites two of the major entrants in the radio agency field of a quarter-century ago, when Ellis and A. W. Hobler, who is now chairman of the board of B & B, took over the New York operation of Erwin Wasey Co. back in 1925.

Ellis stepped out of his own agency two years ago when Chet LaRoche moved into the No. 1 spot of the LaRoche & Ellis agency. Ellis admits being fed up with retirement.

Royal Invades Cleve. As Toscy Advance Man

Cleveland, March 28.

Calling himself a "one-day public relations man" John Royal, NBC veepee came to town to ballyhoo the coming May 21 performance of Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony. During one-day stay in town (24), Royal made two speeches before mixed groups and a five-minute WTAM talk. Also revisited Euclid Avenue theatre row and RKO Palace which catapulted him to NBC power.

Toscanini show here will be in Music Hall and all indications point to a sellout of the almost 4,000 seater.

VIDEO PLUGS HURT RADIO POTENTIAL

The pre-baseball season in New York has been attended by what some clients contend are off-base tactics. The sponsors who have pacted for the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants radio broadcasts are reported miffed over the current pre-season "trailers," claiming that they're left dangling out in left field. Owners of the ball clubs involved, too, are understood to be unhappy over the treatment they've been getting.

The situation has to do with the spot commercials the stations are running on behalf of TV set manufacturers, with the inevitable clincher that there's no more rewarding summer than watching your favorite ball club on your favorite video set.

Thus in the case of WINS, which again has Ballantine and White Owl sewed up for the Yankee games, the station, via its spot TV set plugs, is practically telling listeners to stop listening to the games on radio; that nothing can match a TV ballgame.

Ball Owners Sore, Too

By the same token, the ball club owners resent the line taken by the TV commercials, which invite the listeners to stay away from the ball parks since the telecasts are nothing sort of super. The ball club managements point out that, basically, they've permitted the radio-TV pickups as a means of bolstering in-person park attendance, and they want to know "what gives?" on the spot commercials.

WMCA is carrying the Giants game, with Chesterfield picking up the tab. The "watch the game on TV" approach, it's pointed out, adds up to a cuffo invitation to switch allegiance to WPIX, which is telecasting the Giants games.

Similarly, the Dodgers games are being carried by WMGM, with Schaefer Beer and the Post Cereal Division of General Foods splitting the season tab. On the other hand, WOR is TVing the Dodgers games, and it's argued that the radio spot commercial TV come-on could only redound to WOR's benefit at the expense of potential Schaefer-Post Cereal buyers via the radio pickup.

BARRY GRAY SET FOR N.Y. JOCKEY RETURN

Miami Beach, March 28.

Barry Gray will return to New York next month after an absence of two years (except for a two-month stint in '49), when he opens at Chandler's restaurant, on N. Y.'s eastside. Station on which the former WOR all-night disk jockey will beam hasn't been set yet, but it will not be WOR.

Gray's Chandler stint is for 13 weeks with a guarantee of $1,000 weekly, with options on two additional 13-week cycles calling for upped guarantees. Contract was set by Miami agent Buddy Allen directly with Lou Rubin, owner of the steak house. Gray's attorneys, Jaffe & Jaffe, are handling negotiations with two stations.

Platter-spinner's return to Miami for next year is not set. It's possible Gray will remain in N. Y. Only Miami spot suitable is the Copa City, now in receivership. Gray closed at the Copa Sunday (26), and will air until April 16 from WMIE's studios.

Ruth Maier Exits Pepsi

Following in the wake of the Pepsi-Cola reorganization, with Al Steele moving into the presidency, first major administrative casualty has transpired, with Ruth Maier exiting as assistant veepee in charge of public relations.

Although Milton Biow is Pepsi's 15% commission house, the agency's publicity department has handled but little of the soft drink publicity, occasionally doing some blurbs for "Counterspy," the ABC show which Pepsi sponsors.

Radio Takes Up Its Newest Cry: 'What's Your Rate Schedule, Bub?'

WFIL's (Philadelphia) rate adjustment because of TV inroads is seen as only the beginning. That the time is approaching for careful reappraising of the basic rate structure of all radio is seen a certainty. In important agency-client circles, they are beginning to ask questions.

When, last week, John McLaughlin, Kraft Foods advertising manager, told the Chicago Radio Management Club that AM audience losses must soon be compensated by rate card readjustments, he was seen as echoing the sentiments of top spenders within the medium.

While the networks are expected to hold out at least for some time to come on the basis that mass radio circulation still prevails despite TV's upsurge, it's anticipated that the initial agency victories will be chalked up in terms of new discount structure, with relationship of time periods as another factor, rather than a blanket rate slash.

What WFIL has already done in Philadelphia is expected to be repeated in other cities where TV has hit the bigtime. But the holdouts will come from stations like WNEW in New York where, in fact, rates have gone up on the basis that audience increases.

Ripley in the New York market (major TV center of the world) are the Pulse ratings for March as they pertain to WNEW. For the 18-hour 6 a.m. to midnight stretch, the ratings, Monday through Saturday, have hit 3.3—an increase of 14% over March of last year. Similarly, the March, 1950, rating

(Continued on page 48)

Kaye's Kut-Ups

"Theatre Guild On the Air" director Homer Fickett did some fast masterminding to get BBD&O agency off the U. S. Steel commercial hook on last Sunday (26) night's "Milky Way" presentation, which starred Danny Kaye.

At the run-through and dress rehearsal, Kaye literally panicked 'em with his cut-ups while George Hicks was institutionalizing on behalf of U. S. Steel. It was apparent that, come air time and Kaye played the studio audience for laughs, those commercials would never get through the mike.

Fickett had "hidden" commercials, transcribed in advance, and played from backstage. Hicks' onstage commercials were only "plants" and, as expected, Kaye gagged it up plenty for the audience—but the home listeners got the uninterrupted disk version.

CBS Radio Guild Pickets Sponsors To Stir Up Web

Members of the Radio Guild, comprised of approximately 600 white-collarites at CBS, last week gave the go-ahead to members of the United Office Professional Workers of America to picket offices of sponsors of Columbia network programming.

As result, picket squads were set up last Thursday (16) in front of the N. Y. headquarters of Lipton Tea, General Foods and American Tobacco Co., with the pickets bearing placards asserting that they are "patronizing an anti-union company." UOPWA members, on behalf of Radio Guild, plans to rotate pickets in front of various clients' offices from week to week.

Radio Guild initiated the picketing on the claim that CBS is not bargaining in good faith. White-collarites state that, eight weeks after the election which voted in favor of the union as the bargaining agent, CBS is making contract offers even less desirable than before the election.

Union members also claim that CBS pressure to eliminate the Guild still continues.

WMOR in Chi Is Still Toffenetti's FM Dish As He Pours Back Coin

Chicago, March 28.

WMOR-FM, which has recently undergone management difficulties, got a new lease on life with return of financial support of Dario L. Toffenetti, Chi and N.Y. restaurant operator. Toffenetti moved back into picture as member of new board of directors named after resignation of old board Monday (27).

Returning with restaurant man is about 20% of station's revenue lost when he severed connections with FMer last month after a dispute over "liberal" policies. Prior to break, Toffenetti had been biggest client and his withdrawal had left station in weak financial position.

Donald Kiesau is new board prexy replacing Bernard Miller, who is also resigning general manager post. Steve Wood was named secretary-treasurer and Charles Stevenson and David Pivan are new veepees.

CBS Takes Moore, Mebbe 'Take It'

With Garry Moore signing a seven-year exclusive deal with CBS making him available to move in all directions, including AM and TV either from N. Y. or Hollywood, the network, as an offshoot of the maneuver, may find itself inheriting NBC's Eversharp "Take It Or Leave It" within coming months.

Eddie Cantor's serving of notice on his sponsor that he's exiting "Take It," preferring occasional TV shots next season, has set Milton Biow, agency on the Eversharp account, on an audition binge to wrap up a successor to Cantor for the emcee role. Biow reportedly would like to have Moore return to his onetime m.c. role on "Take It," but a deal with Moore would automatically commit Eversharp to a CBS sponsorship. "Take It" is now heard Sunday nights on NBC at 10.

With Cantor departing in June, "Take It" would require a substitute emcee for its summer run.

Moore, incidentally, is due in N. Y. from the Coast within 30 days to huddle with CBS program execs on his future plans.

ABC Moves to Keep Metop in Its Future

With the Metropolitan Opera having opened its contract to competitive bidding by all four webs, ABC (which has a pact with the opera through the fall) is trying to establish its hold on the Saturday afternoon longhair audience by launching a new recorded opera series this Saturday (1).

Filling part of the time which the Texas Co. vacated last week, ABC will air diskings of operas from 2-3:30 p.m., with Milton Cross serving as emcee and interviewing guests. Announcement was made by ABC vice chairman Mark Woods, who is also a director of the Met.

TV Color Interest Centers in RCA Single-Tube Unveiling in D.C. Today

Washington, March 28.

The most important development since the FCC began its color television hearings last September—the single tri-color picture tube—is to be demonstrated publicly for the first time here tomorrow (29). On the basis of advance reports, the new RCA 16-inch kinescope will do what its developers claim: simplify the construction of receivers and produce good color. Video circles are awaiting the press showing tomorrow with great anticipation. The tube is to be officially demonstrated before the Commission April 6.

Reports following a private showing of the tube last week before a few members of the Commission and key staffers were generally enthusiastic. The view was expressed that RCA had fulfilled its promises regarding the capabilities of the multi-color instrument. Color pictures shown on a direct view receiver using the tube were said to be at least as good as images previously shown on receivers using an optical system reflecting hues from three separate tubes.

RCA displayed both a "single gun" and "triple gun" tube, with the latter reportedly giving the better performance but requiring more additional equipment in the receiver than the former. Doubts were expressed as to the usefulness of the tube for converting present receivers to color.

FCC'ers who saw the demonstration, the first outside the RCA laboratories, included Commissioners Robert Jones, George Sterling and Edward Webster, and assistant general counsel Harry Plotkin, chief engineer Curtis Plummer, assistant chief engineer John Willoughby, technical information chief Edward Allen, laboratory division chief E. W. Chapin, and attorney Joseph Nelson.

What effect the tube will have on the outcome of the color proceedings is the subject of considerable speculation. There's no doubt the development puts a new complexion on the situation. It simplifies the "cumbersome and costly procedure" of the RCA system, permitting direct view sets and doing away with the impractical dichroic mirror arrangement. But even with the tube, RCA will still require 10 to 20 more receiver tubes than is required in its black and white sets.

Another problem which the tube does not solve is the inability of the RCA color to travel over existing coaxial cable facilities. A witness of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. testified it would take two years to modify the coaxial to carry RCA color throughout the TV network. This is considered a major issue in determination of the color question.

RCA has admitted the single tube will work in both the CBS and Color Television, Inc. systems. CBS has contended right along it could use the tube to replace its whirling color disk which limits the potential size of screen and requires a magnifying lens, limiting the viewing angle. Chairman Wayne Coy recently stated in an address at the U. of Oklahoma he was putting great hope in the tube as the solution for the color problem.

DuMont Mystery in Fast One-Week's Run in Pitt Due to Appeal of 'Mama'

Pittsburgh, March 28.

DuMont TV web's mystery show, "Hands of Murder," had a fast run on network's own station in Pittsburgh, WDTV—exactly one week. Program had been taken on for the 8 o'clock Friday evening slot to replace "Mama," and immediately gave Channel 3 here a quick and unmistakable headache.

WDTV was promptly flooded with letters from children and their parents protesting the dropping of "Mama," which has built up a tremendous video rating locally, and the writers were particularly incensed because a blood-and-thunder half-hour had been spotted instead. Folks of small fry pointed

(Continued on page 48)

Danny Dare to NBC-TV

Danny Dare, Hollywood and Broadway producer and dance director, has joined NBC television in N. Y. as a producer. What shows he will handle for the web has not yet been determined.

Most recently under contract to Paramount, Dare handled the dances for "Road to Rio," "Variety Girl" and "My Favorite Brunette" among others. He follows Edward Sutherland and Robert Montgomery, other top Hollywood personalities, into the NBC production fold.

Easter Parade's NBC-TV Sponsor

Sanson Hosiery Mills this week signed to sponsor NBC-TV's complete two-hour pickup of the Easter parade on N. Y.'s Fifth avenue Easter Sunday (April 9). Show will be fed to a 29-station interconnected network, with Ben Grauer and Maggi McNellis doing color interviews with the paraders. Sanson, making its video bow with the show, reportedly dropped plans for a full line of ads in Sunday newspaper supplements to move into TV.

With the parade as the focal point of its early Easter afternoon programming, NBC plans 11½ hours of solid shows that day. Web will tee off at 11 a. m. with a pickup of church services from Philadelphia, then carry the parade until 2. Special hour-long film turned out at the Jerry Fairbanks studio on the Coast and featuring a number of Hollywood stars, will hold down the 2 to 3 spot. NBC is still lining up plans for the 3 to 3:30 period.

"Tour of the Holy Land," another special film, will be aired from 3:30 to 4, with the regularly-scheduled "Today with Mrs. Roosevelt" going from 4 to 4:30. "Meet the Press" is in from 4:30 to 5, "Armed Forces Hour" follows that and then the Bob Hope-Frigidaire show takes over from 5:30 to 7. Web then picks up its regular network programming until the 10:45 p. m. closing.

TONI'S 'TWIN TIME' TALENT FIND TV SHOW

Toni, home permanent outfit which has been shopping for a television package since it optioned a half-hour almost a month ago on CBS, has finally decided on a vaudeo-talent search format titled "Toni Twin Time." Show will spotlight promising young performers, with Jack Lemmon as emcee and the Ray Bloch orch providing music backing. It tees off April 5 in the 9 to 9:30 p.m. slot, where it will alternate each week with "What's My Line," to be bankrolled by Stop-Ett deodorant.

With the Ed Wynn show, meanwhile, moving from its present Saturday night period to Tuesday nights at 9 to escape the competition of NBC's "Saturday Night Revue," CBS has decided to fill the Saturday slot with a TV version of its new radio panel show, "We Take Your Word." "Stagedoor," Carol Irwin package aired Tuesday nights, which was originally to have swapped places with Wynn, consequently was dropped after last night's (28) airing. CBS also confirmed this week reports that it is dropping the "Abe Burrows' Almanac."

Brewery's 1,000 Spots

Detroit, March 28.

WJBK-TV announced what it termed "one of the largest saturation schedules for television advertising in Detroit" as a result of the Altes Brewing Co. purchase of 1,000 spot announcements for 52 weeks.

Saturation schedule was made possible because of the station's extended programming—2 to 11:15 p.m. Additional advertisers taking advantage of the expanded air time include the Frankenmuth Brewing Co. and Hood Rubber Co.

CBS, NBC Tint Log

Washington, March 28.

Here's how CBS and NBC would feed out color television programs to their affiliates in the event their systems are given the green light by the FCC.

Within a few days of the decision, CBS would commence originations from New York. Within three months, it would be colorcasting at least 20 hours per week, of which three hours would be carried daily before 6 p. m., one-half hour daily between 6 p. m. and 8 p.m., and one-half hour following regular black and white schedules. Daytime programs would appeal primarily to women and children, and also serve for demonstration aids for dealers. Within two years, providing manufacturers produce sufficient color sets, Columbia would be on a 100% color broadcasting basis.

NBC, already colorcasting eight hours a week in Washington, would increase its schedule to 12 hours a week, with programs relayed to New York for audiences there. This schedule would be expanded to at least 18 hours a week within a year. NBC stations in Chicago and Cleveland would receive these programs via radio relay and rebroadcast them in color locally.

CBS programs would go over the entire network. NBC programs could move only into cities connected from Washington or New York by radio relays. The RCA color system cannot be transmitted over existing coaxial cable facilities.

Grunt & Groaners Now Big Package Biz for Crosley

Cincinnati, March 28.

Launching into film packaging of wrestling shows originated in the studio of WLW-D, Dayton, O., one of its three TV stations, Crosley Broadcasting Corp. already has optioned the initial 13-week series to more than 20 video operations across the country, Robert E. Dunville, president, announced this week.

Filming of Saturday night grunt-and-groan oprys, which are piped to Crosley's WLW-T here and WLW-C in Columbus, O., is shaved to 55 minutes and allows for integrated local commercials.

Among major TVers named by Dunville as carrying the canned programs are WEWS, Cleveland; WAFM-TV, Birmingham; KTTV, Los Angeles; WBKB, Chicago; WBZ-TV, Boston, and WWJ-TV, Detroit.

Each 13-week series provides a minimum of four women's wrestling matches, a feature of added interest in the few states which bar femme grapplers from participation in live shows.

Crosley's tussles bring together top names among the mugging muscle and tumbling fraternity, with bookings by Al Haft, vet wrestling impresario in these parts.

Graybar Electric Co. sponsor originating programs in WLW-D, the nation's first video station to set up a wrestling ring in its own studio, for Raytheon TV sets. Film Associates, Dayton commercial photographic concern, makes the movies. Don Faust of WLW-Television directs production, and sales are handled through Russ Landers of WLW Promotions, Inc., Cincy.

Milwaukee Clients Hop On Video Bandwagon

Milwaukee, March 28.

Increased acceptance of video by Milwaukee advertisers is reflected in the April schedule of Cramer-Krasselt ad agency clients. Wisconsin Plumbing and Heating Supply has bought the C-K package, "It's a Man's World," weekly half-hour sports show on WTMJ-TV. Schuster's department store steps up frequency of its 30-minute "Feminine Viewpoint," daytime strip on WTMJ-TV, to four times weekly.

Weinbrenner Shoe Co. is testing teevee with three one-minute films weekly on same station with possible expansion into other markets.

Mail Order House Interest in Tele Seen Hypo to Regional, Local Ad Biz

Chicago, March 28.

A mild flirtation which has all the possibilities of a full-fledged romance is shaping up between television and the major mail-order houses and their retail outlets. A check last week of houses headquartered here showed definite video interests. Sears, Roebuck, Aldens and Spiegels reported they have or are in the process of testing the medium and hinted at major entrance into TV by next fall. Montgomery Ward officials expressed the least enthusiasm of firms surveyed.

Entry into tele is seen as an important item for local stations because most of the mail order and retail ad campaigns are conducted on a regional or local basis. Neither Sears nor Ward, leaders in the field, maintain national advertising budgets. Their retail stores and regional mail order plants handle their own advertising. Because of this decentralization, only Aldens expressed any interest at this time in network programming.

Currently, Aldens is the only company using a tele show in the Chi area—"Square Dance Time," a half-hour stint on WENR-TV. Although nothing definite is planned as yet, response to this program is reportedly causing sponsor and agency to give thought to network use. After preem (4), 1,000 requests for free catalog offer hit the station the same night. Aldens, an early tele client, had a local show on WABD, N. Y., in 1944.

Sears Spot Campaign

The 22 Sears retail stores here are in the midst of a spot campaign, which is the first video venture for this group. The stores have ordered time for 260 spots on three stations, WENR-TV, WNBQ and WGN-TV. Twenty 20-second films were ordered last week to supplement the 15 60-second films used during February, according to Charles Zeller, handling the account for Guenther-Bradford agency. A similar campaign is being conducted by the Sears retail outlets in the Los Angeles area. The N. Y. market is currently being surveyed as to tele viewing habits by the Sears Philadelphia branch, with the possibility of a major TV campaign emerging.

Last fall, Spiegels used a 15-minute show on WGN-TV for 13 weeks, with the expressed purpose of testing the medium. Although it returned to radio with a $50,000 schedule of 80 spots concentrated within a week in major markets plugging its spring and summer catalog, the company is watching video closely and looms as a potent seasonal buyer.

Ward toppers reported practically no TV activity going on at present time among its 650 retail stores throughout the country. The individual managers pick their own media. The company has just completed a six-week AM spot campaign in six markets in support of its recently issued farm catalog.

Richard Arlen's TVer

Hollywood, March 28.

Richard Arlen has been signed to star in "Hollywood in Three Dimensions" by indie producers Mal Boyd and Robert Joseph, replacing Alan Mowbray. Show, aired over KTTV here, is sponsored by Admiral Radio.

Plans are being set for kinescoping the show on a nationwide basis during Boyd's visit here. He returns to N. Y. April 5, when he'll report on the Coast video situation to his partners, Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers.

NBC's Tues. Nite Showcase TVer

NBC television, with a half-hour of prime evening time opening up next week for the first time during the season, plans to use the period to showcase a series of new shows for audience and sponsor reaction.

Half-hour is the Tuesday night 9:30 to 10 slot. Period had been occupied by "Life of Riley," which the web dropped after last night's (26) show when Pabst Beer bowed out as sponsor. Armstrong Cork, meanwhile, has bought the time for a new series of half-hour dramatic shows but won't tee off until June 6. NBC, as a result, will have the time for two months and so decided to utilize it for showcase purposes as a lead-in to its summer programming activities.

Web plans to spotlight shows produced both by its own creative programming department and by indie packagers. Among these is a series titled "Mr. Omm" (for omniscient), comprising short, true-to-life vignettes with O. Henry-type endings. Another is "Come Out Fighting," a projected dramatic series starring Lee Tracy, which is being packaged by the Louis G. Cowan office. NBC also has a half-hour series based on Michael Arlen stories, which will emphasize adventure material. In addition, the web is packaging a series based on "First Person Singular," the one-acter produced by Fred Coe several years ago which introduced the subjective camera technique to TV.

GLEN ALLVINE INTO VIDEO PRODUCTION

Glen Allvine, former New York press chief for the Motion Picture Assn. of America and for the past three years in charge of film and video activities for the New York State Dept. of Commerce, is resigning from the latter post to go into TV filmmaking.

He has acquired dramatic rights to "The 22 Brothers," recently published by Simon & Schuster and May selection of the Unicorn Book Club. It will be produced as the first of a series for Star Television Corp., N. Y.

Allvine recently completed for the state a half-hour film, "H_2O-N.Y.", which he wrote and directed and Basil Rathbone narrated. It will have its video preem next month.

DuMont's 'Magic Cottage' Gets Brace of Sponsors

"Magic Cottage," DuMont cross-the-board show for moppets featuring Pat Meikle, picked up its first two sponsors this week. Peter Paul pacted to bankroll the last 15 minutes of the show Wednesdays on a five-station network through the Maxon agency, while the rest of the show through the week will be sponsored by Taylor-Reed on WABD, the web's N. Y. outlet.

Show is now in its 40th week. In addition to N. Y., it is carried in Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Dayton.

Detroit—Assistant Detroit Lions football coach George W. Wilson has joined the sports staff of WJBK and WJBK-TV. He will team with sportscasters Al Nagler and Joe Gentile in an expanded schedule of motor city sports.

That Ole Prying Video Eye Spoils Soft, Cosy Setup of Detroit Cops

Detroit, March 28.

Sports-minded Detroit policemen have become bitter critics of television, a former favorite off-feet diversion.

The change in attitude came about because Police Commissioner George F. Boos was gazing into his video set the other night watching a Detroit Red Wings hockey game. The camera swung from the action on the ice to pin point the penalty box. And right between a couple of rowdy hockey players sat a policeman in his pretty blue uniform.

Right away Boos issued a statement: "Sports outfits ought to hire their own police." Then he dug into records and found that in 1948, police spent 29,246 man-hours at Briggs Stadium—the equivalent of 15 officers each and every day in the year—policing baseball and football games. Other sports arenas took another 10 men.

Boos said that as a result of his TV peek, he would consider refusing sports promoters the services of city policemen.

TELE'S 'LET'S KEEP IT CLEAN'

Inviting a TV Code?

Hullabaloo resulting from the television broadcasters' attempts to clean up their programming has revived talk of an industry-wide code. Blueprints for two such "standards of program practice" have been in the works for some time but, with the varying opinions of broadcasters, agencies, sponsors, indie producers and others who must okay them before acceptance, it is believed they will not come into being for some time yet. Behind moves for a code, of course, is the industry's fear of outside censorship unless broadcasters do something on their own.

One such code was proposed three years ago by Television Broadcasters Assn. prexy J. R. Poppele. TBA has since done considerable work on the plan but decided last year that video programming is still in too much of an evolutionary state to tie down broadcasters with iron-bound rules at this time. Organization, as a result, mailed copies of the film industry's Production Code to all member stations last year, advising them to study it for possible guidance until a TV code could be established.

Second code, which includes a point-by-point system of regulations, was formulated last year by the Independent Television Producers Assn. in N. Y. That organization has since started negotiations with Television Producers Assn. of Hollywood for a possible merger into a nation-wide body. Any decision on the code, as a result, has been held up, with the probability now that it will be okayed by the groups on both coasts and then submitted to the networks for their approval.

Scheduled appearance of Joseph I. Breen, the film industry's production code administrator, at an American Television Society luncheon in N. Y. April 21, meanwhile, is expected to draw an SRO audience. Breen is expected to speak on how the film code might be adapted to video uses.

NBC 'Saturday Nite Revue' Now Being Peddled at 19G Half-Hour Segments

With NBC-TV still out on a limb in trying to sell its "Saturday Night Revue" on a 15-sponsor participating basis, the web is now trying to peddle the show in half-hour segments. Single bankroller would pick up each period for a total talent and production cost of $19,000.

NBC would still like to follow its original intention of bringing in the 15 bankrollers at a cost per each of $6,000. But, because of the FCC's rule restraining the web from ordering affiliate station time except in half-hour blocks and the slowness with which both agencies and potential clients are going for the participating deal, it is forced to switch its plans. Entire two and-a-half hour package has cost NBC something like $50,000 per week so far.

Admiral Radio reportedly already offered NBC $25,000 per week for the N. Y. portion, but was turned down. Traditionally small video audience during the dog days will make it even more difficult for the web to interest bankrollers in the show. In fact, to make possible the potential switch to a five-segment operation, NBC has reportedly established a 13-week ceiling on any sponsor who buys a participating spot now.

NBC Lost Sponsor

It has also been revealed that NBC has lost one interested participating sponsor because of the FCC restraining order, which was prompted by DuMont's original objections. Under the ruling, NBC must line up three sponsors at a time before it can convert a sus-

(Continued on page 42)

CBS-World Video Script Contest Among Colleges Rouses Authors League

Authors League's National Television Committee, which is currently formulating proposals and a trade practices code for negotiations later in 1950 with the several radio-television networks, is very much opposed to the current CBS-World Video "television script contest for university students." This is due to the title to all winning scripts being vested 100% with CBS—for one single $500 fee. Scripts must be originals, not adaptations, an added objection to the Committee (composed of delegates from the four writing Guilds—Screen, Drama, Radio, Authors).

CBS awards are open to minors who have to file a CBS release form signed by their parents or guardians. "The perpetuation in television of the one-sided company practices set up in radio must

(Continued on page 42)

Mebbe He's Prejudiced

With several Democratic Senators and party leaders upholding the Government's foreign policy Sunday (26) on NBC-TV's "Today with Mrs. Roosevelt," President Truman put in a request for a transcript of the show. NBC had no kinescope print available, so sent Mr. Truman a transcription of the sound track.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who moderates the NBC series, had a group of Republican Senators discussing the foreign policy on her show the preceding week. The President did not request a transcript of that one.

Hi-V's Heave-Ho To CBS Plans As Godfrey Ukes It

CBS television, which found itself in the position this week of selling time it wanted to keep open for a while longer, has written one of TV's first two-week preemption clauses in its contract with the sponsor.

Bankroller is the hi-V Corp., which ordered the 7:45 to 8 p. m. period Tuesdays and Thursdays starting next week (4) for a new series of shows featuring Arthur Godfrey giving ukulele lessons to viewers. Godfrey recently became a stockholder and board member in the frozen fruit juice outfit. Since he's responsible for $7,000,000 yearly in billing to the CBS coffers via his other radio and TV shows, CBS was almost forced to give up the time when hi-V placed the order.

Web was saving the two quarter-hours each week for its projected series of shows to emanate from

(Continued on page 44)

L.A.-to-N.Y. Shuttling Spree for Ted Mack

Ted Mack, who emcees the Old Gold "Original Amateur Hour" on radio (ABC) and video (NBC), does some N.Y.-to-L.A. shuttling during the next two weeks while a brace of Coast-originating radio shows are cut on behalf of Seattle and Los Angeles charities.

Tuesday night TV airer, however, requires Mack to put in a Gotham appearance, necessitating the brace of round-trips.

PERFORMERS GET NETWORK EDICTS

Television cheesecake appears to be going the way of all flesh. Worried at the mass reaction to Arthur Godfrey's recent off-color remarks on his CBS-TV show, the broadcasters are laying down the law to their producers, directors and talent, ordering them to clean it up and cover it up, or else.

Threats by CBS affiliates to cancel all subsequent Godfrey TV shows unless the web would guarantee that there would be no repetition of the blue lines apparently paid off. CBS execs declined to elaborate this week on what orders they gave Godfrey, but insisted that no affiliate has placed a cancellation order. Other networks, however, took their cue from CBS, moving in fast in an effort to avoid a similar situation, both because of possible affiliate reaction and a possible tide of public indignation. Tremendous amount of time being spent in front of their TV sets by moppets and teenagers, as reported in recent school surveys, has convinced broadcasters that their work is cut out for them, according to one web spokesman.

Illustrative of the general tightening up was NBC-TV's slap on the wrist to producers and directors, issued as a general staff warning to be careful of possible infractions of the better morals move. Initial result has been the elimination of those low-cut gowns formerly fea-

(Continued on page 42)

Kids Not Kidding

Oklahoma City, March 28.

At least one segment of Oklahoma youth doesn't take kindly to having adults decide what television programs they should watch.

Only recently P. A. Sugg, manager of WKY-TV, Oklahoma City, announced a policy against telecasting "horror story" programs until after 9 p. m., when it is presumed all small fry should be in bed.

The youngsters didn't take the decision lying down, however. The day after the story of the new policy appeared in a local newspaper, WKY-TV received a letter on which the news story had been pasted. Above it were the words, "We protest!" It was signed by 22 youngsters, all of them 11 and 12 years old.

BOLEN SHIFTS EAST IN B&B SHUFFLE

Hollywood, March 28.

Murray Bolen, radio-television producer, is being transferred to N. Y. by Benton and Bowles to head up agency's live television department. Under the company's expansion program, tele will be divided into two basic departments, with Herbert Leder managing telefilm operation. Changes are effective April 15.

Tom McDermott continues as radio director. All departments report to Walter Craig, veepee in charge of radio and television. Bolen, veteran radio producer, recently directed many television programs here. He's prexy of local Radio-Television Directors Guild.

Product Conflict Cues Hull's 'Cavalcade' Bowout

Warren Hull has bowed out as emcee of DuMont's "Cavalcade of Bands," after the broadcast yesterday (Tues.), because of a product conflict. "Bands" is produced by Drug Store Products for various drugstore items and Colgate is picking up the tab for "Strike It Rich," cross-the-board afternoon show on CBS, starting April 3.

MCA, which packages "Bands," has replaced Hull with Max Showalter, starting April 4. Hull also has his own show for Doubleday on CBS-TV and does four ringside interviews weekly on WPIX, N. Y.

Azcarraga Sees TV Sombrero Circuit Ready by Fall; 6-Station Latino Web

By BERT BRILLER

Television's sombrero circuit should be a reality by fall, according to Emilio Azcarraga, Mexico's leading broadcaster, who sails on the Queen Elizabeth today (Wed.) for a three-month auto tour of Europe.

By year's end, Azcarraga told VARIETY, Latin America should have six video stations—two in Brazil (Rio and Sao Paulo), one in Havana (backed by CMQ's Goar Mestre) and three in Mexico City (bankrolled by newspaper publisher Romulo O'Farril, inventor Gonzales Camarena, and Azcarraga). Because the Latino TV pioneers expect heavy losses they are planning a teevee network to exchange programs. They envisage, for example, trading their newsreels among each other and bartering their Latin-American film for U. S., Canadian and European newsreels. When the Interamerican Assn. of Broadcasters (which represents all the countries south of the border except Argentina) meets around September, tele will be one of the key issues.

"Any of us who go into TV now know we are practically committing suicide," Senor Azcarragas said. "But we have to take the step to keep up with the rest of the world and because our writers, performers and producers, as well as the public, want it. The only ones who will make money at first are the set distributors, but we'll have to prevail on them to support us by sponsoring programs. If the dealers sit on the sidelines TV's development will be slowed up."

A big problem Latinos face, according to the Mexican broadcaster, is getting a sympathetic attitude from U. S. manufacturers. Economically the set-makers won't turn to the Spanish-speaking market until the Norte-Americano market is saturated, he feels. Another difficulty is the Latinos' shortage of Yanqui dollars. Mexico is currently debating whether to set a ceiling of 20,000 or 40,000 sets to be imported across the Rio Grande each year. However, he expects the improved financial condition of Mexico will permit import of 60,000 receivers next year.

Programwise, Azcarraga expects

(Continued on page 46)

WOR-TV Adopts Curbs

Reaction of WOR-TV, N. Y., to demands for a cleanup campaign in video was its adoption Monday (27) of the principles of the Motion Picture Production Code for both live programs and vidpix. Announcing the move WOR prexy Theodore C. Streibert said, "Before long the industry should develop its own code incorporating principles peculiar to television. Through self-regulation the industry can anticipate public criticism, prevent excesses and promote an elevation of public tastes."

While the film industry's code includes detailed prohibitions on crime, sex, vulgarity, etc., some broadcasters point out that Hollywood has a Production Code Administration to handle application of policy of specific instances and borderline cases. Without such an administrative setup, it's felt, continuity acceptance departments of the stations and webs and directors on each show will have to continue carrying the ball.

Major Matinee Musical Entry On CBS Agenda

CBS is grooming what is perhaps the first major attempt to inject a nighttime programming element into daytime network video. The network last night (Tues.) auditioned a half-hour musical show headed up by Bert Parks as emcee. It is eventually intended for cross-the-board slotting in an after-lunchtime segment and designed as a "relaxing" showcase, but with all the component parts of a nighttime musical stanza.

In addition to Parks, the show will feature a quintet, with a girl vocalist and a choral group. Comedy will be accented, with a continuing round of guests.

Show has been packaged by Lou Cowan and is being offered for approximately $12,500 for the five-times-a-week spread. Already agency interest is hot, with two potential clients on tap.

Sherman Marks, who produced the recent "Inside USA With Chevrolet" series, is producing the daytime entrant.

Columbia Picks Up Half of 'Show' Tab

CBS's hour-long "Show Goes On" TV showcase (which also gets a following night AM pickup of the audio transcription), has snared a bankroller for the last 30 minutes (other half continues sustaining).

Bankroller is Columbia Records the CBS subsid, which picks up the 30-minute tab commencing April 6. Show, produced by Lester Gottlieb, is also accenting Columbia Record talent.

Rating payoff on the Friday AM version has cued lots of CBS gloating, since it's getting the same audience returns as NBC's competing commercial stanzas, "Halls of Ivy" and "We, the People."

GREENHUT'S TV SPOT

Johnny Greenhut has been placed in charge of guest bookings in television at Music Corp. of America. He'll be assisted by Helen Keane.

Greenhut came to MCA several years ago in the cafe dept. and was put into video a little more than a year ago.

TV Inviting Era Of 'Knot-Headed Celery Sticks?' Mpls. Queries

Minneapolis, March 28.

Minneapolis Sunday Tribune devoted the full front page of its society section and a half page more to examination of the effect of television on the younger generation.

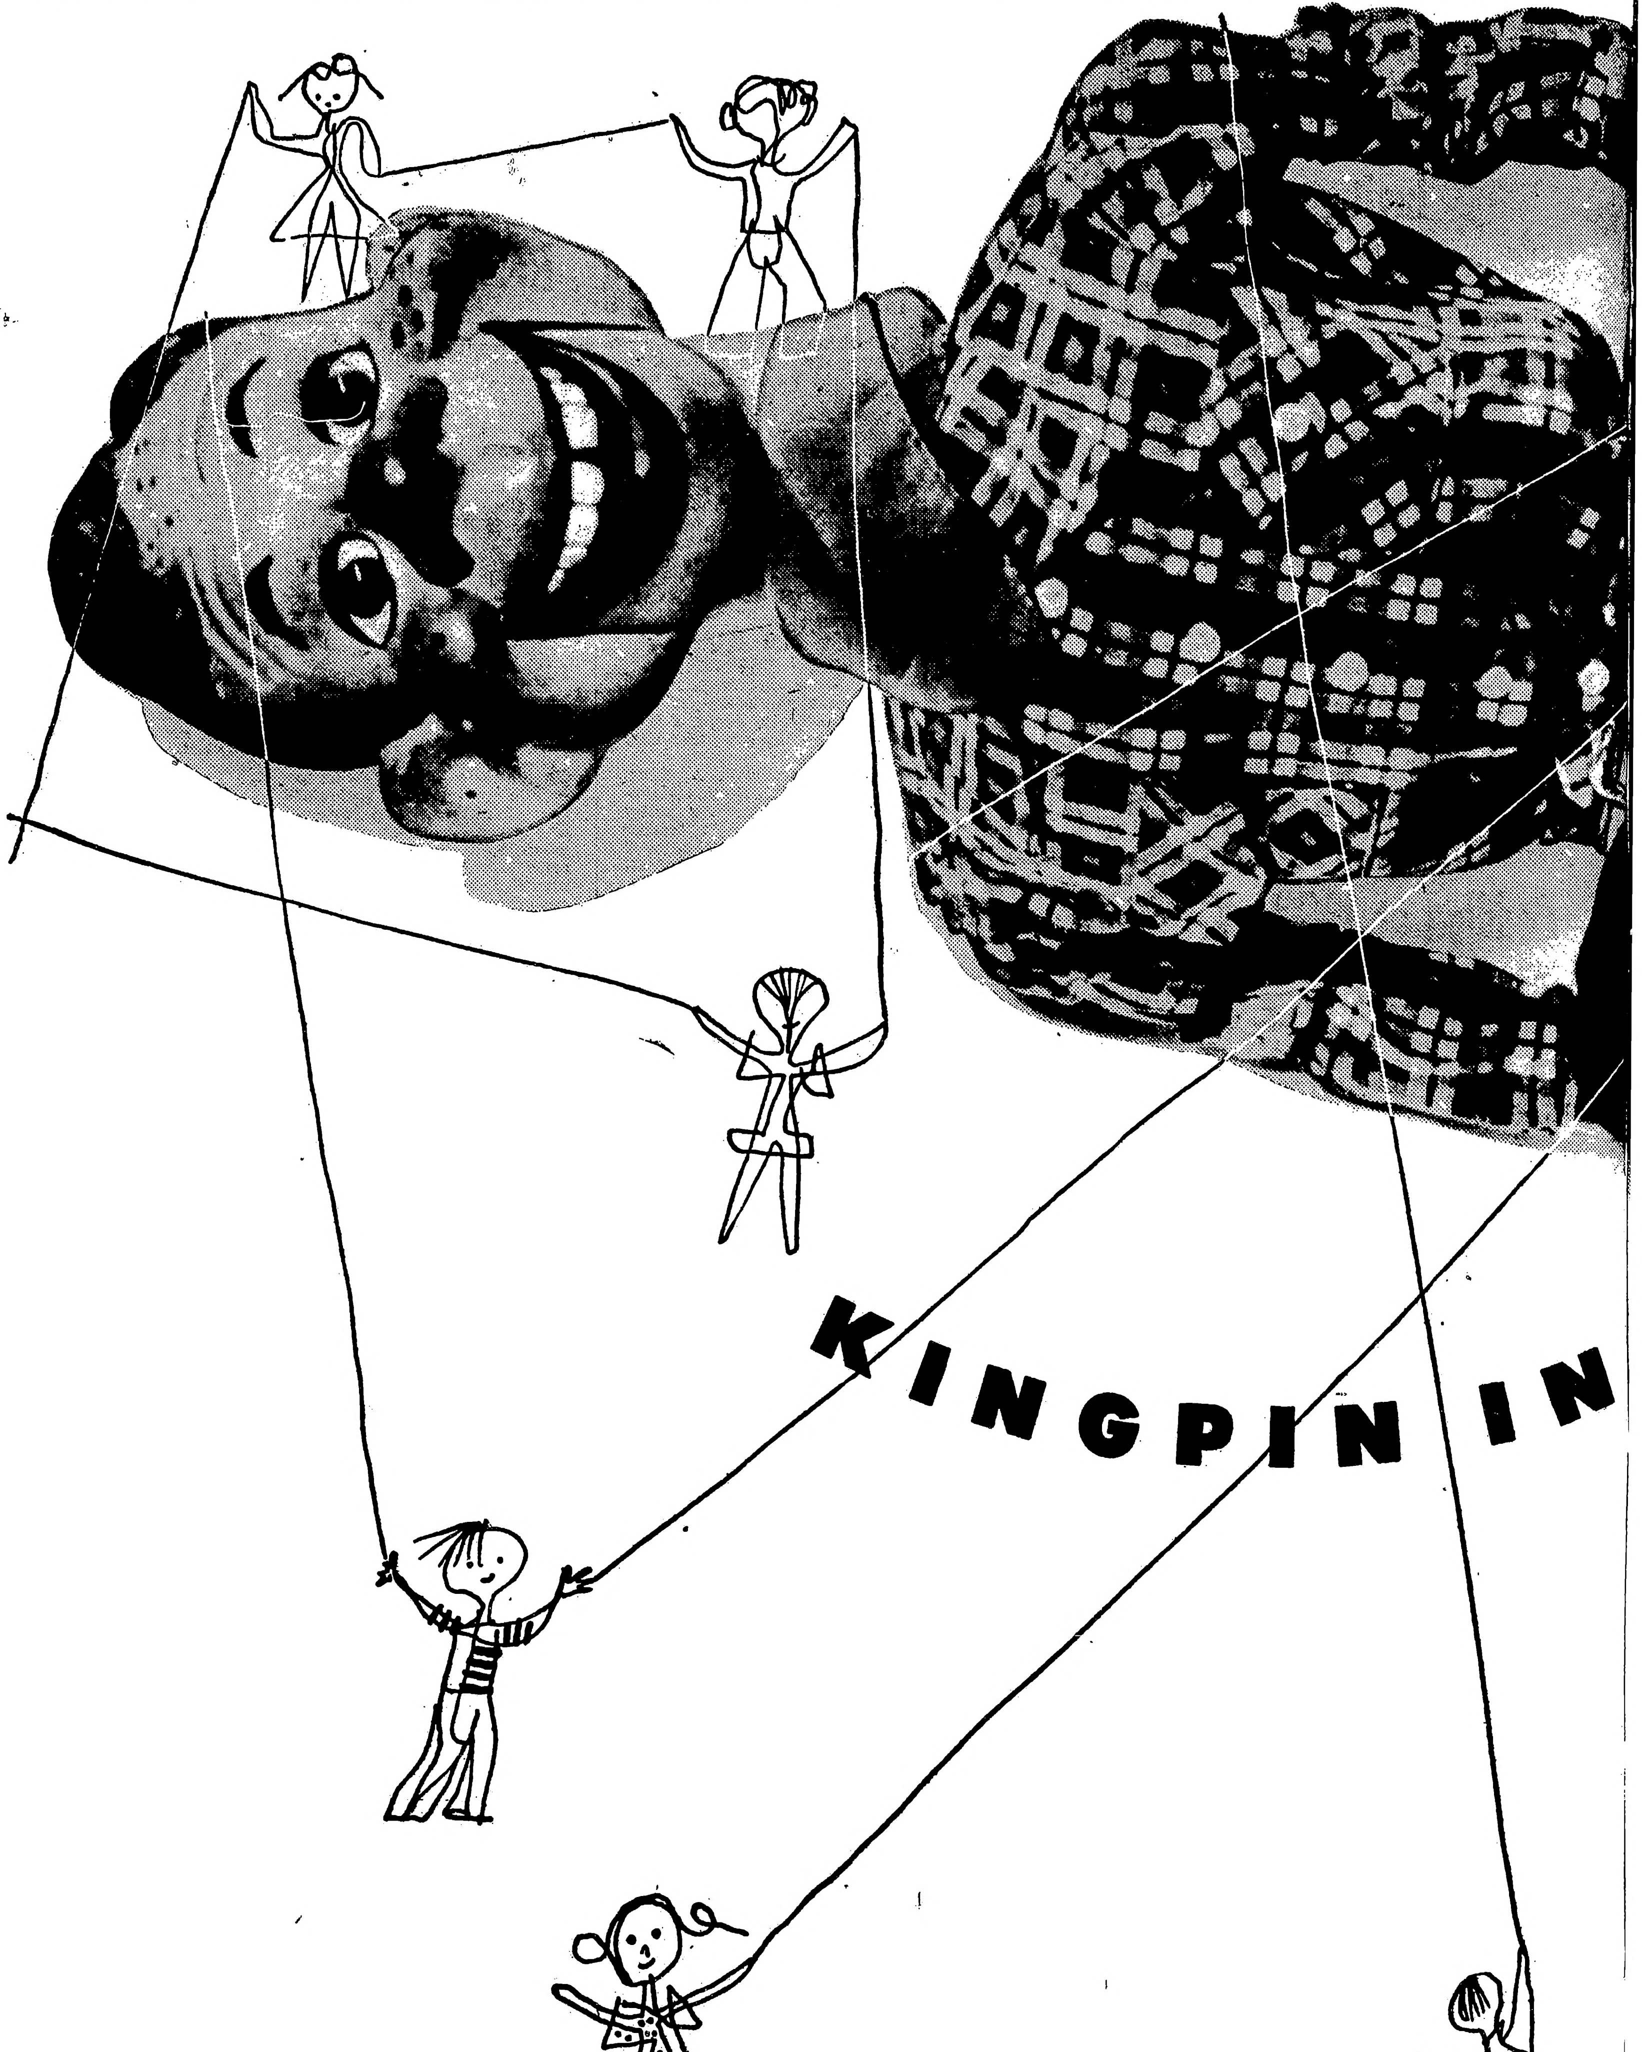
Copiously illustrated, the story quoted letters from mothers for or against. Keeping things under control, the paper printed 10 of each.

More significant, perhaps, were letters from sixth grade school kids. Of one class, 14 thought TV has had no bad effect, 22 thought it had, and the class voted 32 to 2 in favor of some type of television rationing for younger set.

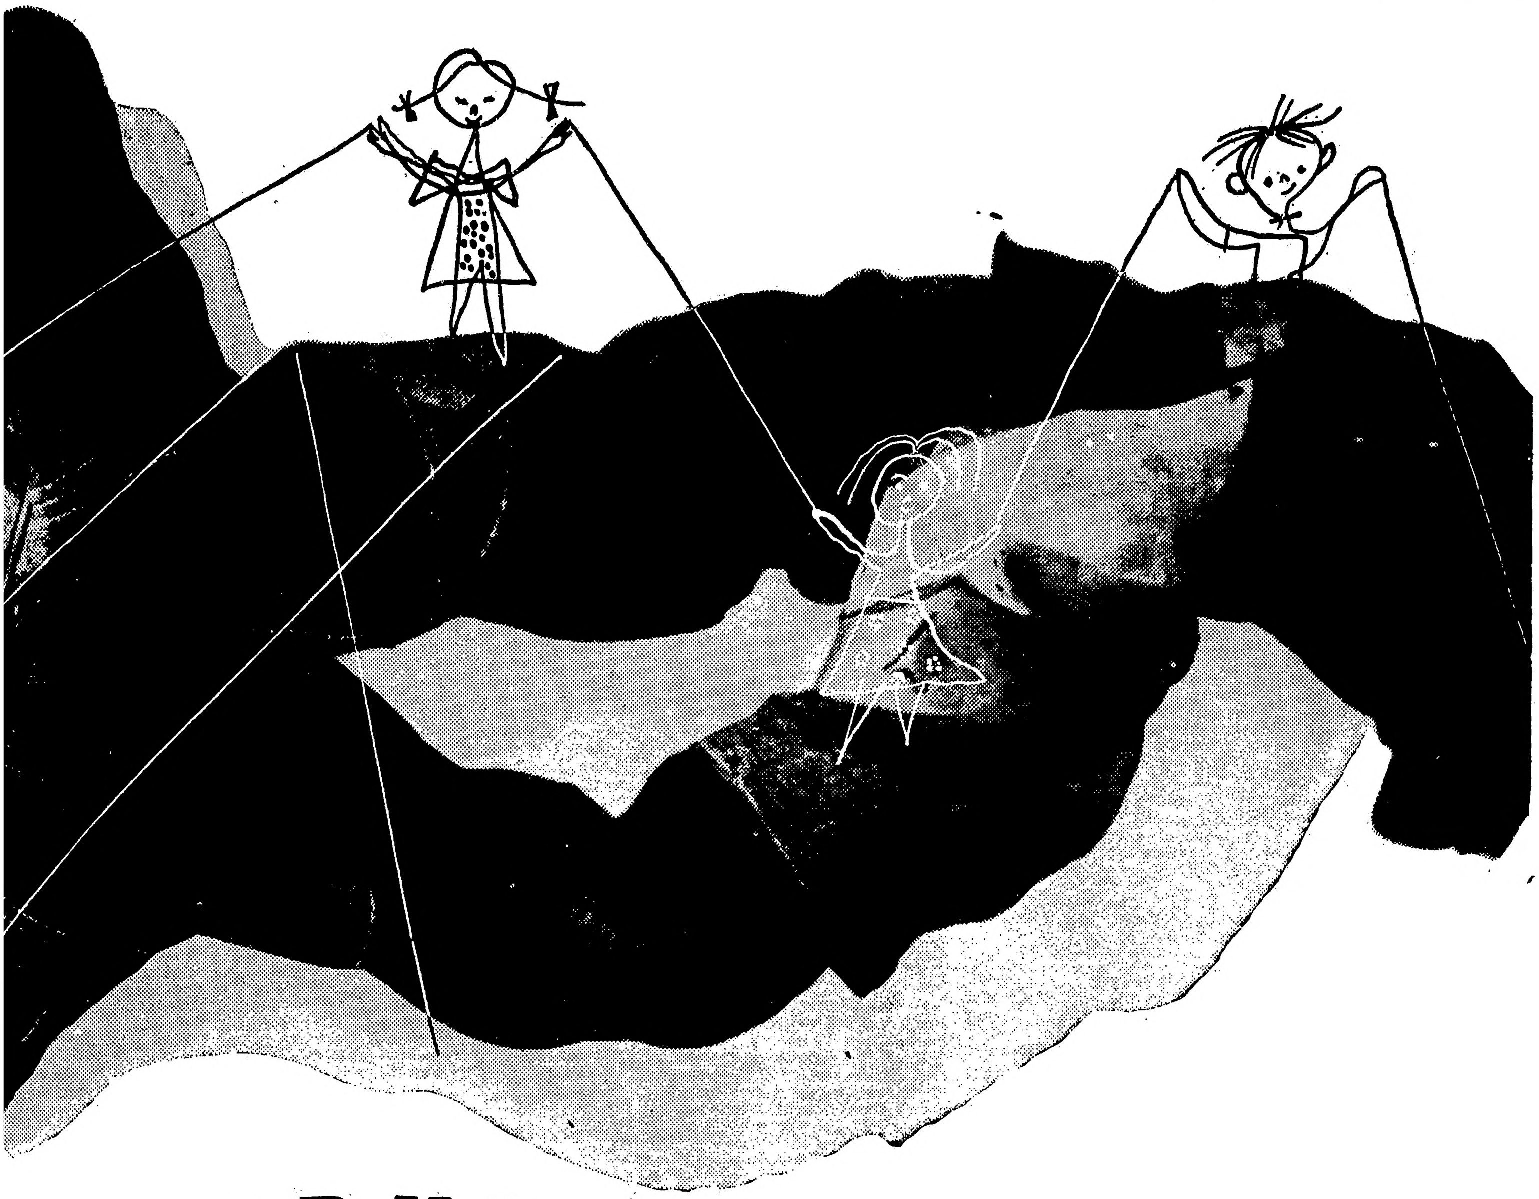
Some quotes from kid analyses: "Some programs would give a child nightmares"; "Sooner or later everyone will have to accept TV"; "I don't think TV should be rationed"; "If kids want to be a detective it would be nice if they saw what other detectives do."

Some quotes from mothers, pro: "We should look to the day when all levels of education use this marvelous medium"; "TV has been a boon to our family"; "It will enlarge children's horizons"; "Keep the children at home"; "Television is a prayer answered"; "It encourages healthy interests and is giving children confidence.

And con: "This is going to be a generation of knot-headed celery sticks"; "Seems to be a tendency to use this machine as a pacifier or replacement for the baby sitter."



KINGPIN IN
moller



ILLIPUT

Howdy Doody's three-way network lead . . . top-rated of all children's shows top-rated of all daytime shows . . . top-rated of all multi-weekly shows

The little guy means business.

Who else could make 240,000 sales with only 2 announcements?

And who else but this incredible "Milton Berle of the Lollypop Set" (Winchell) could get a quarter of a million urchins to part with a dime each, plus a Three Musketeers candy wrapper . . . for a cardboard cutout of himself?

For the record, that's $36,000 in returns from two brief demonstrations on NBC Television.

Idolized by an audience of nearly 6,000,000 a week in 24 important NBC Television markets, HOWDY DOODY means business, fantastically good business for his sponsors.

That's why he's No. 1 Sales Representative in Lilliput for advertisers like Colgate, Mars Candy, Ovaltine and Poll Parrot Shoes . . . on America's No. 1 Television Network.

As a new sponsor of Howdy Doody, you'll be just in time for the big publicity payoff on the "HOWDY DOODY BOY of 1950" contest, celebrating Howdy's 500th program on NBC. A few quarter-hour segments are now open.

NBC TELEVISION America's No. 1 Network

DOCUMENT A/810

With Van Heflin, narrator; Maurice Evans, Lee J. Cobb, Charles Boyer, Reginald Gardner, Jose Ferrer, Jean Hersholt, Lena Horne, Laurence Olivier, Vincent Price, Robert Ryan, Edward G. Robinson, Richard Basehart, Charles Laughton, Marsha Hunt, Alexander Knox, Emlyn Williams Joan Crawford; Lyn Murray orch
Writer-director-producer: Norman Corwin
60 Mins., Sun., 9-10 p.m.
Sustaining
MUTUAL from New York

For some time now there's been a growing awareness that some of our best and most exciting radio is emanating from the United Nations. This was again demonstrated last Sunday (26) night when "Document A/810," referring to the first World Bill of Rights, was presented on the Mutual network as the first in a new UN series designed to highlight the contributions being made to international peace and understanding.

"Document A/810" was written, directed and produced by Norman Corwin, Chief of Special Projects for United Nations Radio. With a transcribed assist from many stage and screen notables, including Van Heflin, who did a remarkably fine job of narration; Maurice Evans, Marsha Hunt, Edward G. Robinson, Laurence Olivier, Vincent Price, Charles Laughton, Joan Crawford, Jose Ferrer, Lee J. Cobb and others, Corwin fashioned a prose tapestry woven with excellent voices and effective music. It was very much alive and had an almost epic quality.

Written on a large mural, with its individual pictures all contributing to the positive whole, Corwin projected a stirring plea for acceptance of human rights for all people. "Document A/810" as conceived by the members of the United Nations and voted upon in Paris in December, 1948, is illustrative of all the rights due to human beings as dictated by the conscience of mankind. The first nation to designate properly these rights as the Bill of Rights was the United States, yet Corwin, in highlighting historic events in such countries as China, Bolivia, India, Liberia, France, Great Britain, etc., showed how each nation in the world contributed in the fight for human rights.

Corwin's technique was as simple as it was effective. As each nation responded to a roll call for acceptance of the Bill of Rights, he stopped as certain points to dramatize that particular nation's struggle in man's contribution to achieve human dignity. The Dreyfus case in France, the history-repeating-itself in our own aspersions on Jefferson, where loyalty was first tagged subversive; Britain's fight for freedom to marry according to choice; a Paraguayan dictatorship that decimated the population of an entire country—here were some of the dramatic vignettes in Corwin's effective tapestry that cried out in horror for their basic human rights. And each word was chosen sparingly and with telling care, never trying to make the words more epic than the people. For, in essence, Corwin was using words merely to showcase man's contribution to human dignity.

Through it all there was Lyn Murray's score, written in complete unison to the words of Corwin; never overpowering, yet dramatically calling attention to the power of the story.

Corwin is still championing the cause of good writing for radio by his own example, and proving conclusively that fine radio is on a par with fine works in all the other arts. Rose.

THE MUGGSY SHOW

With Joe "Muggsy" Lombardi, Ernie Hartman
Writer-Producer: Hartman
30 Mins.; Tues.-Thurs., 10:30 p.m.
Participating
WSTC, Stamford, Conn.

While most small stations are content to handle plugs for participating sponsors by routinely inserting blurbs between changes on the turntable, Stamford's WSTC hands the local merchants a little more production in "The Muggsy Show." Half-hour airer has Joe "Muggsy" Lombardi and Ernie Hartman puffing the bankroller's product between banter and record playing.

Hartman, who writes the continuity, is straightman for Lombardi. Accent is on the latter's Italian dialecting which, unfortunately, tends to be exaggerated too much at times. Script, however, weaves in the sales pitch relatively unobtrusively considering there are messages from no less than five firms to be packed into the program. Gilb.

CLUB 15

With Bob Crosby, Andrews Sisters, Modernaires, Jerry Gray Orchestra, Del Sharbutt
Director: Ace Ochs
Writers: Carroll Carroll, David Greggory
15 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 7:30 p.m.
CAMPBELL SOUP
CBS, from Hollywood
(Ward Wheelock)

Bob Crosby, the original helmsman of Campbell Soup's "Club 15" nightly quarter-hour, returned to the show Monday (27), succeeding Dick Haymes, who had been handling the emcee-singer slot for the series all season.

While not quite up to the Haymes vocal standard, Crosby spices the show better with his glib, easygoing delivery of lines. Characterization and type of dialog closely follow the pattern of brother Bing, which is hardly coincidental inasmuch as Carroll Carroll, who did so much to develop the elder Crosby's air style when he wrote the Groaner's material on the Kraft Music Hall some years back, is doing a similar job for Bob on "Club 15."

The genial Crosby manner, top-drawer warbling by the Andrews Sisters and the Modernaires, and first-rate scoring and batoneering by Jerry Gray make a highly agreeable 15-minute interlude. Andrews gals punch over the bounce items with ever-increasing impact, and if Crosby hasn't the tonsil equipment to parallel Bing in the voice department as well as he does along emcee lines, he nevertheless delivers a ballad or rhythm tune with considerable effect.

Del Sharbutt handles the Campbell commercials smoothly, holding them to a reasonable length for a quarter-hour program, and the singing plugs are, happily, humorous and not coy.

Jo Stafford started on the show yesterday (Tues.) for a twice-a-week stint. Rich.

MY LADY'S NAME

With Bruce Webb, Rudy Toth, Ken Houston, Stan Wilson, Gurney Titmarsh; John Rae, narrator
Writer-producer: Byng Whitteker
Director: Gordon Day
30 Mins., Wed., 10 p.m.
Sustaining
CBC, from Toronto

Here's a device of tieing in music and story, with Byng Whitteker picking pop tunes—mostly oldies—and weaving an inter-related lost-love episode to create a dreamy, pensive mood. With his novel choice of unusual instrumentation for the musical end of. the program, plus the sophisticated writing, Whitteker has a successful novelty series that is being carried by 38 stations in the CBC network.

Current item deals with the memory of a girl named Nancy and is marked by good writing in reconstructing the mood of the narrator meeting a girl at a party whom he hasn't seen for years. This device permits the tieing in of "Once in a While," "Deep Purple," "Somebody Loves Me" and "That Old Feeling," with Bruce Webb on the vocals for commendable results. It is the instrumentation, however, that gives the series its dreamy, haunting effects.

This is brought about through Rudy Toth's use of piano, vibraphone and celeste; sax and trombone of Ken Houston; the bass of Gurney Titmarsh, and guitar of Stan Wilson. Leader is Gordon Day, flautist of the Toronto Symphony. Whole blend of mood music and nostalgic narrative is out of the ordinary and holds a somewhat weird fascination in a very restful 30 minutes. McStay.

GROCERY BOY

With Bill Hickok
15 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 8:40 a.m.
C. T. TERRY & CO.
WXKW, Albany

Bill Hickok delivers a reasonably entertaining basket of entertainment and a heavy load of advertising on program sponsored by a local food broker. He plays records, sings with some of them, uses sound effects for comedy, pops gags, and reads "the joke of the day" submitted by a listener. His style runs to the zany; it has won many listeners.

Hickok could build the warbling-to-platters, his singing voice being pleasant. Although speaking pipes are good, he does not always employ them to full advantage, the comic having precedence over the straight. Diction should be sharpened; overemployment of "listen" and "see" might be curtailed. A half-snicker could go.

Hickok is shouldered with too much plugging: three products daily, plus sponsor identification. Two supposed telephone calls on a shot heard were turned into spiels. A product giveaway for the best joke is tied in with a tab for dialer's grocer. Jaco.

ACADEMY AWARDS

Producer: Sid Goodwin
100 Mins.; Thurs. (23), 11 p. m.
ABC, from Los Angeles

Annual presentation of its "Oscars" by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences becomes more and more businesslike each year. By careful planning and the elimination of the long "thank-you" speeches, Acad got last week's Oscarizing down to a snappy one hour and 40 minutes. That's a whale of a difference from the up to three hours that some of the sessions have taken in the past.

Whether that's good or bad, however, is open to question. The adlibbed (?) speeches by nervous award-receivers, the bulls, the long treks down the aisle to the stage, the general excitement that goes with an unrehearsed news event all gave a glamor and a spontaneity that were missing this year. This sounded like a finely-worked-out script show that had no more excitement than might be inherent in a news commentator's disclosure of the winners.

There was a quick reading of the candidates in each category, the never-changing request for "The envelope, please" and then the winner's name. Recipients seemed to be on stage almost as soon as their monikers were spoken, they said their few words of thanks in the maximum 15 seconds they were allowed, and were off.

Procedure was so smooth and rapid that it practically left no opportunity to Ronald Reagan and Eve Arden, who were stashed by ABC in a special broadcast booth, to give their scheduled color and background. They were lucky to get a word in edgewise—and the word, when they did get it in, was routine and uninspired.

On the other hand, all this precision and the absence of those boring thanks-to-the-prop-man-and-clapper-boy-who-made-this-award-to-me-possible speeches have obvious advantages. What the Acad and ABC must look for in the future in some middle ground that will give a spontaneity without an overdose of emotion and goo.

Paul Douglas emceed with wit and charm, but he likewise was so intent on the split-second timing that he sounded much too-well rehearsed. He was on only for the brief moments necessary to introduce the award-hander-out in each category. The presenters had as much name-appeal as the winners, making this a real all-star aggregation. They included James Cagney, James Stewart, Jane Wyman, Ray Milland, Claire Trevor, Ida Lupino and Cole Porter.

Awards event, the 22d for the Academy, originated from the Pantages theatre in Los Angeles. Johnny Green was general director of the event for the Acad, while John I. Edwards, ABC's western division program director, supervised and Sid Goodwin, vet of previous "Oscars" airings, produced for the network. Herb.

CLOUD NINE

With Elaine Rodgers, Lon Saxon, The Meadowlarks, Hal Stark, Larry Alexander, Arthur Peterson
Producers-writers: Skee Wolff, Charles Romine
Director: Paul McDermott
30 Mins., Tues., 9:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WBBM, Chicago

"Cloud Nine" rates an A for effort and scores very nearly as high in accomplishment. Designed as a showcase for WBBM talent, the program puts a fresh, new garb on the musical format. And dressed-up format is good listening. Each show has a definite story line weaving together the musical numbers, a switch that gives added punch to both script and music. "Cloud Nine" is the phantasy vehicle transporting story into the land of make-believe, making for a great deal of freedom for scripters.

On show heard (21) "Cloud Nine" took cast back to an army rest camp in Holland during the last war, with story situation catching comic facets of GI life such as a "Dear John" letter, a batch of soldiers' brew and reactions of fighting stiffs to a Hollywood war pic. Blended into story were relevant tunes, mostly of wartime vintage.

Thrush Elaine Rodgers as "girl back home" registered warmly. Lon Saxon is a smooth baritone. The Meadowlarks, four men and a girl, did their part neatly.

Principal thesping chores were professionally handled by Hal Stark, Larry Alexander and Arthur Peterson. Frank Smith and house band backed stint ably.

Producers Skee Wolff and Charles Romine have wrapped up a bright package and show seems sure to gain momentum among evening listeners. Dave.

THE TALKING MAGAZINE

With Bert Wayne, announcer; Sidney Blackmer, Patricia Morison, Todd Duncan, Ruth Matteson, guests
Producer: Ted Cott
Director: Jack Grogan
Editor: Dick Pack
30 Mins.; Mon., 10 p.m.
Sustaining
WNEW, New York

Indie has come up with an interesting device for getting quality literary material and wrapping up a public service stanza in cooperation with the Industrial Home for the Blind. Inspiration for the show came from the fact that only two national magazines are available in braille or records. "Talking Magazine" is filling this gap by having stars from Broadway shows read pieces from a score of publications.

On the preem Monday (27) the articles presented a good cross-section of mags, authors and subjects: John Gunther's "Inside F.D.R." from Look; the Miscellany column from Time; Pearl S. Buck on "What America Means To Me" from Coronet; a profile of Gian-Carlo Menotti from Newsweek; Groucho Marx's letter to Leo C. Rosten in Look; and a humorous essay on baseball wives from the Saturday Evening Post. These were given expressive and spontaneous-sounding readings by Sidney Blackmer of "Come Back, Little Sheba"; Todd Duncan of "Lost in the Stars"; Patricia Morison of "Kiss Me, Kate"; and Ruth Matteson of "Clutterbuck." The thespers caught the spirit of the writing to make the airer of interest not only to the 20,000 blind in the area but also to the general listener. Although the articles were penned for the eye rather than the ear they came over the loudspeaker with full understandability, except in the case of the Time column, where the weekly's clipped and inverted style was a handicap.

An added feature was a brief bulletin board giving news of interest to the sightless (bills before the state legislature on reduced taxation of the blind and parties and classes for the afflicted), Peter J. Salmon, exec director of the Industrial Home, gave a short talk kudosing the station for the series. Bril.

BEAT YOUR WIFE

With Wed Howard, Beulah Schacht, Stan Dougherty orch
Director: Al Bland
Producer: Lambert Kaiman
30 Mins. Tues., 9 p.m.
WESTINGHOUSE
KMOX, St. Louis

First big league quizzer to be launched in this town has a new twist in that husbands and wives both in Loew's State theatre, where the program originates, and couples at home have opportunities of copping a wide variety of prizes that range from foodstuffs, stockings, radios, etc., to an all-expense paid vacation via plane to Havana which is a part of the jackpot of prizes reputed to be worth $5,000. The stay-at-homes who also get into the act by phone are chosen by lot from those who deposit their request slip at one of the more than 100 Westinghouse distributors in the St. Louis area.

Questions range from simple ones that a grammar school kid could answer to some tricky ones that require a correct answer from an erudite grownup. Only 10 seconds are permitted for an answer and the husband or wife hanging up the highest score grabs the payoff. Then the couple, collectively, have 10 seconds in which to solve the jackpot quizzer which, in the teeoff program, was identifying a notable couple from clues furnished by the gabbers. No one copped the big prize but, unlike such other programs, the size of the stake is not boosted on succeding ones.

Howard, a station gabber, handles the males while Miss Schacht, a newspaper feature writer, propounds the quizzes to the femmes.

Half a dozen couples received chances during the initial program which needs a little polishing to smooth the proceedings that were a bit shaky in spots. The repetition of the long list of prizes for the benefit of each of the contesting couples was a bit overdone. Commercials also were a trifle too long. Stan Dougherty's tooters scored with "Music, Music, Music" and "Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy" in addition to "I Said My Pajamas" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band," the latter two being among the quizzers. Sahu.

Indianapolis—Construction will begin within few weeks on new studio building for WFBM and WFBM-TV. Building will contain 20,000 feet of floor space with two major studios, one two stories high to allow for backdrops and scenery for television shows. Structure will cost $300,000, exclusive of equipment.

LIKE MEN WHO DREAM

With Eddie Cantor; Claude Rains, narrator; Lawson Zerbe, Leon Janney, Ethel Everett, Peter Cappel, Butch Cavel; music, Sylvan Levin
Writer: Allan E. Sloane
Producer: Himan Brown
30 Mins.; Mon., (27), 9:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WOR, N. Y.

Forceful and compelling was "Like Men Who Dream," a dramatized story of the Passover which Mutual presented Monday (27) in cooperation with the United Jewish Appeal. The Allan E. Sloane script deftly wove in the origin of the festival and graphically showed how history has repeated itself. For the Israelites were redeemed of the Egyptians in bibical times while today their modern contemporaries have been delivered of another Pharoah—Hitler.

Kingpin of this gripping dramatization was narrator Claude Rains, who lucidly outlined the strides that Jews have made in regaining Israel despite a path of adversity. A large cast headed by Lawson Zerbe, Leon Janney and Ethel Everett also lent stature to the program. In closing the half-hour dramat, Eddie Cantor, UJA National Campaign Chairman, drew a parallel from the miracle of the Israelites crossing the Red Sea and the current hegira to the new Israel.

Cantor's sombre admonition that "it's up to us to decide that they shall live" tied in with a nationwide fund-raising drive which UJA is launching this week in some 3,600 communities. His plea for support was the epitome and dignity. "Like Men Who Dream" represented radio at its best. Transcribed stanza, incidentally, was heard Monday (27) only on WOR, N. Y., while the following night (Tuesday) the MBS web aired it. Gilb.

SCANDIA BARN DANCE

With Doug Setterberg, Ruth Stendal, Loren Davidson, Scandia Quartet, Frederick Lloyd.
Producer: Bob Hurd
30 Mins.; Sat. 6 p.m.
Participating
KOMO, Seattle

This new live show is the biggest on the air locally and is also one of the few that is done for an audience. It's also a good one, displaying the talents of Doug Setterberg, writer and star of the show, in fine fashion. Setterberg, writer of "All Sewed Up in My Vinter Undervear" and "He's A Scandinavian Hot Shot" does a fine job in Swedish dialect tunes and on this program did "Hilda" as well as entering into the commercials.

Soprano Ruth Stendal and baritone Loren Davidson dueted nicely with "Carolina Moon," and the Scandia Quartet (2 accordions, piano and string bass) did a good job with "Amelia Polka," also backing the vocalists ably.

Setterberg did his own tune, "Vinter Undervear" in a socko style, displaying an impish humor and nice timing and it seems that he could be used more in the program for bigger impact.

This area has many people of Scandinavian descent so this show should go over big. It's also a wise move on KOMO's part to use the talents of Setterberg (he's on staff as an announcer-writer) and seems a shrewd move business-wise to put on such an entertaining show for an audience. Word is that the half-hour version is all booked up for participating spots and that it may be expanded to a full hour.

Here's one that proves that radio is certainly not dead in Seattle and also reveals the fact that there's talent here to do a good job. Reed.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

With Bill Jacobs, others
15 Mins., Sat., 5:45 p.m.
Sustaining
WKBW, Buffalo

This is an entertaining quarter-hour shot, with Bill Jacobs as moderator interviewing various personalities. Usual guests are visiting entertainers and generally discussion develops some facet of show biz. Show is tape recorded in order to suit convenience of interviewees. Show caught (18) was built around the question, "What is wrong with little theatre in Buffalo and what can we do about it?"

Participants included Jane Keeler, director of the Studio Theatre, Daniel Abeles, director of the theatre group at the Jewish Community Center, and Leo Jones, director of the Blue Masquers at the U. of Buffalo. Show was well handled by Jacobs, who kept the discussion going at an even pace.

TV SHOPPERS REVUE

With Brent Gunts, Jay Grayson, Ann Antrim, Bob MacDonald, Robert L. Friend, Joe Miller Trio, Fran Oliver & Walters Models, Arthur Murray Dancers.
Writer Bob Howard
Producer: Bill Fitzgerald
Director: Dave Nottingham
60 Mins., Mon., Wed., Fri.; 2 to 3 p.m.
HECHT DEPARTMENT STORES
WBAL-TV, Baltimore
(Robert J. Enders)

Balto video scene has been more than brightened with addition of this hour long session slanted toward femme shoppers. Hecht Stores should have no trouble capturing viewer interest, and deserve credit for unzipping wallet to foot an expensive first class showcase, the first of its kind to arouse further commercial interest in midday TV.

Robert J. Enders agency, proud parents of "Shoppers Revue" idea, already have a string of similar shows in Philadelphia, Washington and Boston, all enjoying a healthy life.

Preem show (20) was fast moving, and emcee Brent Gunts kept large studio mob, contestants and camera technicians pulses well tempoed. Gunts, onetime New York producer and radio emcee, injected bigtime showmanship into each audience-participation gimmick. He knows whims of Balto crowd because of popularity on his own Tuesday nighter idea, "Shadow Stumpers" (WBAL-TV). His Berlish costume-antics made him kernel of each segment.

Jay Grayson, WBAL staffer, commercializes in true TV ad lib fashion, and is always fall-guy for Gunts gags. Even though "Revue" was segmentized into quarter-hour stanzas, product identification of four principle items was not overdone, and director appeared to have most wrinkles tucked away. Dave Nottingham, probably youngest TV director, deserves kudos for an on-the-toes operation.

Cavorting cast on special built stage of Baltos only TV audience-participation "Air Theatre" at WBAL-TV, consisted of Ann Antrim and Bob MacDonald vocalistics; Joe Miller's Trio, 10 instrumental pieces to their credit; Dancers from Arthur Murray School; Fran Oliver, helping Grayson on announce chores, and her Walters Models. Special guester on preem show was Robert L. Friend, mentalist, who pried into subconscious files of studio audiences gray matter with most professional air and tricked them with mental dexterity. Friend would be welcome feature attraction to this hour.

Station would also seem to have scenery problem solved. Staff artist and Hecht's display stylists fashion the appropriate sets for each show to highlight the program's personnel, prizes and store products.

Giveaways were made on an elaborate scale, to studio participants who cavorted on opening show in bag bursting, dance instruction and mental test contests.

This hour long venture, followed by another WBAL-TV good-looker "The Bob Berry Show," should give the station a strong afternoon lineup. Port.

JAMBOREE

With Gloria Van, Danny O'Neill, Jane Brockman & Bud Tygett, Jimmy McPartland, Dick Edwards, "Woo-Woo" Stephens, Paula Raye, John Dolce, Julian Stockdale Orch.
Writer: Garry Morrison
Director: Dick Liesendahl
60 Mins.; Sun., 9 p.m.
Du MONT, from Chicago

With its Saturday night schedule anchored for the time being, Du Mont is aiming at strengthening its Sunday night lineup with new program material. "Jamboree" fits into the pattern as a fast and pleasing variety session that adds to Chicago's standing as an origination point in the overall TV picture. This airer is picked up from the Rainbow Gardens on Chi's north side.

Chief assets of this show are its fresh talent, unpretentious air and general verve which help surmount the modest budget framework. Lacking any rigid format, this hour-long session is checkered with contrasts between hillbilly music and hot jazz to folk dancing and modern ballet. The preem (26) ran off in flavorsome style despite a full quota of camera miscues and several production lapses that hung up several sequences in midair.

In the straight pop music category, Gloria Van and Irish tenor Danny O'Neil, regulars on this series, neatly delivered a brace of numbers including "Why Was I Born" and "You're the Cream in My Coffee" by Miss Van and "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "I'm

(Continued on page 44)

Tele Followup Comment

Staging of James M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus" on CBS-TV's "Ford Theatre" Friday night (24) suffered slightly during the first act from confusion resulting from the play's basic fantasy theme. It perked considerably during the final two acts, via some fine thesping and a pickup in pace, to emerge as a neat, warm-hearted production. Story, very much similar to Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" but pointing more of a moral, failed to spot the characters adequately at the beginning, so that when they changed roles during the fantasy part, viewers were at a loss to distinguish which was which. Fault was in the original version, however, and so cannot be blamed on Ellis Marcus' adaptation or the production and staging by Winston O'Keefe and Marc Daniels.

Brian Aherne, making his video bow in the starring role, scored with an impressive delineation of the painter turned wastrel who wanted the "other chance" offered to relive his life. Valerie Cossart was excellent as his wife and Mary Malone, one of the leads in the late "Girls" series on CBS-TV, was standout as the daughter they never had. Ralph Rigg, as the puckish Lob, socked across the difficult role. Rest of the cast was equally good, including David White, Philip Coolidge, Barbara Robbins, Florida Friebus, Betty Linley, Leslie Barrie and Joan Wetmore. Sam Leve's sets, including the duplicate living-rooms to make possible the switch from the garden to the enchanted forest, were fine, and Daniels' use of trick camera effects to point up the fantasy worked without a hitch.

NBC-TV's "Colgate Theatre" presented on Sunday (26) a drama that was put together in reverse. Producers saw an effective United Telefilm Co. short film, about a vagrant who steals a woman's pocketbook and decided to use it as the finale of their show. William Kendall Clarke was commissioned to script a teleplay to lead up to the three-minute film clip. Robert Feyti, who played the pursesnatcher in the picture, was located in Miami and was flown up to N.Y. to do the live sequences.

It may not have been worth all the trouble. The celluloid portion was movingly done, with the kind of closeups, editing and deliberate, slowed-down action followed by an exciting chase that would be difficult for teevee to match. But it was a small payoff to the 20-odd minutes of draggy live stuff which preceded it. Story concerned a young mother, nicely played by Eleanor Lynn, who was taking her son back to their native Michigan. Her con-man husband (Feyti), who had deserted her six years previously, turned up with another confidence scheme. The wife, however, refused to give him any money, and it was at this point that the clip of the purse-theft was brought in. Feyti did a good job, but his criminality was not motivated strongly enough, and the live portions were talky and visually static.

Milton Berle returned to NBC-TV's "Texaco Star Theatre" Tuesday (21) after his Miami vacation with a show that was generally good, but uneven in spots. Comic opened with a production number and a vocal with special Miami lyrics parodizing some current pops. He followed with a cute magico turn with a victim culled from the audience. Latter turned out to be bandleader-prestidigitator Richard Himber, who "stole" Berle's tricks, for a sophisticated twist of the conventional routine. Svelt Julie Wilson, attractively gowned, put over "So in Love" and "San Francisco Fanny."

Recalling his "Front Page" characterization, Lee Tracy was cast as a city editor in a sketch with Berle playing the blundering reporter. Farce had the pair trying to nab a murderer, with the help of 10 radio sleuths (all outlandishly costumed), including the Falcon, Shadow, Fat Man, Thin Man, Superman, Sam Spade, Sherlock Holmes, etc. Gag was amusing for the first scene, but additional slapstick bits in which Berle was disguised as a butler, Chinese mandarin, Hindu fakir and Spanish dancing girl, proved overlong and anti-climatic.

Finale featured songsmith Hoagy Carmichael in one of those "and then I wrote" stints. Because of his distinctive voice, plus the quality of his tunes, Carmichael's performance was a highspot of the hour. It was also given some production values via superimposition of some Berlian antics and a dance by the sextet over the clefter's piano. Bunny Briggs, expert tapster, scored neatly with some relaxed terping that speeded up into rapidfire toework. Also in the choreographic department, Anthony, Allen and Hodge clicked with a sophisticated ballroom number and followed with an amusing dance in which the two men tossed around their femme partner.

NBC television's two-and-a-half hour "Saturday night Revue" last week (25) hit a spotty pace for the first time—but the spottiness only meant that some bits were outstanding while others were only good. On the basis of its fine talent, slick production and neat pacing, the show ran smoothly most of the way but gave evidence for the first time in its five-week run of the tremendous task involved in finding or building sufficient material for the entire evening.

"Jack Carter Show," occupying the first hour from Chicago, was marked by a general improvement in production. Cameras were on the beam continually, the lighting was better and the straight vocal numbers were given sufficient lead-in to make them visually attractive. Teaming of Donald Richards with sepia moppet Judith Burroughs, for example, was a fine idea and helped considerably in the number's audience impact. Fred and Susan Barry, aided by topnotch lensing, socked across their intricate terpsichore. Tony Martin, who wowed with his showmanly tune-selling, also got the production backing necessary. Carter repeated with his nifty comedy and emceeing, with Betty and Jane Kean also socko with their zany antics, impersonations and singing.

Spottiness was visible in the "Show of Shows," produced and directed by Max Liebman from N. Y., and is traceable probably to the fact that the material, while good, is getting too reminiscent of previous stanzas on the series. Thus, while Sid Caesar was good as ever with his excellent pantomime and comedy, Macdonald Carey did a smooth emcee job and the ballet and chorus were standout in a group of well-produced numbers, it was only the final production routine that viewers would remember after the show. This was a lengthy but very funny skit on the Pocahontas-John Smith tale, with Imogene Coca doing a fine mimic job on the Indian princess. Original poem read by an off-screen narrator to back the number was socko, done in the "Hiawatha" pattern.

Carey teamed with Caesar for a neat reprise of the film director's skit from the late Broadway revue, "Make Mine Manhattan," and Caesar again did one of his funny solo bits—this time, on a whitecollarite hitting his boss for a raise. Jan Peerce, subbing for Robert Merrill, teamed nicely with Marguerite Piazza in excerpts from "Traviata" and the latter pleased with a modified dance routine on a pop number she sang. Miss Coca and Caesar likewise impressed with their "Coney Island" bit.

Presentation of Robert Sylvester's "Second Oldest Profession" on NBC-TV's "Philco Playhouse" Sunday night (26) suffered from the lack of motivation for both the plot and characters. In selecting the top dramatic moments for his hour-long adaptation, Joseph Liss was forced to omit too much of the requisite continuity. Thus, the newspaper publisher, instead of emerging as the inhuman, ruthless monster referred to in the play, seemed instead a good-hearted and wise-headed business man. In addition, the young reporter's character switch from an idealistic crusader to the no-good circulation hound was never sufficiently explained.

While the adaptation was thus nsg., the acting, production and direction were okay. William Prince, as the reporter, and Victor Jory, as the publisher both turned in fine performances but it was Felicia Monteleagre, as the disappointed wife of Prince, who scored most impressively with her neatly etched characterization. Mark Roberts and Russell Collins did well in supporting roles. Producer Fred Coe and director Gordon Duff integrated a number of film bits neatly with the live part of the script and the sets, camera work, etc., were up to the usual top-drawer Philco standards.

Jerry Lester is starting to hit a good stride on DuMont's "Cavalcade of Stars." His vaude and cafe bits are starting to show up with greater effectiveness and he's being integrated into the rest of the proceedings to a greater degree.

Despite the terrific competition of NBC's "Your Show of Shows," the program hasn't diminished its budget in lining up acceptable talent. Stanza had good pacing and variety and individual acts showed up extremely well.

Condos and Brandon exhibited some fast taps to give Kyle McDonnell a warmed up stage. She hit her mark with a pair of tunes and some slight comedy with Lester. Dizzy Gillespie provided a change of pace with a bop trumpet. His session had the virtue of brevity since an overlong dose of flatted fifths can chase the garden variety of viewer.

A novelty note was by Dolinoff and the Raya Sisters (3). This group working on a stage with a darkened background provided some unusual effects. Chester Morris gave a pleasing exhibition of magic to ingratiate himself.

Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" on Sunday (26) presented some good entertainment once it got into stride. Session got off to a tepid start with the Phil Jones dancers, a group of mixed couples ranging from moppets to adults. Except for the flash displayed by the numerical makeup of the troupe, these dancers are little more than an amateur novelty. The routines are okay, but there's insufficient flash to this act for the warmup spot. The offbeat was continued with Chris Cross, ventriloquist, whose gab didn't make for too much an impression. Much was made of the fact that there was a Walter Winchell imitation on a Sullivan show. This incongruity wasn't sufficient to get the turn across.

Show looked up considerably with Eileen Barton, who's currently a reason for jukebox patronage with her National disking of "Baked a Cake." She was given some good production in this number and produced the first solid turn of program.

Fayne and Foster did well in a musical novelty session providing interest with bell-ringing and musical glasses. Another strong point was the terping of Sheila Bond. Aside from being an impressive dancer, Miss Bond has a great deal of visual interest. There should have been at least one closeup of her face, even though her figure is highly admirable. There were some good trick camera effects to aid her session.

Probably the most impressive spot on the show came from the Continentals, a well-groomed male quintet, with fine individual voices, a good comedy sense and arresting arrangements that make use of their collective ability to mimic pizzicati strings. This group impresses as being one of the better talent discoveries of the past few weeks.

Sullivan also introduced one of his occasional sports novelties with a golfing demonstration by Helen Hicks, which lacked theatrical interest. Jack Redman did better with his skill at trick shots.

Sullivan made his entrance wearing a trick nose and spectacles. It didn't make sense.

Berwyn (Pa.) Playhouse's third telecast in its series of combination stock-video productions over WFIL-TV (Phila) (20) was "Love in Livery — a Delectation of the Snuff-Box Era," by the 18th century French dramatist Marivaux. Almost operatic in its plot about mistaken identities, this pastiche might be enjoyed with music, with lyrics in the original language. The theme is right out of the museum and demonstrates that the "high-born," even in disguise, instinctively attract one another. Forced by circumstances to change places with their servants, the master is still elegant in livery; the valet remains an oaf. The lady is gracious wielding the feather duster, while the maidservant is as out of place as her "captain of the back-stairs."

Series has been bankrolled by V. Nelson Barrington, owner of Berwyn theatre, to demonstrate that initial "live" performances can assure letter-perfect productions with a minimum of camera rehearsal time. Berwyn cast puts on one-hour capsule play adaptation seven times before looking at a camera. Barrington's sales talk to agency people who caught performance (20) is that production costs can be cut down one-third to half, with "live" run-throughs at suburban theatre. Camera time for Marivaux production totalled four hours. Cast and staff backed up Barrington argument with smooth performance, played with

(Continued on page 44)

HOLIDAY HOTEL

With Edward Everett Horton, Leonore Lonergan, Bill Harrington, Betty Brewer, June Graham, Don Sadler; Denise Darcel, guest; Alexander Gray, announcer; Bernie Green orch
Producer: Monte Proser
Writer: Tom Adair
30 Mins.; Thurs. 9:30 p.m.
PACKARD MOTOR CO.
ABC-TV, from New York
(Young & Rubicam)

Basically, there's a good idea in "Holiday Hotel"—a switch on the "Grand Hotel" motif but with an underlying comedic pattern keyed to the distinctive visual-audio talents of Edward Everett Horton. But it certainly failed to project itself for maximum—or even satisfactory—results as it came off the TV screen on its initial ABC showcasing last Thursday (23).

This is the Packard Motor Co.-sponsored musicomedy-formatted show which nitery boniface Monte Proser is producing, and the productional accoutrements as manifested on the preem program bespoke the $15,000-a-week investiture. But for the kind of coin and energy expended on "Hotel," the overall entertainment results were of dubious merit. Actually, the show never managed to get off the ground, with Horton's contrib weakened by an unsatisfactory script and the attendant Horton byplay with his femme vis-a-vis, Leonore Lonergan, failing to capitalize on the talents of either.

As the "Hotel's" initial guest, Denise Darcel (who has been circuiting the AM-TV kilocycles since her "Battleground" pic release) was featured in a skit which gave her Gallic idioms some free play, but on the whole it was feeble stuff.

Midway through the show it switched completely to a revue highlighted by a ballet sequence based on a Gordon Jenkins musical vignette featuring the dancing talents of June Graham and Don Sadler and the vocalistics of Bill Harrington and Betty Brewer. It provided a refreshing interlude, certainly a lift over the "story" elements, but was far from outstanding.

Packard commercials were neatly integrated via a "showroom" on the hotel's ground floor and with Alexander Gray handling the announcer chores. There's a filmed commercial insert at the midway mark.

As bigtime automotive showcases go, this one had an inauspicious premiere. Rose.

BEAT THE CLOCK

With Bud Collyer, emcee; Lee Vines, announcer
Producer: Gil Fates
Director: Byron Paul
45 Mins.; Thurs., 9:45 p. m.
Sustaining
CBS-TV, from New York

"Beat the Clock," a televersion of last year's quizzer on CBS, makes an entertaining stunt show. Packagers Mark Goodson and Bill Todman worked up some good visual questions—all of which the studio contestants had to answer in a prescribed number of seconds while an intricate three-foot clock ticked off the time. Gags included having loot-hunters give the proper costumes to bathing girls of 1890, 1926 and 1948, pick up coins with a broomstick and chewing gum through a subway grate, don a woman's blouse (with buttons on the back), identify flowers from their scents, etc. One particularly effective routine was exposing the quizee (and home viewers) to a humorous tableau for one minute and then asking him to spot three re-arranged items. In another, a blindfolded participant tried to spread butter and jam on a slice of bread, with the cameras catching amusing closeups of his fumbling fingers. An added sight-device was having the guests work from an hour-glass stand.

Airer leaned heavily on cheesecake appeal, with emcee Bud Collyer's femme assistants garbed in scant costumes and one contestant attempting to find the right-sized belt for a swim-suited model. Appearance of the bare gams brought whistles from the theatre audience.

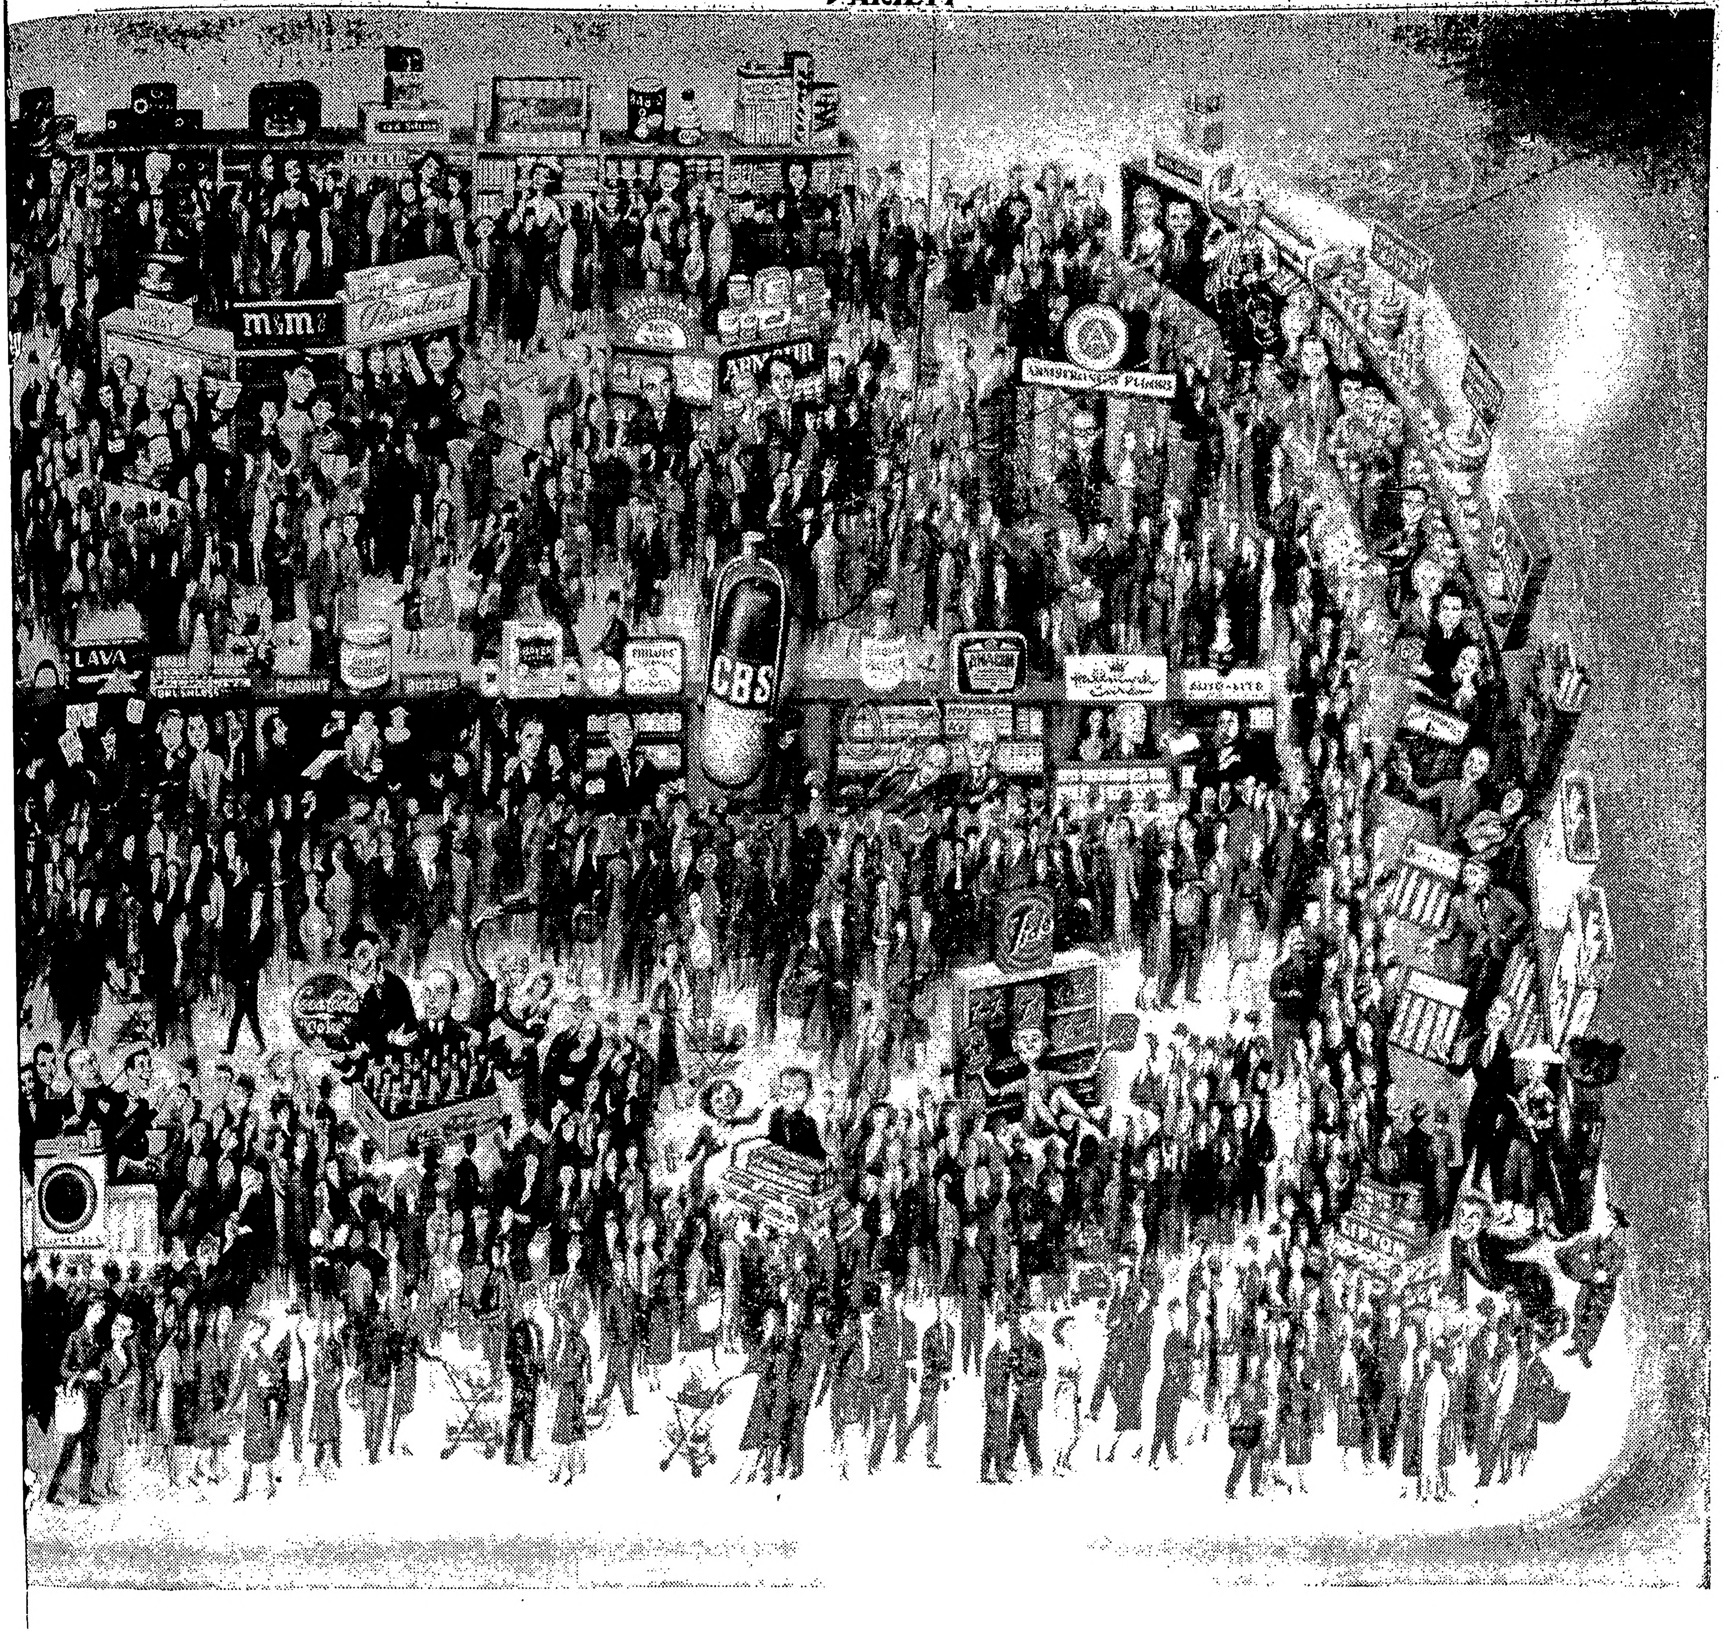
In a couple of spots the clock was superimposed on the screen to heighten the sense of contestants working against time. However, Collyer's highpressure gab about time running out, more suited to an AM than a TV show, seemed to work against the prize-seekers and should be eased up. Otherwise his handling of the guests was informal and pleasant. Use of a portable Altec mike gave him freedom of movement in a fast-paced stanza. Bril.

Duz
Pillsbury's Best
Borden's Products
Vel
Lux
Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.
Franco-American
Rinso
Jell-O
Jell-O Puddings

THIS IS CBS...WHERE 99 MILLION

This is the biggest market place in the world... bigger than any other place where people go to find the things they want to buy.

Where else do so many people get together, week after week–from every part of the country?



PEOPLE SHOP EVERY WEEK

Where else can you find 25 million people standing in front of the same counter at the same time focused on the same product? Only in Radio.

In all radio CBS draws the largest crowds – a million and a half more customers than any other network.

And every year these crowds of customers grow bigger.

That's why, when America's leading business men offer for sale the things most people want to buy, they showcase them in the biggest and busiest market place in the world ... The Columbia Broadcasting System

From the Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Metro's Louis B. Mayer will make one of his rare air appearances when WMGM carries speeches from the Brand Names Foundation dinner at the Waldorf April 5. . . . Walter Stegman, of WNYC music dept., leaves today (Wed.) for four years' study in Europe. . . . Cherney Berg, "Goldbergs" music director, preemed his "Anatomy of Melancholy" at Times Hall Monday (27). . . . William Mullin has resigned from radio dept. of William Morris agency. No successor contemplated. . . . Walter Lurie has bowed out of Calkins & Holden agency. . . . Frank Tarloff replacing Jack Rubin as co-scripter with Jameson Brewer of "Hardy Family". . . . WMGM's Eileen O'Connell ("For Children Only") making theatre appearances to promote the doll fashioned after her. . . . Cliff Evans, head of N. Y. City's TV Film Unit, named $12,000 yearly assistant to the deputy mayor. . . . Add April Foolishness: Hot Springs, N. M. (pop. 8,000) changes its name to "Truth or Consequences" on April 1 . . . . Four WNJR engineers found themselves staring into cop's revolver at 3 a.m. one day last week while testing the station's signal in a lonely field. . . . Jack Rome has joined Biow agency as account exec for Philip Morris group. Formerly with Roy S. Durstine and Albert Kimball Co.

Bing Crosby to tape four of his shows in Gotham between April 4-13, for airing in May. . . . Don Hollenbeck, CBS newscaster, recuping at Daytona Beach after recent illness. . . . Flack Art Miller father of eight-lb. boy. . . . Junita ("South Pacific") Hall signed by Lang-Worth Transcriptions. . . . ABC's Milton Cross completed last of four narrative stints with Thomas Sherman's kid concert group last week. . . . "Meet the Menjous" returns to WOR as a cross-the-border Monday (3). . . . Clay Morgan, former assistant to the prexy at NBC, has joined Allied Syndicates flackery. . . . Lowell Thomas doing his CBS newscasts this week from Coronado Beach, Cal. . . . WNEW continuity chief Bob Stewart resigning Friday (31) to freelance.

Wells Church, CBS news editor, to Orlando, Fla., for three-week fishing trip. . . . Pat O'Brien, Marsha Hunt, Jay Jostyn, Louise Allbritton, George Raft, Herbert Marshall, Ava Gardner and Maurice Evans signed for "MGM Theatre of the Air." Ian Keith, J. Edward Bromberg, Arleen Whelan, Alfred Ryder and Jack LaRue tagged for Metro's "Crime Does Not Pay" series. . . . WJZ's Johnny Thompson to be kudosed with a party by "Miss Liberty" cast Monday (3). . . . NAM radio-teevee director Johnny Johnstone back after 10 days in Houston and week in Atlanta. . . . Nassau County cancer fund campaigners to get instructions via three broadcasts on WHLI. . . . Scripter Palmer Thompson has packaged a series, "Congressional Investigator". . . . Joseph Durso, WINS news director, joined N. Y. Times Monday (27) . . . . Richard Sanders into "David Harum". . . . John Larkin and Spencer Bentley added to "Romance of Helen Trent". . . . Peg Hillias new to "Our Gal Sunday". . . . Ray Johnson and Elaine Kent additions to "Nona From Nowhere". . . . Jackie Grimes and Hillary Hall join "Lorenzo Jones."

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

BBD&O's Ben Duffy came to town, took one look at the overcast and three hours later was in Palm Springs. He would have settled for 15% but there was no sun at all. . . . Ev Meade was another arrival from Big Town but, sun or no sun, he'll be around for a week or so on Y & R business, mostly TV. He brought back with him Walter Bunker, the Hollywood Squire, who passed a few weeks at the home office. . . . Edward Arnold, ABC's "Mr. President," would rather be a U. S. senator—the real thing—so he's filed for the June primary as a Republican . . . . Y & R Bob Hussey had a close call last week with a nasal infection but penicillin pulled him through. . . . Harry Ackerman is convinced that Rochester is a natural for his own show so he's having another record cut and hired Sam Perrin, Jack Benny's head writer, to supervise the script. . . Benny, incidentally, received the Brentwood award last week for outstanding community service. His trophy room must be as loaded as Fibber McGee's closet. . . . And speaking of "The McGee's," there's a lot of budget pruning going on, with the music taking the sharpest cut. . . . Jimmy Fidler will take 15 weeks off this summer as an economy move. You'd think his sponsor, Arrid, would just dote on hot weather. There'll be no replacement, which doesn't distress last year's sub, Sheilah Graham, as she's in line for full net airing of her Hollywood gab for a new line of home permanent named after the famed Ogilvie Sisters. . . . Sid Skolsky has challenged Senator Johnson to a debate on his "Hollywood By-Line" over ABC. And to think that a year ago Skolsky was skeered stiff of a mike, which can't talk back . . . . Herb Polesie, who used to direct Bing Crosby on Kraft Music Hall, was his house guest at Pebble Beach between shows back east. . . . Eddie Martin, one of Hollywood's earliest columnists, is being packaged by Ray Morgan. . . . Les Atlass and Ralph Kettering came in from Chicago for a chat with Gene Autry about his cowboy pictures for TV. Autry has done the most consistent job of any other air star. In the past 11 years of selling chicle, he has taken time out only for war duty. A season to him is 52 weeks, and he has pictures to make, too. . . . By doing the TV series Autry loses the $500 weekly paid him by Wrigley to bypass video. . . . Garry Moore will bundle his frau into their Cadillac and chug east by easy stages. They'll see America in six weeks. . . . Ralph Edwards is offering $1,000 to anyone bringing a little man from Mars to his show. Doesn't even have to bring along the saucer that whirled him to earth.

IN CHICAGO

Milton F. Allison, former sales manager for WLW-TV, joins WBBM as assistant sales manager. . . . Intercity Golden Gloves fights will be aired on Mutual and WGN tomorrow night (29) with General Mills sponsoring on WGN. Harry Creighton doing blow-by-blow for Mutual and Jack Brickhouse calling for WGN. . . . Len O'Connor's weekly news roundup, "Sunday Dateline," bowed March 26. . . . WMOR (FM) celebrated first anni March 21. . . . Joel Kupperman and Naomi Cooks back on "Quiz Kids" March 26 after several weeks' layoff. Victor Borge guested on same show. . . . Burt Squires, midwest BMI station relations chief, elected to Radio Pioneers last week. . . . Caesar Petrillo, WBBM music director, back from Florida vacation. . . . Andrew V. Christians moves from Chi CBS to radio-TV staff of McCann-Erickson. . . . Pauline Gregory, secretary in local sales department at WBBM, has resigned to become registrar for Columbia College of Drama and Radio here . . . . Mae Nommensen has joined Chi NBC as PBX operator. . . . Pauline Sepesi, MBS Central Division chief file clerk, bedded by flu bug last week. . . . Exiting Needham, Lewis & Brorby to do full time freelance scripting is Charles Andrews, currently doing writing on Dave Garroway AM and TV shows. . . . Richard Swift, general manager of WCBS, New York, and Don Miller, sales manager of same station, visited WBBM last week. . . . Dorothy Masters, NBC Chi continuity clerk, repping Chi volunteer workers at Travelers Aid Society confab in Boston. . . . Frank Atlass, formerly with Chi Daily News, takes post on WBBM local sales staff. . . . Earl Nightingale vacationing in Phoenix, Ariz. . . . Bob Elson interviewed veep Alben Barkley on WBBM's "On the Century" show March 24. . . . Ed Short, WJJD publicity director, back this week from Florida.

NHI (NBC's Answer To CBS' HPL) to Preem On Chi's WMAQ April 3

Chicago, March 28.

"National Home Institute," radio package owned by Don Searle and Jimmy Parks, bows on WMAQ Monday (3). Program, NBC's answer to CBS' Housewives Protective League, will be extended on local origination basis to other NBC O. & O.'s and affiliates if successful in Chi. It gets quarter-hour airings at 6 a. m. and 12:30 p. m., with provision for expansion to half hours.

One gimmick of NHI is that all products offering to sponsor the stint will have to undergo tests by U. S. Testing Co. for quality and value check, and if accepted will be permitted to carry the NHI "double check and guarantee seal," which entitles purchaser to double refund if products don't live up to aired claims, similar to Good Housekeeping's seal of approval. To qualify for the NHI seal, advertiser must use show for minimum of 13 weeks.

Program will be written by Herb Futran, and in Chi will be aired by Philip Hayes, a package-owned name. (Plans call for use of different name in each city.) It'll be human interest chatter with live integrated commercials. Morning and afternoon shows will be different.

On WMAQ, six participation announcement per week, alternating mornings and afternoons, will cost $645 weekly, with a 13-week rate of $585. Each city carrying the show will have a full-time merchandising man attached to the program. Conforming to NBC's policy of participation, each quarter hour period will be limited to three sponsors.

Searle and Parks plan to do an NHI television show in the fall.

Boston—Nelson Bragg has taken over two disk jockey shows on Hub's WCOP formerly conducted by Howard Malcolm, who has been dropped by station. Shows are the early 6 to 8:30 a. m. "Morning Watch" and the noontime "Record Rack."

how a WOR sponsor's sales went up—in smoke!

Wally Frank makes pipes (what ad man doesn't know that!).

Wally Frank wanted to sell more pipes — though it's no slouch when it comes to getting rid of high-priced briar.

Said they to WOR, "Hey, can you sell lots of pipes for us fast, at, mind you (they raised a warning finger), low cost?"

Said we, "Sure." Brass, you know.

Anyway, eight newscasts on WOR—just 8, mind you—started 5,899 people dropping coins into phones to call Wally Frank and say, "Look, let's have a pipe." The result? $23,301 in cold, hard cash for nice new pipes!

In other words, every dollar Wally Frank spent on WOR, produced $7.00 in sales.

That's selling. We do it daily. Can we do it for you?

Our address is—

WOR

— that power-full station at 1440 Broadway, in New York

The Paramount News-of-the-Week In Variety's Radio Section:

Keep Your Campaign Going Strong To Kill The Movie Tax!

Bing Crosby's

Best Picture in Years

Frank Capra's

Riding High

IS BEING SOLD TO THE PUBLIC ON EVERY RADIO SET IN AMERICA!

On Bing's morning program—on Bing's Chesterfield show—and by Bing's Chesterfield teammates, Arthur Godfrey and Perry Como. Simultaneously with first run dates—there'll be saturation-selling soon with radio guest shots, big C. B. S. assistance and special programming on many additional shows!

Now turn to VARIETY'S
MUSIC SECTION
where Paramount continues
the story of how every facet of show business is selling "Riding High"...

Frank Capra's "RIDING HIGH" starring BING CROSBY · Coleen Gray · Charles Bickford · Frances Gifford with William Demarest Raymond Walburn · James Gleason · Ward Bond · Clarence Muse · Percy Kilbride · Harry Davenport · Produced and directed by Frank Capra · Screenplay by Robert Riskin · Additional Dialogue by Melville Shavelson and Jack Rose · Based on a Story by Mark Hellinger · New Songs: Lyrics by Johnny Burke · Music by James Van Heusen

Tele Chatter

New York

Charles J. Basch elected veepee of the National Society of TV Producers, replacing Henry White, former World Video prez who recently joined CBS-TV. West Hooker, indie producer, was named to the Society's board . . . "Ranger Ranch Roundup," new western show for moppets, tees off Sunday (2) via WJZ-TV, featuring Oklahoma Boyd Heath, full-blooded Cherokee Indian . . . Laurel Films dickering with Dennis James to play himself in "Mr. Universe," feature picture on wrestling which Laurel will roll in N.Y. April 15, with Jack Carson starring . . . NBC tele veepee S. L. ("Pat") Weaver slated to speak before the Pittsburgh Advertising Club April 11 and the Brewers Assn. in San Francisco May 3 . . . Milton Douglas and Robert Schoellhorn named veepees of Product Advertising Corp., agency now handling DuMont's "Cavalcade of Bands" and "Cavalcade of Stars." Cora Story was named secretary of the company. Jose Ferrer set as guest emcee on NBC's "Saturday Night Revue" this week (1) from N.Y., with Vincent Price guesting on the Chicago part of the show. . . . George Stoetzel, former lighting consultant for film producer Louis de Rochemont and CBS tele, now handling the same job for Robert Montgomery's "Lucky Strike Theatre" via NBC . . . Wendy Barrie, now aired via NBC, does her 500th consecutive video show tomorrow night (Thurs.) . . . DuMont's "Hands of Murder" retitled "Hands of Destiny," to allow more scope in the type of stories presented . . . Peter Donald signed by Roberts & Carr productions for an hour-long, across-the-board TV'er, to be titled "Nightcap" . . . Charles Sanford signed as music director on Bob Hope's Easter Sunday Frigidaire show via NBC . . . Maiden Form Brassiere picked up its option on Dorothy Doan's "Vanity Fair" show via CBS, through the Weintraub agency . . . Bernie London, formerly remotes director for CBS, signed to produce and direct pickups of the Cleveland Indian games this year for WXEL, Cleveland . . . Sydney Smith to boost her air time on DuMont's "Shoppers Matinee," doing a half-hour Tuesdays and Thursdays and 15 minutes Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays . . . J. R. Myers, NBC-TV controller, upped to the post of assistant to Carleton D. Smith, director of TV operations.

Gertrude Berg of CBS-TV's "Goldbergs," offered a film role by George Jessel. . . . Morey Amsterdam to guest on "Leave It To the Girls" April 30.

Bil Baird marionette show, "Life With Snarky Parker" on CBS-TV, to be seen five times a week starting April 3. Previously on on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. . . . Henry Morgenthau III, assistant program director of WNEW, shifts Monday (3) to CBS-TV production staff, handling Dorothy Doan's "Vanity Fair."

Hollywood

Milton Berle's brother Phil, has been taken on by KNBH as a producer . . . Radio and Television Directors Guild has opened negotiations with KECA-TV for a contract covering minimum wages . . . Harlan Thompson, producer of the Ed Wynn show, has been made supervisor of all CBS tele shows originating in Hollywood.

Chicago

George Heineman, NBC-TV producer, will instruct tele survey course added this year to eighth annual NBC-Northwestern University summer radio institute. . . . Danny O'Neill is singing emcee on "Windy City Jamboree," square dance and variety show which bowed March 26 on DuMont web from WGN-TV. . . . Ben Park, Chi NBC-TV producer, addressed Chi Publicity Club last week. . . . Hallicrafters is currently producing 1,000 teevee sets daily according to Raymond Durst, exec v.p. . . . Linn Burton will emcee WBKB's new quiz show, "Can You Remember?" which debuts March 30. . . . Jackson Industries has appointed Lawrence Advertising to help introduce new national line of low-cost video sets. Campaign calls for AM and TV ad schedule. . . . WBKB remote director Bill Balaban leaves Monday (27) for California vacation. . . . Peg Bolger, formerly publicity director for Wisconsin Central Airlines, and Norma Nessler have joined Cramer-Krasselt, Milwaukee ad agency, to work in "The Feminine Viewpoint," C-K tele package. Gloria Brooks, formerly chief continuity writer at WEMP, Milwaukee, is new member of C-K video production staff. . . . Tom Duggan launches new sports show, "Today's Baseball," April 18 on WNBQ. . . . Teeny, puppet character created by Helen Cirkle, is doing opening and closing commercials for WBKB's kinnied version of "Time for Beany." . . . "Baseball Preview for 1950," sports film featuring commentary by Harry Wismer debuted on WGN-TV March 22 on a three-times weekly schedule. . . . Easter Sunday Mass from Holy Name Cathedral will be telecast by WGN-TV. . . . Mary Hartline, Johnny Desmond, Patsy Lee, Jack Carter and Connie Russell will make guest appearances at Torch Cottilion, Chi-land high school ball April 14. Dance is sponsored by "Torch," citywide high school newspaper published by former VARIETY mugg, Marty O'Shaughnessy.

CBS-World Video

Continued from page 33

be stopped this year," said one Authors League rep.

Still another grievance from the writing profession's angle to such contests is that it "puts thousands of people to work on speculation, creating a vast pool of materials from which a commercial operator can then pick and choose. Carried to its logical extreme it would undermine literary economics."

Judges of the CBS awards are Charles Underhill and Donald Davis, of CBS, plus John Steinbeck of World Video. Latter's president, Herbert White, recently shifted over and became a CBS employee, too.

FACTS ON CHICAGO'S OUT-OF-HOME AUDIENCE*

MONDAY-FRIDAY 6:00 AM-6:00 PM W-I-N-D IS SECOND WITH 19.5% OF THE TOTAL AUDIENCE

SATURDAY 6:00 AM-6:00 PM W-I-N-D IS FIRST WITH 18.6% OF THE TOTAL AUDIENCE

SUNDAY 6:00 AM-6:00 PM W-I-N-D IS FIRST WITH 18.3% OF THE TOTAL AUDIENCE

WIND

*PULSE OF CHICAGO, OUT-OF-HOME SURVEY, JANUARY-FEBRUARY, 1950

560 KC-5000 WATTS • CHICAGO, ILLINOIS • 24 HOURS A DAY • KATZ AGENCY, INC., REP.

Inside Stuff—Radio

New York region of the National Labor Relations Board Thursday (23) turned down the petition of the Radio Writers Guild asking certification under the Taft-Hartley Act. Reason given was that council members of the Authors League have not signed non-Communist affidavits. RWG is now appealing to NLRB headquarters in Washington.

Question is important because it affects ALA affiliates, including Screen Writers Guild, Television Writers Group, Authors Guild and Dramatists Guild. ALA also feels the NLRB policy affects all U. S. labor unions, because it is viewed as an "arbitrary and unjustified" extension of the law which states that officers of unions must sign. ALA contends that council members are not officers. It has sent communications to the AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods and United Mine Workers informing them of "the problem posed to the league."

Immediately affected by the NLRB problem are SWG negotiations with studios and putting into effect of some RWG contracts.

Chairman Edwin C. Johnson of the Senate commerce committee said he wished Congress could award an "Oscar" to Theodore Granik for his program, "The American Forum of the Air." Appearing on the Forum's 22d anni broadcast Saturday (25) at NBC studios in Washington, Johnson said the program typifies "the very best example of democracy in action." "To Ted Granik and NBC," which carries the show over both TV and radio, he said, "I would like to convey the congratulations and thanks of my colleagues . . . for a program which continues to serve the highest interests of the public after 22 memorable and eventful years." Forum is saluted as "Our Unofficial Congress" by Ben Gross of the New York Daily News in an article in the current issue of Collier's.

NBC staffers are bridling at what they call the "austerity regime" at the network. Recent edict bars personnel from having coffee at their desks or going out for java. Another prohibits smoking in studio areas.

Question employees raise is whether the web's coffee and cigaret accounts won't complain.

Sign of growing newspaper attention to radio and television is the (Scripps-Howard) Cleveland Press' introduction last week of an enlarged AM-TV guide which occupies four full columns. Stan Anderson's daily column on broadcasting is dressed up with photo and cartoon.

'Keep It Clean'

Continued from page 33

tured on such programs as "Leave It to the Girls." The old revealing technique is out, and the gals are now forced to wear dresses that conceal from the neck down. Same restriction holds for guest talent, as evidenced by the low cut but non-revealing blouse worn by Gertrude Niesen on "Who Said That?" Monday night (27).

Question of the low-neckline gowns was put directly to her viewers by Faye Emerson on her CBS-TV show Monday night (27). Emphasizing she was speaking in dead earnest, the actress declared too much was being made of the problem on TV. She averred that 95% of the viewers writing in favored the low-cut dresses but asked for further viewer reaction on the basis that she doesn't want to offend anyone. According to Miss Emerson, she wears the same gowns on video that she would wear anywhere else at that time of night (11 to 11:15 p.m.).

DuMont web launched its clean-up move more than three months ago but, afraid that it might be tagged as too prudish, refrained from ballyhooing the crusade. Web has tacked up 3x5-foot posters in every studio and control room, which state: "Attention, producers, directors and talent: Your audience is the average American family—Mother and Dad—Junior and Sis—Grandma. You are a guest in their living-rooms. Any violation of this privilege through the use of material in bad taste, immoral business, situations, dialog, lyrics, routines or costuming, will not be tolerated by the DuMont Television Network." Declaration is signed by network chief Mortimer W. Loewi and program director James L. Caddigan.

Despite the placards, the web still finds itself involved in a continual hassle with over-zealous talent, who have different ideas of how far they can go in order to remain within the bounds of good taste. DuMont, to forestall too much "cleavage" on the part of its femme talent, keeps bouquets of flowers on hand at all times. If a gal now comes up with a gown cut too low, the web orders her to pin on one of the bouquets as a corsage.

Pittsburgh—Vincent Joyce, WWSW announcer, has resigned to join publicity department of BBDO in New York. He'll be assigned to "Theatre Guild On the Air" account. Joyce has also done some acting here for Pittsburgh Playhouse and got a degree from Pitt under GI Bill of Rights . . . Jim Hughes, veteran program director of WJAS, back on the job again after being laid up for four months with a heart condition . . . Boyd Fraser Tweedy, formerly of WARE in Ware, Mass., and WMNB, North Adams, Mass., has been added to the staff of WDTV.

Philly Daily News In TV Promotion Spree

Philadelphia, March 28.

The Philadelphia Daily News, the city's only non-affiliated daily, has bought television time on WPTZ to promote its comic strips and other daily features. News started with a Tuesday night participation in WPTZ's nightly Western film feature, "Frontier Playhouse."

In local advertising circles, Daily News time purchase is regarded as smart move for paper.

Daily News advertisement on WPTZ marks first strictly-for-cash time purchase of television by a Philly daily. The city's other two dailies, the Evening Bulletin and the Philadelphia Inquirer, restrict their TV ads to their own stations, WCAU-TV and WFIL-TV, respectively.

NBC 'Sat. Nite'

Continued from page 33

taining half-hour to a commercial one and so put in its order for affiliate time. Web had one such sponsor lined up, but, because it couldn't find the other two necessary, lost the original one. To date, only the 9:30-10 segment is commercial, with United Fruit, RCA and Swift holding down the participating spots.

Web's chief trouble in selling the show on its original participating plan is the reported attitude of sponsors that the $6,000 tariff per spot, while probably worth the money, can pay off better on other shows. For his $6,000, the bankrollers gets only one minute-long commercial and little identification with the show. For an additional $6,000, it is pointed out, he could buy a top half-hour show, get three minute-long plugs and be fully identified with the package. In addition, several potential clients have voiced the opinion that they could buy minute spots on the network for less than $6,000, although NBC's answer to that is that the choice spot times are no longer available.

Agencies also are reportedly worried about the eventual outcome of NBC's participating system. With the web packaging the entire program, it is pointed out, the agency's sole function after the minute-long film commercial is produced is to deliver it to the web in time for the show. For that the agency gets a commission of $900 per week (15% of $6,000). Agencies reportedly are worried that their clients might think they are earning their money too easily, and thus deal directly with the webs. As a result, the agencies believe their entire future role in TV might be at stake.

Big Jon

looks forward to a Big Future

As long as there are gals like Harriet Van Horne around, Big Jon has nothing to worry about.

Big Jon is Jon Arthur—writer, producer, director and co-star (along with a little guy named Sparky) of ABC's new Saturday morning radio show, NO SCHOOL TODAY.

NO SCHOOL TODAY started out in Cincinnati . . . in fact, it still starts out from there. And it went so well from Cincinnati that last month it went on the full ABC network. Then along came Miss Van H., and she gave it the full treatment. Let's let her tell what a honey of a show it is:

"NO SCHOOL TODAY beguiles the youngsters with songs, stories and pleasant little sermons from 9 to 11 a.m. For two hours, praise be, they've a show they can call their very own.

"What's the secret of the program? Well, it respects the dignity of children. They're treated as human beings—potential adults—and not as animated dolls. Master-mind of the show is a lanky young chap named Jon Arthur, the father of an 8-year-old girl.

"Besides telling stories and playing record albums, Big Jon acts as liaison officer between the "big people" and the "little people." He explains how it happens that diplomatic relations between these two groups sometimes break down completely. And, with solemn deference to the little ones, tells them how they may avoid such crises."

Big Jon's two-hour fun-fest is for sale (in quarter-hour segments) on ABC. The time is right. The price is right. The audience? Some 37,279,864 kids. Plus their parents—millions of parents who will (a) enjoy the show themselves, and (b) enjoy the fact that their 37,279,864 little darlings are being so well entertained. If YOU have something to sell this enormous chunk of the population, get the full details right away. Better call CIrcle 7-5700 today.

BIG JON uses his magic spyglass for all sorts of things. With it he can see how well his little listeners keep their promises. And it's good, too, for "general sightseeing" in exciting far-away places all over the world.

NO SCHOOL TODAY

9—11 A.M. est.

SATURDAYS ON ABC

ABC

American Broadcasting Company

Television Reviews

Continued from page 37

Sitting by the Window" by O'Neil. Paula Raye also registered nicely with "Candy and Cake."

These were the more conventional aspects to a session that came more alive with the hillbilly and folk performers. Square dance caller John Dolce and his troupe bounced folksily through one professionally-executed number while a group of amateurs from the audience participated in another, equally infectious, "Woo-Woo" Stephens, a mountaineer comedy singer who manipulates a standout guitar, was okay in a frankly corny vein.

A hot jazz bit featured the vet trumpeter Jimmy McPartland in a jam session with a hillbilly band, McPartland also played a fine horn to O'Neil's rendition of St. Louis Blues." Another highlight was a ballet set to "Frankie and Johnny" with dancers Jane Brockman and Bud Tygett doing a comic interpretation. Dick Edwards, a pantomimist, had a good turn in mimicking a cafeteria patron but it was dragged out slightly too long. Herm.

OFF THE CUFF
With Russ Davis
Producer: Barney Samet
Director: Scott Young
15 Mins.; Mon-thru-Fri., 6:15 p.m.
GREAT CHICAGO SURPLUS STORES
WBKB, Chicago
(Samet)

This show, using man-on-the-street technique, contributes very little to early evening viewing menu. Aside from jaded format, stint caught (22) seemed to take its "Off the Cuff" tag literally and was marred by too casual preparation. Emcee Russ Davis, who has built up a large following locally with his wrestling telecasts, doesn't seem cut out for this sort of thing as his patter with visiting pedestrians was, to put it kindly, unexciting.

Passersby are brought before cameras and asked to identify occupation of a "Mister X," using clues supplied by emcee. On this particular show none of the interviewees were able to, so Davis had to keep repeating same clues to each contestant. Each person was given the same prize, from sponsor's stock, for taking part. This was awkward in case of femme guest as prizes were men's shoes. Also awkward was emcee's difficulty in getting shoes untangled from lower buttons of his coat on which, for some reason, he'd looped them by their strings. At one point he had to call for help in getting them untangled. Identical plug for client's shoe sale was given with each award to sidewalk stooges.

Some element of interest might be added to segment by highlighting prize offered for correct identification. On this show it was never established what would have been the prize for the winner. And if gifts were arrayed on a box or something fronted by sponsor's name and address and occasionally caught by camera it would have been a more adept commercial presentation. Dave.

THAT YOUNG COUPLE
Brattle Players, with Jan Farrand, Robert Fletcher, Thayer David
Producer: Al Hartigan
Writer: Ruppert Pray
30 Mins., Sun. 4:30 p.m.
Associated Gas Cos.
WBZ-TV, Boston

A new entry in WBZ-TV's expanding video shows is this domestic roundelay, and judging from initialer it should build into a nifty series once it gets squared away. Teeoff production concerned itself largely with setting the characters and charting the trend for following sequences, although in itself it was a mildly amusing half hour.

With cast enlisted from local Brattle Players, a competent repertory group, plot is interwoven about a young, not overly bright couple, and their tribulations with his crotchety stuffed-shirt boss, and the unwelcome longerange visit of a rube uncle. With this type of situation to work on, scripter Ruppert Pray should have no difficulty preparing plenty of light followups to grab a sizeable segment of late Sunday afternoon viewers. At any rate, it is a step in the right direction as far as local shows go.

Sponsored by local Gas Cos., commercials were introduced neatly, barely interrupting the continuity of the script, as for instance, a plug for a gas range was squeezed into normal conversation by players with viewers hardly aware of its commercial aspect until staff announcer took over for a short pitch. Subtleness of approach added to impact of plug.

Sets showing interior of couple's suburban home, boss' antiquated office and modern gas appliance store were solid, entire stint showing highly-creditable direction and camera work. Elie.

JOAN BARTON SINGS
Director: Barry McKinley
5 Mins.; Mon.-thru-Fri., 6:30 p. m.
MUNTZ TV
WGN-TV, Chicago
(Michael Shore)

Thrush Joan Barton fits neatly into this five-minute frame. Poised and with an animated face, she's well adapted to video. On this stint (22) she registered nicely with "It's Later Than You Think" and closed segment with sincerely delivered commercial. As telecast is sponsored by a TV set producer, commercial might have hit harder by making a pitch, such as advantages of larger screen, aimed at second buyers rather than new buyers.

Camera action did well by Miss Barton and Bill Otto backed nicely at the piano. Dave.

FASHIONS ON PARADE
With Betty Campbell, Others
15 Mins.; 3:45 p.m., Sun.
M. SOLOMON
WRGB-TV, Schenectady
(Goldman, Walter & Kanna)

New program is a "must" for femme viewers and may hold a limited appeal for some of their better-halves. It's timely and it's well spotted—before Mrs. Roosevelt's network show. Format of opener was simple: three models paraded spring clothes (for a bride's trousseau), while Betty Campbell read an off-screen commentary. Cameras spotlighted the gals as they walked toward and up a pair of stairs to a platform (not easy, with grace) as well as back down again.

One was identifiable as Annette Demgen, who under name of Louella Hurd won fame in the John Robert Powers New York contingent. Tall, slender, graceful, brunet and arresting, she models with an unmistakable poise and flair. A second young lady—they belong to a group that recently formed an Albany agency—is a medium, oval-faced blond who photographs beautifully. She demonstrates Hollywood and New York have no monopoly on looks. Third gal is also a blond; her best opportunity came in the final shot.

Too many clothes were pictured in a short period of time, effect of last minutes being too hurried. Once or twice, the models changed facial expressions before they were out of camera range. Cameras and lights maintained a fine level. Miss Campbell, of WOKO, Albany, handled the commentary well, although it could have been shaded less wordy. Voice came through clearly and pleasantly; there might have been finer modulation. She photographed well in several shots.

Directors rates praise. Jaco.

LADIES DAY
With Tom Brooks, Bud Abbott, Jack Crutcher Combo (5)
Producers: Bud Johnson, Sandy Sanders
Director: Johnson
30 Mins., Mon.-thru-Fri., 3:30 p.m.
STOKELY FOODS
WHAS, Louisville

Audience participationer is going over big with the ladies. It gives them an opportunity to gander the new building housing WHAS and WHAS-TV, and to win for themselves a mess of loot in the form of canned vegetables and other sponsor's products.

Format of the show is the usual q. and a. stuff, with a few switches on the standard pat formula which gives the session interest to the listener. One of the first, and a regular daily stunt, is the playing backwards of a recorded saying or proverb. Gals are given rather handsome prizes for guessing this one, as well as canned corn, and other stuff such as a kitchen clock and a fruit juicer. It's obvious that most of them make the trek downtown to sit in on the show primarily to win the giveaway stuff, but they do enjoy the show, evidenced by their squeals and screams at the comic stuff.

Tom Brooks, with a natural comedic flair, keeps the action going. Brooks doesn't let himself go in the comedy line as much as he does on shows where he is not inhibited with contestants, etc. His partner, Bud Abbott, and quite a funny man in his own right, plays it more or less straight in this stanza, and okay too. Wied.

TELEPHONE GAME
With Rusty Arden, Franklin Pulaski
Producers: Ted Wright, Dave Davidow
Participating
30 Mins. Mon-Fri., 4 p.m.
WFIL-TV, Phila.

"Telephone Game" is a new merchandising gimmick which combines the appeal of quizzer with a legally acceptable form of Bingo. Boyle-Midway, Inc., makers of Wizard Wick home deodorizer, and Personal Products Corp., manufacturer of Yes Tissues, are picking up the tab for half-hour, cross-the-board late afternoon show.

Main purpose of program is to place sponsors' products in hands of winning players, by means of a selective sampling technique aimed to get customers into stores—thus benefitting both manufacturer and dealer. Viewers can play game using either telephone number or social security card numbers. They are asked to write letters WFIL-TV on sheet of paper, leaving space under each letter to place four numerals either from phone number or social security card.

To win, a contestant must circle all four figures under the call letters, and to do so correctly he must know the right answers to the emcee's questions. When a player has circled all four figures he phones the studio, where a special corps of operators are on duty to accept calls and confirm winning cards. Players wishing to save price of toll call may mail in cards.

Winners get certificates to pick up two bottles of Wizard Wick and two packages of Yes Tissues, in addition to other prizes. The certificates are redeemable at the stores of local dealers. Rusty Arden and Franklin Pulaski, who share the quizmaster roles, are somewhat on the coy side. Stills relating to queries are flashed on screen helping to break up constant shots of the pair of interrogators. Inquiries are middle-weight, but intelligent. Gagh.

Hi-V's Godfrey

Continued from page 33

the Stork Club, N. Y. eatery. CBS is now building a studio on the third floor of the Stork for a reported $50,000 and plans to present Faye Emerson in chit-chat interviews with guest celebs. Since it considers that 7:45 to 8 period the best possible time for the program, it has written into its contract with hi-V the right to regain the time on two weeks' notice when, as and if it lines up a sponsor for the Stork Club series. When that happens, Godfrey will probably be moved back into the 6:45 to 7 slot.

New Godfrey show will give CBS four days a week of solid programming in that time period. Popsicle launches its "Parade of Stars" series next month in the Monday night 7:45 slot, and Earl Wrightson has the "Masland at Home" show at that time on Wednesdays. Friday night period is still open. Two new 15-minute segments, incidentally, raise the total of Godfrey's radio and TV airers to eight hours and 45 minutes weekly, putting him on every day of the week except Sunday. Godfrey has long used the uke in his radio and video programs, which prompted the new series.

Cleveland — Arthur Smith of Boston has joined the WJW sales department. Thomas J. Carson, WKZO, with the same station's announcement staff. Clem Skerback, Kent, O., now with the WTAM news staff.

Baby 'Overflow' in Penna. Town Due to WWSW's 'Tip' Brings Flood of Beefs

Pittsburgh, March 28.

From now on, Ray Schneider, chief announcer at WWSW, is going to look more closely at the symbols in the station's official gazetteer. Recently Schneider, who runs a daily "Blessed Events" program, got letters on the same day announcing two arrivals in town of Sabraton, W. Va.

He didn't know how to pronounce Sabraton, so he looked it up in the gazetteer and discovered under the population the figure 2. Schneider immediately jumped to the conclusion that was the number of families there and that the entire town had babies all at once. He passed the information along to the WWSW publicity department and it was subsequently passed along to a local columnist.

Latter didn't double-check and ran the item. Then the very devil broke loose. Practically the entire community of Sabraton wrote in to protest. That figure 2 after population didn't stand for two families but 2,000 people.

Tele Followups

Continued from page 37

great gusto and without a single fluff. Classical drama served as good display piece for Berwyn stage facilities and Brad McCall sets and props were knockouts. Harvey Marlowe is TV producer and Sherwood Keith is stage director, with resident stock company handling principal roles.

Barrington's initial plan to telecast series of classical dramas terminated abruptly Monday (27), however, in a hassle with Equity over TV pay charges. Sardou's "A Scrap of Paper," which played at Berwyn over weekend was not telecast by WFIL-TV Monday night (8-9 p.m.), and station has withdrawn promotional activities on series. Berwyn group, however, is to continue functioning as stock company and give full-length productions instead of condensed telecast versions of plays. Modern plays are to be given as company veers into regular summer stock program.

"Ride the Pink Horse," staged on Robert Montgomery's "Lucky Strike Theatre" Monday night (27) via NBC-TV, boasted probably the most ambitious sets and widest scope of any live video dramatic presentation to date. For that very reason, however, the show failed to click. Requisite pacing for the mood meller was slowed to a walk through the necessity of holding a closeup on one scene or character, whie the actors raced to get to another scene. Montgomery and his production staff are to be commended for their efforts, but TV apparently—and unfortunately—is not yet ready for such a top-scale production.

Sets designed by Syrjala for the show occupied the entire space of the large WOR-TV studio which NBC leases for this series, so that the orchestra and commercial spot productions were moved back to the Radio City studios. Depth of the stage was easily apparent and the sets were striking, particulary the full-sized carousel, the bus station, hotel lobby, dining room, etc. But TV also requires them to be functional. This might have been achieved through a different adaptation of the Dorothy B. Hughes story, but that might have marred the dramatic impact of the show. Robert Cenedella scripted the adaptation.

Montgomery did his first acting job in the series with "Horse," repeating the role he originated in the Universal film. He scored impressively as the taciturn, embittered ex-GI, out to avenge the death of his buddy. Also standout in the cast was Thomas Gomez, ragged Mexican operator of the carousel who befriended Montgomery. He, too, did the same role in the picture. Susan Douglas was slightly too wide-eyed as the young Mexican girl and Stiano Braggiotti evidenced over-thesping as the villain of the piece. But Eileen Heckert, as his girl-friend, and Vaughn Taylor, as the Government agent, were good.

Montgomery used a cast of some 35 extras to capture the necessary fiesta mood in the story. Irony of the melodramatics occurring against the fiesta backdrop was often caught. Withal, however, the show lacked the punch it should have contained.

Thanks to the Industry:

for

Academy of Radio and Television

Best Arts and Sciences Award

as the Nation's Outstanding Sportscaster.

Mel Allen.

this March WNEW had the highest rating of any March in WNEW history!

SOURCE: PULSE, AVERAGE ¼-HOUR
8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Monday through Saturday

More and more
your favorite station for music and news

WNEW

1130 | ON YOUR DIAL

Hour-Long Stanza Appeal, Block Programming Intriguing Admen

Importance of block programming in video, and the added impact of hour-long shows, are beginning to set network and agency toppers revising their old theories that the viewer is an inveterate dial-twister.

Seven of the shows in Hooper's latest telerating "Top 10" are 60-minute airers and two others are adjacent to hour-long stanzas. In the listing are "Texaco Star Theatre," "Toast of the Town," "Arthur Godfrey and Friends," "Stop the Music," "Kraft Theatre," "Philco Playhouse" and the Robert Montgomery show—all hour broadcasts. "Lone Ranger," although only 30 minutes, precedes "Stop the Music" and "Fireside Theatre" follows the top-rated Berle stint. Godfrey's "Talent Scouts," only half-hour in the lineup that isn't adjacent to a king-size show, has the Godfrey draw and relatively weak opposition.

Admen and broadcasters are now reasoning that the longer shows constitute "blocks" by themselves and, despite the added time costs, pay off with hypoed ratings. Talentwise, the hour series are proving economical. Philco's tab comes to $6,500 for a half-hour segment, "Stop the Music" is $5,250 per half-hour and "Toast" $4,500 per half-hour, which compare favorably with production costs on 30-minute packages. More pretentious offerings, however, such as the Montgomery and Berle shows, are brought in more expensively.

Additional evidence of the long program's pull is NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Revue." And while its budget is around $50,000 weekly, it's cited, it figures to only $10,000 per half-hour.

Other hour-long stanzas, such as CBS-TV's "Ken Murray Show" and DuMont's "Cavalcade of Bands," while not placing right at the top, nevertheless are in the upper brackets. All of which has some agencies mulling whether they shouldn't expand their shorter programs to "feature-length." Additional expense, they feel, may be worthwhile in view of garnering a lower cost-per-thousand figure.

'Box 13's' Pitt Coin

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Alan Ladd's transcribed mystery show, "Box 13," has finally found a local outlet. It's been sold to the Duquesne Light Co., Pittsburgh utilities concern, and will be heard every Tuesday evening at 7 over WCAE, the ABC station here.

Following a series of auditions among station personnel, Ralph Fallert, chief announcer at WCAE, was selected to do the cut-in commercials.

Edwards Checks Off KMBC After 20-Year Service

Kansas City, March 28.

Last Saturday marked the final appearance for Eddie Edwards on the "Brush Creek Follies," KMBC's visual hillbilly and western hour. Edwards had been with the show since its inception nearly 13 years ago, and has been the producer for the past several years.

John Gordon, formerly manager of KMBC's Texas Rangers, takes over the producing post on the "Follies" and will handle other production chores at the station, generally filling the Edwards vacancies.

Edwards has played George Washington White, colored comic, of the "Follies" from the beginning, and with his departure the character also bows out. Edwards, who had been with KMBC for 20 years, goes to KWFT, Wichita Falls, Tex.

FCC OPENS OFFICE AS AID TO DRAFT ORDERS

Washington, March 28.

As part of its functional reorganization, the FCC yesterday (27) established an Office of Formal Hearing Assistants to advise the Commission in drafting orders, opinions and decisions.

Chief of OFHA is Parker D. Hancock, with Sylvia D. Kessler as attorney-advisor.

Transit Radio Set To Ride Trenton Buses

Cincinnati, March 28.

Trenton, N. J., will become the 22d city to accept service of Transit Radio, Inc., if the 30-day probationary test being made there on five buses is approved by WTOA and the Trenton Transit Co., R. C. Crisler, executive veepee of TR, with headquarters here, said.

Provided the green light is forthcoming, Crisler stated, FM receivers will be installed on 150 of 179 vehicles for an initial five-year period.

Cantor's Idea for Regan

Eddie Cantor is working on a script show for singer Phil Regan to be titled "Precinct 77." Primed for NBC.

Regan, ex-Brooklyn cop, makes it a natural for a singing gendarme idea to top off the whodunits, a la the Dick Powell technique with "Richard Diamond, Private Eye."

Transmission Sabotage At WBT Brings Jail Terms

Charlotte, N. C., March 28.

Sterling L. Hicks was convicted Friday night (24) of conspiracy with Chesley M. (Chudd) Lovell to damage WBT transmission facilities outside Charlotte on the Ford Road.

Hocks and Lovell were each sentenced to serve not less than 18 nor more than 24 months in the county jail.

Burnett's Revamp For Bigtime Splash

Chicago, March 28.

The mushrooming Leo Burnett ad agency, which last week added the Mars Candy account to its growing list of new business, has revamped its organizational setup to handle its expanding radio and tele activities. Currently the agency has eight network shows on the air, and research is under way on AM and TV plans for the Mars account and portions of the Procter & Gamble and Kellogg billings recently acquired.

Announcement of the moves was made by William L. Waddell, v.p. in charge of broadcasting. Clair Callihan has been placed in charge of radio and video production in Chi and will coordinate AM and TV production in Los Angeles and New York offices. William J. McIlvain, who has been handling agency's radio and tele biz in New York, is new New York broadcasting manager.

Gilbert McClelland, formerly Mutual promotion manager, joins Burnett as promotion manager of broadcasting department with Verne Burnett, Jr., as his assistant. New assistant director of broadcasting is Lee Bland, formerly with WCCO, Minneapolis.

Time buying, facilities and contracts have been shifted from the broadcasting department to the media department under the supervision of Arthur A. Porter. Under the new setup the broadcasting section will concentrate on the creative phases of the agency's radio and teevee operations.

Beginning April 10, Pillsbury Mills, major Burnett account, will sponsor first 15-minute segment of Arthur Godfrey's morning CBS stint.

Azcarraga

Continued from page 33

fewer headaches. Heavy emphasis will be placed on sports (beisbol, futbol, basquetbol, racing, wrestling, boxing and, of course, bullfighting). Kidslanted shows will be easy, including puppet shows and Spanish-dubbed Hopalong Cassidy and other western films. New Mexican pix may be difficult to get, but Argentine and European product will also be used. Azcarraga is buying up 400 Yankee features and will pick up Continental pix on his trip.

Video with a Spanish accent will depend greatly on simulcasts, but a survey of Azcarraga's XEW and XEQ shows a high percentage of stanzas allowing simultaneous AM-TV transmission. Mexican Musicians Union has given the green light and has inked a pact permitting simulcasts if the instrumentalists get 25% extra, plus fees for makeup and costume changes. It's also expected that AM advertisers will be willing to pay a small additional charge for converting their airers to simulcasts.

Azcarraga, who is also in films (through the Churubusco Studio) and an exhibitor (owning interests in 37 theatres around the Mexican capital), isn't afraid of TV's impact on pictures. "I was in the phonograph field when radio came along," he points out, "and if television hurts the film business—well, it's the public who will decide."

To put video across in Latin America, he says, it's necessary to discover low-cost methods. Camarena is experimenting with equipment bought from bankrupt U.S. FM stations, which will be used as the audio. Cameras will be limited to two and film will be confined to 16mm. Additionally, the Latins will have to unite to advance video in all the Spanish-speaking lands, to bring down the unit cost of Spanish vidpix.

Inside Television

NBC-TV's "Philco Playhouse" again this week beat the major film studios to the punch in adapting a new novel for its Sunday night series. "Second Oldest Profession," penned by Robert Sylvester, N. Y. Daily News' drama editor, was staged on "Philco" Sunday night (26). Twentieth-Fox bought the novel for a film to star Gregory Peck, but the picture probably won't be ready for release for another six months.

While the "Philco" series is put on film via kinescope, there is no conflict with the film companies over rights. NBC and the sponsor are legally permitted to retain their film rights for a maximum of 90 days. Kine prints must then be destroyed, with all rights reverting back to the author.

To be or not to be—in the black in television. It seems the query as to whether television stations will ever get in the black has been replaced by a new question. This is: Should we admit it if we're in the black? Coast tele exec pointed out that it does sound great to say the station is now operating at a profit, but offered some reasons for not admitting that all is going quite that well. Exec said the first thing that happens when you announce you're using black ink is that talent immediately asks for more coin. Following this, in step packagers, staff directors, office personnel and the unions all asking for a pay raise. 'Tis true the exec admitted that there will probably be more sponsors knocking on your door, but will the added bankrollers balance the wage scale increase?

Sales effectiveness of television spot commercials, as measured by brand acceptance, tops the effectiveness of commercials on network sponsored shows, it's disclosed in the Starch TV Reports for March. Report pointed out that the spots included in the study generally had the advantage of choice adjacencies and frequency of repetition, so that the results are not necessarily indicative of all spot users. But, it noted, with a given audience and good copy, the impact of spots can match that of commercials in regular shows.

Starch also revealed that the Congoleum plugs on NBC-TV's "Garroway at Large," included in the study for the first time this month, scored exceptionally high. Favorable viewer reaction was 46% men and 50% women, much better than average. "General result tends to confirm the effectiveness of the integrated commercial using the program star for delivery," the report stated.

Radio-Television Directors Guild membership unanimously voted Monday (27) authorizing its council to call a strike "if deemed necessary" against DuMont. Guild resolution declared that RTDG represents a majority of the web's directors and associate directors and that it has been unable to get recognition since starting talks last October. Meeting of the union with DuMont will be held today (Wed.).

WNBT, key outlet of the NBC web in N. Y., has lined up 11 sponsors to date for its novel "Spot the Sponsor" series, which tees off either April 10 or 17. Packaged by Varney & Thomas, the show comprises four one-minute spots each evening. First spot will show viewers the brand packages of each bankroller, while one will be missing in each succeeding commercial. Viewers will then be asked to identify the missing brands, with $100 daily to be awarded as prizes. Same show, incidentally, may start by May 10 via WNBQ, the web's Chicago outlet.

Sponsors signed so far for the first 13-week cycle include Snowcrop Orange Juice, Savarin Coffee, Dell-Rich Margarine, Old Dutch Cleanser, Swift's Peanut Butter, Derby Foods, Pepsi-Cola, Post's Sugar Crisps, Ward's Breads, SOS Cleaning Pads and Seven-Minute Mix.

WFDR's ADA Pickup

WFDR, N. Y. FM outlet, will air the third convention of Americans for the Democratic Action in Washington, Saturday and Sunday (1-2).

International Ladies Garment Workers Union station is putting lines into the Shoreham hotel, and will beam talks by labor and political leaders, including Eleanor Roosevelt, circuit court justice William H. Hastie, Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan, AFL prexy William Green, United Auto Workers prexy Walter Reuther, and a skit with gabbers Charles Collingwood, Elmer Davis, Martin Agronski and Quincy Howe.

'Sunday Serenade' Back On ABC; Franklin Buildup

ABC is setting new stanzas for Sammy Kaye and Joe Franklin. The bandleader's "Sunday Serenade," which has been off the web for some years, returns as a half-hour sustainer Sunday (2) at 1 p.m.

Franklin, heard six times weekly on WJZ, N. Y., with his antique record collection, will get a half-hour early evening series on the network, starting in a couple of weeks. Show will be called "Joe Franklin's Guest Night" and feature celeb interviews and diskings.

for profitable selling INVESTIGATE

WDEL
WILMINGTON
DELAWARE

WGAL
LANCASTER
PENNSYLVANIA

WKBO
HARRISBURG
PENNSYLVANIA

WRAW
READING
PENNSYLVANIA

WORK
YORK
PENNSYLVANIA

WEST
EASTON
PENNSYLVANIA

and

WDEL·TV
WILMINGTON
DELAWARE

WGAL·TV
LANCASTER
PENNSYLVANIA

NBC AFFILIATES

STEINMAN STATIONS
Clair R. McCollough, Managing Director
Represented by ROBERT MEEKER ASSOCIATES
Chicago San Francisco New York Los Angeles

Bigger More Better

Bigger by 120,590 (18.5% MORE) listening families in the daytime and 112,780 (16.1% MORE) listening families at night than in 1946 . . .

WFIL is the only Philadelphia network station to show audience gains both day and night in BMB's 1949 survey.

WFIL has increased its actual listening audience by half a million people—both day and night—since 1946. Progress with Philadelphia's most progressive station. Right now, in 1950, WFIL will work night and day to carry your sales message to the largest BONUS AREA in BMB's Philadelphia Report.

Better Buy WFIL . . A BETTER BUY THAN EVER . . .

WFIL
The Philadelphia Inquirer Station

Represented by THE KATZ AGENCY ABC AFFILIATE

PHILCO TELEVISION PLAYHOUSE

Heartfelt thanks to everyone in show business who has done so much to make this honor possible.

Philco Television Playhouse, NBC Network and affiliated stations from coast to coast
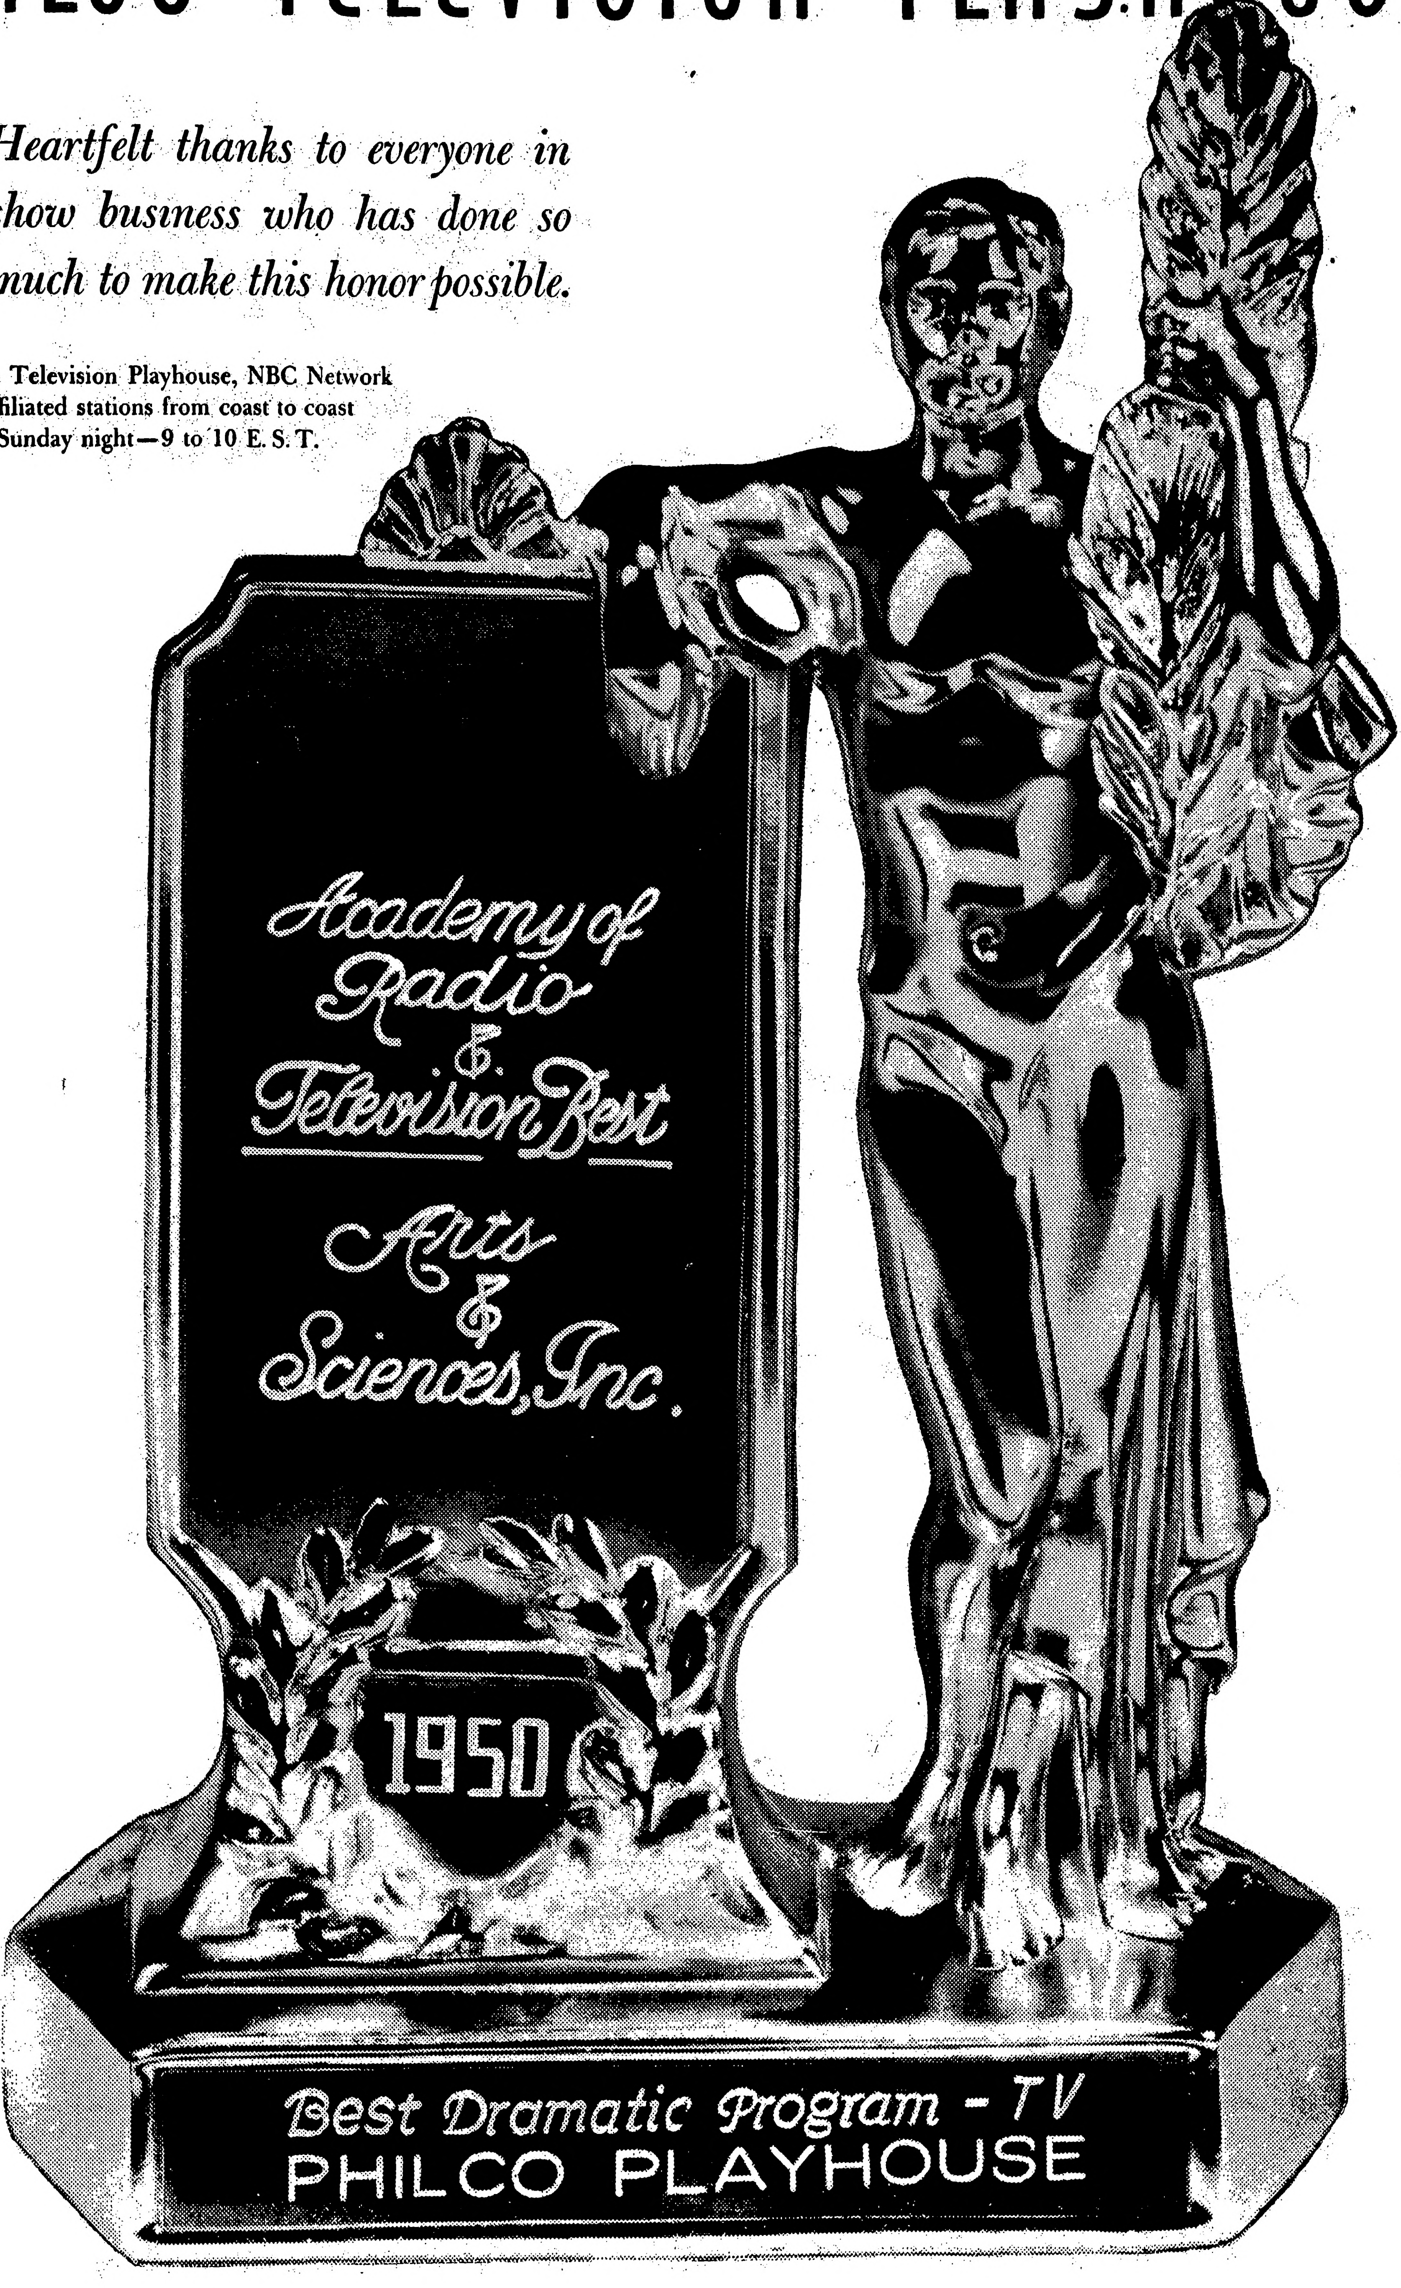
every Sunday night—9 to 10 E. S. T.



Academy of Radio & Television Best Arts & Sciences, Inc.
1950
Best Dramatic Program - TV
PHILCO PLAYHOUSE

Italian Radio: Ted Hudes

Continued from page 31

a sequel to the picture, which is being readied now for Arnold Hartley's WOV by George Cueto and Vera Fontanela. WOV Rome outfit is quite busy preparing a whole series of typically Italian special events, and from what I heard, the Voice of the New York indie is doing quite a good job here.

The Maggio Florentin will probably be a special occasion for the American broadcasters to pick up some good spots. At present the performances of Milan's La Scala, London's Old Vic and Paris' Comedie Francaise are assured. This will be an opportunity for our video to pick up some excellent dramatic performances and beautiful settings prepared by Giovanni Vagnetti and Tozzo.

An International Conference of European Wavelengths was held in Florence and Rappallo. It seems that the work of the Conference started in Brussels and Copenhagen, is moving very slowly, and the European countries, even after the walkout of the eastern block, are unable to come to any agreement regarding the distribution of the most important medium wave channels. The involuntary jamming in Europe in the last years was quite a nuisance, and of course countries like France and Belgium, whose signals are often crossfaded by such powerful transmitters like Rome, Hilversum and Geneva, would like to arrive at an agreement.

The same cannot be said about the countries which possess a better point of penetration on the European dial. Francesco Formosa of RAI told me that these conferences will probably last for years before some kind of agreement will be reached. Even then the powerful transmitters of Radio Praha and Warzawa II-Rszyn will still be out of control and will dominate a lot of the European ether space.

Radio Vatican stepped up its operations, taking advantage of the Holy Year. Its programming is limited to the musical ceremonies in the Basilica. Liturgical chants, the Sistine Choir and Pope Pius XII blessings, Urbi et Orbi, were prominently featured. Radio Vatican has just started its television operations. The transmitter and studio equipment were provided by the French industry, and well-informed people comment on this fact as a decisive bit on the part of the French to get hold of Vatican as a possible vehicle for future television operations on the peninsula.

The Dutch, with Philips in the lead, have been trying for quite a long while to build the first video outlet in Milan or Turino. Some experimenting is going ahead in these two cities, but the Italian government is still reluctant to give any licenses, waiting for a new Italian television set to be developed by Marconi.

In the meantime Italian curiosity about American television is mounting. Newsreels in large cities show American families at their sets watching Signor Berle."

Giveaways

Continued from page 31

been determined. It's possible a different group may sit.

Arguments are not likely to consume more than two days, with Max Goldman, chief of the FCC litigation division, and Joseph A. McDonald, veepee and general attorney for ABC, expected to argue the merits of the ban. The Court may hand down a decision within a week or a month at the latest. However it decides, an appeal to the Supreme Court will be taken in time for argument at the October term. If the lower court sustains the ban, however, there is no certainty the high tribunal will grant consent to review.

Arguments on the case may be expected to touch on the FCC's authority to adopt regulations based on a law which is incorporated in the Criminal Code, freedom of speech, due process, and the question of what constitutes a lottery. The fact that no money consideration is paid by audience participants to radio giveaways is likely to be an issue in the definition of a lottery.

Meanwhile, the giveaways have been losing audience and broadcasters are looking elsewhere for new program ideas. Testifying early this year before the House Appropriations Committee, Chairman Wayne Coy said that nearly half of the prize and money shows have disappeared and that they may be all forgotten before the case is litigated in the courts.

DuMont Mystery

Continued from page 32

out that "Mama" has been an exemplary influence in the home and that kiddies got a chance to see it despite lateness of hour because it came on an evening preceding a vacation day from school.

Inasmuch as WDTV is the only television station in Pittsburgh, execs figured it was the better part of valor to restore "Mama," despite the fact that "Hands of Murder" is a DuMont property and had been sold commercially to a local sponsor, Hudson Auto Dealers. The "Mama" program was offered a later spot on another night, which would have brought it here on kinescope, but Maxwell House Coffee, which bankrolls the series, would have none of that.

"Hands of Murder" was on only one time, March 17, with "Mama" returning the following Friday (24). Quick action by WDTV didn't hurt it any public relations-wise, since columnists all patted station on the back for its decision.

Courtesy of M-G-M
'THE GREAT RUPERT'
For George Pal Prods.
THE CAMEL SHOW
Every Friday Nite, 9:30 E.S.T., NBC
Mgt.: LOU CLAYTON

JACK GILFORD

Currently R.K.O. PALACE, New York

LExington 2-1100

New York Post: "Gilford's stint on cigarette smoking particularly hilarious."

Variety: While on the Milton Berle TV Show March 14 . . . "Jack Gilford scored solidly."

New York Compass: "Jack Gilford, a comedian of whom there is no duplicate anywhere!"

Recently Featured on Broadway in "ALIVE AND KICKING"

Cuban Overload

Continued from page 30

specting NARBA. The Latin nation, it is learned, is continuing to use unallocated frequencies without regard to the impact of her channel-raiding on stations in the U.S. and other countries.

U.S. delegates contend the Cuban departures from NARBA have not been made to provide radio services to meet public demands but merely to add new stations, particularly to the cluster of outlets in Havana. They feel that Cuba is using frequencies without regard to a public concept based on the proper relationship of needs to national service. They assert that the 28 stations in Havana far exceed a need for facilities based upon social, or economic considerations.

Senate-Richards

Continued from page 30

said, "every member of the Senate is aware that such distortion is effected by radio stations. I am of the opinion that much of the distortion in news reports that goes out over the radio has been done in favor of the Administration."

Bridges was careful to point out that he was giving only his personal opinion when he said: "I am determined that Mr. Richards shall not be punished for his personal views. I hope that the Senate (Interstate Commerce) Committee will explore this matter carefully to see that the (Richards) hearings are fair."

A couple of weeks ago, Sen. Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), in questioning FCC's motives in the Richards case, was so cagey in his remarks that he did not even mention Richards by name. But it took no Dunninger to figure out to whom he referred when he spoke of a station owner "who has expressed strong personal views which appear to be pro-Republican and anti-Communist." Ferguson got in his licks by suggesting partiality by the Commission in not taking action against an unnamed broadcaster who has been associated with "numerous Red-front organizations."

Meanwhile, dopesters here are already speculating on losses which Richards would take on failure to obtain license renewals. It's estimated the three stations are worth about $5,000,000. With the proceedings under way, it's considered doubtful that FCC could legally permit the properties to be sold. It's also doubtful purchasers would be interested in licenses which may become available (via revocation) to bidders at no cost.

When and if the three 50 kw frequencies become available it's probable the successful applicants would desire to purchase the physical facilities—transmitters, sites, studio equipment, etc. Since it might take a year to equip such stations from the ground up, it's believed that Richards could get more than the replacement value of the facilities. These, it's estimated, might bring anywhere from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

At any rate, nobody believes Richards will land in the poorhouse.

Belding

Continued from page 29

000,000 account to BBD&O a few years back, it marked the ascendancy of Cone and his Chi operation into the kingpin spot. (It's estimated that Chi accounts for about $30,000,000 a year of the agency's total billings, with both N. Y. and L. A. around $9,000,000 to $10,000,000 each).

With Belding relinquishing his post as chairman of the executive committee to assume the presidency, the former post will be left vacant. Foote also headed the agency's international division and Peter Franceschi, FC&B veepee and general manager, takes over the latter end of the biz.

What's Your Rate?

Continued from page 31

is the highest for the month the station has racked up since 1942.

Trend Starts in Philly

Philadelphia, March 28.

WFIL may have started what may well become a trend as the first station in the country to adjust its rates because of the competition of television. Move is certain to be repeated in cities where AM has video competition.

Night rates at WFIL were dropped $30 an hour and the daytime rates were increased $52, making both hourly rates $300. Action came virtually on the eve of a BMB survey showing WFIL had a higher audience gain than any other Philly network station, and was the only web outlet here to show an increase in the nighttime field.

WFIL has been moving toward a one-rate policy for time, other than that which might be termed "classified," much like a newspaper's rate structure. According to general manager Roger Clipp: "Daytime rates on most broadcasting stations, in our opinion, have been too low. The job radio has been doing for advertisers during the daytime periods provides an abundance of evidence that results, per dollar expended, make radio one of the most economical advertising mediums in the world. What we are doing today, most of the industry will do tomorrow."

Admitting that television's coverage pattern and potential audience is increasing constantly, Clipp felt that this was a natural process during the formative years of the medium. 'The same can still be said of radio after a quarter century, he argued, pointing out the number of radio sets in use increased 7,000,000 during 1949.

"It was whispered, then shouted, that when television entered the home radio died. Surveys modified this impression, most of them giving video the edge the first six months of ownership after which time the home viewer again became a listener, although on a selective schedule.

"Nighttime radio is not doomed on its own account, but it certainly is facing formidable opposition. The well-known difference between night and day, therefore, is becoming more applicable to radio sales technique than ever before. I believe daytime radio is destined to become our most effective and lowest cost advertising medium," Clipp declared.

Competition

Continued from page 30

factory utilization of our available broadcast spectrum."

The FCC took issue with WKUL's contention that its program service would suffer as a result of the establishment of another station, and thus the public would suffer. "This obviously does not follow," the Commision said, "since the public will be enjoying not only the petitioner's (WKUL's), but a new service. What the public may lose at one point it will gain in another."

Similarly, the agency said, "the public interest is not concerned with the possibility that the new station or WKUL may be forced to cease operation because of inadequate revenues. The likelihood and even the certainty of some business failures is the price of competition. Congress, in determining that the broadcast industry should be competitive, has decided that the price is not too high, considering the benefits which flow therefrom."

Furthermore, the Commission declared, there's no way of anticipating the results of establishing two stations. "One station may rapidly drive the other out of business; both stations may survive... the possibilities are numerous, and since they lie in the future and stem from the interaction of individual purposes, energies, perseverance and resourcefulness in a dynamic situation over a period of time, the ultimate results . . cannot be predicted."

In a separate opinion, Commissioner Robert Jones said he would have voted for a hearing if WKUL had given sufficient facts to show that the service rendered by both stations "would be pulled down below the low-water mark" required by the Communications Act.

'AUCTION' ON-AIR TRIAL TO AID CANCER FUND

ABC-TV will do an on-the-air audition of a projected hour-long series, "Auction Block," featuring Martin Block, "Supper Club" announcer and WNEW, N. Y., disk jockey, as emcee. If show goes on as a regular airer, proceeds would go each month to a different charity. On the audition telecast, to be staged early next month, take will go to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Format will consist of Block's auctioning off between $50,000 and $100,000 of merchandise on each stanza to the theatre audience, with home viewers able to "buy" duplicates by matching contributions to the charity. Celebs will also appear on the show to donate personal articles.

WOR Tower

Continued from page 30

ting an additional 93,000 people to hear KIRO.

3. That the present WOR towers (410 feet high) are wellknown landmarks to airline pilots who might approach Newark airport via Carteret and that the tower structure is a recognized navigation fix on charts and maps used by amateur flyers.

4. That the project does not affect flight plans or traffic pattern used at the Linden, N. J., airport.

5. That the higher towers will not interfere with the proposed realignment of the instrument runway at Newark.

6. That proposed use of high intensity lights and electronic devices by WOR with the new tower structure "would not only establish an obstruction warning at this point which is without precedent in the aeronautical field, but would establish a reliable and needed navigation fix which is sorely needed throughout this area."

7. The project will safeguard rather than endanger military aircraft using Newark airport.

Citing the importance of a new antenna structure, WOR pointed out it is now the key to a network (Mutual) of more than 525 stations; that, as a subsidiary of R. H. Macy & Co., it makes frequent use of the special standards bureau of the department store for testing products advertised over the station; that its total broadcast revenue for the year ending June 30, '49 exceeded $5,000,000; and that it earned $450,000 for that year.

WOR said that it has been working since 1937 to improve the efficiency of its operation and that the present plan is the best compromise possible in the light of factors concerning air navigation requirements.

It estimated the cost of the project at $200,000.

St. Louis—Two new additions to KXOK are James Willerton, a grad of Washington University, to the news staff and William C. O'Donnell to the sales department.

TV ADVERTISING FILM FOR LOW BUDGET ACCOUNTS

ONE MINUTE FILM WITH VOICE

ONLY $150

WRITE, CALL OR SEE
FILMACK
1333 SOUTH WABASH AVE
CHICAGO
HA 7-3395

AVAILABLE For TV

Former vaudevillian would prove invaluable assistant-adviser to director producer or sponsor of TV variety shows.

Extensive experience as artist, writer and producer of adult and children shows, plus ability and important "know how," will materially assist in producing diversified class entertainment. Also improved routines for single acts.

BOX V-1306, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 19, N. Y.

Domestic Sewing Co.'s 28-City Video Spread For 'Adventure' Series

Cleveland, March 28.

With 26 cities already in the fold, Domestic Sewing Co. of Cleveland is preparing to take on two more outlets, Minneapolis and St. Louis, for its major television film "Adventures in Sewing."

Featuring Louis E. Winslow, the stanza first saw life over WNBK. Through Fuller & Smith & Ross, sponsor then moved into other communities with a two-fold format in mind: Filming of WNBK show so that presentation is possible for other TV outlets, and for educational and promotional work before women groups and organizations.

Success of the project, involving more than 1,000,000 feet of 16m film, has been reflected, according to FSR, in soaring sales of product. Because programs are aimed directly at woman's audience, many TV stations were forced to shift to afternoon programming. According to Charles Hutaff, associate director of films-television-radio at FSR, 60 complete sets of 13 three-reel film prints will have been shipped to Domestic distributors by the end of March.

Discarding accepted film production techniques, according to Hutaff, time and production economies were realized with the use of three 16m cameras in three continuous 10-minute takes. Director Charles Ranallo pre-edited the film as it was shot by turning the cameras on and off himself in synchronization with the master sound track "Cinescope." By pausing a few minutes between 10-minute takes, "it became possible to take full advantage of the flexibility of 'Cinescope' and to allow talent time to prepare for next sequence. Approximately eight days of production were required to photograph the 13 films."

KLAC-TV UPS ROSTER TO 86 HOURS WEEKLY

Hollywood, March 29.

KLAC-TV will add seven hours and 45 minutes to its schedule starting this week. Move will give the outlet a total of 86 transmitting hours weekly. KLAC-TV is adding the 2:30 to 6 period every Saturday and filling in from 5:45 to 10 each Sunday.

Saturday afternoon lineup starts with a 30-minute film and will be followed by three hours of Bill Anson. Anson recently took over the Sunday afternoon slot from Al Jarvis. Sunday programming is not yet set but station will do a remote from Knotts Berry Farm. This will alternate with KLAC's telelensing of the baseball games which go in every third week.

Philly Bulletin Forum Gets Big AM-TV Play

Philadelphia, March 28.

Wide radio and television coverage was given the fourth annual Bulletin Forum, sponsored by the Evening Bulletin. In addition to broadcasts by the CBS and Mutual networks, the sessions were carried by 15 radio stations in this area and were picked up live by the "Voice of America."

The special events staff of the Voice recorded the entire three sessions and condensed the more pertinent material into a series of 30-minute documentaries for beaming abroad. WCAU-TV, the Bulletin-owned station, telecast most of the proceedings.

Stations WCAU, WIP, KYW, WDAS, WIBG, WJMJ, WTEL, WFLN, WHAT, WVCH, WKDN, WNAR, WPEN and WPWA carried a total of 15 hours and 40 minutes of the Forum. All participating radio stations also reported Forum events on their regular newscasts.

BIESER'S ZIV POST

Dallas, March 28.

As part of its expansion program, calling for the opening of new sales divisions, Frederic W. Ziv Co. has upped Elmer Bieser to sales manager of the newly-created southwestern division. Bieser, who will headquarter here, will add several salesmen to handle the territory.

Prior to joining Ziv in '47, Bieser was with WKY, Oklahoma City.

The Gospel Truth

Cleveland, March 28.

The three minutes it takes to soft-boil an egg is just enough time to hard-boil TV viewer to religion, according to Rev. Clifton E. Moore, of Hollywood, California.

Rev. Moore, in a Cleveland meeting, reported on a recent Protestant Radio Commission in New York and told his local audience that "three minutes may produce a palatable soft-boiled egg, but that amount of television preaching brings about a hard-boiled attitude among TV viewers which is likely to make them switch to another channel."

He said research has shown that "talk shows are absolute death on television," and he suggested some preachers probably ought to check on television findings to improve their regular church preaching.

Garroway to Emcee For Curtain-Raiser to TV Sessions at NAB Meet

Washington, March 28.

NBC video star Dave Garroway will preside at the curtain-raiser to the television sessions April 19, winding up the 28th annual convention of the National Assn. of Broadcasters at the Stevens hotel in Chicago. Garroway, whose network show originates from Chicago, will emcee a morning program which includes a performance by "Kukla, Fran & Ollie"; the puppet show's creator, Burr Tillstrom; and a talk on NAB operations in TV by Eugene S. Thomas, manager of the Bamberger station, WOIC, in Washington.

Prominent TV, advertising and manufacturing execs will participate in a video panel session in the afternoon, including Ernest Walling, NBC producer; Robert D. Swezey, manager of WDSU, New Orleans; Marion Harper, prexy of McCann-Erickson; William B. Ryan, manager of KFI, Los Angeles; Robert C. Tait, prexy of Stromberg-Carlson Co., and an unnamed radio-television critic.

NAB says the "World's largest exhibit of heavy and light broadcast equipment and services" will accompany the convention. Engineering sessions will be held April 12-15, and management sessions April 16-19.

Coast Tele Penetrates Upper Income Bracket

Hollywood, March 28.

Penetration of television has shifted from the lower to the upper income brackets according to the L. A. Times Home Audit check as received by KTTV. Times surveyed 3,600 homes in compiling its figures on video acceptance. Results were reached by measuring home valuation and standard of living.

According to the Times survey 27% of the video set owners in L. A. county are in the wealthy and well-to-do group. In bearing out this figure Times report shows that 26% of the homes in Beverly Hills and Westwood area are flying television antennas.

A total of 22.6% of video receiver owners are listed as being in the lower middle income bracket. The wealthy and lower middle brackets offer a combined 53.6% of the TV sets as against 22% registered in the "below average" group. Only 7.5% of the homes in one of L.A.'s lower income areas have teevee sets as compared to Bevhills-Westwood's 26%.

DON KERR'S PLATTER SHOW

Paterson, N. J., March 28.

WPAT is launching a new disk jockey stanza, "Pick Your Favorites," on Monday (3) to be aired cross-the-board from 6-7:45 p.m. Don Kerr will spin the platters, chosen from listings in trade mags and listener polls.

Airer will also spotlight new bands, artists and tunes which Kerr picks as "sleepers."

Columbus—Frank N. Jones, co-owner of WJEL and WJEL-FM in Springfield, O., has joined the sales staff of WBNS-TV here. He still will operate his own stations. Jones formerly served as sales manager of WCOL here, where he worked for 10 years. Also added to the sales staff was Robert E. Scott, formerly of the Ohio State Journal sales department.

WHDH's Adjacency Coin

Boston, March 28.

WHDH, Hub indie, has snared a record sellout on all adjacencies of its major league baseball broadcasts for the forthcoming season.

Carrying all home games of local clubs and telegraphic reports when no local game skedded, station has signed its national and local sponsors to tie in with ballgame coverage.

Minneapolis Brewers In Combine on Ball Backing, Ending Last Year Hassle

Minneapolis, March 28.

Odd hassle, which last year provoked chuckles, was resolved when two competitors agreed to split sponsorship of telecasts of Minneapolis Millers baseball during coming season.

Gluek Brewing Co. last season sponsored telecasts. The competitor, Minneapolis Brewing Co., however, had a large centerfield sign advertising its Grain Belt beer. Gluek people didn't want the Grain Belt sign showing, and KSTP-TV engineers struggled all season to keep it out of the pictures.

This year Minneapolis and Gluek have agreed to split sponsorship, but whether they'll alternate commercials or games hasn't been decided. They were careful to point out they're still competitors. At any rate the Grain Belt sign will be seen in centerfield at least part of the time.

Hamm Brewing Co., St. Paul, has signed to sponsor telecasts of half of St. Paul home games on WTCN-TV.

Boston — Jack Chase, WCOP news editor, has been admitted to membership in Boston University's Alpha Epsilon Rho, honorary radio fraternity.

Richards Hearing

Continued from page 30

son and news editor Clete Roberts on the receiving end.

Chief FCC attorney Frederick Ford introduced into evidence a note from Richards to Renier, Wixson and Reynolds of the need to defeat the Fair Employment Practices Act in the 1946 California elections. Note said: "This proposition would positively wreck business, cause no end of race riots, etc. Do what you can to beat it." Ford charged these were direct instructions to the station staff to use KMPC facilities against a political issue.

Renier, who identified the note, said he took no action on the instructions. As program director, Renier frequently interviews job seekers. He said he was never instructed what racial type not to employ, "but I had long since gained from Mr. Richards views that a person of Jewish faith would be looked upon with disfavor. When I hired anyone, the front office would always ask, 'You sure that's his real name'?"

Renier said he had little supervision over the news since Richards and Reynolds took care of it. He told, under cross-examination, of some difficulty with William Pennell, an outside newscaster, "over intrusion of stories in the newscast that had not come over the wires." Stories were censored out by him when they dealt with labor topics, and expressed Pennell's personal opinion. Asked by Examiner Johnson how Richards regarded FCC rules, Renier replied "he didn't seem to give them much consideration. He had respect for them but he emphasized that it was his radio station. He wanted certain things done certain ways."

Robert P. Anderson, now Don Lee television supervisor, testified that during the two-week period when Norman Nesbitt vacationed, he took over the newscast, and was instructed by Bob Horn, then of the KMPC news department, about station policy. He said he was told not to mention Robert W. Kenny, then (1946) candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination; not to mention the Ku Klux Klan unfavorably, and to refer to Henry Wallace as "pig sticker." He said he ignored all three instructions.

William Keneally, former newscaster, wound up the testimony by describing how he was told by Roberts that Richards disliked Charlie Chaplin, and should "govern himself accordingly." Later, he said, he gave prominence to a story about Charles Chaplin, Jr., paying $50 bail on an intoxication charge.

Capp's 'Fearless Fosdick' Set for Video Series

A television serial based on the Al Capp creation "Fearless Fosdick" is currently in the works. A satire on the "Dick Tracy" type of detective, "Fosdick" is an individual comic strip frequently used by Capp within his "Li'l Abner" series. TV version will be filmed in color with marionettes supplying the action. Each episode will probably be designed to fill a 15-minute spot.

Except for a possible introductory note, show will remain independent of the "Li'l Abner" tie-in. Mary Chase will handle the puppet strings, while Hy Chessler, head of Films for Industry, will be in charge of the general production.

THIS WEEK,

"THE EARLY BIRDS"

are celebrating

20 YEARS

ON WFAA-820 DALLAS

Radio's oldest breakfast-time show (7:15-8:00 a.m., Monday through Saturday) has MORE LISTENERS than ever—is doing an unparalleled SELLING job for Earl Hayes Chevrolet Company (six quarter hours weekly), The Mennen Company, Morton Foods, and Red Arrow Drugs (each three quarter hours weekly). Chap Stick and Chapans, Birds Eye Foods, Vitalis, Nob-Hill Coffee, Anacin Tablets, Republic National Bank, Gold Tip Gum, B & B Cafe, and General Electric Company use participating announcements.

●

And soon—WFAA-TV! WFAA now owns KBTV, Dallas, and plans to present television in the traditional WFAA manner!

WFAA

and WFAA FM

Martin B. Campbell, General Manager

820 KC • NBC • 570 KC • ABC

TEXAS QUALITY NETWORK

Radio Service of the DALLAS MORNING NEWS

Represented Nationally by Edward Petry and Company

Merc Broadens Talent Setup

Mercury Records is revamping its artists and repertory policy with the aim of broadening the company's talent base and expanding its output this year. New policy is slated to shift the diskery's concentration from its two top names, Frankie Laine and Vic Damone, to other members of the company's stable who have not received a porportionate share of hit tunes or likely material.

A stepup in waxing sessions for Mercury artists who have been more or less brushed off during the past two years has already been put into the works. Jan August (also recording under the pseudonym of Feb September with a different keyboard style) has been pencilled in to cover several hit tunes as has Louis Prima's orch. Company's eastern a.&r. director, Joe Carleton, is also planning to throw more emphasis on such Mercury talent as Richard Hayes, Patti Page and Gene Williams' orch.

Corollary to new policy will be Mercury's end of its experimentation with new talent. While Laine and Damone together with the Eddy Howard orch will continue to get first crack at new material, the rest of the current Mercury roster will be favored against the former practice of inking relative unknowns for special numbers.

Band Reviews

RALPH FLANAGAN ORCH (15)
With Harry Prime, Evelyn Joyce
Meadowbrook, Cedar Grove, N. J.

Following a Massachusetts ballroom four-day break-in date the previous week, the new and much-discussed Ralph Flanagan band was unveiled to the trade last Thursday (23) when the orch started a six-week stand at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook.

A strong industry spotlight has been focused on Flanagan's band since RCA-Victor some months ago began its attempt to build him into a "new Glenn Miller" via a string of Bluebird and Victor disks, and some high-powered exploitation. Scoring for and fronting a Victor house crew, Flanagan—former Sammy Kaye and Perry Como arranger—turned out several platters during the past year that climbed into the higher brackets of disk jockey and retail sales lists.

Victor's feeling that growing interest in the Flanagan name, plus the appeal of the ever-reliable Miller reed style, could with proper promotion be parlayed into not only a new click band, but also one which might hit with sufficient impact to lift the entire orch field out of the doldrums, led to Flanagan's putting together the 15-piece outfit that made its official bandstand bow at Meadowbrook. Prognostications as to whether Victor's thinking will prove correct—whether Flanagan will duplicate the 1939 success of the band after which his is admittedly patterned, and if so, whether that would spark a revival of the prewar orch bonanza—are difficult in this current era of different music tastes, financial considerations and emphasis on vocal artists.

Ten years ago there would have been little question that Flanagan could quickly rise into the upper echelon of name bands. If performance alone counted there should be little doubt about it in 1950. But the picture has changed so considerably from the days when public eagerness for swing music made possible the Goodmans, Dorseys, Millers, Shaws, et al., that at the moment the commercial potentialties of the Flanagan band, to say nothing of its effect on the biz in general, are moot questions.

That Flanagan has plenty to offer musically was apparent last Thursday night, despite one of those seemingly inevitable band-opening headaches that had the orch's lead trumpet out with a bad lip and a substitute playing the book for the first time. Flanagan's arrangements stick pretty closely to the melody line, utilizing ensemble section work and a strong beat that get the most out of a library largely filled with pops and standards. The Miller clarinet-on-top reed styling is very much in evidence on the ballad items, proving as effective as always, and the brasses hit with sharp precision for a new band.

Instrumentation is broken down into five reeds, four trombones three trumpets, drums, bass and Flanagan's sporadically-played piano. Leader's brief keyboard interludes result in only a two-man rhythm section, unusual for a full crew. Drums and bass therefore rate a special nod for producing a superior dance beat sans guitar or piano help.

Flanagan's fronting comes as a surprise, considering his lack of experience in that direction. He handles himself exceptionally, announcing tunes and explaining arrangements with an ease, sincerity and personality that will ingratiate him with crowds. Leader's poise is remarkable for a new maestro with only a week's podium appearances behind him.

Vocalists are Harry Prime, for the romantic wordage, and Evelyn Joyce, on the rhythm ditties. Prime shows once again that he is one of the best balladeers in the business, and Miss Joyce, doing her first bigtime chirping, is pert and well enough equipped vocally.

If the time is ripe for a reemergence of the dance band field of a decade ago, Ralph Flanagan will be one of its top names. If the present crop of teenagers can't or won't accept a brand of swing that made dance music history before the war, no band, no matter how carefully contrived, well backed and adroitly exploited, can be expected to achieve a miracle.
Rich.

LARRY FOTINE ORCH (14)
With Johnny Goodfellow, Maralyn Marsh, Johnny Soltan
Melody Mill, Chicago

This group is a smooth and easy dance band, playing mostly in the sweet and slow style. Larry Fotine was Sammy Kaye's arranger for five years, and many of the stylings characteristic of Kaye—use of the baritone sax and sweet muted trumpet, the frequent clarinet section, the clipped brass phrasing on faster numbers—are evident in this group's work.

Orch has four saxes, two trumpets and two trombones, and three rhythm. Fotine arranges all the numbers, makes a pleasant front appearance and occasionally joins reeds on clarinet. Roster is completed with vocalists Johnny Goodfellow and Maralyn Marsh. Lead trumpeter sometimes doubles on mellaphone for lusher brass effect, and rhythm is accentuated when bass player doubles on tuba.

Band mixes very slow numbers with medium-paced songs and with an occasional rhumba tossed in. Repertoire is pop stuff, leaning heavily on vocals. On night caught, songs included "Slipping Around," "It Isn't Fair," "Rain," "Happy Times" and "Don't Take Your Love From Me." Arrangements are excellent, with melodic blending of reeds and brass, and steady rhythm that pleases the dancers. Most solo and break work are done on muted trumpet by lead trumpeter Frank Trautz.

Both Goodfellow and Miss Marsh are promising young vocalists. Goodfellow has an easy and pleasant baritone, and can put a lot into a song with the right material. Miss Marsh is pert young thing with clear voice and good rhythm sense. Two combined nicely for duets. Trombonist Johnny Soltan handles novelty and rhythm vocals nicely.
Chan.

Best British Sheet Sellers

(Week ending March 18)
London, March 20.

Music, Music	Leeds
Dear Hearts	Morris
Jealous Heart	New World
Harry Lime Theme	Chappell
Down in the Glen	Wright
Garden of Weeds	Box & Cox
Bunch of Coconuts	Box & Cox
Hopscotch Polka	Leeds
Is It True About Dixie	Wood
Song In Our Heart	20th-Cent.
I'll String Along	Feldman
Best of All	Connelly

Second 12

Breaking My Heart	Sterling
Clear Blue Sky	Dreyer
Why Is It	Cinephonic
Our Love Story	Carolin
Can-Can Polka	Connelly
Chattanoogie Boy	Pic Music
Mule Train	Chappell
Is It Too Late	Yale
Forever and Ever	F.D. & H.
Scottish Samba	Sun
World Forgotten	Carolin
Now I Need You	Victoria

Referee Jabs Glaser In Bout With Grove

At preliminary hearings in N.Y. supreme court last week on the suit brought by Izzy Grove against Joe Glaser, referee Edwin L. Garvin recommended that Glaser be cited for contempt for refusal to produce certain books and records in connection with the action. Grove is suing Glaser for alleged breach of agreement to pay him for his services in settling differences between Glaser and two of his clients, Lionel Hampton and Billie Holiday, and for other related services.

Glaser contends that Grove has never been associated with him in any respect, and that the suit is an "irresponsible" attempt to "harass and antagonize" him. Case is due to come to trial in April or May.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Hoagy Carmichael-Cass Daley: "The Old Piano Roll Blues"-"Stay With The Happy People" (Decca). "Piano Roll" is a bouncing ragtime novelty that may catch on as a standout click. It's a clever hitchhiker on the current upbeat of nostalgic jazz with the added steam of a cute lyric and some tricky pianola effects. Carmichael-Daley cutting puts the accent on a hokey vocal duet that's plenty saleable for jocks and jukes. Matty Matlock's orch gives a solid dixie backing. Mercury has another snappy version waxed by Feb September (is that a nom de piano for Jan August?) and the Bay Rum Boys. September, or August, really sends it for a keyboard ride. Reverse of the Decca platter is an okay, but not standout rendition of "Happy People."

Ralph Flanagan: "Joshua"-"Spring Will Be A Little Late This Year" (Victor). Flanagan continues to slice firstrate sides designed mainly for straight instrumentation. "Joshua" is a fresh, rhythmic arrangement of the old spiritual, "Joshua Fit De Battle of Jericho," and should draw repeated coinbox spins. Flipover is a solid version of the Frank Loesser number with a smooth vocal by Harry Prime.

Jo Stafford: "Ask Me No Questions"-"On The Outgoing Tide" (Capitol). Miss Stafford knows her way around a rhythmic ballad, and "Questions" is down her alley. It's an excellent side dressed up with a vocal chorus by the Starlighters and commercial background by Paul Weston's orch. Martha Tilton, with an assist from the Four Hits, has cut another bright version of this number for Coral. Both disks could push this tune far. Reverse of the Coral platter has Miss Tilton neatly working over another good rhythmic ballad, "I've Got A Heart Filled With Love." Miss Stafford has a change-of-pace tune with the slow and sadder "On the Outgoing Tide."

Larry Green Orch: "Bewitched"-"If I Had You On A Desert Island" (Victor). "Bewitched," one of the hits from the Rodgers and Hart musical, "Pal Joey," is coming back with all the major labels moving fast to get it out. A fine number with a solid lyric, it gets suitable treatment by Larry Green's orch and the Honeydreamers, who handle the vocal with rhythmic restraint. Jan August's cut for Mercury, with the Harmonicats backing up, drops the vocal refrain, which may hurt the saleability, but August gives it the advantage of his warm and understanding keyboard style. "Desert Island" is a cute tune rendered pleasantly by Three Beaus and a Peep.

Ella Fitzgerald: "Solid As A Rock"-"Sugarfoot Rag" (Decca). Two jump sides with Miss Fitzgerald at the top of her form. "Rock," which has been launched via two fine cuts by Margaret Whiting (Capitol) and Count Basie, (Victor) receives its best treatment on this disk. Miss Fitzgerald's driving style could supply that extra push to rocket this worthwhile number into the hit lists. A natural for the jukes and jocks. Bottom deck is good, but tricky, with a jet-speed scat vocal by Miss Fitzgerald. Sy Oliver, who has been backing Miss Fitzgerald's work in topflight style on a number of her recent disks, frames both these numbers with a terrific beat.

Patti Page: "I'm Gonna Paper All My Walls With Your Love Letters"-"I Don't Care If The Sun Doesn't Shine" (Mercury). "Love Letters" has a good idea and Miss Page gives it the benefit of a vigorously happy vocal attack. Midway break for some gag talk is okay for a novelty twist. Backside is in the same rhythmic vein, with Miss Page bouncing out the slightly self-consciously cute lyric. D'Artega's orch furnishes good accompaniment.

Gene Autry—"Dust"-"Take Me Back to My Boots and Saddle" (Columbia). Although a bit late, Autry's waxing of "Dust" is firstrate and may cut into Jimmy Wakely's excellent version for Capitol. Autry puts some bite into this moving dust bowl yarn. "Boots and Saddle" is a pleasant oatune with some expert cowboy yodelling by Autry and chorus.

Album Reviews

M-G-M has turned out a good four-disk soundtrack album from Metro version of the Irving Berlin musical, "Annie Get Your Gun." Circulation of the film into the hinterlands may help buck the original Decca show tune album with the original players, Ethel Merman and Ray Middleton. Pic's stars, Betty Hutton and Howard Keel, work over the familiar numbers in a spirited way, with Miss Hutton doing her typically zany renditions of "Doin' What Comes Naturally" and "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun." Other sides in the set include "There's No Business Like Show Business," "They Say It's Wonderful," "Anything You Can Do," "I've Got The Sun In the Morning," "The Girl That I Marry" and "My Defenses Are Down."

Platter Pointers

Gene Krupa's waxing of "Dust" is plenty late for Victor but it's one of the best versions . . . Discovery has pressed a trio of solid long-playing disks with Georgie Auld's jazz orch on one and Phil Moore's intricate piano on two . . . Melodeons (M-G-M) hit a nice clip on "Why Do They Always Say No" . . . Burl Ives' platter of "River of Smoke" for Columbia is a bit too fast for the sense of the lyric . . . Peter Lind Hayes and his wife, Mary Healy, have made a pleasant item out of "Darn It, Baby, That's Love" (Decca) . . . Louis Prima sells "Tears On My Tie" solidly for jocks and jukes (Mercury) . . . Under the Brunswick label, Decca has reissued a flock of fine standards by Art Tatum Trio, Jan Savitt, Bobby Hackett and Edgar Hayes . . . Frankie Carle has sliced two neat sides for Victor in "A Little More Time" and "Spaghetti Rag" . . . Al Jolson has a couple of good seasonal sides in "Remember Mother's Day" and "My Mother's Rosary" (Decca) . . . Discovery label comes up with a solid jazz disk for jocks in Ben Pollack's "San Sue Strut" and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" . . . A potential novelty click could be "Walk With a Wiggle" by Phil Harris (Victor) . . . Ditto for "Jolly Fella Tarantella" by Guy Lombardo's orch and the Andrews Sisters, and "The Bread and Butter Song" by Russ Morgan orch, both Decca disks . . . On the Dixie kick, Jack Fina does lots with "That's A-Plenty" (M-G-M) . . . A fine jock side is Eddie Heywood's pianistics on "Summertime" for London . . . Ted Steele has a couple of pleasant polka tunes in "Bring Her Out Again" and "Kisses" for Columbia . . . Buddy Ryland's young orch has done two good sides for Macy's (not the department store) in "Wild Cherry" and "I Ain't Mad at You."

Standout western blues, hillbilly, religious, polka, etc.: Piney Brown, "That Right, Baby" (Apollo).

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin-Machines

Week of Mar. 25

1.	MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC (9) (Cromwell)	Teresa Brewer Eddie Miller	London Rainbow
2.	CHATTANOOGIE SHOESHINE BOY (7) (Acuff-Rose)	Red Foley	Decca
3.	IF I KNEW YOU WERE COMING (2) (Robert)	Eileen Barton	Mercury
4.	RAG MOP (9) (Hill & Range)	Ames Bros Ralph Flanagan	Coral Victor
5.	ENJOY YOURSELF (3) (Morris)	Guy Lombardo Doris Day	Decca Columbia
6.	DEARIE (3) (Laurel)	Merman-Bolger Stafford-MacRae	Decca Capitol
7.	I SAID MY PAJAMAS (10) (Leeds)	Martin-Warren	Victor
8.	CRY OF THE WILD GOOSE (4) (American)	Frankie Laine Tennessee Ernie	Mercury Capitol
9.	THERE'S NO TOMORROW (17) (Paxton)	Tony Martin Alan Dale	Victor Harmony
10.	IT ISN'T FAIR (1) (Words-Music)	Sammy Kaye	Victor

Second Group

MY FOOLISH HEART (Santly-Joy)	Gordon Jenkins	Decca
CRAZY HE CALLS ME (5) (Massey)	Billie Holiday	Decca
DADDY'S LITTLE GIRL (Beacon)	Dick Todd Mills Bros.	Rainbow Decca
C'EST SI BON (Leeds)	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M
SENTIMENTAL ME (Knickerbocker)	Ames Bros. Russ Morgan	Coral Decca
THIRD MAN THEME (Chappell)	Anton Karas Guy Lombardo	London Decca
DEAR HEARTS, GENTLE PEOPLE (14) (Morris)	Dinah Shore Bing Crosby	Columbia Decca
BIBBIDI BOBBIDI BOO (Disney)	Perry Como Dinah Shore	Victor Columbia
QUICKSILVER (Morris)	Crosby-Andrews Doris Day	Decca Columbia
SITTING BY THE WINDOW (Shapiro-B)	Vic Damone Billy Eckstine	Mercury M-G-M
OLD MASTER PAINTER (15) (Robbins)	Sinatra-Modernaires Snooky Lanson	Columbia London
DREAMER'S HOLIDAY (17) (Shapiro-B)	Perry Como E. Wilson-Jenkins	Victor Decca
WE'LL BUILD A BUNGALOW (Algonquin)	Johnny Long	King
HAVE I TOLD YOU LATELY (Duchess)	Crosby-Andrews Martin-Warren	Decca Victor
MAN AROUND THE HOUSE (Morris)	Dinah Shore	Columbia

[Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10.]

BAND BIZ CONTINUES TO CLIMB

Abolition of Unrestricted Doubling Sought by N.Y. Musicians Union

In a move to correct a chronic situation among musicians, exec board of New York Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, is proposing the abolition of unrestricted "doubling" by its working members. Proposal is embodied in a resolution to be submitted for approval to the local's general membership meeting April 10.

Under terms of the resolution, musicians would be barred from playing more than two unrelated instruments, such as fiddle and sax, on any single engagement. This clause would effect several large orchs, some of whose sidemen now work on sax, clarinet and fiddle. In situations where doubling occurs on unrelated instruments, resolution calls for upping payment to 50% above scale and 20% above scale on related instruments. If the motion passes, it would go into effect in new contracts in all fields.

Local 802 execs are also urging the New York City administration to launch a concert program to supplement those given by AFM crews under terms of the musicians trust fund allocations. Confabs between union heads and Mayor William F. O'Dwyer are being set up for this week to point up the need for increasing employment for New York tooters. Attempt will be made to revive the city's former policy of sponsoring free concerts in parks and museums.

Although unemployment situation is admittedly bad in Local 802 ranks, union chiefs scouted the estimate of 90% joblessness made by Al Manuti, leader of the opposition Unity group, who will run again for the local's presidential post in elections next December. Local 802 execs said it was virtually impossible to calculate the number of unemployed musicians in light of the fact that so many of them are part-time instrumentalists, doubling in other business fields.

1920 Era Source For 3d Group of Records In 'Hear It Now' Series

Third section of the "I Can Hear It Now" recorded series of historical highlights, currently being set for waxing by Columbia Records this summer, will be a throwback to the 1920's era. Initial two volumes, which covered almost two decades since 1930, have been one of Columbia's bestsellers with approximately 300,000 albums sold to date in both the standard and long-playing sets.

Produced by NBC news staffer Fred Friendly and CBS commentator Ed Murrow, the third album will cover the years from the end of the first world war to the crash of 1929. For the first time, songs such as "Dardenella" will be used to date the period. Producers are currently having some difficulty obtaining recorded quotes from the period's celebs, such as Calvin Coolidge, Charles Lindbergh, James J. Walker, Texas Guinan and Alfred E. Smith. While recorded clips are available, they don't cover the most memorable utterances of the period's leading figures.

Zither Virtuoso Karas' 3-Yr. Pact With Chappell

Anton Karas, the zither instrumentalist-composer for "The Third Man," has been signed to a three-year songwriting contract by Chappell. The Austrian musician, now making a personal tour to exploit the Selznick-Korda pic, will remain in the States another three months before returning to London.

Larry Spier, for Chappell, will bear down on "Liebchen" and "Zither Dither," Karas' first two new ones since the "Harry Lime Theme" (or "Third Man Theme," as called in the U. S.) and the "Mozart Cafe Waltz."

Elliot Lawrence As Leadoff for Phillies

Elliot Lawrence orch will introduce a new note for baseball season opening games when it plays at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, April 18 at the lead-off Phillies-Dodgers tilt. Guy Lombardo has played at World Series games in the past, but Lawrence's ball park date is understood to be the first time a name band has appeared at a season opener.

Bandleader, a Philadelphian himself, has penned "The Fightin' Phils," with Bix Reichner, in honor of the occasion.

MPPA Seeks To Modify Verdict In S-B Chi Suit

Chicago, March 28.

Sidney W. Wattenberg, Music Publishers' Protective Assn. general counsel, has asked leave of Judge Michael Ige to appear before him in Chi Federal district court as "friend of the court" in the Shapiro-Bernstein copyright infringement suit against Miracle Records. Wattenberg seeks to modify that part of last week's decision which classifies production and sale of phonograph records as "publication," and therefore places upon such production and sale the same copyright restrictions that apply to sheet music.

Meanwhile, S-B attorney Mort Schaeffer has filed a motion for a new trial. Hearing on the motion has been set for April 21.

Judge Igoe had ruled in favor of Miracle Records on four counts. First, he considered Meade Lux Lewis' testimony as to the origination of the song, "Yancey Special," contradictory. Second, he ruled that, while the bass parts of "Yancey" and Miracle's "Long Gone," which the publishers had charged was an infringement, were the same, the upper register and melody parts were different. And, most important, he ruled that production and sale of "Yancey Special" prior to copyright by Lewis and S-B constituted abandonment of copyright.

It is this last point that Wattenberg seeks to modify. He will ask that this be stricken out and that the decision remain in favor of Miracle but based on the other counts. He is expected to appear some time in April.

S-B had sued for $24,000 in triple damages. Publisher will have to pay Miracle's cost should appeals fail.

TOP LABELS IN RACE ON 'JUKEBOX ANNIE'

Wary of letting another "Music, Music, Music" get by them, all the top labels are climbing aboard a new novelty, "Juke Box Annie," in an all-out race to hit the retail counters first. Number, written by Eddie Lisbon and Sidney Prosen, was initially cut by Rainbow Records with Eddie Miller and the Sunshine Girls, but in the last week the major diskeries have been rushing the side with their top artists.

RCA Victor sliced the number Thursday (23) with Lisa Kirk, Eddie Cantor and Sammy Kaye's orch, backing it with "The Old Piano Roll Blues," another novelty currently getting a big play. Capitol put Kay Starr on the tune, Mercury has done it with Kitty Kallen and London is out with Claire Hogan. Both Decca and Columbia have also set the number for disking sessions this week.

PROMOTERS AGAIN BOOKING NAMES

The "revival" of the band business, which was only a hope and a prayer at the outset of this year, is currently being realized at the b.o. by a flock of top musical crews. While still not proving the existence of that sustained public demand needed for a long upward pull, stray returns from over the country are justifying the optimists' predictions.

Firm basis to the band biz comeback is seen in the readiness of promoters to take chances once again with top-bracket aggregations. That's been the result of two factors, both of which are equally important in brightening the general picture. First, the demand at the dance palaces and auditoriums has been reasserting itself and, secondly, most of the top bands have scaled back their prices to a level where promoters now have more than an even chance for a payoff.

Sammy Kaye's orch, one of the highest paid in the trade, has been hitting solidly on its current tour with only one promoter winding up in the red. During his one-niter through New England during the last week, Kaye racked up $3,100 in Lewiston, Me.; $2,100 in Waterville, Me.; $2,900 in Taunton, Mass., and $4,300 in Holyoke, Mass., the latter three dates taking place over last weekend (24-26). Kaye played on a guarantee-plus-percentage.

Study Flanagan's B.Q.

Ralph Flanagan's new orch, whose opening at the Meadowbrook, Cedar Grove, N. J., last Thursday (23) was watched by the trade as a harbinger of the future, also came through encouragingly after only a fair opening due to bad weather. Flanagan played to 800 customers the opening night but the patronage climbed to 1,805 and 1,980 on Friday and Saturday for the heaviest activity at the Meadowbrook since Harry James' orch played there in 1946. Biz slipped back to 525 on Sunday

(Continued on page 56)

Residence Key to Verdict On M-G-M Vs. J. Dorsey On N.Y. State Attachment

Jimmy Dorsey, in an affidavit filed in N. Y. supreme court last week, doesn't deny owing M-G-M Records $15,000, but objects to the waxery's warrant of attachment as subjecting him to "inconvenience, annoyance and harassment." Some 10 days ago Loew's, Inc., as M-G-M's parent company, secured a warrant seizing the bandleader's salary at the Hotel Statler, N. Y., and also attaching funds due him at General Artists Corp.

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice Aron Levy has stayed the warrant pending a ruling by Justice Morris Eder on Dorsey's request that the paper be vacated. In reserving decision, Judge Eder noted that the question before the court is whether Dorsey is a resident of New York state. The stick-swisher points out that he hasn't lived in California since June, 1949, and his residence depends entirely upon his place of employment.

Current legal sparring stems from a December, 1946, contract whereby Dorsey agreed to record certain tunes for M-G-M. In January, 1947, the company advanced him $7,500 and in February another $7,500 with the understanding that if his royalties failed to meet that amount the money would be returned. If Dorsey, who has been at the Statler since Feb. 6, can prove himself a N. Y. resident to the court's satisfaction, the warrant obviously will be set aside permanently.

Alamo's Releases

San Antonio, March 28.

Alamo Record Co., here announced several new releases.

Included are releases by new artists, among them the Los Mex Tex, Tomas Gallardo orch, Leandro Guerrero and the Alamo Trio, Jesus Favela and Vela & Garcia.

Cantor Yens Joint Recording With Jolie

Eddie Cantor thinks that Al Jolson and he would be a natural for a special version of "Dearie," the do-you-remember song, albeit perhaps not feasible because Jolson is an exclusive Decca artist. Cantor threw a curve at RCA prexy Frank M. Folsom for a possible joint Victor-Decca issue. Prime idea is a showmanship departure and the natural affinity of both vets to the theme of the song. Cantor is exclusively RCA Victor.

With Lisa Kirk, Cantor waxed "Jukebox Annie" and "Piano Roll Blues" for RCA last week while he was in New York. He is due back in Gotham the latter part of this week.

Last Pre-Decree ASCAP Election Renames Octet

In what presumably was the last annual voting of its type by the general membership of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, eight incumbent members of the ASCAP board of directors were reelected yesterday (Tues.). The four writer-members who will continue on the board are Stanley Adams, Otto Harbach, Edgar Leslie and Deems Taylor; four reelected publisher members are Irving Caesar, Abe Olman, Lester Santly and Frank Connor.

Under the terms of the ASCAP consent decree filed in N.Y. federal court three weeks ago, board director elections will be held differently than in the past. System has been to elect eight members of the 24-man board annually on a rotating basis, each member serving a three-year term. Consent decree changes this setup to two-year elections of the entire board. Length of tenure of board members reelected yesterday is uncertain since nothing has as yet been decided as to when the first election under the new system will be held. It's likely, however, that next year's balloting will be for a complete slate.

'BABY' MAKES LOESSER 3D 1-MAN OSCAR WINNER

Hollywood, March 28.

When Frank Loesser strolled out of the Pantages theatre Thursday night (23) happily clutching his Oscar for the Academy Award song, "Baby, It's Cold Outside," he became the third tunesmith in the history of the awards to win single-handed. Loesser wrote both words and music for the number, which was used in Metro's "Neptune's Daughter."

Previous one-man winners were Irving Berlin, for "White Christmas," in 1942, and Harry Owens, for "Sweet Leilani," both from Bing Crosby pix at Paramount, "Holiday Inn" and "Waikiki Wedding."

"Baby" has been very good to Loesser. Apart from what he received from Metro for the cleffing job, Loesser netted some $23,000. Diskings of the ditty have passed the 1,000,000 mark in sales, led by Johnny Mercer and Margaret Whiting on Capitol and Dinah Shore and the late Buddy Clark on Columbia. Sheet music sales now hover around the 250,000 mark.

Average Songsmith Sees IBM Final Arbiter on Payoffs; Also Eye BMI

The man-in-the-street songwriter, i.e. the average lammister from Lindy's, the Brill Bldg., and environs, sees the International Business Machines as the equalizer in the new ASCAP decree. Since the current plugs will be such a dominant determining factor in ASCAP ratings, the royalty melons will see a seesaw effect as the years roll by. The upcoming songsmiths, especially those with the current pop material getting beaucoup performances, will ascend the ASCAP dividend scale and the inactive veterans will travel in reverse.

It is figured that the IBM technique of computing payoffs according to plugs will find its own level as the AA songsmiths, long inured to those $18,000-$20,000 annual melons based on their catalogs because of seniority and availability, will drop down to $16,000 or $14,000 and perhaps halved, because of current inactivity, and thus permit a larger fund to compensate the new blood.

The IBM idea is welcomed for the basic reason that upped ratings heretofore allegedly were at pleasure or whim of the board. The newcomer writer even suspected that improved ratings were retarded since the top bracketed songsmiths felt it might curtail their personal gravy.

There is a strong BMI angle, too, to be considered now. It's conceded that Broadcast Music, Inc., publishing firms may have gotten songs by ASCAP songsmiths in the past, under phoney names, but that more ASCAP writers will now produce for the "opposition" without fear or favor. The idea of "disloyalty," especially if found out, figured heretofore in that the ASCAP board consciously or otherwise might have penalized such backsliders when royalty dividend days rolled around. Once again the IBM payoff system, under Governmental direction, is deemed the infallible protection against any personality tactics.

There is no question but that ASCAP's intra-organizational operations will have to be revised considerably.

As regards those veteran songsmiths who looked upon their established ASCAP dividends as a sinecure, and those other pioneer writers who, in helping found the Society, didn't collect for years, the

(Continued on page 54)

Outsiders Hamper Victor Disk Dates, Letter Pushes Curbs

Because in recent months RCA Victor has found that "our recording sessions have been hampered by the presence of too many people who have nothing whatsoever to do with producing the records," the disk company last week sent a form letter to all music publishers announcing restrictions on attendance at platter dates.

In a letter without precedence in diskery-publisher relations, Victor notified the trade that "the presence of outsiders at dates has in many cases made it difficult for the musical directors to concentrate on their jobs and in other cases has irritated the artists making the records." Communique went on to state that "we are therefore restricting attendance at dates to employees of Victor and such outside people as are actually working on the date."

Letter wound up with a plea for not misunderstanding "the spirit" of it, plus a "request for your cooperation by not attending any RCA Victor dates in the future."

Erna Berger, Met Opera coloratura, has been inked to a longterm recording pact with RCA Victor Red Seal division.

Top Record Talent and Tunes

AS POLLED VIA LEADING U. S. "REQUEST" DISK JOCKEYS

VARIETY

Weekly chart of the records on disk jockeys' programs, as "most requested" by listeners. This compilation is based on information gathered from disk-spinners across the nation and is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of 10 points for a No. 1 mention, 9 for a No. 2 and so on down to one point. Cities and jockeys will vary week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country.

WEEK ENDING MAR. 25

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	Pub.	N. Y. Paul Brenner—WAAT	Chi. Linn Burton—WIND	L. A. Bill Anson—KFWB	D. C. Jerry Strong—WINX	Cleve. Bud Wendell—WJMO	Phoenix Dick Gilbert—KTYL	Atl. City Fred Haggerty—WFPG	Ind. Easy Gwynn—WIBC	Ft. Worth Jimmy Lowe—KXOL	Fitchburg Dave Rodman—WEIM	St. L. Jack Bennett—WIL	Denver Herb Trackman—KMYR	Richmond Harvey Hudson—WLEE	Cincy Rex Dale—WCKY	Eug'e, Ore. Don Porter—KUGN	Syracuse Ron Curtis—WFBL	Mil'wkee Paul Bartell—WFOX	San Ant. Marvin Broyles—KGOR	Port., Me. George Curtis—WGAN	K. C. Eddie Clark—KCKN	Seattle Wally Nelskog—KRSC	Pitt. Bill Brant—KDKN	Memphis Buddy Deane—WHHM	Omaha Joe Kennedy—KOWH	TOTAL POINTS
1	5	9	Sammy Kaye	Victor	It Isn’t Fair	Words-Music ASCAP	4			2	5		3		6	2		10	5			8	1	8		4	6	3	8	5	96
2	7	4	Eileen Barton	National	Knew You Were Coming	Robert ASCAP		1		4	1			3		1	1		6	1								2			79
3	1	8	Frankie Laine	Mercury	Cry of the Wild Goose	American BMI				7		10	1			5		2			1	1	10		7	6	9		3	6	75
4	3	12	Ames Bros	Coral	Rag Mop	Hill-Range BMI	10			6		8	2						4		2	4				1		1	2		70
5	2	9	Teresa Brewer	London	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP				3	2				5	7	3		2			10			1		4				62
6	8	9	T. Martin & F Warren	Victor	I Said My Pajamas	Leeds ASCAP				5				8			6		3	10	4	3			4				5		51
7	6	22	T. Martin	Victor	There’s No Tomorrow	Paxton ASCAP									10		8	3		6					10		2		4	4	41
8	10	9	Ames Bros	Coral	Sentimental Me	Knick’bock’r ASCAP			4														8	1	8		1		10		34
9A	..	3	Billy Eckstine	M-G-M	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy ASCAP	6						6			6							9				5		1		33
9B	19	5	Dinah Shore	Columbia	So Nice To Have A Man	Morris ASCAP			3		3						2						7						7		33
11	4	7	Bing Crosby	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose BMI												6				5				2				1	30
12	10	11	Red Foley	Decca	Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy	Acuff-Rose BMI							4		9				1						6						24
13	39	2	Jack Fina	M-G-M	Spaghetti Rag	Shapiro-B ASCAP		3							4		4														22
14	43	3	Carmen Cavallaro	Decca	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP						3														7				2	21
15A	22	2	M. Martin & A. Godfrey	Columbia	Go To Sleep, Go To Sleep	Disney ASCAP	9					2											2								20
15B	..	5	Doris Day	Columbia	Quicksilver	Morris ASCAP								6				5							2						20
17	20	7	Gordon Jenkins	Decca	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy ASCAP				1									8			6									18
18	21	2	Anton Karas	London	Third Man Theme	Chappell ASCAP					6						10			5			6								17
19A	9	12	Patti Page	Mercury	With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford ASCAP							5			9		9								5					16
19B	..	2	J. Stafford & G. MacRae	Capitol	Dearie	Laurel ASCAP										3							3								16
21	14	7	Mindy Carson	Victor	Candy and Cake	Oxford ASCAP					4				8					8											13
22A	18	6	Mills Bros	Decca	Daddy’s Little Girl	Beacon BMI			7																	3					12
22B	50	7	F. Warren & T. Martin	Victor	Have I Told You Lately	Duchess BMI								5											5						12
22C	45	3	Fran Warren	Victor	I Almost Lost My Mind	Hill-Range BMI									7	10				4											12
22D	17	4	E. Merman & Bolger	Decca	Dearie	Laurel ASCAP											7					7								7	12
26A	14	7	Johnny Desmond	M-G-M	C’est Si Bon	Leeds ASCAP	3				8																				11
26B	43	11	Billy Eckstine	M-G-M	Sitting By The Window	Shapiro-B ASCAP		8																			3				11
26C	30	4	Guy Lombardo	Decca	Third Man Theme	Chappell ASCAP				8					3																11
26D	50	31	Andrews Sis. & G. Jenkins	Decca	I Can Dream, Can’t I	Chappell ASCAP												1			10										11
30A	..	2	Frank Sinatra	Columbia	Sunshine Cake	Burke-Van H ASCAP	1																								10
30B	..	2	M. Whiting-J. Wakely	Capitol	Broken Down Merry Go Round	Fairway BMI			5									7													10
30C	30	2	Al Trace	Columbia	Knew You Were Coming	Robert ASCAP						1																			10
30D	..	1	Gene Autry	Columbia	Peter Cottontail	Hill-Range BMI								1																	10
30E	..	2	Russ Morgan	Decca	Sentimental Me	Knick’bock’r ASCAP									1																10
35A	..	3	Vic Damone	Mercury	God’s Country	Robbins ASCAP	2																								9
35B	23	7	Andrews Sis. & B. Crosby	Decca	Quicksilver	Morris ASCAP							8								9						7				9
35C	45	13	Dick Todd	Rainbow	Daddy’s Little Girl	Beacon BMI								2																	9
35D	..	2	Bing Crosby	Decca	Yodel Blues	Chappell ASCAP									2																9
35E	..	4	Tennessee Ernie	Capitol	Cry of the Wild Goose	American BMI																		2							9
40A	30	2	Mervin Shiner	Decca	Peter Cottontail	Hill-Range BMI		9		9										7											8
40B	..	1	Blue Barron	M-G-M	Are You Lonesome Tonite	Bourne ASCAP		10								8												7			8
40C	..	1	Mindy Carson	Victor	My Foolish Heart	Santly-Joy ASCAP														3											8
40D	52	12	Russ Morgan	Decca	Johnson Rag	Miller ASCAP															3										8
40E	..	1	Ink Spots	Decca	With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford ASCAP																		3							8
40F	23	8	Guy Lombardo	Decca	Enjoy Yourself	Morris ASCAP																								3	8
46A	..	1	Sammy Kaye	Victor	Wanderin’	Republic ASCAP										4															7
46B	16	2	Freddy Martin	Victor	Music, Music, Music	Cromwell ASCAP												4													7
48A	..	1	Teresa Brewer	London	Ole Man Mose	Santly-Joy ASCAP	5																								6
48B	..	1	Georgia Gibbs	Coral	Knew You Were Coming	Robert ASCAP																		10		8			9		6
50	..	1	Herb Jeffries	Columbia	Flying Dutchman	Oxford ASCAP			6																						5
51	..	1	Frankie Laine	Mercury	Swamp Girl	Hill-Range BMI		7																							4
52	..	1	Gordon MacRae	Capitol	Poison Ivy	Santly-Joy ASCAP																			9						2

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

He's Our Boy, VIC!

I LOVE YOU MUCH TOO MUCH
GO WEST, YOUNG MAN!
I DON'T KNOW WHY
WUNDERBAR
ALONG THE NAVAJO TRAIL
YOU CALL EVERYBODY DARLING
MERRY CHRISTMAS POLKA
BIG BRASS BAN
SOUTH AMERICAN WAY
HOLD TIGHT, HOLD TIGHT
RHUMBOOGIE
OPEN DOOR—OPEN ARMS
AURORA
JACK, JACK
BEER BARREL POLKA
HEARTBREAKER
JINGLE BELLS
CUANTO LA GUSTA
CHARLEY MY BOY
DON'T BLAME ME
WEDDING SAMBA
STRIP POLKA
BLUE TAIL FLY
MASSACHUSETTS
ROUTE 66
CHRISTMAS ISLAND
THE FREEDOM TRAIN
PENNSYLVANIA POLKA
MISTER FIVE BY FIVE
HAVE I TOLD YOU LATELY THAT I LOVE YOU?
APALACHICOLA, FLA.
UNDERNEATH THE ARCHES
WHISPERING HOPE
SHE WORE A YELLOW RIBBON
PISTOL PACKIN' MAMA
AC-CENT-TCHU-ATE THE POSITIVE
TALLAHASSEE
SCRUB ME MAMA WITH A BOOGIE BEAT
TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME

OT TIME IN THE [illegible]!
A SMILE BE YOUR UMBRELLA
BEGIN THE BEGUINE
GOOD, GOOD, GOOD
AT ME DADDY, EIGHT TO THE BAR
SOUTH AMERICA, TAKE IT AWAY
RUM AND COCA COLA
SHOO-SHOO BABY
HERE COMES THE NAVY
BEI MIR BIST DU SCHOEN
WELL, ALL RIGHT
TI-PI-TIN
DON'T FENCE ME IN CIVILIZATION
VICTORY POLKA
SABRE DANCE
MEAN TO ME
QUICKSILVER
COFFEE SONG
NEAR YOU
TICO-TICO
ONE MEAT BALL
MALAGUENA
WINTER WONDERLAND
SANTA CLAUS IS COMIN' TO TOWN
IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME
OSSOM TIME
DOWN IN THE VALLEY
TOOLIE OOLIE DOOLIE

Take a bow, Vic Schoen!

- For 12 years of top arranging and conducting on our Decca Records from "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" to our newest, "Ask Me No Questions I'll Tell You No Lies."
- For the fine arrangements you make on every one of our songs for Campbell Soup's "Club 15."
- For your wonderful conducting and arranging on our personal appearances from New York's Roxy and Paramount to London's Palladium.

Maxene Patty LaVerne

P. S. In our books, you're the greatest!

Bands at Hotel B.O.'s

Band	Hotel	Weeks Played	Covers Past Week	Total Covers On Date
Eddy Duchin*	Waldorf (400; $2)	3	2,525	7,145
Guy Lombardo	Roosevelt (450; $1.50-$2)	26	2,275	68,550
Jimmy Dorsey	Statler (450; $1.50-$2)	7	1,520	11,330
Tony Pastor*	New Yorker (400; $1-$1.50)	3	1,100	3,000

* New Yorker has Connie Haines; Waldorf, Dorothy Shay.

Chicago

Johnny Aladdin (Swiss Chalet, Bismarck, 250; $2 min.-80c. cover). Biz about same; slow 1,000 tabs. Noble & King headline.

Dick LaSalle (Mayfair Room, Blackstone, 350; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Traffic sluggish with 1,000 napkins for Dunninger show.

Frankie Masters (Boulevard Room, Stevens, 720; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). One of worst weeks of year; dribbly 2,641 comers.

George Olsen (Marine Room, Edgewater, 700; $1.20). Fair traffic, 1,500 diners.

Eddie O'Neal (Empire Room, Palmer House, 500; $2.50 min.-$1 cover). Victor Borge show gaining momentum; solid 3,589 customers.

Bill Snyder (College Inn, Sherman, 500; $3.50 min.). Modest 1,600 covers.

Los Angeles

Jan Garber (Ambassador, 900; $1.50). With Evelyn Knight, third week, mild 2,100 covers.

Paul Neighbors (Biltmore, 900; $1.50). Slight rise to 2,100 covers.

Phil Ohman (Beverly Hills, 300; $4 min.). Up to 1,800 covers.

Location Jobs, Not in Hotels

(Chicago)

Cee Davidson (Chez Paree, 560; $3.50 min.-$1 cover). Biz poor, 3,000 tabs despite rave local notices for Tony Martin and show.

Jimmy Featherstone (Trianon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Dreary 4,000 terpers.

Sherman Hayes (Blackhawk, 500; $2.50 min.-80c. cover). Mediocre 1,300 covers.

Orrin Tucker (Aragon; $1-$1.15 adm.). Dribbly 4,000 dancers out. Teddy Phillips opened yesterday (Tuesday).

(Los Angeles)

Harry Owens-Nick Stuart (Aragon, Santa Monica). Very good, 9,100 admissions.

Claude Thornhill (Palladium B., Hollywood). Off to 10,900 admissions.

Tops of the Tops

Retail Disk Best Seller
"Music, Music, Music"
Retail Sheet Music Seller
"Chattanoogie Shoeshine Boy"
"Most Requested" Disk
"It Isn't Fair"
Seller on Coin Machines
"Music, Music, Music"
Best British Seller
"Music, Music, Music"

Tout 'So. Pacific' Album to Pass 'Okla.!' for Col.

A consistently big seller since its release 10 months ago, Columbia's "South Pacific" album is being touted by a number of record dealers as an odds-on-favorite to run ahead of the record-breaking "Oklahoma!" Latter album, released by Decca in 1943, has reportedly passed the 1,000,000 sales mark. According to Columbia, the "South Pacific" sale is already pushing 650,000.

The "South Pacific" count includes both the 33⅓ and 78 rpm editions, while the bulk of the "Oklahoma!" sale was garnered from the standard-speed plattering. The Decca album sells for $5.46 on 78 rpm and $4.85 on 33⅓ rpm. "South Pacific" on shellac goes for $8.14, while its vinylite counterpart drops to a list price of $4.85. There is no breakdown available from Columbia on which of the two speeds drew the most customers.

Both the "Oklahoma!" and "South Pacific" albums were recorded by the original casts.

Songs With Largest Radio Audience

The top 30 songs of the week (more in case of ties), based on the copyrighted Audience Coverage Index Survey of Popular Music Broadcast over Radio Networks. Published by the Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John G. Peatman, Director.

Survey Week of March 17-23, 1950

Song	Publisher
A Dream Is Wish Your Heart Makes—†"Cinderella"	Disney
All the Bees Are Buzzin' Round My Honey	Santly-Joy
Bye Bye Baby—*"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"	Robbins
Candy and Cake	Oxford
Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy	Acuff & Rose
Copper Canyon—†"Copper Canyon"	Famous
Cry Of the Wild Goose	American
Daddy's Little Girl	Beacon
Dear Hearts and Gentle People	Morris
Dearie	Laurel
Enjoy Yourself	Morris
I Can Dream Can't I	Chappell
I Don't Know Whether To Laugh Or Cry Over You	Porgie
I Gotta Have My Baby Back	Peer
I Said My Pajamas	Leeds
If I Knew You Were Coming	Robert
It's So Nice To Have a Man Around the House	Morris
Music, Music, Music	Cromwell
My Foolish Heart—†"My Foolish Heart"	Santly-Joy
Peter Cottontail	Hill & Range
Quicksilver	Morris
Rag Mop	Hill & Range
Rain	Miller
Sunshine Cake—†"Riding High"	Burke-VH
There's An X In the Middle of Texas	Simon House
There's No Tomorrow	Paxton
Third Man Theme—†"Third Man"	Chappell
Wilhelmina—†"Wabash Avenue"	Feist
With My Eyes Wide Open	Crawford
You're Wonderful—†"Paid in Full"	Famous

The remaining 20 songs of the week (more in case of ties), based on the copyright Audience Coverage Index Survey of Popular Music Broadcast over Radio Networks. Published by the Office of Research, Inc., Dr. John G. Peatman, Director.

Song	Publisher
As We Are Today	Remick
Ask Me No Questions	Witmark
Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Charlie My Boy	Bourne
Cinderella Work Song—†"Cinderella"	Disney
Did Anyone Ever Tell You Mrs. Murphy	Johnstone-M
Don't Do Something To Someone Else	Fisher
God's Country	Robbins
Have I Told You Lately That I Love You	Duchess
It Isn't Fair	Words-Music
Johnson Rag	Miller
Leave It to Love	BMI
Little Gray House—*"Lost In the Stars"	Chappell
Lost In a Dream	Triangle
Mama Mia	Beacon
Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday	Leeds
Old Master Painter	Robbins
Sentimental Me	Knick'b'ck'r
Sitting By the Window	Shapiro-B
We've Got a Sure Thing—†"Riding High"	Burke-VH
You Kissed Me—*"Arms and the Girl"	Chappell
You Missed the Boat	Advanced
You're Always There	BVC

† Filmusical. * Legit musical.

DECCA RECORDS, INC.
50 WEST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK 19, N. Y.

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT
IN CHARGE OF RECORDING

March 27, 1950

Dear Vic:

From almost the beginning of Decca, we have felt the creative force and inspired musician-showmanship of your work, and we are proud of our association which goes back to 1937, when you arranged and conducted the first Andrews Sisters recordings.

May you continue the good work you started thirteen years ago, work which you have done with practically every major artist on our label, and may I and Decca wish you great and continued success for the times ahead.

Sincerely,

Dave

DK:BGR DAVID KAPP

Mr. Vic Schoen,
6223 Selma Ave.,
Hollywood, Cal.

Songsmiths

Continued from page 51

answer is, "It's true they helped build the house but can we let them live rent free forever?"

Ahlert's Coast Pep Talk

Hollywood, March 28.

The tamest, biggest and most important meeting of the Coast membership of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers on Monday (27) heard assurances from prexy Fred E. Ahlert that ASCAP members "will not be hurt" under the terms of the consent decree; that 1950 looks like the Society's biggest year; and that the added revenue will prevent any loss to ASCAPers under the decree.

Ahlert pointed out that despite the $1,300,000 lost in theatre seat taxes, ASCAP revenue is constantly increasing, and he estimated a take of $800,000 this year from television, from which first quarter payments have already equalled those of 11 months in 1949.

ASCAP prez stated that new writers distribution will start with the October payoff, and adjustments will hereafter be made yearly instead of quarterly. Writers with complaints as to their rating will have recourse to two appellate bodies, the present board of appeals to be augmented by a three-man panel headed by an outside arbiter.

In order to implement the consent decree, ASCAP membership must approve it via an enabling amendment to the Society's bylaws. Judging by feelings of Coast members after Monday's meeting, there will be no difficulty getting necessary two-thirds vote of approval. Some Coast ASCAPers admitted to being scared by the inference dropped by ASCAP special counsel Robert W. Patterson that if the decree doesn't work the Government may dissolve the Society.

L. Wolfe Gilbert, leader of the Coast ASCAP faction, ended Monday's meeting on a note of applause when he said the Society will make the decree work "and profitably if you give them back your confidence."

Local 802 Giving Free X-rays to Members

Under its expanded health program, N. Y. Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, is giving free X-ray examinations to its members at its headquarters. Checkup is aimed at stamping out tuberculosis among the local's members.

Over 30,000 musicians and members of their families are eligible to take the X-rays.

It's Music By
JESSE GREER
Program Today Yesterday's
ON THE BEACH WITH YOU
(Words & Music, Inc.)

THE EVER POPULAR STANDARD
DEED I DO
LAUREL MUSIC CORP.
1619 Broadway, N. Y. 19

This week's New Releases ...on RCA Victor

RELEASE 50-13

POPULAR

HUGO WINTERHALTER
Symphony of Spring
As We are Today
(From the Warner Bros. film "The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady")
20-3737—(47-3737)*

FRAN WARREN
Ho Hum, It's Spring
Don't Say Goodbye 20-3738—(47-3738)*

THE MELACHRINO STRINGS
La Vie en Rose (Take Me to Your Heart Again)
Fascination 20-3739—(47-3739)*

BRADFORD AND ROMANO
Put On An Old Pair of Shoes
Why Do They Always Say No
20-3740—(47-3740)*

HERE COME THE DANCE BANDS AGAIN

SPIKE JONES
Chinese Mule Train
Riders In the Sky (From the Republic film "Singing Guns" 20-3741—(47-3741)*

HERE COME THE DANCE BANDS AGAIN

ERSKINE HAWKINS
Brown Baby Blues
Fishtail 20-3742—(47-3742)*

POP SPECIALTY

BERNIE WYTE
The Circus Polka
Popcorn Polka 25-1154—(51-0061)*

WESTERN

SONS OF THE PIONEERS
Roses
The Eagle's Heart 21-0306—(48-0306)*

COUNTRY

PEE WEE KING
Blame It All on Nashville
The Kissing Dance 21-0307—(48-0307)*

ALBUMS

SELECTIONS FROM THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER
Al Goodman and His Orchestra
K-21—(WK-21)*

HERE COME THE DANCE BANDS AGAIN

TOMMY DORSEY'S DIXIELAND FOR DANCING
Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra
P-279—(WP-279)*

NATIONAL SPECIAL

DENNIS DAY
The Laundromat Song
Indiana Moon 20-3730—(47-3730)*

*45 r.p.m. catalog numbers.

NOTE: All records in this panel are listed alphabetically by song title.

Going Strong...

$ ... indicates records which, according to actual sales, are recognized hits. The trade is urged to keep ample stocks of these records on hand, or to reorder promptly when current stocks begin to approach the "sold-out" stage.

7 ... designates that record is one of RCA Victor's "Certain Seven"—among the leading numbers on the trade paper best selling retail sales charts. Obviously, sure things!

$ Beyond the Sunset
Three Suns, with Rosalie Allen and Elton Britt .... 20-3599—(47-3105)*

$ Candy and Cake
Mindy Carson .... 20-3681—(47-3204)* 7

$ Chattanoogie Shoe Shine Boy
Phil Harris .... 20-3685—(47-3208)* 7

$ Dearie
Fran Warren and Lisa Kirk .... 20-3680—(47-3204)*

$ I Said My Pajamas
Tony Martin-Fran Warren .... 20-3613—(47-3119)* 7

$ It Isn't Fair
Sammy Kaye .... 20-3609—(47-3115)* 7

$ Mommy and Daddy Broke My Heart
Eddy Arnold .... 21-0146—(48-0150)*

$ Music, Music, Music
Freddy Martin .... 20-3693—(47-3217)* 7

$ Rag Mop
Ralph Flanagan .... 30-0025—(54-0020)* 7

$ There's No Tomorrow
Tony Martin .... 20-3582—(47-3078)* 7

$ Wanderin'
Sammy Kaye .... 20-3680—(47-3203)*

Coming Up...

★ ... indicates records which have enjoyed better than average initial consumer acceptance and stand an excellent chance of entering the top-selling hit category. The trade is advised to watch these records carefully in order to maintain stocks consistent with demand.

★ Quicksilver
Elton Britt and Rosalie Allen
21-0157—(48-0168)*
(From Number five to Number three Most Played by Country and Western Disk Jockeys. Billboard, March 25th.)

★ Bewitched
Larry Green .... 20-3726—(47-3726)*
(Tips on Tops. Billboard, March 25th.)

★ Roulette
Tony Martin .... 20-3695—(47-3219)*
(Number nine, Retailers Pick. Billboard, March 25th.)

★ The Horse Told Me
Dennis Day ...... 20-3707—(47-3240)*
(Number nine, Disk Jockey Pick. Billboard, March 25th.)

★ Count Every Star
Hugo Winterhalter
20-3697—(47-3221)*
(Number ten, Disk Jockey Pick. Billboard, March 25th.)

★ Little Angel With the Dirty Face
Eddy Arnold .... 21-0300—(47-0300)*
(Tips on Tops. Billboard, March 25th.)

In this week's RCA Victor's Top Selling 15:

Darn It Baby, That's Love	Freddy Martin and Fran Warren
Sweet Promises and Good Intentions	Lisa Kirk
Have You Ever Been Lonely	Fran Warren and Lisa Kirk
I Almost Lost My Mind	Fran Warren

The stars who make the hits are on
RCA VICTOR Records

RCA VICTOR DIVISION RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA, CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY

JAN FEB MAR The APRIL MAY JUNE Swing's to "45"

Inside Orchestras—Music

A recent story in VARIETY dealing with the National Ballroom Operators Assn. in its contractual negotiations with Broadcast Music, Inc., created an erroneous impression that the NBOA is packing a survey so as to put BMI's back to the wall in their negotiations. Purpose of the survey is to determine NBOA's bargaining position with BMI, and is conducted among ballrooms to determine what proportion of BMI songs they play.

The NBOA also reveals that no Iowa ballroom operators, despite a report to the contrary, have concluded contracts with musicians to ban all BMI music.

How song revivals happen and are unpredictable is exemplified anew by the Richard Rogers-Lorenz Hart oldie, "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," which has caught fire because of Bill Snyder's recordings on Tower, an indie Chi label. Snyder did it sans vocal, performing the melody in a one-finger style, which apparently is the denominator for the public.

The other bands hopped on the technique and so recorded it, viz, Jan August (Mercury), Larry Green (Victor), Gordon Jenkins (Decca), et al. Columbia merely reissued an old Doris Day vocal.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music sales, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 25

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York, MDS	Chicago, Carl Fischer	Los Angeles, Morse M. Preeman	Boston, H. N. Homeyer	Detroit, Grinnell Bros.	San Francisco, Pacific Coast Music	Philadelphia, Charles Dumont	St. Louis, St. L. Music Supply Co.	Seattle, Capitol Music	Indianapolis, Pearson	Kansas City, Jenkins Music Co.	Minneapolis, Schmidt Music Co.	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	"Chattanoogie Boy" (Acuff-Rose)	6	1	4	3	2	1	4	1	3	..	1	5	90
2	1	"Music, Music, Music" (Cromwell)	1	2	2	7	1	2	3	2	1	..	5	6	89
3	5	"Knew You Coming" (Robert)	3	3	3	5	3	4	5	5	..	4	4	4	78
4	3	"Dearie" (Laurel)	5	4	5	1	9	8	2	7	9	6	7	8	61
5	4	"I Said My Pajamas" (Leeds)	8	5	8	6	6	3	9	3	5	..	3	..	54
6	7	"Daddy's Little Girl" (Beacon)	4	6	10	..	..	5	1	6	8	3	..	7	49
7	6	"Dear Hearts, People" (Morris)	..	..	6	..	..	7	10	4	4	..	2	..	33
8	13	"My Foolish Heart" (Santly-Joy)	10	7	1	8	7	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	32
9	10	"It Isn't Fair" (Words-Music)	9	..	..	2	5	..	..	9	..	2	..	..	28
10A	9	"Candy and Cake" (Oxford)	..	8	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	8	..	14
10B	8	"There's No Tomorrow" (Paxton)	..	..	..	..	..	10	8	10	7	..	6	..	14
11	10	"Peter Cottontail" (Hill-Range)	2	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	13
12A	11	"Enjoy Yourself" (Morris)	..	9	7	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	10	..	12
12B	..	"Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo" (Disney)	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	8	6	..	..	9	12
12C	14	"Rag Mop" (Hill-Range)	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	10	..	..	2	12

VARIETY SONG CAVALCADE

(Musical-Historical Review: 1800-1950)

Compiled for VARIETY

By JULIUS MATTFELD

(Copyright, Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Prentice-Hall, Inc., will publish the complete VARIETY Musical-Historical Song Cavalcade later this year at around $4 a copy (price will be determined later). Orders may be placed now with VARIETY, New York City (19).

Attention is hereby called to the fact that this material is copyrighted and may not be reproduced either wholly or in part.

(1946—Continued)

The first American-built rocket propelled plane attained a speed of 550 miles an hour in a test flight.

John D. Rockefeller offered the UN Headquarters Committee a six-block area on the East River, Manhattan, valued at $8,500,000 as a site of a world skyscraper capital for UN. The committee approved, 37-7.

The U. S. maintained fewer than 550,000 troops abroad—mostly occupation forces in Germany, Austria and Korea.

Arrested was Alvin J. Paris, alleged bookmaker, on charges of bribery in connection with an attempt to bribe two stars of the N. Y. Football Giants to "throw" the playoff championship game with the Chicago Bears.

President Truman predicted a prosperous year "if workers stay on their jobs." In the first 11 months of 1946, 14,545,000 workers lost 107,475,000 work days in 4,335 strikes.

Dept. of Commerce reported American consumers spent $127,000,000,000 for goods and service in 1946, an all-time record and $21,000,000,000 more than in 1945.

Academy Oscars for the year were: Best Film: "The Best Years of Our Lives," RKO; Best Actress, Olivia DeHavilland in "To Each His Own"; Best Actor, Fredric March, in "The Best Years of Our Lives"; Best Supporting Actress, Anne Baxter, in "The Razor's Edge"; Best Supporting Actor, Harold Russell, in "The Best Years of Our Lives."

1947

Almost Like Being in Love (Brigadoon). w., Alan Jay Lerner. m., Frederick Loewe. Sam Fox Pub. Co., cop. 1947 by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe.

Ask Anyone Who Knows. w., m., Eddie Seiler, Sol Marcus and Al Kaufman. M. Witmark & Sons, cop. 1947.

Cavalcade Into Book

There have been so many inquiries about VARIETY's Musical-Historical Cavalcade being published in book form that such a volume will be brought out this fall by Prentice-Hall at $4.

It can be ordered in advance through VARIETY.

As Years Go By (film: Song of Love). w., m., Charles Tobias and Peter DeRose, based on Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 4." Miller Music Corp., cop. 1947.

Ballerina. w., Bob Russell. m., Carl Sigman. Jefferson Music Co., Inc., cop. 1947.

Beyond the Sea. w., Jack Lawrence. m., Charles Trenet. T. B. Harms Co., cop. 1947.

But Beautiful (film: Road to Rio). w., Johnny Burke. m., James Van Heusen. Burke and Van Heusen, Inc., cop. 1947.

Chi-Baba Chi-Baba. w., m., Mack David, Al Hoffman and Jerry Livingston. Oxford Music Corp., cop. 1947.

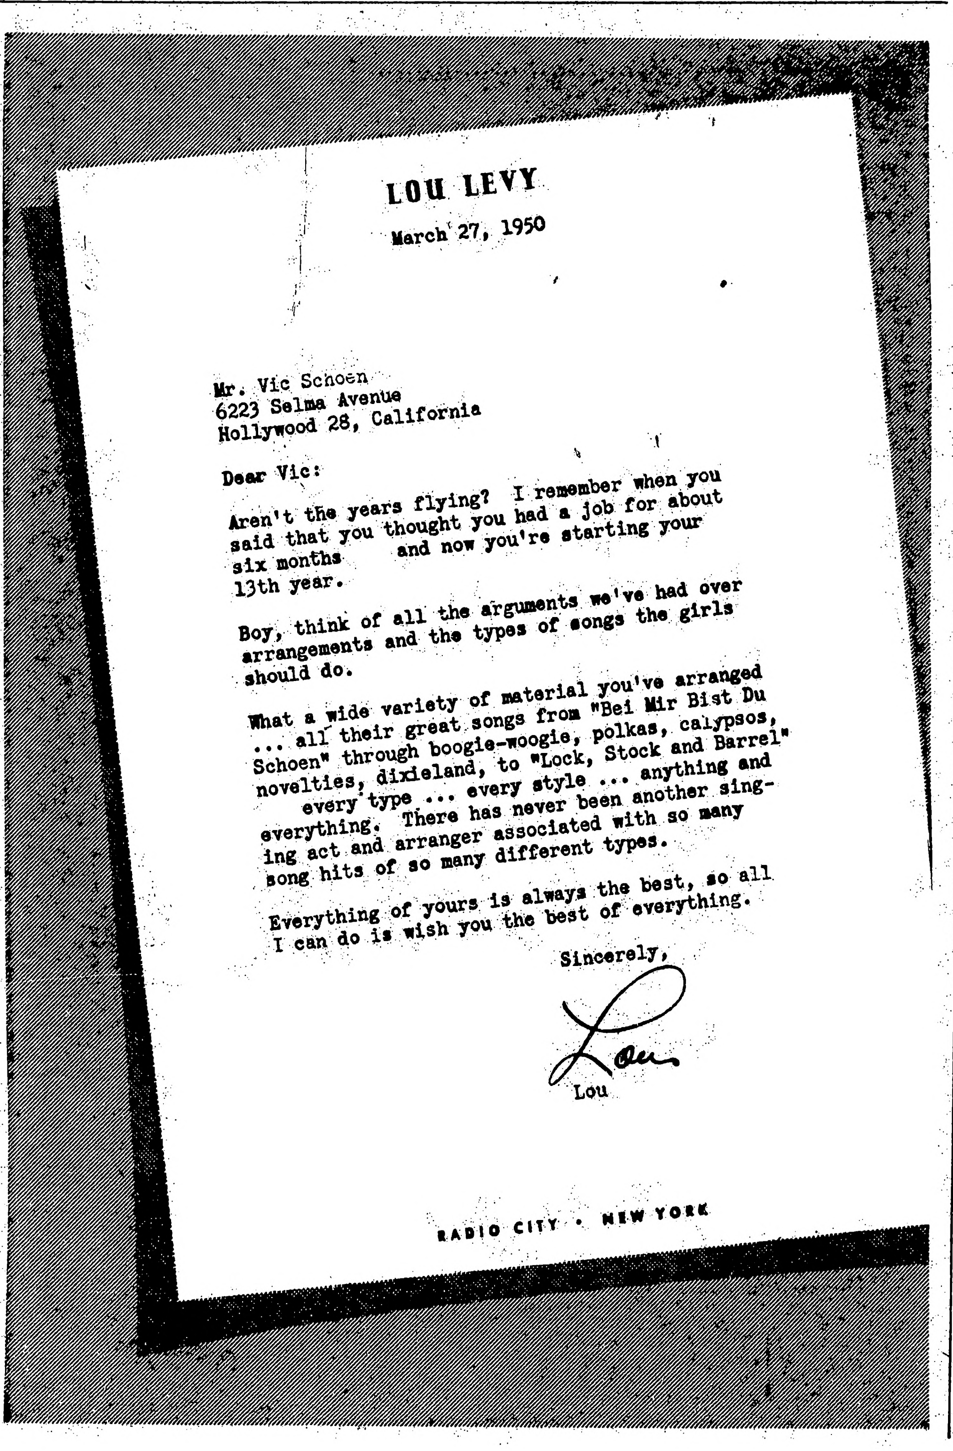
Civilization. w., m., Bob Hilliard and Carl Sigman. Edwin H. Morris & Co., cop. 1947.

Come to the Mardi Gras. w., Ervin Drake and Jimmy Shirl. m., Max Bulhoes and Milton de Oliveira. Southern Music Pub. Co., cop. 1937 by Irmaos Vitale, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; cop. 1937 by Peer International Corp.; cop. 1947 by Peer International Corp.

A Fellow Needs a Girl (Allegro). w., Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. m., Richard Rodgers. Williamson Music, Inc., cop. 1947.

(Continued Next Week)

Irving Fields and Three Beaus & a Beep cut "Scottish Samba" last week, with a bagpipe accompaniment, for RCA-Victor.



LOU LEVY

March 27, 1950

Mr. Vic Schoen
6223 Selma Avenue
Hollywood 28, California

Dear Vic:

Aren't the years flying? I remember when you said that you thought you had a job for about six months and now you're starting your 13th year.

Boy, think of all the arguments we've had over arrangements and the types of songs the girls should do.

What a wide variety of material you've arranged ... all their great songs from "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" through boogie-woogie, polkas, calypsos, novelties, dixieland, to "Lock, Stock and Barrel" every type ... every style ... anything and everything. There has never been another singing act and arranger associated with so many song hits of so many different types.

Everything of yours is always the best, so all I can do is wish you the best of everything.

Sincerely,

Lou

Lou

RADIO CITY • NEW YORK

Kaye Backs Cornell

Don Cornell, who recently exited as Sammy Kaye's vocalist to do a single, will be backed by the Kaye aggregation in a two-day stand at the State theatre, Hartford, this Saturday-Sunday (1-2).

Kaye's negotiations to get singer on the bill with him when he goes into the Capitol, N.Y., April 8, have not panned out.

Band Biz

Continued from page 51

night, but once again bad weather was a factor. Flanagan went over his minimum guarantee figure in the first three days.

Jimmy Dorsey's orch at the Statler hotel, N. Y., has been clicking for the past seven weeks at a surprisingly strong pace. On tour, Stan Kenton's 40-piece orch, Freddie Martin and Vaughn Monroe have also been racking up heftier boxoffice than they have in some time.

Another barometer of the band biz comeback is reflected in the sales of the RCA Victor set of 15 albums under the title of "Here Come the Dance Bands Again." Victor, which pressed a total of 250,000 albums to tee off its sales campaign, has shipped out an additional 50,000 albums in the past week. Flanagan's album is the top seller to date, with Wayne King runnerup, but company execs report that the most hopeful aspect of the sales pattern is that the difference between the top and bottom album is extremely narrow.

The American Love Song
I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE, BABY
Music by . . .
JIMMY McHUGH
MILLS MUSIC

OVER 100 SONGS
•
Composer needs arranger-partner. Must have live contacts with successful publishers.
Write: O. H. N.
45-67, 172nd St., Flushing, N. Y.

The Paramount News-of-the-Week In Variety's Music Section:

Keep Your Campaign Going Strong To Kill The Movie Tax!

Bing Crosby's

Best Picture in Years

Frank Capra's Riding High

HAS THE BEST CROSBY SONGS* IN YEARS TO ATTRACT THE MILLIONS OF CROSBY FANS!

Four new hits by Johnny Burke and James Van Heusen: "Sunshine Cake"—"We've Got A Sure Thing"—"The Horse Told Me" and "Someplace on Anywhere Road."

Top recording-coverage for radio, jukebox and across-the-counter sales by Victor, Columbia, Decca, Capitol, M-G-M Records, London and Mercury—with these topflight artists:

Bing Crosby
Peggy Lee
Tex Beneke
Nat Cole
Kay Armen
Frank Warren
Frank Sinatra
Margaret Whiting
Tony Pastor
Dennis Day
Billy Eckstine
Ann Vincent
Robert Lenn Group and Dixielanders

Published by Burke-Van Heusen & Associates Music Corp.—Famous Music Corporation, Sole Selling Agent

Frank Capra's "RIDING HIGH" starring BING CROSBY · Coleen Gray · Charles Bickford · Frances Gifford with William Demarest Raymond Walburn · James Gleason · Ward Bond · Clarence Muse · Percy Kilbride · Harry Davenport · Produced and directed by Frank Capra · Screenplay by Robert Riskin · Additional Dialogue by Melville Shavelson and Jack Rose · Based on a Story by Mark Hellinger · New Songs: Lyrics by Johnny Burke · Music by James Van Heusen

DECCA data

First With the Best!

●

2 GREAT NEW

DECCA ORIGINAL CAST SHOW ALBUMS

●

The Theatre Guild
(In Association with Anthony B. Farrell) production

ARMS and the GIRL

starring

NANETTE FABRAY
GEORGES GUETARY
PEARL BAILEY

Available in 78 RPM and Long Play 33 1/3 RPM

ALBUM A-759. Four 10-in., 78 RPM Records. Price, $3.75 (Plus tax)

DL 5200. 10-in. Long Play Record. Price, $2.85 (Incl. Fed. tax)

●

The Gilbert Miller Production
(By Arrangement with Sherek Players, Ltd.)

THE COCKTAIL PARTY

by
T. S. ELIOT
with
ALEC GUINNESS
CATHLEEN NESBITT
ROBERT FLEMYNG
EILEEN PEEL
IRENE WORTH
ERNEST CLARK
GREY BLAKE

Available in Long Play 33 1/3 RPM

DX-100. Two 12-in. Long Play Records. Price, $11.70 (Incl. Fed. tax)

DECCA RECORDS

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers, based on reports obtained from leading stores in 12 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

Week Ending March 25

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(Davega Stores)	Chicago—(Hudson Ross)	Los Angeles—(Denel's Mus.Shop)	Boston—(Boston Music Co.)	Cleveland—(Record Mart)	San Francisco—(Sherman-Clay)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	San Antonio—(Central Radio)	Seattle—(Sherman Clay)	Indianapolis—(Pearsons)	St. Louis—(Ludwig Music)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	TERESA BREWER (London) "Music, Music, Music"—604	2	2	1			1	1		1	3	1	1	86
2	2	ANTON KARAS (London) "Third Man Theme"—536	1	1	2	1	4	4	3		5				67
3	5	EILEEN BARTON (National) "Knew You Were Coming"—9103	5	5	3	2	3		2			5	5	9	60
4	4	SAMMY KAYE (Victor) "It Isn't Fair"—20-3609	9	8			1	5		1	7	6	3		48
5A	6	FRANKIE LAINE (Mercury) "Cry of the Wild Goose"—5363	7	6		5	7	6			4		9		33
5B	3	TONY MARTIN (Victor) "There's No Tomorrow"—20-3582	10	4					7	8	2		2		33
6	10	BILLY ECKSTINE (M-G-M) "My Foolish Heart"—10623A		3		4		2							24
7	11	M. MARTIN & A. GODFREY (Col.) "Go to Sleep, Go to Sleep"—38744	6	10	6			9				1			23
8	12	MERVIN SHINER (Decca) "Peter Cottontail"—46221	3				8					2			20
9	15	VICTOR YOUNG (Decca) "La Vie En Rose"—24816				3	2								17
10A	6	RED FOLEY (Decca) "Chattanoogie Shine Boy"—46205	4						5				8		16
10B	8	E. MERMAN-R. BOLGER (Decca) "Dearie"—24873			9				4				4		16
10C	12	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "Enjoy Yourself"—24825					6	3			8				16
11	10	GUY LOMBARDO (Decca) "Third Man Theme"—24839								10		10	7	2	15
12	..	J. STAFFORD & G. McRAE (Cap.) "Dearie"—858								5				4	13
13A	12	DINAH SHORE (Columbia) "So Nice to Have A Man"—38689			7	8	9		10				10		11
13B	..	B. CROSBY-ANDREWS SIS. (Dec.) "Quicksilver"—24827										8		3	11
14	14	A. GODFREY (Columbia) "Candy and Cake"—38721					10		9			4			10
15	..	CARMEN CAVALLARO (Decca) "Music, Music, Music"—24881								2					9
16A	..	FONTAINE SISTERS (Victor) "Knew You Coming"—20-3713								3					8
16B	..	DORIS DAY (Columbia) "Quicksilver—38638									3				8
17A	7	AMES BROS. (Coral) "Rag Mop"—60140	8					7							7
17B	16	JOHNNY DESMOND (M-G-M) "C'est Si Bon"—10613		7										8	7
17C	14	GORDON JENKINS (Decca) "My Foolish Heart"—24830			4										7
17D	14	RUSS MORGAN (Decca) Sentimental Me"—24904								4					7

FIVE TOP ALBUMS

1	2	3	4	5
SOUTH PACIFIC Broadway Cast Columbia	DIXIE BY DORSEY Jimmy Dorsey Columbia	GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES Broadway Cast Columbia	SONGS BY BILLY ECKSTINE Billy Eckstine M-G-M	TEXAS LI'L DARLIN' Broadway Cast Decca

Disk Best Sellers by Companies

(Based on Points Earned)

Label	No. of Records	Points	Label	No. of Records	Points
London	2	153	Mercury	1	33
Decca	10	134	M-G-M	2	31
Victor	3	89	Capitol	1	13
Columbia	4	62	Coral	1	7
National	1	60

'CONSUL' SLATED FOR DISKING BY DECCA

Extending its disk coverage of Broadway legit shows, Decca has made a deal with producers Chandler Cowles and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., for the waxing of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Consul," with the original cast. Menotti has been huddling with Decca repertory execs on the album format with likelihood that the major sequences and arias will be highlighted. Patricia Neway and Marie Powers, show's stars, will also receive top billing in the Decca set, which will be released in both 78 and 33 rpm form.

Decca, meantime, has mapped a special sales push on its show albums during April. Diskery, which has been vying with Columbia Records in wrapping up original legit casts, recently made deals for cutting the T. S. Eliot play, "Cocktail Party," and Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman." "Consul" is the closest Decca has come to the longhair musical field in several years.

Andrews Sis Disking Pushes Pickwick Oldie

Pickwick Music, newly activated Leeds Music subsidiary, is set for a major push on the Tom Malie-Jimmy Steiger song of the '20s, "Stars Are the Windows of Heaven," following the impetus given the number by Andrews Sisters' airings of it and the ride which the Mariners on Arthur Godfrey's shows have been giving it.

Disks lined up on the tune already are the Andrews gals on Decca, Fran Allison on Victor, and Mariners on Columbia. Because of the nature of the lyrics, which makes it suitable for kiddie and folk records as well as popular, several disk firms are considering waxings to attract those two markets.

Malie and Steiger are best known as the writers of "Looking At the World Through Rose Colored Glasses," ballad hit of the '20s.

JAN AUGUST PACT SUIT REACHES SETTLEMENT

Breach-of-contract suit brought in 1948 by Diamond Records and its prez, Irving Gwirtz, against pianist Jan August has been dismissed, according to papers filed in N. Y. supreme court by the plaintiffs' attorney, Morris H. Halpern. Action, as well as August's counter-claim, were discontinued following payment of an undisclosed sum to Diamond by the '88er

Originally Diamond filed a breach-of-contract suit while Gwirtz's action charged breach of a personal management agreement. August subsequently counter-claimed for $100,000, asserting Diamond owed him royalties on "Misirlou" and other platters. An amended complaint whereby Gwirtz accused Music Corp. of America of allegedly inducing August to break the p. m. pact still stands.

Senate Currency Group Hears 7½c Suggestion As Jukebox Compromise

Washington, March 28.

The kids who dance to jukeboxes can't afford to pay a dime a selection, and the music box operators can't afford to continue doing business on the nickel-a-dance basis, so the answer is a compromise of 7½c, Senate Banking and Currency Committee was told during the past week.

Pitch from the nation's jukebox operators for Congress to authorize a 7½c coin came from Edward H. Renner, general manager of the Northern Virginia Music Co., of Alexandria, Va. His company operates 110 machines in northern Virginia.

"Before the war," Renner testified, "so-called jukeboxes cost around $440. Today the same types of machines range in cost from $995 to $1,100. And in our competitive industry, the obsolescence factor is very high. The phonograph records which were formerly wholesaled to us at 21c today cost us 49c. Our labor costs have more than doubled. Our city licenses which used to cost us $2.50 per machine today in 1950 cost us $10. And we are supposed to meet these rising costs with the same nickel in 1950 which met them adequately in 1940.

"When teenagers are gathered around a jukebox parents don't have to worry where they are and what they are doing. They are entitled to musical enjoyment at a reasonable rate. Their weekly allowance will not afford 10c; we cannot long continue at 5c. Let's get together at the mid-point, 7½c."

Muzak 45 Expansion

Reflecting the entry of an increasing number of indie platter companies into the 45 rpm field, Muzak's transcription division has opened new facilities for recording, processing and pressing of 45 rpm disks. Muzak studio is equipped to convert 78 rpm catalogs to the slower speed as well as waxing new releases.

New operation will supplement the company's previous entry into the 33 rpm record manufacturing field.

FRANK WALKER
the Showman's friend
WELCOMES YOU TO THE ALEXANDRIA HOTEL
5th at Spring St. LOS ANGELES

War or peace, we always found accommodations for our friends in show business. And now—as always—you'll receive traditional Frank Walker service...plus a special theatrical rate!
DRIVE-IN GARAGE

ALL ROOMS HAVE RADIO AND BATH

NEW NOVELTY HIT
SWEEPING ACROSS THE NATION
I FOUND MY MAMA
Records Released
—●—
THERE'S A LOVELY LAKE IN LOVELAND
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway, New York 19

GOD'S COUNTRY
recorded by
VIC DAMONE .... Mercury
BILL FARRELL .... M-G-M
PHIL HARRIS .... RCA Victor
AL JOLSON .... Decca
SNOOKY LANSON .... London
RALPH SIGWALD .... Magnolia
FRANK SINATRA .... Columbia
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION

Only the Cafes Winding Up in Red As Miami Black Season Nears Finale

Miami Beach, March 28.

Though this sun-colony is enjoying the greatest (and latest) season in its history, the cafe industry alone, of all the groups which feed off the annual tourist invasion, has come out, in the majority of cases in the red. Witness to the fact is the shuttering of the town's top spots, the Beachcomber and Copa City, over the weekend after four weeks of rapidly failing business, following slow early starts.

Alan Gale is closing his Celebrity club, too, though in his case it is a matter of health and other business interests, for this spot, run on a small, tight budget, did okay. Down the line one can point only to Clover Club and two intime spots, the Park Avenue and Bill Jordan's Bar of Music, as moneymakers. The rest, outside of an occasional strip joint, just got by or else lost money. All this despite the fact that the town is loaded with people—has been since early February, and looks to be into April, with all signs pointing to a solid spring season.

The recovery by Lincoln Road swank shops after they, too, were in the red, might point the road for the cafemen in the manner in which the customers flocked in when prices were reduced.

Withal, it again looks as though the belwethers for the industry, Copa City and Beachcomber, may not merge, ending the cutthroat fight for acts that led into the high tariffs, which kept the crowds away in droves.

New factor stymieing the merger is filing of Copa City receivership by another group of creditors, after first one had been dissolved, this time by holders of second mort-

(Continued on page 62)

PREP FIRST POSTWAR VAUDE BILL FOR HAWAII

Hollywood, March 28.

For the first time since before the war a complete eight-act vaude bill is being built here for a Hawaiian stand.

Honolulu operators Fred and Tots Matsuo are buying the $4,500 layout through local agent Art Whiting. Round-trip fares are included in the deal. Helen Forrest, Eddie Peabody, Serge Flash, Burton's Birds and Jacqueline Fontaine have been set thus far.

Zitherist Anton Karas' 16-City Sheraton Tour

After some indecision and hassling between Selznick Releasing Organization and Music Corp. of America on handling of Anton Karas, the Austrian zither player has been booked into Sheraton hotels in 16 cities. Musician, who composed and plays the tunes in SRO's "The Third Man," is currently at the Wardell-Sheraton, Detroit.

He is under an artists contract to David O. Selznick, who gives him a weekly guarantee and splits evenly with him his earnings above that amount. MCA gets its usual agency commission for booking.

SRO's aim always has been to use Karas in the best way for exploiting the pic, while MCA is understood to have desired to take bookings which it felt more advantageous from other standpoints. It was because of DOS' aim to aid the picture that a firm offer from the Hilton Hotels was turned down.

Sheraton deal provides for stands of two to six days. All except those in New York and Chicago will immediately precede opening of "Man" in each town. Tour winds up at the end of May at the Park-Sheraton, N. Y.

Bill to Extend Insurance Benefits Dies in Assembly

Albany, March 28.

The Curto bill, which extended unemployment insurance coverage to musicians, dancers, concert artists and others employed by associations otherwise exempt, died in Assembly Rules Committee. Assemblyman Ernest Curto, Niagara Falls Republican, introduced it on the opening day of the session.

A similar measure was killed in committee last year.

Blackhawk, Chi, Sets Series of Unit Shows

The Blackhawk, Chicago, will try a series of unit shows, to be produced by Tommy Morton. Cafe will get a 10-people package, "The Roaring Twenties," starting April 5, budgeted at $1,500, written and directed by Mervyn Nelson. Other units will follow if initial show clicks.

According to present plans, unit will be booked into other niteries following the Blackhawk run. Music Corp. of America is agenting.

Adams, Newark, Sets More Vaude

The Adams theatre, Newark, has restored vaude policy, using top names when available. Thus if theatre can get a top name, even for one night date, it would build a show around it.

Theatre is also angling radio-tele units. Horn & Hardart Children's show will play a stand there April 9. Moppets will play two matinee shows with night shows allotted to Noro Morales orch and the Ames Bros.

New policy goes into effect today (Wed.) with the five days booking of King Cole Trio and Ray McKinley orch. Other shows include the Jack Carson unit April 16; Three Stooges-Glen Gray orch, week of April 21; Artie Shaw goes in April 28 and Woody Herman is set for May 19.

House started this season with eight-act vaude bills, but dropped policy in favor of bandshows. Adams had some spot bookings earlier, but this is the first time this year that it's set a consecutive lineup.

St. Loo Morals Squad Strikes Out Twice In Lewd Dance Raids

St. Louis, March 28.

Lt. Jake Jacobs of the Police Department's morality squad has been to bat twice in police court in recent weeks against dancers in small bistros whom he arrested for lewd and indecent exhibitions but is yet to score a hit. Last week Saundra Lee Malavazos, exponent of the can-can, convinced Judge John H. Connor that her dance was not immoral. Sam Morfia, owner, and Harold Bohlen, manager of the nitery, were also absolved of similar charges.

Several weeks ago Nita Navarre, billed as the "leopard-girl," won an acquittal before police judge John L. Waechter on a similar rap. Max Barnholtz, owner of the nite spot also won a walkout.

Loew's Nix Legit Tabs, Back to 1-Nite Vaude

The Loew circuit has abandoned idea of presenting the hour-long legiters in its N. Y. houses which had been using one-night vaude. Decision followed the run of "The Respectful Prostitute" at the Commodore and Bedford theatres, Brooklyn. Both houses will revert to vaude.

Difference in cost of advertising and backstage crews didn't pay off. Grosses were better, but not enough to warrant retention of policy.

NVA's New Clubrooms

National Variety Artists have taken a two-year lease of the former quarters of the Friars in Edison Hall, N. Y., adjacent to the Edison hotel, assuming occupancy June 1. The Friars are skedded to move into their new clubhouse on W. 56th street, May 1.

NVA, which will occupy the top floor of the building, will also fall heir to the roof, which it will convert into a summer garden and solarium for its members.

Eddie Heywood Trio into the Click, Philadelphia, May 5, and the Apollo, N. Y., May 12.

Dinah's Record 51G Gross At Shamrock, Houston

Houston, March 28.

Dinah Shore lured $51,232 in Hotel Shamrock in the first seven days of her nitery date here, topping all previous marks. Hotel sells no liquor, figure representing food tariff alone.

Singer winds here Thursday (30) and returns to the Coast for few days before heading for the special Bob Hope Easter Sunday telecast.

New Syndicate Takes Over A.C. Pier for 10 Yrs.

Atlantic City, March 28.

Million Dollar Pier has been leased for 10 years, five years plus a five-year option, to the Beach Amus. Corp., and will open June 10.

Lease was cinched after Mayor Joseph Altman told civic groups that the city was not interested in the least in purchasing the property. Latter wanted the city to buy the pier, and convert it into a public park. They included the Chamber of Commerce, Hotel Assn. and the Boardwalk Assn.

The property, whose ballroom and central portion was razed by fire last September, is owned by the Associated Realties Corp., of which Clarence K. Crossan, Philadelphia councilman, is principal stockholder.

The Beach Amusement Corp. is incorporated with S. J. Betoff, of Philadelphia, as president, the other officers being M. A. Tubis of New York City and Harry Schwartz of Philadelphia.

The group plans to operate the spot with a variety of entertainment for moppets and adults on the order of an amusement park. Workmen now are leveling the entire front of the pier to walk level, and will landscape it, putting in a miniature golf links.

Deal is hatching whereby the old Hippodrome may become the setting for musical comedies. Lessees are dickering with the Shuberts for attractions.

Of the new operators, Tubis is connected with the Palisades Park, N. J., and is publisher of Circus Publications in New York.

Lessees were mum on the rental figure. It is understood that a flat rental was agreed upon and a year's rent paid in advance.

Georgia Druggists Set Top Talent for Convention

Atlanta, March 28.

Georgia Pharmaceutical Ass'n is turning to show biz in all its varied facets—stage, screen, radio, and television—as entertainment for 1,800 members due to attend its Diamond Jubilee convention here April 3-5.

Name bands to be brought in are Blue Barron, Dean Hudson and Al Coleman. Morton Downey will emcee shows to be presented at 4,400-seat Fox theatre, leased for duration of convention. Other entertainers are Betty Bruce, Rosalind Courtright, Cardini and Dave Barry.

Jack Carter, TV comic, will be emcee for second night's program, with Coleman's band on stage, featuring Ben Yost Ambassadors, the Merry Mutes, and others. Hudson and his tooters will play for the two convention dances.

"Ladies Fair," vet show featuring Tom Moore, will originate from convention floor April 4. Others scheduled to entertain pill rollers will be Johnson Family singers, network and recording group.

Merrill's Roxy Date

Robert Merrill is the latest Metopera singer to play vaude. He's been booked for the Roxy theatre, N. Y., for a June date. Mimi Benzell, also from the Met, played the Strand theatre, N. Y., earlier this season.

This will be Merrill's only theatre engagement for the time being. He's currently on the NBC TV Saturday night "Show of Shows" and is slated for a concert tour during spring and summer.

Ringling Circus, AGVA Settle Dispute, Will Thresh Out Terms of Pact Later

Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus early this week came to an agreement with American Guild of Variety Artists, which precludes threatened picketing of the Madison Square Garden when the circus opens there next Wednesday (5). Circus inked a letter of agreement stipulating AGVA as the bargaining agent for performers working in the circus. There will be additional conferences between AGVA and circus officials starting April 10 for actual signing of the AGVA pact.

Deal stipulates that the 1940 agreement between AGVA and the circus be renewed for 1950. Early contract called for the union's inclusion of roustabouts, but they're not included in the new pact. The 1940 agreement was allowed to lapse because of the frequent changes in union's administration and inability of the union to enter a sustained fight at that time.

Whether AGVA will be able to get an agreement covering wages and working conditions during this year, remains to be seen.

Guild was able to get this pact because of the cooperation with other American Federation of Labor affiliates. In fact, it was reported that the Ringlings would find it difficult to get their show transported because of pressure through the AFL council in New York. Even if the circus did get as far as the Garden, it was possible that other AFL crafts wouldn't cross AGVA's picket line.

The Ringling show is regarded by AGVA as a strategic victory inasmuch as other circuses will also have to fall in line.

Chi Blackstone Room's New Supper Club Policy

Chicago, March 28.

Supper club policy will be instituted in Balinese Room of Blackstone hotel on March 30, with singer Joan Barton. This puts the room in competition with the smaller swank rooms here like the Buttery. The Blackstone's larger room, the Mayfair Room, retains its standard format.

Danny Cassella orch, which has been playing room solo, will play for dinner dancing and the show. New policy will get a promotional sendoff with a 10-minute daily TV spot on WGN-TV at 6:25 p.m., entitled "Barton at the Balinese."

Sinatra's Hefty 65G at N.Y. Copa

Indications point to a huge $65,000 gross for the first week of Frank Sinatra at the Copacabana, N. Y. Swooner did $46,000 from his opening Thursday (23) to Sunday night. Record for the spot is still held by Jimmy Durante who hit $70,000. Copa, however, is still to show a profit during the last month's operations since engagement of Ted Lewis ran into several mild weeks.

Sinatra is doing so well at the Copa that manager Jack Entratter is dickering with Frankie Laine for a summer date.

Copa lineup so far includes Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, who open May 4 and Mindy Carson on June 29.

Toronto Niteries Ordered To Sapolio Floorshows; Asks Musicians' Aid

Toronto, March 28.

Liquor License Board has sent out warnings to certain night spots here to clean up their floorshow acts, with Board also asking musicians' union officials to voluntarily undertake some of the policing.

Apart from the first-rate bistros, smut has been steadily inserting itself, particularly among vocalists stressing double-entendre lyrics, according to complaints. These lack even sophisticated subtlety and have reached such a degree that has even good-natured tolerants walking out, with short-sighted operators preferring quick revenue even at the cost of a deteriorating clientele. Warning will be followed by drastic action, License Board states.

Miami Clover Club Show Set as Riviera, N.J., Opener

The Riviera, Ft. Lee, N. J., has signed the Clover club, Miami, package for its opening show. Layout, comprising the Vagabonds, Jan Murray and Rose Marie, will open April 27.

It's been an off-and-on deal between Riviera boniface Bill Miller and Music Corp of America. It had been okayed a week ago and then called off by MCA when there was a possibility that the N. Y. Copa would pick up the show. After the Copa's turndown, deal with Miller was on again. This package played at the Miami spot during most of the Florida season.

Friars Frolic April 23

The Friars will hold their 45th annual Frolic at the 46th Street theatre, N. Y., Sunday evening, April 23. Friar Abbot Milton Berle is setting up the show, will emcee it and appear in a novel (non-minstrel) first part. He'll also weave in and out of the other turns as per usual.

Proceeds will go to the welfare fund of the club.

R & M Enterprises, Inc., has been chartered to conduct a theatrical booking agency in New York. Capital stock is $10,000, $100 par value. Penger & Feder were filing attorneys.

NELLIE LUTCHER SET TO PLAY DEEP SOUTH

Hollywood, March 28.

Nellie Lutcher will undertake her first Deep South tour next month with a skein of one-niter concerts through Louisiana and Texas. Trek opens with April 15-16 stands at Auditorium, New Orleans, where chirper will be backed by local band and get $1,100 per night. Eight straight sessions follow, at flat $750 apiece, in Lake Charles (her hometown), Beaumont, San Antonio, Shreveport, Corpus Christi, Houston, Austin and Galveston.

Thereafter, General Artists Corp. is trying to set more southern spottings up on Atlantic seaboard so dates segue into a two-week stand Miss Lutcher is set for Cafe Society, N. Y., opening May 11 at $2,000 weekly.

Bklyn. Paramount Trying 1-Nighter Vaude Shows

Paramount theatre, Brooklyn, is experimenting with stageshows in an effort to bolster trade, with the first test set for Friday (31) night. House is using all-colored show, with Ella Fitzgerald topping. She will be doubling from N. Y. Paramount. Illinois Jacquet band, Timmie Rogers and Bunny Briggs make up remainder of bill.

"Port of N. Y." and "Quartet" are the two feature pictures current at Brooklyn Par for this show.

Weiner Elected Prez Of Publicists' Guild

Publicists' Guild, newly formed pressagents organization, elected Ed Weiner prexy in initial election last week. Other officers elected are Sam Geison, first veepee; Curtis Weinberg, second veepee; Frances Kaye, secretary, and Kay Norton, treasurer.

Terms run for ensuing year.

Wolfe's Pitt Nitery

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Tiny Wolfe, comic and former band singer, has branched out as a cafe owner, having just bought a half interest in the Clover Club. He has an option on the remaining 50% and expects to control the property before the year's up.

Wolfe's a local lad, and started out in show biz in mid-'30s in a comedy act. Later he joined Blue Barron's orch as bass player and comedy vocalist, taking over the outfit himself for a while during Barron's Army stretch. Recently Wolfe had been teamed with Marty Allen in a vaude act.

Night Club Reviews

Copacabana, N. Y.

Frank Sinatra (with Skitch Henderson), Larry Storch, Fred & Sledge, Russ Emery, Lorna Lynn. Patricia Adair, Copa Girls, Michael Durso Orch, Fernando Alvares Latin Band; songs, Bob Hilliard and Dave Mann; staged by Douglas Coudy; orchestrations, Elliot G. Eberhard; costumes, Billy Livingston; $3-$3.50 minimum.

Not so many years ago show biz hepsters wouldn't have given a baritone's bleat for the chances of a skinny kid named Frank Sinatra, who was soon swooning the bobbysoxers into the aisles with what was conservatively called a voice. A baritone voice, no less. No matter what it was that sent the kids screaming for Frankie Boy — aided no doubt by the pressagentry of the late George Evans—Sinatra today is little different in his appeal to the human element. Today he may have less voice than ever before—but he has a compensating quality that considerably makes up for his vocal void. That would be salesmanship.

Whether Sinatra, who is making a New York cafe return after an absence of some years, has enough selling ability to counter his vocal decline is something that the next few weeks of his Copa engagement will decide. In the last few years he hasn't had to rely solely on his voice to retain his name power; he has learned much about floor and stage deportment. There is the little element of pictures—and what's wrong with being co-starred with Gene Kelly in those Metro musicals? There are the disks, too. But there are no retakes on a cafe floor. In short, Sinatra today is selling a very saleable brand of showmanship—but not the kind of voice that tingled the distaff side a few years ago.

Opening-night comprised all Sinatra fans, and it was a showwise mob too. They helped to put over a night which apparently was a jittery one for the singer. After his initial nervousness, Sinatra recaptured his ability to kid with the customers; and, what is more important, he knows what to say.

"I'm not the greatest singer in the world," he reiterates, and it doesn't seem to matter that he isn't. He talks with ease and with a modesty that may well serve to inspire Dale Carnegie to discourse on "How to Win Friends and Influence Pushed-Around Nightclub Customers." (Incidentally, opening night was so packed even the newspaper bunch had to compete with the busboys for positions behind those posts. When will cafes learn not to invite the cuffo press crowd if they can't take care of them well?)

He's glad to be back in New York, Sinatra sings out in his initial number, and then follows with a string of rhythm tunes, ballads and novelties. That novelty lyric which suggests a reflection on his personal life should be dispensed with. It's a little too close to home to be in good taste. The rest of his repertory consists of such numbers as "Foolish Heart," "Body and Soul," "Got a Crush on You," "Come Rain Come Shine," a takeoff on Frankie Laine and "Mule Train" (cute and funny), "Old Man River," (too tough for his voice) and, to top it off, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," which he did in the Metro musical of that title. Skitch Henderson, incidentally, does a sock job as Sinatra's musical director, and paces the singer's performance from a floor piano.

Larry Storch is getting second billing here, and he does a neat job on his mimicries. He has some new material that gets over, but his standards, the dying Englishman in the desert and the dame with the drunken crying jag, remain his toppers. He is still one of the best mimics around.

Russ Emery, who sings the production numbers with Lorna Lynn, is a young baritone who impresses strongly with a good voice and lyrical sense, though he doesn't have too much opportunity on his own. Diminutive Patricia Adair is the production dancer, a longtime holdover. Fred and Sledge are colored hoofers-singers, doubling from "Kiss Me, Kate," who do okay in a brief session. The Copa Girls are, as usual, tastefully costumed by Billy Livingston. Michael Durso paces the non-Sinatra portion of the show with assurance, and Fernando Alvares clicks with his Latin dansapation. Kahn.

Ciro's, Hollywood

Hollywood, March 19.

Rosita Serrano, Eddie Oliver's Orch (8); $1.50-$2 cover.

Rosita Serrano began her first local stand last night and made a decided hit with the customers at Herman Hover's plush nitery. Gal's a fiery looker, straight from below the border, and has a fine voice.

Her repertoire includes eight numbers which keep her on for 35 minutes. Of these numbers seven are in foreign lingo. Before each selection she explains — in amusing chatter—what her next song will be about.

Titles of selections, with exception of "The Money Song," are Latin-American ones which would mean little here. It's way she puts them over that counts. If her numbers are serious, then her voice is forceful, yet possessed of warmth. If they are fast or comedy ditties, she is gay and vivacious, making excellent use of body movement—and a bag of vocal tricks to boot. Her act also includes a tune in which she accomps self on guitar; another is an audience participationer.

Eddie Oliver's orchestra provides good backing for Miss Serrano. They work well together. Orchestra, incidentally, has added a choral-like unit consisting of Lou Anne and Suzanne Smith, and Bill Troy. Trio split up the vocalizing and unite for a humming background to orchestra. Joey Stabile orchestra takes over for portion of the customer dancing. Neal.

5 O'Clock Club, Miami

Miami Beach, March 25.

Buddy Lester, DeCastro Sisters, Stan Fisher, Ginger Johnson Orch; minimum $3.50.

Now that the big spots have shuttered, Ned Schuyler's come up with the best playing show yet displayed at this intimery. With the town still jampacked with tourists bistro should do good biz.

Buddy Lester has played the Clover Club and Beachcomber in previous seasons, but hits better than ever here. On for over 50 minutes, he tosses the book at them via songs to screwy quickie impreshes and bits with Stan Fisher. Tops with howlmaking takeoff on Harry Richman and "Africa." Had to beg off.

Fisher is a familiar here, having displayed his harmonica virtuosity earlier in season. He's as potent as ever with his adept mouthings of "Malaguena," "Roumanian Rhapsody" and a medley, ranging from pops to classics, for sock applause.

DeCastro sisters impress with their harmonies when they confine themselves to the straight arrangements. But tendency to overdo the mugging for comedy lessens their impact. The trio are too good on song delivery to allow the clowning to gum things up. However, the audience goes big for their pops and Latinairs. Lary.

Latin Quarter, Boston

Boston, March 24.

Beatrice Kay (2), Paul Gray, Elisa Jayne, Pat Terry & Arden-Fletcher Lovelies (8), Cab Calloway (5), Dave Lester Orch (9), Don Rico Quartet; $3 minimum.

The Latin Quarter bonifaces, always alert to a new gimmick, are currently dealing the public in on a "doubleheader" in the Sunday shows with bistro holding over topliner of previous week to add to lineup of new show. Consequently, when Beatrice Kay and supporting acts opened Sun. (19) they shared bill with Cab Calloway, who was closing, resulting in a hypo to otherwise dull Sunday biz.

Headliner Miss Kay, wearing a svelt silver lame gown, topped off with a circa '90 feather boa, had little difficulty registering her special brand of vintage songs with her husky voice and solid delivery. Most of her stuff was familiar, such as "Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and "Gilded Cage" although she also does "Put Your Shoes On, Lucy" and winding with "Don't Go Near the Lion's Den." Stint is solid throughout.

Calloway gives out with his usual hardworking chore, including his trademarks, "Minnie the Moocher" and "St. James Infirmary" for neat results. His four Caballeros back him solidly and at one point he turns them loose for a hectic jam session.

Also in the lineup are Elisa Jayne, a nifty femme with slick acro tricks, and her husband, Paul Gray, a comic, with a fair line of chatter, although at show caught he had difficulty warming up audience. The Arden-Fletcher Lovelies in fetching costumes prance through several production numbers, aided by okay baritoning of Pat Terry. Dave Lester orch backs nicely and Don Rico Quartet fills lulls capably. Biz fair. Elie.

Cafe Society Downtown

Josh White, Mary Lou Williams, George Kirby, J. C. Heard Quartet; $3.50 minimum.

Greenwich Village spot has one of its strongest recent bills, headed by Josh White. Balladeer, accompanying himself on guitar, offers some varied fare, including a jaunty worksong ("Lord, This Timber's Gotta Roll"), an earthy Kentucky folk number ("Bunch of Water Cress") and a tender mountain ballad ("I Gave My Love a Cherry Without a Stone"). He mixes the familiar "Foggy, Foggy Dew" with a solid blues tune, "Evil Hearted Me," and socks over the click of a few years back, "One Meat Ball." Final encore works in some audience participation via "On Top of Old Smokey."

Piano-stylist Mary Lou Williams does some fancy 88ing, with variations on "Caravan," "For You" and "What Is This Thing Called Love?" Her technique is intricate and arresting. She gets a neat assist from the J. C. Heard group, which also opens the show. Quartet (bass, electric guitar, piano and Heard on drums) does some bop-slanted tunes, including an original, "I Love to Make Love to You."

Comedy is provided by George Kirby, who has been making the video rounds recently. A versatile impressionist, Kirby runs the gamut from Sidney Greenstreet to the "Amos 'n' Andy" cast, and handles femme carbons as well as males. Material is fair, but can use some freshening up in view of his TV stints. He's at his best in some vocals, satirizing Rose Murphy, Nellie Lutcher and Ella Fitzgerald, and his introductory gag gets an appreciative palming. Bril.

Silver Frolics, Chi

Chicago, March 22.

Nov-Elites (3), Bert Stone & Eddie Shine, Ginger Kinney, Kay Kenton, Bud Prentiss Orch (4), Don Pedro Band (4) with Nina; no minimum, cover, 55c.

For years the Silver Frolics was the west side's leading nitery here. However, demolishment of the building forced a move to new quarters, the former Carousel at the north end of the Loop. With the amazing policy of low prices and quality food, perhaps Chi-

(Continued on page 64)

ENGLISH CRITICS ACCLAIM

KEN WHITMER

Professor of Musicomedy

"Ken Whitmer, comedian, is the first American to appear in Manchester pantomime, his individual act was, to my mind, THE BEST THING IN THE SHOW. He displays remarkable versatility with his varied assortment of musical instruments."
THE REPORTER

"Emile Littler's ninth Manchester pantomime follows the time-proven recipe, plus . . The plus is American television comedian Ken ("Simple Simon") Whitmer. His individual act in this magnificently scened show IS ONE OF REMARKABLE TALENT.

"The essentially American humour of Ken Whitmer, accomplished on everything but the zither, who triumphed with a Harry James trumpet solo and the individual touches of America's six best dance leaders, as he leaped from piano to drums and trombone."
Ernest Lewis
SUNDAY DISPATCH

"The American recruit, Ken Whitmer, provides a brilliant solo turn as a musician whose work on half-a-dozen instruments—including an invasion of the orchestra pit—IS RAPTUROUSLY RECEIVED." Alan Bendle
SUNDAY DISPATCH

"NOTABLE IN AN EXCELLENT SHOW—IS KEN WHITMER, American variety artist who crossed the Atlantic only a week ago to make his debut as Simple Simon, the King's music master. He performs brilliantly on half-a-dozen instruments." THE DAILY MAIL

Just Returned from 3 Months
Engagement in English Pantomime

Currently Appearing at the

RKO PALACE
NEW YORK

See Me on Ed Sullivan's
"Toast of the Town"—Apr. 2—WCBS-TV

Personal Management
MAX ROTH and BERNARD BURKE
48 West 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

"Ken Whitmer was the surprise, but not as Simple Simon. Only a few days away from U.S.A. his spirit was not daunted in making a first appearance in a British fairy tale. And for good reason. When he gets the stage alone after frequent appearances with a black dog which grows bigger and bigger with seemingly childish purpose, HE GIVES YOU YOUR MONEY'S WORTH."
MANCHESTER CITY NEWS

"THE HEARTIEST APPLAUSE OF THE EVENING WAS TAKEN BY KEN WHITMER, as Simple Simon, who put across a brilliant solo act on a variety of musical instruments."
NEWS CHRONICLE

"They are backed up by Ken Whitmer—whose musical turn, with cracks, WAS A SMASH HIT." SUNDAY EMPIRE NEWS

"Ken Whitmer, an American paying his first visit to Manchester, is a versatile musician who plays many instruments and CONTRIVES TO BE EXCEEDINGLY AMUSING."
THE ADVERTISER

"The American Ken Whitmer IS GUARANTEED TO STOP THE SHOW IN ANY CASE."
MANCHESTER EVENING NEWS

"Ken Whitmer, who has captured a goodly proportion of the Press reports on Emile Littler's "Humpty Dumpty" at the Hippodrome, Manchester, is the first American artiste to take a star part in a Manchester pantomime, and altogether seems to have MADE A BIG SUCCESS OF THE TASK."
THE PERFORMER

A NEW IDEA IN ENTERTAINMENT

Star of
"REGINA"

The Enchanting

JANE PICKENS

and her Six Escourties

Produced by:	MOE GALE
Supervised by:	BERT SHEVELOVE
Staged by:	RAY HARRISON
Choral Direction:	DON CRAIG
Arrangements:	MEYER RAPPAPORT, DON REDMAN, JACK ALLISON
Special Lyrics:	EDWARD C. REDDING
Gowns by:	MAINBOCHER

Publicity:
ROSS ASSOCIATES
and AL WILDE

April 10—DETROIT ATHLETIC CLUB

April 19 Thru May 2—COPLEY PLAZA, BOSTON

May 3—PROVIDENCE-BILTMORE

May 11—WALDORF-ASTORIA, NEW YORK

Exclusive RCA VICTOR Recording Artist

Management:	Booking Direction:	Concert Direction:
MOE GALE	MUSIC CORPORATION OF AMERICA	NATIONAL CONCERT ARTIST CORPORATION

Fewer N.Y. Showcases for Top Talent Poses New Problems for Agcys., Acts

Talent agencies are finding it increasingly difficult to get proper N.Y. cafe showcases for top acts. The Copacabana and the Latin Quarter are probably the only mass cafes that can play a four-figure salaried turn. The Riviera, Ft. Lee, N. J., is another spot in the N.Y. area that can afford the higher-priced names, but that's a summer operation.

As a result, the agencies are hard-pressed to get N. Y. bookings for many acts. If LQ boniface Lou Walters and Jack Entratter and Julie Podell of the Copa reject a performer there's no place for him to work advantageously.

With the current status of nitery business, a placement in any other cafe frequently puts the act at a disadvantage. Bookers for other spots viewing the turn, can't be impressed too much with entertaining or drawing powers if there's a lot of empty tables. Some percenters feel that an act might as well be shown in a rehearsal hall.

The situation is further complicated for the agencies due to the fact that the Latin Quarter, at the moment, is going along with moderate priced entertainers. Walters feels that he does just as well with less evpensive performers even if gross is lower, since the differences in payroll and advertising budgets permit the same profit.

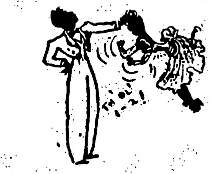
Several agencies have been working on Eddie Davis of Leon & Eddie's, to open the spot to standard names. Except for the times when Davis is on vacation or incapacitated, percenter pleas haven't been too successful.

WM Ups Seligman

Bernie Seligman, assistant to Nat Kalcheim, head of the William Morris Agency theatre and cafe departments, has been upped to the WM theatre division.

He'll work with Sol Shapiro and Dave Shapiro.

JUDY CANOVA
COMEDIENNE
PERSONAL APPEARANCES
WM. H. KING
2025 N. Argyle Ave.
Hollywood 28, Calif.



PATRICE JAN
HELENE and HOWARD
Currently
CLUB DATES and TELEVISION

YOU MUST VISIT
RAILWAY LOST PROPERTY
when in LONDON for Bargains in Furs, Fur Coats, Luggage, Travel and Sports Goods:—Call at 1 Portman Street (corner of Oxford Street), Marble Arch, London, W.1.

Midwest Vaude Dates

Chicago, March 28.

Betty & Jane Kean into the Oriental, April 20 for two weeks . . . Eddie & Lucille Roberts open at the Edgewater hotel, March 31 . . . Leo Salkin has taken over booking of the Club Hollywood . . . Step Bros. fill in two weeks before sailing for Lido, Paris, at the Chicago theatre, March 31 . . Ethel Smith and Frances Langford co-headline at the Milwaukee Sports Arena, April 9 . . . Jackie Heller set for Baker hotel, Dallas, April 27 . . . Willie Shore, Rita & Allan Farrell pacted for Vine Gardens May 19 . . . Sophie Tucker due at the Chez Paree, May 12.

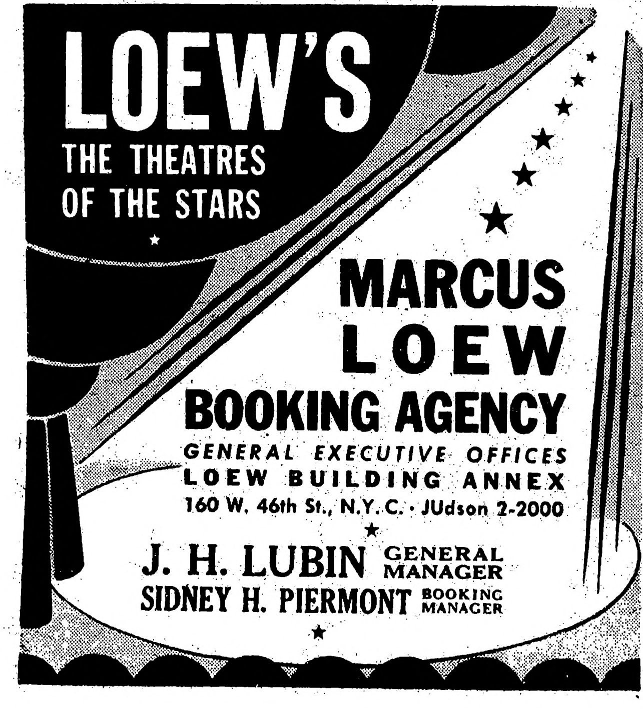
Berry Bros. set for the Frankie Laine show at the Chicago, April 14 . . . Kenny Milton into Turin Inn, Sioux City, March 31 . . . Gene Baylos comes into the Silver Frolics, April 14.

Froos Vice Arden

Singer Toni Arden, who opened at the Capitol theatre, N. Y., Saturday (25), was forced out of the show after the last performance the following day because of laryngitis.

She was replaced by Sylvia Froos for the remainder of the two-week run.

Holiday Attractions, Inc., has been chartered to supply entertainers and musical acts and to produce musical and dramatic productions, with offices in New York. Capital stock is 100 shares, no par value.



LOEW'S
THE THEATRES
OF THE STARS
MARCUS
LOEW
BOOKING AGENCY
GENERAL EXECUTIVE OFFICES
LOEW BUILDING ANNEX
160 W. 46th St., N.Y.C. • JUdson 2-2000
J. H. LUBIN GENERAL MANAGER
SIDNEY H. PIERMONT BOOKING MANAGER

Danny Thomas Big Click At London Palladium

London, March 28.

Danny Thomas opened the new vaude season at the Palladium to a sock ovation by giving a perfect blend of comedy and song sentiment in a 60-minute show. He clicked immediately with his opening gags and became an instantaneous favorite.

Thomas' success ranks with the best since the American star invasion and is a sure indication of smash boxoffice during the comic's four weeks' stint. George and Bert Bernard again register as do Frank Ross and Anita La Pierre.

Put-'Em-to-Sleep Boys Copping Heavy Coin In Aussie Vaude Revival

Sydney, March 14.

It's a redletter day for hypnotists in the Aussie territory. The Aussies, who haven't seen an hypnotist in action for a couple of decades, when vaude hit the skids, are paying solid coin to watch their friends go up on the stage to take a sleep handout and then go through all those old stock-in-trade tricks to bring the same old bellylaughs of yesteryear.

First to cash in on the new setup is Franquin, young hypnotist hooked by J. C. Williamson in New Zealand and brought to Aussie for a run bid. He's doing okay. Franquin works solo for 150 minutes, and that's something for a single performer.

Breaking into the lush biz around the Antips while the boom lasts are the Great Levante, who formerly stuck strictly to magic stuff, and Tex Morton, a former cowboy crooner, with other ex-vauders dusting off their old hypnotic gear for plays in the keys, nabes and stix.

MB Cafes in Red

Continued from page 59

gages. Shutdown brought news that some of the newer creditors may not be paid, which again leads to entanglements. Many observers wonder if Ned Schuyler, operator of the Beachcomber, would chance the accruing debts and inevitable lawsuits if the merger went through.

Many of the operators privately admit that the best thing which could happen to their biz would be a levelling off of prices. Some even admit that many acts have come down in demands. But the big ones, fought for as they are, simply won't. Not as long as they can get it. But, in line with the trend, those who have been close to the scene for some years' believe that even the Copa and Beachcomber, if they remain rivals, cannot afford another season such as this one.

Be Kind to Customers

And that the patron must be handled more respectably, from headwaiter down to busboy. And there's also the thought that something must be done to snare that late biz. It's been brutal. Many feel it all must be adjusted to an 8 p. m. dinner revue and an 11 p. m. supper edition. They just won't stay up for a 1 a. m. show anymore. At least, not the types to be attracted to the oversized spots which depend on mass trade to keep alive. For those who want the ayem divertissement, they point out, there are plenty of small spots pitching for that patronage.

All are waiting to see what happens, now, that only the Five O'Clock, Clover, Kitty Davis are running in the set-show idea, while Park Avenue and Bar of Music, handle the intime crowds, and the Paddock and Chez Paree remain for the strip-minded. There are the hotels, of course, with many a club operator wondering how far the bigger hostels will go now that they city ordinance limiting the type of entertainment they can utilize has been fought to the state supreme court, with the city thus far on the losing end.

Sherry-Frontenac hotel, with a huge nightclub room in operation, is testing and already planning to bring in the DeCastro Sisters to join Nino Yacovino, who heads up the shows here. Other oceanfronts will probably join, with Sans Souci, Saxony and Delano definite to compete. Which means more competish this spring and summer for the small clubs, and, come winter, offering stiff opposition even to the big cafes.

Atlantic City Primping for Holiday Crowds With New Yr's. Eve Tariffs

Atlantic City, March 28.

Once again the Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday crowds will be scanned as a barometer of whether resort will have a good or poor season.

But this year, perhaps more than any year in the past, at least since the war, both city, amusement and hotel people are cooperating in presenting attractions to lure the crowds on both weekends.

The pre-Easter fashion parade scheduled for the Boardwalk this Sunday (2) will find the city awarding corsages to those selected best dressed women in the parade.

Easter Sunday three former Miss America's will select the 10 most attractive hats worn by women strollers. Likewise the 12 best-dressed men will also be picked, by the beauts.

Mummers' Bands

The city is trying a new one this year in bringing seven of Philadelphia's famous string bands which enliven the Mummers' parade here for an Easter Pageant to be held in the convention hall Saturday night (8).

Nightclubs and grills at the hotels will have added talent, and will operate about the same as New Years, when beach front houses had a $2.50 to $10 minimums, with souvenirs, floorshows, and early morning breakfasts.

George Hamid will open the Steel Pier with a special holiday show with Jimmy Dorsey Orch topling and vaude show by Five De Marco Sisters, Johnny Downs and others. In addition there will be films and other attractions.

Hamid again has donated the pier for the annual Easter Sunrise service.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, N.Y., March 28.

Charles (Chick) Lewis and Murray Weiss Boston, Variety Clubs hospital execs. in for periodic inspection.

Marie (Warners) Gallagher and Charlie Dillon, in from Philadelphia to visit Dolly Gallagher, who has made nice progress from recent setback.

Mabel (Legit) Burns, who mastered plenty surgery and licked a longtime bed routine, back from a 10-day furlough in New York.

Henry Perry planed in from Cleveland for a weekend to bedside chat with his brother Arthur (IATSE) Perry, who is showing nice progress.

New appointments that boost some of the gang: Jenny Foley, asst-switchboard operator; John Rosenberg, newspapers; Charlie Kaufhold and Sam LaBalbo mailmen, Sam Kelley and Bob Pasquale on special deliverys.

Trudeau Club presented its "Varieties of 1950" with entire proceeds going to the Red Cross. Outstanding were Al Porter, emcee; Lilo Guggenheim, accordionist; Sally Dornstein, singer, and a male quartette. Eddie Vogt staged the show.

Write to those who are ill.

Delay Apollo Date

George Shearing Quintet, scheduled to play the Apollo, N. Y., week of April 14 has cancelled out and will play the Earle, Philadelphia, instead. The combo will fill its Apollo commitment week of May 5.

The five-man crew is set for a one-week stand at Bop City, N.Y., beginning April 6.

Jane Whyte, former singer with the Phil Spitalny band, is now doing a single.

Phil Napoleon's Memphis Five signed by Music Corp. of America.

JACK PARKER
and DOLL
'SUPER CIRCUS'
TV SHOW
CHICAGO
APRIL 2
New York
Tom Fitzpatrick
Chicago
Sam Roberts

RUSTY FIELDS
ONE MAN SHOW
Exclusive
Mgt.:
AL DVORIN
54 West
Randolph
Chicago

HAVE YOU SEEN
JACKIE
KANNON
?

216,769 Mimics; 75,964 Records Acts; 6,987 Puppet Acts; 983 Knockabout Acts; 4 Upside down and backward writers.
BUT ONLY 1
'WHITEY' ROBERTS
ALWAYS WORKING
(But not at the Palace)

on the American label
"I'VE GOT NO
USE FOR THE WOMEN"
BOB MORRIS
Currently:
THE PADDOCK
ST. LOUIS
•
Management
PHIL EDWARDS
545 Fifth Avenue
MUrray Hill 7-6865
New York 17

BEN JANE
ROCHELLE AND BEEBE
"Often imitated but never surpassed!"—S. F. Examiner.
NOW — ORPHEUM, LOS ANGELES
L. A. TIMES—"Patrons tried to keep Rochelle and Beebe doing their hilariously funny ballroom burlesque onstage rest of the day, the femme half being that rare creature, a real comedienne."
VARIETY—". . . burlesque ballroomology to a continuous round of audience giggles."
L. A. EXAMINER—". . . burlesque rhumbas and waltz routines as danced by flossy night club teams. They are both amusing and skillful, and Jane has all the earmarks of a big-time comedienne."
Manager: AL WOLF
1501 Broadway, New York City

THE RAGE OF THE AGE

"Sugar Chile" ROBINSON

BIG ALL OVER

CURRENT THEATRE DATES

- ★ STRAND, N. Y. C. - - - - - 2 Weeks
- ★ BUTTERFIELD CIRCUIT - - - 5 Weeks
- ★ ORPHEUM, Omaha - - - - 1 Week
- ★ A. H. BLANK THEATRES - - 3 Weeks

Million Dollar Theater, L. A.

Just Closed

ORIENTAL THEATRE, Chicago

MARCH 9-22

Variety Says:

"S. C. Robinson Helps 'Rio' to Sock $47,000, Chi. . . ."

● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ●

TV APPEARANCES

- ★ MILTON BERLE SHOW
- ★ THIS IS SHOW BUSINESS

● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ●

CLUBS

- ★ LAST FRONTIER, Las Vegas
- ★ LAKE CLUB, Springfield, Ill.

● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ● ●

EXCLUSIVELY ON

Capitol RECORDS

NEWEST CAPITOL RELEASE

"SAY LITTLE GIRL"

Backed With

"BOUNCING BALL BOOGIE"

Capitol Record No. 897

STILL RIDING HIGH!

"NUMBERS BOOGIE"

Capitol No. 70037

MANAGEMENT COUNSEL: Herb Eiges
Carbel, Eiges and Eliasohn
Cadillac Tower, Detroit, Michigan

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION

JOE GLASER, Pres.

New York	Chicago	Hollywood
745 5th Ave. PL 9-4600	203 No. Wabash	9151 Sunset Blvd.

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 60

Silver Frolics, Chi

cago's downtown area may have another gathering spot.

However, before this is accomplished, present show format must be revised. Having an act working well over 40 minutes, Shine and Stone, tends to slow the pace of the bill, beside running the entire revue well over an hour and a half. Tighter format could be achieved by liberal cutting all the way around, except for the closer, Nov-Elites, who might include another number. Also Stone and Shine might work throughout the bill, instead of one spot.

Ginger Kinney is one of the freshest femmes to appear on the Chi circuit and registers with terrific tap whirls and gets a strong hand for clogging to "Donkey Serenade." Kay Kenton, a somewhat demure Betty Hutton type, makes the mistake in subduing her stuff. It's when she mugs, and carries on both physically and vocally that she sells best. Her hillbilly and Latin senorita bits are vigorous, but other two numbers light.

Shine and Stone are promising young comedians who have still to realize their potential. As yet, they are plagued by so-so material, but the attempt to prompt laughs by swish and blue stuff isn't a step in the right direction.

Shine does some fine tap work, especially in his impreshes of Ray Bolger and Bill Robinson, and also is a nifty straight man. Stone is sharp at dialect quips and stories. Team goes in for some rough play to garner laughs. With some slicing and weeding they would be a good theatre act.

Nov-Elites are a zany trio. While something of an effort to try and sell after lengthy stint of the preceding act, group registers nevertheless. Youngsters have a topnotch piece of buffoonery, backed by some excellent instrumentation. Teeing off with a straight version of "Oh Marie," accordionist Frankie Carr follows with neat rendition of "Sabre Dance." Trio really mayhems operatic air, "Figaro," running through it at record-breaking pace before swinging into fast novelty, "Cicero Mama." In "Big Noise From Winnetka," Joe Mayer slaps his bass heatedly. Although the lads get continual applause, their imitation of a hillbilly trio rocks the room.

Bud Prentiss does a yeoman job with four-piece orch which is too small for backing the show. At least, another tooter is needed. Don Pedro fronts the rhumba group capably and Nina Barbosa gets a nice mitt for her Latin vocals. Zabe.

NEW! NEW! NEW!
PIANISSIMO SINGER

CHRISTINE
GARDONI
"SINGS WITH HER HEART"
●
Starred New York Radio Program
WEEKLY FOR 2 YEARS
CARNEGIE HALL POP CONCERTS
CAROUSEL—MONTREAL
St. Regis—Toronto; Coronet—Quebec
NOW IN NEW YORK
THE BOULEVARD, ELMHURST, L. I.
Top Critics Agree She's Sensational
. . . You Must See Her
●
DELL-SPEAKER
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
Suite 301-3 Plaza 7-3195

LARRY BLAKE
LE RUBAN BLEU, New York
4 WEEKS
Personal Manager: MURRAY ROSE
PLACED BY
KALCHEIM & SMITH
R. K. O. Bldg., New York City
JUdson 6-3345

College Inn, Chi
(FOLLOWUP)

Chicago, March 21.

Although this nitery had been scheduled to close about April 6 to be turned into swank eatery with dinner music, upsurge in business since the announcement has changed plans for the present. In addition to keeping the "College Inn Story" running, Les Weinrott, producer, has brought in new material, with show being a tighter package than when it opened 21 weeks ago.

Influenced undoubtedly by the hark-back vogue to the 1920s, Ward Garner and Frank Wagner, have a laugh-provoking bit in a reprise of "The Charleston" both vocally and a trifle over-energized in the dance department. Dance team of Gehrig and Weismuller has two new terp numbers in the show, one a takeoff of the Fred Astaire "Carioca," and the other a sexy ballet-type display set to "Love For Sale." Latter is a bit torrid for a family room but goes over socko.

With Don Tennant replacing Cliff Norton, several skits have been dropped, but one rib-tickler has been added, "Stars of Television," in which Tennant, Frank Wagner, and Christine Nelson take over as familiar tele types; the western star, home economist, and wrestler. Keno Remero tenors "September Song" and Ralph Sterling has new closing number, "Blow, Gabriel, Blow." Thrush Eileen Green reminds of Helen Morgan as she chirps "My Bill." Norman Fields croons, "This Can't Be Love." Tony Parrish handles effective background narrating.

Nostalgically missed, however, is the record intro by Ashton Stevens, which recalled the days of the Inn when it was the pioneer of bistros. Zabe.

ATTENTION!
Nite Club and Hotel Managers

This Is the First Time in 5 Years That Any Act Has Been
HELD OVER
AT THE TIC TOC CLUB
Milwaukee, Wis.
EDDIE WHITE
"THE PERENNIAL JUVENILE"
has played here numerous times before, but was never better than now with a carload of new songs and stories.
(Signed) ALBERT J. TUSA,
Tic Toc Club
Personal Representative:
TISHMAN AND BERGER AGENCY
701 Seventh Avenue
New York, N. Y.

Oval Room, Boston
(COPLEY PLAZA HOTEL)

Boston, March 25.

Peter Lind Hayes & Mary Healy, Harry Marshard Orch (11), Tony Peters Trio; cover, $1.50, $2.

In their first cafe appearance locally, Peter Lind Hayes and wife, Mary Healy, are currently setting a new high in entertainment values with just about the sprightliest 45-minute stint seen here in some time. What they do is not as important, to employ the cliche, "it's the way they do it" that sells so solidly with ringsiders. They mug, put on funny hats, interrupt each other and wander around aimlessly but it's all sock entertainment.

Serving as a neat opener is Hayes' bit spoofing pic travelogs, with guy hoking it up enough to warm up the audience. From then on it's easy, for he teams with Miss Healy, a stunner, and perfect foil for his antics, in a "Disk Jockey Blues" number, she aping Lena Horne and "Chi, Chi" gal Rose Murphy, and he, Smiling Jack Smith and a lusty Jan Peerce doing "Bluebirds of Happiness." Turn gets howls. Another neat bit is their tearing apart "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Grabbing the spotlight, Miss Healy, a nifty thrush, attempts to vocalize "Stardust" but is broken up by Hayes sitting at ringside table heckling in loud, drunk fashion. Remarks wow audience, Miss Healy and even band boys. Hayes winds with solid characterization of drunk pouring out woes to bartender in a serio-comic vein.

Harry Marshard orch backs nicely. Tony Peters Trio fills lulls. Biz good. Elie.

Honey Johnson's, Paris

Paris, March 10.

Honey Johnson, Claude Azima, Christian Jouan, Rollo Gladner; no minimum.

This new nitery, recently opened in the Montparnasse section at 17 Rue Jules Chaplain, has all the promise of becoming favorite playground of the American Colony. It is operated by chanteuse Honey Johnson, who came over with Rex Stewart's band two years ago and stayed on to study painting. Club, formerly an Arabian eatery, has been turned into a lush, softly lit cabaret. Dinners are still served.

Miss Johnson holds the podium most of the evening with her husky warbling that glides from song to song in a beguiling, exciting manner. She is backed by a fine four piece combo with Rollo Gladner, last with Skinny Ennis, on the bass; Claude Azima, violin; Christian Jouan, guitar, and fine pianoing by Claude Germain. Visiting musicians are always dropping in, and Monday night jam sessions are given.

Ingratiating gladhanding is handled by Miss Johnson and hubby, Herbert Gentry. Young American Artists get display space, and the work of Johnson and Gentry is also well represented. With the coming tourist rush, good word of mouth should make this nitery a bonanza. Mosk.

Bellevue Casino, Mont'l

Montreal, March 24.

Esco Larue, Arnauts (3), Howard & Wanda Bell, Turner Twins, Debonairs (5), Hibbert & Bird, Genia Melnitchenko, Casino line (8), Bix Belair Orch (12), Julio Reyes quartet; admission 50c-$1.

In spite of Lent which usually cuts biz heavily in this town and the falling off of trade in general, this flashy cafe continues on the upbeat with the ropes up for most performances.

Heading current layout is comedian Esco Larue, who does his boff drunk routine with assistance of Hibbert & Bird. This is a natural for this room where patrons go for the broad approach and plenty of acro work. The Arnaut group score with their trick violin routines and pick up additional salvos for their bird flirtation session. Act is similar to that of their brothers, who played this spot a few weeks ago, but addition of femme to this group sharpens presentation and sells their "whistle-talk" in strong fashion.

The lavish Kamarova productions are sparked midway by a fur fashion show, a gimmick that does well with the distaff and makes a neat change from the usual line work. The Debonairs, one of the slickest terp combos to play this room, please with their mechanical age number and provide a hefty boost with their tapstering.

Ballerina Genia Melnitchenko adds class to the revue with a solo toe-terp and later in the finale. The acro team of Howard & Wanda Bell sell heavily and rate a rousing reception for their final stint, with Wanda doing a headstand atop Howard, who is balancing on a teetering board.

The ballroomology of Hibbert & Bird builds neatly out of a production number only to be interrupted by Larue. The Turner Twins handle the vocals nicely. Do especially well on "True to You" and "Brass Band from Brazil." Newt.

Rose Lounge, Albany
(TEN EYCK HOTEL)

Albany, March 22.

Walter Scheff, Roy Atwell, Bill McCombe's Orch (4); no cover.

Policy of importing names to build up patronage in Schine-owned spot was accelerated Friday (17) when Roy Atwell came on to supplement Walter Scheff, featured baritone for past month. A different topper will be booked each weekend under plan of hotel's new manager, George E. Chelius, Jr. Idea is to lift night life at class nitery, and in the city generally, out of the doldrums. It's sometime since performers like Atwell and Scheff have floor-showed here. Robert Young, Kirk Douglas, Nina Foch, Eddie Dowling and Mark Roberts are among the personalities who have recently broadcast from the room on Scheff's platter-interview program over WPTR.

Atwell, adept at double-talk and master of mangled English, did seven minutes to solid laughs on his first show. Routine is solid and funny, although a reference to "the Fleischman Hour" on Rudy Vallee might be changed to remove dating.

Scheff, a principal in "Brigadoon" and other Broadway musicals, displays resonant pipes, fine range, robust style and engaging personality in "Some Enchanted Evening," "Peggy O'Neill," "September Song" and others. He has audience join in on "Peggy O'Neil." Fine accompaniment is provided by pianist leader of McCombe's unit, a local one. Patrons in beautifully-decorated room seemed to enjoy most the rhumbas. Jaco.

Amato's Portland, Ore.
(FOLLOWUP)

Portland, Ore., March 24.

Marjorie Garretson is making her first appearance in this area at Amato's and has been held over for a second stanza. She has plenty of class and showmanship. Although she has been around for some time, this is her first attempt at a class comedy act with plenty of special material. Best bets are "Women's Union," "No Difference in Men," and her impression of a gal selling sheet music in a dime store.

Miss Garretson was very generous and had to beg off after 30 minutes. Nifty gowns, plenty of what it takes, and lots of class make her bigtime. She carries own pianist, Alex Studek.

One of the best ballroom teams to hit this town opens the bill. Consolo and Melba do plenty nifty terping, with few lifts and spins. Couple receive plenty applause.

Amato has Art and Metha Gibbs in every Sunday night with a troupe of eight people who do folk dancing as a hobby. This added attraction has been boosting the Sunday take.

Flame Room, Mpls.
(HOTEL RADISSON)

Minneapolis, March 25.

Mimi Benzell (2), Bob Cross Orch (8); $2.50 minimum.

In a swanky, intimate supper club like the Flame Room, superior warbling, especially when embellished with showmanship, goes over for top returns. And charming, petite Mimi Benzell, stunningly gowned Met opera coloratura, fills such requirements, with song selections that appeal to all musical tastes. Her well-chosen numbers run the gamut from grand opera to swing arrangements of popular classics. She even injects comedy touches in several. Her performance is exceedingly listenable, and a filled

(Continued on page 65)

TOY AND WING
"Chinese Dance Stylists"
Currently
ROXY
New York
Doubling
CHINA DOLL
New York
(6TH MONTH)
Direction:
WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

COMEDY MATERIAL
For all branches of theatricals
FUN-MASTER
"The ORIGINAL Show-Biz Gag file"
● Nos. 1 thru 35 @ $1.00 ea. ●
(Order in Sequence Only)
SPECIAL: First 13 files for $10
All 35 files for $30
● 3 Bks. PARODIES, per book. $10 ●
● MINSTREL BUDGET .... $25 ●
● HUMOR-DOR FOR EMCEES. $25 ●
● 4 BLACKOUT BKS., ea. bk. $25 ●
—or all 4 diff. Vols. for $85—
● "HOW TO MASTER THE CEREMONIES" (re-issue)
—$2.00 per copy—
NO C.O.D.'s
PAULA SMITH
200 W. 54th St. Dept. V
NEW YORK 19

ACTS, GAGS, SCRIPTS,
PARODIES, SPECIAL SONGS
1950 CATALOG FREE
Largest Selection of Comedy Material in Showbiz! We also write material to order.
J. & H. KLEINMAN
5146-K Strohm, North Hollywood, Cal.
Telephone: Hillside 0141

It's Your Figure and Health That Counts

You can eat, drink and laugh and not grow fat if you take "NURITABS."
The ingredients in combination with Vitamin B contained in "NURITABS" tone up the system, as well as improve the figure. Guaranteed safe and pure.
Upon receipt of ONE U. S. A. DOLLAR, we will dispatch a full three weeks course, postage prepaid.
AXA, LTD., 17/21, Emerald Street
London, W. C. 1, England
WE WELCOME TRADE ENQUIRIES

NOT YOUR PAL JOEY, BUT YOUR—BUDDY LEWIS
M.C.—Next 13 Weeks
ERLANGER TELEVISION SHOW
EVERY THURSDAY—10 P.M.
WCAU-TV (C.B.S.) PHILADELPHIA

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 29

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show whether full or split week

Letter in parentheses indicates circuit (FM Fanchon Marco; (I) Independent; (L) Loew; (M) Moss; (P) Paramount; (R) RKO; (S) Stoll; (W) Warner; (WR) Walter Reade

NEW YORK CITY
Capitol (L) 1
George Paxton Orc
Meribeth Old
Sylvia Froos
Artie Dann
Music Hall (I) 30
Margery Mayer
Dean Crane
Bettina Dearborn
Ronnie Ronalde
Jaywalkers
Alhponse Berge
Helen Dodge
Rockettes
Corps de Ballet
Glee Club
Palace (R) 30
Sen Murphy
Adams
W West & McGinty
Rufe Davis
4 Wallabies
Kurt Jons Dcrs
Martha King
Johnny Mack
Paramount (P) 29
Mel Torme
Ella Fitzgerald
Sam Donahue Orc
Johnny Morgan
Vic & Adio
Rafael Mendez
Roxy (I) 31
Fran Warren
Harmonicats
Sonny Howard
Bill Callahan
Elsa & Waldo
Strand (W) 31
Count Basie Orc
Billie Holiday
3 Chocolateers
Will Mastin 3
BROOKLYN
Paramount (P)
31 Only
Illinois Jacket
Ella Fitzgerald
Timmie Rogers
Bunny Briggs
BALTIMORE
State (I) 30-1
Frank Brooks
Rosette Shaw
Les LaMarr &
Poppy
Tubby & Spatz
2-5
J & R Rexer
Riley Shepard
Bert Gilbert
Dod Dodson
CAMDEN
Towers (I) 31-2
M & L Ross
Court & Saunders
Johnny Masters
Eddie Lambert Co
Hop, Skip & Jump
CHICAGO
Chicago (P) 31
Dean Martin
Jerry Lewis
Dick Stabile Orc
Step Bros
Carllyn Grey
Oriental (I) 31
Margaret O'Brien
Buddy Rogers
Georgia Kay
Artino & Consuelo
Bob Deu
Carl Sands Orc

COLUMBUS
Palace (R) 30-2
Roulettes
D & D Workman
Virginia Lee
Think-Drink
Hoffman
Rex Weber
M & M Viera
Alan Carney
Salici Puppets
HARTFORD
State (I) 1-2
Sammy Kaye Orc
Don Cornell
Leo DeLyon
Carroll Sis
LOS ANGELES
Orpheum (I) 29
Johnson & Diehl
Tyler & St Clair
Archer & Gile
Mr. Ballantine
"Fun on Wheels" rev
MIAMI
Olympia (P) 29
Ross & Hightowers
Barney Grant
Frank Cole Co
Gloria Jean
Pat Rooney
NEWARK
Adams (I) 29-2
King Cole 3
Ray McKinley Orc
Dick Buckley
Earl, Jack & Betty
PHILADELPHIA
Carman (I) 29
Winton & Diane
Bunnell Sis
Roy Douglas
King Bros
Earle (W) 31
E Hawkins Orc
Savannah Churchill
Erroll Garner 3
Derby Wilson
Nixon (P) 29-30
Chamber of Horrors
ROCKFORD
Palace (I) 31-2
Renee Smith
Rose Marie Kohler
Dusty & Norma
2 Zephyrs
Marcus Tp
ST LOUIS
Fox (FM)
4 Hoosier Hot shots
Grayce Edwards
Venti & Mardell
Kay Windsor
Van Horn &
Aladar
G & R Ross
Phyllis Willis
Alan Carrier
SPRINGFIELD
Court Sq (I) 30-2
Carl & Harriet
Jimmy Jimae Co
Hank Sieman
Youman Bros & F
Fred Lightner
Jack LaRue Co
WASHINGTON
Capitol (L) 30
Wells & 4 Fays
Susan Miller
Eddie Hanley Co
Landa & Holland

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome (I) 27
Jimmy Bryant
T St Denis & Beryl
Jackie Smith
Mlle Alena
Eric Coverdale
Ted Lewis
Eddie Gay
Les Cottrellos
Casino De Paris Co
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome (M) 27
Jean Sablon
Johnny Lawson 3
Alexanders
Bemand's Pigeons
Arnley & Day
Erikson
Bobbie Kimber
Chrysis De La
Grange
BLACKPOOL
Palace (I) 27
D & J O'Gorman
Tommy Jover
Raf Pat & Julian
Reid Twins
Amazing Nicki
Tony Hancock
Spurgeon & Tucker
Edith Lewin
Cycling Brockways
BOSCOMBE
Hippodrome (I) 27
Riscoe & Pope
K Kortz & Eugene
Tattersall & Jerry
Reading &
Grantley
8 Malinoffs
Morris & Collins
Edwin Heath
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome (M) 27
Leo Fuld
Kovacs
Max Wall
Suma Lamonte
George Meaton
Musical Derricks
Dick Henderson
Catrons
BRISTOL
Empire (I) 27
S & M Harrison
Freddie Mirfield Co
Bob Grey
Andre Sis & Sandra
Susan & Pat
M & A Dey
CARDIFF
New (S) 27
C Courtney Co
Charles Ancaster
Peter Raynor
Kemble Bros &
Christine
Bel Argay
Walter Niblo
EDINBURGH
Empire (M) 27
Tessie O'Shea
Billy Cotton O
Marno Duo
Arthur Dowler
Joe Black
Cooper Twins
Valettos
GLASGOW
Empire (M) 27
Billy Thorburn
3 Smith Bros
7 Volants
Derek Roy
J & R Arnaut
3 Jokers
Nino Rialfor

Rona Ricardo Co
GRIMSBY
Palace (I) 27
Gordon & Colville
Anna Mac
Patricia & Colin
Gwynne Evans 4
8 S Fisher Girls
HACKNEY
Empire (S) 27
Arthur Lucan
Kitty McShane
Willer Neal
LeRoys
S & R Maxwell
Flannigan's Bd
Roy Rolland
Dick Calkin
Peter Bros
Eddie Hart
Dancing Coleens
LEEDS
Empire (M) 27
Rex Roper & Pat
Anne Shelton
Vernon Sis
Jon Pertwee
Laurie Watson
Wood & Harmer
Richman & Jackson
Manley & Austin
Jackie
LEICESTER
Palace (S) 27
Frankie Howerd
Mills & Belita
Ford & Lenner
Mena Minzie & F
Donald B Stuart
Jose Moreno
Freddie Harrison
3 Robertis
LIVERPOOL
Empire (M) 27
I & S Davis
Jimmy James Co
Frances Duncan
Radio Revellers
Falcons
Albert Whelan
Piddingtons
LONDON
Palladium (M) 27
Danny Thomas
G & B Bernard
Cass Owen & Topsy
Ross & La Pierre
Jimmy Wheeler
Hurricanes
Alan Clive
Sheridan Bros
20 Palladium Girls
Skyrockets Orc
MANCHESTER
Hippodrome (S) 27
Capellinys
Haval & Hyl
Chief Eagle Eye
Terry O'Neill
Richardson's
Frogmen
Henri Vadden Co
Staie Bros
NEWCASTLE
Empire (M) 27
Cheerful Charlie
Chester
Ken Morris
Fred Ferrari
Arthur Hayes
Edwina Carol
Len Marten
Grip 4
Mariotti & Wenman
5 Brahms
Gene Anderson
Harry Richards
12 Tiller Girls

NORWICH
Hippodrome (I) 27
Cecil Sheridan
Joy Brennan
Mickey Reid
Billy Miller
Joe O'Reilly
Jimmy Inglis
Cass & Keegan
2 Ms
Irene Dickson
Terry O'Brien
Nemacs & Violet
M Moxom Girls
NOTTINGHAM
Empire (M) 27
Alfred Marks
Paddy O'Neill
Freddie Frinton
Finlay Bros
Chevalier Boys
Bentley Sis
Willie Carlisle
PORTSMOUTH
Royal (M) 27
Phyllis Dixey
Howard de Courcy
Jack & Stern
Irving & Girdwood
Veronica Martell
Jack Tracy
Morecambe & Wise
Prince of Wales
(M) 27
Jimmy Edwards
Joy Nichols
Dick Bentley
Wallas Eaton
SCUNTHORPE
Savoy (I) 27
Bill Waddington
Ali Bey
Tommy Lockwood
Fred Wilkin
Eric Corre
Jack Laurie
Johnny Corrie
Janet Frazer
George Sandiford
Robbie
12 Starlight Lovlies
SHEFFIELD
Empire (M) 27
Josef Locke

Sandy Powell
Albert Burdon
Karina
Peter Webster
Vadio & Hertz
Sweet Serenaders
SHEPHERDS BUSH
Empire (S) 27
Bill Campbell Co
5 Mohawks
Lance King
Crosbie & Brennan
Sioux Dakotas
Royal Canadian
Choir
WOLVERHAMPTON
Hippodrome (I) 27
Phil Strickland
Joanne Gaye
Johnnie Laycock
3 Lamarres
Noel Talbot
Jackie Crosby
Gordon Jones
10 Adoreables
Fred Renwick
Matt Lamar
Vee Suzette
WOOD GREEN
Empire (S) 27
Frank Randle
Hal Swain
Swing Sis
Rita Shearer
Jon Boden
Mandalay Singers
Kay Sothern
Gus Aubrey
Hal Mack
Dancing Demons
A J Powell
Stan Stafford
Jimmy Clitheroe
A Wazzan Tp
YORK
Empire (I) 27
Woods & Jarrett
4 Tune Tellers
Eddie Emerson
Pep Graham
Eddie Williams
Shorty Mounsy
Creole Steppers

CANADA

EAST HAMPTON
Granada (I) 27
Victor Seaforth
Rex Gordon Co
Brickbats
Ravic & Renee

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Birdland
Charlie Parker
Stan Getz
Blue Angel
Chas. Trenet
Stuart Ross
Eadie & Rack
Nancy Andrews
John Kelly, Jr
H Chittison 3
Portia Nelson
Bop City
Artie Shaw Orc
Oscar Peterson
Cafe Society
Mervyn Nelson
Thelma Carpenter
Cliff Jackson
Copacabana
Frank Sinatra
Larry Storch
Fred & Sledge
Patricia Adair
Lorna Lynn
Russ Emery
M Durso Orc
Alvares Orc
Diamond Horseshoe
Walter Dare Wahl
Gloria Leroy
W. C. Handy
Billy Banks
Noble Sissle Orc
Chic Morrison Orc
Rigoletto Bros
Jack Spoons
Frank Evans
Tommy King
Harry Meehan
Billy Banks
Harry Armstrong
El Chico
Rosita Rios
Los Gitanos
Pilarin Tavira
Sarita Herrera
D'Alonso Orc
Havana-Madrid
Trini Reyes
San Juan 3
Clavel & Farr
Fausto Orc
Pupi Campo Orc
Hotel Ambassador
Jules Lande Orc
Hotel Biltmore
Harold Nagel Orc
Hotel Edison
Henry Jerome Orc
Hotel New Yorker
Tony Pastor Orc
Connie Haines
Adele Castle
Peter Kent Orc
Hotel Pierre
Jimmy Carroll
Talbots
Stanley Melba Orc
Ralph Lane Orc
Ralph Teferteller
Hotel Plaza
Evelyn Knight
Beatrice Kraft
Bob Grant Orc
Mark Monte Orc
M Bergere
Emery Deutsch
Hotel Roosevelt
Guy Lombardo
Hotel St. Moritz
Roberta Welch
Leo Pleskow
Erwin Kent
Ramoni Orc
Hotel St Regis
Julie Wilson
Laszlo & Pepito
Milt Shaw Orc
Hotel Shelbourne
Monica Boyar
Phil Leeds
Eddy Manson

Marjery Welles
Paul Villard
Cy Coleman
Hotel Statler
Jimmy Dorsey Orc
Hotel Taft
Lopez Orc
Hotel Warwick
Johnny Thompson
Airline Trio
Hotel Weylin
Rudy Barron Orc
Latin Quarter
Russel Swann
Vikings
Linda Lombard
Francis & Grey
Ernestine Mercer
Lucienne & Ashour
Buster Shaver
Art Waner Orc
Le Coq Rouge
Oscar Calvet Orc
Jack Towne Orc
Leon & Eddie's
Eddie Davis
Jean Gary
Jean Mason
Bella Smaro
Lyda & Yanni
Johnny Crawford
Macombo
Baer & Rosenbloom
Roy Sedley
Boylan & King
Gordon Andrews
Monte Carlo
Dick Gaspare Orc
La Playa 6
No 1 Fifth Ave
Walling & McHugh
Downey & Fonville
Hazel Webster
Old Knick
Billy Bryant
Paul Killiam
Janie Stevens
Frank Wayne
Charlotte Ray
Bob Gallagher
Al Cooper Orc
Old Roumanian
Sadie Banks
Steve Murray
Gerri Gale
Joanne Florio
Joe LaPorte Orc
D'Aquila Orc
Park Ave
Betty Reilly
Ruth Davis
Glenn Abbott
Penthouse
John Conte
Dorothy Ann
Noreen Ttate
Ruban Bleu
Kirkwood &
Goodman
Larry Blake
Estelle Loring
3 Riffs
Ronnie Graham
Julius Monk
Norman Paris 3
Versailles
Kay Thompson
Lee Scott
Buzz Miller
George Martin
Emile Petti Orc
Panchito Orc
Village Barn
Lillian Lee
J. Kirk & Madeline
Fletcher 3
David Blight
Bobby Myers
Village Vanguard
Weavers
Clarence Williams
Waldorf-Astoria
Dorothy Shay
Eddy Duchin Orc
Mischa Borr Orc

CHICAGO

Jack Tygett
Janet Campbell
Deon Sherman
Joyce Harley
Jean Stanley

Sammy Shore
Sherman Hayes Orc
Blackstone Hotel
Andy Williams
Dick LaSalle Orc

Chez Paree
Tony Martin
Joey Bishop
Betty & Jane Kean
Siccardi & Brenda
Al Wallis
Adorables (12)
Cee Davidson Orc
Chico Bd
Helsings
Ralph Lewis
Chet Roble
Mary F Kincaid
Billy Chandler Orc
Hotel Bismarck
Noble & King
Joe Isbell
Johnny Alladin Orc
H Edgewater Beach
Mr Ballantine
Charles Sheldon
Betty Norman
D Hild Dcrs (11)
George Olsen Orc
Hotel Stevens
Joan Hyldoft
Arnold Shoda
Morgan 3
Douglas Duffy
Harper Flaherty
Bob Fitzgerald
Skating Blvdears
Jack Raffloer
Buddy Rust
Jerry Mapes
Frank Masters Orc

Palmer House
Victor Borge
Gracie Barrie
A & B Lund
M Abbott Dcrs
Eddie O'Neil Orc
Sherman Hotel
"College Inn Story"
Phyllis Gehrig
Don Weismuller
Christine Nelson
Carmen Albino
Norman Fields
Frank Wagner
Ward Garner
Kenneth Remo
Eileen Green
Cliff Norton
Carolyn Gilbert
Les Weinrott
Vera Gahan
Bill Snyder Orc
Silver Frolics
Nov-Elites (3)
Stone & Shine
Ginger Kinney
Kay Kenton
Bud Prentiss Orc
Don Pedro Bd
Vine Gardens
Adeline Neice
Lew Saxon
Adams Bros
Mel Cole Orc
Pancho Orc

New Acts

MARGARET O'BRIEN
Recitations
10 Mins.
Oriental, Chicago

Moppet Margaret O'Brien, ex-MGM-ite, makes an attractive appearance in her first vaude date with her pigtails and plaid skirt. In her chit-chat session with Buddy Rogers she appears well at ease. However, from then on, her material, consisting mainly of parts from her pictures, seems lame fare for theatre patrons, especially without the aid of background, both setting and musically.

After a short bit from "Three Wise Fools," she does Beth's death scene from "Little Women," which fails to register. For a change of pace, child essays a bit of special material as the problem miss who goes to femme psychiatrist, whom she drives batty. While the basic idea might be funny, the writing is weak and Miss O'Brien doesn't look or act particularly bratty.

Her ending, "Prayer For Peace," is not for the average theatre attendees, and also seems at variance with her talents. Zabe.

VIRGIE & ELREE
Rollerskating
4 Mins.
Apollo, N. Y.

Virgie & Elree, a boy and gal Negro rollerskating duo, start off with some mild pirouetting but soon shift to more spectacular routines. Tall male spins and simultaneously whirls his petite partner in the air by alternately holding her feet and arms. Their blue and yellow costuming is a visual help.

For a climax, the couple uses a standard bit. Lad affixes a strap around his neck and the gal clamps on the other end with her molars. As he revolves on his skates, she rotates in mid-air, at the end of the strap. Virgie and Elree have an okay novelty turn, but it lacks sufficient originality and finesse to qualify for the better bookings.
Gilb.

JUANITO & ANITA
Flamenco
8 Mins.; Two
Palace, N. Y.

Juanito and Anita are a classy hoofing team more suitable for swank cafes than vaude houses, where their art might not be appreciated. Duo gives out with authentic flamenco steps with a flair for the intense rhythms in their heel-and-toeing.

Team is handicapped only by their lack of commercial flavor. It's a standout turn but for specialized situations. Herm.

LILLIAN CAVELL
Songs
9 Mins.; One
Colonial, Albany

Tall, dark-haired gal achieves smoothest results with ballads. Miss Cavell works earnestly and energetically, but needs more polish.

Strikingly garbed in a low-cut gown, she needed to check a slipping shoulder strap that caused audience comment and distracted from the vocalizing when caught. Took several bows in No. 2 spot, a creditable showing though Colonial patrons do not entrance over femme canaries. Jaco.

KARL & KING
Ventriloquy
10 Mins.; One
Palace, N. Y.

Although most ventro acts follow a familiar format, this turn makes a unique departure for a strong impact. Youthful duo open in conventional manner with each manipulating a dummy with the usual patter and wise-cracking crosstalk. Act, however, quickly picks up momentum with the appearance of two more puppets from behind the low solid fence behind which they work. Before the act closes, a total of six dummies come into play.

Both lads manipulate the puppets with virtuoso skill. Voice projection not only equals top standards but the rapidity which they shift their tones and mannerisms for each of the dummies is standout. Act winds up with a vocal chorussed by the six figures (two of them femmes) in quickly rotating sequence.

Solid for any situation. Herm.

CHAMBERS & BLAIR
Rollerskating
7 Mins.; Full
Palace, N. Y.

Chambers and Blair are a good-looking rollerskating team with a standard routine. While the stunts are famaliar, their execution is effectively flashy for this type of act.

Duo specialize in skating dance routines interspersed with fast twirling of the gal around the floor. It's a good vaude opener. Herm.

Night Club Reviews

Continued from page 64

Flame Room, Mpls.

room at the late Saturday night show gave rapt attention and displayed appreciation.

Miss Benzell's only previous Minneapolis appearance was with the Metropolitan Opera. Now she proves her superlative chirping on the operatic stage bill, also can bridge the long chasm to a supper club. She carries the entire entertainment alone to complete satisfaction. With skillful help from her piano accompanist, Franklin Roger Wolf, she holds her audience throughout.

For her opening Miss Benzell put dramatic fervor into a showy arrangement of "Siboney." There was considerable warmth and feeling in rendition of "I Can Dream, Can't I?" Then a thrilling display of her upper registers for part of the mad scene from the opera "Lucia," in French, won merited plaudits.

A Cyril Scott love song, "Don't Come In, Sir," with amusing business at some of the tables, was particularly boff. It preceded another standout, a swing version of "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark." An explanation that her brother-in-law, Morton Gould, composed the next number, "Don't Talk," from "Arms and the Girl," was naively given. "The Dance," from the "Barber of Seville," afforded the opportunity for a display of dramatics, animation and vocal pyrotechnics. For encores, after stopping the show, songstress made even such oldies as "Where Have You Been, Billy Boy?" and "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" ear-beguiling. Many in the audience responded to her invitation to join her during her swing interpretation of "Annie Laurie." Rees.

Eddy's, K.C

Kansas City, March 22.

George Gobel, Jack Martin & Ray Martel, Joe Oliver Orch (7), with Carmen Velez; no cover or minimum.

This Baltimore Avenue restaurant, opened by the Eddy brothers less than a year ago, is making a bid as a key entertainment spot of the downtown loop, and doing okay. Policy is a name act combined with orch and special performers.

Current layout includes George Gobel, Chi comedian and one-time radio entertainer, as bill-topper, and the Joe Oliver Orch, which has in Carmen Velez a tuneful young singer and personable m.c. Gobel spiels a line of chatter in a homey, down-to-earth vein for a steady outpouring of chuckles, and mixes in a couple of songs while he strums his guitar. While his delivery and mannerisms make him the prototype of the average feller, his material leans to the sophisticated and satirical, nicely filling 25 minutes.

Velez opens the show, vocaling "Bobaloo" in full-fashion in both English and Spanish lyrics to nice round from the patrons. Young singer gets a good deal out of ballads and romantic type of sings. As m.c. and front man for the Oliver crew likewise handles the assignment in genial manner.

While Gobels, Velez and the orch comprise the regular show, Eddy's fosters a policy of the unexpected in entertainment and frequently runs on an extra act for a night or two, or even a single performance. Such was the spot filled by Jack Martin and Ray Martel in the Friday night line-up. Martin is okay in his tap impressions of Gene Kelly, Bill Robinson and Fred Astaire, with Martel, one-time Radio Rogue, rounding out turn with vocal impressions of Lorre, Laughton, Wallace Beery, Stepin Fetchit and Amos 'n' Andy.
Quin.

La Grande Roue, Paris

Paris, March 8.

Lili Bontemps, Robert Sandre, Jo Liven, Paul Andre Lecler, Charles Debert, Simone Chambord, Marijane; no cover.

Raymond Fauchet, who operated he St. Yves club, has shifted to the right bank and has located his new cafe a stones throw from the Avenue de l'Opera. Place, which is unpretentious, has been very tastefully decorated by Van Moppes, and is packing them in, though there is neither orchestra nor dancing. No food is served and wine is not compulsory. It is capitalizing on the current craze for the turn of the century period and the need of a boite where Parisians can drop in for a little while to enjoy the nightclub atmosphere without spending much. Paris cafegoers are currently watching their coin.

Lili Bontemps is a personable gal who dishes out the stuff they crave for with considerable gusto. Jo Liven, in the red pants of the 1900 private, is bringing back the flavor of the old Ambassadeurs of Polin fame. Pulchritude is supplied by ingenue Simone Chambord, a brunet easy on the eyes.

Robert Sandre acts some realistic songs while Paul Andre Lecler warbles some sentimental stuff. Charles Bedert brings in his material the flavor of the old Boulevard. Marijane is a girl who sings fancy songs of the 1900 period with enough oomph to make them gape.

Fauchet is a club manager who has glad-handing knowhow, and the place, named after the Ferris Wheel, which was one of the features of the 1900 international fair, gets tremendous word-of-mouth publicity. Maxi.

Bob Steele's Circus Tour Curtailed by Accident

Hollywood, March 23.

Bob Steele, film cowpoke inked as featured western star with Clyde Beatty Circus for its 35 week season, tore a knee cartilage while making trailers for television reissues of a group of his old oaters, and will be hospitalized for several weeks.

Injuries were sustained while doing a pony express stunt, when his horse stumbled and threw him. He's out of the Beatty stand in Los Angeles this week, but will rejoin the circus in about three weeks.

Best Acts in U.S., P. R. H 'Importing' Latin Show

One of those coals-to-Newcastle bookings is Alfred Suarez, president of the Candido Beach hotel, San Juan, Puerto Rico, commissioning Benito Collada, boss of New York's El Chico, to book him an all-Latin show. Collada operates his own Spanish nitery in the Greenwich Village sector, but Suarez figured (1) Collada knows the standards for an international patronage, such as the San Juan hostelry attracts, and (2), seemingly the best Latin talent is in America.

Collada accordingly is assembling a 10-people company for April 25 debut at the Candido Beach hotel. Show will cost $3,000; with the band $5,000. Suarez pays fares both ways. He says there isn't a sufficient reservoir of desirable talent either in Cuba or Mexico. The Candido Beach was originally built by the Vanderbilts for $1,000,000. It has been enlarged and now includes a 450-capacity gambling casino (it's legal in PR). Miguelito Valdez just closed at the Caribe-Hilton in Puerto Rico. Suarez wants a band of that calibre for his spot, plus an alternate relief combo.

RESIGNS FAIR POST

Dallas, March 28.

W. H. Hitzelberger, since 1946 veepee and general manager of the State Fair of Texas, is resigning to take a job with a local bank.

The four fairs from 1946 through 1949 were the most successful of the 64 years series. Besides new buildings added to the fair grounds many outstanding attractions were presented.

Capitol, N. Y.

George Paxton Orch (14), with Gregg Lawrence, Toni Arden, Artie Dann, Meribeth Old; "The Yellow Cab Man" (M-G), reviewed in VARIETY Feb. 22, '50.

The Capitol bill fails to generate any degree of excitement. It's a collection of entertainers with a good potential that fails to pay off in applause or boxoffice values.

As is the case with most shows of this type, the major responsibility on getting the bill across is left to the turn occupying the next-to-closing spot. Artie Dann, in this position, hits some tough sledding in the early portion of his turn. His material, filled with Italian asides not understood by many payees, isn't of the best, and he fails to establish himself as a funny fellow until late in his act. The major emphasis is still on his king-sized proboscis, and he makes the most of that facet. But it's still not a strong enough hook to carry the bill at this house.

George Paxton, who isn't doing too much batoning these days because of his preoccupation with his duties as a song publisher, has collected some good sidemen for this occasion. He gives a varied set of numbers a good ride with an instrumentation of five brass, five reeds and a trio of rhythms. Showing up best is a colorful Sy Oliver arrangement of "That's A'Plenty," which gets in some fine musical figures. His showbacking is excellent.

Another orch item showing up well is a medley of pops culled from classics and folk-tunes. It's a well-produced number with offstage announcing by vocalist Gregg Lawrence, who chimes in with the final tune, "There's No Tomorrow." Lawrence, a well-groomed chap, has some uneasy moments at the start. He begins his vocal maneuvers in a manner that looks like he wants to make the kids swoon immediately. The juves apparently aren't taken over that readily.

Toni Arden, who has had a long apprenticeship as a band vocalist, has been getting a jukebox ride with her Columbia disk version of "Rain." The tune is naturally included in her session and it shows up nicely. Vocally, she's okay, and potentially looks good. She does well enough, though, to get into the good graces of the audience with earned encores. Unfortunately, she was forced out by throat trouble after Sunday's performances. Sylvia Froos replaced.

Meribeth Old, first act on the bill, impresses with her supple contortion work. She combines a degree of cuteness in her posturing to get the measure of the crowd.

Jose.

Alhambra, N. Y.

Andy Kirk Orch (13), Willie Bryant, Son & Sonny, 3 Riffs, Appletons (3), Harris & Radcliffe, Valaida Snow, Joe Morris & Susan North, Yacopis (6); "The Green Pastures" (WB).

The RKO Alhambra's periodic forays into vaude is gradually establishing an audience for this Harlem house. During these weeks there's terrific competition between this theatre and the nearby Apollo. The current semester, the RKO outlet has a highly playable vaude bill competing with the Apollo display topped by Dizzy Gillespie band and Nellie Lutcher. Many Harlemese are patronizing both houses. Business graph in both theatres is on the rise when the Apollo counters the competition of the Alhambra with top acts. It's apparent that competition has given this section's theatregoers a better break.

Though the Alhambra bill comprises good talent, it's a sprawling affair currently, in which the turns stretch the time too much. The six acts take approximately 90 minutes, which destroys the show's pace.

As usual, Willie Bryant does well as emcee. He shows a familiarity with patrons of this sector. At display caught, he had to leave midway to assume his disk jockey chores from the nearby Baby Grand nitery. He's a definite draw in this area, and is accountable for the sizable trade here, despite the stiff competition. Another local regular is Andy Kirk's band, which accounts for excellent show backing. Jimmy Crawford, drummer for the late Jimmy Lunceford, joined the outfit for this show.

Openers are Son and Sonny, who show a good line of ballet-styled taps. Their dance designs are sufficiently commercial to get maximum applause here.

The Three Riffs, doubling out of Le Ruban Bleu, please with a good tune assortment which carry excellent comedic overtones. Further novelty is by the Appletons, a two-girl-and-man adagio threesome which calls for a dash of mayhem and knife-throwing, and gets good all-around results. Harris and Radcliffe's comedy is effective. This vet comedy duo still have one of the funniest Negro talking acts, but their apparent efforts to kill time militate against them.

Valaida Snow tends to overdramatize her songs. In small doses it's okay, but protracted session can be wearing. She gets off to a good hand when she shows some speed with a trumpet session.

Joe Morris' comedy, done in a box, is oldtime but has some effective moments. This ancient format works out fairly well. Susan North provides the assist from the stage.

The Yacopi troupe, in the closer, exhibit their highly developed teeterboard turn for excellent results.

Jose.

Apollo, N. Y.

Nellie Lutcher, Dizzy Gillespie Orch (14) with Joe Carroll, Johnny Hartman, Teddy Hale, Virgie & Elree, Spider Bruce & Co.; "Chain Lightning" (WB).

Lent must be taken seriously in Harlem, for despite stage fare headed by Nellie Lutcher and Dizzy Gillespie's band plus "Chain Lightning" (WB), nabe first-run, business was only fair at first show Saturday night (25). Miss Lutcher and Gillespie give the session plenty of individual zip. However, the 76 minutes running time could be tightened considerably.

Goateed Gillespie, with three rhythm, five reed and six brass, registers neatly with his musicianship as well as his eccentric mannerisms. Combo opens the bill with a brisk "Just You" to pave the way for its leader to pull some bop tongue-twisting with vocalist Joe Carroll. Unique chanting is good for ample returns.

Miss Lutcher's staccato warbling and facile pianistics get her across solidly with the house's clientele. Does some five numbers including her wellknown "Hurry on Down" and "Real Gone Guy." Somewhat new in her repertoire is the oldie, "Fine Brown Frame," which she dramatizes in sock fashion.

Sandwiched in the layout are songster Johnny Hartman, terper Teddy Hale, Spider Bruce's comedy bit and the rollerskating turn of Virgie and Elree, reviewed under New Acts. Hartman displays a pleasing baritone. However, his talents seem more fitted for the pop ballads than for the challenging "Old Man River," on which he nevertheless netted a healthy salvo.

Teddy Hale, who once trouped with Ted Lewis, is an effortless stepper whose routines are classy and well executed. His softshoeing is meritable as is a stretch of rapid-fire terping sans musical accompaniment. While Hale's work holds interest through most of his 12 minutes onstage, his long time allotment takes the edge off what otherwise would be a much punchier act.

Spider Bruce's comedy blackout, usually a consistent laugh-getter, is pretty weak stuff this week. Trouble is that this "after-hours" saloon sequence has such a tepid punch-line that the whole thing's not worth doing.

Gilb.

Oriental, Chi

Buddy Rogers, Artini & Consuelo, Georgie Kaye, Margaret O'Brien, Carl Sands Orch; "Golden Gloves Story" (EL).

Current bill has many uneven spots which will have to be ironed out before show hits its deserved potential. Main change, of course, lies in rerouting Margaret O'Brien's act.

Buddy Rogers hasn't lost any of the personality which he displayed in the early '30s; in fact, it seems he's more at home now with theatre audiences. He handles emceeing with ease, and also clicks with jazz version of "Liebestraum;" his duo piano work with Charlie Bourne in a classical number, and ending with a flashy 88ing of "I've Got Rhythm." Offs to solid returns.

Artini and Consuelo, working in street clothes, make a good impression, but might have registered stronger with better costuming. They get nice reception for their ballroom terping of various styles of dancing, the best being their Latin numbers. Georgie Kaye, youthful comic, has some good yarns in his routine, but fails to get the best values, as he's too fast on the quips. While some of the gags are familiars, several of them hit the mark, especially the skit on a daffy psychiatrist and his patients. Liberal weeding and shortening would make his act more punchy.

Margaret O'Brien (New Acts), film moppet, seemed not properly prepared for her vaude debut. Rogers comes back to tie things up with session on drums for a strong finale.

Zabe.

Strand, N. Y.

Billie Holiday, Count Basie & His All-Stars (9), Will Mastin Trio, The Chocolateers (3); "Barricade" (WB), reviewed in VARIETY, March 3, '50.

Current bill has potent marquee strength, particularly for jazzophiles, and should give the theatre a good two weeks, if packed houses the last two shows opening day (24) are a criterion. Show is fast, entertaining, and filled with high-caliber talent, only fault lying in the pacing which lumps jump, dance and comedy numbers in the first 40 minutes, leaving Billie Holiday's blues and ballads spotted at the end. Billing obviously could have it no other way, but it still makes for uneven routining.

Basie All Stars' opener, "Royal Garden Blues," clarinetist Buddy De Franco's two solos, and Georgie Auld's tenor sax contribution are all top-drawer jazz. Highlight, however, is "Basie Boogie," midway through the bill. The Count's finger work on the ivories long ago needed no further improvement, and yet he seems to play more brilliantly, more effortlessly with each succeeding appraisal of his technique. Backed strongly by his eight-piece jump crew, Basie is an object lesson in jazz piano at its finest.

Chocolateers, knockabout dance trio, are best when sticking to the foot work. Comedy efforts don't always come off, and the talk routines are marred further by being too lengthy. More of the fast acro hoofing that closes the act would get them off to a better hand.

Mainstay of the Will Mastin Trio is Sammy Davis, Jr., featured in the billing. Mastin (young Davis' uncle) and his father tap expertly to open the turn, but from then on it's all Davis, Jr. Lad is exceptionally talented as both tapster and mimic, and if his career depended upon doing only one or the other, it would be a tossup as to which would get him farther. Tap imitation of the late Bill Robinson, plus several other intricate toe-and-heel routines, indicates no limit to where he might go in that department, while voice and face impressions of Cagney, Jimmy Stewart, Edward G. Robinson, and singers Sinatra, Laine, Eckstine, among others, stamp him as a sock mimic. It's a curious and amazing blend of unrelated talents that produced a complete showstop when caught.

Miss Holiday, looking exceptionally well in a white gown and under soft pin-spot lighting, does her accustomed superior job of jazz warbling. "Lover Man," "Crazy He Calls Me," "All of Me" and other blues items, plus a couple of uptempo numbers, reveal once more this singer's distinctive, subtle way with a lyric. Especially hep crowd at the show caught couldn't get enough of her.

Rich.

Olympia, Miami

Miami, March 25.

Rudy Vallee, Ted & Dennie Peters, Prof. Marco Maliny, Shirley Martin, Bingo the Chimp, Les Rhode House Orch; "Captain China" (Par).

There's a balanced measure of variety here this week, with Rudy Vallee easily rating the topliner slotting.

The vet songster still retains that youthful quality, and offers a well-rounded stint which includes his croonings of "Whiffenpoof Song," the nostalgic "Vagabond Lover" and other pops identified with him for years, plus some ingenious tale-spinning that garners laughs and sets him solidly for top honors.

Runnerup on applause meter is Shirley Martin. Tall blonde has played here previously under various names, but each time with a zingy session of songs, plus hilarious impreshes of Louella Parsons, Carmen Miranda, Billie Burke, et al. Material is fresh and clever.

Balance of bill is fair. Ted and Dennie Peters contrib standard terp routines to okay returns. Professor Marco Maliny does a shadowgraph canto that gets over. Novelty slot is also filled by the chimp, Bingo, who clicks with the audience.

Lary.

Fox, Detroit

Detroit, March 25.

Jack Carson, Robert Alda, Janis Paige, Honey Bros. (3), Tommy Wells, House Orch (17); "Mother Didn't Tell Me" (20th).

A too-liberal supply of indigo from Jack Carson's troupe produced some bare laughs and applause from a near-capacity audience in the 5,000-seat Fox at show caught Friday (24).

Carson gets things started with three rapid-fire, very blue, very tired jokes that get only lukewarm reception. The Honey Bros.' acrobatics, particularly the rope-jumping-while-lying-down routine, warms the audience considerably.

Tommy Wells teams with Carson in a newspaper skit that rates well. From then on, Wells is employed to chase a bosomy girl across the stage at intervals. Each time he carries a different article used for reclining—i.e., a cot, a mattress—and each time Carson remarks: "I knew he had something in mind."

Smuttiness becomes a little heavier when Robert Alda joins Carson, ending with a Jane Russell tidbit that gets half-hearted response. Alda also sings "My Blue Heaven" and "O Marie."

A parody on "Dear Hearts and Gentle People" gets Janis Paige off to a very slow start. It doesn't fit her vocal equipment. She recoups neatly with "I Can Dream, Can't I?" snaring one of the best hands of the session.

Carson and Miss Paige duo with "I Said My Pajamas," and then go into a much too-long routine on Carson's effectiveness as a lover. Alda gets into the act, which ends with a homo twist that reduces the audience to embarrassed giggles.

Arden and Hartman, dancers, billed as part of the show, did not perform at the performance caught.

Tew.

Paramount, L.A.

Los Angeles, March 23.

Dick Wesson, Gil Lamb, Johnson & Johnson, Mary Jane Reid, Fanchonettes (20), Rube Wolf & Orch (14), with Ronnie Gibson; "House By the River" (Rep).

Paramount is offering a snappier-moving show for its second week of stageshows revival, but house still has a long way to go before hitting the solid class. Grossing possibilities here would seem to hinge on strong name values.

Rube Wolf's orch is blowing better notes; the Fanchonettes are stepping in smoother precision, and lighting and costuming are effective. These are among the top credits this week. Gil Lamb, holding over, with Dick Wesson added as a new starter in the featured billing, provide the chuckles. Elsewhere are Johnson & Johnson, good juggling team, and Mary Jane Reid, an adequate ventriloquist.

Wesson, working with Ukie Sherin, has some gag material that is hardly fresh, and some imitations that get across nicely. His Jane Russell impression is the most hilarious during the 16-minute stint. Lamb uses a switch of material from last week, except for a repeat of the bebop film fan Top fun is his harmonica turn, the biggest laugh-earner on the bill.

Fanchonettes start the program with a showy beach number and close the bill with a repeat of their "Scottish Precision." Latter makes a good impression on stage but shouldn't be seen again for some time. Ronnie Gibson, orch vocalist, does a very good piping chore on "Dear Hearts" and "Stormy Weather," strengthening the impression she made last week.

A six-man combo from the stage orch, plus Wolf on trumpet, provide a rhythmical beat to some special bebop swing and then Wolf does "Russian Fantasy" as a brass solo. Show moves along smoothly.

Brog.

Palomar, Seattle

Seattle, March 23.

Bill Griffiths, Louis Armstrong's All Stars, with Jack Teagarden, Earl (Fatha) Hines, Barney Bigard, Cozy Cole, Arvell Chase and Velma Middleton; "Dear Wife" (Col).

Dixieland jazz may be making a comeback in other precincts, but in Seattle it's right on top, with Louis Armstrong and his all-stars demonstrating how it should be played to packed houses. There's plenty of it, too, with nothing but jazz for a solid hour except the tap-dancing of Bill Griffiths, local disk jockey.

Griffiths emcees and is on for a fast round of taps which he sells neatly. From then on its the Armstrong band, with each member featured in solos in addition to solid ensemble work.

Armstrong sings "Someday" and joins Teagarden in a reprise of "Basin Street." Hines shines in piano solos on "St. Louis Blues" and "Honeysuckle Rose" for hefty response, and Cole takes over for a slick take on the skins in a bebop number.

Velma Middleton sells "I Love That Man" in a boff manner, and is joined by Armstrong for a socko rendition of "That's My Desire."

Band shows skill in true Dixieland style with "That's A Plenty," "Old Rockin' Chair" and "Way Down in New Orleans" for a treat for anyone who likes two-beat stuff, and the packed house at the first afternoon show obviously did.

Reed.

Palace, N. Y.

Chambers & Blair, Catherine Harris, Karl & King, Lester Cole & His Debs (4), Ken Whitmer, Juanito & Anita, Jack Gilford, The Herzogs (3); "Side Street" (M-G), reviewed in VARIETY Dec. 28, '49.

Current bill has speed, variety and several ace turns to furnish solid entertainment values. It's one of the strongest shows to play this house in recent weeks.

Catherine Harris flashes some neat hoofing. Smooth and trim, Miss Harris makes a specialty of toe-dancing routines with tap beats.

One of the standout items on the bill, Karl and King sock across an unusual ventro act (New Acts). Also reviewed under New Acts are the flamenco team of Juanito and Anita, and Chambers and Blair, who open with a roller skating team.

Only straight musical turn in the layout, Lester Cole, with a femme quartet, deliver several standards in conventional style. Cole does a schmaltzy solo on "Lucky Old Sun" with good audience results, while each of the girls takes a brief solo to show off their strong pipes as an effective closer.

In a hokey musical vein, Ken Whitmer has a firstrate comedy-instrumental act. Garbed with tricky hats and a bowtie, Whitmer plays briefly but expertly on nearly a dozen different types of horns and fiddles for solid payoff both for his musicianship and incidental sight gags.

Jack Gilford, next-to-closing, is dishing up most of his standard nitery turn in sock style. Gilford makes skillful use of his rubber face in two long sketches. First is his familiar burlesque of a symph orch conductor, which he punches across with a good assist from Don Albert's house orch. He closes with another clever on-the-nicotine-wagon sequence with a surprise blackout bit for strong audience response.

The Herzogs, topflight standard aerial trio, bring the show to an exciting curtain. Two of the gals open with some standard rope-climbing and trapeze-swinging, but the turn picks up steam with entry of the third member, who pretends to be a member of the audience. Latter's attempt to negotiate the trapeze while maintaining her modesty is surefire comedy while her final swings and fake falls generate plenty of audience gasps.

Herm.

Paramount, Hollywood

Hollywood, March 25.

Herb Jeffries, Bedell & Mattson, Winona, four-piece combo; "House By the River" (Rep).

Fanchon & Marco is breaking in a new, intimate stage policy at this Hollywood showcase. House, formerly a legiter (El Capitan), now has only an eight-foot deep apron for a stage, but that's enough space for the small, personality type of show operators have in mind.

Kickoff bill sees two of last week's Downtown Paramount acts headlining. Herb Jeffries' singing style fits better into the more confining Hollywood Par than it did downtown and at show caught customers liked his offering. "I Love You," "Old Man River," "Basin Street Blues" and a windup on the swingy "Jump For Joy" had stubholders asking for more.

Bedell & Mattson, record pantomimists, is the other moveover turn. Boys repeat their miming to Miranda, Crosby-Martin and Spike Jones platters. Opener is Winona with fiery Afro-Cuban dance rhythms. Acts are supported by a four-piece combination playing at the side of stage and performers make entrance up the right side aisle.

Brog.

Banker Favors

Continued from page 4

reissues are worth widely varying sums, but are said always to be able to bring in some income. Sale to video, bank fears, will reduce or eliminate these other values.

Indie Production on Upbeat

Hollywood, March 28.

Indie film production is picking up, according to Bernard Giannini, veepee in charge of motion picture financing at the Bank of America. Six deals have been made with independent producers since March 6, the deadline for California's tax on exposed film. Only three such deals had been made at this time last year.

At present, Giannini said, the bank is not interested in television financing — not until a stabilized method of payment for video is developed.

Strawhat Mgrs. Seek Equity Ease Of Rule Extending Rehearsal Time

A request to Actors Equity asking union to reconsider its recent ruling extending the rehearsal period for strawhat productions has been made by the Summer Stock Managers Assn. SSMA's board of directors, following a special meet in New York Monday (27), sent a wire to Equity noting that it felt the Equity council had acted under a misapprehension as to the feelings of the barn operators. Wire also expressed association's attitude that Equity's action was a serious threat to summer theatre operations. A request for the case to be reopened was made.

Strongest beefs against the new ruling have been registered by operators using the star system, their claim being that the five-day rehearsal period called for in the Equity decision will cut the playing time available to stars in half and in a number of cases make it unprofitable for them to appear. According to one New York agent, a star who has found strawhat engagements a worthwhile venture in the past has announced his intention not to make any barn appearances under the new ruling.

In contrast, however, one femme star has expressed satisfaction over the extended rehearsal period. Her contention is that she plans to try out a new play this summer and added practice time will enable her to make necessary script changes while traveling.

Another fear of the strawhat operators is that stars who do take to the barns this summer will ask for a pay hike to make up for the coin being lost in having to spend practically two weeks at one spot. Operators have also expressed the feeling that the new ruling may result in an increase in package productions, which would add considerably to their expenses, since they're still compelled to pay salaries to the resident actors. Package shows would obviate the five-day rehearsal necessity.

SSMA is holding its first spring meeting today (Wed.) at the Theatre Guild rehearsal room, N. Y.

Aldrich to Operate Musical Tent Show As 3d Summer Stock

Richard Aldrich, who already operates two strawhats on Cape Cod, will have a third this summer. The new venture, to be located at Hyannis, will be called the Cape Cod Musical Circus, and will be a tent-playhouse offering arena-style operetta revivals. It will open about July 3 and continue through Labor Day. Undertaking will be financed at around $25,000-$30,000.

Decision to present an operetta-under-canvas strawhat was reached by Aldrich after his actress-wife, Gertrude Lawrence, planed to Miami last week to look over a similar setup operated there by Laurence Schwab and St. John Terrell. She was met there by Julius Fleischmann, who made the trip from his winter home at Naples Fla. Fleischmann, who is associated with Aldrich and Richard Myers in the Broadway revivals of "Caesar and Cleopatra" and "Devil's Disciple," will probably have a financial interest in the Cape Cod Musical Circus.

With the new project in preparation, as well as summer schedules to bet set for his Cape playhouse, at Dennis, anrd Falmouth playhouse, at Coonamessett, Aldrich will probably spend most weekends on the Cape between now and June. After that, he expects to be in New York only a couple of days a week, at most. Myers, vacationing in Paris, is not due back until late summer or early fall.

"Caesar" will close June 3 at the National, N. Y., and go on the road in the fall. "Disciple" is slated to continue at the Royale, N. Y., at least through the balance of the season, and may tour after its Broadway run. Aldrich & Myers plan to produce a new comedy, "The Little Glass Clock," by Hugh Mills, on Broadway next fall, possibly with Miss Lawrence starred.

'Detective Story' Replacement

Joan Copeland has withdrawn from the ingenue lead in "Detective Story," at the Hudson, N. Y., being succeeded by Elinor Randel. It's the latter's first principal part on Broadway.

Mitchell Thinking Of Touring With 'Iceman'

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Thomas Mitchell, starring in national company of "Death of a Salesman," told drama editors here he's seriously considering doing Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" on the West Coast and then touring the country with it after he finishes with the Arthur Miller drama.

Mitchell has already talked to both the author and Theatre Guild officials about "Iceman."

No. 2 'Kate' Tour Plans Still Indef

Second company of "Kiss Me, Kate" may remain at the Shubert, Chicago, through the summer, resuming its tour early in the fall. However, if business doesn't hold up as expected, producers Saul Subber and Lemuel Ayers will probably move the Cole Porter-Sam and Bella Spewack musical to Boston for a summer run.

Although the show's grosses in Chicago have slipped in recent weeks, it has made a profit all but one week. It's hoped that attendance will spurt after Holy Week and, if receipts maintain a profitable level through the balance of April, the pace may continue through the summer. A decision will probably be reached within the next three weeks.

Anne Jeffreys, star of the Chicago troupe, shifts to the Broadway company June 1, succeding Patricia Morison, who is leaving to return to Hollywood. Frances McCann is taking over the lead in the Chicago edition. Replacement for Alfred Drake as co-star of the original production isn't set. Keith Andes, who has the part in the No. 2 company, will get the New York assignment if he is available, but he has a film commitment to be adjusted. Drake's successor, in case Andes isn't available, and a new male lead for the Chicago troupe, aren't set.

Original production of the show is continuing indefinitely at the Century, N. Y., where it is piling up additional profits. The management has been trying to arrange to move the show to a theatre in either 44th or 45th street, but hasn't been able to work out a deal with the Shuberts.

GENERAL MGRS. HUDDLE ON LEGIT ECONOMIES

Group of legit general managers has been holding a series of informal meetings to discuss mutual problems, primarily concerned with production and operating costs. Sessions, held at the office of the League of N. Y. Theatres, resulted from a suggestion by the Committee of Theatrical Producers, that the general managers try to help in the producer organization's efforts to work out theatrical economies.

Thus far, nothing definite has evolved from the confabs, which have touched on such subjects as road bookings, routing, railroad transportation conditions, talent contracts, etc. First meeting was held March 20 and another Monday (27), with additional ones in the next couple of weeks. Those attending the huddles have included Herman Bernstein, Victor Samrock, Max Allentuck, Irving Schneider, Morris Jacobs, Harold Wise, Max Siegel, Ben Boyar, John Yorke and Charles Harris.

Map Toledo Operettas

Outdoor operetta season, similar to those at St. Louis and Dallas, is planned for Toledo for the summer of 1951. It will be produced by Charles R. Meeker, supervisor of the Dallas outfit. He will report for the new job Nov. 1,

The new setup, known as the Toledo Light Opera Assn., will be operated in association with the Toledo Zoological Society.

'Story' in OK London Bow

London, March 28.

Warm audience reception greeted Sidney Kingsley's "Detective Story," which opened at the Prince's theatre here Saturday (25). Press notices were generally noncommittal, but show looks promising.

Play, featuring a mixed cast of Americans and Canadians headed by Douglass Montgomery, was staged by David Gray.

'So. Pacific' Mail Order Dents Biz Pre-Cleve. Bow

Apparently the tremendous advanced excitement in the "South Pacific" engagement in Cleveland has affected the business of touring shows playing there in the meantime. That was predicted by the managements of the other shows involved, at the time the "South Pacific" mail order ad was published in the Cleveland dailies. It was claimed then that the ad, running so far in advance of the "South Pacific" engagement, might divert interest from the interim bookings.

Supporting this view, the three weeks' advance sale since the "South Pacific" ad appeared have averaged a trifle over $19,100 weekly, compared to an average weekly gross of almost $26,600 for four weeks of more or less comparable bookings prior to the ad. However, the lower average of the more recent shows may be increased by this week's gross of "Death of a Salesman," which is expected to top last week's opener for the same play.

The three shows that have played Cleveland since the "South Pacific" announcement and the unprecedented flood of mail orders it brought (totaling $738,000, of which $603,000 was oversubscription for the scheduled two-week stand) are the Tallulah Bankhead-starring "Private Lives," which grossed $16,000 in a repeat date; Mae West, who failed to equal her other road takings with only $18,000 in "Diamond Lil," and last week's moderate (considering the rave notices and big advance reputation) $23,400 for "Death of a Salesman."

Prior to the "South Pacific" announcement, "Mister Roberts" drew respective grosses of $29,100 and $31,500 in two weeks, Katharine Cornell got $24,100 in "That Lady" and Katharine Hepburn pulled $21,600 in "As You Like It." The touring musicals, "Oklahoma!" and "Brigadoon," took in $56,400 and $26,600, respectively, before the "South Pacific" ad appeared.

K. C. Avalanche

Kansas City, March 28.

Announcement in the local dailies Sunday (26) that the touring production of "South Pacific" will play here the week of May 8 brought an avalanche of mail orders yesterday (Mon.). More than 3,000 envelopes were delivered in the first mail. Theatre attendants haven't yet sorted the orders or attempted to figure the amount of money involved.

Rodgers-Hammerstein musical will play the recently-renovated Orpheum.

Harrity, Matthews In Strawhat Teaming

Richard Harrity and Billy Matthews have purchased the Gothic barn and stables of the Vanderbilt estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., for a summer theatre. Duo plans to start remodeling immediately. Theatre, to be called the Hyde Park Country Playhouse, will have 650 to 700 seats. Setup permits for one unit, this to include facilities for housing actors, as well as a scene dock for making sets.

Harrity, who is author of "Hope Is a Thing With Feathers," seen on Broadway two seasons ago, and Matthews, who was Eddie Dowling's production assistant and is now co-stage manager of "Devil's Disciple" (Royale, N. Y.), will use the star system with a resident Equity company. Property was bought from Hyde Park ex-Mayor Elmer V. Wagner. Main body of the Vanderbilt estate became a national park in 1941.

Mull Central Production Unit For Rodgers-Hammerstein Shows

A central producing unit, to offer package editions of their musicals, is being mulled by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II. The idea would be to set a production standard for the shows and thus protect their value as properties. It's figured such a unit might operate along the general lines of the Howard Johnson restaurant chain, which offers the name and maintains a uniform quality for concessionaires.

Although the exact formula for such a project hasn't been worked out, the general idea would be to have unit productions of the musicals, which would be licensed to local theatres on a guarantee-against-percentage basis. Primarily, the package shows would be intended for arena-style presentation in tent theatres, which Rodgers and Hammerstein believe will be a major development in the U. S. in the next few seasons. However, larger-scale productions might be prepared for outdoor presentation, spot bookings in road stands, or possibly even for regular tour.

The main consideration would be quality of production. The composer-lyricist partners believe that with the expected mushrooming of under-canvas playhouses, particularly in communities too small to afford regular theatres in the past, there may be a danger of inferior productions of their works. They fear such a development would not only decrease the subsequent box-office appeal of the properties, but would drive away possible new audiences for legit as a whole.

Their idea is to set up a central outfit to produce show packages, book them and handle the entire operation. St. John Terrell, whose Musical Circus last summer at Lambertville, N. J., was the first such spot and who is currently partnered with a similar venture in Miami, might head the project. But that and other details remain to be arranged.

The Rodgers-Hammerstein collaborations, including "Oklahoma!," "Carousel," "Allegro" and the current-on-Broadway "South Pacific," would not be included, since they are not yet available for stock. But such Hammerstein works as "Show Boat," "Desert Song," "Rose Marie," "New Moon" and "Music in the Air" would be offered. Some of the Rodgers and Hart hits, such as "I Married an Angel," "Connecticut Yankee," "Pal Joey" and "Too Many Girls," which have not been too popular for outdoor presentation because of their comparative intimate quality, might be much more effective as theatre-in-the-round offerings.

Webster to Stage Met 'Carlos,' 1st Opera Try

Rudolf Bing, new general manager of the N.Y. Metropolitan Opera, has engaged Margaret Webster to direct Verdi's "Don Carlos" next season. It's the first opera she has ever staged. Verdi work has been absent from the Met's repertoire since the 1922-'23 season.

Rolf Gerard, who did the settings for the legiters, "That Lady" and "Caesar & Cleopatra," has also been inked to do the scenery and costumes for "Carlos." In past seasons Miss Webster has been principally active in producing and directing her own Shakespearian repertory group.

Swiss Govt. Woos B'way Legiters

A Broadway legit company, to present a repertory of four American plays in Lausanne, Switzerland, is being sought by the Swiss government through the Swiss Tourist bureau. The proposition has been offered to Robert Whitehead and Harold Clurman, who are associated as prospective co-producer and director of "Member of the Wedding." Pair sail today (Wed.) for Paris, and will then go to Switzerland to confer with government officials.

If an agreement for such a tour is worked out for this summer, Whitehead will return immediately to New York to make arrangements. However, it's expected that the project cannot be set up before next summer. Idea is that the U.S. players would receive only nominal salary, with a percentage of the gross over a certain figure, but would be given full expenses, including first-class passage over and back.

Only wrinkle in the situation is the desire of Swiss officials to have a major Hollywood star to head the troupe. Whitehead believes that the proposed financial setup makes that a remote possibility. He also hopes to convince Swiss authorities that it would be difficult for a film star to arrange his commitments in order to continue such an engagement as long as three months. Further, he will point out that if, as the Swiss have said, they would like to make the tour an annual event, with many of the same actors returning each year, it would be almost impossible to get a top name.

According to the tentative proposal, the four plays in the repertory would be rehearsed in New York, and the physical productions would be built in Switzerland. Clurman would probably direct two of the plays, and Whitehead and actor-director Hume Cronyn one each. Cronyn's wife, legit-film actress Jessica Tandy, is interested in making the trip next summer as a member of the company.

TAB LEGITS PLUS PIX MULLED BY SKOURAS

Offering of a condensed play in conjunction with the showing of a film is being considered by the Skouras circuit for presentation in some of its Long Island and New Jersey houses. Policy of dualing a film presentation with a tab legit production was inaugurated a few months ago at the Brandts' Selwyn, subsequent-run picture house on West 42d street, N. Y. Idea was recently picked up by a number of houses on the Loew's circuit.

The Selwyn, incidentally, has fallen back on a double-feature policy in the past few weeks. It's reported that house has been having trouble casting "Native Son," which has been cut down to tab size.

Kaycee U.'s Theatre Degree

Kansas City, March 28.

Graduate work leading to a master of arts degree in theatre will be offered at the U. of Kansas City beginning with the summer session in June, according to Dr. Robert Mortvedt, UKC v.p.

Wanted French Sets For 'Cry of Peacock'; 36 Invested $65,000

Producers Don Medford and James Colligan of "Cry of the Peacock" are understood to have tried to obtain the Jean Denis Malcles settings from the original Paris edition of the play. They were able to reach an agreement with the designer himself, but coudn't come to terms with Claude Sainval, manager of the Comedie des Champs Elysees, where the show played. So they hired Cecil Beaton to do the scenery and costumes for the U.S. version, now trying out.

A situation involving the financing of the production arose through the replacement of Leonora Corbett by Martin Ritt as stager. Miss Corbett obtained a sizeable portion of the backing for the project, and she and the investors involved were reportedly dissatisfied over her removal. However, the snarl has since been settled. Reason for her replacement are in dispute, but apparently stem from differences over the script, which the management claims she revised without authority.

Among the 36 listed backers of the $65,000 venture are Anthony Brady Farrell, $6,500; Ninon Tallon (Mrs. Oscar Karlweis), agent for original author Jean Anouilh, $2,400; A. M. Blumberg, of Brooks Costumes, $3,900; pressagent Samuel J. Friedman, $650; William P. Nolan, of the Nolan scenic studio, $5,200; actress Helen Menken and Medford and Colligan, $1,300 each.

Arthur Hopkins Directed His Plays 'On Honor System' in Bow to the Actor

Arthur Hopkins, who died last Wednesday (22) in New York at the age of 71, was a distinguished director-producer and one of the most respected figures of the American theatre. Shy, modest, sensitive, with a strong mystic streak, he was a lonely man who had almost no close friends. Although his taciturnity was a legend on Broadway, he could be extremely articulate when he chose.

The veteran showman, who had been planning the production of a new play by Thornton Wilder next fall, had been in poor health for several years. He entered St. Vincent's hospital, N. Y., about a month ago because of a heart condition, but was released after two weeks. He suffered another attack about 10 days ago and, on the advice of his physician, re-entered the hospital, where he died several days later. Funeral services Saturday morning (25) at Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, N. Y., were attended by about 300 people from the theatre. Two brothers survive. The producer's wife died in 1938.

Born in Cleveland in 1878, Hopkins became a reporter and then a pressagent, later booking acts in amusement parks and finally entering the New York theatre as a producer with "Poor Little Rich Girl" in 1913. His subsequent presentations, nearly all of which he staged and many of which were outstanding artistic and boxoffice successes, included the John Barrymore "Hamlet," John and Lionel Barrymore in "The Jest," "Anna Christie," "What Price Glory," "The Wild Duck," "Hedda Gabler," Nazimova in "A Doll's House," John Barrymore in "Richard III," Lionel Barrymore in "Macbeth" and Ethel Barrymore in "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

Among his other distinguished productions were "On Trial," "Good Gracious, Annabelle," "A Successful Calamity," "The Beggar's Opera," "The Hairy Ape," "The Old Soak," "Holiday," "The Channel Road," "The Petrified Forest" and "The Magnificent Yankee," the latter being his last Broadway hit. Besides authoring "The Fatted Calf" and "Conquest" and co-authoring "Burlesque" (with George M. Watters) and "A Gentle

(Continued on page 72)

PFEIFFER-GOLDBERG IN SHUBERT APPEAL

Chicago, March 28.

Jules Pfeiffer and Danny Goldberg are filing an appeal this morning (Tues.) in Chi Federal appeals court against Judge Philip Sullivan's decision last week which ruled out the Select Theatre Co., the Select Theatre Operating Co., and the United Booking Office from $1,650,000 triple damage anti-trust suit which producers brought Jan. 21, 1949.

Action claimed that the three dismissed defendants had conspired with Select Lake City Theatres, an Illinois corporation, preventing the plaintiffs from obtaining product for Great Northern theatre, which they had under lease, and also refused them theatres to show their production, "Maid in the Ozarks," in 28 cities.

Judge Sullivan ruled that New York companies and their officials were not, in the usual sense, "transacting business" in the state of Illinois. Not dismissed as defendants in the suit were Select Lake City Theatres and L. A. B. office. Pfeiffer and Goldberg have a similar action pending in New York courts.

Illness Cancels Cornell

Fort Worth, March 28.

Laryngitis caused Katharine Cornell to cancel her evening performance last Friday (24) of "That Lady," currently touring Interstate Theatres Circuit.

Ironically, the only competing show in town was crippled in much the same way, but it played anyway. Uta Graf, playing the lead in the Fort Worth Opera Assn. production of "Faust," was laid low with a throat infection and had to mime her part while a substitute voice did her arias from the orchestra pit.

London 'Party'

London, March 28.

Cast including Rex Harrison, Ian Hunter, Margaret Leighton, Isobel Jeans and Donald Houston will head the London production of "The Cocktail Party." Henry Sherek presentation goes into rehearsal April 8, and will have a tryout tour before opening at the New theatre here in June.

Original edition of the T. S. Eliot play, presented by Gilbert Miller and Sherek, premiered at the Edinburgh Festival last summer and played a tuneup engagement at Brighton before being transferred to Broadway, where it is a current hit.

Dunham Return After 3 Years Pads B'way Dance Calendar for the Spring

Broadway will get its fill of dance again next month, with both Ballet Theatre and the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo skedded to appear in April, and Katherine Dunham and her troupe now joining the procession. The Dunham engagement is a two-and-a-half-week booking, squeezed in following her long European stay and before her South American tour. Troupe will open at the Broadway theatre April 19, to run till May 6.

Company of 25 dancers, last seen on Broadway in November, '46, in a dance-revue, "Bal Negre," will present a similar show, titled "Rapsodie Caribe." More than half the show will be new, with some numbers from "Bal Negre" and the earlier "Carib Song" retained. Top will be $3.60, and there will be no Tuesday performances.

Troupe has been in Europe the last two years, doing sock business everywhere. It did a 90-day turnaway run at Theatre des Champs Elysees, Paris, and made two return French visits. During troupe's stay abroad, a book by Richard Buckle, "Katherine Dunham and Her Dancers," was published in England, and has sold well there and in France.

Sol Hurok is managing the New York engagement and the South American tour that follows. Troupe has been guaranteed a 16-week minimum run in Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Peru, Colombia and Venezuela. Dancers are inked for their third engagement in London in March, 1951, and won't be back in the U.S. again until the fall of '51, when they do a coast-to-coast tour.

Hammerstein to London For 'Carousel' Opening

Oscar Hammerstein, II, will sail April 28 for London, to be present for the production of his and Richard Rodgers' musical, "Carousel," slated to open June 6 at the Drury Lane, following the closing of "Oklahoma!" there. Rodgers may follow later, if so in time for the preem.

Rouben Mamoulian, who staged the original Broadway edition of "Carousel," probably won't go over to repeat the assignment in London. Jerry Whyte, Theatre Guild musical production manager, will probably take over the stint, with Hammerstein and Agnes de Mille, who did the original choreography for the show, sitting in. The West End presentation will be by H. M. Tennent (Hugh Beaumont), in association with the Guild. Same setup offered "Oklahoma!" there.

While in England, Hammerstein (and Rodgers, if he goes, too) will work on their proposed musical version of "Anna and the King of Siam," which is slated for Broadway presentation next season. Hammerstein's departure will follow by four days the scheduled opening of the touring edition of his and Rodgers' smash "South Pacific in Cleveland.

Picon's 'Sadie' Return

Molly Picon will return from a short vacation to reopen in her Yiddish musical. "Sadie Is A Lady," at the 2d Ave. theatre, N. Y., next Monday (3).

Inside Stuff—Legit

Commenting on a VARIETY survey showing that he uses the first-person singular pronoun in his reviews more frequently than any other New York critic, John Chapman, of the News, yesterday (Tues.) observed in his column: "Some writers use the editorial 'we'—perhaps in the forlorn pretense that they have a mob with them. Others elaborately ignore themselves altogether and never use the first person singular, the first person plural or the third person frightfully impersonal.

"I use 'I' not from egotism, for there is nothing deader than yesterday's trained seal. I use it to make clear there is nobody but me to blame. This is handy for fan mail. An anonymous correspondent writing a postcard in block letters can start off by penciling 'You louse'. . . . (If I used the editorial 'we,' he'd not be sure whether to start with 'You lice' or 'You louses.' And if I used the utterly impersonal form of writing the poor angry reader would have to begin with 'Dear It,' which is awkward and not very satisfying."

Clarence Derwent, who leaves this weekend to start rehearsals as guest star in a Kansas City U. production of "The Merchant of Venice," under the direction of Blevins Davis, has played the Shylock role only once before in the U. S. That was nearly 30 years ago, in a benefit performance for Mrs. William Winter, widow of the drama critic. The late Mrs. Richard Mansfield (Beatrice Cameron) came out of retirement to play Portia.

The Actors Equity president first portrayed Shylock in his native England, subsequently playing it in Belgium and Holland, in the language of the country in each instance.

Pittsburgh Playhouse's current click production of the Samuel Spewack comedy, "Two Blind Mice," has John Oleair playing the role of the U. S. navy officer, Commander Jellico. In real life, Oleair is attached to another branch of the service; he's an Army captain assigned to the purchasing division in western Pennsylvania area. Oleair has long had a hankering for the theatre and went out to the Playhouse for an audition with director Fred Burleigh only a few weeks ago. The part in "Mice" immediately followed. Story was a natural for the dailies—army officer playing a naval officer—and got Playhouse some good newspaper breaks.

Robert E. Sherwood, who returned from a Florida vacation several days ahead of schedule to attend an Equity Library Theatre performance Sunday (26) of his "Idiot's Delight," told members of the cast and audience that he had only one criticism of the production. That was that the leading part of the vaudeville hoofer, originally played by Alfred Lunt, was supposed to be a second-rate performer, the author said. He added, however, that Gene Barry, lead of the ELT edition, was "too good" a performer for the assignment. After seeing the matinee performance of the play, Sherwood returned for the evening show and was introduced from the audience, after the final curtain.

Katharine Cornell's production of "That Lady" has about broken even on tour thus far. The drama had a disappointing start in Chicago, grossing $17,000 its opening week, $19,100 the second week, $19,000 the third and $15,500 for the final, for an aggregate loss of $4,100 on the engagement. It has since done spotty business, but made a modest profit in St. Louis and did fairly well last week in several stands in the southwest. Show represented a loss of $50,300 at the close of its Broadway run.

Scale for the original production of "Show Boat," at the Ziegfeld, N. Y., in 1927, had a $6 top, excluding tax, not with tax, as recently reported. That accounted for the show's capacity gross of $52,000 for the first few months of the run. "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," currently playing the Ziegfeld, is grossing a capacity $48,200 at a $5 top, excluding tax. "South Pacific," which will set an all-time gross record of $2,635,000 for its first year at the Majestic, N. Y., draws a steady $50,600 a week, at a $5 top, excluding tax.

William Saroyan has added another string to his bow. Now he's a songwriter as well as scripter. Playwright cleffed one ditty, "Come On-a My House," for his play, "The Son," which world preems tomorrow (30) at the Circle theatre, Hollywood. Leeds Music will publish.

Legit Bits

Sparked by increased public interest created by the click Broadway revivals of "Caesar and Cleopatra" and "Devil's Disciple," new editions of the two Bernard Shaw plays, with scene photos from the current productions, were issued last week by Dodd, Mead . . . Will of the late Brock Pemberton, who died March 11, leaves all his "personal belongings" and seven-eighths of the income of his estate to his wife, Margaret, during her lifetime. Income from the remainder goes to the producer's brother, Murdock Pemberton, and a sister. The estate was valued at "over $20,000." Mrs. Pemberton will continue the management of "Harvey" through the late producer's office and staff.

Composer Kurt Weill, in Flower-Fifth Avenue hospital, N. Y., after a heart attack last week, is reportedly off the critical list, but must remain in bed for about five weeks . . . Equity, the monthly house organ of Actors Equity, has a new cover design, in color, plus new style of type, new makeup and illustrations by members of the union . . . Michael Todd announces that his proposed revue, "Peep Show," will go into rehearsal April 17, probably with Mitzi Green starred . . . Stanley Gilkie, a member of the Stage Relief Fund executive committee, appointed vice-chairman and treasurer, succeeding the late Brock Pemberton . . . Louise (Mrs. Martin) Beck elected to the executive committee, of which Rachel Crothers is chairman, Austin Strong is secretary and Jane Cowl, Marc Connelly and Walter Hampden are members.

Hall Shelton will operate his stock company again this summer at London, Ont., but will not start the eight-week season until Aug. 1, to escape the worst of the hot weather. . . . Dennis Murray heads a committee seeking musical, dramatic and comedy material for "Talent 50," to be presented April 28 by the Stage Managers' Club, as a showcase for tyro performers. Monroe Hack is producing, Michael Ellis is general manager and John Cosgrove is in charge of program ads for the undertaking. . . . Harry Bannister has taken over the second lead in "House on the Cliff," succeeding John Alexander, who withdrew to undergo an operation. Peggy Cass and Dort Clark have also joined the cast of the Fay Bainter-Ernest Truex starrer. . . . Theron Bamberger will open his Bucks Country (Pa.) strawhat June 2.

"John Brown," new play by Theodore Ward, whose "Our Lan'," was presented on Broadway in 1947, will be offered off-Broadway by People's Drama at its Eldridge St., N. Y., theatre beginning April 27 . . . George Bernard Shaw's "The Shewing - Up of Blanco Posnet" will be offered by the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre, N. Y., for five performances beginning Monday (3).

Murray Druck's "All-American" will be given its initial production by the Dramatic Workshop at the President theatre, N. Y., for two performances, April 7-8 . . . Paul Green's "Tread the Green Grass," originally put on at Iowa U. in 1931, will be offered by the Abbe Practical Workshop at the Master theatre, N. Y., April 19-21. Green is currently working on an adaptation of "Peer Gynt" for Broadway presentation next fall . . . "Come What May," a new revue, will be put on by Chris Seibel and Michael Stewart at the Weidman theatre, N. Y., beginning next Wednesday (5). Irma Jurist and Leo Schumer did the music, while Stewart turned out the lyrics and sketches.

Irvin Dorfman, associated with his father, Nat Dorfman, in drumbeating for "Texas, Li'l Darlin'," leaves for Europe today (Wed.) to look over the play field for producer Anthony B. Farrell. While abroad, Dorfman, a ranking U. S. tennis player, will compete in a number of tournaments . . . Michael Ellis will stage-manage the Surf playhouse, Atlantic City, to be launched by Gail Hillson the week of June 12 or 19.

John Cameron to direct 18-week season at Mountain Playhouse, Jennerstown, Pa., opening June 3 with "Born Yesterday," Producers are James Black Stoughton and Louise Stoughton Mausi.

Charles Strakosh, company manager of "Velvet Glove," planed to Texas last weekend to take over as manager of Katharine Cornell's "That Lady" production, succeeding William Tisdale, who is ill. Clarence Taylor has stepped in as manager with "Glove" . . . According to word from London, Gladys Cooper will star in a production there of "Hat Trick," by Thomas Browne. She's also reportedly slated to have her own theatre in the West End, under Henry Sherek's management . . . Ben Rosenberg will be company manager of "Miss Liberty" when the production tours. He'll succeed Milton Baron, who's remaining in New York as general manager of the Dorothy Willard presentation of "The Liar."

Former producer-manager Richard Herndon is living in Philly in retirement . . . Evelyn Laye and Frank Lawton are touring the British provinces in Daphne du Maurier's "September Tide," in which Gertrude Lawrence starred in London last season . . . John Golden is reportedly dickering for the U. S. rights to "Carter Street Story," Charlotte Frances drama in which American-born Frances Day starred on tour in England earlier this season. He's already talking to Rex Harrison about starring in a revival of "The Admirable Crichton" next season, provided the Barrie estate will agree to a royalty cut . . . Sarah Churchill, who closed in "Philadelphia Story" last week on the Coast, returns to London next week.

Cynthia Risley, who has withdrawn from the Broadway company of "Kiss Me, Kate," is not being replaced . . . Virginia Conwell has succeeded Barbara McCutcheon as a dancer in "Arms and the Girl" . . . Norman Ginsbury has stated in London that no one has an option on the American rights to his drama, "The First Gentleman," which Jean Dalrymple had been reportedly planning for fall production . . . William Douglas Home, British author whose "Yes, M'Lord" (originally "The Chiltern Hundreds") was presented on Broadway last fall, is completing a new play about Field Marshal Rommel.

With Arthur Kennedy on vacation this week, James Gregory is playing the role of the older son, Biff, in "Death of a Salesman," at the Morosco, N. Y. Gregory, assistant stage manager of the Kermit Bloomgarden-Walter Fried production, has previously subbed for Kennedy in the part.

"Life Is A Dream," Chaim Tauber's latest Yiddish drama, starring the actor-playwright, will open at the Clinton theatre, N. Y., this Sunday (2) . . . Parkway theatre, Brooklyn, dark for a month, reopens Monday evening (3) with "Forget Me Not," a dramatization of Louis Freiman's latest Jewish radio play of the same name.

Hollywood

Bill Henry and Nana Bryant top cast of "The Uninvited Guest," new Ramon Romero-Frank Hilliard play which tries out April 19 at the Coronet, Hollywood . . . James A. Doolittle prepping a season of two light operas and two grand operas at Hollywood Bowl this summer . . . Film interest already running high in William Saroyan's new script "The Son," (originally three words longer), which will be world-preemed tomorrow (30) by the Circle Players in Hollywood.

Longhair Shorts

Fritz Reiner, who guest-conducted the last three weekends with the Chicago Symphony, is back with the Met and conducts "Rosenkavalier" Saturday (1) in Boston . . . Bracha Zefira, Israeli folk singer, in farewell appearance at Town Hall, N. Y., April 6 . . . Cetra Records is issuing an LP album of "Falstaff," recorded in Italy, which coincides with this week's concert performance of the Verdi opera by Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony Orchestra . . . Martha Graham will tour Europe beginning in June. Craig Barton, producer of programs at Dallas' radio station WFAA, will be her personal representative for the tour.

Total Legit Grosses

The following are the comparative figures based on VARIETY'S boxoffice estimates for last week (the 43d week of the season) and the corresponding week of last season:

BROADWAY	This Season	Last Season
Number of shows current	27	27
Total weeks played so far by all shows	923	988
Total gross for all current shows last week	$663,900	$622,700
Total season's gross so far by all shows	$23,006,400	$23,582,200
Number of new productions so far	48	60
ROAD (Excluding Stock)
Number of current touring shows reported	18	25
Total weeks played so far by all shows	830	978
Total road gross reported last week	$316,444	$530,800
Season's total road gross so far	$16,932,344	$20,213,000

Chi in Slight Rise; 'Kate' $28,200, 'Madwoman' 21G, 'Lives' $14,300

Chicago, March 28.

Chi boxoffice still is trying to weather the Lenten doldrums and lack of convention trade. Business picked up a little, but not enough to cheer about. Best grosser seems to be "Madwoman of Chaillot." All things considered, advance for "Lend An Ear" is pretty strong. "Private Lives" seems lean in first of three-week stand. "Kiss Me, Kate" has been having very heavy weekend traffic, but the rest of the week has been off.

Chi theatregoers don't have much to look for in the near future, only a revival of "Oklahoma!" in five weeks, and a possible engagement of "Miss Liberty." Mae West has decided, for the nonce, to skip Chicago with "Diamond Lil." Outside of a May week stint of the Metropolitan Opera at the Chicago Civic Opera, this is the future, unless UBO swings something else in at the last moment.

Estimates for Last Week

"Kiss Me, Kate," Shubert (27th wk) (2,000; $6.18). Doing bright $28,200.

"Lend an Ear," Great Northern (1,500; $4.33). Opened last night (Mon.).

"Madwoman of Challiot," Erlanger (2d wk) (1,334; $4.33). Second week of Guild above first with $21,000; has a $42,000 advance for the next four weeks.

"Private Lives," Harris (1,000; $4.33). First week of Tallulah Bankhead vehicle only a moderate $14,300.

'All Things' $4,000 Tops Slow Los Angeles Week

Los Angeles, March 28.

Only three tiny houses were alight last week and though business was good the whole town's take registered only a mild $11,600. Things begin to pick up again this week with El Capitan ablaze again with "Goodnight Ladies," which bowed last night, and with Biltmore readying coast bow of "The Silver Whistle," starring Lloyd Nolan, next Monday (3).

Estimates for Last Week

"Of All Things," Century (1st wk) ($3.60; 382). New revue bowed Wed. (22) to mixed notices and breezed through first four nights with near-capacity take of $4,000. Opening night top of $6 helped swell the tally.

"Strange Bedfellows," Las Palmas (1st wk) ($3.60; 388). Generally good notices greeted the Tuesday (21) bow and first five nights registered okay $3,700.

"The Banker's Daughter," New Globe (7th wk) ($2.40; 299). Off to around $3,900. Complexities of tiny house plus size of cast puts this in red. Needs to do virtual capacity to break even.

Norwalk to Have 12-Week Tent Season

Bridgeport, March 28.

Tent operetta season is skedded for 12 weeks starting June 19 on property in nearby Norwalk adjacent to James Melton's old car museum. James Westerfield, in "Detective Story" on Broadway; Ben Boyar, Max Gordon's general manager, and Mrs. Katherine Shea, Bridgeport legit promoter, are associated in operation of outdoor venture, which will likely preem with "The Chocolate Soldier."

Melton and Ralph Bellamy, star of "Story," are financially interested. Westerfield has previous operetta experience in Dallas, Memphis and L. A.

Venture is being financed at $40,000, as a limited partership, and it will have an estimated $6,000-a-week break-even point.

Faye Emerson-'Goodbye' Good $16,000 in Wash.

Washington, March 28.

"Goodbye, My Fancy," headed by Faye Emerson, came off creditably as second attraction at the newly converted Gayety. Midweek rain on two consecutive nights hurt, but show still racked up a good $16,000, at $3.60 top, for the 1,500-seater. Comedy was on a Tuesday-to-Sunday schedule because of star's Monday night TV commitment.

Advance for current and final week is promising. Sendoff by town's cricks, who went all out for the combo of Miss Emerson, Haila Stoddard, Bramwell Fletcher and Sam Wanamaker, is helping.

Hefty advance for "Streetcar Named Desire," with Judith Evelyn, which comes in April 3 for three weeks.

SAN CARLO OPERA SOCK $23,000 IN TORONTO

Toronto, March 28.

First venture into legit in the history of the Odeon, plush showcase of the J. Arthur Rank trans-Canada film chain, saw a smash $23,000 for the first half of the San Carlo Opera Co.'s week's engagement, which commenced March 23, with the 2,313-seater scaled at $4.20 top.

"La Traviata" opening brought out the carriage trade for a capacity attendance, with management later selling standing room at $1.50 for "Carmen," "Madame Butterfly" and "Aida," and turning would-be standees away for all three performances. Heavy advance sale reported for the remaining three evening performances and matinee.

Phenomenon is that hitherto annual visits of the San Carlo troupe, to Massey Hall or the Royal Alexandra, with both houses scaled at $2.40 top, never sold out, but customers went for that Odeon scale of $4.20.

'Okla.!' Neat $30,500 In New Orleans Week

New Orleans, March 28.

"Oklahoma!" pulled in a vigorous $30,500 in eight performances at the Poche here last week.

Musical is at the Tower, Atlanta, this week.

Mae West's 'Lil' Fair $20,000 in Kansas City

Kansas City, March 28.

"Diamond Lil" wound up an eight-day run in the Orpheum theatre here Sunday. Mae West-starrer was especially heavy on mats Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. It played at $4.27 evening top, and racked up $20,000, fair figure for the 1,912-seat Fox Midwest house.

"Lil" was second straight legit attraction in the house, which remains dark until April 8. It then reverts to films with "Three Came Home." Later in the spring other legit attractions are set.

'Brig' 28G in Split

Hershey, Pa., March 28.

"Brigadoon" grossed over $28,000 in eight performances last week split between the Community theatre here and the Playhouse, Wilmington. Musical played latter Monday-Wednesday (20-22), coming here Thursday (23) and playing through Saturday (25).

Show is dividing current week between the Victory, Dayton, and the Hartman, Columbus, O.

Christians-'Vinegar Tree' Neat $5,500 in Atlanta

Atlanta, March 28.

Mady Christians in "The Vinegar Tree" proved to be a boxoffice natural and did a neat $5,500 in eight performances at Penthouse theatre last week. Lead male role was handled by Gerald Savory, who directs Penthouse plays.

Susan Peters opened Monday (27) in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie." Advance sales indicate another banner week.

Penthouse is scheduled to shutter for season in one more week. Final play will star Sarah Churchill in Philip Barry's "The Philadelphia Story." It will be a repeat engagement for the star-and-play combination, since they were the attraction here during the third week of Penthouse's 29-week run of star stock.

Second week of Penthouse experimental six-week run in Jacksonville, under aegis of Atlanta group, grossed a satisfactory $5,000 with Moss Hart's "Light Up the Sky" in Roosevelt hotel ballroom. Audrey Christie, who starred in "Light Up" here, moved to Jacksonville and played two nights there, then moved out of starring role to make way for Diana Barrymore. Latter had suffered a spine injury three weeks before in an automobile accident in Virginia and had to cancel her Atlanta Penthouse appearance.

Susan Peters and "Menagerie" will move to Jacksonville after Atlanta date and so will the Churchill - "Philadelphia Story" combo.

'Wisteria' $36,144, Record in Philly

Philadelphia, March 28.

"The Wisteria Trees," Helen Hayes starrer, broke the straight-play house record at the Shubert here last week with a capacity-plus $36,144, at $4.55 top. The previous mark, set by Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in 1932, was $33,657, at $3.60 top. The town has only a single legit attraction again this week. "Cry of the Peacock," in for a single-week tryout at the Locust. Nothing is slated for next week.

Estimate for Last Week

"The Wisteria Trees," Shubert (2d wk) (1,877; $4.55). Riding the second-week swell of rave reviews and strong word-of-mouth, the tryout topped capacity with a record-setting $36,144. Moved out Saturday night (25) for Broadway, where it opens tomorrow night (Wed.).

'STREETCAR' OKAY IN DETROIT AT $21,200

Detroit, March 28.

"A Streetcar Named Desire," with Judith Evelyn and Ralph Meeker, grossed a vigorous $21,200 for eight performances in three engagements last week. Show took in $7,500 at the Orpheum, Davenport, Monday-Tuesday (20-21); $6,000 at the Palace, South Bend, Wednesday-Thursday (22-23), and $7,700 at the Shubert here, Friday-Saturday (24-25).

Play continues at the Shubert until Saturday (1).

Further Coast Talks On 'Guys and Dolls'

Cy Feuer and Ernest H. Martin, whose presentation of "Guys and Dolls" is slated for early fall, went to the Coast over the weekend for further production confabs with Frank Loesser, composer-lyricist of the show, and Jo Swerling, librettist. Feuer will be back in about a week, but Martin will remain a month or so.

The musical, based on Damon Runyon characters and stories, is completely written and the entire financing is already in hand. Principal problem at the moment is casting. As soon as the leads are set a rehearsal date will be announced. Jo Mielziner will design the scenery and have overall charge of the production, with Daniel Mann staging the book and Jerome Robbins doing the choreography. A theatre hasn't been selected.

'SALESMAN' $23,400, CLEVE.

Cleveland, March 28.

"Death of a Salesman," with Thomas Mitchell, scored a strong $23,400 in eight performances at the Hanna here last week.

Show stays here this wek.

B'way Still Shaky, But Up a Bit; 'Great' Lively $21,500 in First 4, 'Consul' $28,500 First Full Week

Business showed a marked improvement on Broadway last week. Attendance topped the previous week from the start, but the rise was particularly notable Friday and Saturday (24-25). The total gross for all 27 shows was 77.76% of capacity, a rise of 7.36% over the preceding week.

A slight drop is anticipated this week, with the traditional Holy Week slump the next week, a lively recovery due for Easter Week. One opening is scheduled for this week.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical), O (Operetta).

Other parenthetic figures refer, respectively, to top price, number of seats and capacity gross. Price includes 20% amusement tax, but grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of tax.

"Arms and the Girl," 46th St. (8th wk) (M-$6; $1,319; $42,000). Jumped with the field; new high at $39,700.

"As You Like It," Cort (9th wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,064; $27,000). Eased a bit to $24,500.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," National (14th wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,172; $30,000). Registered a slight rise to $20,400.

"Clutterbuck," Biltmore (16th wk) (C-$4.80; 920; $22,600). Using twofers and jumped back from the previous week's $10,700 to nearly $13,500.

"Cocktail Party," Miller (10th wk) (C-$4.80; 940; $21,600). Another capacity week; $21,600.

"Come Back, Little Sheba," Booth (6th wk) (D-$4.80; 712; $20,000). Dipped to $11,300.

"Death of a Salesman," Morosco (59th wk) (D-$4.80; 914; $23,800). About the same; $18,200.

"Detective Story," Hudson (53d wk) (D-$4.80; 1,016; $23,675). Moved up a couple of notches to $16,300.

"Devil's Disciple," Royale (5th wk) (C-$4.80-$6; 1,035; $27,500). Up again to excellent $25,100.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Ziegfeld (16th wk) (M-$6; 1,628; $48,244). Capacity again at over $48,200.

"Great to Be Alive," Winter Garden (1st wk) (M-$6; 1,510; $42,000). Musical opened Thursday night (23) to three favorable notices, four pans and one non committal; first four performances grossed a non-indicative $21,500, plus $4,000 for one preview.

"Happy Time," Plymouth (9th wk) (C-$4.80; 1,063; $29,019). Moved up to $28,200.

"Howdy, Mr. Ice of 1950," Center (44th wk) (R-$2.88-$3; 2,964; $58,000). About the same; $18,500.

"I Know My Love," Shubert (21st wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,391; $33,000). Also did better at $24,200.

"Kiss Me, Kate," Century (64th wk) (M-$6; 1,645; $46,650). Climbed back a bit to $45,400.

"Lost in the Stars," Music Box (21st wk) (M-$5.40; 1,012; $26,600). Moved back up to $24,200.

"Member of the Wedding," Empire (12th wk) (D-$4.80; 1,082; $24,000). Held about even; $24,000.

"Miss Liberty," Imperial (37th wk) (M-$6.60; 1,400; $44,500). Trifle better at $24,400.

"Mister Roberts," Alvin (110th wk) (CD-$4.80; 1,360; $34,276). Keeps on piling up profits; climbed back to nearly $28,800.

"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," Broadhurst (4th wk) (CD-$4.80-$6; 1,160; $29,500). Rode up a bit on the general trend, plus the help of one theatre party; over $18,200.

"South Pacific," Majestic (51st wk) (M-$6; 1,659; $50,186). Gets all the house will hold every week; over $50,600.

"Texas, Lil Darlin'," Hellinger (18th wk) (M-$6; 1,543; $42,000). Maintaining a comfortable pace; $27,200.

"The Consul," Barrymore (2d wk) (M-$4.80-$6; 1,066; $30,000). Off to a fast start; first full week got $28,500.

"The Innocents," Playhouse (7th wk) (D-$4.80; 819; $18,740). Jumped back promisingly to $13,400.

"The Man," Fulton (10th wk) (D-$4.80; 966; $23,000). Slated to vacate the house after two or three more weeks; twofers haven't helped; $7,200.

"Velvet Glove," Golden (13th wk) (CD-$4.80; 769; $18,127). Also shared the improved business; about $7,500.

"Where's Charley?" St. James (75th wk) (M-$6; 1,509; $37,800). Bounced to lively $33,300.

Opening

"Wisteria Trees," Martin Beck (D-$4.80-$6; 1,214; $33,000). Helen Hayes starrer, authored by Joshua Logan based on Chekhov's "Cherry Orchard," presented by Logan and Leland Hayward; financed at $100,000, cost about $110,000 to bring in (including bonds) and can break even at around $22,000; opens tonight (Wed.).

Future Dates

"Cry of the Peacock," April 6 at Mansfield; "With a Silk Thread," April 12 at Lyceum; "Peter Pan," April 24 at Imperial; "Tickets, Please," week of April 24 at Coronet; "Phoenix Too Frequent"—"Freight," April 29 at the Fulton.

'Roberts' Wham $30,600, Hub

Boston, March 28.

"Mister Roberts" remains the sockiest straight legit to hit town in seasons, still doing capacity all performances at the Colonial for a smash $30,600 plus. An additional starter last week kept the season from setting a record low in houses lighted for this time of year, with Cornelia Otis Skinner doing a one-week stand at the Wilbur for about $9,000, which isn't bad.

"King Lear," setting both a b.o. and a h.o. record at the Brattle, is now in its sixth and final week, with "The Country Wife" set for April 5. Other prospects in view now are "Riverside Drive," which opened last night (27) to stay until April 5. Other prospects are "Tickets, Please," "Miss Liberty," "Abi Gezunt," the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, "Lady From Paris," "Diamond Lil" in a return engagement, and "Kiss Me, Kate."

'PEACOCK' MILD $5,000 IN NEW HAVEN PREEM

New Haven, March 28.

Preem of "Cry of the Peacock" drew a light response at Shubert last weekend (23-25). In for four shows at $3.60 top, estimated gross of $5,000 was mild.

Breakin of "Tickets, Please" (the Hartmans), originally skedded for this week, has been shifted to April 6-8. Also on the premiere list is "House on the Cliff" (Fay Bainter-Ernest Truex), due April 13-15.

Paris Ballet Nifty $24,500 in Detroit

Detroit, March 28.

The sickly Detroit legit patient took a sharp turn for the better last week. A very good $24,500 resulted from the six-day Cass presentation of "Les Ballets de Paris." Theatre is dark again this week with reopening set for April 3 for second appearance here this season of "Death of Salesman."

The 2,000-seat Shubert did a swell $8,500 in three performances of "Streetcar Named Desire," which opened Friday (24) and is booked until Saturday (1).

Woolley-'Dinner' $20,000 in Split Wk.

Tacoma, March 28.

Monty Woolley in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" drew a healthy $20,000 last week in seven performances split between the Temple here and the Metropolitan, Seattle. Show played latter Monday-Wednesday (20-22), coming here Thursday (23) for a two-day engagement ending Friday (24).

Comedy is current at the International Cinema, Vancouver.

Shows in Rehearsal

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), M (Musical), O (Operetta).

"House on the Cliff" (C)—Peggy Wood, Joseph Moon and Roger Stearns; Leo Mittler, director.

"Peter Pan" (C-D)—Peter Lawrence; John Burrell, director.

"Phoenix Too Frequent" — "Freight" (Double-Bill) (D)—Stephen Scheur.

"The Liar" (M) — Dorothy Willard and Thomas Hammond; Norris Houghton, director.

"With a Silk Thread" (D)—Irving Kaye Davis; Elsa Shelley, director.

"On stage we bundle with SUMTER SPRINGMAID sheets," say Nanette Fabray and Georges Guetary, starring in the hit musical "Arms and the Girl" at the 46th Street Theatre, New York. The show's big bundling scene calls for sheets that look soft and smooth, yet can take wear and punishment. And SUMTER SPRINGMAID sheets star in this role any night!

Bundling without Bungling

When knightly bundling was in flower and great-grandpa was in his bower, he often played heck with a sheet for he slept with spurs upon his feet. And when a nightmare made him twitch, the damsel really had to stitch. But both the sheets and great-grandma survived the calls of great-grandpa. Since boots and spurs are not in vogue and guest rooms are today the mode, your sheets must still stand rips and tears of laundries, kids, and derrières. But mending sheets is now passé; our whistle bait has a better way, and sheets don't face such knightly slaughter. A colonial dame's great-granddaughter selects our SUMTER SPRINGMAID® sheets to spur beaux on to spurless feats.

Unlike old times when couples bundled and in the process often bungled, we make our SPRINGMAIDS much the best and proved it in a strenuous test. We took our SUMTER SPRINGMAID brand, woven and finished by skillful hand. Each sheet was washed 400 times—a test like this would slick new dimes. Two hundred times they were abraded, yet none were either worn or faded. That's equal to a generation of wear and tear and vellication. In speaking of these SPRINGMAID covers, we really wish all fabric lovers, when homeward bound from some dull party, would test SPRINGMAIDS—they're all so hardy that you can get a running start and dive in—they won't come apart. The moral is, to each of you: No matter what you say or do, remember that in cold or heat, you can't go wrong on a SPRINGMAID sheet.

SUMTER
SHEETS AND PILLOW CASES
TYPE
140
SPRINGMAID
Cotton

SPRINGS MILLS

200 Church Street • New York 13, New York

Atlanta Chicago Dallas Los Angeles St. Louis

For a set of SPRINGMAID ads suitable for framing, send 25 cents to Springs Mills, Dept. VY-14, at the above address.

Many people will remember the stories of ELLIOTT WHITE SPRINGS which appeared in "LIBERTY," "RED BOOK" and "COSMOPOLITAN." Later they were published in book form but the plates were destroyed in the London blitz, and they are no longer available. He has taken twenty-one of the best stories and published them in "CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN," together with a new chapter on how to lose friends and antagonize people, how to write advertisements, and how to build cotton mills. If your local store cannot supply you, send a dollar to us and we will send you a copy.

He has also designed a sport shirt with 16 SPRINGMAID girls printed in 6 colors on SPRINGMAID broadcloth. It is made small, medium, large, and extra large. Send us $3.00, and we will mail you one postpaid in the United States. Children's age sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 16 are available for $1.25 each.

©1950, The Springs Cotton Mills

SPRINGMAID
FABRICS
THE SPRINGS COTTON MILLS

Plays Abroad

Latin Quarter 1950

London, March 20.

Tom Arnold & Emile Littler presentation of Robert Nesbitt musical in two parts (13 scenes). Staged by Hazel Gee. Musical numbers by Jack Golden, Phil Park, Leslie Julian Jones, Harold Purcell, Harry Parr Davis, Michel Emer, Jerry Seelen, Augusto Alguero; arrangements, Debroy Somers. With Vic Oliver, Sylvie St. Clair, Walton & O'Rourke, Clark Bros., Fortunia, Dynamite Jefferson, Lela Moore, Les Compagnons de la Chanson with Les Casavecchia, Josephine Bell, Les Curibas, Jeffrey Piddock, Pauline Johnson, Lena Powell, Daphne Kiernander, Collegiate Octette, Debroy Somers orch. At Casino, London, March 18, '50.

Scintillating and colorful musical is a worthy successor to the first edition, which ran for nine months before its withdrawal to house the annual Christmas pantomime. With a mixture of varied talent from different countries, show provides more than adequate money's worth and should have strong tourist attraction during the summer months. It has picturesque sets, gorgeous costumes, complete with living curtain of artistic nudes, glamorous dancers and seductive music.

Vic Oliver heads the cast and, while comedy is not the show's strong suit, his personality strengthens so-so sketches. He scores individually with a lengthy piano solo on a darkened stage, providing background for phosphorescent dance display.

Sylvie St. Clair, a newcomer from Paris, has a pleasing personality and puts over her numbers with a gamine, endearing quality. Les Compagnons de la Chanson, with their simple presentation of English and French songs, are a refreshing contrast to the surrounding glitter and Lela Moore, with her man-woman characterization of lovers on a park bench, brings a novel touch of originality.

One of the biggest hits, as always on their London appearance, are the Clark Bros., who never fail to get warm appreciation of their intricate stepping, and Walton and O'Rourke almost steal the show with their puppet act. Fortunia provides grace and color with her exotic dancing, with Dynamite Jefferson offering thrills with his exuberant acrobatics and teeth balancing routine. As show ran over 20 minutes late at the first house, Jefferson was withdrawn after the opening night, but this was as a timesaver and no reflection on the way he went over.

Debroy Somers and his band round off the spectacular production, keeping the tempo to top pitch throughout. Clem.

La Maison du Printemps
(The House of Youth)

Paris, March 9.

Mlle. Parysis presentation; a comedy in three acts by Fernand Millaud. Directed by Jacques-Henri Duval; Setting by Buisson and Chevreux. At the Theatre Michel, Paris.

Alphonse Lambert	Duvaleix
Bernard Lebourdier	George Lloyd
Washington	Andre Salvador
Alain Gasquet	Jean Davan
Dominique Carlier	Claude Cernay
Aunt Helene	Christiane Delyne
Yolande	Nelly Wick
Claire	Jacqueline Ricard
Suzy	Paulette Elambert
Jackie	Francoise Spira

Alphonse Lambert has four pretty daughters—Yolande, Claire, Suzy and Jackie. Until he appears on the scene, only Jackie, the youngest, is interested in their father's proposal that one of them marry the English-trained son of an old business associate. But when Bernard arrives for a visit, the other sisters have a change of heart, because Bernard is young and attractive, even though he does speak French with an appalling accent. Unable to decide for himself which of the sisters he really prefers, he invites two of his friends to help him out, with the result that the final curtain finds them all paired off, with the exception of Yolande, the blue-stocking member of the family.

There is a good deal of charm and humor in this lightweight comedy, due largely to the attractiveness and exuberance of the young people involved. Outstanding is the American, George Lloyd, who, after a year or so of nightclub experience, has learned sufficient French to carry a role (a long one at that) in the native language.

Nelly Wick is funny as the literary Yolande, Paulette Elambert is energetic as the sports-loving Suzy, and Francoise Spira is attractive as Jackie. Jacqueline Ricard as the serious and sensible member of a madcap household; Claire, who in the end turns out to be Bernard's choice, is effective. All the girls are young and pretty. The two veteran actors, Duvaleix and Christiane Delyne, give engaging performances of the father and a somewhat feather-brained aunt. The single setting of a villa in Neuilly is bright and agreeable. Fred.

Knights of Madness

London, March 20.

Jack Hylton presentation of Alec Shanks musical in two parts (15 scenes). Music and lyrics by Ross Parker; dances by George Carden; directed by Charles Henry. With The Crazy Gang (Bud Flanagan, Nervo & Knox, Naughton & Gold), Jan Muzurus, Linda Lee, Jillian Roma, Grace Draper, Barbara Bruce, Douglas Trow, Dassie Bros., Pat Hill & Lenny Delma, Freddie Bretherton orch. At Victoria Palace, London, March 15, '50.

Chalk up a new winner for Jack Hylton and The Crazy Gang. "Knights of Madness" has got everything for a sparkling, riotous two-hour entertainment and will doubtless stay at this theatre for as long as the Gang has the energy to carry on.

More lavish than its predecessor, it's a big-scale presentation in every sense of the word. Colorful costumes, imaginative decor and an elegantly conceived ballet combine with the stars and a first-rate supporting team of artists to make this a nonstop entertainment. The Crazy Gang, more irrepressible than ever, inevitably has the lion's share of the show. Its boisterous, infectious, good humor always goes big with Londoners and even the odd crudities are genially accepted. Bud Flanagan also chalks up a big personal hit in introducing a new number, "Hey, Neighbour," which is almost surely destined for the hit parade.

Linda Lee and Grace Draper top the femme half of the cast and bring to the show a pleasing mixture of sophistication and demureness. Their biggest hit is a tuneful number "Is There a Man in the House," in which Jillian Roma also has a solo spot.

Aside from the stars, the sock attraction of the evening are Pat Hill & Lennie Delma, who with their marionettes stop the show. Act is a triumph of manipulation and away ahead of the normal puppet show seen in town. Another firstrate act is the Dassie Bros. who perform near-to-impossible acrobatic stunts in a nonchalant way.

Alec Shanks has given the show a slick production and Freddie Bretherton's orch capably provides the musical background. Myro.

The Lady Purrs

London, March 16.

Envoy Productions (in association with the Arts Council) presentation of comedy in three acts by Ted Willis. Directed by Anthony Hawtrey. At Embassy, Swiss Cottage, March 15, '50.

Sandra	Eleanor Summerfield
Joe Battlebridge	Charles Heslop
Laura Battlebridge	Gwynne Whitby
Jill Battlebridge	Jill Raymond
Ma Brattlebridge	Gwen Nelson
Ethel Morgan	Dandy Nichols
Rev. W. Lewis	Christopher Steele
Irma Thackeray	Viola Lyel
Frank Hargreaves	Joss Ackland
Mr. Smythe	Neil Crawford

There is an intriguing idea behind this fantasy but it doesn't quite come off. It's a story of a cat who turns into a woman and has all the innermost secrets of the household. Possibilities are immense but it demands too much ingenuity to maintain the pace for three acts. Result is a modest laugh-maker which doesn't quite reach the class demanded by present-day audiences.

Not content with keeping this within the bounds of fantasy and farce, author Ted Willis couldn't resist a touch of political satire and scores quite a few sly digs at the Labor government, all of which, naturally, are of a local character. His story is well suited for this, because the unhappy head of the household, where the cat assumes human form, is a political aspirant for Parliament. The joke, however, is carried a little too far, and the publication of a cat's charter brings it down to the level of broadest farce.

Much of the success which this piece may meet will be due to the efforts of the cast. Eleanor Summerfield, in particular, scores a tremendous personal hit and is seen as an artist of great charm and ability. Charles Heslop tends to overplay the aspiring politician, but the members of his family are very neatly sketched by Gwynne Whitby, Jill Raymond and Gwen Nelson. Other members of the cast round off the show effectively. Myro.

Pas D'Orchidees Pour Miss Blandish
(No Orchids For Miss Blandish)

Paris, March 2.

Grand Guignol presentation of melodrama in three acts of Hadley Chase, translated into French by Marcel Duhamel, Elaine Charles. Staged by Alexander Dundas. At Grand Guignol, Paris.

Miss Blandish	Nicole Riche
Ma Grisson	Renee Gardes
Anna Borey	Heddy Miller
Slim	Jean-Marc Tennberg
Johnny	Jean Francel

The Grand Guignol has been a symbol of Parisian lore where one could see good clean gore, and

(Continued on page 72)

Play on Broadway

Great to Be Alive!

Vinton Freedley presentation (in association with Anderson Lawler and Russell Markert) of musical comedy in two acts (14 scenes). Book by Walter Bullock and Sylvia Regan; lyrics, Bullock; music, Abraham Ellstein. Features Vivienne Segal, Stuart Erwin, Valerie Bettis, Mark Dawson, Martha Wright, Bambi Linn, Rod Alexander. Directed by Mary Hunter; dances and musical numbers staged by Helen Tamiris; settings, costumes and lighting, Stewart Chaney; orchestrations, Robert Russell Bennett and Donald J. Walker; musical director, Max Meth. At Winter Garden, N. Y., March 23, '50; $6 top ($8.40 opening).

Bonnie	Bambi Linn
Prudence	Betty Low
Albert	Rod Alexander
Jake	J. C. McCord
Maybelle	Aleen Buchanan
Kitty	Valerie Bettis
Crumleigh	Jay Marshall
Butch	Earl Oxford
Lesie Butterfield	Vivienne Segal
Carol	Martha Wright
Vince	Mark Dawson
Woodrow Twigg	Stuart Erwin
Mimsey	Marjorie Peterson
Sandra	Virginia Curtis
Freddie	Russell Nype
Blodgett	Lulu Bates
Jonathon	David Nillo
Minister	Ken Carroll
O'Brien	Don Kennedy
Rafferty	Paul Reed

Dancers: Eleanor Fairchild, Eleanore Gregory, Barbara Heath, Ann Hutchinson, Norma Kaiser, Janice Rule, Chuck Brunner, Ted Cappy, Roscoe French, David Nillo, Harry Rogers, Swen Swenson.

Singers: Leigh Allen, Jeanne Bal, Virginia Curtis, Ruth McVayne, Joyce Mitchell, Julia Williams, Fred Bryan, Ken Carroll, Ed Gombos, John Juliano, Russell Nype, Robert Wallace.

"Great To Be Alive!" is better to see than to hear. That is, its dancing is striking, the scenery and costumes are beautiful, but its story is complicated and inescapable, the music commonplace and the comedy inadequate. And when a musical comedy has neither music nor comedy but only visual qualities the result is generally slim entertainment and negative boxoffice.

The unusual but intricate story involves several generations of ghosts who try to prevent rich New Yorkers from renovating and occupying a cobwed-festooned Pennsylvania mansion. There are more or less parallel romantic themes as a sophisticated pair from Manhattan plan a wedding in the place and a pair of ghostly lovers attempt to make it a double ceremony. There is a succession of murders. And, among other situation gimmicks, there's the fact that virgins can see the ghosts, which provides the expected "surprise" payoff.

Besides supplying all the dancing highlights, the ghosts are also the more amusing and attractive characters in the show, in contrast to the rather dreary mortal beings. The first half of the musical concentrates on the somewhat eccentric ghosts, including a graceful dance number by Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander, as the lovers, followed immediately by a stunning one by Valerie Bettis, as a wanton wraith. But the second half, going overboard with shootings, stabbings and laborious mortal doings, tends to deteriorate. Miss Bettis has another effective dance in the second half, but Miss Linn and Alexander merely reprise their first number.

Musically, the show is undistinguished and curiously ill-routined. Vivienne Segal, top featured and the only name singer in the production, hasn't a song in the first act, and only two commonplace numbers in the second act, spotted in quick succession. On the other hand, Miss Bettis, who is only incidentally a singer, has several brief vocal bits and considerable dialog. The best of the none-too-good songs are sung by Mark Dawson and Martha Wright.

The show's more notable tunes are "It's a Long Time Till Tomorrow," "Call It Love," "You Appeal To Me," "Headin' for a Weddin'," and "There's Nothing Like It." Other numbers include "When the Sheets Come Back from the Laundry," "Redecorate," "What a Day!" "From This Day On," "Who Done It?" "Blue Day," "That's a Man Everytime" and "Thank You, Mrs. Butterefield."

Although he has second billing, Stuart Erwin is pretty much limited to playing a raised-eyebrow straightman to his spectral relatives, being pursued by the wealthy New York divorcee and getting a grilling from a couple of Brooklynese gumshoes. Somehow, he manages to be both plausible and disarming, and teams agreeably with Miss Segal in "You Appeal to Me." Besides singing her two tunes expertly, Miss Segal is convincing as the amorous divorcee. Dawson and Miss Wright are acceptable as the engaged pair. Lulu Bates sings two numbers vigorously.

Major credit for the favorable elements of "Great to Be Alive" belongs to Helen Tamiris for the choreography, Mary Hunter for the flexible staging and Stewart Chaney for the decorative scenery and costumes. Hobe.

Plays Out of Town

Cry of the Peacock

New Haven, March 23.

James Colligan and Donald Medford production of comedy-drama in three acts by Jean Anouilh, adapted by Cecil Robson. Features Oscar Karlweis, Raymond Lovell, Marta Linden, Lili Darvas, Philip Tonge. Directed by Martin Ritt; decor by Cecil Beaton; lighting by Beaton and Peggy Clark. Opened at Shubert theatre, New Haven, March 23, '50; $3.60 top.

The General	Raymond Lovell
Ada	Merle Albertson
Nathalie	Patricia Wheel
Toto	Dick Van Patten
Count	Oscar Karlweis
Countess	Marta Linden
Hector de Villardeau	Philip Tonge
Nicholas	Peter Brandon
Marie Christine	Gerraine Raphael
Tutor	Richard A. Martin
General's Wife	Lili Darvas

In its premiere condition, indications are that unless "Peacock" acquires added plumage in the form of more interesting dialog and more expansive development and clarification of its basic theme, its April 6 Broadway opening may well produce an Easter egg. In any case, it doesn't seem to be for the masses.

Granted that the production encountered obstacles via a shift in directors during rehearsals, this changing of workhorses in midstream cannot be blamed entirely for the fact that the play is only intermittently absorbing. Limited in concept, and brief in the telling (only about 90 minutes running time), it leaves an impression of only moderate entertainment. An effective third act is somewhat of a saving grace.

Despite its universal theme—love—it just doesn't emerge as standout stage fare over here as compared to its big reception on the Continent. Play's pattern is a criss-crossing of love in its many angles, ranging from youthful romance to sordid sensual satisfaction. Although the author's premise is largely obscure, as unfolded at preem, it seems to be to the effect that pure love is more apt to be found between the physically-handicapped than among those who regard themselves as sounder specimens of society.

A retired French general, whose wife had gone mad 10 years previously over love for him, has called a family conference to consider the case of a hunchback spinster sister who had found love as she approached middle life. Present at the conference are the general's sister, the Countess: her husband, and the third member of their "design for living," Hector de Villardeau. Also on hand are the General's daughter-in-law, Natalie, and the son she should have married, Nicholas. The General has a mistress in the person of the maid, Ada; the Countess is having an affair with Villardeau; the Count is following suit with a young dressmaker; Nicholas and Natalie contemplate culminating their childhood romance despite her marriage to his brother; and the deformed sister, Adele, has found a mate in a similarly deformed family tutor.

It is to break up the latter romance that the General has called the conference, but developments point out that the crippled pair are the only ones of the lot having a semblance of purity in their romance, and when they are denied each other they kill themselves. Play derives its title from constant calling of the deranged wife for the General, a shout that resembles the cry of a peacock.

Casting is uniformly good, with the various assignments being handled capably. Top-featured Oscar Karlweis plays the Count knowingly and efficiently but the role as a whole does not tax the depths of his acknowledged acting talent. Britisher Raymond Lovell, making his American debut, carries well the part of the pompous, long-suffering General. Marta Linden is attractive in appearance and precise in diction as the apex of the love triangle involving the Count and the family friend, Villardeau, played with expert stupidity by Philip Tonge. Lili Darvas makes much of her single scene as the demented wife.

Turning in good support are Merle Albertson, as the General's maid-mistress; Patricia Wheel and Peter Brandon, the youthful lovers; Dick Van Patten and Gerraine Raphael, in child roles; Richard A. Martin, in a walk-through as the hunchback tutor.

In the short space allotted him since taking over directorial reins, Martin Ritt has staged his scenes with varying degrees of audience appeal, majority being on the favorable side. The duller segments are due more to dialog shortcomings, certain sequences involving puerile wordage, even making allowances for the stilted phraseology of the play's 1912 era.

"Peacock" is played against a setting comparable to the splendor of the bird itself. It is one of the season's top artistic contributions, showing a colorful hall and staircase in a French chateau. Lighting is used effectively to portray the play's three time moods of morning, afternoon and evening. Bone.

Of All Things

Hollywood, March 23.

Leighton Brill and William Trinz production of revue in two acts (20 scenes). Music by Maurice Engleman, Jr.; lyrics and sketches, Alan Alch. Direction by Keenan Wynn. Dances and musical numbers staged by Eugene Loring; settings, Richard Jackson; musical direction, Leon Leonardi. At Century, Hollywood, March 22, '50; $3.60 top; opening night, $6.

Cast: Alan Alch, Alan Aric, Nelson Barclift, Bunny Bishop, Gloria DeWerd, Maurice Engleman, Emmaline Henry, Charles Lind, Mara Lynn, Pete Marshall, Bob Mason, Mary McDonnell, Gloria Moreland, Tom Noonan, Patty O'Connor, George Reeder, Albert Ruiz, Robin Short, Patricia Tdun, Beth Thompson, Marc Wilder.

Ever since "Lend An Ear" broke in on the Coast and headed east for bigtime success, local producers have been stepping eagerly up to bat hoping to knock out another revue homer. So far the score has been no hits, no runs and several errors. Latest effort might, to continue the simile, be classed as a base on balls; in its current state, "Of All Things" is no hit but it could get a local run.

There are possibilities in this Leighton Brill-William Trinz production. It has enough material to form the nucleus of a good intimate revue. Brought in for around $20,000, and operating on a little theatre basis, "Of All Things" probably can manage to break even on a local run basis without any further effort. It has a few good numbers to recommend it and is delivered with a verve and enthusiasm that will contribute to a word-of - mouth buildup.

Chief difficulty is the lack of standout material or talent. The few good sketches hit comedic high spots but tend to be anti-climactic and need pruning. There are at least two tunes that could amount to something if delivered by voltage talent, and Eugene Loring's often-good dance routines need some change of pace.

Cast works hard under Keenan Wynn's okay direction but the only real attention - getter is Tom Noonan, who reaches hilarious heights in a couple of skits. Kap.

Le Marcheur

Montreal, March 22.

Gesu presentation of drama in three acts by Yves Theriault. Directed by Huguette Oligny; set by Jacques Blanchet. At Gesu, Montreal, March 21, '50; $2.25 top.

La Mere	Eleanor Stuart
Valerie	Huguette Oligny
Damien	Robert Rivard
Jerome	Jean Duceppe
Le Petit	Benoit Fauteux
Le Cure	Marcel Sylvain

"Le Marcheur" ("The Walker"), written and produced by Yves Theriault, is the first play by this prolific young Canadian scripter, and in spite of sombre theme, one of the season's most imposing offerings.

Entire action of this three-acter takes place in a typical French-Canadian farmhouse kitchen and tells the story of a family dominated by a dying father, who has driven most of his cheldren from home and reduced his wife to wretchedness and servility. From the creative angle, play shows much talent but lack of comedy and pervading sense of gloom throughout should limit the appeal and length of run.

As the mother, Eleanor Stuart's performance brought a hefty reception from first-nighters. An English-Canadian by birth, with much experience in London with the Old Vic and a sock reputation in the local Anglo-theatre productions, this is Miss Stuart's first play in French and she carries off her part with distinction and authority. Kudos also go to 14-year-old Benoit Fauteux as the half-witted son, who maintains the character at all times in spite of near-tendency to corn up situations and movements.

Direction by Huguette Oligny, who also plays the daughter, Valerie, leaves something to be desired. First act drags and needs more action to combat lengthy dialog sessions. Second act builds to good curtain, with children of family renouncing father, threatening to leave the mother and return to their city life. Robert Rivard, as one of the sons, turns in a creditable job but general direction has stylized too many of the movements and limited these usually expressive performers.

Climax comes when the father finally dies with only his wife and a priest at his side. The resulting relief and sense of freedom that sweeps the small house brings play to strong finish.

Writer-producer Theriault may not have a great play on his hands, but initial stage effort augurs well for future tries. Newt.

Plays Abroad

Continued from page 71

Pas D'Orchidees

get a twinge of horror at the macabre carryings-on. But even tradition is caught in progress, and the Grand Guignol has come of age. Gone is the nice messy ice-pick murder, and the face pushed into a blazing stove. In its place is 20th century sadistic, sensual psychological horror. "No Orchids For Miss Blandish" was a play adapted in England from Hadley Chase's lush novel. It was then a film on the English eye-view of American gangsterism which was banned in the States.

The Guignol version is a free translation, and a sexy, sadistic orgy it is. A group of hoods kidnap the rich Miss Blandish. She is then taken from them by another mob headed by the neurotic killer Slim, who hungers for the beauteous Miss Blandish. Slim's brutal mother whips and drugs Miss Blandish into submission for the advances of Slim, who is afraid of girls. When Miss Blandish's moral scruples finally begin to give way before Slim's animal appeal it is too late, for they are all shot down like dogs.

The only reminder of the good old days is a couple of stabbings, a girl being tortured with a lighted cigaret and some cruel beatings. The cast turns in a good stylized job with Jean-Marc Tennberg a standout as the sadistic Slim. Renee Gardes, an old Guignol standby, is good as the brutal Ma. The girls are appropriately decorative in the underwear in which they spend most of the play.

Mosk.

Nuit Des Hommes
(Man to Man)

Paris, March 4.

Andre Barsacq presentation of drama in one act by Jean Bernard-Luc. Direction and scenery by Andre Barsacq. At Theatre de l'Atelier, Paris.

Jordan	Jacques Dumesnil
Ricalens	Michel Vitold

This is an out-and-out tour de force—a dialog between husband and lover of the same woman (who does not appear on the stage) lasting for an hour and 20-some minutes. If the extra 20 minutes were cut, it would improve the work considerably, but even so Jean Bernard-Luc has come up with a fine dramatic opus, by timing it with the liberation of a French provincial town by the approaching allies.

The wife has left both her husband and her lover. The former is interested only in her, the latter is a leader in the resistance. Little by little it develops that she has left both of them and has gone off on her own in a dangerous mission in which she is killed. And as the church bells toll, announcing the liberation of the town, the husband kills the lover, considering him responsible for her death.

In lesser hands the work would doubtless have fallen flat, but both Jacques Dumesnil and Michel Vitold give exceptional performances.

Fred.

Craven House

London, March 14.

Pat Nye & John Penrose production of light comedy in three acts by Diana Hamilton; adapted from novel by Patrick Hamilton. Directed by Ken Tynan. At Bedford theatre, London, March 13, '50.

Mrs. Nixon	Pat Nye
Elsie Nixon	Tilsa Page
Miss Hatt	Jean Cadell
Mrs. Spicer	Helena Pickard
Mr. Spicer	Lionel Newbold
Mrs. Hoare	Esme Beringer
Anthony Wildman	Richard Longman
Miss Cotterell	Avril Hillyer
Audrey Custard	Shirley Richards
Russian Lady	Phyllis Montefiore
Jock Nixon	Norman Mitchell

This adaptation by Diana Hamilton from her brother Patrick's novel reflects little credit on anyone. Whatever merit it had as a book evaporates in its stage form.

Story centres on a group of people in a boarding house back in 1913. There is a suppressed young daughter of a bullying mother; a tearful nonentity of a wife with a jocular, philandering husband; the oldest inhabitant; a budding playwright and a slinky young siren from next door. Only incidents that could rate as a plot are the discovery that the young girl is only a step-daughter, so is free from the mother's tyranny, and that the boy's first play is accepted and he eludes the said siren to find real love with his fellow boarder.

It is hardly the fault of the company that their efforts misfire because Jean Cadell does her best to bring realism to the role of the genteel house owner. After a nervous upheaval the night before, she had ordered everyone to leave, and she finds herself desolate and bewildered in the deserted house. Helena Pickard is duly submissive and querulous as the deceived wife, and Tilsa Page and Avril Hillyer make good contrasts as the ingenue and her sophisticated rival.

Clem.

INSURANCE
D. DAVIDSON CO.
INCORPORATED
100 WILLIAM ST.
NEW YORK 7, N. Y.
Bowling Green 9-4420

Available for Summer Stock
Beautiful air-conditioned theatre within easy reach of North Shore and large suburban communities North of Boston. Good stage, parking space, 700 DeLuxe Seats. Reply Variety, Box V-2652, 154 W. 46th St., New York 19, N. Y.

Moscow Play Depicts Democrats as If They Were Communists

Washington, March 28.

Radio Moscow beamed a DX broadcast at Britain last week announcing that the hottest thing on the boards currently is a new play called "Missouri Walz," which rips into the Democratic Party as a collection of criminals and thugs.

Broadcast, intercepted by official U. S. monitors, said "Missouri Walz" was authored by Nikolai Pogodin, and was such a hit that it was day dating as a live drama in two Moscow legit houses —the Ermolova and the Vakhtangov."

The broadcast said of the plot: "It depicts election frame-ups in the U. S. and the activities of a gangster ring in the Democratic Party. The play exposes the monstrous poison-propaganda campaign launched at election time to mislead U. S. public opinion. Officials are bribed to include in the election lists persons who are no longer alive or who have left the state. The leaders of the Democratic Party stop at nothing in order to send their man to the Senate. Everything is brought into action from forgery to murder."

Vets Prep Coast Play

Hollywood, March 28.

Trio of World War II vets have formed Pacific Theatre productions which will preem a new script, "This We Fought For," at San Gabriel Mission Playhouse, May 5-6. Play, complete with sound effects, revolves around the battle for a Pacific island.

Stewart Conway, producer; Wallace Hunter, assistant producer, and Sam Todd, who plays the lead, hope for a west coast tour after the San Gabriel bow. Conway wrote the script.

College Play

Once Upon a Star
(BROWN UNIV.)

Providence, March 15.

Brownbrokers production of musical in two acts (14 scenes); book and lyrics, William Dyer; musical score, Harris Ullian; staged by George Eckert; dance direction, Judith Dech; vocal direction, Harriet Rotman; costumes, Patricia Ehrhardt; assistant dance director, Marjorie Reeh. At Faunce House, Brown Univ., Providence.

Cast: Judith Dech, Laurence Hochberg, William Dyer, Edwin Sherin, Harriet Rotman, Maxine Rosenbaum, James Lennon, William Eaves, Aileen Tuck, Nancy Welch, Laney Lee, Sally Ashbaugh, Reese Thornton, Elizabeth Ann Gibbons, Paul Michael, Fredlyn Kovitch, Sema Silverman, George Eckert.

With the exception of a couple numbers, this one will have to depend on family and friends for support. In justice to the youngsters, they tried, but a combo of rush into production, not too much obvious talent and a worn-out theme reflected the shortcomings.

Hollywood came in for its usual lampooning, with the usual love interest complicated by a Garboish character who insists on calling the male lead "swithart" and making the galfriend jealous. Washington sends out its usual Congressional Un-American Activities investigating committee, and it promptly throws Miss Smorgasbord into the clink.

Incidentally the brightest number is the investigating committee's reverting to oldtime vaude to put over the catchy "Red, Pink or Fuchsia."

Malo.

BALLET THEATRE PACTS 5-MONTH EUROPE TOUR

Ballet Theatre, which celebrates its 10th anniversary with a three-week engagement at the Center theatre, N. Y., starting April 23, has been booked for a five-month tour of eight European countries this summer. Troupe of 60 will fly to Europe July 15. Tour will be sponsored by American National Theatre & Academy, and have the cooperation of the Cultural Division of the U. S. State Dept.

Troupe will dance for a month in Germany, including performances for occupation forces. It will inaugurate the Edinburgh Festival Aug. 21 for a week, and follow with a three-week engagement in London. (Ballet Theatre gave an eight-week season in London in 1946.) Troupe will do an extended tour of Italian cities; play three weeks in Paris, and do a week each in Holland and Belgium. Tour will conclude in Vienna.

Company will be back in the U.S. in early December for its usual American tour. It has a three-week Canadian tour this spring, and a July appearance at Lewisohn Stadium, N. Y., prior to its European jaunt.

Current Road Shows

(March 26-April 8)

Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo — His Majesty's, Montreal (27-1).

Ballet Theatre—Playhouse, Wilmington (27); Constitution Hall, Washington (29-30).

Ballets de Paris — Nixon, Pitt. (27-1).

"Borschtcapades" — Blackstone, Chi. (27-8).

"Brigadoon" — Victory, Dayton (27-29); Hartman, Columbus (30-1); Royal Alexandra, Toronto (3-8).

"Cry of the Peacock" — Locust, Phila, (27-1).

"Death of a Salesman"—Hanna, Cleve. (27-1); Cass, Detroit (3-8).

"Diamond Lil"—Orpheum, K.C. (26); Stuart, Lincoln, Neb. (27-28); KRNT theatre, Des Moines (30-31); Aud., St. Paul (1); Lyceum, Minneapolis (3-8).

"Goodbye, My Fancy"—Gayety, Wash. (27-1).

"Harvey" — Robinson Aud., Little Rock (27); Municipal Aud., Shreveport, La. (28-29); Majestic, Ft. Worth (30); Melba, Dallas (31-1); Paramount, Austin (3); Texas, San Antonio (4); Music Hall, Houston (5); Aud., Lake Charles, La. (6); Murphy H. S. Aud., Mobile, Ala. (8).

"Kiss Me, Kate"—Shubert, Chi. (27-8).

"Lend An Ear"—Great Northern, Chi. (27-8).

"Madwoman of Chaillot" — Erlanger, Chi. (27-8).

"Man Who Came to Dinner" — Jr. H. S. Aud., New Westminster, B.C. (27); International Cinema, Vancouver (28-1); Capitol, Yakima, Wash. (3); Post, Spokane (4); Aud., St. Paul (7-8).

Maurice Schwartz — Plymouth, Bost. (3-8).

"Mister Roberts" — Colonial Bost. (27-8).

"Oklahoma"—Poche, New Orleans (26); Tower, Atlanta (28-1); Bijou, Chattanooga, (3-5); Ryman Aud., Nashville (6); Coliseum, Evansville, Ind. (7-8).

"Private Lives" — Harris, Chi. (27-8).

"San Carlo Opera Co." — Erlanger, Buffalo (30-1).

"Silver Whistle"—Lobero, Santa Barbara (31-1); Biltmore, L. A. (3-8).

"Streetcar Named Desire" — Shubert, Detroit (27-1); Gayety, Wash. (3-8).

"That Lady" — Texas, San Antonio (27); Metropolitan, Houston (28-29); Poche, New Orleans (31-1); Lanier Aud., Montgomery, Ala. (3); Tower, Atlanta (4-6); Bijou, Birmingham (7-8).

"Tickets, Please"—Shubert, N.H. (6-8).

Webster-Shakespeare — H. S. Aud., Mendota, Ill. (27); Ill. School for Deaf, Jacksonville (28); Southern Ill. U., Carbondale (29); Hughes Aud., Wilmore, Ky. (30); Purdue Music Hall, Lafayette, Ind. (31-1); Murat, Indianapolis (7-8).

"Congressional Baby" to Tour

Albany, March 28.

Eileen Tighe's comedy "Congressional Baby," recently tried out for two weeks at Malcolm Atterbury's Playhouse here, will tour for six weeks as a package show on the strawhat circuit, probably with Mark Roberts and Katherine Emmet featured.

The summer swing would be preliminary to a Broadway production. Eddie Dowling produced the premiere here.

Arthur Hopkins

Continued from page 68

Wife" (with Rita Weiman), he wrote several books, including "How's Your Second Act," "The Glory Road," the autobiographical "To a Lonely Boy" and "Reference Point," the latter a collection of dramatic lectures he had delivered at Fordham U.

Gave Few Directions

As a director, Hopkins was noted for his method of giving few actual directions to the cast, believing that it was better to let the actors work out the performance virtually alone. Commenting on the practice, the late Robert Benchley, at that time drama critic of the New Yorker, wrote of a Hopkins production that it had been staged "on the honor system." Years later, when pressagent Richard Maney explained to Louis Calhern that he had not scheduled any interviews during the road tryout of "Magnificent Yankee" lest they interfere with rehearsals, the star remarked, "What rehearsals?"

Yet Hopkins could make specific staging suggestions when he felt the occasion arose, and could be irate and vocal if they were not obeyed. During rehearsals of his production of "Deep River," for instance, he repeatedly instructed the late Jules Bledsoe, who was making his legit debut in the show, to stay in character during his songs, instead of following the concert practice of coming downstage and singing directly to the audience.

At the tryout premiere out of town, when the Negro baritone ignored the directions, Hopkins, who was sitting in the rear of the orchestra, swore aloud. A femme playgoer, seated nearby, admonished him, "If you don't like the show why don't you go to the box-office and get a refund?" "I only wish to God I could," the producer retorted.

Hopkins chose plays for production primarily because they appealed to him, and only secondarily because he thought they might make money. Unlike most producers, he had tenacious convictions, and when he decided to do a play, nothing swayed him from it. Moreover, even if the show proved a dismal failure, his faith in it was undiminished. And possibly because of his strong spiritual tendency, temporary difficulties and mishaps didn't bother him.

Politely Uncommunicative

In his tiny office in the Plymouth theatre building, which the Shuberts provided him rent-free in recent years, Hopkins continued his constant quest for promising scripts. When, as occurred with decreasing frequency, job-seeking actors visited him there, he rarely uttered a word, merely indicating by a shake of the head that he had nothing for them. He was also politely uncommunicative to reporters, although he occasionally talked entertainingly about the theatre if his interest was aroused.

Always one of the most literate producers in the theatre, Hopkins revealed his growing mysticism in various articles he contributed to the anniversary issues of VARIETY in the last few years. His last such piece, in the 1949 number, was critical of contemporary conditions in legit.

"In comparison with earlier days, still remembered by some of us," he wrote, "the theatre has become a joyless place. The fun has gone out of it. Now it is a place of frantic scrambling for recognition and approval. The theatre is no longer an end, but a means. It is something to be used.

"The only possession that any of us can take with us is the part that we refuse to sell for money, glory or approval. It can be summed up as simple human dignity. When the fun went out of the theatre much of this, too, was lost."

His rarely-used talent for irony was shown four years earlier, when he wrote, "In launching a production, are the actors cast first? How old-fashioned. No indeed. The promoter must first cast the stockholders. Stockholders are not required to submit photographs or press notices, although some of them are getting fatter pressbooks than stars, even breaking into national magazines as wonder boys. A really fine cast of stockholders can sometimes be cast in a week. They have no picture commitments, no radio conflicts. Of course, they are experts in all matters theatrical. . .

"The theatre is one business in which nothing needs to be learned. Everyone is born with an unfailing instinct about all theatrical problems. Most people are too busy with other occupations which they took a long time to learn. Strangely enough, learning one's own business requires certain tedious steps, of which the theatre is happily free. So lack of experience is no handicap to the stockholder. As with the dramatic critic, his perception is a gift which he cannot explain. It amazes him, but it just came. His not to reason why. And it is a sure thing that if the stockholder is lacking in theatre genius, his little wife can easily supply it.

"Among the theatre-struck it might be difficult to find a man who admits he doesn't know everything about the theatre—but finding a woman is impossible."

In another VARIETY issue he suggested, "These are the days of reconversion and revivals. Both are the putting to new use of old materials. Sometimes the old materials are better than anything new that is available. It is hard not to think of a few old plays that have more vitality than much of the new material that is being offered.

"Plays are not dead until they can no longer be made to live. It is sometimes more difficult to bring a new manuscript to life than it is to set an old one to ticking, so the test of a play's possibilities has less to do with age than with vigor. Plays born with weak gland systems will totter long before their better equipped elders."

Perhaps most revealing is the philosophy Hopkins expressed in his article of two years ago. "The taking world has been grabbing frantically for several centuries, with the result that most of the world's hands are empty and cold. Obviously, taking is not the way of fulfillment. Slowly and reluctantly we are learning that we are enriched by what we give, not by what we take.

"Old admonitions are at last taking on new meaning. 'Cast thy bread upon the waters.' 'It is better to give than to receive.' These are no longer idealistic dreams, but practical directions on the road to well-being.

"At present the theatre is one of the great lags in American life. There are many earnest people of whom we know nothing who are determined that the theatre shall be brought to the front and take its rightful and honorable place in community life.

"They are the theatre of tomorrow."

Duncan Out as Equity V.P. Due to Ill Health

Augustin Duncan, fourth vice-president of Actors Equity, has resigned because of ill health. The union's council yesterday (Tues.) voted regretful acceptance.

The council also named Katherine Meskill and Hiram Sherman as Equity representatives on the Television Authority national board, replacing Ezra Stone and Hume Cronyn, who resigned because of the press of professional commitments.

Apts. for Rent
Newly Remodelled Bldg.
448 W. 55th St., New York
IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY
2 and 3 Room Furn. Apts., $120-$145

FOR SALE
500 USED THEATER SEATS
Reasonable; Good Condition
Write: RICHARD STEVERS
Lakeside Theatre, Landing, N. J.

APARTMENTS
Several Very Attractive—Various Sizes
Furnished and Unfurnished
MRS. MABEL DETMOLD
230 East 49th Street, New York
EL 5-1927

Literati

Holt's Expanding Trade Dept.

William Raney's shift from Rineart to Henry Hold & Co., as chief ditorial assistant to Ted Amusen, recently appointed editor-inhief of the enlarged trade department, is another step in the expansion plans for that firm. Holt will have but a small trade list or this fall, but with the General Omar Bradley book in the fall of 51, the company expects to be eally rolling.

William E. Buckley, ex-Doubleday, is g.m. of the department. Edgar T. Rigg is now president of Holt, following reorganization and exit of Joe Brandt, formerly identified with the University of Oklahoma and the U. of Chicago Press. He is now reported back in the midwest engaged on some personal writing.

Amussen was an asst. editor at Rinehart (then Farrar & Rinehard) before his Navy service. He resigned to become editor of Reynal & Hitchcock, and later ditto with Harcourt Brace, following its merger with R&H. Raney's association with Amussen dates back to the Rinehart firm.

B'way-Bound Books on Increase

Number of books that have been dramatized for Broadway has shown a marked increase in recent years, according to an article by Dominick Dunne in the March 25 Publishers' Weekly.

Reason, Dunne says, is the fact that with the exception of Tennessee Williams and Arthur Miller "there has been no new generation of playwrights" to succeed the older dramatists. As a result, the piece points out, publishers and booksellers are profiting through hypoed sales of the tomes adapted into plays and musicals.

Eire Bans 5 of Novelist

Five novels by Hank Janson — "No Regrets For Clara," "Smart Girls Don't Talk," "Lilies For My Lovely," "Gun Moll For Hire" and "Lady, Mind That Corpse"—were among 24 just banned by the Irish Censorship of Publications Board as containing matter deemed "indecent or obscene."

Other novels redlighted at the same time were "The Crusaders," by Stefan Heym; "There's No Home," by Alexander Baron; "First Steps Inside The Zoo," by John Lodwick; "Rose Forbes," by George Buchanan; "This Very Earth," by Erskine Caldwell; "My Father's Son," by Richard Lumford; "A Few Flowers For Shiner," by Richard Llewellyn; "Blind Man's Buff," by Robert Neumann; "The Tender Men," by Willa Gibbs; "This to be Love," by Grace Allen; "Gorgeous Brute," by Countess Barcynska; "Proud Zulu," by Oliver Walker; "Sun in Scorpio," by Ronald Fraser; "The Sea Chase," by Andrew Geer; "Reckless Tide," by Sinbad; "Forbidden Paradise," by E. C. Davies; "Crooks' Honeymoon," by Paul Swift; "A Fine of Two Hundred Francs," by Elsa Triolet; "The Dukays," by Lajos Zilahy.

Esquire and See have been banned on the grounds that their contents have been usually or frequently indecent or obscene. Other publications banned at the same time were Prairie Pranks, Hollywood Frolics, Mischief, Expectancy, Desire, Bohemian Tales and Silky Stories.

Ager's Europe Stint

Cecelia Ager, former VARIETY staffer, will fly to Europe around April 8, with assignments from Cosmopolitan, Life and McCall's, for her first trip there since 1936. She'll spend three months abroad.

She did an extensive piece on Hollywood in the March Flair. Daughter Shana Ager has just been added to Flair's editorial staff.

CHATTER

Stanley Young new managing director of Farrar, Straus.

Betty Shaaker named director of publicity for Seventeen magazine.

Elliott Arnold's novel, "Walk with the Devil," being published by Alfred Knopf in October.

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz are profiled in the April issue of Coronet as the "First Family In Music."

Charlotte Adam, former Collier's food editor and WQXR and WOR gabber, now housekeeping editor of Charm.

Kirk Douglas will be profiled in the April issue of Seventeen by the mag's entertainment editor, Edwin Miller.

New reprint firm is St. John Co., with offices in N. Y. Specializing in westerns and mysteries. Editor is Marion McDermitt.

Albert R. Leventhal, veepee and director of sales of Simon and Schuster, was elected to firm's board of directors last week.

David Dressler is the editor of the announced magazine for men by Macfadden Publications called Saga. All articles, no fiction, and illustrated.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt scheduled to be guest of honor at a dinner given in New York tonight (Wednesday) by the P.E.N. Club, an international organization of writers.

"We Followed Our Stars," by Ida Cook, yarn of two young English girls traveling around the world to hear their favorite opera singers, will be published by William Morrow April 12.

Marc Blitzstein, composer of "Regina," is writing an article on Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" for Theatre Arts magazine. Also doing a piece on the Philadelphia Orchestra for Holiday mag.

Two more former Seventeen staffers have joined Charm. Cipe Pineles, Seventeen art director, has taken a similar post on the Street & Smith mag and Addie Weinerman has moved over as Charm's publicity director.

Denis Johnston, playwright and TV producer, and Dr. Enid Starkie, biographer and author, have been elected to membership of the Irish Academy of Letters. Academy membership is limited to 35 and these elections fill vacancies caused by the deaths of Robert Lynd and Dr. Edith Somerville.

Allen Raymond, N. Y. Herald Tribune correspondent in Tokyo, speaks on "How to Cover General MacArthur" at the Overseas Press Club lunch at Toots Shor's today (Wed.). Annual meeting of OPC will be held at Shor's on Thursday evening, April 20, when club elections will be held.

The tradepaper for writers, Author & Jounalist, published in Boulder, Colo., has been taken over by a new team since the death of Margaret A. Bartlett. There's a new format with the March number. Editors are Allan Swallow and David Raffelock; managing ed, Horace Critclow. John Wilstach is contributing consultant.

Met's Revamp

Continued from page 1

and popular favorites missing. Bidu Sayao, a Met star for the last decade, will be listed on the roster but will not sing. Ferruccio Tagliavini, a sensational find a few seasons ago, and the Met's leading Italian tenor, reportedly will be missing, along with his wife, soprano Pia Tassinari. Another important tenor, Giuseppe Di Stefano, is out. So is contralto Cloe Elmo. With a curtailed Italian repertory, certain artists are considered too expensive, and expendable.

Baritone Lawrence Tibbett, prez of the singers' union, American Guild of Musical Artists, and onetime considered as Edward Johnson's successor as Met general manager, is regarded a doubtful returnee. So is Salvatore Baccaloni, top basso buffo for the past decade. Lauritz Melchior, the Met's leading Wagnerian tenor, has refused to return under the new management. Next year would have been his 25th with the Met.

James Melton, radio as well as opera favorite, is doubtful. So is Charles Kullman, 20-year mainstay who sang more leading roles this season than any other tenor. Rose Bampton, a great Met name, is reported out. So are Stella Roman and Polyna Stoska. Latter starred on Broadway in "Street Scene."

Conductor Jonel Perlea, who got terrific notices from the critics when he joined the Met this season, won't return. It's reported he was offered only an assistant conductorship, and declined. Wilfred Pelletier, a Met batoning stalwart for many years, reportedly may not re-sign. In the ballet section, Marina Svetlova, premiere danseuse for several years; Boris Romanoff, the choreographer, and Alexander Gavrilov, the ballet master, won't be renewed.

Pons, Peerce Back

Dorothy Kirsten, Rise Stevens, Patrice Munsel, Blanche Thebom, Jussi Bjoerling, Kurt Baum, John Brownlee, Nadine Conner, Jerome Hines, Robert Merrill, Nicola Moscona, Set Svanholm, Richard Tucker and Astrid Varnay are slated to return. So are Helen Traubel, Eleanor Steber, Leonard Warren, Erna Berger, Ramon Vinay, Ljuba Welitch, Ferdinand Frantz, Irra Petina, Martha Lipton, Thelma Votipka and Licia Albanese. Jan Peerce, rumored to be out after years as a tenor mainstay, will definitely be back at the Met, according to the S. Hurok office, which manages him.

Lily Pons, who sang only one performance this season due to illness, will definitely be back, and will sing six times, all of them in "Barber of Seville," which reportedly is being retained in the repertoire just for her. She was wanted for 15 performances in "Die Fledermaus," but nixed it. Next year will mark the coloratura's 20th at the Met.

Next season's repertoire will likely prove a shocker. There will be nine German operas as against only five Italian and one French. Rep will include the four "Ring" operas: "Tristan and Isolde," with Ramon Vinay essaying Tristan; "The Flying Dutchman"; "Der Rosenkavalier," with Helen Traubel debuting as the Marschallin; "Fidelio," expressly revived for Kirsten Flagstad, and "Die Fledermaus." There will also be three Mozart operas, "The Magic Flute," "Don Giovanni" and "The Marriage of Figaro." The one French opera is "Faust." The five Italian presentations are "Don Carlos," "Manon Lescaut," "La Traviata," "The Barber of Seville" and the double-bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci."

For the first time in 40 years there will be no "Boheme." The cut in the Italian repertory and dropping of singers has caused much comment, and there is talk of disgruntled Italians forming another opera company in N. Y. next season.

Going Broadway?

"Die Fledermaus," which is not grand opera at all but an operetta, and which served as a Broadway musical a few years ago as "Rosalinda," is slated for at least 20 performances, more than any other work. This has certain purists burned, because that's more performances than any regular opera has had in any season over the last two decades. The fact that "Fledermaus" is being singled out so; that stage comic Danny Kaye was offered the non-singing, third-act role of the jailer in "Fledermaus," and that Margaret Webster is being called in to stage "Don Carlos," has raised protests in the longhair field that the Met is "going Broadway." The Danny Kaye bid has also caused ripples of laughter in the trade, since the comic can't be seen playing for the Met's relatively small fee and in a minor one-act role, which can't aid his reputation.

On the managerial side, the Met will have practically cleaned house for next season. The new general manager is Rudolf Bing. The three key people under him are new. Reginald Allen, general business administrator, will be the biz boss. Max Rudolf, artistic administrator, will be the backstage artistic boss. Francis Robinson, former legit pressagent, will be the front of the house boss as boxoffice and subscription head. He's also tour director. John Gutman, as Rudolf's general assistant, is also new.

'Mickey Finn'

Continued from page 1

Cassius Clay, who had already examined Dunn's brain, said he found enough choral hydrate to convince him that it was cause of Dunn's death. Detective Captain Harry Daniels said he would arrest two girls—Quarter habitues —and charge them with the murder.

Police Shakeup

Police Supt. Scheuering Saturday (25) ordered a shakeup of the Third Precinct squad, and said that from now on "all personnel working in the area would be handpicked." The precinct is in the French Quarter, where 85% of the city's night life is concentrated. The section is about a mile square and has 165 saloons and night spots.

He promised to crack down on (1) taxi drivers "who leave their vehicles and solicit for prostitutes"; (2) B-Girls, and (3) girls who go from bar to bar picking up men.

The idea of giving a drinker a Mickey Finn is to knock him out so he can be separated from his money faster than by cozening him into buying drinks at $1 each. Too much of the drug can be fatal.

Prospective customers over the weekend found two Federal seals on the front door of the Latin Quarter Club, proclaiming it to be seized by Government order. The order was signed by Jabins Luquette, a deputy U. S. Internal Revenue collector here. He said the closure "had absolutely nothing to do with the investigation of the death of Dunn, the police shakeup or the drive to clean-up the area."

Luquette said the club was seized for arrears in payment of cabaret tax. He declined to specify the amount, but said it was "better than $4,000."

Operators of other nightclubs in the French Quarter reported business "way off" Saturday night as a result of the Dunn death probe. At some places, sidewalk barkers shouted: "Absolutely no knockout drops served here." Saturday is usually a big night in the section, but this weekend you could fire a cannon and not hit anybody for blocks.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Hollywood, March 25.

Subpoenaed recently to appear as a witness in a litigation involving a newspaperman who had been bilked out of payment for publicity work performed without benefit of contract, I found I was to be cast as an expert in the field of public relations and the press. It had never happened to me before. I felt as thrilled as any mugg would feel on being tapped to advise Walter Lippmann on how to wear his pants out sitting on the fence.

It was explained to me that my testimony shouldn't take more than two hours. All the exhibits would be read to me by counsel for the plaintiff. Then I would be asked a hypothetical question. That sounded okay, except I was then informed the hypothetical question would run 15 typed pages. At the end I was to estimate what, in my expert opinion, such a literary labor was worth.

I first wanted to know who was trying the case. The trial happened to be in a town where 80% of the judiciary had got their jobs through (a) knowing a governor, (b) nepotism, or (c) excess campaign contributions from the upper and underworlds.

"Unless it's one of the judges whose personal integrity I can vouch for," I explained, "I'll have to file an affidavit of prejudice against the character."

Judging the Judiciary

This struck the plaintiff's counsel as going pretty high up the ladder. "We don't want you trying to hit wild pitches," the lawyer explained. "We want you simply to testify concerning the ability of the plaintiff as a newspaperman. If the court gets the idea that you're a one-man committee screening lawyers who may be fit to sit on the bench, he may not like it."

"I recall a lawyer," I countered, "who told the presiding judge and the D.A. in this county that only four out of 50 judges at that time addressed as 'Your Honor' had the kind of honesty he demanded to try his case, and unless the presiding judge gave him one of the four he would file affidavits of prejudice against the remaining 46, one by one, as each was assigned to try his case. They called his bluff, but after he had struck three out as easily as if he were a Rube Waddell of the bar, the presiding judge capitulated and gave the case to the least upnighteous of the four."

"Oh, brother," moaned the counsel for the plaintiff, "with that kind of attitude you're going to be a great help."

"Who's sitting?" I asked.

Counsel shrugged his shoulders. The fact couldn't be held from me indefinitely, so he released his honor's name.

"Okay," I said. "What a break! He's one of the four you can trust!"

Toujours La Politesse

Knowing how fast judges are these days in matter of contempt, I hopped to attention when his honor entered the courtroom. To my surprise, he bowed and smiled to me after all of us sat down.

When I was sworn in he leaned over and asked, "Is that chair comfortable for you, Mr. Scully, or shall we get you another?"

I assured him in a subdued voice (the phoney one) that everything was just perfect.

To lay the groundwork for my expert testimony counsel for the plaintiff began asking me about my education. "You mean before or after I quit school?" I wanted to know. He was willing to settle for a short biography of my professional past. Right there I got off on the wrong foot. I told him I had started on The Sun in New York. "You know," I explained, "the paper that died recently."

Well, after that practically every publication which had leaned on me for support had since folded. I told how I had been managing editor of The Spur, the first of the glossy four-bit mags. "That died, too," I explained.

Hoping to get into a field that might help the plaintiff, I cut to a publicity job I had done in Tucson. I told about an old showman who had retired to growing peaches on the desert. Between times he was selling acreage. I wrote a few pieces about his project for a local paper (since dead) and then suggested that I do one for a national publication. He said he couldn't pay me for the effort in cash but perhaps I could use an acre of land.

Success Also Folds

"I tell you what I'll do," I said, "I'll write it for your favorite magazine and if I don't place it there you owe me nothing, no matter where I place it afterwards." He picked Success. I landed it there. He paid me the acre. "I still have it," I told the court. "But the magazine, I regret to say, has long since died."

From there the recital got worse instead of better. From Scribners to the Hollywood Press Times, the story was one long melancholy transcription of Scully's kiss of death. Around Hollywood alone I could point to at least seven publications that called on me for succor and ended at Forest Lawn. "But only one of them," I hastened to add in my own defense, "began with a column of mine and finished with me still in there pitching. Most of them brought me in as a relief pitcher and discovered before long that they had called in a mortician instead. In fact if the money owed me from these enterprises were paid off at 10c on the dollar I'd be the G. Barnum Shaw of Hollywood."

"Well, what do you think this man's work is worth?" asked counsel for the plaintiff, feeling that candor was blowing their case practically into Cain's storage.

"Oh," I said fingering the exhibs. "You could ask for $50,000, take 25 if offered or settle for 10. Any way you look at it, the guy put in a year's work."

"That is all," said counsel for the plaintiff. "Your witness."

What a Trial Really Is

At this point, a redhaired smiling character arose. I had known him for years, dined with him often. More than once we had gone into the fallacious concept the public possesses about courts of justice. They think that truth is mighty and will prevail, when all lawyers know a case is simply a game between opposing counsel played on the litigant's face as the football field.

He thought my face had been trampled on enough. He smiled. "No questions," he said.

The judge excused me and added most graciously that I could of course remain to hear other testimony but didn't need to. I thanked him. We bowed with a politesse that I thought had gone out with the French Empire. I departed.

Days later I called the unpaid press agent. "Well," he said bitterly, "justice has triumphed."

"Appeal!" I cried.

"With what?" he wanted to know. "I was broke to start with. You and your four honest judges. We might ask for a retrial. But if we do, no more expert witnesses."

I told him I thought it might work out better that way.

Broadway

Henry Krecke, Metro foreign dept. exec, in St. Clare's hospital

T. J. Dunford upped to general production manager at Transfilm, Inc., as of April 1.

Lynn and Nell Farnol to be guests this weekend of Howard Cullman at his home in Bermuda.

Stanley Meyer, former Fox-West Coast and United Artists theatre exec, now on the board of Colonial Airlines.

Paul Benson and Ernest Brooks' new joint flackery. Latter now p.a.'s the Colony; Benson is an indie publicist.

Jimmy Boyle, former exploiteer for Eagle Lion, joined flack staff of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report.

Blanche Livingston, in charge of publicity for RKO's out-of-town theatres, planes to Europe Friday (31) for a vacation.

Circuit op Harry Brandt to chairman UJA dinner at Hotel Astor, April 27. Fred J. Schwartz, Century circuit exec, dinner treasurer.

Monica Lewis set for a singing stand at Mocombo, Hollywood, beginning April 12. She'll fly to the Coast a week before her opening.

Jack Gaver, United Press amusement editor, and his wife, Jessyca Russell, editor of the Writers' Newsletter, adopted a four-week-old girl.

Roger H. Lewis, account exec and copy chief for Monroe Greenthal Co., showbiz ad agency, upped to post of assistant to prez Monroe W. Greenthal.

Leonard L. Levinson, Coast scripter and prez of Impossible Pictures, gagged up some of the book of "Great to Be Alive," new Winter Garden musical.

Irene Dunne slated to sail for England today (Wed.) for her role as Queen Victoria in 20th-Fox's "Mudlark," being produced by Nunnally Johnson in Britain.

Johnny Weissmuller due in New York today (29) for final tuneups with swimming girls and boys for the opening of his Noel Sherman-produced "Watercade" in Cincinnati, April 8.

Macdonald Carey staying on in town to plug opening of his UI starrer, "Commanche Territory," at Rivoli, April 7. He'll make radio and TV appearances on behalf of picture.

Cecil B. DeMille pulls into New York Saturday (1) from Sarasota, Fla., where producer studied activities of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus in preparation for his next pic.

Garry Davis, "citizen of the world" and son of bandleader Meyer Davis, slated to arrive tomorrow (Thursday) from Europe on the America. Also aboard are Paulette Goddard and Mrs. Lewis Milestone.

Al Horwits, Universial's studio publicity chief, pulled into New York Monday (27) for homeoffice conclaves on world preem plans for U's "The Sleeping City," pic shot completely in Gotham.

Albert A. Senft, head of Sterling Sign Co., nominated as incoming prez of the Cinema Lodge, B'nai B'rith, for 1950-51, succeeding Saul E. Rogers, industry attorney. Senft previously served in the same notch from 1944-46.

Samuel Goldwyn authored "Television's Challenge to the Movies" in the N. Y. Times magazine section Sunday (26), and in the April 1 issue of the Saturday Review of Literature he has a piece tagged "Our Movies Speak for Us."

Sir Cedric Hardwicke throwing a special screening of Eagle Lion's "The Winslow Boy," filmization of the legiter in which the actor stars, for the cast of "Caesar and Cleopatra," April 6. Hardwicke is currently starring in "Caesar" on Broadway.

Charles Schlaifer, head of the ad agency bearing his name, voted in last week as a member of the board of governors of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, following his recent election to the National Advisory Council of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

Twentieth-Fox International prez Murray Silverstone returned to the U. S. aboard the Queen Elizabeth yesterday (Tues.) after a six-week onceover of company sales offices in England and on the Continent. Also on board was Peggy Cummins, who completed work in "My Daughter Joy," produced by Gregory Ratoff in England.

Scotland

"Robinson Crusoe" panto, with comic Jack Anthony, in last week at Glasgow Pavilion.

British singer Lee Lawrence takes place of Allan Jones at Glasgow Empire April 17.

Advance team from Sir Michael Balcon's Ealing Studios out on Clyde location spots o.o. for new Scot film.

America's Mack Triplets booked to head Glasgow Empire variety, with Britain's Lee Lawrence, week of April 17.

Billy Cotton and band, Beryl Orde and Albert Whelan topping Moss Empires Golden Jubilee Week at Glasgow.

Jock Roberts, husband of stage actress Mary Ellis, killed while climbing near Selkirk, testing gear for Swiss holiday.

Mary Mackenzie, ex-Dundee Rep, has leading part opposite John Mills in new play, "Damascus Blade," here April 3.

William L. McAllister, air liaison engineer, son of the late Doodles (famous Glasgow-born clown), weds Alyce Watson, of New York, April 1.

June Sylvaine, 20-year-old daughter of author, in cast of Vernon Sylvaine's farce, "One Wild Oat," here with Arthur Riscoe and Robertson Hare.

Four Aces, British vocal quartet who clicked in Scots strawhatter at Glasgow last season, in for three-weeks' variety stint at Ayr Gaiety, Clyde coastal house, April 10.

"Carissima," $75,000 musical, opened British tour at Glasgow Alhambra March 21, with a U. S. leading lady in Bettina Hayes. Author Eric Maschwitz has added new duet, "When We Were Young."

Paris

By Maxime de Beix
(33 Blvd. Montparnasse)

Canada Lee in town.

Ben Lyon in town for one day.

Dave Stein back from Germany.

Czechs prepping film festival in July.

Jimmy Davis opening at La Rose Rouge.

Edith Piaf recitaling at the Salle Pleyel.

Paulette Goddard doing some Paris shopping.

Arnu Sani, Hindu chantoosey, a hit at the Carrere.

Josephine Premice off on a dance tour of Denmark.

Don Byas instrumentalizing for some French documentaries.

Marta Zenthy on successful tour of southern France and Italy.

Nitery biz in lull waiting for the forthcoming tourist season.

Chanteuse Honey Johnson opening her own nitery in Montparnasse.

Louis Merlin, of Radio Luxembourg, serializing his book on U.S. in daily Ce Matin.

"Tobacco Road" to be performed in French by the Renaissance Repertoire Group.

Harrison and Fisher to double from Lido into Gaumont Palace for two weeks at Easter.

Arthur Lesser cast Sophie Desmarest in the title role of "Ninochka," coming to the Gymnase.

Experimental Film Theatre created by French crix still doing good business in its sixth week.

Suzanne Regnie switching from Fox, where she was Bob Harley's secretary, to RKO's Elias Lapinere.

Wladimir Kressim planning a trip to U. S. to take his new story, "Time Running Out," to Hollywood.

Colored tenor Charles Holland giving recital at Salle Pleyel following very favorable radio reception.

Rene Clair's "La Beaute Du Diable" being preemed at the Opera House with President Vincent Auriol in attendance.

Paul Gallico and wife in town to work on a screenplay based on the Paris Herald Tribune, to be called "European Edition."

Dugromacolor, a new film color process, being introduced by French engineers Roger Dumas, Georges Grosset and Andre Marx.

Tokyo

By Russell Splane

Shin Toho Studio, in Nara, southern Japan, destroyed in $100,000 fire.

George P. Breakston of Republic Pictures okayed by Army for Japan visit soon.

Beatrice P. Lamb. CBS staffer now in Philippines, also has applied for Japanese entry permit.

Harry Slott, motion pic officer in occupation headquarters, back in Tokyo after emergency leave in Los Angeles to visit sick mother.

All prewar French films still circulating in Japan have been ordered withdrawn by Francois Chevalier, Franch film rep in Tokyo.

Date for start of commercial radio in Japan is now May 2, instead of April 2. Additional snags in passing radio legislation are blamed for the delay.

Japan Motion Picture Assn. received letter of congrats on recently adopted Nipponese production code from Joseph I. Breen, v.p. and code director of Motion Picture Assn. of America.

London

"Mr. Roberts" tentatively slated to open at the Coliseum in June.

W. H. Berry, onetime musical comedy star now retired, celebrating his 80th birthday.

Fred Green, Scottish cinema and dance-hall operator, in London on looksee for suitable attractions.

Arthur S. Abeles, Jr., Warner Brothers topper in Britain, sailing to U. S. on routine trip April 7.

Fred Cook has been booked for a 10-week tour on Moss Empires and Stoll theatres, opening April 10.

"Black Chiffon" folding shortly at the Westminster, with the company making a provincial tour before leaving for New York in the fall.

After 19 years as bandleader at the Savoy, Carroll Gibbons has been appointed director of entertainments at the Savoy and Berkeley.

Bandleader Vic Lewis planes out to New York Friday (3), for talks with Stan Kenton and will do a guest turn on the "Carnegie Hall," airer.

Charles Goldner returns to the West End legit stage after a two year absence, to star in "The Man with the Umbrella," skedded to open at the Duchess April 5.

The Mack Triplets, booked at the Colony restaurant for two weeks with option, have now been extended to six weeks, a record for any act at this West End nitery.

"The Provoked Wife," second of Sir John Vanbrugh's 18th century comedies to be revived, staged at Arts Theatre Club, March 22, by Max Adrian, will likely repeat success of "The Relapse."

Darvas and Julia, currently a big hit at Bal Tabarin and the ABC, Paris where they are doubling, have been booked by Emile Littler for his next Christmas pantomime at the London Casino.

David Coplan, who returned last week from New York, planning another visit to the States in four to five weeks to finalize his three-way production deal with Film Classics and a continental group.

Maude Edwards is booked by Hyman Zahl for some vaudeville dates in Canada to be followed by tele sessions in New York sometime in May, but may cancel to sign for "Touch And Go" legiter.

Norman Lawrence inked for "Golden City," a new musical which goes into rehearsal in May and will come to the West End in June. Stephen Mitchell is producing and Robert Helpmann is doing the choreography.

Stanley French's production of "The Platinum Set," by George Ramon, replaces "The Schoolmistress" at the Saville, Thursday (30). Roy Rich directed. Chief roles are played by Elspeth March, Patricia Jessell, Henry Oscar and Patrick Barr.

As result of a deal between J. Arthur Rank and John Schlesinger, chairman of African Consolidated Theatres, a public demonstration of big-screen TV will be held at the Rand Agricultural show for 10 days from next Saturday (1).

Buenos Aires

Nene Cascaller, scriptwriter of U. S. advertising agencies in B. A. turning to writing for screen.

U. S. Ambassador Stanton Griffis exhibits "The Window" in private show at Embassy residence.

Dinah Mezzomo, Brazilian film star, who worked in "Folha Carioca" and "A Noite," visiting B. A.

Argentine cinemactress Amelita Vargas leaving on three-month tour of Latin America and U. S.

Jean Sablon coming to B. A. for broadcasts over Splendid web, and also possibly to work in Argentine films.

Walt Disney's Argentine office throwing cocktail party for Oliver Johnston, prexy of Walt Disney Productions.

Dixon Donnelly, press secretary of U. S. Embassy in B. A., feted at a dinner organized by press and entertainment groups, on eve of transfer to State Dept. job in Washington.

Mexico City

By D. L. Grahame

Zachary Scott visiting.

Jean Gammon, Canadian actress, here to work in pix.

Mexican Oscaring for 1949 to be done at a big fiesta April 28 at El Patio nitery.

Berta Singerman booked into the Palace of Fine Arts for recitals April 1, 11 and 12.

Veronica Lake being feted by the municipal government who invited her to its forthcoming annual Spring Fiesta.

Rudolph Loewenthal inked Marga Lopez for a top role in his forthcoming pic, "Girls in Uniform," in Spanish.

A. C. Blumenthal impresarioing a fashion show aboard an airplane on the 90-minute flight between here and Acapulco April 9. First show of the kind in Mexico.

Jorge Negrete, pic actor-radio singer and gen. sec. of the national actors union, and his wife, Gloria Marin, pic star, sail from N. Y. on the Queen Elizabeth for tour of Europe.

Gen. Juan F. Azcarate, producer-distributor, inked several German pix, some made during the war, for exhibition in Mexico. He was the last Mexican minister to Berlin before the war.

Celestino Gorostiza, producer-actor, granted a municipal government subsidy for a theatrical season here. Ditto for Luz Alba, producer-actress and the stock company of the historic Teatro Arbeu.

Deksa, U. S. indie and European pic distributing and cinema apparatus agency that Jacob Epstein, ex-UI manager here, started two years ago, has sold its pic distribution rights to Distribuidora Mexicana de Peliculas, new company backed by Gen. Abelardo L. Rodriguez, ex-President of Mexico.

Washington

By Florence S. Lowe

Fred Waring played his annual Constitution Hall concert last week.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and wife due in April 11 to m.c. Navy Relief Ball.

Melvin Douglas in town to visit frau Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Cal.).

Local Variety Tent sponsoring a rodeo April 8 for benefit of Welfare Fund.

Irene Selznick here over weekend and due in again for final arrangements for "Street Car" before leaving for England April 14.

"The Pilgrimage Play," film based on the annual Hollywood Bowl play, booked into Constitution Hall for three shows on April 5 by Toby Chandler, owner of Film Center.

Chicago

James Melton in for concerts and his radio show.

Gene Barrett named general manager of the Ambassador Hotels.

Walter Wanger speaks on "Donald Duck and World Diplomacy" tomorrow (Thurs.) at the University of Chicago.

J. Arthur Rank coming here April 3. He may huddle with Zenith's Eugene McDonald re phonevision.

Dot Lind, femme sharpshooter, here for exhibitions and TV stints April 3 and 4; traveling in advance of Metro's "Annie Get Your Gun."

Silver plates bearing names of Bing Crosby, Perry Como and Arthur Godfrey went up on doors of suites at Ambassador East this week. Hotel has policy of dedicating suites to famous clients.

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway

Johnny Long band played one nighter Saturday (25).

Joan Davis stopped over on way to Puerto Rico and "Duffy's Tavern" date.

Walter Jacobs planed to Lake Tarleton (N.H.) to ready for summer opening.

Clover Club show (which did best biz in area this year) holding over for 14th week.

Town experiencing heaviest business in years for this time of year, though clubs still are in bad shape in most cases.

Walter Winchell staged golf putting tournament at Roney Plaza's miniature course for newspaper and radio staffers, with Jack Cummins of WTVJ the winner. Awarded WW Cup, the two played a round, with columnist tieing the ex-golf pro.

Minneapolis

By Les Rees

Rose Midgets at Club Carnival.

Mills Bros. and Ray English top Club Carnivel floor show.

RKO-Orpheum has fifth Palace vaude unit coming in next month.

Northwest Variety club expects to raise $100,000 for its heart hospital via safety slogan contest offering $12,000 in prizes.

C. E. Bailiff, grocer of Bloomington, Minneapolis suburb, bequeathed Northwest Variety club $2,000 for heart hospital fund in his will.

Spike Jones, at Lyceum, gave free Charleston instructions with record albums as prizes for best pupils on Thursday afternoon of final week.

Lyceum gets Monty Woolley in "Man Who Came to Dinner" week of April 9 and also still has Mae West in "Diamond Lil" and Thomas Mitchell in "Death of Salesman," the former week of April 2 and latter in May under A.T.S.-Theatre Guild subscription aegis in May.

Hollywood

Edward Arnold's divorce decree finalized.

Cliff Reid hospitalized after a stroke in Reno.

Philip Wrigley in town for confabs with Gene Autry.

Richard Todd heads for England after three months at Warners.

Anne Triola out of legit "Of All Things" cast and into hospital.

Actress Lynn Merrick recuperating after an overdose of sleeping pills.

Dewey Robinson in the hospital, seriously injured by a hit-run driver.

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck vacationing at Palm Springs.

Mack Sennett alumni will hold annual reunion in Simi Valley, April 30.

Celeste Holm to appear in Hollywood Bowl sunrise services Easter morning.

Darryl Zanuck hosted Paul Reynaud, French political leader, at 20th-Fox.

Don Hartman became a director of National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Bing Crosby to Front Royal, Va., to dedicate Bing Crosby Stadium, a recreation center.

Dennis Morgan goes to Milwaukee next month for opening of municipal auditorium.

Heather Wilde sailed in from England after roundabout voyage through Panama Canal.

John Wayne reelected prexy of Motion Picture Alliance for Preservation of American Ideals.

June Havoc awarded honorary life membership in Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Raymond Massey narrated a short subject on cancer for U. S. and Canadian health organizations.

Bill Burnham and Dick Steen in town to round up talent for Glenn McCarthy's Shamrock Hotel in Houston.

George Folsey hospitalized for an eye operation while John Alton is subbing as chief cameraman on "Life of Her Own" at Metro.

Robert B. Price, special rep. of L. A. headquarters for Bank of America and w.k. in film industy, became a member of the bank's Quarter Century Club last week.

Pittsburgh

By Hal Cohen

Dinty Moore, WB exchange manager, underwent throat operation.

Dave Barnholtz in from Coast to look over his theatre interests in town.

Spike Jones revue set for two-day stand at Syria Mosque on April 4-5.

Mrs. Pete Dana, wife of Universal district manager, okay after an operation.

Sam Stratton in town, following Rueben Rabinovitch, ahead of Les Ballets de Paris.

Dancing Evans Family, of Homestead Park, set for 12-week tour of RKO vaude circuit.

Danny Schmidt, barrister-hypnotist, on mend at Montefiore Hospital after major surgery.

Raul and Eva Reyes now own four duplex houses, in addition to their own, in Hollywood, Fla.

Metro had Sharpshooter Dot Lind here for couple of days grabbing space for "Annie Get Your Gun."

Joe Mann and Elaine Beverly (Mr. and Mrs.), local radio personalities, making cafe debut at Carousel.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Booking agent Jolly Joyce opened branch office in New York City.

Spike Jones and his "Musical Depreciation" Revue are slated for Academy of Music April 17.

Film actor Claude Rains did narration for Salvation Army's show "There Is an Army" (24) in behalf of organization's annual appeal.

Marty Bohn, now heading floor show at Nut Club, received a citation from National Purple Heart Assn. for his trouping during the war.

Dr. Allen B. DuMont, president of Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, will speak at dinner-meeting of Philadelphia Television Assn. on future of television.

Margaret Truman will head the guest list at Robin Hood Dell's 21st anni dinner April 17. Truman will be one of Dell's soloists during concert season in Fairmont Park this summer.

Dancer Liane Plane suffered back injury during Ballet Theatre's first number at Academy of Music Friday night (24). Ballerina Muriel Bentley, who was in audience, took Miss Plane's spot in "Gala Performance," without anyone out front being the wiser.

OBITUARIES

ARTHUR HOPKINS

Arthur Hopkins, 71, legit producer, died of a heart ailment at St. Vincent's hospital, N. Y., March 22.

Details in the Legitimate section.

FRANK BUCK

Frank Buck, 66, who gained international fame as the "bring 'em back alive" big-game hunter, died of a lung ailment in Houston, Tex., March 25.

He once estimated that in 33 years he had captured more than 100,000 birds of every variety, more than 50 elephants, scores of pythons, 65 tigers, and also hundreds of other wild animals, all tracked down in the far corners of the earth.

Buck was born in Gainesville, Tex. Eventually he landed in Chicago. He was not quite 21 when he met Amy Leslie, whose real name was Lily West, a prominent Chicago drama critic and former actress. They were married. For a period of several years the couple lived in Chicago, where Buck was general assistant to the head of the Western Vaudeville Managers Assn. and later western representative of the N. Y. Telegraph. He started an aviary at his Chicago home and once again began to read books on animals.

His marriage ended in divorce. In 1911, with the proceeds of $3,500 won in a card game, Buck sailed for Bahia, Brazil, where he purchased a quantity of birds. Back in New York, the zoos and bird dealers snapped them up at large profits to himself. Successive expeditions to South America followed.

After journeying to Singapore, where he penetrated the jungles and caught his first python, Buck's fame as an explorer spread. On one occasion, he delivered to the City of Dallas a zoo complete with 500 specimens of birds, animals and reptiles. He also began to gain a reputation as a showman.

It was at the suggestion of the late Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, that Buck, in conjunction with Edward Anthony, wrote "Bring 'Em Back Alive," published in 1930.

In 1935 his two books, "Fang and Claw," and "Tiny Thompson in the Jungle" were published. Two years later he published "On Jungle Trails," and in 1939, "Animals Are Like That." Three of his books were made into motion pictures. In recent years he had made extensive tours as a lecturer.

In 1937 he joined the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus and also exhibited his animals at the Chicago Fair and later at the New York World's Fair. At one time Buck established a private wild animal zoo at Amityville, L. I., which he operated for several years.

Last summer, he made a trip to Singapore and returned with a cargo of animals. At Christmas he published an album of recordings of jungle stories.

Survived by his second wife, daughter, a sister and two brothers.

KATHARINE GREY

Katharine Grey, 77, retired actress, died March 21, at Orleans, Mass.

Born in San Francisco, Miss Grey made her debut with Augustin Daly's company at Daly's theatre, N. Y., 50 years ago, in Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah." She later appeared in companies of James A. Herne, including his great success "Shore Acres," after which she appeared with Charles Coghlan, Arnold Daly and William H. Crane. She followed Margaret Anglin in Richard Mansfield's production of "Cyrano de Bergerac" and played in such prominent successes of that era as "The Dawn of Tomorrow," "The Lion and The Mouse," "Madame Butterfly," "Paid in Full," with Mrs. Fiske in "Salvation Nell," "The Ninety and Nine," "The Best of Friends," "Business is Business," and "When We Were 21" with Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott."

In her younger days she became the wife of Paul Arthur, comedian, who lost his life in a hotel fire in London, and with him she appeared at the Madison Square theatre, N. Y., in "On and Off," and a number of farces produced by Charles Frohman. She later married John Mason and acted with him in "The Third Degree," by Charles Klein.

LOTTIE BRISCOE

Lottie Briscoe, 69, former stage and screen star of silent pictures era, died in New York, March 19. She was the wife of Harry Mountford, former executive secretary of the White Rats of America, Inc., original vaude actors' union.

A child actress in the days of McKee Rankin and Richard Mansfield, her subsequent rise in the theatre was rapid. After starring in "Editha's Burglar," she rejoined Mansfield to appear in prominent roles in "The Devil's Disciple" and "Richard III."

Before retiring from the stage in 1915 because of illness, she appeared in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "My Friend From India" and "For Fair Virginia."

When the Essenay Co. was formed in 1907, she joined it as one of the first legitimate theatre actresses to go into pictures. Her first leading man was Francis X. Bushman. She later joined the Lubin Co., of Philadelphia, and was starred in its pictures for four years.

She also appeared in vaudeville and enjoyed a long run in George Kelly's sketch, "Mrs. Wellington's Boots." Later she made infrequent appearances on radio programs before being confined to her home for the last 15 years.

Besides her husband, she is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Al Rauh, the former Olive Briscoe, also a former actress.

HUGH BENNETT

Hugh Bennett, 57, pioneer film director and more recently a film editor, died March 21 at his home in Malibu, Calif., following an attack of coronary thrombosis. His last assignment was as editor on the Ronald Colman picture, "Champagne for Caesar," at Motion Picture Center.

Bennett entered the film business as a projectionist in New York with the old Edison Co. and moved to Hollywood with Al Rockett in First National. After a time as editor for Warners, Reliance and Samuel Goldwyn he became a director for Paramount and piloted the "Henry Aldrich" series and "National Barn Dance." He suffered a heart attack while directing "The Biscuit Eater," for Paramount several years ago and never fully regained his health.

GERTRUDE HAYES

Gertrude Hayes Gerard, wife of Barney Gerard, Monogram producer, died March 23 in La Jolla, Calif.

Professionally known as Gertrude Hayes, she starred for nearly 20 years in "Barney Gerard's Follies of the Day," on the old Columbia burlesque wheel. She also appeared in vaudeville circuits with Mabel Carew in dramatic sketches. She also played in England and was well known for her male impersonations.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are a sister, a nephew and a niece.

Father, 58, of Si Lax, Columbia Pictures salesman, died in Chicago, March 21. Surviving are his wife and two sons.

JOHN J. KEIRANS

John J. Keirans, 81, one of the pioneer theatrical columnists, died last week in Philadelphia. Keirans worked on the Philadelphia Record, the North American and the Public Ledger and for 30 years wrote a column about theatricals and its people, which was syndicated to 30 papers in the U. S. and Canada.

In 1899, Keirans became manager of the Bijou Theatre, Philly, and later managed road shows. In 1904 he returned to Philadelphia to become exchange editor of the North American, a post he retained when that latter was absorbed by the Public Ledger 20 years later.

EDOUARD ESPINOSA

Edouard Espinosa, 78, one of best known British ballet masters, died in Worthing, England. Born in London of Spanish ancestry, Espinosa made his first London appearance in 1889. Four years later he gave a performance in New York. Subsequently, Espinosa became ballet master of the Covent Garden and many London theatres.

He produced dances and ballets for more than 300 productions in his long career. He had taught dancing for more than 60 years and had written many books on ballet techniques.

SYLVIA DeFRANKIE

Sylvia DeFrankie, 60, retired actress, died March 15 in Lancaster, Ohio.

She began her acting career in South Bend, Ind., where her father managed a theatre.

She appeared in "Just Married" and with Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield in "Look Who's Here." Her last appearance was some years ago in "The Student Prince."

Surviving are two sisters.

FRANCIS X. KIRSCH

Francis X. Kirsch, 51, "Albany's Singing Cop" and broadcaster over stations in that area, died March 24 at his home in that city. He had recently been retired as a police sergeant.

Kirsch won top honors on "Major Bowes Amateur Hour" broadcast March 16, 1936 and an offer to join one of the traveling units. He appeared with the troupe when it played the Palace Theatre, Albany, in May of that year. Kirsch had also sung in local operettas and with musical groups. His wife, a son and daughter survive.

FRANCIS (DINK) TROUT

Francis (Dink) Trout, 52, veteran radio actor, died in Hollywood March 26. Best known for his milquetoast characters, he was featured on the Dennis Day radio show, and also appeared with Lum and Abner and more than a dozen other air shows during long ether career that followed some years in vaudeville.

He once played with Ben Bernie's band. He worked in many pix including the "Scattergood Baines" series.

Mother survives.

JOHN L. McGEARY

John Lawrence McGeary, 52, orchestra leader and musician, died March 21 at Columbus, O. He had been appearing with the Walter Knick Trio at the Jai Lai in that city.

McGeary was at one time concert master for the Ohio Theatre orchestra and his orchestra had also been featured at the old Keith and Majestic theatres, at the Hartman (legit house) and in concerts at Olentangy Park. He was formerly staff violinist for WBNS.

Survived by wife, son and brother.

PAUL G. BROWN

Paul Goodwin Brown, 79, director and member of executive board of Universal Pictures, died in Palm Beach, Fla., March 24.

Brown, a retired engineer before joining Universal, had headed the Keystone State Corp. of Philadelphia; was a director of American Society of Civil Engineers and was one-time president of Engineers Club of New York.

JACK EVANS

Jack Evans, 48, bandleader, died March 22 in Toronto. He organized his combo 24 years ago, had played the fall and winter seasons at the Columbus, Toronto, for the past 16 years, and the Palais Royale during the summer months.

Survived by wife, two daughters and two sons, who are members of the band.

GEORGE BELL

George Bell, 54, former ventriloquist, died March 15th, at his home in Mexico City after a heart attack. He was a son of the late Richard Bell, famed English clown.

Bell retired from showbiz some years ago and entered merchantile business in Mexico City. Survived by two brothers and three sisters.

JOHN C. ANDERSEN

John C. Andersen, 59, co-owner of the Welton, Denver, and former operator of Ft. Morgan and Brush, Colo., theatres, died in Denver last week following an emergency operation.

Survived by wife, a son and three daughters.

HAROLD HARRIS

Harold Harris, 58, who was to have been company manager for the forthcoming double-bill legit production "A Phoenix Too Frequent" and "Freight," died in Cedarhurst, L. I., March 26. Among those Harris worked for in managerial capacities were Major Bowes, Texas Guinan and Mike Todd.

A sister and brother survive.

LEWIS C. ECKELS

Lewis C. Eckels, 62, character actor, died in Kansas City, March 26, while on tour with Mae West's "Diamond Lil" company. Actor suffered a heart attack after Thursday (22) night's performance.

His wife, Cara Louise Field, also a member of the "Diamond Lil" company, and a daughter survive.

JAMES W. GREENLEY

James W. Greenley, 73, one-time theatre operator, died in Portland, Me., March 26. Greenley, who operated a roller skating rink in Portland during the war, opened that city's first film house in 1907.

Surviving are a wife, three daughters, a son, a brother and a sister.

WILLIAM C. BARRETT

William C. Barrett, 48, international veepee of International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, died of a heart attack March 26, while returning from IA quarterly meeting at Vancouver.

Wife and two children survive.

FREDERICK VON LAMBECK

Frederick Von Lambeck, 32, horse trainer and judge, who at one time doubled for Tyrone Power in a number of the film actor's riding sequences, died in Rochester, N. Y., March 26.

His mother survives.

WILLIAM SCOTT

William Scott, 63, one-time manager of the A. B. Marcus Show, died in Brisbane, Australia, March 15.

Later he ran an amusement park, in Brisbane, with Phil Wirth of Wirth's Circus.

HAL SHUMATE

Hal Shumate, 38, radio announcer, was killed in an airplane crash on March 20, near Harlingen, Texas.

Shumate was employed at KGBS, Harlingen. He was formerly with KRGV, Weslaco, Tex.

KARL L. MOSTELLER

Karl L. Mosteller, 42, former supervisor in the record department of the Radio Corp. of America, Victor Division, Camden, N. J., died last week at his home in Haddonfield, N. J.

Wife and mother survives.

RAFFAELE VIVIANI

Raffaele Viviani, 62, noted Italian actor and playwright, died in Naples, March 22, after a long illness.

CHARLES R. SADLER

Charles R. Sadler, 75, pioneer motion picture stunt man, died March 23 in Los Angeles.

Mother, 96, of Arthur Judson, concert manager and booker, died at Harrison, N. Y., March 22. She is survived by another son, two brothers and a sister.

Mother, 76, of Ben Ross, comedian, died in Dayton, Ohio, March 24. Surviving also are two other sons and two daughters.

Virginia Marie Terrell, 39, secretary to Cecil B. DeMille, died in Hollywood March 24, following a long illness.

Mother, 75, of Frank Finger, Paramount cameraman, died March 22 in Culver City.

MARRIAGES

Shirley Banning to Billy Gray, Los Angeles, March 26. He's a night club performer.

Margaret Parmentier to James Baker, New York, March 25. Bride is a legit actress.

Sally Yvonne Weisburgh to Dr. Murray Grossman, New Rochelle, N. Y., March 25. Bride's father is Herbert Lloyd Weisburgh, president of Radio & Television, Inc., N. Y. manufacturing firm.

Roberta Ethel Ferencich to Joe Schadl, San Antonio, March 13. He's a cameraman at WOAI-TV there.

Joan Eisman to Sam Rosenblum, March 18, in Chicago. Bride is secretary to Hank Markbreit, midwest manager for Bourne music.

Ronda Sherwood to Jack Page, Indianapolis, March 24. He's a Chi talent agent.

Hannah Williams to Thomas J. Monaghan, Los Angeles, March 22. Bride is an actress and former wife of Jack Dempsey; he's a night club comic.

Ann Peron to Galen Drake, New York, recently. Bride is a model; he's a radio commentator.

Sylvia Hyde to Samuel P. Lesser, Stamford, Conn., March 25. Bride is a member of Metro's foreign dept. secretarial staff.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Wadkins, daughter, March 5, Latrobe, Pa. Father's district manager of concessions for Manos theatre circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Stefanon, daughter, Pittsburgh, March 10. Father's manager for Blatt Bros. theatre chain in Roaring Spring, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Grimes, son, Chicago, March 17. Father is member of WBBM staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Upton, Jr., son, Chicago, March 17. Father is WBKB tele engineer.

Mr. and Mrs. Scotty Fessenden, son, Chicago, March 22. Mother is former dancer, Talia Wermuth.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Boretz, daughter, New York, March 26. Father is a radio-TV writer.

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Keehne, daughter, Van Nuys, Calif., March 22. Father is wardrobe chief for Pine-Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Shepherd, son, Miami Beach, March 20. Father is a radio exec there and formerly with the Wometco theatre chain.

Cantor's Show

Continued from page 2

ner, the veteran star tees off on a comedy note by entering with a violin. He introduced his two pianists—"one of them somebody left over from the Boston Symphony."

A sentimental crack about hoping that his "grandmother could only be here; when I was a kid in Henry Street she always said 'go and play in the hall' and I'd have liked her to see me play in the hall—Carnegie Hall" was a natural. None of the nostalgia or sentimental thereafter was sticky. With the innate showmanship of veteran trouping, Cantor's routine thereafter was as objective as a reporter's. His closeups on the greats with whom he became associated, and vice versa, were projected in matter-of-fact manner. His career, by now more or less public information, requires no gilding, hence his raconteuring has greater authority by underplaying.

Only in spots did he wax hypersentimental, principally as regards Ziegfeld and Bert Williams, but all of it was in good taste.

Columnist Sidney Skolsky, who did such distinguished pioneering with "The Jolson Story," has been working on the Eddie Cantor saga for ultimate filmusical production, and his subject virtually writes the script for him, if the Carnegie Hall recital is any criterion. Cantor reprises "Harrigan" and "My Wife's Gone to the Country" in his novitiate as a singing waiter with Jimmy Durante in Coney Island.

Stuff about Gus Edwards' "Kiddie Kabaret," with his lifetime pals Georgie Jessel, Jack Wiener (now the agent), Winchell, Lila Lee, Georgie Price, Hildegarde, et al., is recalled.

Ted Lewis, Van & Schenck, more Ziegfeldiana, Marilyn Miller, Fanny Brice, Irving Berlin, Gus Kahn and Walter Donaldson, the Shuberts' "Midnight Rounders" and how Harry Akst brought him "Dinah," but couldn't sell Cantor a Berlin (Max Winslow) plug song, John Barrymore, Orson Welles, more about Schnozzola, sentimental stuff about Sam Goldwyn and Jessel (twice more recalled), update Cantor's show biz progress. His name-droppings are colorful and authoritative.

'March of Dimes'

His anecdote about Jessel's "suicide" note and how George M. Cohan conned the torching comic out of it, and how Jessel converted the sentimental "farewell" note into a $500 advance on a pop song; "Tomatoes Are Cheaper," a 1932 depression song; the rise of Cantor on Chase & Sanborn's radio program and the hokum "If I'm the President" ("we want Cantor") bring him to his intimate association with President Roosevelt and the March of Dimes which Cantor coined. FDR proposed 1,000,000 people at $1, and the comedian asked, "How, Mr. President, would you like 10,000,000 people contributing 10c" instead to the Warm Springs Foundation (infantile paralysis). And how FDR, over a Thanksgiving broadcast, quoted Cantor's line, "It's great to be in a country where you sit down to carve a turkey instead of a map."

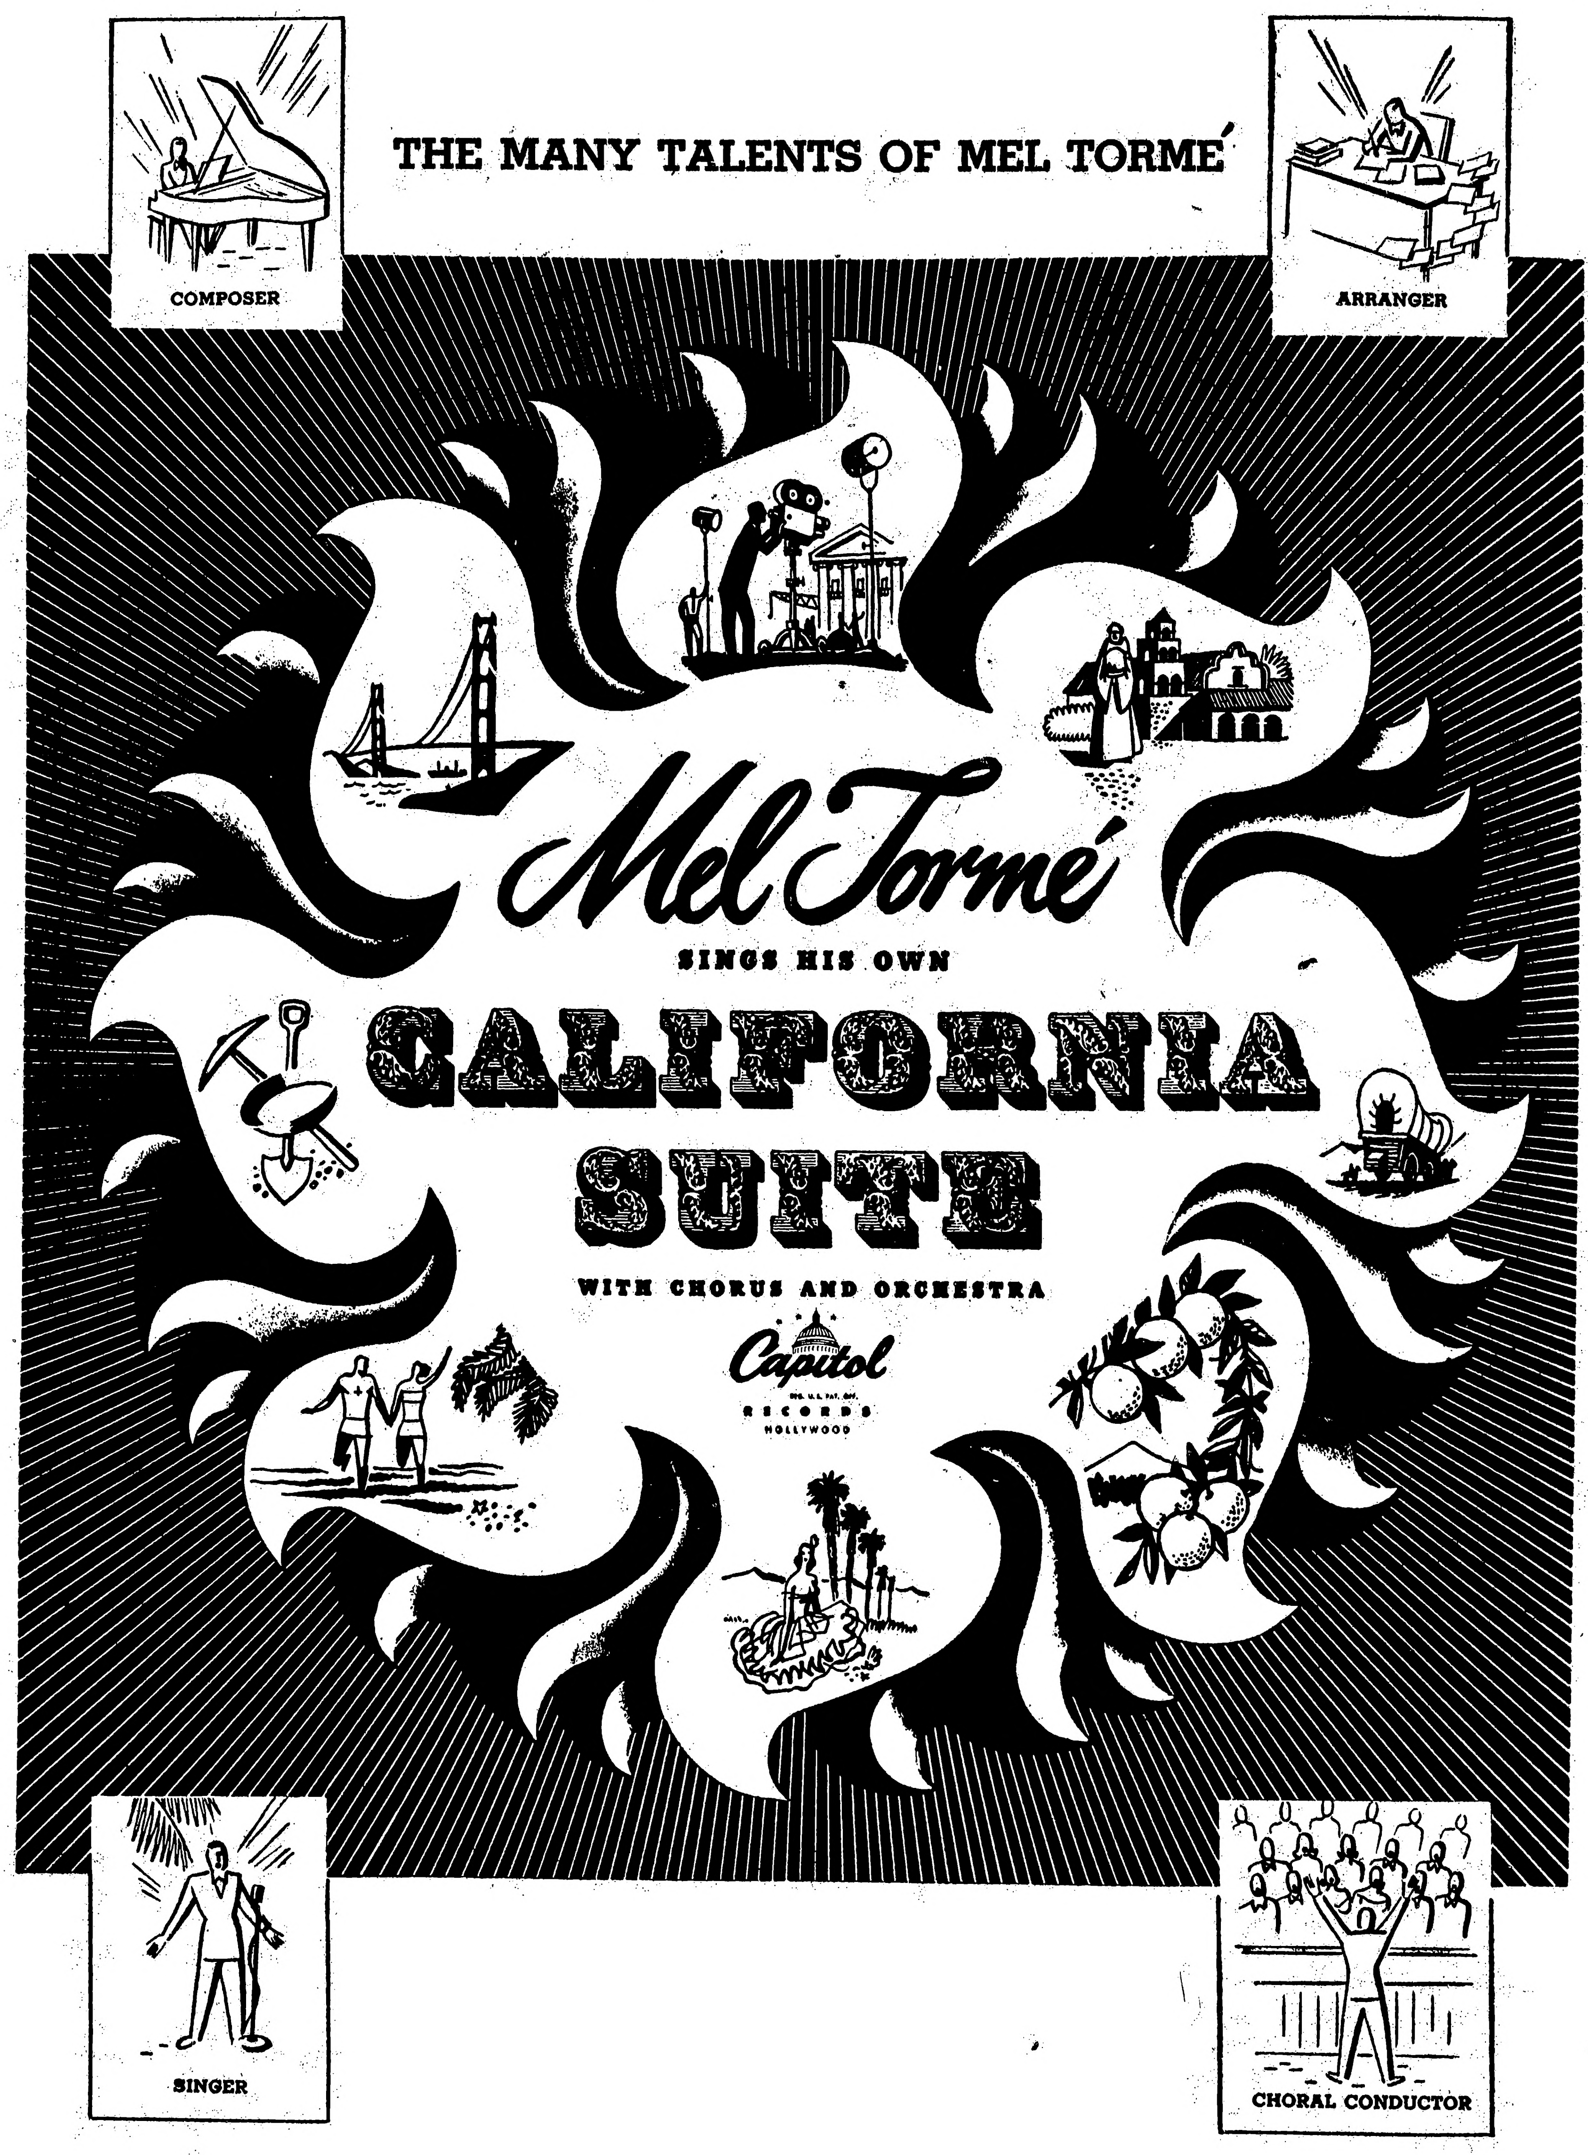
Berlin's "No Business Like Show Business" was a sort of unofficial theme song, opening and closing, but segueing into "Ida," "Margie" and "If You Knew Susie," and his now trademarked "I'd Love to Spend This Hour With You."

Cantor spent from 8:50 to 10:23 uninterruptedly—as solid a one-man show as could be desired. He was gay, serious and quasi-tragic in the cavalcade of emotions. The most sorrowful note was the Bert Williams reminiscence about a New Year's eve in a Chicago hotel with the great colored comedian, who, while always stopping in the best hotels, had to go up the back, or servants' entrance. "It wouldn't be so bad, Eddie, but what really hurts is the applause still ringing in my ears."

Cantor's Carnegie click, captioned "my 40 years in show business," was actually a double-featured benefit for the Cantor Boys Camp at Surprise Lake, N. Y., for underprivileged N. Y. kids from the lower east side sector, and under auspices of the One World Committee which sponsored and garnered the residual net. The One World Committee donated $1,000 to the Cantor Camp.

Cantor signed off: "Service is the rent we pay for our room on earth—I try to be a good tenant."

THE MANY TALENTS OF MEL TORMÉ



COMPOSER
ARRANGER
Mel Tormé
SINGS HIS OWN
CALIFORNIA SUITE
WITH CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA
Capitol
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
RECORDS
HOLLYWOOD
SINGER
CHORAL CONDUCTOR

Personal Management
CARLOS GASTEL

Direction —
GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION
THOMAS G. ROCKWELL, President
NEW YORK • CHICAGO • HOLLYWOOD • CINCINNATI • LONDON

Press Relations
GENE HOWARD

Scanned from microfilm from the collections of
The Library of Congress
National Audio Conservation Center

Coordinated and sponsored by

MEDIA HISTORY
DIGITAL LIBRARY

A search of the records of the United States Copyright Office has determined that this work is in the public domain.